Mr. BROOKS. May I say to the Senator that I am glad at this late hour to have him ask for my cooperation. 8 years in the Senate this is the first time I have heard even an intimation of his asking or offering to cooperate with the junior Senator from Illinois.

Mr. LUCAS. That is a very lovely speech. I yielded for a question only. The PRESIDING OFFICER.

Senator may still retain the floor. Mr. LUCAS. I know I can retain the floor, and I thank the Chair for that information. I thought I had the floor.

Mr. President, of course the Senator from Illinois can either cooperate or not cooperate on these postmaster appointments. He has given me an indication in the answer which he made that he does not want to cooperate at this late hour in getting these postmasters out of the pocket of the chairman of the Committee on Post Office and Civil Service, so that their nominations may be confirmed and they can go on their way.

Mr. BROOKS. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. LUCAS. I do not yield for any more speeches. The Senator has told me that he does not want to cooperate.

Mr. BROOKS. Mr. President, I did not say that I did not want to cooperate. I said I was pleased that my colleague had asked me at last to cooperate on something.

Mr. LUCAS. Mr. President, I have been getting evasive answers like that for years from my colleague. I sincerely hope that with the information spread upon the record the confirmations can be made.

Mr. President, I am very happy that the distinguished junior Senator from Illinois said what he did, because in view of the evidence which has been presented here, after the statement he made, the senior Senator from Illinois and the veterans who are eligible for these positions will know exactly where to place the responsibility for their failure to achieve confirmation, notwithstanding the statement of the Senator from North Dakota [Mr. LANGER] last night to the contrary, in which he assumed all responsibility.

Veterans and others are being flagrantly discriminated against by not being permitted to receive the Federal appointments for which they qualified.

Every responsible, thinking citizen of Illinois will recognize that, although there is no good reason from the standpoint of qualifications, or of good character, that these nominees should not be commissioned in the Federal posts they seek, they are being deprived for political reasons of the opportunity of Federal emplayment offered without discrimination to all American citizens. And, what is even more repelling, veterans who have fought overseas and come back disabled are being deprived of the preferential treatment given them by law enacted when the Democrats were in control of the Congress.

It is impossible for me to understand what purpose the Republicans could have in doing this, since a veteran on an eligible register cannot be passed over for any reason under existing law. They can gain nothing by holding up these appointments. Even though the Republicans may hope to come into control of the executive branch next year, they must know that they cannot appoint as postmasters anyone but the veterans whose nominations are now pending unless it is their intention to change the law to such an extent that a disabled veteran who is No. 1 on the eligible register can be passed over for political reasons.

Mr. President, it would be amusing if it were not so tragic to watch the performance of the Republicans in control of the United States Senate who pay loud and voluble lip service to the interests of the men who defended this country in her hour of need, and of their widows, when they have an opportunity to reward these heroes with a small Government position. Nothing is too good for the veterans, they proclaim. They can bandy words at great length about what members of the armed services have done for their country, wax loquacious on their sacrifices, their wounds, and their sufferings, proclaim to the world that veterans are entitled to every consideration it is within the power of the Federal Government to give, and that they must never be discriminated against-oh, never!

But, Mr. President, 28 veterans in Illinois are being discriminated against. Five of them are disabled, wounded veterans from World War II, but their nominations cannot get through the United States Senate because of sordid Republican politics. They stand No. 1 on the list.

What happens when a disabled veteran in Illinois asks for appointment as a postmaster in his community in order that he may take care of himself and his family and lead a peaceful life among his friends and neighbors after his soulracking experiences away from them? He finds himself in another fight, face to face, this time, with a political enemy.

Mr. President, these Illinois soldiers and sailors and marines whose cause I have been championing alone-I say again, alone-are still fighting for their rights in peace as they did in war. I know that if the majority, or certain members of it, have decided that these good citizens of Illinois are not to be given the Federal positions they seek, and to which they are entitled, that settles it for the moment. But those responsible for blocking these nominations have not administered a final defeat to these postmaster nominees who have never known what it was to be licked in a fight. I have done my best to give them what they deserve. I shall continue the fight even after this Congress adjourns. These political casualties may not be skilled in the devious ways of political battles, but, Mr. President, this insult to their patriotism will not impair their fighting ability. They will some day serve their communities as permanent postmasters, and that time will come when a Democratic Senate takes control in 1949.

That time will come next January. when we inaugurate a Democratic President of the United States and a Democratic Congress.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA SALES TAX

Mr. JOHNSTON of South Carolina. Mr. President

Mr. SALTONSTALL, Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. JOHNSTON of South Carolina.

I yield for a question only.

Mr. SALTONSTALL. I should like to ask the Senator from South Carolina this question. If I withdraw my motion to bring up the sales tax for the District of Columbia, will he yield the floor?

Mr. JOHNSTON of South Carolina. I certainly will.

Mr. SALTONSTALL. Mr. President, I withdraw my motion.

CARL A. HATCH, OF NEW MEXICO

Mr. CHAVEZ. Mr. President, it now appears that the Eightieth Congress will come to an end this evening. Several of the present Members will not be with us when the Congress is again assembled. Of course we shall miss their advice and sound judgment. Our association with Senators who are leaving the Senate has been most pleasant and profitable.

I should like to say a word or two about my personal friend and colleague, Senator CARL A. HATCH, of New Mexico. My colleague, by his great patriotism, intelligence, and diligence, has reached national and international greatness, with honor to himself and the Nation. He has also earned the great respect of this body.

I have known Senator HATCH and his family for many years. I have been his colleague since 1935. Our association has been one of mutual respect and consideration. In many instances we have differed on legislation and official votes, but never an unkind word has escaped the lips of either one of us. I shall miss him. The Senate will miss him. New Mexico will miss him. The country and the world will miss his advice and coun-I know that in the future he and his fine family will be the recipients of that happiness which comes only to those who have lived well and have done their duty well. I wish him only the best.

Mr. HILL. Mr. President, I do not want this session to close without expressing deep regret that the senior Senator from New Mexico [Mr. HATCH] is leaving the Senate.

Those of us who have been privileged to associate with him in intimate contact and to know him well know how fine he is. We know the loss to his State and to the Nation in his departure from this body. Diligent and able in the performance of his duties in committees and on this floor, gifted of speech, and with an understanding heart, possessing the vision to see and the will to act, he has played a yeoman's part in the important matters that have come before the Senate during the epic years that he has served here.

We shall miss him. We shall miss him as a friend and an associate. We shall miss the wisdom of his counsel, the example of his high purpose, the courage, the character, the distinction of his service. No matter how powerful the lobby, how overwhelming the propaganda, how strong the pressure, he has held fast to his convictions and has served all the people. He has kept the faith. He has been the captain of his BARKLEY. Mr. President, I Mr. would not want these words of commendation concerning our colleague the Senator from New Mexico [Mr. HATCH] to go without a word on my part. I suppose that no two Senators have been closer personally or officially than have the Senator from New Mexico and I. I have learned not only to feel a very high personal regard for him as a friend but to have the utmost confidence in his sound judgment and his integrity, morally, mentally, and politically. Among all the Members of the Senate, I have the greatest pain, sorrow, and regret that the Senator from New Mexico has decided to relinquish his seat here in the Senate. I wish for him, in whatever he does hereafter, the greatest possible success, long life, and happiness.

PERSONAL STATEMENT BY SENATOR HATCH

Mr. HATCH. Mr. President, during the day several of my colleagues in the Senate on both sides of the aisle, in private conversations, and some on the floor of the Senate, have been most kind and generous in their expressions concerning my proposed retirement from the Senate. I do not wish to appear ungrateful. I am not ungrateful. Their remarks were greatly to my surprise, and somewhat to my embarrassment. I want all of them to know that I deeply appreciate the generous things they have said.

Mr. President, it is not my intention to make a farewell address, now or at any other time. I rise now merely to say, in these brief words, "Thank you; I am grateful."

WALLACE H. WHITE, JR., OF MAINE

Mr. BARKLEY. Mr. President, I should like to say a word at this time concerning another distinguished friend with whom I have served longer, I think, than I have with the Senator from New Mexico-a friend who likewise is relinquishing his seat here in the Senate. He is doing so to retire to private life. served with him for many years in the House of Representatives, and I have served with him for many years in the Senate.

As I have often said, both here and elsewhere, there is no man for whose ability, honor, integrity, and personality I have a higher regard than I have for the senior Senator from Maine [Mr. WHITEI who is leaving the Senate at the end of his present term.

Not only have I served with Senator WHITE in the House of Representatives and in the Senate, but I have visited him in his home in Maine, and I have been charmed by his dignity and his attitude, not only on national matters and international matters, but also on matters regarding the State of Maine where he lives.

I wish for him the most pleasant retirement

Mr. BREWSTER. Mr. President, I am quite sure I express the feelings of my colleague from Maine in appreciation to the minority leader, with whom he has been so long associated here in the Senate of the United States. It has been a matter of profound regret that the senior Senator from Maine, the majority leader, has not been able to be more active here on the floor of the Senate in his last year in the Senate, as his service comes to a close; and it is even more of a source of regret to him that in these closing days of the session, his strength did not seem to make it wise for him to stay longer. I think it was more the overwhelming emotion of the last day, perhaps, when he might be in the Senate that prevented him from coming to the Senate tonight. It was suggested that perhaps he would make the final motion to adjourn-as a graceful gesture and tribute to his position here and his many years of service: but he said he was afraid that his emotions would be too keen in that matter.

I have often said that I felt that no Member of the Senate was more fortunate in his colleague than was the junior Senator from Maine in his association with the distinguished majority leader. Senator White, with his vast knowledge and understanding of the procedure of our Government and the kind sweetness of character with which he has cooperated in every matter concerning both Maine and his country. His is a rather remarkable record of service.

What the senior Senator from Kentucky has said about the others who have served here for so long is almost equally true of Senator WHITE, who came here as a young man, serving first as a clerk to a committee, and then as assistant President pro tempore of the Senate. and finally rising to the position of Senator, and then to the position which he has graced in recent years, that of majority leader of the Senate, when rounding out more than a quarter of a century of service here; and also being recognized as an outstanding authority in the field of shipping, where the "White bill" was the name of one of our most important pieces of merchant-marine legislation; and in a rapidly expanding field of radio legislation, as well, where he was recognized in an almost unique manner when the President of the United States, heading another political party, asked him, when he was merely a member of the minority, and not chairman of a committee, to serve as chairman of the United States delegation to one of the great international radio conferences: and the invitation was repeated in more recent years, recognizing his vast authority in this field, as well as the devotion he brought to every field of service into which he entered.

I know I express the profound regret of the citizens of Maine that he has determined to terminate his long career of public service at this time, when he still has before him many years of activity. in which I know all of us wish for him the very happy days to which his disThe PRESIDING OFFICER. #### JAMES W. MURPHY

Mr. BARKLEY. Mr. President, while I am on my feet, I should like to call attention to a rather remarkable record on the part of a family which has long been associated with the official work of the Senate. We have one of our reporters, in the person of Mr. James W. Murphy, who has been reporter of the debates of the United States Senate for 52 years without interruption. His father before him was a reporter of the debates of the Senate, and his uncle also.

His uncle began his service here as a reporter in 1848; and when the 4th of December arrives, the family of Murphy—father and son and uncle—will have served a solid century as reporters of the debates of the United States Senate. I think that is a remarkable and outstanding record, and I imagine it is an exclusive record, as made by the Murphy family. Of course, they have rendered their service in this capacity unobtrusively and quietly. Their names never appeared in the headlines, because their position and their work did not call for any publicity. But it would be difficult to estimate the contribution that family has made to the legislative history of the United States Senate, and I imagine it would also be difficult to enumerate the number of times when, through their reportorial work and their knowledge of language, they have dressed up our speeches, which otherwise would have looked somewhat crude.

I wish to pay tribute to the Murphy family for their century of service to the Senate of the United States; and I wish for our present reporter, Mr. James W. Murphy, who has already served 52 years, great happiness, long life, and useful service here for many years more as a reporter of the debates of the United States Senate.

I thought that while we were paying these tributes to our departing colleagues, it was most appropriate to pay this tribute to a member of our official family.

STIMULATION OF PRODUCTION AND CONSERVATION OF STRATEGIC AND CRITICAL ORES, METALS, AND MIN-ERALS

Mr. WHERRY. Mr. President, I move that the Senate proceed to the consideration of Calendar No. 1801, Senate bill 2756, the strategic materials bill.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will state the bill by title.

The CHIEF CLERK. A bill (S. 2756) to stimulate the production and conservation of strategic and critical ores, metals, and minerals in the interest of national defense, and for the establishment within the Department of the Interior of a mine incentive payments division, and for other purposes.

Mr. WHERRY. Mr. President, the Senator in charge of this legislation is the Senator from Nevada [Mr. Malone]. I should like to ask the distinguished Senator from Nevada—there is a bill on the calendar, order No. 1340, Senate bill 2688, to provide for the administration of the Central Intelligence Agency. I am fold by the distinguished chairman of the Committee on Armed Services that there is no controversy involved. I am also told by the distinguished Senator that he would like to ask unanimous consent that the unfinished business be temporarily laid aside and that the Senate proceed to the consideration of Calendar No. 1340, Senate bill 2688, and that if it becomes controversial, he will ask for the regular order, and proceed upon the motion which has been made.

I ask the Senator from Missouri if he will not yield for that purpose, if the unanimous consent request is made.

Mr. KEM. Mr. President, I should be glad to yield with the understanding that it will be without prejudice.

Mr. WHERRY. That is right.

Mr. KEM. And will not be considered to affect my right to the floor, or as one of my speeches.

CENTRAL INTELLIGENCE AGENCY

Mr. WHERRY. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate proceed to the consideration of Calendar No. 1340, Senate bill 2688.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will state the bill by its title.

The LEGISLATIVE CLERK. A bill (S. 2688) to provide for the administration of the Central Intelligence Agency, established pursuant to section 102, National Security Act of 1947, and for other purposes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection to the consideration of the bill?
Mr. GURNEY. Mr. President, I have only a few remarks to make.

The purpose of the bill is to grant to the Central Intelligence Agency the authorities necessary for its proper administration. The bill deals with procurement, travel allowances, and related expenses, general authorities, and methods of expenditures of appropriated funds. Further, it protects the confidential nature of the Agency's functions and makes provisions for the internal administration of the Agency. In almost all instances, the powers and authorities contained in the bill already exist for some other branch of the Government, and the bill merely extends similar authorities to the Central Intelligence Agency.

COMMITTEE CONSIDERATION

Hearings on the matter were conducted in executive session because the confidential nature of the Agency's functions were deemed to be such as to require the discussions to be so held. The committee carefully considered all sections of the bill, and, after such consideration, is satisfied that all provisions of the proposal are justified and necessary to the efficient operation of the intelligence service of the United States.

The bill has the unanimous approval of the committee, and I ask for its immediate adoption.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mr. McMAHON. Mr. President, it is with great reluctance that I rise to object. I should like to call the attention of the chairman of the committee to section (b) of the bill, on page 12, which reads as follows:

(b) The sums made available to the Agency may be expended without regard to the provisions of law and regulations relating to the expenditure of Government funds; and for objects of a confidential, extraordinary, or emergency nature, such expenditures to be accounted for solely on the certificate of the Director and every such certificate shall be deemed a sufficient voucher for the amount therein certified.

Mr. President, it is with reluctance that I would move to strike this section from the bill. Representations have been made by Senators for whom I have a very high regard that this is a most necessary provision for the successful operation of the Agency. I must say that I am slightly Scotch about it, and I have my doubts. I would suggest that the chairman accept the amendment to strike out this section, and at least that we try for a period of 6 months or so, until Congress returns, to see whether or not this Agency cannot get along with that section out of the act.

Mr. GURNEY. Mr. President, in view of my promise to the Senator from Missouri that I would not delay debate, I am compelled to accept the amendment, in the hope that we can get the bill over to the House and secure its passage in the House tonight, where a similar bill is on the calendar. I, therefore, accept the amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection to the consideration of the bill? There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the bill.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will state the amendment.

The LEGISLATIVE CLERK. On page 12, after line 7, it is proposed to strike out subdivision (b) as follows:

(b) The sums made available to the Agency may be expended without regard to the provisions of law and regulations relating to the expenditure of Government funds; and for objects of a confidential, extraordinary, or emergency nature, such expenditures to be accounted for solely on the certificate of the Director and every such certificate shall be deemed a sufficient voucher for the amount therein certified.

The amendment was agreed to.

XCIV-574

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc.,

DEFINITIONS

SECTION 1. That when used in this act, the

(a) "Agency" means the Central Intelligence Agency;

(b) "Director" means the Director of Central Intelligence;

(c) "Government agency" means any executive department, commission, council, independent establishment, corporation corporation wholly or partly owned by the United States which is an instrumentality of the United States, board, bureau, division, service, office, officer, authority, administration, or other establishment, in the executive branch of the Government; and

(d) "Continental United States" means the States and the District of Columbia.

SEAL OF OFFICE

SEC. 2. The Director of Central Intelligence shall cause a seal of office to be made for the Central Intelligence Agency, of such de-sign as the President shall approve, and judicial notice shall be taken thereof.

PROCUREMENT AUTHORITIES

Sec. 3. (a) In the performance of its func-tions the Central Intelligence Agency is authorized to exercise the authorities contained in sections 2 (c) (1), (2), (3), (4), (5), (6), (10), (12), (15), (17), and sections 3, 4, 5, 6, and 10 of the Armed Services Procurement Act of 1947 (Public Law 413, Eightleth Congress, second session).

(b) In the exercise of the authorities granted in subsection (a) of this section, the term "Agency head" shall mean the Director, the Deputy Director, or the Executive Director of the Agency.

(c) The determinations and decisions provided in subsection (a) of this section to be made by the Agency head may be made with respect to individual purchases and contracts or with respect to classes of purchases or contracts, and shall be final. Except as provided in subsection (d) of this section, the Agency head is authorized to delegate his powers provided in this section, including the making of such determinations and decisions, in his discretion and subject to his direction, to any other officer or officers or officials of the Agency.

(d) The power of the Agency head to make the determinations or decisions specified in paragraphs (12) and (15) of section 2 (c) and section 5 (a) of the Armed Services Procurement Act of 1947 shall not be delegable. Each determination or decision required by paragraphs (12) and (15) of section 2 (c), by section 4 or by section 5 (a) of the Armed Service Procurement Act of 1947, shall be based upon written findings made by the official making such determinations, which findings shall be final and shall be available within the Agency for a period of at least 6 years following the date of the determi-nation.

EDUCATION AND TRAINING

SEC. 4. (a) Any officer or employee of the Agency may be assigned or detailed for special instruction, research, or training, at or with domestic or foreign public or private institutions; trade, labor, agricultural, or scientific associations; courses or training programs under the National Military Establishment; or commercial firms.

(b) The Agency shall, under such regulations as the Director may prescribe, pay the tuition and other expenses of officers and employees of the Agency assigned or detailed in accordance with provisions of subsection (a) of this section, in addition to the pay and allowances to which such officers and employees may be otherwise entitled.

TRAVEL, ALLOWANCES, AND RELATED EXPENSES

SEC. 5. (A) Under such regulations as the Director may prescribe, the Agency, with respect to its officers and employees assigned to permanent-duty stations outside the con-tinental United States, its Territories and possessions, shall-

(1) (a) pay the travel expenses of officers and employees of the Agency, including expenses incurred while traveling pursuant to orders issued by the Director in accordance with the provisions of section 5 (A) (2) with regard to the granting of home leave;
(b) pay the travel expenses of the members of the family of an officer or employee of the Agency when proceeding to or returning from his post of duty; accompanying him on au-thorized home leave; or otherwise traveling in accordance with authority granted pursuant to the terms of this or any other act;

(c) pay the cost of transporting the furniture and household and personal effects of an officer or employee of the Agency to his successive posts of duty and, on the termination of his services, to the place where he will reside;

(d) pay the cost of storing the furniture and houshold and personal effects of an officer or employee of the Agency who is absent under orders from his usual post of duty, or who is assigned to a post to which, because of emergency conditions, he cannot take or at which he is unable to use his furniture and household and personal effects;

(e) pay the cost of storing the furniture and household and personal effects of an officer or employee of the Agency on first ar-rival at a post for a period not in excess of 3 months after such first arrival at such post or until the establishment of residence quarters, whichever shall be shorter:

(f) pay the travel expenses and trans-portation costs incident to the removal of the members of the family of an officer or employee of the Agency and his furniture and household and personal effects, including automobiles, from a post at which, because of the prevalence of disturbed conditions, there is imminent danger to life and property, and the return of such persons, furni-ture, and effects to such post upon the cessation of such conditions; or to such other post as may in the meantime have become the post to which such officer or employee has been assigned.

(2) Order to the continental United States on leave provided for in 5 United States Code 30, 30a, 30b, or as such sections may hereafter be amended, every officer and employee of the Agency who is a citizen of the United States, upon completion of 2 years' continuous service abroad, or as soon as possible thereafter: Provided, That such officer or employee has accrued to his credit at the time of such order annual leave sufficient to carry him in a pay status while in the United States for at least a 30-day period.

(a) While in the continental United States on leave, the service of any officer or employee shall be available for work or duties in the Agency or elsewhere, but the time of such work or duties shall not be counted as

(b) Where an officer or employee on leave returns to the continental United States, leave of absence granted shall be exclusive of the time actually and necessarily occupied in going to and from the continental United States, and such time as may be necessarily occupied in awaiting transportation.

(3) Notwithstanding the provisions of any other law, transport for or on behalf of an officer or employee of the Agency, a privately owned automobile in any case where the Agency head shall determine that water, rail, or air transportation of the automobile is necessary, or expedient for any part or of all the distance between points of origin and (4) (a) In the event of illness or injury requiring the hospitalization of an officer or employee of the Agency who is a citizen of the United States, not the result of vicious habits, intemperance, or misconduct on his part, incurred while on assignment abroad, in a locality where there does not exist a suitable hospital or clinic, pay the travel expenses of such officer or employee by what-ever means he shall deem appropriate and without regard to the Standardized Government Travel Regulations and section 10 of the act of March 3, 1933 (47 Stat. 1516; 5 U. S. C. 73b), to the nearest locality where a suitable hospital or clinic exists and on his recovery pay for the travel expenses of his return to his post of duty. If the officer or employee is too ill to travel unattended, the Director may also pay the travel expenses of an attendant:

(b) Establish a first-aid station and provide for the services of a nurse at a post at which, in his opinion, sufficient personnel is employed to warrant such a station;

(c) In the event of illness or injury requiring hospitalization of an officer or employee of the Agency who is a citizen of the United States, not the result of vicious habits, intemperance, or misconduct on his part, in-curred in the line of duty while such person is assigned abroad, pay for the cost of the treatment of such illness or injury at a suitable hospital or clinic.

(d) Provide for the periodic physical examination of officers and employees of the Agency and for the cost of administering inoculations or vaccinations to such officers or employees.

(B) In accordance with such regulations as the President may prescribe and notwith-standing the provisions of section 1765 of the Revised Statutes (5 U. S. C. 70), the Director is authorized to grant to any officer or employee of the Agency who is a citizen of the United States allowances in accordance with the provisions of sections 901 (1) and 901 (2) of the Foreign Service Act of 1946.

GENERAL AUTHORITIES

Sec. 6. In the performance of its functions, the Central Intelligence Agency is authorized

(a) transfer to and receive from other Government agencies such sums as may have been approved by the Bureau of the Budget and appropriated, for the performance of any of the functions or activities authorized under sections 102 and 303 of the National Security Act of 1947 (Public Law 253, 80th Cong.), and any other Government agency is authorized to transfer to or receive from the Agency such sums without regard to any provisions of law limiting or prohibiting transfers between appropriations. Sums transferred to the Agency in accordance with this paragraph may be expended for the pur-poses and under the authority of this act without regard to limitations of appropriations from which transferred;

(b) exchange funds without regard to section 3651, Revised Statutes (31 U. S. C. 543);

(c) reimburse other Government agencies for services of personnel assigned to the Agency, and such other Government agencies are hereby authorized, without regard to provisions of law to the contrary, so to assign or detail any officer or employee for duty with the Agency;

(d) authorize couriers designated by the Director to carry firearms when engaged in transportation of confidential documents and materials affecting the national defense and security:

(e) make alterations, improvements, and repairs on premises rented by the Agency and pay rent therefor without regard to limitations on expenditures contained in the act of June 30, 1932, as amended: Provided, That in each case the Director shall certify that exception from such limitations is necessary to the successful performance of the Agency's functions or to the security of its activities;

(f) in the interests of the security of the foreign intelligence activities of the United States and in order further to implement the provise of section 102 (d) (3) of the National Security Act of 1947 (Public Law 253, 80th Cong., 1st sess.) that the Director of Central Intelligence shall be responsible for protecting intelligence sources and methods from unauthorized disclosure, the Agency shall be exempted from the provisions of sections 1 and 2, chapter 795, of the act of August 28, 1935 (49 Stat. 956, 957; 5 U. S. C. A. 654), and the provisions of any other law which require the publication or disclosure of the organization, functions, names, official titles, salaries, or numbers of personnel employed by the Agency: Provided, That in furtherance of this section, the Director of the Bureau of the Budget shall make no reports to the Congress in connection with the Agency under section 607, title VI, chapter 212, of the act of June 30, 1945, as amended (5 U.S. C. A. 947 (b)).

APPROPRIATIONS

SEC. 7. (a) Notwithstanding any other provisions of law, sums made available to the Agency by appropriation or otherwise may be expended for purposes necessary to carry out its functions, including—

(1) personal services, including personal without regard to limitations on types of persons to be employed, and rent at the seat of government and elsewhere; preparation and transportation of the re mains of officers and employees who die aboard or in transit, while in performance of their official duties, to their former homes in this country or to a place not more distant for interment, and for ordinary expenses of such interment; penalty mail; health-service program as authorized by law (5 U. S. C. 150); rental of news-reporting services; purchase or rental and operation of photographic, reproduction, cryptographic, duplication and printing machines, equip-ment and devices, and radio-receiving and radio-sending equipment and devices, including telegraph and teletype equipment; purchase, maintenance, operation, repair, and hire of passenger motor vehicles and aircraft, and vessels of all kinds; printing and binding; purchase, maintenance, and cleaning of firearms; subject to policies established by the Director, expenses of travel in connection with, and expenses incident to attendance at meetings of professional, technical, scientific, and other similar organizations when such atttendance would be of benefit in the conduct of the work of the Agency; association and library dues; payment of claims pursuant to section 403 of the Federal Tort Claims Act of 1946 (60 Stat. 843; 28 U. S. C. 921); repair, rental, operation, and maintenance of buildings, utilities, facilities, and appurtenances.

SEPARABILITY OF PROVISIONS

SHORT TITLE

SEC. 9. This act may be cited as the "Central Intelligence Agency Act of 1948."

Mr. McMAHON subsequently said: Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to return to Senate bill 2688, Calendar No. 1340, which was passed a short while ago.

Mr. MILLIKIN. I object.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Objection is heard.

Mr. GURNEY. Mr. President, this is the bill providing for the administration of the Central Intelligence Agency. The Senator from Connecticut is about to ask that the section stricken out be put back in the bill. I hope the Senator will not object. It will require only a minute.

Mr. McMAHON. It will not take more than 30 seconds.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection to the request of the Senator from Connecticut? The Chair hears Without objection, the votes by which the amendment offered by the Senator from Connecticut [Mr. Mc-Mahon] was agreed to and the bill ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed, are reconsidered, and the bill is before the

Mr. McMAHON. Mr. President, I had moved to strike from the bill subsection (b) on page 12, because I am constitutionally rather averse to giving agencies a great deal of money with nonaccountability provisions. However, the Senator from Connecticut is not dogmatically certain that he is right in this instance. After conferring with the chairman of the Committee on Armed Services, for whom I have the highest regard, as well as with some of my colleagues on the committee, and with officials of the Agency, I have resolved that the thing to do is to withdraw the objection to subsection (b) on page 12 and ask that it be reinstated in the bill. I do so with the clear notice that when we return in January it may be a very good idea to reexamine the subject to find out whether or not this provision of the bill is working as those who have passed upon it in the Armed Services Committee think it should work. I therefore ask unanimous consent that section (b) on page 12 be reinstated in the bill.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. question is on agreeing to the amendment offered by the Senator from Connecticut.

Mr. McMAHON. Mr. President, I withdraw the amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. question now is on the engrossment and third reading of the bill.

The bill (S. 2688) was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

PRODUCTION OF STRATEGIC AND CRITICAL MATERIALS

The Senate resumed the consideration of Mr. WHERRY's motion that the Senate proceed to the consideration of Calendar No. 1801, Senate bill 2756, to stimulate the production and conservation of strategic and critical ores, metals, and minerals in the interest of national defense.

Mr. CAPEHART. Mr. President, I ask that the pending business be laid aside and that Calendar No. 1253 be taken up.

Mr. MILLIKIN. I object.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. KNOWLAND in the chair). Objection is heard.

Mr. KEM. I believe I have the floor, and I yield only with the understanding I have previously had, that it be without prejudice, and that it will not be considered that I have made one speech.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The present occupant of the Chair having just taken the chair, and not being familiar with the prior understanding, would like to have it repeated.

Mr. KEM. I can state the prior understanding.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair is informed the Senator from Missouri has the floor. To whom does the Senator yield?

Mr. KEM. I shall be glad to yield to the Senator from Indiana on the understanding that I yield without prejudice, that I will regain the floor when he has completed the business he has in mind, and that the interlude will not be considered as in any way affecting my right to the floor or my right to discuss the pend-

The PRESIDING OFFICER. It is the Chair's understanding that the Senator from Indiana has made a unanimousconsent request which has been objected to by the Senator from Colorado.

Mr. CAPEHART. That is correct.

Mr. KEM. I had the floor.

Mr. MILLIKIN. A parliamentary in-

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator will state it.

Mr. MILLIKIN. Does the distinguished Senator from Missouri have the right to establish the conditions on which he will yield? The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator has, to this extent, that the Senate can do anything by unanimous consent. The Senator from Colorado or any other Senator can object to the Senator from Missouri yielding the floor for such a purpose, and under a strict interpretation of the rules of the Senate the Senator of course has the right to yield only for a question or privileged business.

Mr. O'MAHONEY. Mr. President, object to any yielding of the floor at this time by the Senator from Missouri. The motion before the Senate, the pending business, is to take up a certain bill. I shall object to any attempt to set it aside until it is disposed of.

MESSAGES FROM THE PRESIDENT

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE

A message from the House of Representatives, by Mr. Maurer, one of its reading clerks, announced that the House had passed, without amendment, the following bills of the Senate:

S. 595. An act (S. 595) to provide that the rates of compensation for disabilities incurred in active military or naval service other than in a period of war service shall be equal to 80 percent of the rates payable for similar disabilities incurred during active service in time of war; and

S. 2217. An act conferring jurisdiction upon the Court of Claims of the United States to hear, determine, and render judgment upon the joint claims of Silas Mason Co., Inc., Walsh Construction Co., and Atkinson-Kier Co.

The message also announced that the House had passed the bill (S. 2730) to credit, in certain cases, military service and training preparatory thereto performed by employees of the postal service, with amendments, in which it requested the concurrence of the Senate.

The message further announced that the House had agreed to the report of the committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendment of the House to the bill (S. 2655) to provide for the common defense by increasing the strength of the armed forces of the United States, including the Reserve components thereof. and for other purposes.

The message also announced that the House had agreed to the report of the committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendment of the Senate to the bill (H. R. 4044) to amend the Trading With the Enemy Act, as amended; to create a commission to make an inquiry and report with respect to war claims; and to provide for relief for internees in certain cases.

The message further announced that the House had disagreed to the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H. R. 5904) to incorporate the Virgin Islands Corporation, and for other purposes; agreed to the conference asked by the Senate on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses thereon, and that Mr. CR:WFORD, Mr. LECOMPTE, Mr. LEFEVRE, Mr. FERNANDEZ, and Mr. ENGLE of California were appointed managers on the part of the House at the conference.

The message also announced that the House had disagreed to the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H. R. 6916) to provide for permanent postal rates and additional compensation for postmasters and employees of the field service in the Post Office Department; agreed to the conference asked by the Senate on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses thereon, and that Mr. REES, Mr. STEVEN-SON, Mr. VURSELL, Mr. MURRAY Of Tennessee, and Mr. Lyle were appointed managers on the part of the House at the conference.

The message further announced that the House had agreed to the amendment of the Senate to the bill (H. R. 2009) for the relief of the estate of Vito Abarno.

JOINT COMMITTEE TO INVESTIGATE THE TRUST TERRITORY OF THE PACIFIC

The PRESIDENT pro tempore, in accordance with the provisions of House Concurrent Resolution 129, agreed to June 18, 1948, appointed the following Senators as the members on the part of the Senate of the Joint Committee To Investigate the Trust Territory of the Pacific:

From the Committee on Foreign Relations: The Senator from Wisconsin [Mr. WILEY], the Senator from New Jersey [Mr. SMITH], and the Senator from Kentucky [Mr. BARKLEY].

From the Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs: The Senator from Oregon [Mr. Cordon], the Senator from Nevada [Mr. MALONE], and the Senator from Wyoming [Mr. O'MAHONEY].

ENROLLED BILL AND JOINT RESOLUTIONS PRESENTED

The Secretary of the Senate reported that on today, June 19, 1948, he presented to the President of the United States the following enrolled bill and joint resolutions:

S. 2501. An act to provide for the acceptance on behalf of the United States of a statue of Gen. Jose Gervasio Artigas, and for other purposes;

S. J. Res. 37. Joint resolution requesting the President to proclaim February 1 as National Freedom Day; and

S. J. Res. 206. Joint resolution consenting to an interstate boundary compact by and between the States of Michigan, Minnesota, and Wisconsin.

ADDITIONAL BILLS INTRODUCED

Bills were introduced, read the first time, and, by unanimous consent, the second time, and referred as follows:

By Mr. ECTON:

S. 2895. A bill to promote the general welfare by scrapping the unsound and ruinous monetary policy which is wrecking our do-mestic economy and creating chaos throughout the world, and replacing it with a sound monetary system in strict accordance with article I, section 8, clause 5 of the Constitu-tion of the United States and the act of Congress of November 1, 1893 (sec. 311, U. S. C. A. (ch. 8, 28, Stat. 4)), which will stabilize the currency; prevent economic col-lapse in the United States; and give eco-nomic stability to the rest of the world; stop communism and other forms of absolutism; insure peace by eliminating the causes of war; save for the American taxpayers most of the billions of dollars proposed to be spent under the European recovery program; reduce taxes; protect our national sovereignty; pre-serve the American way of life; raise the American standard of living; quadruple the recoverable mineral wealth of America; make possible the profitable production here at home of 99 percent of our mineral requirements, including strategic minerals; and usher in an era of the greatest prosperity the United States has ever known, which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Banking and Currency.

By Mr. SPARKMAN (for himself, Mr. Johnston of South Carolina, Mr. Hill, Mr. Stewart, Mr. McGrath, Mr. McFarland, Mr. Aiken, Mr. Flanders, Mr. Morse, and Mr. McCarthy): S. 2896. A bill to establish a Federal commission on services for the physically handicapped, to define its duties, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Labor and Public Welfare.

(Mr. MALONE introduced Senate bill 2897. to amend certain provisions of the Securities Act of 1933, and section 3 of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, which was referred to the Committee on Banking and Currency, and appears under a separate heading.)

EXPLORATION AND DEVELOPMENT OF MINERALS FOR NATIONAL DEFENSE

Mr. MALONE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to introduce for appropriate reference a bill to amend the Securities Act of 1933 and the Exchange Act of 1934, to provide an incentive for the exploration and development of minerals for national defense, and I request that an explanatory statement by me of the bill together with some tables and other data in connection therewith be printed in the RECORD.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, the bill will be received and appropriately referred, and the explanatory statement, tables, and data presented by the Senator from Nevada will be printed in the RECORD.

The bill (S. 2897) to amend certain provisions of the Securities Act of 1933, and section 3 of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, was received, read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Banking and Currency.

The explanatory statement, tables, and data were ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

STATEMENT OF SENATOR MALONE

No nation on the face of the earth has ever achieved the high level of income and general prosperity as that enjoyed by the United States. This unequaled achievement has come about as a result of our rich natural resources in combination with a set of political and economic principles and institutions which has encouraged private enterprise and the maximum amount of economic and political freedom.

Our high level of prosperity and free-en-terprise system is seriously threatened by the New Deal policies which have been adopted by the Government during the past 15 years. These policies have reversed, in many ways, the policies in effect for the past century and one-half which made this Nation great.

During the past 15 years, increasing controls have been placed upon industry, taxes have increased by leaps and bounds, thereby reducing the amount of savings available for the investment in new enterprises, and protective tariffs have been progressively lowered so that today few American producers have any protection whatever from the low-wage competition of foreign countries.

Mr. President, the bill which I am intro-ducing, calling for specific amendments to the Security Act of 1933 and the Exchange Act of 1934, is designed to curb the abuses which have arisen in the administering of the securities acts and to encourage the investment of private venture capital in new enterprises, particularly new mining enter-

The alarming decline in the investment of private venture capital in the United States, as a result of the New Deal policies, is shown in the statistics recently furnished me by the Treasury Department. During the 5-year period from 1925-29, new capital issues of common and preferred stocks in the United States totaled $12,600,000,000. Under the New Deal, for the 5-year period from 1935-39, new capital issues of common and preferred stocks amounted to only $199,000,000, or less than 10 percent of the amount 10 years earlier. For the five most recent years ending with 1947, such new issues have totaled $3,660,000,000, or less than 30 percent of the level attained in the 1920's.

This tremendous decline in investment of private venture capital in the United States during the past 15 years is partly the result of restrictive policies practiced by the Se-curities and Exchange Commission under its rules and regulations and partly the result of other New Deal policies, including the policy of tremendous increases in taxation of the American people.

GROWING BURDEN OF TAXATION IN THE UNITED STATES

The increase in taxation of the American people during the past 15 years has become so burdensome that it threatens to destroy the American system of free private enter-The per capita cost of government in the United States has grown from $89.76 in 1930 to $350 per person in 1947. In 1932, the revenue of the Federal Government amounted to 4 percent of the income of the American people; last year, Federal receipts totaled 21 percent of the income of the American people. This, however, does not measure the total burden of taxation of the American people, but only the part paid to the Federal Government. If we add payments made by American citizens to the State and local governments, we find that in 1947 the American people paid approxi-mately $57,000,000,000 to their Government, or approximately 28 percent of their total in-

It should be emphasized that during the 15-year period of the administration from 1932 to 1947, Federal taxes increased five times as much as the percentage of the national income of the American people, rising from 4 to 21 percent.

This tremendous increase in taxation has discouraged private enterprise and invest-ment of new venture capital by destroying the source from which private venture capital comes, as people have to pay an increasing percentage of their income for taxes they have less and less left over for investment in corporate securities and other forms of business saving.

The further expansion of prosperity in the United States and the progressive utilization and development of our rich natural re-sources can only be achieved by reversing the restrictive burdensome policies of the past 15 years and substituting therefor a policy for the encouragement of private enterprise and of encouragement for the exploration and development of all of our basic natural

PARAGRAPH 12, SUBSECTION (A) OF SECTION 3

Section 3 of the original act deals with securities exempt from registration. There are 11 classes or groups not required to be registered in the original act. This new section places the securities of issuers engaged in the exploration and development of mineral resources under special statutory regulation. The filing of limited information on such issues, leaves the Securities Commission with full power to administer its other provisions. It takes away the necessity to go through the difficulties of registration where the Commission undertakes to apply the material-fact formula or otherwise evaluate the mining property, consider its feasibility or delay the public offering by stop orders and deficiency citations as now take place under the present law. This amendment, however, requires the issuer to file certain essential statutory information with the Commission, disclosing all material facts.

(Note.—The wording of this proposed amendment follows the text of certain rules issued by the Commission in respect to stock offerings under the Vandenberg amendment, and its application has been found apparently satisfactory and in the public interest.)

This amendment adds a new section to the law and all other provisions of the original Securities Act are retained, including civil liability, criminal responsibility, and the fraud sections. This new section 3 takes nothing away from the present power of the Commission.

The purpose of this proposal is to offer an incentive for the development of our mineral resources by making it easier for free enterprise and venture capital to participate in the development of our mineral resources in this critical period, and such efforts should be encouraged so as to make it unnecessary to appropriate such large sums of money for the Bureau of Mines and other Government agencies to do this same type of important exploratory work.

As a matter of fact, the Federal Government is now spending large sums of money in the search for new domestic sources of copper, lead, and zinc. Stock piles of critical metal and minerals are to be built up more rapidly in months ahead. The big stock-piling program approved by Congress in 1946 has been falling behind schedule. To obtain these strategic materials, it is evident that someone will have to reopen mines and find new ones. This all takes time, money, trained men, and equipment, yet the effort is vital to our national defense. However, we should supplement a Government program by encouraging private industry, free enterprise, and venture capital to engage in this important program.

In most cases, the average mining stock buyer wants only an honest run for his money, a chance to risk a small portion of his surplus earnings in something he hopes will be a profitable venture, like the hundreds of others that have enriched the casual venture in the past. He is more interested in his chances than in statistical facts, balance-sheet items, or a complicated engineering analysis. With this in mind, the proposed change in the present law does not require such detail to be first set forth. There is little to be gained by such information, and there is a limit to what the average prospector seeking venture capital can or should be required to do in the preparation of an issue of stock for public sale.

SUBSECTION (B) OF SECTION 19 AND SUBSECTION (A) OF SECTION 20

The following proposed amendments are designed to limit the Securities and Exchange Commission in its power to conduct roving, inquisitorial, compulsory investiga-tions without following rules of legal pro-cedure or of evidence and subjecting the private affairs of an individual person or company to a searching investigation with the object of looking for something as a basis for a civil or criminal sanction against such

It is a well-established policy of the Commission under its subpena power to order books, records, and other papers to be brought before it for examination, where such private records are inspected and the accompanying witnesses are subjected to incriminating, misleading, and suggestive questions. This process is conducted behind closed doors where the parties are without benefit of counsel, and is one of the most tyrannical methods ever developed in American administrative procedure. It is clearly an abuse of the power granted by Congress, and must be corrected.

The testimony of the witness is not available to him, and it may be used as a basis for a civil or criminal action in the courts. This practice was positively condemned by the Supreme Court of the United States, but it is, nevertheless, being followed because the courts have held that such is the will of Congress; otherwise, Congress would change the law. (See the following Supreme Court case.)

"A general, roving, offensive, inquisitorial, compulsory investigation conducted by the Commission without any allegations, upon no fixed principles, and governed by no rules of law or evidence and no restrictions, except its own will or caprice, is unknown to our Constitution and laws and such an inquisi-tion would be destructive of the rights of a citizen and an intolerable tyranny. Let the power once be established and there is no knowing where the practice under it would end" (Boyd v. U. S. (116 U. S. 616)). How closely allied in principle are the three protective rights of the individual, that against compulsory self-accusation; that against unlawful search and seizure; and that against unlawful inquisitorial investigation. (Reversed (80 L. ed. 1015).) The Department has consistently taken the position that the information gathered in its investigation is not open to the public. It has refused to give copies of testimony to individuals who have been required to appear and testify.

The following United States court decision is also of interest:

"Denial to defendants of copies of testimony given by them during investigation carried on upon instructions from the Securities and Exchange Commission by one of its representatives was not a deprivation of due process" (Exchange Commission v. Torr (15 Supp. Fed. (2d) 144)).

The harshness of the present law is seen in the language of the following case where the Court is called upon to construe the provisions of the Securities Act now in force, which clearly justifies the proposed amend-

"The Securities and Exchange Commission, as a fact-finding body, performs functions similar to that of a grand jury, the scope of whose inquiries should not be limited narrowly by questions of propriety or forecasts of the probable result of the investigation. And it's not constrained by technical rules of admissibility of evidence or by doubts whether any particular individual will be properly subject to accusation of crime. As been said before, the identity of the defender and the precise nature of the of-fense, if there be one, are developed at the conclusion of the grand jury's labors and not at the beginning" (Boehm v. U. S. (123 Fed. (2d) 791; 97 Fed. (2d) 704)).

If the Commission is in possession of facts affording reasonable grounds for belief that a violation of the act has occurred, or is threatened, it may order an investigation. The form of the investigation, or its source, is not material (Consolidated Mines v. SEC (79 S2 705)).

Such practice can hardly be said to be in the interest of new business ventures. the contrary, it has a definite restrictive and oppressive effect.

AMENDMENT TO EXCHANGE ACT 1934-SECTION 3, ADDING NEW SUBSECTION

This amendment provides a trading post for the sale of mining and oil securities wherever brokers care to auction them off in secondary distribution between buyers and sellers, using the same plan for the sale of such securities as adopted for the sale of first-grade industrial issues. At the present time, all open bidding in over-the-counter mining stocks is prohibited. They may not be auctioned off to the highest bidder on the same basis as registered securities are sold on registered exchanges.

A substitute procedure is followed in some western markets which requires each broker handling mining securities and desiring to participate in the over-the-counter trans tions for his customers, to first submit his written bids and offering in writing on all shares in each category in which he may be interested in the beginning of the day's business. These quotations are then assembled in a private room to which no broker is allowed, and the highest bid and the lowest offering is matched together and posted for that stock on that day, and used as a basis for trading. These are mere formal quotations and have nothing to do with the volume of business or the closing figures that may This procedure brings out errors take place. and mistakes and has cost the general public money. There is no drawing together the buyer and the seller as occurs in an auction sale, and, consequently, a wide spread exists between bids and offerings in such securities. The public has no true market for over-the-counter natural-resource stocksit has only a makeshift system. The trouble is caused because the original law limits an exchange, first (a) the definition of an exchange; (b) the right of those to do business on the exchange; and (c) the quality of the shares to be traded thereon. Such law took away the trading privileges to about 90 percent of the mining securities being bought and sold by the public in the Western States. It unfortunately deprives the public of the basis for arriving at a value for over-the-counter mining stocks in secondary distribution.

The purpose of this bill is to reestablish the right of the brokers to trade in secondgrade, unlisted, over-the-counter stocks of all categories upon the basis of the bid and asked prices arrived at in open competition among buyers and sellers

This amendment will allow such procedure without violating the Exchange Act. It is a supplement to present arrangements. The public is amply protected under section 15. Sections (1), (2), and (3) of the Exchange Act which govern the conduct of over-the-counter brokers and dealers in such stocks.

HOUSE BILLS REFERRED OR PLACED ON CALENDAR

The following bills were severally read twice by their titles, or ordered to be placed on the calendar, as indicated:

H.R. 6657. An act to amend section 77 of the act entitled "An act to establish a uniform system of bankruptcy throughout the United States," approved July 1, 1898, and thereto; Committee on the Judiciary.

H. R. 6800. An act to amend sections 3108 and 3250 of the Internal Revenue Code, and for other purposes; and

H. R. 6958. An act to authorize the Administrator of Veterans' Affairs to transfer to the custody of the Navy Department certain property at the United States Naval Training Station, Great Lakes, Ill.; to the Committee on Finance.

H. R. 6501. An act to provide for the development of civil transport aircraft adaptable for auxiliary military service, and for other purposes; ordered to be placed on the calendar.

PRINTING OF HEARINGS OF CERTAIN HOUSE COMMITTEES

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. KNOWLAND in the chair). The Chair lays before the Senate two concurrent resolutions providing for the printing of certain hearings before a House committee. The Chair is advised by the chairman of the subcommittee on Rules and Administration under the rule of comity existing between the two Houses, is desirous that the Senate agree to these two resolutions and, without objection, that action will be taken.

There being no objection, the Senate agreed to the following House concurrent resolutions:

House Concurrent Resolution 199

Resolved by the House of Representatives (the Senate concurring). That there be printed 6,000 additional copies of the report (H. Rept. No. 1920) on the Communist Party of the United States as an Advocate of Overthrow of Government by Force and Vio-lence, of which 5,000 copies shall be for the use of the Committee on Un-American Activities of the House of Representatives and 1,000 copies shall be for the House document room.

House Concurrent Resolution 213

Resolved by the House of Representatives (the Senate concurring), That, in accordance with paragraph 3 of section 2 of the Printing Act, approved March 1, 1907, the Committee on Expenditures in the Executive Departments, House of Representatives, be, and is hereby, authorized and empowered to have printed for its use 2,500 copies of the hearings held before a special subcommittee of said committee during current Congress, relative to investigation as to the manner in which the United States Board of Parole is operating and as to whether there is a necessity for a change in either the procedure or basic law.

PRINTING OF REVIEW OF REPORTS ON MISSISSIPPI RIVER BETWEEN MISSOURI RIVER AND MINNEAPOLIS (S. DOC. NO.

Mr. REVERCOMB. Mr. President, I present a letter from the Secretary of the Army, transmitting a report dated April 15, 1948, from the Chief of Engineers, United States Army, together with accompanying papers and illustrations, on a review of reports on the Mississippi River between the Missouri River and Minneapolis, with a view to ascertaining as near as can be estimated the exact damages that may be caused at Clinton, Iowa, by the creation of pool No. 14, and I ask unanimous consent that it be referred to the Committee on Public Works and printed as a Senate document with illustration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

CONVENTION ON INTERGOVERNMENTAL MARITIME CONSULTATIVE ORGANIZA-TION-REMOVAL OF INJUNCTION OF SECRECY

. The PRESIDING OFFICER. As in executive session, the Chair lays before the Senate Executive L, Eightieth Congress, second session, a convention on the Intergovernmental Maritime Consultative Organization, signed at Geneva on March 6, 1948, by the respective plenipotentiaries of the United States of America and other states concerned. Without objection the injunction of secrecy will be removed from the convention, and the message from the President will be printed in the RECORD; and, without objection, the message from the President, together with the convention will be referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

The message from the President is as follows:

To the Senate of the United States:

With a view to receiving the advice and consent of the Senate to ratification, I transmit herewith a certified copy of the Convention on the Intergovernmental Maritime Consultative Organization, signed at Geneva on March C, 1948, by the respective plenipotentiaries of the United States of America and other states concerned.

I transmit also, for the information of the Senate, the report of the Secretary of State with respect to the convention and a copy of the English text of the final act of the United Nations Maritime Conference, held at Geneva, February 19 to March 6, 1948.

For the reasons-outlined in the report of the Secretary of State, I recommend that the Senate approve the convention with the appropriate reservation in regard to article 4, as recommended in the report of the Secretary of State, to insure that ratification of the Convention will not have the effect of altering the antitrust statutes. Upon becoming a party to the convention the United States of America, as a leading maritime nation, may participate in the work of the Intergovernmental Maritime Consultative Organization.

HARRY S. TRUMAN. THE WHITE HOUSE, June 18, 1948.

CREDIT FOR MILITARY SERVICE OF CERTAIN POSTAL EMPLOYEES

The PRESIDING OFFICER laid before the Senate the amendments of the House of Representatives to the bill (S. 2730) to credit, in certain cases, military service and training preparatory thereto performed by employees of the postal service, which were to strike out all after the enacting clause and insert:

That section 25 of the act entitled "An act to reclassify the salaries of postmasters, officers, and employees of the postal service; to establish uniform procedures for computing compensation; and for other purposes," approved July 6, 1945 (U. S. C., 1946 ed., title 39, sec. 875), is hereby amended to read as follows:

"Sec. 25. Allowable service under the provisions of this act shall be only such continuous active service as has been rendered and shall not include previous periods or terms of employment, except that in the case of employees who have been separated or shall hereafter be separated from the field service of the Post Office Department for military duty, or to comply with a war transfer as defined by the Civil Service Commission, the periods or terms of such service immediately preceding entry into military service or immediately preceding such transfer, as well as the time engaged in military service and service on war transfer, shall be construed as allowable service, and pro rata credit shall be given for the time engaged in military service and service on war transfer for each year of such service."

SEC. 2. Any person who prior to the enactment of this act received any amounts the payment of which is authorized for the first time by this act is hereby relieved of all llability to refund such amounts to the United States; and in the audit and settlement of the accounts of any postmaster, or of any other designed disbursing officer of the Post Office Department or postal service, the payment of such amounts shall be considered to have been authorized. The Postmaster General is hereby authorized and directed to repay, out of any funds hereafter appropriated pursuant to the authority of this act, any amounts heretofore credited to the employee or refunded by him to the United States on account of such receipt by him of unauthorized payments.

SEC. 3. There are hereby authorized to be appropriated such sums as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this act.

SEC. 4. The amendment made by the first section of this act to section 25 of the act of July 6, 1945, shall take effect as of July 1, 1945.

And to amend the title so as to read: "A bill to include as allowable service under the act of July 6, 1945, service performed in the military forces and on war transfer by employees in the field service of the Post Office Department."

Mr. LANGER. I move that the Senate concur in the amendments of the House.

The motion was agreed to.

STIMULATION OF PRODUCTION AND CON-SERVATION OF STRATEGIC AND CRITI-CAL ORES, METALS, AND MINERALS

Mr. WHERRY. Mr. President, I inquire, What is the parliamentary situation?

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. KNOWLAND in the chair). The pending question is the motion by the Senator from Nebraska [Mr. Wherry] to consider Senate bill 2756. The Senator from Missouri [Mr. Kem] has the floor on that motion. The Senator from Missouri is recognized.

Mr. KEM. Mr. President, it seems apparent from the course of the business of the Senate recently that all one has to do if one is opposed to a motion on the floor is to talk at considerable length and to indicate a desire and intention to talk further. However, I do not intend to avail myself of that precedent. I do want to speak, however, at some length upon the motion. My reason is that I regard the bill which it is proposed by motion to bring before the Senate as one that involves an exceedingly important principle. It goes to our very American way of life, and is one that involves a tremendous, inestimable, uncounted amount of money.

Mr. BARKLEY. Mr. President, will the Senator yield for a question?

Mr. KEM. I yield.

Mr. BARKLEY. During the course of his remarks on the motion will the Senator explain the degree of similarity between this bill and the bill which Congress passed a year or so ago and the President vetoed? Mr. KEM. I shall be glad to. One of the principal differences between the two bills is that the bill vetoed by the President last year was for a comparatively modest project. It provided for the sum of $35,000,000 a year for a period of 2 years. The proponents of this bill have much larger ideas. I will not say they have delusions of grandeur, but their imagination has certainly run rife.

The proposition here tonight is to spend $80,000,000 a year in subsidies, or so-called price premiums, for two purposes: To encourage production and to encourage exploration. Then the bill provides for commitments in connection with the carrying out of the project. which amount to not more than an additional $80,000,000 a year. Then, in addition to the premiums or subsidies which are paid to encourage production and conservation and exploration, it is provided that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation shall be compelled to purchase at the market price all ore and metal produced as a result of these incentives

Of course, it is impossible to tell the amount of ore or metal which will be produced as the result of these incentives, but whatever it may be, the Reconstruction Finance Corporation is compelled to buy under the terms of the bill.

Nor is that all. There is a very considerable administrative expense connected with the carrying out of the project.

Mr. FULBRIGHT. Mr. President, will the Senator yield for a question?

Mr. KEM. I am glad to yield.

Mr. FULBRIGHT I did not hear the Senator's statement. Did he give an estimate of what he thought the bill might cost in that connection?

Mr. KEM. I will say to the distinguished Senator from Arkansas that it is impossible to estimate the amount the bill will cost because of the intangible factors involved. The Reconstruction Finance Corporation is directed—it is made mandatory upon it—to buy all the cres and metals and minerals that may be produced as the result of the incentives from the distribution of this $80,000,000 a year or $160,000,000, as the case may be.

Mr. MILLIKIN. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. KEM. I yield.

Mr. MILLIKIN Is it not expressly provided that the total shall be $80,-000,000 a year?

Mr. KEM. It is not so expressly provided. I will read the provision in that respect for the enlightment of the Senate. It is the contention of the Senator from Colorado, for whom I have great respect, and for whose opinion I have great respect, that the total amount involved in the bill is $80,000,000 a year. But I will undertake to demonstrate to the Senate beyond any vestige of a doubt that that contention is not correct.

Mr. MILLIKIN. Mr. President-

Mr. KEM. I will yield when I have answered the Senator's previous question. I think the bill has been distributed and is on the desks of all Senators, and if Senators will be kind enough to follow as I read, I think the discussion may be more intelligent.

Section 7 on page 9 of the bill pro-

SEC. 7. (a) All disbursements for exploration and development and conservation payments as authorized by this act shall be made by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and shall not exceed $80,000,000 in any one year—

Then the bill continues-

nor shall any commitment be made by any officer or employee of the United States which obligates the United States Government (including all departments and agencies thereof) to make disbursements for exploration and development and conservation payments as authorized by this act in excess of $80,000,000 in the aggregate in any one year.

I know that it is the contention of the Senator from Colorado that those two phrases run along with each other, and that the total amount is $80,000,000 in any one year. But if the Senate will observe the provision is that:

All disbursements for exploration and development and conservation payments

* * shall not exceed $80,000,000 in any one year.

And then further that the commitments shall not exceed that amount. In other words, it is perfectly plain that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation can disburse $80,000,000 a year and can make additional commitments for the same amount.

Nor is that all. If the Senate will refer to subparagraph (b) on page 8 this sentence may be read:

(b) All additional ores, metals, and minerals or the equivalent thereof resulting from incentive payments and which comply with Munitions Board minimum stock-pile specifications shall be purchased by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Mr. MILLIKIN. Mr. President— Mr. KEM. I prefer not to yield until I have answered the Senator's previous question, then I will yield for another.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator declines to yield at this time.

Mr. KEM. Then further, at the bottom of the page, is this provision:

(c) The Bureau of Federal Supply of the Treasury Department shall reimburse the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to the extent of the current market price for all metals, minerals, and ores placed in the national security stock pile under this section.

In other words, Mr. President, regardless of the construction placed upon section 7, it is perfectly clear that the duty, the obligation, of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to buy the ores and metals is independent and in addition to the obligation of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to make subsidy or production encouragement payments.

That is not all. This really is a very remarkable bill. If Senators will refer to page 3, at the middle of the page, the following language appears:

The Director-

The Director is a very interesting person. Before I get through I shall undertake to show that if the bill is passed the Director, under the price-premium plan, will be one of the most powerful men in the United States. The Director is not appointed by the President, with the advice and consent of the Senate. The Director is appointed by the Secretary of the Interior, and the Senate has not one word to say about it.

Mr. TYDINGS. Mr. President, will the Senator yield to me before he finishes his answer to this particular interrogatory?

Mr. KEM. I am glad to yield.

Mr. TYDINGS. Does the Senator know on what assumption the bill carries the mandatory provision that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation shall buy these ores? The Senator from Maryland would assume that in time of short supply they would be purchased in the open market anyway. Can the Senator give me any information on that point?

Mr. KEM. Perhaps the idea is to create a market for all the ore that may be developed as a result of these incentive payments. As I shall undertake to show, under the provisions of the bill every man who wants to go into the mining business will be guaranteed a market out of the treasury of the RFC, at a price that will will make him a profit, no matter whether he is a marginal producer, or under what conditions he is operating. It is mandatory to afford him a profit.

Mr. TYDINGS. What the Senator from Maryland is puzzled about is this: If the RFC is going to purchase these minerals at the market price, why could not the producer sell them in commercial channels at the market price, without burdening the Government with the operation of purchasing?

eration of purchasing?

Mr. KEM. I do not know what is in the mind of the draftsman of the bill, but it seems to me that his purpose is to have the RFC constantly in the market as a purchaser of these metals at the expense, of course, of the Government.

I was discussing this very remarkable person, the Director of the price-premium plan.

Mr. MILLIKIN. Mr. President, may I ask the Senator whether he has answered the question I asked him about the $80,000,000?

Mr. KEM. Not quite yet. I am still on the matter of the expenses. I have just covered some items.

This is a remarkable bill in that it covers a large amount of expense, and provides for a number of different kinds of payments to be made out of the Treasury.

Mr. O'MAHONEY. Mr. President, will the Senator yield to me for a question? Mr. KEM. I prefer not to do so

Mr. KEM. I prefer not to do so. The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator declines to yield at this time.

Mr. KEM. The Senator was so gracious and kind in objecting a minute ago that I feel under no particular compulsion to yield to him, although in view of our long friendship I shall be glad to yield in a few minutes.

Mr. O'MAHONEY. I thank the Senator.

Mr. KEM. I was just discussing the remarkable powers which are placed in the Director. He is to be employed at a salary of $12,000 a year. That provision is found at the top of page 3. The bill does not specifically say by whom he is to be appointed, but, in view of the fact that he is an administrative officer of the Incentive Payments Division, which is made a division of the Department of the Interior, I think it is a fair inference or assumption that he is to be appointed by the Secretary of the Interior. No confirmation by the Senate is required.

Mr. MILLIKIN. Mr. President, will the Senator yield for a question?

Mr. KEM. Not quite yet.

Let us see what the Director may do. The Director may select, employ, and fix the compensation of such engineers and other experts as may be necessary to carry out the purposes of this act without regard to the civil-service laws and the Classification Act of 1923 and shall employ such other staff as he may deem necessary.

I do not hold any brief for the civilservice laws and the Classification Act of 1923; but as Senators know, there is a very elaborate provision as to the employment of professional and scientific persons. That law establishes nine grades. Grade 1 is the junior professional grade; grade 2, the assistant professional grade; grade 3, the associate professional grade; grade 4, the full professional grade; grade 5, the senior professional grade; grade 6, the principal professional grade; grade 7, the head professional grade; grade 9, the special professional grade; and grade 9, the special professional grade. The salaries of all those grades are fixed b. law.

The draftsman of this bill has cut right through those provisions, and he has given the Director, the $12,000 a year man, the right to employ as many people as he sees fit, at whatever salary his imagination dictates. I have searched the statutes with some care, and I cannot find any limitation at all upon the unbridled discretion of the Director in employing personnel under the language of this act.

Mr. STEWART. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

the Senator yield?

Mr. KEM. I shall be glad to yield for a question.

Mr. STEWART. Where would the money come from?

Mr. KEM. I will get to that in a moment. There has been no appropriation. There has been a very devious method of going around the Appropriations Committee. Payments for the premiums or the subsidies are to be made by the RFC. They do not have to go to the Appropriations Committee. The purchase price for the ores produced under the plan comes from the RFC.

Mr. STEWART. Is there a limitation on the amount?

Mr. KEM. None whatever.

When the plan was presented to the Congress in the closing hours of the last session, an appropriation of $300,000 was made in the second deficiency bill for the Department of Commerce; but no such provision is made this year, so I take it that the Director would merely set up housekeeping, employ an unlimited number of people at unlimited rates of pay, and then depend on deficiency appropriations at the next Congress, or perhaps juggle some other funds in the Department of the Interior. But to answer the question of the Senator from Tennessee directly, there is no appropriation to implement this work. The only limitation on the compensation of these employees of the Director, if this bill becomes law, will be a provision in the statute to the effect that a limitation of $10,000 a year or $50 a day is placed upon all so-called experts.

So I think it is fair to say that the persons employed by the Director, under the first provision, could not be paid more than $10,000 a year or $50 a day; but a subsequent provision provides that the Director shall employ such other staff as he may deem necessary. In other words, he can employ the experts, who are limited as to salary; but he can employ other staff without any limitation at all as to salary; and if he needs a manager or someone of that sort, I take it that under the provisions of this bill there would be no limitation at all on the salary which that person might be paid.

Mr. FULBRIGHT. Mr. President, will

the Senator yield?

Mr. KEM. I yield.

Mr. FULBRIGHT. Is it the Senator's feeling that even though section 7 is limited to $80,000,000 in any one year, there could be an unlimited amount for the purchase of metals, up to $500,000,-000, if that were available?

Mr. KEM. There can be no doubt about that.

What is limited to $80,000,000 is set forth in section 7, namely-

All disbursements for exploration and development and conservation payments.

Mr. MILLIKIN. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. KEM. I shall yield in just a mo-First I wish to demonstrate what this bill will cost.

Mr. FULBRIGHT. I was not clear as to what "conservation payments" meant, until the Senator gave his explanation. I thought that included the bonus.

Mr. KEM. No; those are premiums or incentives given for production and exploration.

In addition to these payments, as I read the section, commitments can be made for an additional $80,000,000; and then in the middle of page 8 the additional ores are required to be purchased; and then on page 3 the Director is au-thorized to employ these experts as members of his staff.

In answer to the question as to the cost of the bill, I have to say that after considerable study I cannot tell, and I do not think any Member of the Senate can tell.

There are to be payments for exploration and development and conservation, not exceeding $80,000,000 a year. There are commitments to be made by any officer or employee of the United States, not exceeding $80,000,000 a year.

Then there is to be the purchase of-All additional ores, metals, and minerals or the equivalent thereof resulting from incentive payments-

As set forth on page 8.

And then there are the expenses, upon which there is no limit, as set forth in

Mr. FULBRIGHT. But the really dangerous provision, it would seem from what the Senator has said, is subparagraph (b) on page 8. We really cannot estimate a limit on that, it seems.

Mr. KEM. Yes; but it seems to me it is a rather dangerous precedent to have a man appointed by the Secretary of the Interior, without advice or consent on the part of the Senate, and to have him authorized to employ any number of persons whom he sees fit to employ, at any salary his imagination may dictate.

Having discussed at some length the cost of the plan, from my point of view, I shall be glad to yield to the Senator from Colorado for a further question.

Mr. MILLIKIN. Mr. President, should like to ask the Senator what is his interpretation of the language in italics, beginning in line 22, on page 9, and running down to line 3 on page 10.

Mr. KEM. I construe that to be a limitation on commitments to be made by any officer of the United States Government in carrying on this plan. My construction is that that is an additional limitation to the proviso in the previous phrase

In other words, the disbursements for exploration and development and conservation payments are limited to $80,-000,000 a year; but, in addition, there may be commitments by an officer or employee of the United States, who may obligate the United States Government to the extent of $80,000,000 a year.

To be more specific, I take it that that paragraph involves the Reconstruction Finance Corporation in this amount of money, namely, twice $80,000,000 a year, or $160,000,000 a year, for 4 years, or a total of $640,000,000.

In addition to that, we have the items of what it will cost to buy all the ore. the production of which is stimulated by these incentive payments, plus the cost of operating the plan, for all of which there has been no appropriation, and no appropriation is presently contemplated from the United States Treasury.

Mr. MILLIKIN. I should like to ask the Senator what disbursements are to be made under the bill except those to be made by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. I am speaking as to ores and minerals.

Mr. KEM. Evidently other disbursements are contemplated, because subparagraph (e) on page 10, provides:

There is hereby authorized to be appropriated sums sufficient to carry out the administration of this act.

Mr. MILLIKIN. Is it not true, of course, that there is the purchase of the ores, which involves one sum of money. and there is also the necessary administration to carry on the purchase of the ores, which would involve another sum of money

Mr. KEM. I understood the question of the Senator from Colorado to be as to what sums, in addition to those to be paid by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, are involved. Is that the question?

Mr. MILLIKIN. That is correct.

Mr. KEM. The answer is the cost of administration, which is referred to in subparagraph (e) on page 10; and it involves the rather unique situation of having this Director, appointed by the Secretary of the Interior, without the advice and consent of the Senate, employing an unlimited number of persons at unlimited compensation, except in another statute what he can pay the experts is limited.

Mr. MILLIKIN. Would the Senator be more comfortable about it if it were made subject to the advice and consent of the Senate?

Mr. KEM. I certainly think the Senate would feel more comfortable about it.

Mr. MILLIKIN. Would the Senator feel more comfortable about it if the salaries were made subject to the usual salary ranges?

Mr. KEM. The Senator from Missouri would feel more comfortable about it, because he feels-

Mr. O'MAHONEY. Mr. President. over on this side of the aisle it is difficult to hear the Senator.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senators will please speak more loudly.

Mr. O'MAHONEY. Mr. President, my request was not addressed to the Senator from Missouri, but to the Senator from Colorado.

If the Senator will be kind enough to yield to me now, let me say that the objection I made a moment ago was not directed to anything the Senator from Missouri was doing. I was merely anxious that this bill be taken up, and that the Senator from Missouri have an opportunity to explain. Therefore, I was objecting to interruptions of the Senator's criticism of the measure.

I may say further that the amendment in italics was placed in the bill at my suggestion. It was not drafted by me, and I recognize that there is a great deal of virtue in what the Senator has said about the interpretation of that amendment. But I think I can say to the Senator that the purpose of the committee was to make an over-all limitation. So may I inquire of the Senator whether the criticism which he makes of the amendment and of this section with respect to the expense involved would be cured if the amendment in italics at the bottom of page 9 and on the top of page 10 should be changed so as to read, as follows:

Nor shall any commitment be made by any officer or employee of the United States omicer or employee of the United States which obligates the United States Government, including all departments and agencies thereof, to make any disbursements for exploration and development and conservation payments or for administrative expense as authorized by this act, nor shall any such disbursement be made in excess of $80,000,000 in the aggregate in any one year.

The purpose of these changes would be to eliminate any difference between disbursements and commitments and to make the administrative expenses inclusive in the over-all limitation.

Mr. KEM. I may say to the Senator from Wyoming that of course I understand the purpose of his objection and it is perfectly clear, and that I hope that my palate will cleave to the roof of my mouth if I am about to say anything that is unkind or discourteous to my old friend of 25 years standing.

Mr. O'MAHONEY. I am sure it would. Mr. KEM. As to the Senator's amendment, in studying the bill I gave serious consideration to whether or not I should offer certain amendments to the language of the bill, but I came to the conclusion that there were so many vices in the bill that it was beyond repair. It could not well be amended in such a way that it could be acceptable to any careful, right-minded Senator. And so I decided not to offer any amendments. whether the Senator decides to offer any. of course, depends on the Senator's own iudgment

Mr. O'MAHONEY. I may say to the Senator, of course this measure comes under the general criticism that may be leveled against working under the tremendous pressure under which the Senate is now working. Of course, there is not an opportunity to give thorough consideration to every bill that is presented, but I assure the Senator that every effort was made in the Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs to make the bill a measure which would be definitely limited and therefore which would be free of the criticisms which resulted in the veto a year ago.

Mr. KEM. I am sure the intentions of the Committee on Insular Affairs were good and entirely right. But I call the Senator's attention to the fact that no hearings were held on this particular

The chronology on the bill seems to be this: It was introduced on May 26, 1948. No hearings on the bill were held, and on June 16, 1948, the bill was reported. Two days later, on June 18, it appeared on the Consent Calendar and on June 19 an effort is being made at a quarter of twelve at night to pass the bill.

Mr. O'MAHONEY. I may say to the Senator that the bill as he sees it here is the result of at least a year's effort on the part of Members of the Senate. Members of various committees of the Senate and Members of the House and members of committees of the House, the officials of the Bureau of Mines and of the RFC have been in constant conference with respect to the measure. Hearings were held last year, and every effort has been made to bring out a workable bill which leads me to another question I desire to propound to my good friend from Missouri, namely, whether in his view an amendment which would limit the operation of the bill say to 2 years would tend to relieve the criticism and the objection which he makes?

Mr. KEM. Before answering that question I want to refer briefly to the comment made by the Senator from Wyoming. He said that hearings were held. Now it is quite true that hearings were held by the committee upon the general question of stimulating the production of lead, zinc, and other metals in the United States. The point I make and which cannot be successfully contro-verted is that no hearings were held on this bill.

Mr. O'MAHONEY. That is correct. Mr. KEM. After the bill was introduced, no producer in Joplin, Mo., or St. Francois County, Mo., or Galena, Ill., or elsewhere in the United States had an opportunity to come here and present hir views. Before the discussion is completed on the bill, I think the Senator from Wyoming will admit that it would have been wise to have conducted hearings and given those interested an opportunity to test the bill in the crucible of public discussion.

Mr. O'MAHONEY. May I, without impairing the Senator's right to the floor, say that I quite agree with that view? I quite agree that that would have been a desirable procedure. But we were operating under an understanding that this session of the Congress was to adjourn on the 19th of June, and to many of us it seemed highly desirable that authority should be granted by the Congress of the United States to make certain that the United States was building up a stock pile of domestic minerals, because we knew that the Government of Russia was leaving nothing undone to promote the exploration and the development of minerals within that domain.

Mr. KEM. That brings me, Mr. President, to the very interesting history of this legislation. The bill is what may be fairly called a Johnny Come Lately. It was rushed through the last session of the Senate, the third day before adjournment. In this session it was introduced in the House. The House committee declined to grant a rule on it, but no effort was made to bring it to the Senate until May 26, at which time it was introduced. It was not brought to the Senate floor until June 16, when it was reported by the committee.

The question I raise, Mr. President, is whether important legislation such as this-and certainly no Senator within the sound of my voice will say that legislation which goes to the very foundation of the American way of life and the American free-enterprise and free-competitive system, and which involves an uncounted amount of money is not important. The question is whether it is proper, whether it is orderly, for legislation of this kind to be rushed through the Senate on the last day of the session and then taken over to the House, and, I suppose, passed over there under suspension of the rules.

Mr. FULBRIGHT. Mr. President, will

the Senator yield?

Mr. KEM. I yield.

Mr. FULBRIGHT. Has not this bill been introduced in the House?

Mr. KEM. It was introduced, but the Rules Committee declined to grant a rule on it. The strategy is, I believe, to rush it through the Senate tonight, then rush it over to the House by special messenger, and try to get it through.

If I may have the attention of the Senator from Wyoming. I was interested to hear the statement of the Senator from Wyoming that the RFC was cooperating in the matter. I do not know at first-hand the present position of the RFC on this bill.

Mr. O'MAHONEY. I said that the RFC was consulted about the matter. I know that a year ago the RFC raised objections to some of the provisions of the bill.

Mr. KEM. I will say, for my part, that I have no reason to believe that the position of the RFC regarding the proposed legislation has changed. If the Senator from Wyoming has more recent information I shall be glad to have him make it available to the Senate.

Mr. O'MAHONEY. My recollection is that the objection of the RFC a year ago-and I personally consulted the officials of the RFC-was based upon the fact that the terms of the bill authorized commitments against the Government in excess of the authorized amount. That is precisely the objection which was sought to be eliminated by the amendment which is in the bill and some changes which I discussed a moment ago.

Mr. KEM. I believe the memory of the Senator from Wyoming, which is usually good, has played him a trick. The criticisms of the RFC went to further points, much further than the statement of the Senator from Wyoming indicates. I shall be glad to read a letter from Mr. John D. Goodloe, if the Senator has any doubt about the fact. Would the Senator like to have it read?

Mr. O'MAHONEY. I should be very glad to have it read if the Senator cares to read it.

Mr. KEM. Very well. It is as follows: RECONSTRUCTION FINANCE CORPORATION, Washington, D. C., July 22, 1947. Hon. ALBEN W. BARKLEY, Senate Office Building.

Washington, D. C.

DEAR SENATOR BARKLEY: Reference is made to H. R. 1602, which provides for the continuation of the premium-price plan for copper, lead, and zinc for an additional 2-year period beyond June 30, 1947, and which, as passed by the House of Representatives on July 22, 1947, adds manganese as an additional material on which premiums are to be paid.

We were not requested to submit a report to the House Public Lands Committee or to testify concerning the bill. However, inasmuch as it provides that the RFC shall disburse the premium payments, we consider it expedient to point out that, in the light of 5½ years of experience with the plan for copper, lead, and zinc, the amount of money authorized will be insufficient to accomplish the desired purposes.

In other words, the first complaint made by the RFC was that they were directed to do things that the estimate of $35,000,000 a year would not by any means cover.

I continue reading from the letter:

The bill authorizes a maximum expenditure of $70,000,000, with not more than $35,-000,000 to be expended during the year ending June 30, 1948. Other provisions make it quite plain that the premium-price plan as operated during fiscal 1947 is not to be curtailed as respects benefits to producers, but is to be expanded, particularly with regard to premiums for exploration projects. The present rate of disbursements on copper, lead, and zinc, based on available figures for March and April 1947, is in excess of $3,500,000 a month, and our estimate is that between $3,500,000 and $4,000,000 would be needed monthly for such metals during fiscal 1948 if the bill becomes law. This does not take into account premium payments on manganese, which has not heretofore been embodied in the plan and for which no pro-cedure has been set up. Likewise, it makes no provision in the case of the four materials for a declining market. It should be borne in mind that if the prevailing high prices for the subsidized materials should decline, the amount of the subsidy paid will proportionately increase. During fiscal 1947, when price controls were eased and then gradually abandoned, we will have disbursed approximately $60,000,000 on copper, lead, and zinc pre-

Under the terms of the bill we would feel obligated to discontinue disbursements when the $35,000,000 ceiling had been reached. However, we have reason to believe that producers will insist that the bill gives them a 2-year guaranty of operations and that they are entitled to payment for any eligible production derived during such period. Thus the question of a deficiency appropriation to pay off such accrued amounts would be presented. Further, a difficult administrative situation is created, which we believe might give rise to claims and possibly litigation against the Government for reimbursement of expenditures allegedly made in reliance on the statute.

If the present dollar limitation is to be retained, we feel that the Congress should indicate clearly that this is a limited program, to be tailored within the exact sums author-The Department of Commerce, which will certify the premiums to RFC for pay-ment, would be able to project its quotas on a definite basis, and the producers could like-wise raise no questions as to the exact amount of funds available.

We have not had an opportunity to give much thought to the question of the inclu-sion of manganese within this plan since the matter was first brought to our attention However, it is desired to point out that manganese is marketed in an entirely different manner than copper, lead, and zinc and that the existing procedures for copper, lead, and zinc could not apply to manganese.

We express no opinion as to the merits of the bill. Should further comments be desired, we shall be glad to supply same.

With best wishes. Sincerely yours,

JOHN D. GOODLOE, Chairman.

In other words, Mr. President, the RFC was not concerned about the limitation in the bill which was placed at $35,000,-000, but it was concerned about the fact that it could not do what it was required to do, under the provisions of the bill, for $35,000,000.

I believe I agreed to yield to the Senator from Colorado for some questions. Mr. MILLIKIN. I thank the Senator. but I shall ask the questions later on.

Mr. KEM. Mr. President, it is not a question of whether the RFC approves this bill. I think it is quite interesting to note that it is apparently not ap-proved by any of the departments of Government which would legitimately deal with the situation.

Mr. MILLIKIN. Is it approved by the National Resources Board?

Mr. KEM. No; it is not. I made inquiry of the National Resources Board from Colonel Allen. Mr. Kenneth Johnson, general counsel of the Board, called me and gave me the following statement, which he said had been authorized by Mr. Hall, the Chairman of the Board:

The Board approved legislation which provides for incentive payments to stimulate the exploration for strategic and critical materials. Long-range contracts should be used wherever practicable to bring about increases in current production for stock-pile purposes. Legislation which authorizes payments to be made in advance of delivery of materials pro-cured under the Stock-Piling Act has the approval of the Board.

The statement of Mr. Hall, the Chairman of the Resources Board, continues as follows:

The Board presently is not in a position to approve legislation which provides for the payment of premiums on current production.

I assume the Senator from Colorado will agree that this report does provide for figures of current production. If there is any doubt about that, I shall be glad to point out the provision.

Mr. MALONE. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. KEM. I yield for a question.

Mr. MALONE. I should like to answer the question of the Senator from Colorado

Mr. KEM. I prefer that the Senator take that up in his own time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Senator from Missouri declines to yield.

Mr. KEM. Mr. President, since we are discussing the position of the various departments of the Government having to do with this matter, I should like to read a letter from Mr. J. A. Krug, Secretary of the Interior, dated May 26, 1948. It reads as follows:

My DEAR MR. WELCH: This is in response to your recent request by telephone for an immediate report on H. R. 6623, stimulate the production and conservation of strategic and critical ores, metals, minerals, and for the establishment within the Department of the Interior of a Mine Incentive Payments Division, and for other purposes.'

This Department cannot support H. 6623 in its present form, not because this Department does not advocate the expressed purposes of the bill, but because the bill is not properly devised to accomplish those purposes. Stimulation of the production of strategic and critical metals and minerals for national defense and domestic economy is obviously desirable, but it is no simple matter. This Department now has under consideration a draft of a bill for the purposes expressed in H. R. 6623, which is designed to overcome the objections here expressed to that bill.

In other words, if I may interject, the Secretary of the Interior says that he has under consideration a bill which will accomplish the express objectives of the bill we are discussing, but he does not approve of this bill because he does not think it will properly accomplish its objectives.

I continue the letter of Secretary

The intention of H. R. 6623 is to provide for incentive payments to producers of strategic and critical metals and minerals, in addition to the money received by them from sales. The idea is that the mere increase in the money returns to producers will result in bringing about the desired increase in production. Assuming that the bill makes adequate provisions for such payments, this Department does not believe that such payments would accomplish the purpose. The present economic conditions and prevailing high prices for the metals and minerals in question do not indicate that a mere general increase in the money returns to domestic producers would result in a significant increase in production. To effective, any such incentive payments should be tied to and limited to the actual increase in production.

The bill does not indicate whether the incentive payments are to be made with ref-erence to the production from particular mines or properties or with reference to the total production from all mines and properties of a particular producer. plain to this Department that not only should such incentive payments be tied to and limited to actual increase in produc-tion, but that such payments should be made with reference to the total production of a producer rather than with reference to individual mines or properties of a producer. Unless such payments refer to the total production of the producer the tendency would be to divert facilities and labor from low-cost production to marginal and high-cost production in order to get the fullest benefit from incentive payments while they were obtainable. This might bring into production some marginal and high-cost properties, but would be just as likely to decrease the total national production as to increase it.

Lack of definitions in the bill makes it impossible to ascertain just how it is intended to operate. The bill provides that the incentive payments "shall be made hereunder for all ores, metals, and minerals determined to be strategic or critical" under the Stock-Piling Act (60 Stat. 596). No specification whatever is made with respect to eligibility for such payments. For all that is contained in the bill the payments might be claimed by a mere broker or dealer in the metals or minerals in question.

The bill provides for two types of incentive payments. Paymen's for production are termed "development and conservation payments." The bill purports to make provision for another type of payment termed "exploration payments." The sole provision for these "exploration payments" is the fol-lowing: "Exploration payments shall be made in addition to development and conservation payments without regard to payment limitations provided in this act, not in excess of a total maximum to be determined by the Director." No definition of "exploration" nor any sort of guide is provided as to what is intended to be accomplished by these "exploration payments," as to whom the payments are to be made, or as to the amounts in which they should be made or their relation to the "development and conservation payments."

This Department believes that any program for incentive payments to the pro-ducers of strategic and critical metals and minerals can be justified under present conditions only for purposes of national de-fense and for building up the national stock pile under the Stock Piling Act (60 Stat.

Mr. McFARLAND. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. KEM. I am glad to yield to the Senator from Arizona.

Mr. McFARLAND. Would the Senator be in favor of a bill which followed the recommendations of the Department of the Interior?

Mr. KEM. I should not care to commit myself to the bill until I saw it, but generally speaking I believe in the American way of free enterprise and free competition, and the producers of these metals in my own State—and it is an important industry, employing thousands of people there, many small companies and some large ones-in the long run would be better off under the system of free enterprise and free competition because anything else leads inevitably to governmental control.

Mr. McFARLAND. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. KEM. I yield.

Mr. McFARLAND. The Senator does not think that those mines in his State which are closed down today would be better off, does he?

Mr. KEM. I think those mines in the long run would be better off than if they were opened today under artificial Government stimulation under an uneconomic situation.

Mr. McFARLAND. If I may make an observation to the Senator I will say I have talked to a great many people of his State and I do not believe he can convince them of that.

Mr. KEM. When I come to it I will be glad to show the Senator the widespread opinion among the people of my State upon that subject. I can read a large number of letters and telegrams, and we can be here all night, if the Senator desires, on that subject.

Mr. McFARLAND. I am willing to stay here just as long as the Senator wants to stay.
Mr. KEM. Very well.

Now to continue to read from Secretary Krug's letter:

H. R. 6623 is not sufficiently coordinated with this proper purpose either in language or intent. The bill recites (section 6 (b)): "All additional ores, metals, and minerals or the equivalent thereof resulting from incentive payments shall be purchased by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation," for transfer to the national stock pile. But the bill does not define what is meant by "additional ores, metals, and minerals" nor does it lay down any standard for determining which ores, metals, and minerals are to be considered as resulting from incentive payments. Moreover, as previously pointed out, the bill does not provide that incentive pay-ments are to be tied to or limited to increased production. It would be impossible to determine by any means afforded by the bill what metals or minerals are to be available for the national stock pile.

To be sure the bill does provide (section (c)) that the Director shall "prescribe rules and regulations for carrying out the provisions of this act in the simplest manner." The bill does not, however, provide a sufficiently clear and unambiguous course of action within which the Director is required to function and which the rules and regula-tions would be intended to implement. In order to administer the bill as now framed, the rules and regulations would have to supply the inadequacies and clarify the ambiguities in the bill.

The bill provides (section 5 (a)) that the incentive payments "* * * shall include a reasonable profit to the producer * * *."

The term "reasonable profit" is not defined. This Department believes that profit is not a suitable measure for incentive payments in the mining industry to increase production. What may be a reasonable profit in such a speculative and uncertain business as mining-particularly with reference to bringing in new or marginal production—would be a highly controversial subject. It may be doubted, moreover, if changes in the Bureau of Labor Statistics wholesale price index of all commodities is a suitable standard for escalation of incentive payments under the act. The prices of the very metals and minerals in question are an important element of the index, with the apparent result that one increase in the price of those metals and minerals calls for another increase, ad infi-

Finally, estimates based upon mineral production during World War II do not indicate that any such over-all subsidy to producers as is provided in this bill will sufficiently stimulate domestic production of the strategic and critical metals and minerals that are most needed for the national stock pile.

The Bureau of the Budget has advised me that there is no objection to the submission of this report to your committee.

Sincerely yours,

J. A. KRUG, Secretary of the Interior.

Mr. President, I have here another interesting opinion on this bill from the Director of the Budget. The letter from the Director of the Budget, which is written on the letterhead of "Executive Office of the President's Bureau of the Budget, Washington 25, D. C.," dated June 3, 1948, and addressed to "The honorable the Secretary of the Interior," reads as follows:

MY DEAR MR. SECRETARY: Reference is made to the draft of bill designed to stimulate the production of and exploration for strategic and critical materials, which draft bill was submitted to the Bureau of the Budget on May 4 by the Department of the Interior in accordance with established procedure.

The draft bill has been referred to various Government agencies concerned with this matter and has been the subject of extensive conferences. Information developed in these discussions appears to indicate that, while major administrative improvements have been made in the draft bill over H. R. 1602, vetoed by the President in the first session of the Eightieth Congress, production subsidy provisions of the draft bill are subject to the same difficulties which impelled the veto of H. R. 1602. Accordingly that feature of the proposed bill would not be in accord with the program of the President.

You are further advised that there would be no objection to the submission to the Congress for its consideration of draft legislation in respect of exploration payments along the lines of the attached draft which has been developed as a result of interagency discussions on this matter. It is believed that contracts with private producers under which the Government would pay not to exceed 50 percent of the cost of authorized exploration, would result in increased production of strategic and critical materials required for the stock pile.

Sincerely yours,

JAMES H. WEBB, Director.

So, Mr. President, we have here statements from three important public officials who have examined this bill and have expressed an opinion upon it: The Chairman of the National Resources Board, the Secretary of the Interior, and the Director of the Budget. And the opinion of all these gentlemen is adverse.

Surely the Senate of the United States, in the face of evidence such as that, at a quarter after 12 Sunday morning, is not going to rush through to final passage a bill of this importance and involving such a large amount of money with that kind of expert opinion urging caution.

I know my friend the Senator from Colorado [Mr. MILLIKIN] is chafing at the bit, and my friend the Senator from Nevada [Mr. MALONE] as well, but before I sit down I want to discuss the circumstances and conditions under which the payments will be made by this very powerful individual, the Director of the premium-price plan, over whom we would have no control.

The Director is authorized to make two kinds of payments. They are known as development and conservation payments and exploration payments. Of course, from the name, it is clear the class of cases involved. Development and conservation payments go to those who are already engaged in business. The exploration payments go to those who want to engage in business. But, Mr. President, I invite attention to the fact that there is an inconsistency in the very statement of development and conservation payments because, if the properties are going to be developed, if there is to be an incentive given to develop the property, by the same token the minerals will not be conserved in the ground. The method of calculation is provided for at the bottom of page 4:

Such payments shall be calculated at such rates within the limitations defined in this act so as to encourage exploration and development, increase production, and effect conservation and make reasonable allowances for depreciation and depletion, and afford opportunity for a reasonable profit to the producer based upon the values of the recoverable metals and strategic and critical minerals contained in the ores.

In other words, this paragon of executive ability is given the difficult task of fixing payments that will encourage development and also effect conservation. In addition, he is told that he shall guarantee a reasonable profit to the producer based upon the values of the recoverable metals and strategical and critical minerals contained in the ore. In addition. he is told to make a reasonable allowance for depreciation and depletion. That language could be discussed at great length, but I should like to ask this question: Upon what basis is the depreciation and depletion of a submarginal mine to be calculated? If it cannot be operated at a profit today, how are we to figure depreciation and depletion on it?

But the provision for exploration payments is the most remarkable of all. That appears at the middle of page 6, and reads as follows:

Exploration payments shall be made at the discretion of the Director in amounts and on projects approved by him under rules as prescribed in section 3 (c).

Let us turn to section 3 (c). Section 3 (c) provides that-

(c) It shall be the duty of the Director, and he is hereby authorized and directed,
(1) to perform the functions hereinafter specifically authorized, and (2) to prescribe rules and regulations for carrying out the provisions of this act in the simplest manner.

In other words, he is directed to make these exploration payments under rules which he himself prescribes, and which he can change from time to time. Suppose John Smith comes to him and says, "I have a yen to discover a lead mine, or a zinc mine, or a manganese mine." The Director, under rules which he himself prescribes and can change to suit that particular case, can, as I see it, give John Smith any amount of money he thinks proper to use in exploration.

Mr. President, I have taken up more time than I should, but I wished to answer the question of the Senator from Arizona. I do not see him in the Chamber at the moment. He asked me about the position of the people engaged in this industry in my own State. I should like to read to him a short paragraph from a statement made by Mr. Andrew Fletcher.

Mr. HATCH. Mr. President, does the Senator wish to have the Senator from Arizona called into the Chamber?

Mr. KEM. I should be very glad to have him here. He raised a question as to how the producers in my own State felt about this plan. I wanted to read him short excerpts from statements which I thought would answer his question fully and completely. I could read him a large number of letters and statements about that matter, but I shall not take time to do so.

I wish to pick out some typical instances which I think will express fully and completely what I consider to be the best informed opinion on the subject in my State.

Mr. McFARLAND. Mr. President, let me say to the Senator that I was moved to make that statement by reason of the fact that I have received many telephone calls from persons in the Senator's State, and some of them have called on me personally, expressing an interest in this proposed legislation. So I was at a loss to understand why the Senator from Missouri would be opposing a bill which his own constituents regard as so important to their welfare.

Mr. KEM. Mr. President, the Senator from New Jersey in his very eloquent address this afternoon quoted Mr. James A. Farley, who said, "Willingness to sacrifice office, rather than to compromise with principle, is something we all must keep in mind."

I know that there are a great many people in my State, many of whom are personal friends of mine of many years' standing, who think that if this bill is passed and largess is distributed by the Director of the premium-price plan, some of the manna will fall on them and the members of their families. I know that full well: I am apprised of that, just as well as the Senator from Arizona.

I desire to point out to the Senator from Arizona what I think is the best informed and most intelligent, the most farsighted opinion on the subject held by the people of my State. The first man I want to quote pays the price of success. He is president of the largest operation in my State. I am sure that before the debate is completed it will be said of him, "He is a big operator, do not pay any attention to what he says. He is a big operator." But let me read something he said on March 13 of this year when he appeared at a meeting of his employees in the lead belt in Missouri.

McFARLAND. Mr. President, would the Senator mind giving us the man's name?

Mr. KEM. The man is Mr. Andrew Fletcher, president of the St. Joseph Lead Co., who came from New York for the purpose of delivering an address to his employees, which address I have here in full. I am going to refer to it, though I am not going to read all of it. He began by paying a tribute to the wives of the men, whom he had invited to be there, and then talked about teamwork and earnings and the future. He said this, and I invite the attention of every Member to it:

The dark cloud on the metal horizon is the present hysteria for the reinstatement of Government subsidies on metal producwhich if adopted by Congress in a form similar to the wartime premium-price plan, can only result in Government controls of profits, wages, salaries, metal allocations-and decreased efficiency. Every member of the St. Joseph Lead management is definitely opposed to Government subsidies on metal production, as no nation has yet succeeded in regimenting an economy, without eventually regimenting the individuals and the companies, whom the economy was supposed to benefit. Our country has been built up by encouraging the individual to build for himself, and so to create wealth. We have built a society that is unique in the world. For the first time in history,. hundreds of thousands of enterprises, big and small, competitively operated, and individually managed, are effectively creating wealth in terms of a better living standard for all. Yet we seem to have lost ground in effort to make this basic idea of our society understood. The philosophy that man and his affairs must be managed by the government is certainly a reactionary doctrine. We must do our part to defeat this belief, because only as long as the means of livelihood of a people remain unrestricted, can they as individuals remain free.

Today in the world around us, millions of people suffer from hunger, are without adequate clothes and housing. They live in fear and terror—never knowing whether tomorrow will bring them imprisonment death. Freedom has been lost. We today are living in a happy contrast to the un-fortunate peoples of other lands, as we have freedom of religion, of the press, and we have our competitive free-enterprise system, which is directly responsible for our prosperity, and for the great opportunities which lie before us and our children.

Mr. McFARLAND. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. KEM. I yield.

Mr. McFARLAND. Does the Senator consider the stock piling of lead important to the defense of the Nation?

Mr. KEM. I do not think the stock piling is of great necessity under present conditions, as I shall show in a few minutes. As soon as we got back to the freeenterprise system last June, the production of the country began to increase. So long as we piddle along with price premiums and that sort of thing we are not going to get the full production of which the industry is capable.

Mr. McFARLAND. The Senator does regard a stock piling of lead as important, does he not?

Mr. KEM. Yes. We have done some stock piling. I think that is all well and good. I would not criticize it, and I would not criticize further stock piling if authorized or requested by those charged with our national defense.

Let me make this clear. In the discussions with people from my State who have come to my office to talk about this matter, who have urged the necessity of providing for the national defense, I have said to them, "Go over to the Pentagon Building and get from the officials there charged with the national defense a statement that this bill is necessary, and I will not oppose the bill on the floor, but I shall become one of its pro-tagonists." Such a statement has never come from the Pentagon Building.

Mr. McFARLAND. If I may ask the Senator another question, has Mr. Fletcher any lead to sell the United States Government for stock piling?

Mr. KEM. That, of course, is the line of argument that I knew, when I read Mr. Fletcher's statement, would be advanced. He is president of the largest operation in our State, and, as I said before, he pays the price of success. In certain quarters, however, anything he says may be discounted.

Mr. McFARLAND. No; the Senator misunderstands me. I merely asked whether Mr. Fletcher has any lead to sell the United States Government for stock piling. It was not to discount anything he says. If Mr. Fletcher says he has the lead, then he has it; but he does not say it, because he does not

Mr. KEM. The Senator may be surprised to hear me say it, but I do not have the pleasure of Mr. Fletcher's per-sonal acquaintance. I know a large number of his employees in Missouri, many of whom are personal friends of mine, but I do not know Mr. Fletcher. I cannot answer for his plans or his purposes or the extent of his operations, but I shall have to direct the Senator to Mr. Fletcher himself.

Something was said about Members of Congress being willing to sacrifice office rather than compromise their principles. Businessmen are willing to do the same thing. There is in St. Louis a business-man, Mr. Howard I. Young, active for many years in the civic life of that city. Whenever there are civic and charitable enterprises under way, one is very apt to find Howard Young not only generously contributing but also doing much of the spade work necessary to make the thing a success. He is one of the most public-spirited men I know. He happens to be the president of a comparatively small concern known as the American Zinc, Lead & Smelting Co., whose headquarters are in St. Louis. quote from the annual report of that company for the year ended December 31, 1947. Mr. Young, as the president of the company, says this:

Government subsidies continued under the premium-price plan until June 30, 1947. The plan was renewed by the Congress as Allen bill in August, and later was vetoed by President Truman.

Our total receipts for the year 1947 under the premium-price plan amounted to $623,-931, which compares with our subsidy receipts during 1946 of $1,418,938. In 1947 receipts represent an amount equal to 27.17 percent of our net operating income before depreciation and taxes.

Mr. President, in order that we may have the situation of the company clearly in mind, 2 years before he drew out approximately $623,000 and $1,418,000, respectively. He says that in 1947 it amounted to 27 percent of the net operating income before depreciation and taxes. Under those conditions one would imagine he would think pretty well of the premium-price plan and would want it put back into effect, but one would be exactly wrong.

Mr. McFARLAND. Mr. President, is the Senator personally acquainted with Mr. Young?

Mr. KEM. I know him well.

Mr. McFARLAND. Has he any lead to sell to the United States Government for stock piling?

Mr. KEM. He is in the lead and zinc business, and I dare say he would be glad to have the Government's business. I suppose he is conducting business with the Government now.

Mr. McFARLAND. Is not the Senator informed about the lead business in his State?

Mr. KEM. I did not understand that to be the question. I understood the question was whether or not Mr. Andrew Young had any lead to sell.

Mr. McFARLAND. Does not the Senator know whether there is a surplus of lead in his State, or whether there is a scarcity of it, or what the mines are doing in his State?

Mr. KEM. I will show the Senator that when the premium plan ceased to operate production increased.

I want to read Mr. Young's comments about the price premium plan, notwithstanding his own personal interest in it. I am reading from the report:

It is our judgment that subsidies on metal production in peacetime are not justified un-less the metals are required for permanent stockpiling by those responsible for national

In other words, it seems that Mr. Young is willing to sacrifice his own personal interest rather than compromise with principle.

Mr. President, someone made the comment, "You are reading what the big men say. Let us hear what the little fellows have to say about it." I have a letter from Mr. Tom J. Rightly, of Joplin, Mo., under date of March 2, 1948. He is a mining engineer. He addressed me as follows:

JOPLIN, Mo., March 2, 1948.
Hon. James P. Kem,
United States Senator, Senate Office Building, Washington, D. C.
DEAR SENATOR KEM: I trust it is in order to avail myself of the privilege of requesting you to continue your opposition to any bill that may be presented in Congress concerning a subsidy for zinc.

At the termination of the emergency a group of zinc producers began a lobby and propaganda campaign for the continuation of the premium-price plan for copper, lead, and zinc, under the Allen bill (H. R. 1602).

That is the companion bill in the House. I continue reading from the letter:

The proposed subsidy was so unnecessary and wasteful of taxpayers' money that even New Deal President Truman felt called upon to veto the measure. The lesson of the past 8 months without a zinc premium has clearly demonstrated the justification and correctness of the action.

Now again appears the "give me" producers in the zinc-mining industry attempting again to lobby and propagandize through Congress a dole for zinc, under any misnomer cause.

The same old gravy train, on another similar track, carrying the same load, but under new camouflage, and still fired and oiled by the same give-me group.

Many statements were misleading in the propaganda brochure put out last June by the Tri-State Zinc & Lead Ore Producers Association. Likewise many statements and assertions by some of our Republican friends who cuss out the New Deal but work for and have their hands out for New Deal give-me money from taxpayers' funds. It is sur-prising who some of these so-called Republicans are.

Contrary to the chiselers' wail of no subsidy, no production, the zinc production, with the subsidy ended in June, in the United States increased 9 percent during 1947 over 1946, when the subsidy was in full blast. This information was recently furnished by the Bureau of Mines. This production was made in contrast to the propaganda that mines would close, become flooded and worthless.

Some mines in this district and in other districts did close when the former subsidy terminated. They should remain closed until a price for zinc on a supply-and-demand basis in a free market will justify operations.

The Engineering and Mining Journal of February 1948 issue, considered by all min-ing men an authoritative and authentic source, states, "Most of the advocates want subsidies because their own operations will be helped." These advocates stand to make large profits at the expense of the taxpayer by an unwarranted subsidy. The recent subsidy gave them large profits and they can well afford to gamble large sums for propaganda and lobby in their new effort and let the taxpayer cry and be damned.

Zinc mines have operated for 8 months without a bonus. Supply and demand is in good position. Even with the large demand during the past 16 months a considerable tonnage of zinc has been diverted to Government stock pile.

There is no justifiable cause or reason at this time to warrant the unnecessary spending of taxpayers' money for a subsidy for zinc except that a privileged few may win large profits at taxpayers' profits at taxpayers' expense.

I trust that your opposition to subsidies has not changed since last March and I respectfully and earnestly request that you oppose any effort to revive a subsidy for zinc. The taxpayer will welcome and appreciate such an action by you.

Sincerely yours,

TOM J. RIGHTLY.

Mr. President, the question has been raised concerning the production of lead and zinc under present conditions. The Senator from Arizona [Mr. McFarland] was curious to know about whether I had any information as to the present condition of the industry. I shall be glad to answer that question. I have in my hand a statistical history of United States lead production. I believe the Senator's question was directed to lead production, was it not?

Mr. McFARLAND. I am interested in all of the metals and minerals.

Mr. KEM. This is a statistical history of United States lead production for 1945 to 1947, inclusive, and it carries through year by year. It shows the price in cents per pound; domestic mine production; domestic secondary production; imports of ores and concentrates; imports in bullion and refined lead; exports of refined lead, and so forth. The source is the United States Bureau of Mines, Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, and the Engineering and Mining Journal. It shows, Mr. President, that the domestic mine production in 1946, when the pricepremium plan was in effect, was 332,500 short tons. In 1947, the amount increased to 400,000 short tons. The domestic secondary supply in 1946 was 392,-800 short tons. In 1947 it increased to 425,000 short tons. Imports of ores and concentrates in 1946 were 44,500 short tons. In 1947 the amount increased to 50,000 short tons.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to insert at this point in the RECORD the table as a part of my remarks.

There being no objection, the table was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows.

Mr. KEM. Mr. President, it is rather interesting that as soon as the price premium plan was discontinued the efficiency of our southeast Missouri lead belt operations increased. Under the operation of the price premium plan they dropped from around 16 tons per manshift to 10.6 tons per man-shift. When the price premium plan went off they bounded back again. In other words. there seems to be a peculiar quirk in human nature that when the Government is paying for things and subsidizing there is not the efficiency, there is not the morale, there is not the production that is evident when the employer is on his own and the employees are on their own.

Mr. President, I have talked too long. My position in this matter may be inexplicable to some, but I think I can probably explain it.

I know very well that when Adolf Hitler came to power in Germany the main instrument he used to undermine the independence and self-reliance of the German people was subsidies. He paid subsidies right and left. He made the people generally apply to the Fuehrer as the source from which all blessings came. So it was not long before 40,000,000 Germans were goose-stepping and crying "Heil Hitler," and we know what a chain of human suffering followed. So, for my part, I want to stick to the American way of life, the free-enterprise system of free competition that has served us so well, that has given us in America the highest standards of life the world has ever seen.

Mr. MALONE. Mr. President, I wish to answer some of the questions raised by the Senator from Missouri, for whom I have the highest regard, and I pay tribute to his sincerity and honesty, and I know that what he says comes from his

I wish to say in all seriousness that the Senator from Missouri must know, as, indeed, anyone from a mining State must know, that for 30 years after the return of our Army from France in 1919 many committees of Congress began holding hearings to try to find out how to meet the serious emergency affecting metals.

I was in France with the field artillery during the First World War and we got nice new shiny 4.7 guns just a few weeks before the Armistice. Because of the lack of metals and other materials, we never got an American plane in the air over there. There was no timber or metals in stock piles.

During World War II. I was a special consultant for the Armed Services Committee, and we sat and sweated blood while the submarines of the Germans were sinking American ships carrying manganese and trying to bring goods from foreign countries because we did not have a stock pile.

I know that my colleague did not mean to approach this question in a facetious frame of mind. This is a desperate sit-uation. When he says "Johnny Come Lately," I reply that these conditions have existed for 30 years. In the last 2 years the House committee has been holding hearings almost continuously, and on my desk are 28 volumes of transcripts of hearings we have held during the past 2 years as part of the investigation conducted by the Senate National Resources Economics Subcommittee, and two-thirds of the hearings were devoted to minerals.

We published a 300-page statement showing the mineral position of the United States. There is not time tonight, I agree with the Senator, to go into this matter, but this is a good report. It comes largely from the Bureau of Mines, and it shows the mineral position of the United States, and how pitifully inadequate many of our known mineral resources are. I submit the re-port for the consideration of Members of the Senate.

Let me read a letter, only one letter, because I am not going to take much of the Senate's time. Mr. Krug made certain objections to the Russell bill, so to meet these objections we made the necessary changes in the bill after we had had 2 years of hearings. Nearly every mining man in the United States engaged in operations of any magnitude appeared before one of the congressional committees, and every mining association in the United States joined in a resolution asking for just such legislation as we are seeking to have passed by the Senate tonight. Here is a letter from Mr. Krug:

My DEAR MR. RUSSELL: In your letter of May 5 you inquire as to the position of the Department of the Interior on incentive payments to domestic mine operators.

I do not feel that incentive production payments in excess of market prices are normally economically justified for minerals in times of peace. If it should appear, however, that a particular mineral is in such short supply that it cannot be stock-piled in quantities adequate for the national defense and if it appears that incentive payments to the marginal and submarginal producers of such a mineral would result in increasing the total national production of that mineral, the Department would not be opposed to incentive payments in such circumstances. The Department would not be inclined, however, to support a proposal for incentive payments where the mineral involved can be otherwise sufficiently stockpiled or where it appears that the incentive payment would produce such a displacement of labor from low-cost to marginal and submarginal mines as to reduce the total national production of the mineral involved.

Mr. KEM. Mr. President, will the Senator from Nevada yield?

Mr. MALONE. I yield.

Mr. KEM. Is there any difference between the Malone bill in the Senate and the Allen bill in the House?

Mr. MALONE. Does the Senator mean the Russell bill?

Mr. KEM. It is called the Allen bill

by Mr. Krug

Mr. MALONE. No. I am a little shocked. The Allen bill last year was a premium-price plan, which was a war baby. Neither the Russell bill nor the bill which, with nine other Senators, I joined in introducing, has any relation whatever to the price premium payment plan.

Mr. KEM. I am talking about the bill pending in the House.

Mr. MALONE. The Russell bill?

Mr. KEM. Is that identical with the Malone bill?

Mr. MALONE. No. There are five or six vital differences.

Mr. KEM. Between that and the House bill?

Mr. MALONE. Yes. That is correct. Mr. KEM. The caption of the bill is the same, is it not? I read the caption from Mr. Krug's letter.

Mr. MALONE. The caption is the same, and that is about all the similarity there is between them.

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE

A message from the House of Representatives, by Mr. Maurer, one of its reading clerks, announced that the House had agreed to the report of the committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H. R. 6801) making appropriations for foreign aid for the period beginning April 3, 1948, and ending June 30, 1949, and for other purposes.

FOREIGN AID APPROPRIATIONS-CONFERENCE REPORT

Mr. BRIDGES. I submit a conference report on House bill 6801, making appropriations for foreign aid for the period beginning April 3, 1948, and ending June 30, 1949, and for other purposes, and I ask unanimous consent for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The conference report will be read.

The conference report was read as follows:

The committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H. R. 6801) making appropriations for foreign aid for the period beginning April 3, 1948, and ending June 30, 1949, and for other purposes, having met, after full and free conference, have agreed to recommend and do recommend to their respective Houses as follows:

That the Senate recede from its amendments numbered 4, 7, 12, 22, 32, 40 and 41.

That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendments of the Senate numbered 1, 8, 9, 10, 13, 14, 21, 24, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 34 and 35; and agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 2: That the House

recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 2, and agree to the same with an amendment, as follows: In lieu of the matter stricken out and inserted by said amendment, insert "June 30, 1949: Provided, That the entire amount may be apportioned for obligation or may be obligated and expended, if the President, after recommendation by the Administrator, deems such action necessary to carry out the purposes of said Act, during the period ending April 2"; and the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 3: That the House

recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 3, and agree to the same with an amendment, as follows:

In lieu of the amount inserted in said amendment, insert "$60,000"; and the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 5: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 5, and agree to the same with an amendment, as follows: In lieu of the number inserted by said amendment, insert "fifty"; and the Senate agree to the same.

ate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 11: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 11 and agree to the same with an amendment, as follows: Restore the matter stricken out by said amendment, amended to read as follows: ": Provided further, That not less than 5 per centum of each special local currency account established pursuant to section 115 (b) (6) of the Economic Cooperation Act of 1948 shall be allocated to the use of the United States Government for expenditure for strategic materials where available or for other local currency requirements of the United States of America"; and the Senate agree to the

Amendment numbered 15: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 15, and agree to the same with an amendment, as follows: In lieu of the matter inserted by said amendment, insert ": Provided further, That not to exceed $58,000,000 may be expended for administrative and other expenses including not to exceed $12,000,000 for direct administra-tion and not to exceed $6,000,000 for technical assistance authorized under section 111 (a) (3) of the Economic Cooperation Act of 1948": and the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 17: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 18, and agree to the same with an amendment, as follows: In lieu of the matter proposed by said amendment, insert ": Provided further, That guaranties of investments in enterprises producing or distributing informational media provided for under section 111 (b) (3) of the Economic Cooperation Act of 1948, or otherwise, shall not exceed $10,000,000 in the first year"; and the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 18: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 12, and agree to the same with an amendment, as follows: In lieu of the matter proposed by said amendment, insert ": Provided further, That there shall be included within the local currency administrative expenditures of the United States such sums as may be necessary to meet expenditures of members and staff of the Joint Committee on Foreign Economic Cooperation in the course of performance of committee functions within respective participating countries"; and the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 19: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 19, and agree to the same with an amendment, as follows: In lieu of the sum proposed by said amendment, insert "$35,000,000"; and the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 20: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 20, and agree to the same with an amendment, as follows: In lieu of the sum proposed by said amendment, insert "$225,000,000"; and the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 23: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 23, and agree to the same with an amendment, as follows: In lieu of the matter stricken out and inserted by said amendment, insert "$400,000,000,000, of which not to exceed $1,200,000 shall be available for administrative expenses and of which $125,000,000 shall be available exclusively as provided in subsection 404 (b) of said Act"; and the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 25: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 25, and agree to the same with an amendment, as follows: In lieu of the matter stricken out and inserted by said amendment, insert "such minimum supplies for the civilian populations of such areas as may be essential to prevent starvation, disease, or unrest, prejudicial to the objectives sought to be accomplished, and such supplies, commoditi s, and equipment as may be essential to carry out the purposes of this appropriation; $1,300,000,000": and the Senate agree to the same.

ooo,000"; and the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 33: That the House

Amendment numbered 33: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 33, and agree to the same with an amendment, as follows: Restore the matter stricken out by said amendment, amended to read as follows: ": Provided, That not to exceed 60 per centum of the funds appropriated herein shall be available for contribution to the International Refugee Organization until such time as there are effected agreements providing for a caloric diet for the occupants of refugee camps in Europe that is no higher than that prevailing in the country in which such camps are located"; and the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 36: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 36, and agree to the same with an amendment, as follows: In lieu of the matter stricken out and inserted by said amendment, insert:

"SEC. 202. No funds made available under the authority of this Act shall be used for the purchase in bulk of any commodities (other than commodities procured by or in the possession of the Commodity Credit Corporation pursuant to Act of July 1, 1941 (55 Stat. 498), as amended), at prices higher than the market price prevailing in the United States at the time of the purchase adjusted for differences in the cost of transportation to destination, quality, and terms of payment: Provided, That no funds available under this act shall be used for the purchase of wool other than from existing stocks owned by the Commodity Credit Corporation, unless or until such stocks are exhausted."

And the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 37: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 37, and agree to the same with an amendment, as follows: In lieu of the matter stricken out and inserted by said amendment, insert:

"SEC. 203. No part of the funds herein appropriated shall be used to purchase farm machinery, including tractors, in the United States in an amount which will bring the total exports of such machinery and tractors during the period for which this appropriation is made, from the United States, by or for the benefit of the countries participating in the European recovery program, to more than $75,000,000."

And the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 38: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 38, and agree to the same with an amendment, as follows: Restore the matter stricken out by said amendment, amended to read as follows:

"SEC. 204. Whenever an export license for a commodity, the production or shipment of which to a nonparticipating country was contracted for in good faith prior to March 1, 1948, is denied or cannot be obtained under section 6 of the Act of July 2, 1940 (54 Stat. 714), as amended, the Administrator shall provide for the procurement of such commodity to transfer to a participating country in accordance with the requirements of such country, at not less than the contract price of such commodity to the producer or exporter, as the case may be, including any cost incurred in converting the commodity to meet the requirements of the participating country."

And the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 39: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 39, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: In lieu of the matter stricken out and inserted by said amendment, insert the following:

"Sec. 205. Not less than 50 per centum of the United States export requirements of nitrogenous fertilizer materials or nitrogenous compounds (including anhydrous ammonia) for nonoccupied areas shall come from production of plants operated by or for the Department of the Army.

"In addition, the Department of the Army shall make available, for the commercial production of nitrogenous fertilizer materials for domestic use, ten per centum of the total anhydrous ammonia produced in the United States in plants operated by or for the Department of the Army, said anhydrous ammonia to be distributed as directed by the Department of Commerce, which shall give preference, in distributing said anhydrous ammonia, to producers of ammonium sulphate who were producing ammonium sulphate during the six months preceding the enactment of this Act or who shall have ceased to produce, or shall be faced with an imminent shutdown in the production of, ammonium sulphate for want of anhydrous ammonia, to the extent necessary to permit such producers to operate. The Department of the Army is hereby authorized to produce and sell, in addition to its production for occupied areas, such nitrogenous fertilizer materials or nitrogenous compounds (including anhydrous ammonia) required for United States exports to nonoccupied areas or for the production of nitrogenous fertilizer materials for domestic use and to credit the pro-ceeds of such sales to the appropriation for Government and Relief in Occupied Areas to the extent of the cost of such production for such sales and any balance to miscellaneous receips of the Treasury."

And the Senate agree to the same.

The House agrees to the title of the bill as amended by the Senate.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection to the immediate consideration of the conference report?

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the report.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, I should like to have an explanation of the report.

Mr. BRIDGES. In general, let me say, that after many long hours of conferences extending over a period of days, the Senate conferees were able to reach an agreement with the House conferees. I think the agreement reached will be generally satisfactory to the Senate, because the major points in controversy, so far as the Senate is concerned, were settled along the lines of action taken by the Senate.

The total amount of the bill as finally agreed upon in conference, is $6,030,-710,228.

Mr. HAWKES. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. BRIDGES. Yes.

Mr. HAWKES. How does the figure $6,030,000,000 compare with the figure in the original Senate bill?

Mr. BRIDGES. The $6,030,710,228 is broken down as follows:

Four billion dollars for the Economic Cooperation Administration, which is the part which goes for economic recovery and relief in Europe.

Four hundred million dollars for China.

One billion three hundred million dollars for government and relief in the occupied areas, which include the recovery items for Japan, Korea, and the Ryukyus.

Two hundred and twenty-five million dollars for Greek-Turkish relief.

Thirty-five million dollars for the International Emergency Children's Fund. And there is $70,710,228 for the International Refugee Organization.

Making a total of $6,030,710,228

The total amount recommended by the conferees is $408,000,000 below the amount that was approved in the Senate

The final figure on all items is $503 .-000,000 under the amount authorized.

The amount for ECA is unchanged. It is $4,000,000,000. The conferees put it back on a 12-month basis, for all practical purposes.

I might say to the Senator that the main disagreement between the House and the Senate was on the time element; whether it should apply to a 15month period as the House voted, or a 12-month period as the Senate decided. We arrived at an agreement, finally, which makes the following provision:

The money is available "until June 30. which is the 15-month figure; "provided, that the entire amount may be appropriated for obligation or may be obligated and expended if the President, after recommendation by the Administrator, deems such action necessary to carry out the purposes of said act during the period ending April 2, 1949.

In other words, if the Administrator makes a recommendation and the President accepts the recommendation, the full amount may be available within the 12-month period, as was originally planned under the authorization act.

Mr. HAWKES. Has the distinguished Senator any doubt that the President and the Economic Administrator will make such a recommendation?

Mr. BRIDGES. I would assume, if the estimates and the recommendations and the testimony which were given before the committee were correct, that with the cuts which we have made, a reexamination or resurvey would probably result in a somewhat similar recommendation on the use of the fund.

Mr. HAWKES. I thank the Senator. Mr. VANDENBERG. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. BRIDGES. Yes; I am glad to yield to the Senator from Michigan.

Mr. VANDENBERG. Mr. President, I do not need to suggest to the Senate my deep interest in this report and the extent of my belief that it is fundamentally related to the peace of the earth and the destiny of free America in a free world of free men.

I do not even hesitate long enough to express dissent from any of the reductions made by the committee, because I want to say without reservation that I think the conferees have done a splendid piece of constructive work which maintains the full spirit of this great enter-

I want to express my own sense of personal gratitude, Mr. President, not only to the conferees in general, but particularly, and with emphasis, to the distinguished Senator from New Hampshire [Mr. BRIDGES], the chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee, for what I know has been his stalwart loyalty to a great ideal.

BRIDGES. Mr. President, I thank very much the distinguished Senator from Michigan, the chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee. I think that generally speaking we have met the objective of the Senate, and that the bill, as reported, will carry out the objectives which this country seeks.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. KNOWLAND in the chair). The question is on agreeing to the conference report. The report was agreed to.

STIMULATION OF PRODUCTION AND CON-SERVATION OF STRATEGIC AND CRITI-CAL ORES, METALS, AND MINERALS

Mr. BRIDGES. Mr. President, in this connection I should like to make a brief explanation of one of the items which we have considered, so that it will be clarified as a part of the report. I refer to the item relative to fertilizer.

The bill, as it now stands, would permit the Army to get the highest amount of production out of its fertilizer plants. The language in the report directs them to lease their plants to free enterprise wherever possible and to get out of costplus contracts as soon as feasible. The report is open to the interpretation that the Army cannot expand its facilities at all and such is not the intent of the committee. It is our intent that they shall let private enterprise make the investment for expansion in all possible instances. It seems reasonable that the expansion of the Army plant at Morgantown, W. Va., and the movement of fertilizer trains from the Missouri ordnance plant, where the Bureau of Mines is now experimenting on synthetic fuel, should be done out of such funds as are legally available to get the maximum fertilizer production. Otherwise, I think the report makes it very clear that the Members of this Congress want the Army to lease out facilities on a competitive basis and not to use Government funds for expenditures which private enterprise is willing to make on an investment basis.

In connection with these remarks, I submit a letter addressed to the chairman of the Appropriations Committee and ask that it be printed at this point in the Record.

There being no objection, the letter was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

JUNE 16, 1948.

Hon. STYLES BRIDGES. United States Senate.

DEAR SENATOR BRIDGES: Senator Morse's amendment requiring that a percentage of Army nitrogen production must be used to supply domestic needs, added to the previous requirement in Public Law 606 that the Army must meet 50 percent of the export requirements from the United States to nonoccupied countries, makes it even more critically necessary to increase production as rapidly as possible.

The Army accepts without reservation the decision of your committee that the Cactus plant should be promptly leased and that the lessee should bear the cost of the capital improvements to create increased capacity there. It is our understanding that passagraph 6 (p. 15) of your committee's report referred primarily to the Cactus plant.

There are two other plants, however, in which more production can be obtained promptly at relatively small capital cost. While we believe that the proposed statutory language of section 204, as the Senate passed it, would, standing alone, be sufficient to authorize us to proceed with such increased production in these plants, utilization of GARIOA funds for this purpose would not be in accordance with paragraph 6 (p. 15) of your committee's report, unless its wording is clarified. We request such clarifica-tion to permit the expenditure of a total of about $4,000,000 in connection with the Morgantown and Missouri ordnance plants.

The Morgantown, W. Va., plant requires relatively small modifications, estimated to cost only $750,000, which would bring its facilities into better balance and so step up production by about 15,000 tons of nitrogen per year. It would not be practical at this to lease this plant, and the added production can only be obtained promptly by utilization of Army funds.

At the Missouri ordnance plant, 60 percent of which is now being utilized by the Bureau of Mines, and which is not now an Army plant, there are two so-called trains which are not being utilized and which are capable of producing 24,000 tons of nitrogen per year. Because of lack of an assured gas supply at the present location, and also because of interference with the Bureau of Mines' program, it is necessary to move this equipment to a location at which an assured gas supply is available. The total estimated cost for this is $3,200,000. It is possible that such installation could later be leased, and we will do so if possible, but we cannot be assured of achieving the production promptly without being in a position to make the initial expenditure ourselves.

These two measures to step up production would decrease the severe deficit which the occupied areas will have because of the new demands which have recently been made upon its production. Such steps will save at least several times their cost, in avoiding exports of food which would otherwise be re-

If we could merely have some expression from the floor indicating that the course here proposed is acceptable to the Senate Appropriations Committee, we should feel free to proceed at once. Such expenditures have previously been discussed informally with the chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, who indicated that he was not opposed to such use.

We would, of course, still follow the policy set forth in paragraph 6 (p. 15) of your committee's report, of leasing these plants in appropriate cases in which it can be done with profit to the Government. The Department of the Army is in full accord with the policy expressed by the committee of having such plants, wherever it is practicable and profitable to do so, commercially operated under lease rather than under cost-plus contracts.

Sincerely yours, KENNETH C. ROYALL, Secretary of the Army.

Mr. RUSSELL. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. BRIDGES. I yield.

Mr. RUSSELL. Did I correctly understand the Senator from New Hampshire to say that the committee report recommended that the Army dispose of these plants?

Mr. BRIDGES. No; it recommended leasing them.

Mr. RUSSELL. Does the report make it quite clear that if they are leased they are still to be operated for the purpose of manufacturing fertilizer?

Mr. BRIDGES. It does, very clearly. That is the intent of the provision.

Mr. RUSSELL. I certainly want that statement in the RECORD.

LEGISLATIVE PROGRAM

Mr. BARKLEY. Mr. President, will the Senator from Nevada yield so that I may ask a question of the Senator from Ohio [Mr. TAFT] or the Senator from Nebraska [Mr. WHERRY]?

Mr. MALONE. Certainly. Mr. BARKLEY. Having adopted the conference report on the appropriation for foreign reconstruction and relief, what is there now awaiting action by the Senate, if anything, before the session is ended? Many Senators are interested. We have been in continuous session for 38 hours without intermission. In order that Senators may understand what is to be taken up between now and the time when we are supposed to adjourn, may I ask the Senator from Nebraska what the program is from now on?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair believes that all Senators will be interested in the explanation of the acting majority leader relative to the remainder of the program prior to adjournment.

Mr. WHERRY. Mr. President, will the Senator from Nevada yield to me?

Mr. MALONE. I yield.
Mr. WHERRY. I deeply appreciate the suggestion of the minority leader. I shall be glad to give Senators an idea of our present plans. We shall be glad to inform Members of the Senate as to the probable length of the session.

It is true that we have been in session for nearly 38 hours. I just had the Parliamentarian look up the record. The longest continuous session of the United States Senate was in 1915, I believe, in connection with a shipping bill. session ended on February 18, after 54 hours. We have already reached second place, and I am not ture how much longer we shall have to operate, but there are some things we shall have to do.

I appreciate the fine cooperation and the spirit which is being shown in getting our work done.

Mr. BARKLEY. Mr. President, I want the Senator to understand that I am not complaining about the length of this session.

Mr. WHERRY. I understand. Mr. BARKLEY. We are operating under the legislative day of June 15, which is 5 days ago; but my anatomy tells me that it is Sunday, the 20th of June. [Laughter.]

Mr. WHERRY. I think the Senator's anatomy is about right.

At this particular time, of course, the unfinished business is the motion made by the Senator from Nebraska to proceed to the consideration of Calendar No. 1801, Senate bill 2756, which motion is now being debated. We have had to break in on that debate several times to take up privileged matters.

We have just concluded action on the conference report on ECA. Shortly, I hope, we shall have before us action on the conference report on the second deficiency bill. I understand that the conferees have agreed. The report has gone to the House for consideration. As I understand, between 40 and 45 minutes are required to obtain a vote in the House. That conference report will be coming over here, I should say, within an hour.

There are also some other conferees working on other legislation. One such measure is the farm bill. I understand that some headway is being made on that measure, and that there is likely to be an agreement on some basis. We shall have to wait for that.

In the meantime, while we are debating and waiting for conference reports, several suggestions have been made by Members on both sides of the aisle as to bills which they would like to bring up for consideration at this time.

After Calendar No. 1801, Senate bill 2756, is disposed of, we have the civil transport aircraft legislation, Calendar No. 1507, Senate bill 2644, in which Members on both sides of the aisle are very much interested.

There is also Calendar No. 1480, Senate bill 2680, which should come up for consideration.

There is Calendar No. 1457, Senate bill 2754, which several Senators would like to bring up for consideration.

Mr. RUSSELL, Mr. President, can a Senator make a brief statement as to what the various bills involve?

Mr. WHERRY. I have only the figures. The civil transport aircraft bill is Calendar No. 1507.

The next calendar number is 1480. These are not in order. This is a list.

The next number is Calendar No. 1457. The next calendar number is 1436.

We passed Calendar No. 1421, Senate Joint Resolution 162, in which the senior and junior Senators from Washington were both interested.

We have passed Calendar No. 1340, Senate bill 2688.

Several Senators would like very much to have a vote on the equal-rights amendment, if we can possibly reach it before the session is concluded.

Also one or two Members would like to bring up, by unanimous consent, the antilynching bill which was recently reported.

Mr. BARKLEY. Mr. President, the Senator has already indicated enough business to prevent us from adjourning today.

Mr. WHERRY. I have great hopes of getting away today.

Mr. BARKLEY. There is a bill which has been on the calendar for some time. waiving the provisions of the law with respect to an appointment for Hon. Dean Acheson, who for a long time was Under Secretary of State. Is that on the list of bills?

Mr. WHERRY. It is not on the list I have.

Mr. TAFT. I think it is on the list. but it has been crossed out.

Mr. BARKLEY. Who crossed it out? Mr. WHERRY. Calendar No. 1436. House bill 5708 is the very bill. That is one of the requests which the minority leader made, and we wish to accommodate him if possible.

Mr. BARKLEY. What is contemplated with respect to an executive session?

Mr. WHERRY. I will say to the minority leader that we have not crossed that hurdle yet.

Mr. BARKLEY. We have not crossed these other hurdles either.

Mr. WHERRY. We did not wish to take up the Executive Calendar until we had reached conference reports which we are awaiting and got them out of the way, if possible, as well as much of the legislation to which I have referred.

I should not be a bit surprised if before this session is over the Executive Calendar will probably be called.

Mr. BARKLEY. The Senator would not be surprised if it is probably called? That is a very elusive statement.

Mr. WHERRY. I wanted to make it as elusive as I could. [Laughter.]

Mr. BARKLEY. The Senator will recall, I am sure, that day before yesterday when he asked unanimous consent that we call the calendar for consideration of executive nominations, with the exception of that of Frieda B. Hennock, who was nominated to be a member of the Federal Communications Commission, I agreed that the nomination might go over, with the understanding that there would be another call of the Executive Calendar.

Mr. WHERRY. I told the Senate that so far as I was concerned, I thought there would be another call of the Executive Calendar, but I could not guarantee it. But I am quite satisfied that if we take these hurdles as we go along, everything will work out satisfactorily.

Mr. BARKLEY. Then the Senator from Nebraska is willing to state that before the adjournment occurs, there will be another call of the Executive Calendar; is he?

Mr. WHERRY. I think before the work is concluded, there will be a call of the Executive Calendar.

BREWSTER. Mr. President, should like to associate myself with the suggestion of the minority leader, on be-half of the members of the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, who reported this nomination, and on behalf of my colleague, the Senator from Maine [Mr. WHITE], the chairman of the committee, who has discussed this matter with the acting majority leader and with others associated with it; and the committee indicated by its vote that it hoped this matter might receive the consideration of the Senate before the adjournment.

Do I correctly understand that it is settled that there will be an executive session? I simply felt that Senators should understand how we felt about this matter.

Mr. BARKLEY. I understand the Senator to mean favorable consideration.

Mr. BREWSTER. The committee voted 8 to 0. There were six Republicans in the list.

Mr. BARKLEY. I am delighted to find Republicans who were right.

Mr. BREWSTER. We hope there will be many more.

Mr. BARKLEY. I am happy to acknowledge that.

But it was a unanimous report of the committee, was it?

Mr. BREWSTER. There was one who voted "present," but at least he did not vote in the negative.

Mr. WHERRY. Mr. President, I am indebted to the minority leader for this opportunity to announce the program for the next few hours. If all of us just keep our sweet dispositions, I am quite satisfied that we shall adjourn before the time mentioned for the end of this session.

AVIATION LEGISLATION CONSIDERED BY INTERSTATE AND FOREIGN COMMERCE COMMITTEE

Mr. BREWSTER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to have printed at this point in the RECORD, as a part of my remarks, a summary of the aviation legislation considered by the Senate Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee in the Eightieth Congress, second session. It is a compilation prepared by me of the

There being no objection, the summary was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

AVIATION LEGISLATION CONSIDERED BY THE SENATE INTERSTATE AND FOREIGN COMMERCE COMMITTEE IN THE EIGHTIETH CONGRESS. SECOND SESSION

Attached hereto is a list of 15 bills which the Subcommittee on Aviation of the Senate Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee considered for action. Of these 15 bills, 12 have passed both the Senate and the House and have been signed by the President or are at the White House awaiting action. At this writing one of the bills, namely, S. 2644, to provide for the development of civil transport aircraft, has passed the House and is on the table of the Senate awaiting legislative action.

Half the bills referred to the White House by this Congress developed from the recommendations of the Congressional Aviation Policy Board of which the Senator from Maine was chairman and Congressman Carl Hin-

The work of the Senate Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee with regard to aviation may be viewed as a milestone in passing vital legislation necessary for the administration and regulation of the air-line industry as well as contributing greatly to the safety and certainty of air transportation. The aircraft manufacturing industry has been revitalized in behalf of national security by enacting into legislation recommendations of the Joint Congressional Aviation Policy Board.

While we, here in the Senate, may be justly proud of these accomplishments, I believe it is only fair and just to give due credit to the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee for their time and devotion to these same problems. I cannot overemphasize the cooperation that has been received from the House committee in passing this legislation.

The remaining recommendations of the Congressional Aviation Policy Board will be in order for consideration at the next session

PRODUCTION AND CONSERVATION OF STRATEGIC AND CRITICAL ORES, METALS, AND MINERALS

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senate now recurs to the motion of the Senator from Nebraska [Mr. WHERRY] that the Senate proceed to the consideration of Senate bill 2756, to stimulate the pro-duction and conservation of strategic and critical ores, metals, and minerals in the interest of national defense and for the establishment within the Department of the Interior of a Mine Incentive Payments Division, and for other purposes.

Mr. KEM. Mr. President, the letter I read from Secretary Krug, addressed to Mr. Welch, chairman of the House Committee on Public Lands, under date of May 26, 1948, made certain criticisms of House bill 6623, pending in the House, which has the same caption as this Senate bill.

As I understand the Senator from Nevada, the House bill and the Senate bill differ in certain material respects.

Mr. MALONE. They differ in vital respects.

Mr. KEM. Then I ask the Senator if in his opinion the Senate bill meets the criticism made in Secretary Krug's

Mr. MALONE. I think it does. Certainly it meets the suggestion of the letter from Secretary Krug which I read.

Mr. President, let me make an observa-This is not to be taken as in any way derogatory of any public official, but I must say that the letter just put into the RECORD by the Senator from Missouri is full of excuses and groundless objections and is a remarkable illustration of the lengths to which resort may be had in presenting a myriad of unsound excuses in an attempt to defeat a vital proposal.

In this connection, Mr. President, let me read from an article appearing in the United States News and World Report for April 9, 1948:

Only way to insure large enough future supplies of these and certain other minerals and fibers is through stock piling.

It already has mentioned tungsten, tin, lead, copper, cobalt, and others. Everything is included except rubber, in this bill

I read further from the article:

A big stock-piling program approved by Congress in July 1946, has been falling behind schedule from the start.

Mr. President, I shall undertake, briefly, to demonstrate the correctness of that statement. I shall not attempt to read statistics, because it would be tiresome at this time of night, but the chief reason for stock piling falling behind is shown on page 6479 of the Con-gressional Record of May 26, at which time I introduced this bill at the request of nine other Senators.

Much has been said about lead. In 1938, 369,726 tons were produced in the United States, and we imported 112,371 tons. In 1947, 10 years later, 346,210 tons were produced in the United States, a considerably less amount than in 1938. Almost twice the 1938 amount was imported, or 211,773 tons. I could go on. The entire record is exactly to the same effect. It is a failing program, because the mines cannot operate to produce an adequate supply of minerals, with inflation and increased costs of production of minerals, in competition with the lowcost labor of Asia and Europe, where these minerals can be obtained. As I say, Mr. President, I have no time to go into all the figures, and I would not tire the Senate with it tonight. We find here the record of chrome and manganese coming from Russia. There are other potential foreign sources of chrome and manganese. It can also be obtained here, but it is not profitable to pay $9 a day to a miner in the United States, in competition with the 40 cents a day a Chinese receives. I know nothing of the details, but the President says there is an emergency impending. He asked for the draft, and we have only today finally agreed upon a draft bill. We voted a 70-group air program, to cost nearly $17,000,000,000, though there is nothing in the stock pile with which to build the planes. I shall read another paragraph. Mr. KEM. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. MALONE. Yes; I am happy to yield to my distinguished colleague from Missouri

Mr. KEM. I understand the position of the Senator from Nevada is that the premium-price plan might increase domestic production of these critical minerals.

Mr. MALONE. It certainly is, and if the Senator will bear with me a minute, I will get into that. I regret taking the time of the Senate.

Mr. KEM. I would ask the Senator to direct his attention to this point before he completes his remarks: If the premium-price plan is so efficacious in increasing production, why is it that production increased as soon as the premium-price plan terminated?

Mr. MALONE. Production increased in the larger mines. No new materials are being discovered. As a matter of fact, I just read the figures of production over the last 10 years, also figures showing increased imports. As a matter of fact, over the years, increased production has not resulted from the termination of the premium-price plan.

From the article in United States News and World Report, referred to previously, I quote further:

Schedules called for delivery of about 40 percent of the total amount of materials involved by June 1948. Actually, only about 20 percent will be on hand. In some important materials, the amount obtained is only 5 percent of the amount required. Details of stocks and buying plans are guarded secrets. Stock piles now are stored at 55 military reservations.

I shall read only one short paragraph from Mr. Webb's letter. It seems we have quoted nearly everyone tonight, and I shall not bore Senators by reading the whole letter. In a letter dated June 3, 1948, and referring to the House bill, Mr. Webb says, among other things:

You are further advised that there would be no objection to the submission to Congress, for its consideration, of draft legislation in respect to exploration payments.

Mr. KEM. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. MALONE. I yield.

Mr. KEM. Does the letter refer to the House bill, which the Senator says differs in material respects from the Senate bill?

Mr. MALONE. It refers to the same

Mr. KEM. It refers to the House bill, and not to the bill now under consideration

Mr. MALONE. Yes. Of course, it does not apply at all to the pending bill.

Now, Mr. President, I shall read a resolution that has been adopted by practically every mining organization in the United States. In the resolution it is stated:

That the production of minerals is preeminent in insuring our national safety and well being, and that present conditions warrant an incentive program designed to foster exploration for the development of resources and to provide incentives to the marginal segment of the mining industry.

All western mine organizations, as well as middle-western, southern, and eastern organizations, with the exception of American Lead Industry Association, have adopted similar resolutions.

I have one more quotation, which is from Mr. Hill, of the National Resources Board. Senators will remember Mr. Hill from last year, when, in consolidating the military forces, we created the National Resources Board. Mr. Arthur Hill has since become chairman and is building up the organization. I called him, had a conversation, and very carefully asked if he could be quoted. This is what he said:

The Board approves legislation which will provide for incentive payments to stimulate the production of strategic and critical materials

There are various reasons why he could not write a long letter of detailed instructions to anyone; one of the reasons being that the President was not here, and Mr. Hill works directly under the President.

Mr. KEM. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. MALONE. I am very happy to yield to my distinguished friend.

Mr. KEM. Has the Senator completed the reading of the statement Mr. Hill made to him?

Mr. MALONE. I read all I intended to read, but if the Senator wants the rest of it read, I shall read it. I have it here.

Mr. KEM. The Senator need not read it all. I will ask the Senator if Mr. Hill's statement contained, at the end, this sentence: "The Board at present is not in a position to approve legislation which provides for the payment of premiums on current production"?

Mr. MALONE. He told me he was not in position to approve any legislation. I shall come to that however.

Mr. KEM. I ask the Senator, first, does the Malone bill now under consideration provide for the payment of premiums on current production?

Mr. MALONE. It does provide a payment on current production, but it is very carefully guarded, as the Senator will notice. I may say it is very carefully guarded by the wording that there is an opportunity to make a reasonable profit, but there is no guaranty. But after the Board's deduction of 2 cents a pound, which is guaranteed to go into development and for which receipts must be tendered to supervisors of the Department before payment is made they can further reduce the price. It is doubly guarded.

Mr. KEM. If I understand the Senator correctly, Mr. Hill, in his conversation with the Senator, indicated disapproval of the Senator's bill.

Mr. MALONE. He did not at all indicate disapproval of the bill. He said he was not in position to analyze any bill. I would ask the distinguished Senator from Missouri whether he, at this late hour, is going to take the word of every Government official as to how to produce minerals? As a matter of fact, the one we are now quoting has had no experience in mining.

I think the record speaks for itself. The stock piles are low; everything is gone. We are, perhaps, about to get into war for the third time, I may say to the distinguished Senator from Missouri and if we do not produce some materials, we shall murder our youths a third time as we murdered them twice before.

Mr. KEM. I understood the Senator to refer to Mr. Hill as an authority on the subject.

Mr. MALONE. Then you misunderstood me. I referred to him as a man holding a very powerful position, but not possessing a profound knowledge of mining and mining problems.

Mr. KEM. Mr. President, without pressing the point further, I should like to ask the Senator from Nevada if this language was not used:

The Board presently is not in a position to approve legislation which provides for the payment of premiums-

Mr. MALONE. No; he did not use that language. He used the language which I read. He said that was as far as he could go without further consultation, and he had not reviewed the bill.

I refer the Senator to a 30 years' record of empty stock piles, and two wars, without anything to fight with.

I want to read just one more thing, and then I am through. It is unbelievable, to me, that this Congress could adjourn without some legislation, after we have appropriated fifteen or sixteen billion dollars on military and naval preparedness, and when the President says an emergency is coming up. We hear hints that there will be a special session because of an emergency, practically before we reach home. I, for one, after voting for the draft bill and for the 70 air-group force, want some legislation along this line. I have seen boys go into action without equipment. I have seen them, at Port Moresby and in New Guinea, soar aloft to drop their bombs. We knew some of them would not come back, but we did not know which ones. I was with General Kenny. He was trying to keep 50 percent of the airplanes ready to fly. Thirty percent is a good We are arguing tonight about record. $80,000,000. We have several amendments to offer. If I had succeeded in getting the floor first I was going to offer an amendment to cut the amount to $60000,000 annually for 3 years, or maybe 2 years. The important consideration is to get the program started. Here we are, in the same position for the third time, with an emergency confronting us, nothing to fight with, and talking big to every nation in the world. To me it is unbelievable that we cannot take a position tonight, instead of haggling over whether we are going to pay a stenographer $125 or $235.

I want to read a short article with refference to chromium:

Chromium is another essential material coming from Soviet Russia. American in-dustry has enough chromium for 5 months, at current rates of consumption. The Munitions Board has a stock pile. Chromium is required for hard steels for oil drills, chemical plants, armor plate.

The United States imported 466,290 tons of metallurgical-grade chromite in 1947. Russia provided 47½ percent of that. About 13 percent came from Turkey.

Mr. President, I wanted to offer some amendments, but I should like to make this closing statement. The stock piles are nearly empty. We have made provision for a 70 air group, and for a draft army. We should not go home without having done something to stimulate domestic production of minerals. We hear reports that there are more and better submarines in the hands of Russia, nearly twice or three times as many as Germany had when the world war started. If we do not pass this legislation, the blood is on our own hands.

Mr. McFARLAND. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. MALONE. I yield. Mr. McFARLAND. I want to compliment the Senator from Nevada for his splendid statement. I hope the bill may be speedily enacted into law.

Mr. MALONE. I thank the Senator. I will say to my distinguished colleague from Arizona that if I had the time I should be glad to discuss each strategic mineral, but time does not permit. I say to my colleague from Arizona, and to my other colleagues on the Senate floor, that if we do not have production in the next few months, there will be a stringent rationing of metals.

Mr. MILLIKIN. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. MALONE. I yield. Mr. MILLIKIN. I should like to ask the distinguished Senator from Nevada a few questions regarding the bill.

The distinguished Senator from Missouri [Mr. KEM] seemed to believe that it is possible, under this bill, to multiply several times the $80,000,000 which is authorized. Without disrespect to him, I could not follow his argument. Is it not the intention of the distinguished Senator from Nevada, by the language in italics, commencing on line 22, page 9, and running through line 3, on page 10, to make it completely clear that both expenditure and committal cannot exceed, in the aggregate, $80,000,000?

Mr. MALONE. I will say to my distinguished colleague from Colorado that we at first had it worded that disbursements authorized by the bill should be made by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and should not exceed $80,-000,000 in any one year. In committee we spent 4 hours trying to iron out all difficulties. The chairman was the distinguished Senator from Colorado. We thought we could make it doubly clear by reinforcing it and adding the words "nor shall any commitment be made by any officer or employee," and so forth. We wanted to make it doubly clear.

Mr. MILLIKIN. Did not the language in italics result from the suggestion that they can disburse a lot of money, but, at the same time, they can also be obligating a lot of money, and was it not the intention by the language used in sec tion 7 (a) that disbursements and obligations should not exceed $80,000,000?

Mr. MALONE. That is correct. Mr. MILLIKIN. Except for the administrative expense, is there any authorization for the expenditure of any additional money?

Mr. MALONE. There is not, to my knowledge. If we could make it more air-tight, we would do it in a minute.

Mr. MILLIKIN. Will the distinguished Senator offer an amendment which will identify the source of the money for the payment of administrative expense, assuming that the motion to consider the bill is accepted and that we enter upon the consideration of the bill.

Mr. MALONE. Yes. We have amendments prepared for that very purpose, and it was the intention to offer amendments at the appropriate time.

Mr. MILLIKIN. Is it the Senator's intention, responsive to the suggestion of several Senators, that the amount of $80,000,000 a year be reduced to $60,000,-000 a year?

Mr. MALONE. That is absolutely

Mr. MILLIKIN. And an amendment will be offered to that effect?

Mr. MALONE. An amendment will be offered to that effect.

Mr. MILLIKIN. Is it also true that an amendment will be offered reducing the expiration of the term from June 30, 1952, to June 30, 1951? Mr. MALONE. That is true. Such an amendment has already been prepared.

Mr. MILLIKIN. Is it the Senator's intention to offer an amendment, if the motion to consider is adopted, striking out the words "exploration payments shall be made at the discretion of the Director in amounts and on products approved by him under rules as presented in section 3 (c)"?

Mr. MALONE. That has already been

Mr. MILLIKIN. That, I take it, is pursuant to the suggestion which has been made that we might give the Director additional authority over the specific directions which are given to him in the act. Is that correct?

Mr. MALONE. That was the sense of the conversation.

Mr. MILLIKIN. And that is by way of further emphasis?

Mr. MALONE. Yes.

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE

A message from the House of Representatives, by Mr. Maurer, one of its reading clerks, announced that the House had passed, without amendment, the joint resolution (S. J. Res. 219) to continue until March 1, 1949, the authority of the United States Maritime Commission to make provision for certain ocean transportation service to, from, and within Alaska

The message also announced that the House had agreed to the report of the committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H. R. 6935) making appropriations to supply deficiencies in certain appropriations for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1948, and for other purposes, and that the House insisted upon its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate No. 25 to the hill

The message further announced that the House had agreed to the report of the committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendment of the House to the bill (S. 1322) to provide a Federal charter for the Commodity Credit Corporation.

The message also announced that the House had agreed to the report of the committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendment of the Senate to the bill (H. R. 6527) to provide assistance to certain local school agencies overburdened with war-incurred, or postwar national defense incurred, enrollments.

ENROLLED BILLS SIGNED

The message further announced that the Speaker had affixed his signature to the following enrolled bills, and they were signed by the President pro tempore:

H. R. 2729. An act for the relief of the legal guardian of Rose Mary Ammirato, a minor;

H. R. 4856. An act to delay the liquidation of mineral interests reserved to the United States as required by the Farmers' Home Administration Act of 1946, and for other

H. R. 6412. An act to codify and enact into law title 3 of the United States Code entitled "The President."

SECOND DEFICIENCY APPROPRIATIONS-CONFERENCE REPORT

Mr. BRIDGES. I submit a conference report on House bill 6935, making appropriations to supply deficiencies in certain appropriations for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1948, and for other purposes, and I ask unanimous consent for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The conference report will be read.

The conference report was read, as follows:

The committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H. R. 6935) making appropriations to supply deficiencies in certain appropriations for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1948, and for other purposes, having met, after full and free conference, have agreed to recommend and do recommend to their respective Houses as follows:

That the Senate recede from its amendments numbered 2, 17, 29, 40, 50, 51, 58, 74, 75, 85, and 86.

That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendments of the Senate numbered 1, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 15, 19, 20, 21, 22, 24, 27, 30, 32, 33, 35, 36, 37, 38, 39, 43, 44, 45, 48, 52, 53, 55, 57, 59, 61, 63, 64, 65, 67, 68, 70, 71, 72, 73, 76, 77, 78, 79, 80, 82, and 83, and agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 14: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 14, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: After the citation "(5 U. S. C. 55a)", appearing in the matter inserted by said amendment, strike out the following: "deposits in the Treasury for penalty mail (39 U. S. C. 321d)"; and in lieu of the sum of "$3,500,000" named in said amendment, insert the following: "$2,000,000"; and the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 16: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 16, and agree to the same with an amendment, as follows: In lieu of the matter inserted by said amendment, insert the following:

"National Institute of Health, operating

"National Institute of Health, operating expenses: For an additional amount, fiscal year 1949, for 'National Institute of Health, operating expenses', $500,000: Provided, That appropriations under said head for the fiscal year 1949 shall be available for carrying out the purposes of the National Heart Act, including erection of temporary structures for storage of equipment and supplies and housing of animals."

And the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 18: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 18, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: In lieu of the sum of "$2,000,000" named in said amendment, insert the following "$1,000,000"; and the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 23: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 23, and agree to the same with an amendment, as follows: Before the words "passenger motor vehicles" in said amendment, strike out the word "ten" and insert the following: "five"; and in lieu of the sum of "$10,000,000" named twice in said amendment insert in each instance the following: "$5,000,000"; and the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 26: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 26, and agree to the same with an amendment, as follows: In lieu of the sum of "$5,000,000" named in said amendment, insert the following: "$3,000,000"; and in lieu of the sum of "$200,-000" named in said amendment, insert the following: "$100,000"; and the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 28: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 28, and agree to the same with an amendment, as follows: In lieu of the sum of "$2,000,000" named in said amendment, insert the following: "$1,000,000"; and the Senate agree to the same.

"SELECTIVE SERVICE SYSTEM

"Salaries and expenses: For expenses necessary, fiscal year 1949, to carry out the provisions of H. R. 6401 or S. 2655, Eightleth Congress, establishing the Selective Service System, including personal services in the District of Columbia; not to exceed $5,000 for expenses of attendance at meetings of organizations concerned with the purposes of this appropriation when specifically authorized by the Director; purchase (not to exceed 94) of passenger motor vehicles; printing and binding; services as authorized by section 15 of the Act of August 2, 1946 (5 U. S. C. 55a); payment of claims pursuant to section 403 of the Federal Tort Claims Act (28 U. S. C. 921); and purchase of typewriters; $25,000,000: Provided, That this paragraph shall be effective only upon the enactment into law of either H. R. 6401 or S. 2655, Eightieth Congress."

And the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 34: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 34, and agree to the same with an amendment, as follows: After the word "available" where it appears in said amendment, insert the following: "until June 30, 1949"; and the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 42: That the House

Amendment numbered 42: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 42, and agree to the same with an amendment, as follows: In lieu of the sum proposed by said amendment, insert the following: "$425,000"; and the Senate agree to the same

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection to the immediate consideration of the conference report?

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the report.

Mr. BRIDGES. Mr. President, I move that the report be agreed to.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the conference report.

The report was agreed to.

The PRESIDING OFFICER laid before the Senate a message from the House of Representatives announcing its action on certain amendments of the Senate to House bill 6935, which was read as follows:

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES, U. S., June 19, 1948.

Resolved, That the House insist upon its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 25 to the bill (H. R. 6935) making appropriations to supply deficiencies in certain appropriations for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1948, and for other purposes.

Mr. BRIDGES. I move that the Senate recede from amendment No. 25.

The amount involved in the item was about $35,000,000. The Senate insisted. and after long hours the House conferees refused to agree, and the item remained in disagreement. The House conferees took the matter to the floor of the House, and they had two votes on it, in both instances refusing to agree to the amendment. So I think the only thing left is for the Senate to recede.

Mr. MAGNUSON. What was the House figure?

Mr. BRIDGES . On the House vote? Mr. MAGNUSON. No, the amount.

Mr. BRIDGES. An item of $35,000,-000, which the Senate inserted, was in dispute.

MAGNUSON. Mr. The House

knocked it all out?
Mr. BRIDGES. Yes. They refused to appropriate anything for this item.

Mr. MAGNUSON. Refused anything for the Pacific Northwest.

Mr. BRIDGES. There were several other items in the bill for flood relief. All the other items, like the provision for loans to farmers, the Coast Guard item, and provision for improvements on the Columbia River, four or five separate items having to do with relief from floods, were agreed to. The only one rejected was this amendment 25, which provided grants to local agencies for public works.

Mr. MORSE. Mr. President, I wish to say that I deeply appreciate the fine work the Senator from New Hampshire and the Senate conferees did in insisting upon this item. I looked into this matter. I discussed it with my senior colleague, and there is no question that the record is perfectly clear that, so far as the Senate side is concerned, everything possible was done to save the item, and the responsibility is very clear on the face of things. It is going to be shocking news to the people of Washington and Oregon, of course, but I sincerely trust and hope that when we reconvene we will have additional facts available which I am sure will, if the House will give the consideration which the facts warrant, convince the House that an appropriation should be made.

Mr. MAGNUSON. Mr. President, like the Senator from Oregon, I am greatly shocked at the fact that this appropriation was stricken from the bill. I appreciate the position of the Senator from New Hampshire who insisted on the amendment, and of course there are some other amendments in the bill which give us some relief. I appreciate his work. Like the Senator from Oregon, we had hoped we would get the full amount. So long as the House position is what it is, I merely want the Record to show what they did.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. question is on the motion to recede from amendment 25

The motion was agreed to.

STIMULATION OF PRODUCTION AND CON-SERVATION OF STRATEGIC AND CRIT-ICAL ORES, METALS, AND MINERALS

The Senate resumed the consideration of the bill (S. 2756) to stimulate the production and conservation of strategic and critical ores, metals, and minerals in the interest of national defense.

Mr. MILLIKIN. Mr. President, I notice on page 2 the statement of purposes seems to override the subsequent contents of the bill. I refer to the language commencing on line 10, page 2. I quote:

To coordinate the programs now provided for or to be provided for by law for making scientific, technologic, and economic investigations concerning the extent and mode of occurrence; the development, mining preparation, treatment, and utilization of and other mineral substances found in the United States or its Territories or insular possessions which are essential to the common defense or the industrial needs of the United States; and to stimulate the commercial extraction and production of the same.

I remind the distinguished Senator from Nevada that that particular statement of purposes is not implemented in the later provisions of the bill, and might be confusing, and I am delighted to know that the Senator will later accept an amendment to strike out that provision.

Mr. MALONE. In earlier conversation we had arranged to offer an amendment to strike out beginning at line 7 to the end of the paragraph.

Mr. KEM. Mr. President, will the Senator yield? Mr. MALONE. I yield.

Mr. KEM. I should like to ask the Senator from Nevada what he estimates will be the annual cost of the bill as now drawn. Not as it will be subsequently amended, but as now before the Senate. What will be the annual cost of the bill, in his opinion, as now before the Senate?

Mr. MALONE. We have an amendment drawn to cover that. We estimated $350,000 annually.

Mr. KEM. Three hundred and fifty thousand dollars annually?

Mr. MALONE. That would be a maximum for administrative cost

Mr. KEM. I did not ask the Senator The Senator failed to understand my question. And then I think he failed to answer it as he understood it.

Mr. MALONE. I beg pardon. I am answering it as I understood it, and I want that distinctly understood. I thought we had already covered it, and I am happy to listen to the Senator if he has another question.

Mr. KEM. I think the Senator understood my question: What will be the cost of the bill as amended? I did not ask him about the cost of administrative expenses. I asked him what the total overall cost to the Government would be per annum of the bill now pending before the Senate.

Mr. MALONE. The over-all cost, including the stock-pile cost, by this bill is $80,000,000 per year.

Mr. KEM. If that is so, I should like to ask the Senator what amount of money he figures will be necessary to do thisand I refer to page 8 of the bill:

All additional ores, metals, and minerals or the equivalent thereof resulting from incentive payments and which comply with Munitions Board minimum stock-pile specifications shall be purchased by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Section 7 of the bill provides for dis-bursements for exploration and development and conservation payments, not to exceed $80,000,000 a year.

Now, I should like to ask the Senator at what amount he estimates the cost of the additional ores, metals, and minerals that are to be purchased as the result of these incentive payments?

Mr. MALONE, I should be very happy to explain the bill to the distinguished Senator from Missouri. As a matter of fact, I offered to do it today. Under the Stock-Piling Act of 1946, there is remaining $660,000,000, and we have a stock pile as low as 5 percent on some of the minerals. It will be impossible to secure the needed minerals either from foreign sources or domestic sources. The stock pile is practically bare. If we could buy the ores at the current market price, the $660,000,000 would pay for all of the materials contemplated by the original 1946 bill. But all of the evidence-and I have much evidence here that I will not bother to go into, newspaper clippings and letters-shows that all the public officials are on record to the effect that the ores are not available. So the $80 .-000,000 asked for is to be used to pay the additional premium price which will induce the production of the additional ore. and that is in addition to the price that would be normally paid, but at which the minerals needed cannot be found.

Mr. KEM. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. MALONE. Yes.

Mr. KEM. How can the Senator estimate the amount of metals and ores that will be produced in any 1 year as a result of these incentive payments?

Mr. MALONE. That is impossible, of course, and the Senator should know that. But we would know within a year or two; and the appropriation is limited to the $80,000,000, so the Government cannot be hurt. Furthermore, no money is expended by the Government whatever until the ore is mined and offered to the Government.

Mr. MILLIKIN. Mr. President, will the Senator yield.

Mr. MALONE. I yield. Mr. MILLIKIN. I hope the Senator will emphasize that feature again; that no money is paid except for the delivery of ore resulting from the program provided and initiated under this bill.

Mr. MALONE. That is absolutely true. Furthermore, no producer need come under this bill unless by his own

Mr. KEM. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. MALONE. I yield.

Mr. KEM. I cannot follow the suggestion that the limitation of $80,000,000 a year is a limitation on the language at the middle of page 8. If the Members of the Senate will refer to the bill on their desks

Mr. MALONE. I will be happy to yield for a question. I am on my own time now.

Mr. KEM. Yes. I am trying to frame my question. At the middle of page 8 we find this language:

All additional ores, metals, and minerals or the equivalent thereof resulting from inme equivalent thereof resisting from in-centive payments and which comply with Munitions Board minimum steckpile speci-fications shall be purchased by the Recon-struction Finance Corporation.

My question is: Is it not true that by the language on page 8, the RFC is directed to purchase all the ores, metals, and minerals resulting from incentive payments?

Mr. MILLIKIN. All the additional

Mr. KEM. Yes, all the additional ores. And is it not true that the limitation on page 9 is, "All disbursements for exploration and development and conservation payments"? In other words, is it not true that the language on page 8 applies to the purchase of these additional ores, metals and minerals; that is the acquisition of titles to them: whereas, section 7 on page 9, in which the limitation of $80,000,000 appears, is an entirely different thing, namely, "disbursements for exploration and development and conservation"?

Mr. MILLIKIN. Mr. President, will

the Senator yield?

Mr. KEM. I shall be happy to yield to the Senator from Colorado.

Mr. MILLIKIN. I see no conflict at all. The paragraph to which the distinguished Senator refers in the middle of page 8 states that "all additional ores," that is, those ores which result from this incentive program, shall be purchased by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. That is a mandate to purchase. There is another half of the proposition. They have to have authority to pay for what they buy, and that is found in section 7. One is an authority to purchase; the other an offer to pay.

Mr. KEM. I will ask the able and distinguished Senator if section 7 does not specifically say "disbursements for exploration and development and conservation payments." whereas section (b) on page 8 says ores and metals shall be purchased? In other words, is there not a distinction between the purchase and acquisition of a title to these ores and metals and the disbursement of the incentive payments?

Mr. MILLIKIN. I think I have already answered the Senator to the best of my ability. One is a mandate to buy. The other that payment is to be made.

Mr. KEM. Where does the Senator find any limitation on the amount to be paid in acquiring title to the minerals?

Mr. MILLIKIN. In section 7. We will go through it again: "All disbursements for exploration and development and conservation payments", and there are no other kinds provided in the act.

Mr. KEM. The acquisition of title is provided for in the bill.

Mr. MILLIKIN. That is what is paid for.

Mr. KEM. Oh, no.

Mr. MILLIKIN. That is why the disbursement is made.

Mr. KEM. No, the "disbursements for exploration and development and conservation payment" in the bill are a bonus, they are something for nothing. The Government does not get anything for them. They are premiums. are bonuses. What I am asking the Senator about is the purchase price for the ores and metals which are acquired.

Mr. MILLIKIN. There is a definite formula for the purchase price which the Senator will observe on page 7. It is a very definite formula for the purchase price.

Mr. KEM. Where is it?

Mr. MILLIKIN. I shall quote. I read from page 7:

Section 6 (a). Exploration, development, and conservation payments for any particu-lar metals or minerals shall be in addition to the amount received per unit from other sources by the producer.

Mr. KEM. Well-

Mr. MILLIKIN. Be patient, please. I respectfully suggest and with great respect, that the Senator has turned this into a subject of complete confusion. I am not the author of this language. I have no author's pride in it. It seems to me to be clear as a bell. But since the Senator finished with it and left it in complete confusion, I would now like the privilege of trying to untangle it, which the Senator would not afford me when he was making his own speech.

Section 6 (a). Exploration, development, and conservation payments for any particular metals or minerals shall be in addition to the amount received per unit from other sources by the producer of the metal or

That is the extra he gets.

The sum of such payments per unit of production-

That is all he is going to get-

The sum of such payments per unit of production shall not exceed the difference between the current market price and (1) in the case of metals produced under the premium-price plan, an amount equal to the highest market price plus the production premiums-

And so forth. It sets out a complete formula of price to be paid. That is the answer to the Senator's question. That is the question he asked me. It is per-fectly clear in the bill. I challenge the Senator to show any place in the bill where there is any authority to spend more than $80,000,000 altogether, with the exception of administrative expense-for actual disbursements plus obligations, if any are made.

Mr. KEM. Mr. President, will not the Senator admit that there is a distinction between disbursements for exploration and development and conservation and disbursements for the purpose of acquiring title to ores and metals?

Mr. MILLIKIN. Of course there is a distinction between paying and acquiring title. Title is acquired and then it is paid for.

Mr. KEM. Will not the Senator admit that the limitation of $80,000,000 in any 1 year appearing in section 7 is distinctly a limitation on disbursements for exploration and development and conservation payments and in no manner refers to a limitation on disbursements for the acquisition of title?

Mr. MILLIKIN. Let us go back again to the middle of page 8. What are we talking about there?

All additional ores, metals, and minerals, or the equivalent thereof resulting from incentive payments-

That means put the plant in operation, and those ores which result from the operation of the plant, which is to say, the additional ores, are the ores which shall be produced. They have been produced. How are we going to pay for them? Section 7 (a) tells how they are to be paid for.

Mr. KEM. That is not what I asked the Senator. The Senator is pointing out something entirely different from what I asked him.

Mr. MALONE. Mr. President, may I answer the question?

Mr. KEM. Let me make myself clear.

Mr. MALONE. Certainly.

Mr. KEM. It is evident that I failed to make myself clear. What I am asking the Senator is this: Is there any limitation on the amounts that may be paid for purchase of ores and metals, and if so, where is the language to be found? Let me say that I am not at all impressed by the Senator's citation of section 7 (a), because that applies to the premium payments. That applies to disbursements for exploration and development and conservation, and does not apply in any respect to the disbursements by way of purchase price of the ores and metals.

Mr. MALONE. Mr. President, if I may interrupt the Senator from Colorado for a moment, I believe I can clear this up for the Senator from Missouri, because I am not sure that he has had time to explore the entire bill. If he will turn to page 5, starting about line 11 or 12, he will find the limitation provided for exploration payments. This bill provides only for the payment of exploration payments in this connection. So it specifically sets out that it is paying for exploration payments. Then it goes over to what the Senator from Colorado has pointed out, in paragraph 7, which relates to the 7 cent, 6 cent, and 5 cent payments. As production goes up the amounts go down. Then after that paragraph the distinguished Senator from Colorado has pointed out the connection.

Mr. KEM. Mr. President-

Mr. MALONE. Mr. President. I have the floor. I am happy to yield to the Senator from Missouri.

Mr. KEM. I desire the floor in my own right.

Mr. MALONE. Mr. President, I relinquish the floor.

Mr. WILLIAMS. Mr. President, in discussing strategic critical materials I read from an article from Dun's Review, this month's issue, which has this to say about the subject

FEDERAL CHARTER FOR COMMODITY CORPORATION—CONFERENCE CREDIT REPORT

Mr. AIKEN. Mr. President, will the Senator yield for a conference report? Mr. WILLIAMS. I yield.

Mr. AIKEN. Mr. President, I submit the conference report on Senate bill 1322, the Commodity Credit Corporation Charter Act.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The report will be read for the information of the Senate.

The Chief Clerk read the report, as follows:

The committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendment of the House to the bill (S. 1322) to provide a Federal charter for the Commodity Credit Corporation having met, after full and free conference, have agreed to recommend and do recommend to their respective Houses as follows:

ommend and do recommend to their respective Houses as follows:

That the Senate recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the House and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: In lieu of the matter proposed to be inserted by the House amendment insert the following:

"That this Act may be cited as the 'Commodity Credit Corporation Charter Act.'

"SEC. 2. Creation and purposes: For the purpose of stabilizing, supporting, and protecting farm income and prices, of assisting in the maintenance of balanced and adequate supplies of agricultural commodities, products thereof, foods, feeds, and fibers (hereinafter collectively referred to as 'agricultural commodities'), and of facilitating the orderly distribution of agricultural commodities, there is hereby created a body corporate to be known as Commodity Credit Corporation (hereinafter referred to as the 'Corporation'), which shall be an agency and instrumentality of the United States within the Department of Agriculture, subject to the general direction and control of its Board of Directors.

"SEC. 3. Offices: The Corporation may establish offices in such place or places as it may deem necessary or desirable in the conduct of its business.

"Sec. 4. General powers: The Corpora-

"(a) Shall have succession in its corporate name.

"(b) May adopt, alter, and use a corporate seal, which shall be judicially noticed.
"(c) May sue and be sued, but no attachment, injunction, garnishment, or other similar process, mesne or final, shall be issued against the Corporation or its property. The district courts of the United States, including the district courts of the District of Columbia and of any Territory or possession, shall have exclusive original jurisdiction of all suits brought by or against the Corporation: Provided, That the Corporation may intervene in any court in any suit, action, or proceeding in which it has an interest. Any suit against the Corporation shall be brought in the District of Columbia, or in the district wherein the plaintiff resides or is engaged in business. No suit by or against the Corporation shall be allowed unless it shall have been brought within four years after the right accrued on which suit is brought. All suits against the Corporation shall be tried by the court without a jury. Notwithstanding any other provision of this Act, the Federal Tort Claims Act (Public Law 601, Seventy-ninth Congress) shall be applicable to the Corporation. Any suit by or against the United States as the real party in interest based upon any claim by or against the Corporation shall be subject to the provisions of this subsection (c) to the same extent as though such suit were by or against the Corporation.

"(d) May adopt, amend, and repeal bylaws, rules, and regulations governing the manner in which its business may be conducted and the powers vested in it may be exercised.

"(e) Shall have all the rights, privileges, and immunities of the United States with respect to the right to priority of payment with respect to debts due from insolvent, deceased, or bankrupt debtors. The Corporation may assert such rights, privileges, and immunities in any suit, action, or proceeding.

"(f) Shall be entitled to the use of the United States mails in the same manner and upon the same conditions as the executive departments of the Federal Government.

departments of the Federal Government.

"(g) May enter into and carry out such contracts or agreements as are necessary in the conduct of its business. State and local regulatory laws or rules shall not be applicable with respect to contracts or agreements of the Corporation or the parties thereto to the extent that such contracts or agreements provide that such laws or rules shall not be applicable, or to the extent that such laws or rules are inconsistent with such contracts or agreements.

"(h) May contract for the use, in accordance with the usual customs of trade and commerce, of plants and facilities for the physical handling, storage, processing, servicing, and transportation of the agricultural commodities subject to its control. Except as provided in section 16, the Corporation shall not have power to acquire or lease any such plant or facility or to acquire or lease real propery or any interest therein, except that it may rent or lease office space necessary for the conduct of its business and it may continue to lease (by renewing or extending existing leases or entering into new leases) property leased by it on the date of the enactment of this Act.

"(i) May borrow money subject to any provision of law applicable to the Corporation: Provided, That the total of all money borrowed by the Corporation, other than trust deposits and advances received on sales, shall not at any time exceed in the aggregate $4,750,000,000. The Corporation shall at all times reserve a sufficient amount of its authorized borrowing power which, together with other funds available to the Corporation, will enable it to purchase, in accordance with its contracts with lending agencies, notes, or other obligations evidencing loans made by such agencies under the Corporation's programs.

"(j) Shall determine the character of and the necessity for its obligations and expenditures and the manner in which they shall be incurred, allowed, and paid.

incurred, allowed, and paid.

"(k) Shall have authority to make final and conclusive settlement and adjustment of any claims by or against the Corporation or the accounts of its fiscal officers.

"(1) May make such loans and advances of its funds as are necessary in the conduct of its business.

"(m) Shall have such powers as may be necessary or appropriate for the exercise of the powers specifically vested in the Corporation, and all such incidental powers as are customary in corporations generally; but any research financed by the Corporation shall relate to the conservation or disposal of commodities owned or controlled by the Corporation and shall be conducted in collaboration with research agencies of the Department of Agriculture.

"SEC. 5. Specific powers: In the fulfillment of its purposes and in carrying out its annual budget programs submitted to and approved by the Congress pursuant to the Government Corporation Control Act (31 U. S. C., 1940 edition, Supp. V, 841), the Corporation is authorized to use its general powers only to—

"(a) Support the prices of agricultural commodities through loans, purchases, payments, and other operations.

"(b) Make available materials and facil-

"(b) Make available materials and facilities required in connection with the production and marketing of agricultural commodities.

"(c) Procure agricultural commodities for sale to other Government agencies, foreign governments, and domestic, foreign, or international relief or rehabilitation agencies, and to meet domestic requirements.

"(d) Remove and dispose of or aid in the removal or disposition of surplus agricultural commodities.

"(e) Increase the domestic consumption of agricultural commodities by expanding or aiding in the expansion of domestic markets or by developing or aiding in the development of new and additional markets, marketing facilities, and uses for such commodities.

"(f) Export or cause to be exported, or aid in the development of foreign markets for, agricultural commodities, "(g) Carry out such other operations as the Congress may specifically authorize or provide for.

"In the Corporation's purchasing and selling operations with respect to agricultural commodities (except sales to other Government agencies), and in the warehousing, transporting, processing, or handling of agricultural commodities, the Corporation shall, to the maximum extent practicable consistent with the fulfillment of the Corporation's purposes and the effective and efficient conduct of its business, utilize the usual and customary channels, facilities, and arrangements of trade and commerce.

"Sec. 6. Existing statutes applicable to the Corporation: The Federal statutes applicable to Commodity Credit Corporation, a Delaware corporation, shall be applicable to the Corporation. Commodity Credit Corporation, a Delaware corporation, shall cease to be an agency of the United States as provided in section 7 (a) of the Act of January 31, 1935, as amended (15 U. S. C., 1940 edition, Supp. V, 713 (a)).

"SEC. 7. Capital stock: The Corporation shall have a capital stock of $100,000,000 which shall be subscribed by the United States. Such subscription shall be deemed to be fully paid by the transfer of assets to the Corporation pursuant to section 16 of this Act. The Corporation shall pay interest to the United States Treasury on the amount of its capital stock, and on the amount of the obligations of the Corporation purchased by the Secretary of the Treasury pursuant to the Act of March 8, 1938 (U. S. C., title 15, sec. 713a-4), as amended, at such rates as may be determined by the Secretary of the Treasury to be appropriate in view of the terms for which such amounts are made available to the Corporation.

"Sec. 8. Funds: The Corporation is author-

"Sec. 8. Funds: The Corporation is authorized to use in the conduct of its business all its funds and other assets, including capital and net earnings therefrom, and all funds and other assets which have been or may hereafter be transferred or allocated to, borrowed by, or otherwise acquired by it.

"The Secretary of Agriculture is authorized to appoint an interim Board consisting of five members, including the Secretary, who shall serve until October 1, 1948.

"SEC. 9. Directors: The management of the Corporation shall be vested in a Board of Directors (hereinafter referred to as the "Board"). The Board shall consist of five members. The Secretary of Agriculture, or members. his nominee, shall be a member of the Board and the remaining members shall be appointed by the President by and with the advice and consent of the Senate. The Chairman of the Board shall be selected by the Board. A majority of the directors shall constitute a quorum of the Board and action shall be taken only by a majority vote of those present. The appointed directors shall serve for a period of five years, except that the terms of the first Board shall be shortened to provide for replacement or reappointment of its members in number as nearly equal as practicable in each year. The power of re-moval shall be vested in the President of the United States. The Corporation may provide, by its bylaws, for the compensation to be paid the directors: Provided, That the compensation paid any director shall not exceed in the aggregate $10,000 per annum: And provided further, That employees of the Corporation or any department or agency of the Federal Government, if also directors, shall not receive additional compensation for their services on the Board. Employees of the Corporation or any department or agency of the Federal Government, if also directors, shall not comprise, in the aggre-gate, more than three of the members of the Board.

"SEC. 10. The executive staff: Responsibility for the day-to-day conduct of the business of the Corporation shall be vested in a staff of executive officers, headed by a chief executive appointed by the Board and responsible to the Board. Members of the executive staff shall devote their full time to the affairs of the Corporation. The Board shall define the authority and duties of the members of the executive staff, delegate to them such of the powers vested in the Corporation as it may determine, require that such of them as it may designate be bonded and fix the penalties therefor. The Corporation may pay the premium of any bond or bonds of any officer or employee. With the exception of experts, appointments shall be made pursuant to the civil-service laws and the Classification Act of 1923, as amended (5 U. S. C., 1940 edition, 661).

"SEC. 11. Cooperation with other governmental agencies: The Corporation may, with the consent of the agency concerned, accept and utilize, on a compensated or uncompensated basis, the officers, employees, services, facilities, and information of any agency of the Federal Government, including any bureau, office, administration, or other agency of the Department of Agriculture, and of any State, the District of Columbia, any Territory or possession, or any political subdivision thereof. The Corporation may allot to any bureau, office, administration, or other agency of the Department of Agriculture or transfer to such other agencies as it may request to assist it in the conduct of its business any of the funds available to it for administra tive expenses. The personnel and facilities of the Corporation may, with the consent of the Corporation, be utilized on a reimbursable basis by any agency of the Federal Government, including any bureau, office, administration, or other agency of the Department of Agriculture, in the performance of any part or all of the functions of such agency.

"Sec. 12. Utilization of associations and trade facilities: The Corporation may, in the conduct of its business, utilize on a contract or fee basis, committees or associations of producers, producer-owned and producer-controlled cooperative associations, and trade facilities.

"SEC. 13. Records; annual report: The Corporation shall at all times maintain complete and accurate books of account and shall file annually with the Secretary of Agriculture a complete report as to the business of the Corporation, a copy of which shall be forwarded by the Secretary of Agriculture to the President for transmission to the Congress.

"SEC. 14. Interest of Members of the Congress: The provisions of section 1 of the Act of February 27, 1877, as amended (41 U. S. C., 1940 edition, 22), shall apply to all contracts or agreements of the Corporation, except contracts or agreements of a kind which the Corporation may enter into with farmers participating in a program of the Corporation.

"SEC. 15. Crimes and offenses .-

"FALSE STATEMENTS; OVERVALUATION OF SECURITIES

"(a) Whoever makes any statement knowing it to be false, or whoever willfully overvalues any security, for the purpose of influencing in any way the action of the Corporation, or for the purpose of obtaining for himself or another, money, property, or anything of value, under this Act, or under any other Act applicable to the Corporation shall, upon conviction thereof, be punished by a fine of not more than $10,000 or by imprisonment by not more than five years, or both.

"EMBEZZLEMENT, AND SO FORTH; FALSE ENTRIES; FRAUDULENT ISSUE OF OBLIGATIONS OF CORPORATION

"(b) Whoever, being connected in any capacity with the Corporation or any of its programs, (i) embezzles, abstracts, purloins, or willfully misapplies any money, funds, securities, or other things of value, whether belonging to the Corporation or pledged or otherwise entrusted to it; or (ii) with intent to defraud the Corporation, or any other body, politic or corporate, or any individual, or to deceive any officer, auditor, or examiner of the Corporation, makes any false entry in any book, report, or statement of, or to, the Corporation, or draws any order, or issues, puts forth or assigns any note or other obligation or draft, mortgage, judgment, or decree thereof; or (iii) with intent to defraud the Corporation, participates or shares in, or receives directly or indirectly any money, profit, property, or benefits through any transaction, loan, commission, contract, or any other act of the Corporation, shall, upon conviction thereof, be punished by a fine of not more than $10,000 or by imprisonment for not more than five years, or both.

"LARCENCY; CONVERSION OF PROPERTY

"(c) Whoever shall willfully steal, conceal, remove, dispose of, or convert to his own use or to that of another any property owned or held by, or mortgaged or pledged to, the Corporation, shall, upon conviction thereof, be punished by a fine of not more than $10,000 or by imprisonment for not more than five years, or both.

"CONSPIRACY TO COMMIT OFFENSE

"(d) Whoever conspires with another to accomplish any of the acts made unlawful by the preceding provisions of this section shall, upon conviction thereof, be subject to the same fine or imprisonment, or both, as is applicable in the case of conviction for doing such unlawful acts.

"GENERAL STATUTES APPLICABLE

"(e) All the general penal statutes relating to crimes and offenses against the United States shall apply with respect to the Corporation, its property, money, contracts and agreements, employees, and operations: Provided, That such general penal statutes shall not apply to the extent that they relate to crimes and offenses punishable under subsections (a), (b), (c), and (d) of this section: Provided further, That sections 114 and 115 of the act of March 4, 1909, as amended (18 U. S. C., 1940 edition, 204, 205) shall not apply to contracts or agreements of a kind which the Corporation may enter into with farmers participating in a program of the Corporation.

"Sec. 16. Transfer of assets of Commodity Credit Corporation, a Delaware corporation: The assets, funds, property, and records of Commodity Credit Corporation, a Delaware corporation, are hereby transferred to the Corporation. The rights, privileges, and powers, and the duties and liabilities of Commodity Credit Corporation, a Delaware corporation, in respect to any contract, agreement, loan, account, or other obligation shall become the rights, privileges, and powers, and the duties and liabilities, respectively, of the Corporation. The enforceable claims of or against Commodity Credit Corporation a Delaware corporation, shall become the claims of or against, and may be enforced by or against the Corporation: Provided, That nothing in this Act shall limit or extend any period of limitation otherwise applicable to such claims against the Corporation.

"Sec. 17. Dissolution of Delaware corporation: The Secretary of Agriculture, representing the United States as the sole owner of the capital stock of Commodity Credit Corporation, a Delaware corporation, is hereby authorized and directed to institute or cause to be instituted such proceedings as are required for the dissolution of said Corporation under the laws of the State of Delaware. The costs of such dissolution of said Corporation shall be borne by the Corporation

"Sec. 18. Effective date: This Act shall take effect as of mignight, June 30, 1948."

And the House agree to the same.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection to the present consideration of the conference report?

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the report.

Mr. RUSSELL. Mr. President, I congratulate the Senator from Vermont on bringing in a conference report, but I am a little curious to know for how long it extends the life of the Commodity Credit Corporation.

Mr. AIKEN. This conference report gives perpetual existence to the Commodity Credit Corporation. The principal change from the Senate bill is this: The Senate bill provided for a board of five members to be appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate. The House bill provided for a board of five members, three of whom must be outside the Department of Agriculture. The conference committee report provides for a board of five members to be appointed by the President, two of whom shall not be employees of the Department of Agriculture, leaving the Board comprised of three who may be employees of the Department of Agriculture and two chosen from outside the Department.

Mr. RUSSELL. Is the Secretary of Agriculture a member of the Board?

Mr. AIKEN. Yes, indeed. I am sure he is a member of the Board.

Mr. RUSSELL. Does the Senator believe that this Board, as constituted under the terms of the conference report, will be closely integrated with the work of the Department of Agriculture?

Mr. AIKEN. Yes. The Senator from Vermont is satisfied that probably three members chosen out of the five will be within the Department of Agriculture. The Senator from Vermont is not satisfied that the Board of five is large enough, but has hope that the next Congress may see fit to enlarge the Board if the five members prove to be inadequate.

I move the adoption of the conference report.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the conference report.

The report was agreed to.

Mr. AIKEN. Mr. President, may I express the final hope that Congress will not recess or adjourn for a little while, because we may have a long-range farm program.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair will observe that there seems to be some ground for that hope.

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE

A message from the House of Representatives, by Mr. Maurer, one of its reading clerks, announced that the House had agreed to the report of the committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H. R. 6916) to provide for permanent postal rates and additional compensation for postmasters and employees of the field service in the Post Office Department.

The message also announced that the House had agreed to the report of the committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H. R. 5904) to incorporate the Virgin Islands Corporation, and for other purposes.

The message further announced that the House had agreed to the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H. R. 3416) to provide for the establishment of the Pensacola National Monument.

The message notified the Senate that Mr. Gillie had been appointed a manaager on the part of the House at the conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H. R. 6248) to authorize the Secretary of Agriculture to stabilize prices of agricultural commodities; to amend section 22 of the Agricultural Adjustment Act, reenacted by the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937; and for other purposes, vice Mr. Murray of Wisconsin, excused.

ASSISTANCE TO CERTAIN LOCAL SCHOOL AGENCIES

Mr. SMITH. Mr. President, I submit the conference report on House bill 6527, to provide assistance to certain local school agencies overburdened with warincurred, or postwar national-defenseincurred enrollments, and I ask unanimous consent for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The report will be read.

The Chief Clerk read the report, as follows:

The committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H. R. 6527) to provide assistance to certain local school agencies overburdened with war-incurred, or postwar national-defense-incurred, enrollments, having met, after full and free conference, have agreed to recommend and do recommend to their respective Houses as follows:

That the Senate recede from its amendment to the House bill and agree to the bill as originally passed by the House.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection to the present consideration of the conference report?

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the report.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection—

Mr. BALL. Mr. President, there is objection to this conference report.

This is a bill continuing for 3 years after the end of the war Federal assistance to local school districts to educate the children in areas where there have been war plants or war installations.

The bill came over from the House authorizing $6,000,000 a year of this assistance. Mind you, this is 3 years after the end of the war. There was never any authority of law during the war. It was done under the war powers.

The bill which came over from the House proposed not only to provide approximately $5,000,000 of assistance to those school districts in which there were located war plants which had not yet been turned back to private ownership, and the Senate decided it could go along with that, but the House bill also provided an additional $1,000,000 to start this program all over again, for assistance to school districts which may incur increased enrollments because of new defense or military installations resulting from the present national defense program.

The wisdom of any assistance to these school districts is somewhat doubtful. I may point out that according to the figures furnished to the Labor and Public Welfare Committee, about threefourths of this assistance goes to three States-Oregon, Washington, and Texas. all three of which have received hundreds of millions of dollars of Federal contracts. Those States and their industries and their Representatives in Congress were extremely active in seeking those Federal appropriations, and those appropriations undoubtedly have increased tremendously the wealth and income of those States. Then they have the gall to come to Congress and ask for Federal assistance to carry on the local function of education

I grant that in various cases the local school districts are in trouble because the Federal Government has taken title to much of their land, with the result that it does not pay taxes, and the local school districts are in difficulty.

But in every one of those situations the income of the State, which is their basis for taxation, has been increased tremendously by the Federal expenditures which have been sought by those States; and yet they are asking the taxpayers of all the other 45 States to help them bear that little additional expense.

Mr. CORDON. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. BALL. I shall finish my statement, if the Senator does not mind.

This, mind you, is 3 years after the end of the war. The Labor and Public Welfare Committee, after looking at all the facts, decided that we were perhaps justified—it was doubtful—in going on for one more year with a program, insofar as it concerned the school districts that were helped during the war. During the war we did a lot of things which are a little difficult to cut off immediately after the end of the war. But we decided that it would be a serious mistake to start adding new districts.

After all, we in the Senate know very well that these increased expenditures—and they are tremendous this year—are the cause of considerable rivalry among the States as to which shall get them, The States which get them, I think, have no right to come to the Congress and ask for help to the extent of $10,000, $20,000, $50,000, $100,000, or, in the case of one State almost a million dollars, to educate children of the workers who will be migrating into those States because of the increased activities arising from Federal appropriations, as a result of which the States derive increased income.

The Senate Committee on Labor and Public Welfare therefore eliminated the provision, which permitted the addition of new school districts to receive assistance under this program. We cut the amount, in accordance with the estimates furnished us, from $6,000,000 to $5,000,000.

Mr. President, that decision of the committee, I may say, was sustained by the Senate; it was challenged and was sustained here on the floor. Yet the Senate conferees went into conference with the conferees on the part of the House, and yielded everything.

I am just a little bit tired of having the Senate always take the position of increasing the contributions and the expenditures of the Federal Government every time it gets a chance.

The taxpayers of the forty-odd States that have not participated to the extent of hundreds and hundreds of millions of dollars in these Federal expenditures and have not had their incomes increased to that extent, are being called upon not only to pay the taxes necessary to support those expenditures in the first place, but also to help those States maintain and operate their purely local functions of government. That strikes me as not only getting to the trough, but climbing into it with all four feet.

So I hope the Senate will reject this conference report, and will say, "Let us have an end to this running to the Federal Treasury every time any small local community gets into the least little bit of trouble." If we do not call a halt to it pretty soon, we might as well abolish all local and State governments.

Mr. SMITH. Mr. President, I realize the difficulties referred to by the Senator from Minnesota. I regret that there should be any difference of opinion between us.

As I stated, in the committee we felt that we should eliminate such assistance in the case of future installations, and should let the States take care of the educational problem. The committee composed of the Senator from Missouri IMr. Donnell, the Senator from Oregon IMr. MORSE, the Senator from Alabama [Mr. Hill], the Senator from Montana

[Mr. Murray], and myself met this afternon with the House conferees, and we had presented to us the record of the hearings that had been taken by the House, as well as the evidence we had before our own committee.

The effect of such Government installations is to take taxable property from the States, as the properties are tax

Frankly, I am not prepared to see established a policy whereby federallyheld property should be taxed in order to take care of these problems, rather than to have special arrangements made for the schools.

But the fact remains that, for the coming year, the conferees on the part of the Senate felt that we should not reduce the program as proposed by the Senate; and in considering the evidence they presented to us, we believed that at least we should take care of the program that was taken care of last year, with the insistence that our staff study this matter and see whether we could deal more equitably with these cases in which, because of the expansion of our Military Establishment, we are taking from the State areas formerly taxable.

Therefore we have presented the conference report in the form in which we have.

Mr. WHERRY. Mr. President, does the Senator mean that we are making the contributions in peacetime because the war plants are being expanded?

Mr. SMITH. The plants are being expanded, and the property is being turned over to the Government.

I agree that I think this is a wrong principle; but if we cut it off this year, I think many school children will suffer.

So we had to weigh the problem of the school children as against the principle the Senator from Minnesota has been discussing.

Mr. WHERRY. Mr. President, is there a general provision, or are specific locations mentioned in the authorization?

Mr. SMITH. They are in the bill. Mr. WHERRY. I want to know whether the areas which are to receive the benefits are stated in the bill.

Mr. BREWSTER. It is a lump-sum appropriation, and there are certain communities to which it will go. They were enumerated-about 15 or 20.

Mr. SMITH. The House had evidence of the communities to which it would go.

Mr. WHERRY. I am asking the Senator if he knows the different areas and different States where this lump sum is to be distributed. Is there a chart?

Mr. TAFT. There is a House report. Mr. WHERRY. I should like to ask whether there are any in the State of Nebraska.

Mr. SMITH. That is a very relevant question from the Senator from Nebraska.

Mr. WHERRY. It certainly is. Mr. SMITH. Yes; there are three in Nebraska.

Mr. WHERRY. Can the Senator tell me where they are located in Nebraska? Can he give me the names?

Mr. SMITH. I cannot give the Senator the names from this table. The House committee had the break-down. The clerk of our committee, I think, has all those documents. I do not have them before me.

Mr. DONNELL. Mr. President, will the Senator vield?

Mr. SMITH. I yield to the Senator from Missouri.

Mr. DONNELL. If the Senator will look a page or two further on he will see that the list of towns in each State appears in the pamphlet.

Mr. SMITH. The Senator from Missouri is correct, and I shall be very glad to give the Senator from Nebraska the list of places in his State where the plants are located. They are at Glenville, Cairo, and Sidney

Mr. WHERRY. Mr. President, there are other schools in a similar situation. Those are the ones the Senator named in my own State that are now getting any relief. I should like to know how the distribution is made.

Mr. SMITH. There is a table in the report showing each State and the places in each State where distribution is made, and another table is shown which sums up the matter.

Mr. WHERRY. I appreciate that. I should like to have the Senator answer the question. Who makes the determination as to where aid is to be given? I am satisfied there are other school districts in my own State corresponding to those mentioned in the observations of the distinguished Senator that are not receiving relief.

Mr. SMITH. Is it the Senator's statement then that he feels that not less relief should be given, but more, in the case of Nebraska? Is that his position?
Mr. WHERRY. No, I am not asking that. I am asking who makes the distribution, and on what basis.

Mr. SMITH. It is made by the Federal Works Administrator. He is authorized to make it, the same as he is authorized to make decisions as to the location of Federal works.

Mr. O'DANIEL. Mr. President, will

the Senator yield?

Mr. SMITH. I yield to the Senator from Texas.

Mr. O'DANIEL. I think we can clear up the subject referred to in the questions asked by the Senator from Nebraska by asking the distinguished Senator handling the bill if it is not a fact that all the Federal Government is doing is paying an amount which would otherwise be paid in taxes if private enterprise were operating the factories.

Mr. SMITH, I assume that is the case, because the table is broken down, and the appropriation is simply based on the deficit in each case. Each one of the States takes care of the great bulk of the funds. The amount appropriated is merely the deficit.

Mr. O'DANIEL. If the Government did not own the properties, the taxes would be paid into the State and into the school districts to take care of the subject, would they not?

Mr. SMITH. I assume that is so. Mr. O'DANIEL. Inasmuch as the Federal Government owns those properties, the situation is different.

Mr. TAFT. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. SMITH. I yield to the Senator from Ohio.

Mr. TAFT. I would say it has no relation whatever to the taxes that might be paid on the property. The school districts are selected. They have a deficit because there happens to be a plant there, and because there happened to be more children coming in. There is property in the district on which taxes are paid, and the Federal Government pays the deficit.

I think it is absolutely unjustifiable for us to begin again to increase the program of the Federal Government paying for local school expenses. Last year we spent $4,500,000 on something left over from the war, which was strictly a war proposition. Now, for the first time this year, we are asked to expand the relief. We are asked to expand it from an authorization of $5,000,-000 to one of $7,000,000. We are starting on a new program which calls on the Federal Government whenever a plant is located in a community to pay the expenses of the school districts because children are brought into the community. The Federal Government pays for the education of the children of contractors who are actually brought in to build the building. It starts paying for children of the Navy personnel and Army personnel, and now we are asked to pay for a great many children of people to come in to establish stores or to engage in other activities in the neighborhood. It seems to me the program should not be enlarged. I think the conference report should be rejected.

Mr. SMITH. Mr. President, I may say to the Senator from Ohio I agree with him that the program should not be enlarged. But we have a problem before us in regard to the children, and I think we have to meet the problem. We have got to study the problem to see how it can be taken care of. Perhaps it can be taken care of out of the taxable assets of the communities.

Mr. TAFT. The States seek the plants; they seek the Government installations. They make the argument that we should locate them in their States. There is a responsibility. There is no reason why the State should not bear the expense. The moral justification probably is that if the local school district is unable to pay, then the State government ought to pay it. There is not the slightest ground that I can see for the Federal Government being asked to pay the expenses of local school districts.

We undertook the program during the war, when we suddenly had vast numbers of people moving in overnight. We continued the program, greatly increasing it from year to year, until finally this year we inserted a new provision that it shall include not only war plants but any new installation the Federal Government has recently made. The State of Washington already gets $1,000,000 out of the $5,000,000. The new provision will give the State of Washington $800,-000 more, so that $1,800,000 will go to the State of Washington alone out of the proposed contribution of $7,000,000. I see no reason for the Federal Government's paying $1,800,000 toward the support of schools in the State of Washington

Mr. SMITH. I ask the distinguished Senator from Ohio, having in mind the plans dealing with expansion of the National Military Establishment, which is bound to come with the advent of our Air Force expansion, and so forth, does he propose to take care of the situation by letting the States handle the increased obligations, or does he have some plan whereby the property which the Federal Government takes over is to become subject to State taxation? What is the Senator's plan?

Mr. TAFT. Every plant that comes into a locality brings more wealth and more income into the State than it had before, perhaps two or three times what was there before. The State government can certainly find some way to get the money from that additional income to pay for the schools. There are certain problems where a local school district is so situated that it cannot get its usual revenue from real estate, but in the State of Ohio a large part of the school money comes from the sales tax which the State collects and redistributes to the school districts according to their

I think the Federal program is very undesirable. What I object to is a new beginning of the expansion of the program. Last year it was $5,000,000. This year, I assume it was reduced. Did the conference report reduce it to $3,000,000?

Mr. SMITH. The House asked for $5,000,000.

Mr. TAFT. Last year the authorization was $5,000,000, and they spent about $4,500,000, as I remember. We tried to hold it down at least to the same figure.

Mr. SMITH. I may say to the Senator from Ohio that Ohio gets out of this $163,352.

Mr. O'DANIEL. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. SMITH. I yield to the Senator from Texas.

Mr. O'DANIEL. Mr. President, referring specifically to one city in Texas, Grand Prairie, it is my understanding that one branch of the Federal Government owning property in that locality has been paying in lieu of taxes about $74,000. That Federal property has been turned over to the Navy Department, and unless the pending bill is passed as amended, the Navy Department claims it will be unable to make the contribution which was made when the property was under the control of another branch of the Federal Government. It means nothing new to Grand Prairie; it only means continuing the payment of the same amount which has been paid heretofore.

Mr. STENNIS. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. SMITH. I yield.

Mr. STENNIS. Mr. President, I want to point out one thing in connection with this item. The Senate has approved a $5,000,000 item. The conference report adds to that $1,000,000. In the last few moments of the session it seems to me that if this report is not accepted there is a great chance for killing the entire bill. I am familiar with one school at Pascagoula, Miss. There were erected there during the war a huge shipping plant and an enormous Government housing project. The plant is still in operation. The school is still there. That little city was absolutely overwhelmed. They did not have a chance to take care of the children. If this conference report is rejected it leaves them uncared for.

I know of another situation where a plant was erected out in the country, against the wishes of the people. It absolutely overwhelmed the local district. I respectfully submit that under those circumstances and at this late hour we almost have to approve the report.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. IVES), If there is going to be a debate, the Chair will recognize a privileged matter.

Mr. CONNALLY. Mr. President, this matter is privileged.

OFFICER. The PRESIDING The Senator from Vermont [Mr. FLANDERS] has a privileged matter.

Mr. RUSSELL. Mr. President, we can-not lay aside one conference report and take up another conference report without unanimous consent.

Does the Chair mean to rule that the Chair can select which conference report shall be before the Senate for considera-

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Chair holds that one conference report coming on the floor can be placed ahead of another one which may be under consideration at the time.

Mr. RUSSELL. Mr. President, that is the most unusual ruling I have ever heard. The Senate is proceeding to the consideration of a conference report, in due order. It has just as much sanctity, under the rules, and just as much priority under the rules as any other conference report, except a conference report in connection with an appropriation bill. I submit that the Chair, while he presides over the Senate, does not direct the Senate's activities. The Senate decides which report shall be considered.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. In order to expedite the work of the Senate, the Chair would suggest that the Senator from New Jersey continue.

Mr. MORSE. Mr. President, will the Senator yield to me?

Mr. SMITH. I yield to the Senator from Oregon.

Mr. MORSE. Mr. President, I have a great deal of sympathy with the desire to bring the program to a close, but here is the situation in regard to this particular conference report: The Senate conferees went to the conference fully intending to support the Senate bill. We proceeded to discuss the facts which were brought out in conference. We read a report which had not been made available to us before, in the form of a letter received from George Field, in whom we all have confidence. We got a representative of his office on the telephone and asked a series of questions on problems which bothered all the conferees. We became satisfied that for the next year, until the whole subject can be taken up for consideration and study, we could not justify failing to pass the House bill. or recommending the passage of the House bill without change. Therefore the Senate conferees unanimously voted to recede from the Senate's position.

I think that when a report is received from conference, after the consideration we gave to the subject, we should be backed up on the floor of the Senate when our report is unanimous. That is all I shall say about it, because I am satisfied that we must have the money to keep the schools in operation. I do not think we ought to make a choice at 3 o'clock in the morning that we are going to deny what I am satisfied will be decent education for thousands of youngsters, by a failure, at 3 o'clock in the morning, to accept the conference report.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. SMITH. I yield to the Senator from Virginia.

Mr. BYRD. What agency of the Government allocates this amount?

Mr. SMITH. The Federal Works Administration.

Mr. BYRD. On what basis is it allocated?

Mr. SMITH. On the basis of the location of the plants and the problems presented.

Mr. BYRD. Is the Federal Works Administrator the sole arbiter? Does he have any program to guide him?

Mr. SMITH. So far as I am advisedand I take my evidence from the House hearings and what the House conferees advised us-the Federal Works Administrator bases his allocations on the needs of the school districts in the areas where the work is going on.

Mr. BYRD. Why is it that there is an increase of $2,000,000 over last year?

Mr. SMITH. I do not see that there is an increase of $2,000,000 over last year. I think the amount is practically the same as last year.

Mr. BYRD. I understood that there was an increase from $5,000,000 to $7,000,000.

Mr. TAFT. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. SMITH. I yield. Mr. TAFT. The figures clearly show that the plants included under the original category called for approximately $5,000,000.

Mr. SMITH. That is correct. Mr. TAFT. While the plants included in the new category called for about $2,-000,000 more. Under the act the Federal Works Administrator could buy all kinds of things, with no basis of allocation, except as the program proceeded one district got one amount and some other district another amount. That is one reason the program ought to be closed up and not be operated in such manner that a bureau can exercise such wide discretion.

Mr. DONNELL. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. SMITH. I yield to the Senator from Missouri.

Mr. DONNELL. Mr. President, it happens that I am one of the members of the conference committee which considered this particular bill. In going to the conference, I went with the full real-ization that my knowledge of the subject was extremely limited. There is one phase of it with which I was not entirely satisfied. As I see it, Mr. President, we have here a situation in which the bill applies to two things: First, to the maintenance of school facilities in local school agencies which are still overburdened with school enrollments caused by war activities and the transition from war to peacetime conditions. That is one category. The second category is not one in which there is to be a reactivation in the future, a building up of plants in the future, and a charge upon the Federal Government for the maintenance of school facilities where they are. The second category is one in which the facilities have already become overburdened with defense establishments, encouraging school enrollments as a result of the reactivation or expansion of any defense establishment or the operation of any new defense establishment. Here we have a number of school districts in which there has already been this activation, as it is termed in the bill. It is another way of saying the rebuilding or the reopening of these plants. We have in those particular communities the need to make up the various deficits which are listed in the committee report.

Mr. President, it seems to me that the wise course of precdure is for us to approve this conference report, but at some time, that is, between now and the meeting of the Eighty-first Congress, I think there should be made a careful, detailed study of this entire situation.

I may say that tonight, in the conference committee's session, that course of action was determined upon, and it is contemplated that the staff of both the House committee and the Senate committee will, in the interim between now and the meeting of the Eighty-first Congress, make such investigation, so that in the future we may be better able to decide as to what we should do. I am in favor of the adoption of the conference report.

Mr. MAYBANK. Mr. President, I know it is 3 o'clock in the morning—
The PRESIDING OFFICER. Sunday morning.

Mr. MAYBANK. Yes, Sunday morning, and I recall that there used to be a song entitled "Three O'Clock in the Morning." I wish to say just a few words in thorough endorsement of the remarks of the Senator from Mississippi [Mr. STENNIS].

In my section of the country the authorities came to Charleston and built schools, and brought thousands of people to work in the navy yard and the ordnance plant. The schools needed Government aid, as they needed it from 1942 through 1947. While I do not intend to delay the Senate, because it is 3 o'clock in the morning, I hope the Senate will agree to the provisions that were placed in the bill by the House of Representatives, and vote down the other suggestions.

Mr. CONNALLY. Mr. President, I do not know about all the different projects, but I do know of one particular project in my own State which during the war was engaged in manufacturing airplanes under the direction of the Army. That plant now has been turned over to the Navy, is engaged in the same activity which occupied it during the war, and it is now going to manufacture jet planes, all for preparedness, along the lines of the legislation sponsored by the distinguished Senator from South Dakota [Mr. Gurney]. Its work is still war work, it is not new, it is simply revived and going into this line.

In that school district the Government has acquired real estate on which formerly taxes were paid, and now the community does not receive a cent of taxes toward the support of the schools.

What is the result? The school district has levied taxes to the limit. They are limited by the constitution of my State as to the amount they can levy, but they have levied all they could. Some of the Senators say, let the State pay them, but it would take an amendment to the constitution, and that would require time and a meeting of the legislature. What are they to do with regard to the present school year? What are we going to do with the children of the people who work in those plants? I am not concerned with the places from which the children come. The Government needs their parents, the Government wants them, the Government tells them to come and engage in this war work, to manufacture planes for the defense of everybody in the United States, and they come and bring their children with them. Their children are entitled to an education, as every other child is.

I know that in the particular locality in my State to which I am referring the authorities are doing everything humanly possible. There has been no change in the status, except for short interruptions. The same war activity in which the plant was engaged while hostilities were going on is now being followed in preparing guns, renewing preparations so that if the need should come, our Government will be able to defend itself and resist the aggressor against the liberties of the United States.

I agree with the distinguished Senator from Missouri. This matter must be worked out along on the basis of a satisfactory plan between now and next year.

Mr. DONNELL. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. CONNALLY. I yield to the Senator from Missouri.

Mr. DONNELL, I emphasize the point which the Senator from Texas has made with respect to the necessity for taking time to do a thing like this. In that connection, I bring out the fact which was mentioned by the Senator from Ohio, that in the district where these plants exist the communities prosper and have much more in the way of receipts by reason of the fact that the plants are there. That may well be true, yet if the school district is supported by an ad valorem tax on real estate, and the real estate has been taken by the Government, it may be quite a problem to devise some other tax plan in view of the increased prosperity. I agree with the views stated by the Senator from Texas that we cannot work out this problem immediately. We are confronted with a situation in which we have already reactivated some of these plants, and we ought to take care of the educational needs of the children for this year.

Mr. CONNALLY. The school year will soon begin, and we cannot arrange for it instantly. It will take time to work out the formula and plan, I agree, but what are we going to do for the child who goes to school on the first of September? There is no school now. Some of the districts, it is said, will not be able, without the help here provided, to maintain the schools more than 4 or 5 months out of the entire year.

Mr. BALL. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. CONNALLY. I yield.

Mr. BALL. If the Senator has no objection to the Federal Government contributing to the support of schools in Texas, I wonder what his position would be if the Federal Government stepped into the State of Texas and told them that they must have no segregation in their public schools.

Mr. CONNALLY. I refuse to reply to that sort of an argument.

Mr. BALL. The Senator is all for State aid when it suits his purposes, but he does not want the States to take any responsibility.

Mr. CONNALLY. That is on a par with what those associated with the Senator from Minnesota have been doing before on this floor. I refuse to go into the question of segregation. The colored schools in my State get the same amount of money the white schools get, and we have recently appropriated $3,000,000 to provide a colored university in the city of Houston.

Mr. TAFT. Mr. President, will the Senator from Texas yield?

Mr. CONNALLY. I yield.

Mr. TAFT. The Senator from Missouri suggests that it is hard to work out a system since communities cannot get the ad valorem taxes with which to provide the school districts with money. They can come to Congress and demand the money and get it from here, but they do not go to the State legislature, they do not go to Austin, Tex., and ask the State of Texas for the money. It is just as easy for them to work this out by revenues from the State as it is to work it out by revenues from Washington and the Congress of the United States.

Mr. CONNALLY. The Senator from Ohio knows that this matter cannot be taken care of instantly. The new school year is approaching. Something has to be done to take care of the children in the coming school year. I do not fear having a plan worked out, a long-range plan, and the establishing of some standard, but I do think we now face an emergency which we should meet courageously and firmly, and I appeal to Senators to vote for the adoption of the conference report.

Mr. CORDON. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. SMITH. I yield.

Mr. CORDON. I call the attention of the Senate to the fact that the conference report which was just approved on the deficiency appropriation bill, carries an appropriation for this purpose. That appropriation is predicated upon the passage of this measure, which is the basis of authorization for that appropriation, because it continues this type of authorization for another year.

I am not entering into the argument as to whether the base for payments of taxes should be broadened to take in future Government plants or not. That portion of the bill which has to do with the existing status of things, however, is the portion for which appropriation has been made, and this report should be adopted, because it is the basis for the appropriation itself.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. question is on agreeing to the conference report.

The report was agreed to.

REPORTS OF CONFEREES-STATEMENT BY PRESIDING OFFICER

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Before turning to the next order of business, in line with the ruling of the Chair made in order to expedite the business of the Senate a short time ago, the Chair would like to read a very short paragraph from Senate rule XXVII, dealing with the reports of conferees. It deals with the presentation of such reports. I read paragraph 1 as follows:

The presentation of reports of committees of conference shall always be in order, except when the Journal is being read or a question of order or a motion to adjourn is pending, or while the Senate is dividing; and when received the question of proceedto the consideration of the report, raised, shall be immediately put, and shall be determined without debate.

In this connection the Chair observes that when the request was made to consider a conference report while another was in order the Chair was in error because he did not put the question, but he could see no purpose in doing so under the circumstances.

Mr. RUSSELL. I merely wish to state that there was no difference between my position and that of the Chair, expressed in the reading of the rule. I recognize, of course, that on a motion to proceed immediately another conference report was in order, but I understood the Chair had by a ruling indicated that he could select one report over another.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair's position is that one report could supersede another unless a question was raised. The Chair did not put the question to a vote because he was trying to expedite business.

INCREASE IN COMPENSATION FOR POST-AL AND OTHER GOVERNMENT WORK-ERS-CONFERENCE REPORT

Mr. FLANDERS. I submit a conference report on House bill 6916, to provide for permanent postal rates and additional compensation for postmasters and employees of the field service in the Post Office Department, and I ask unanimous consent for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The conference report will be read for the information of the Senate.

The report was read.

(For conference report see House proceedings in the RECORD, p. 9314.)

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection to the present consideration of the conference report?

There being no objection, the conference report was considered and agreed to.

INCORPORATION OF THE VIRGIN ISLANDS CORPORATION

Mr. BUTLER. I submit a conference report on House bill 5904, to incorporate the Virgin Islands Corporation, and for other purposes, and I ask unanimous consent for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The conference report will be read.

The conference report was read, as follows:

The committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H. R. 5904) to incorporate the Virgin Islands Corporation, and for other purposes, having met, after full and free conference, have agreed to recommend and do recommend to their respective Houses as follows:

That the House recede from its disagree ment to the amendment of the Senate to the text of the bill and agree to the same.

That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate to the title of the bill, and agree to the same. HUGH BUTLER

> CARL A. HATCH, GUY CORDON,
> Managers on the Part of the Senate. F. L. CRAWFORD, K. M. LECOMPTE, > JAY LEFEVRE. A. M. FERNANDEZ, Managers on the Part of the House.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection to the immediate consideration of the conference report?

There being no objection, the report was considered and agreed to.

STIMULATION OF PRODUCTION AND CON-SERVATION OF STRATEGIC AND CRIT-ICAL ORES, METALS, AND MINERALS

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair calls the attention of the Senate to the fact that the pending question is the motion of the Senator from Nebraska [Mr. WHERRY] to consider Senate bill 2756

Mr. WHERRY. I should like to suggest that there are other conference reports to be considered. It is hoped that they can be considered in a comparatively short time. I hope the Senate will be patient.

Mr. TAFT. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. WHERRY. I yield.

Mr. TAFT. I understand, in the first place, because of the long continuous session, that the reporters are having a very difficult time to keep up with the proceedings.

There are two matters of importance with which the Senate should deal, and only two that are essential, before the Senate adjourns. The first is the so-called Jenner bill (S. 2790), which is in the House, which deals with the secondary market for GI loans. The House is acting on an amendment to that bill, which it is expected will be returned to the Senate shortly, and I hope the Senate will concur in the House amendment.

The bill dealing with the long-range agricultural program is in conference. The conferees are meeting again for about the third time. There is some hope of their reaching an agreement. I was just in the conference. I think agreement on that measure may take some little time, but there is a hope of an agreement being reached. The bill deals with a matter of prime importance. So we would like to ask the Senate to remain in session, but I think it might be desirable that the Senate take a recess for 15 or 20 minutes at least and let the reporters catch up.

Mr. WHERRY. The Senator from Ohio has made the statement I had intended to make, so it is unnecessary for me to make it.

Mr. BARKLEY. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. WHERRY. I yield. Mr. BARKLEY. I wish to make a very brief comment on the situation and the spectacle which the Senate is presenting. I have been here a good many years, but I have never seen any session of this body come to a conclusion or approach a conclusion with such utter chaos, confusion, and impotence as we observe here now. It is now nearly 4 o'clock on Sunday morning, after 41 hours of confused session. We do not know what we are going to act upon yet before we adjourn. I am willing to stay here all night tonight, and all night tomorrow if we can get through.

We have been tossed back and forth between promises that conference reports will be presented. We have been told that conferees on various measures would soon be ready to report. conferees have met and held sessions, which have been broken up and collapsed. Then we are apparently on the verge of doing something, but we find that a report is not ready. Then someone rushes in and announces that if we wait a few more minutes there will be something for us to do. In one room there is a committee which is attempting to give birth to a farm bill. In a room at the other end of the Capitol, in an obstetrical ward over there they are trying to give birth to a conference report on a House bill. Nobody knows what it will be when the birth takes place. It will be a monstrosity, I am sure.

At the end of this most important session two of the most important matters that ever came before Congress are still suspended in midair. I understand hope has been abandoned of getting a housing bill, but I have been told tonight that the Republican moguls in Philadelphia have sent word down here that we are not to adjourn until a housing bill is passed—just anything that has got a house in it.

Senators recall having read that one of the great English kings on a historic occasion shouted, "A horse! a horse! my kingdom for a horse!" And so the Senator from Ohio, and the Speaker of the House of Representatives, and the majority leader of the House, and the chairman of the Committee on Banking and Currency of the House are shouting, 'A house! a house! my candidacy for a house!" [Laughter.]

Mr. President, we ought to know something about what we are going to do here. I am perfectly willing to stay here indefinitely. I am as wide awake as any-one here. But it is rather ridiculous that every time we get a conference report in the Senate it should be necessary to go around and wake up sleeping Senators and ask them to come in to vote. Those just awakened have to ask, "On what are we going to vote? On what is it we are going to vote?" And each conference report must be explained to them in their yet sleepy condition.

If the Senator wants the Senate to recess for a few minutes, so that it may be seen what may come out of these "birthday" wards, very well, but we ought to make up our minds what we are going to do; whether we are going to pass a farm bill. We have not even voted whether we are going to take up the mining bill. Debate is being had on the motion to take it up. Surely we ought to be able to vote on the motion.

In all this confusion I am reminded of an expression which has come down to us from the great Roman orator, Cicero, who shouted, "O tempora! O mores! O hell!" [Laughter.]

Mr. MILLIKIN. Mr. President, I suggest that we proceed with the business before us.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The unfinished business is the motion of the Senator from Nebraska [Mr. WHERRY] to proceed to the consideration of Senate bill 2756.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Eightytwo Senators have answered to their names. A quorum is present.

The question is on agreeing to the motion of the Senator from Nebraska [Mr. WHERRY] that the Senate proceed to the consideration of Senate bill 2756.

Mr. KEM. Mr. President, I am not going to delay the vote, except for a few minutes. I merely wish to reply very briefly-

Mr. MILLIKIN. Mr. President, a parliamentary inquiry.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator will state it.

Mr. MILLIKIN. What is the rule on speaking twice in one day on the same subject?

Mr. KEM. This is my second speech. The PRESIDING OFFICER. rule still holds, but the present occupant of the Chair, not having been here all the time during this debate, is unable to say whether this is the second or tenth time the Senator from Missouri has spoken.

Mr. MILLIKEN. Mr. President, a parliamentary inquiry.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Senator will state it.

Mr. MILLIKIN. Is it an abiding rule in the Senate that when the occupant of the Chair comes in a new day and a deal commences, without any knowledge of what preceded?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. That is not the ideal way to proceed, but unfortunately the Chair does not keep record as perhaps he should keep them. So far as the Chair has been able to observe, however, the Senator from Missouri has been speaking, with the exception of one speech which the Chair has noted, in reply to questions which have been raised, or in other cases, where he has asked a Senator in the debate to yield. In that case that would not be a speech.

There has been a dis-Mr. MILLIKIN. tinct interval between the point where the Senator from Missouri left off before and his start at the present time. I respectfully suggest that we have not been engaged in a running fire of debate. The Senator yielded the floor, took his seat, and now he takes the floor again.

Mr. President, I make the point of order that the Senator from Missouri [Mr. KEM] has already spoken twice on the same subject on the same day.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. That is a question of fact. The Chair cannot answer that because the Chair has not been presiding all during this debate.

Mr. MILLIKIN. Mr. President, a parliamentary inquiry.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Senator will state it.

Mr. MILLIKIN. What are the procedures by which the Chair may advise himself as to the fact?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. None seem to have been created for a case of Mr. KEM. Mr. President, this is my second speech. I put certain questions to the Senator from Nevada; but I spoke but once before this time.

This is the second time I have addressed myself to the motion.

Mr. McFARLAND. Mr. President, I ask that the RECORD be read back, to determine how many speeches the Senator has made. That is a way to find

The PRESIDING OFFICER. That is correct. However, the Chair believes the Senator from Missouri to be an honest man; and if he says he has spoken only once in his own right, the Chair will accept his word for it.

Mr. MILLIKIN. Mr. President, I shall accept the Senator's word for it.

Mr. KEM. Mr. President, I say to the Chair that certainly is my recollection, although I realize that I may be in error.

Mr. MILLIKIN. I withdraw my point of order.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. point of order has been withdrawn.

The Senator from Missouri may proceed.

Mr. KEM. I thank the Chair.

Mr. President, I wish to answer briefly the points made by the Senator from Nevada and the Senator from Colorado. I understand there are two points.

First, they say this program is required for the national defense; they say additional supplies of these metals are required for the national defense.

In the second place they say the pricepremium plan will increase the produc-

As to whether additional metals are required for the national defense, it seems to me to be clear that the best evidence comes from the officials of our Government who are charged with responsibility for the national defense. I have never observed that where the national defense is concerned, there has been any hesitancy on the part of the officials in charge of the national defense to tell the Congress the facts or to address letters to the chairman of congressional committees, when they think the national defense is involved. Being the fine, patriotic men that they are, they could not do otherwise.

So, Mr. President, where are the statements from those who are charged with the national defense? On the contrary, they are conspicuous by their absence.

But we do have statements from the Chairman of the National Resources Board, from the Secretary of the Interior, from the Director of the Bureau of the Budget. All those statements are to one effect-and that is, that they do not agree with the principles of this bill, and that they do not believe this bill will accomplish what its proponents expect it to do.

In the second place, we do not have to speculate as to whether these pricepremium plans increase production. We know they get money into the hands of some people who otherwise would not have it, but we also know by the records that these price-premium plans do not increase production.

I hold in my hand a statement of the monthly lead and zinc production, by States, as prepared by the United States Bureau of Mines. The figures are given in pounds, for the States of Colorado, New Mexico, Utah, Idaho, Arizona, Washington, and California, and also for the Central States and the Eastern States. I ask unanimous consent that these figures may be inserted at this point in the Record.

There being no objection, the figures were ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

Mr. KEM. Mr. President, those figures show the production of each of those metals in each of the States and districts named, for 1946, and the corresponding production by months for the year 1947. Six months in 1947 were without price premium stimulation. Two other periods of 6 months were under the premium plans.

I shall not go into detail as to what these figures show; I shall simply summarize them briefly:

For Colorado, both lead and zinc production have risen since the termination of the premium-price plan. I invite the attention of the Senator from Colorado to that fact.

New Mexico: There was an increase in production of lead after the termination of subsidies. That increase is startling. Zinc products more than held their own.

Utah: Lead production has increased fairly steadily throughout the year, but in zinc there was a slight decline.

Idaho: The record shows that production increased as subsidies vanished.

Arizona: Very little change in production over the entire year.

Washington: Both lead and zinc products have increased.

California: Both lead and zinc products have shown a drop.

Central States: Lead production maintained. Zinc output off about 40 percent. Eastern States: No marked change in lead or zinc production.

In other words, Mr. President, if we wish to give some Government money to a lot of people in this industry, that is one thing. If we are really seriously interested in increasing the production of these metals, that is another thing.

There is no reason to believe, judging from the record, that the price-premium plan similar to this will effect that result.

Mr. MILLIKIN. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. KEM. I yield.

Mr. MILLIKIN. I invite the Senator's attention to the fact that if it does not produce, if it does not have an incentive effect, and if there is not additional ore. it will not cost anything.

Mr. KEM. Oh, yes it will. The Senator was never more wrong in his life.

I invite the Senator's attention to the provision about exploration payments. When such payments are made, we do not know whether anything will be produced or not. Probably all of us have had an opportunity to observe that; I know I

On page 6 it is provided:

Exploration payments shall be made at the discretion of the Director in amounts and on projects approved by him under rules as prescribed in section 3 (c).

Section 3 (c) provides:

(c) It shall be the duty of the Director, and he is hereby authorized and directed,
(1) to perform the functions hereinafter specifically authorized, and (2) to prescribe rules and regulations for carrying out the provisions of this act in the simplest manner.

In other words, the exploration payments will be made by the Director to anyone to whom he sees fit to make them, on whatever projects he sees fit to make them, according to the rules he himself prescribes.

Mr. MILLIKIN. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. KEM. I yield.

Mr. MILLIKIN. The distinguished Senator from Nevada said he would offer an amendment to delete the language to which the Senator from Missouri refers, on page 6. In a moment I shall read from page 6.

Let me read what page 5 says on the subject of exploration payments:

Exploration payments shall be made in addition to development and conservation payments within the limitations provided in section 6 of this act, upon application of any mine operator upon either of the following bases (1): Maximum exploration payments shall be based on production of recoverable metal produced from each mine operation at the rate of 7 cents per pound for the first

And so forth and so on, scaling down to a maximum of 2,000 tons.

I repeat that no payment is made unless the incentive plan works. Mr. KEM. I respectfully submit that payment is made. Mr. MILLIKIN. The Senator challenges that statement; does he?

Mr. KEM. Yes. Mr. MILLIKIN. But I have just read it; that is what the bill says.

Mr. KEM. The Senator from Colorado is referring to some other amendment which may or may not be adopted by the Senate.

Mr. MILLIKIN. No; I have read from the bill which the Senator has in front of him. I prefaced my remarks by saying that I would read a portion of the bill, on page 6-reading as follows:

(2) Exploration payments shall be made at discretion of the Director in amounts and on projects approved by him under rules as prescribed in section 3 (c).

I stated as a preface to my subsequent remarks that the sponsor of the bill, the distinguished Senator from Nevada, offer an amendment to eliminate that. I have been reading from what remains in the bill after that is done.

Mr. KEM. The point I have in mind is that the bill we are voting on now is not the bill as subsequently amended. but the bill as reported by the committee.

Mr. FLANDERS. Mr. President, will the Senator yield for the consideration of a very difficult situation?

Mr. KEM. I yield, without prejudice. CONTINUANCE OF JOINT COMMITTEE ON HOUSING

Mr. FLANDERS. Mr. President. I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of Calendar 1484, the concurrent resolution (H. Con. Res. 197), and I shall explain my reasons for so doing.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mr. MILLIKIN. I object.

Mr. FLANDERS. Mr. President, will the Senator let me explain?

Mr. MILLIKIN. I will, reserving the right to object.

Mr. FLANDERS. Mr. President, the Hon, RALPH A. GAMBLE, Chairman of the Joint Committee on Housing, was liable and has paid from his own pocket $1,700 in expenses to the staff of his committee. In order to relieve him of that expense, I ask unanimous consent for the immediate consideration of the concurrent resolution.

Mr. MILLIKIN. I offer no objection. The PRESIDING OFFICER. For the information of the Senate, the clerk will read the concurrent resolution by title.

The LEGISLATIVE CLERK. A concurrent resolution to continue the Joint Committee on Housing beyond March 15, 1948, and for other purposes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the concurrent resolution (H. Con. Res. 197), which had been reported from the Committee on Banking and Currency, with an amend-ment, on page 2, line 1, after the word "continue" to strike out "until July 15, 1948" and insert "from May 15, 1948, until July 1, 1948."

Mr. FLANDERS. Mr. President, I would waive the amendment if I may be allowed to do so, because it is no longer necessary.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, agreed to.

Mr. O'MAHONEY. Mr. President. I was on my feet before the Chair ruled. The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair did not rule.

Mr. O'MAHONEY. The Chair said the motion was agreed to.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Chair said "without objection." The Senator raises objection, so that annuls what the Chair said.

Mr. O'MAHONEY. I desire to raise a question as to whether the Senator from Vermont has authority to waive an amendment reported by a committee. I do not know what the amendment is or what the resolution is. It is merely another example of the chaotic condition into which we find ourselves plunged. I feel that before unanimous consent is granted on a matter of this kind we ought to know what kind of amendment is being considered.

Mr. FLANDERS. Mr. President, I suggest that the amendment be read.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will read the amendment.

The LEGISLATIVE CLERK. On page 2. line 1, after the word "continue", it is proposed to strike out "until July 15, 1948" and insert "from May 15, 1948, until July 1, 1948."

Mr. FLANDERS. I may say for the information of the Senator from Wyoming that I wrote the amendment myself and put it in the concurrent resolution. but I do not blame the Senator for not knowing that. I shall ask for a vote on the amendment.

Mr. MYERS. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. FLANDERS. Does the Senator from Pennsylvania intend to speak on the amendment?

Mr. MYERS. Might I ask the purpose of the amendment?

Mr. FLANDERS. Mr. President, the purpose is to curtail the operations of the committee. They have already been curtailed, as I understand.

Mr. MYERS. But I am asking the purpose of the amendment that was just

Mr. FLANDERS. It is to shorten the time.

Mr. MYERS. So as to run up to July 1?

Mr. FLANDERS. Until July 1.

Mr. MYERS. Why is it necessary to extend the life of the committee until July 12

Mr. FLANDERS. According to the chairman of the committee, there is quite a bit of detailed work to be cleaned up, and it involves one female clerk.

Mr. MYERS. Again reserving the right to object, it was my understanding the committee had been continued.

Mr. FLANDERS. I suggest the Senator from Pennsylvania continue.

Mr. TYDINGS. I should like to ask whether the amendment which the Senator is describing has anything to do with the housing bill.

Mr. FLANDERS. The resolution has something to do with the reports of the Joint Committee on Housing, on which the housing bill was presumably based.

Mr. MYERS. Mr. President, it is my understanding that the life of the committee had been extended for a period of a month or two, the reason given at the time for the extension being that there was some work still to be finished. A resolution was then introduced to continue the life of the committee again for a month or two. I understand that primarily the chairman of the committee has himself expended considerable sums of money in order to pay the two employees. I understand the employees have been engaged in sending out 15,000 or 16,000 copies of a staff report, whereas only 1,500 or 1,600 copies of the committee report were printed. Of course the staff report is not at all in accord with the views contained in the committee report. I do not desire to prevent Representative Gamble from being reimbursed for moneys he has expended, but the two employees have been sending throughout the country propaganda against the findings of the committee itself and I see no reason to continue the committee until July 1. Would it not sufficiently protect Mr. Gamble if the life of the committee were extended only until July 15, or until June 15?

Mr. FLANDERS. I was about to say to the Senator that his arithmetic puzzled me a little bit.

Mr. MYERS. Until June 15.

Mr. FLANDERS. Until June 15. Let us see; when does that happen?

Mr. MYERS. It has already occurred. Mr. FLANDERS. That is all right. Why not make a motion to that effect.

Mr. MYERS. Why not strike out the amendment? What is the concurrent resolution? What does it provide? Mr. President, I move to strike out the date "July 1" and substitute "June 15, 1948."

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is that agreeable to the Senator from Vermont?

Mr. FLANDERS. Perfectly.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment proposed by the Senator from Pennsylvania to the committee amendment.

The amendment to the amendment was agreed to.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question now is on agreeing to the committee amendment as amended.

Mr. O'MAHONEY. Mr. President, the remarks of the Senator from Pennsylvania raised a very interesting question, it seems to me. Do I correctly understand that the staff report to which he refers is that report which has been described in the newspapers as the report prepared by the real-estate lobby to defeat the purposes of the Taft-Ellender-Wagner bill?

Mr. FLANDERS. That is a most unfair description of the report. If I may give my own impression of what has been going on, the staff has been running away with the chairman.

Mr. O'MAHONEY. I can hardly understand.

Mr. CAIN. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. O'MAHONEY. I yield.

Mr. CAIN. I am constrained to think that is a very interesting but strange suggestion of the Senator, in view of the fact that the Senator from Vermont—

Mr. O'MAHONEY. I have made no suggestion, I may say to the Senator. I was merely raising the question. I know from what I have read in the newspapers that charges have been made that the real-estate lobby had succeeded in inducing the staff of one of the committees to prepare a propaganda release, which has been broadcast throughout the country. Whether that is true or not, I have no information.

The remarks of the Senator from Pennsylvania have certainly raised a question. Does the Senator from Washington know whether or not this staff report is in fact a report which is contradictory of the position of the committee?

Mr. CAIN. I think not, sir, particularly for the reason that the distinguished Senator from Vermont, who believes sincerely in public housing and is asking for the adoption of the resolution, simply could not ask for its consideration if there were truth in the question which the Senator has raised.

Mr. O'MAHONEY. It is not in the question; it is in the report. I am only asking a question. May I say that I have a great deal of confidence in the distinguished junior Senator from Vermont.

Mr. CAIN. Both of us have.

Mr. O'MAHONEY. I am in complete harmony with the point of view he has expressed. These reports have been in circulation with reference to the public-housing section of the bill to which the Senator from Washington has been very vigorously opposed.

Mr. CAIN. Yes.

Mr. O'MAHONEY. It has been pigeonholed in the Rules Committee of the House. I know that the Jenner bill which passed the Senate today and to which the Senator from Ohio alluded a few moments ago is now in the House of Representatives, and there is a rumor that it is now being subjected to a process of having attached to it those portions of the housing bill which the realestate lobby has been supporting, and there will be eliminated the portions which have been defended by the Senator from Vermont. So in this chaos I want to be sure that the Members of the Senate know exactly what is being done, and I certainly want to know,

Mr. CAIN. I can see no connection between the pigeonhole to which the Senator refers and the housing report to which the Senator from Vermont has addressed himself.

Mr. O'MAHONEY. I have no doubt that is true. But the situation is such that Members of the Senate, unless they ask questions, will not know what is being done. I happened to go into the lobby a few moments ago and there I met some very estimable ladies whom I have known for many years. They represent the Woman's Party. The ladies told me that responsible Republican Senators had informed them that the equal rights amendment was on the agenda of the majority for disposal at this session, before we adjourn. I wonder if that is I wonder what we are going to do. The Senator from Ohio a moment ago said there were only two matters which are left for consideration. One is the farm bill and one is the Jenner bill. The resolution deals with housing. But I am sure the plan which is now given to us is that the extension of the life of the committee has nothing to do with the compensation to those who may have prepared a propaganda report which was circulated throughout the country to defeat the recommendations of the committee itself.

Mr. CAIN. It is certainly my understanding, sir, as a member of the joint committee, that the purpose of the resolution in question is to pay the salaries and wages of three of the members of the clerical staff, who had nothing whatsoever to do with the molding of the policy that went into the report.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment as amended.

The amendment as amended was agreed to.

The concurrent resolution as amended was agreed to.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, the title will be appropriately modified.

STIMULATION OF PRODUCTION AND CON-SERVATION OF STRATEGIC AND CRITI-CAL ORES, METALS, AND MINERALS

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on the motion of the Senator from Nebraska to proceed to the consideration of Senate bill 2756.

Mr. BALL. Mr. President, I should like to make a few comments on the subject, and also on some of the speeches which have been made.

I listened a few moments ago to the distinguished minority leader, the Senator from Kentucky [Mr. Barkley] for whom I have as much affection, I think, as I have for any other Member of this body. I heard him comment on the chaotic situation which prevails as the Senate tries to dispose of its business before adjourning. I must admit I was somewhat disturbed. Usually I find myself pretty much in agreement with statements on policy made by the Senator from Kentucky. But I cannot quite go along with the statement made this time, because it seemed to me to be not in accord with the facts.

I have attended several closing sessions of Congress, and it seems to me that every one I have ever attended has wound up in pretty much the present situation. I do not see anything particularly unusual about it, nor is there anything unusual in the fact that several measures for which there is strong pressure from various groups did not happen to become law. That happens at every session of Congress.

I think that during this session, more than in any other that I can remember in 8 years, Congress has tried to handle more issues than any legislative body could possibly handle, consider, and give really intelligent consideration to in one 6-months session. I recognize that there is a philosophy, an ideology, abroad in the world that concentrates on the weaknesses and the evils in the present system and insists that overnight we should make over our whole system of economy. I simply cannot go along with that kind of philosophy. It seems to me, from my reading of history, that every time a free people have succumbed to the idea and plea that they should make their society over, overnight, and cure all its problems overnight, they have wound up with a dictatorship under which the people have been slaves.

Under the rules of the Senate, which permit unlimited debate-and while I think it is sometimes abused, there is much to be said for it-there is a limit to how many major controversial issues this body can intelligently consider in one session.

Mr. President, I think the Congress in recent years has succumbed to the pressure of a great many groups who are not interested in preserving in this country a free parliamentary system of government. One of their techniques for destroying that system is continually to upbraid Congress as a do-nothing body dominated by pressure groups and lobbyists, and all that sort of thing, which never gets anything done for the people, and the impression is sought to be given that somehow the people all would be the beneficiaries of what this or that particular pressure group seeks to put over. So every session we are loaded down with literally dozens of major controversial measures-housing, agriculture, national defense, legislation for compulsory health insurance, and I could go on almost indefinitely enumerating them. Each session when the Congress does not pass all these measures it is a do-nothing Congress.

Mr. President, I think a Congress which in one session has passed the European recovery program, passed a tax-reduction bill, passed a national defense program, including a 70-group Air Force and a selective-service-in-peacetime bill. has disposed of about as many major controversial issues in 6 months as would be possible in any legislative body which really considered the issues on their merits, with due regard to their longrange implications in a free system of enterprise.

I think it ill befits those who profess to believe in democracy and a free system continually to upbraid and criticize, not individual Members of the Congress for the positions they take on various issues, but the institution of Congress because it does not remake the world overnight. The only way it is possible to remake the world overnight is by granting complete, arbitrary, and absolute power to one individual to do the job, and that is dictatorship. If it is left to a parliamentary system, where something over 500 men and women have to act by a majority and reach agreement on a given position on a major controversial issue, it is not possible to resolve such issues overnight, and it is about time that the Congress of the United States and the American people recognized that fact, and quit demanding that Congress do everything in one session, because it cannot be done, freedom retained, and a parliamentary system in the United States of America kept intact.

Mr. President, what I have said is apart from the presently pending business, which is the motion to take up the bill to authorize Federal subsidies totaling $80,000,000 a year for certain mineral producers in the United States; but I think it is pertinent to the motion, at 4 a. m. on Sunday morning, June 20, for the Senate to take up and consider such

Mr. President, I am a strong believer in the system of free enterprise. I think it has been abused, I grant it has been abused, but I think that over the years the freedom we have granted to individuals, whether they are workers who have only the skill and the labor of their hands and their brains to sell, or the individuals who have capital to invest, has paid tremendous dividends to all the people of America. I believe in the free system.

Mr. President, I do not believe in subsidies. As I read this bill, it authorizes $80,000,000 for subsidies to private corporations in the United States who take national resources out of the soil and sell them for what they can get. I was under the impression-and it is intensified by the speeches I have heard from the other side of the aisle-that we are in sort of a boom in this country, and that we are particularly short of various minerals. If the free enterprise system is as good as I think it is, I cannot understand for the life of me why at this late hour in the morning the United States Senate should be asked to consider a measure proposing an $80,000,000 subsidy to that free enterprise in order to induce it to produce the minerals we need for our economy.

Mr. President, if our production of the minerals which we need to support our economy is in such a sad state that private enterprise owners have to come to Washington begging for a subsidy of $80,000,000, then I am gravely disturbed. If we really need that kind of a subsidy to make the free-enterprise system produce what the American economy needs in order to achieve prosperity and abundance, then I think we are confronted with a further consideration, namely, if that is the case, then perhaps we had better question whether we want free enterprise and the exploitation of these natural resources, or whether we want to adopt the socialist system, and turn the whole ownership and operation and exploitation of these natural resources over to the state.

Frankly, Mr. President, I do not think this time is quite appropriate to consider that kind of a fundamental question, and it seems to me it is inevitably involved in this subsidy proposition.

Mr. MILLIKIN. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. BALL. I yield.

Mr. MILLIKIN. Does not the Senator think that the hands of the clock keep going around and that this country will be jeopardized if we do not have stock piles?

Mr. BALL. I rather think the stock piles are there whether they are in the ground or whether on top. I have sufficient confidence in the free people of America to make me feel that if they confront an emergency they will get what they need one way or another. do not think we have to subsidize private corporations to build up stock piles of materials we need for the defense of America. If we have come to that point in the United States of America, then I am really disturbed about where we are

Mr. MILLIKIN. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. BALL. I yield. Mr. MILLIKIN. Have we now stock piles adequate to our defense needs?

Mr. BALL. Frankly, I doubt if we do. I do not think we had stock piles adequate to our needs when we got into World War II on December 7, 1941.

Mr. MILLIKIN. Mr. President, will the Senator again yield?

Mr. BALL. I yield for a question.

Mr. MILLIKIN. The Senator knows, does he not, that within the past year we have taken the tariff off copper, we have taken the tariff off zinc, we have taken the tariff off lead? Yet our stock piles are empty, and we cannot import enough to fill our stock piles and to meet our domestic needs. Many factories are running half time because they cannot secure enough lead. Does not that, in the opinion of the Senator, present some sort of an emergency?

Mr. BALL. If we are so tremendously short of these minerals, if industries are closing down because they cannot secure them, I wonder why the law of supply and demand, which I always thought operated regardless of what kind of laws we pass here, have not operated to fix a price on these minerals which would result in the increasing production we need in the United States or that is needed anywhere else in the world.

Mr. MILLIKIN. I suggest to the Senator that the American stock piles are empty, though there is no tariff at all on lead, copper, and zinc. If we cannot fill our stock piles with lead, copper, and zinc we cannot keep our economy going. That leads us to one of two things: We will either build up those stock piles by increasing our production, or we will have allocation, and allocation does not square with a free-enterprise system.

Mr. BALL. I agree with the Senator completely. I am not in favor of allocation, I am not in favor of price fixing, and I am not in favor of subsidies. If we are going to go Socialist, then I think we ought to face the issue squarely and go all the way. I do not believe in socializing only a part of the economy, and doing it only to the extent of subsidizing a few private producers.

Mr. MILLIKIN. Does the Senator favor filling the stock piles?

Mr. BALL. I am in favor of doing that, but I am not in favor of a few private producers holding a club over the head of the United States, and saying, "We will not produce what you need unless you give us a subsidy." That does not make

Mr. MILLIKIN. How can the United States get these vital strategic materials? It is proposed to take boys into the service through the draft to protect our American system, to protect the private enterprise system.

Mr. BALL. The Senator has raised the question of the draft. Freedom implies responsibility. It implies the responsibility, if necessary, to defend that very system and the freedom which is guaranteed by the laws and the Constitution of this country against all its enemies if the representatives of the people consider that necessary. Freedom carries with it responsibilities, and the draft is the freest way of providing for the defense of the Nation of which I can conceive. That is much different, I may say to the Senator, from the Government dishing out subsidies to—I do not know how many producers of these minerals there are—dishing out subsidies to them of $80.000.000.

Mr. MILLIKIN. The Senator was not in the Chamber—and if he had heard the statement it would perhaps not make any difference so far as his argument is concerned—when the junior Senator from Nevada [Mr. Malone] said he was going to offer an amendment to make the amount $60,000,000, and to lessen the term from 4 years to 3 years.

Mr. BALL. I do not like subsidies—period. I do not care whether the amount is $35,000,000 or $80,000,000.

Mr. MILLIKIN. I do not care to confuse the two subjects.

Mr. BALL. Mr. President, I think I have stated my position. I hope the Senate will defeat the motion to consider a bill of this nature involving a subsidy of $80,000,000 a year, which in my opinion is completely repugnant. I am not impressed by the idea that a lot of presidents of corporations want subsidies. I recognize that many business executives in this country do not really believe in a free system. They are always coming here looking for special privilege just like many other groups.

Mr. MALONE. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. BALL. I submit that at this hour of the morning, on the closing day of the session of Congress, is not the time to bring up a question involving the fundamental issues involved in this measure.

I now yield to the Senator from Nevada for a question.

Mr. MALONE. Is the Senator aware that four or five times in the last 12 months the Secretary of the Interior has asked for very large sums of money for exploration, and to increase the production of minerals? I think his first suggestion, 2 or 3 years ago, was that there be an appropriation of $20,000,000,000 for exploration and all. Now he comes down to about one billion.

Mr. BALL. Did the Senator say twenty billion?

Mr. MALONE. I did for a fact.

Mr. BALL. What Secretary of the Interior was that-Mr. Krug?

Mr. MALONE. Mr. Krug.

Mr. BALL. He must be having hallucinations. Twenty billion dollars.

Mr. MALONE. The record is clear, and I would get it and show it to the Senator if the hour were not so late. I want to bring to the attention of the Senator from Minnesota the fact that we have not given him the money, but that we have a choice to make. This plan would put the money into the hands, not of corporations—that does sound very bad. Very few of the large ones would get this particular aid. But the small ones would. Those are the ones it is designed to aid.

Mr. BALL. May I ask the Senator, what is the difference between a large and a small corporation in the United States of America? I do not believe in discrimination.

Mr. MALONE. I will say to the Senator that I am just as much a privateownership man as he is, as the record will show. But the purpose of giving a Government official $1,000,000,000 and that, I think, was the last requestor any greater amount is to put metal stock piles, so as to implement the thing the Senator and I voted for a very few days ago, which is to put the drafted boys on the front line when the shooting starts. We have now seen it happen twice that we have entered into a war with practically bare hands, and now it is proposed to send the drafted boys into the front lines again, if a war should come, without an adequate stock pile of minerals which will be so desperately needed to provide the boys with the necessary muni-

Perhaps there will not be an emergency tonight, or very soon—we hope there will not be—but if this opportunity is passed up it will mean that we have nearly empty stock piles and we will not produce from present existing facilities needed to fill up the stock piles. If war should come it would be impossible to produce from present existing facilities sufficient minerals to conduct a war. Properly to conduct a war it is necessary that we have a stock pile ready. It is necessary that we have mines operating in this country when the submarines cut off supplies from abroad.

Mr. BALL. I think the Senator from Nevada has made an admirable argument in favor of the Government taking over the whole industry. If private enterprise cannot produce the minerals essential to prosperity and a prosperous, abundant economy in the United States, and the needs of our national defense, then I will say it has failed, and we should adopt socialism in that field, but I am not willing to do it by way of a subsidy to a group of private corporations.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the motion of the Senator from Nebraska to proceed to the consideration of Senate bill 2756.

Mr. SALTONSTALL. Mr. President, may I approach this question briefly, from another point of view, a little different, perhaps, than that expressed by the Senator from Minnesota [Mr. Ball].

I hope very much that this motion will not prevail, and that we shall not take up this bill in the closing hours of this session. As a member of the Committee on Armed Services, I recall that Mr. Hill appeared before us on several occasions. I think I was present at all of them. At none of them that I can remember did Mr. Hill mention a subject of this character. Subsequently Mr. Kramer, his assistant, came before us in connection with the problem of building up our resources, but Mr. Kramer came before us to preserve, at the cost of several million dollars-not as many as this bill would require, but if I remember rightly, about $15,000,000 or $16,000,000 year-certain factories and plants which we had built up during the war. and which we were keeping in a mothball condition. Those factories were going to pieces because the machinery was deteriorating and because the conditions under which we kept them were not adequate. So we passed a bill at this session of Congress to make it possible for those factories to be kept in a more active condition, in case we needed more resources in a time of emergency; but at no time, so far as I can remember, did he mention a matter of this character.

More recently I have been a member of the Committee on Appropriations, which has considered appropriations for the Army and Navy, and ordnance in connection therewith. Certainly so far as the Navy ordnance is concerned, no question was raised as to the building of a stock pile. They asked for very substantial increases for increased ordnance, but they did not mention a subject of this character.

I remember very clearly a speech which was made in this body by my colleague [Mr. Lodge] before he went into the Army in 1943. Whether it was after Pearl Harbor or just before, I cannot remember, but at that time he spoke of the fact that this country was no longer a self-supporting country, and that it never would be again entirely a self-supporting country in the matter of its natural resources. At that time, 8 years ago, he raised this same question of how selfsupporting we could be, and how much we could build our supplies of natural resources. So it seems to me that if we are going to consider the question of stock piling there are natural resources which should be given a very complete study before we go into the question of subsidizing, at a very substantial amount each year in the form of Government aid to some of our more marginal production mines.

Mr. MILLIKIN. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. SALTONSTALL. I yield.

Mr. MILLIKIN. I merely wish to invite the distinguished Senator's attention to the fact that this subject has received repeated study. It has been before the House in extensive hearings several times. The distinguished Senator from Nevada [Mr. Malone] has held lengthy and elaborate hearings on the subject. So far as congressional knowledge is concerned, it is not a subject of complete novelty.

Mr. SALTONSTALL. I will say to my friend from Colorado that I realize that it is not a complete novelty in any way. What I was trying to bring out was that the question of undertaking a new subsidy on the last night of a session, when there is a very substantial cost involved, should be given very complete debate and thorough study and discussion of what we have and what we have not. I know that my colleague from Colorado is on the committee which has to do with atomic energy. I do not begin to know that subject, but I believe from what I know that there again is a question of some of the resources which perhaps will not always be entirely in this country.

All those questions enter into the picture. But the point I wish to make particularly is that in my personal discussions with Mr. Hill I have never heard this subject mentioned by him.

Mr. MILLIKIN. One of the astonishing things in connection with all these reports and expert opinions is that the experts never come forth with a constructive plan, and they never come forth with a stock pile. Our stock piles are empty, and we do not have enough of these materials for our domestic industry. Here is an affirmative measure to produce additional supplies of strategic materials. We do not pay for anything that is not produced. What is the alternative? I suggest to the distinguished Senator that the alternative is that which was developed in the colloguy between the Senator from Minnesota [Mr. Ball] and myself, namely, allocation. Allocation will not fill the stock piles, nor will it fill the bins of our manufacturers who, in many instances, are shut down or partially shut down because they do not have these materials. We must have an affirmative method of increasing the supply of materials. We have removed the tariffs, and the material has not come in, because the needs of other countries are somewhat similar to our own. We are getting some, but still our supply taken from all sources, with no tariff, and free importation, is completely inadequate. We neither supply our domestic peacetime needs nor are we supplying our military stock piles.

Mr. McFARLAND. Mr. President, will
the Senator yield?

Mr. SALTONSTALL. Let me briefly reply to the Senator from Colorado.

My reply to my distinguished colleague is that, as a result of the war, the whole economy of the world today, and our economy in this country are unbalanced. We have the largest peacetime productive income today in the history of our Nation—probably in the history of the world. The Senator knows the figures much better than I do; but if my memory serves me aright, our productive income is running at the rate of $241,-000,000,000 a year.

Mr. MILLIKIN. These statistical inquiries and these interesting philosophical facets of the subject do not put strategic materials in the stock piles, and that is where we need them.

Mr. SALTONSTALL. Mr. President, there is another reason that appeals to me enormously against adopting this motion at this time, and that is the very fundamental question of the cost. There are some of us in this body who voted against TVA. We may have so voted for several reasons. I know the two reasons why I voted against it. One was the question of cost, ultimately running up to some $84,000,000 in the coming years. The other was, of course, the very deep and fundamental question of the extension of public power in our economy.

This is another bill that would enter a new field and cost approximately $80,-000,000 a year running over a period of 4 or 5 years. Eighty million dollars would be the minimum that would be spent. I wish to correct myself because I see the Senator approaching me. The $80,000,000 is a possibility; and there is the administrative cost, in addition to the uncertainty in connection with various other sections of the bill, which may involve a substantial amount over $80,000,000.

Mr. MILLIKIN. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. SALTONSTALL. I yield for a question.

Mr. MILLIKIN. By this time all the arguments as to uncertainty have been dispelled, I believe, because the sponsor of the bill has agreed to take out of it one paragraph which I believe was the cause of the uncertainty. He has also agreed to reduce the amount of money involved to $60,000,000 a year and to reduce the term from 4 years to 3 years.

Mr. SALTONSTALL. I thank the Senator for the information.

Mr. KEM. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. SALTONSTALL. I yield.

Mr. KEM. I should like to ask if there is not necessarily an intangible amount of ore and metals to be produced, and to be purchased by the RFC, as a result of the incentive payments.

I invite attention to page 8, subparagraph (b), reading, in part, as follows:

(b) All additional ores, metals, and minerals or the equivalent thereof resulting from incentive payments and which comply with Munitions Board minimum stock-pile specifications shall be purchased by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

So far as I know, no one who has examined this bill has undertaken seriously to estimate what the expenditure there would be. Does the Senator agree with me?

Mr. SALTONSTALL. I agree with the Senator. I heard the Senator's discussion on that point.

Mr. MILLIKIN. The maximum expenditure under the suggested amendment would be $60,000,000 a year.

I think the distinguished Senator from Missouri is overlooking the fact that when the ores are bought, certain reimbursements come back to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, which leaves the $60,000,000 available for paying the premium, and the $60,000,000 takes care of the market price, independently of the premium.

Mr. KEM. Mr. President, I should like to ask whether that reimbursement is not provided for at the bottom of page 8. I read:

(c) The Bureau of Federal Supply of the Treasury Department shall reimburse the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to the extent of the current market price for all metals, minerals, and ores placed in the national security stock pile under this section.

In other words, I should like to ask the Senator from Massachusetts, is not that just taking the money out of one pocket and putting it in another, and in the last analysis, is not the outlay an outlay by the Government?

Mr. SALTONSTALL. I understood that under the bill the Reconstruction Finance Corporation would put up the money; and then when the goods were purchased by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, they would be taken over into another account.

Mr. KEM. Is not that a payment on the part of the Federal Government?

Mr. SALTONSTALL. I would not assume that the Federal Government could stock pile without paying for it.
Mr. MILLIKIN. Mr. President, the

Mr. MILLIKIN. Mr. President, the Bureau of Federal Supply is the agency of the Treasury which operates under the appropriation for stock-pile purposes, which already has been made by the Congress. Speaking very roughly, I think they have half a billion dollars available for that purpose.

Mr. SALTONSTALL. Mr. President, I hope this measure will not be taken up for consideration, because it is a new subject, at a very late hour, so far as most of us are concerned, and it is going to be an expensive subject, and it goes into a whole new form of assistance to our economy.

Mr. President, I ask that the motion be

Mr. KEM. I ask for the yeas and

Mr. GREEN. Mr. President, during this long debate I have noticed that it has been stated over and over again that there is a limitation on the amount which it might cost the Government, that limitation being stated as $80,000,000. That sum is mentioned twice in section 7 of the bill, but it is not a limitation on the amount which this bill would cost the Government.

I draw my colleague's attention to that by reading the words of section 7, which comprises two paragraphs. One is that:

All disbursements for exploration and development and conservation payments as authorized by this act shall be made by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and shall not exceed $80,000,000 in any 1 year—

That is one provision. Then there is another provision—

nor shall any commitment be made by any officer or employee of the United States which obligates the United States Government (including all departments and agencies thereof) to make disbursements for exploration and development and conservation payments as authorized by this act in excess of $80,000,000 in the aggregate in any 1 year.

So that is another provision of $80,-000,000. Together, those made $160,-000,000.

Mr. McFARLAND. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. GREEN. Not yet; I have not finished the sentence.

Mr. McFARLAND. It is a rather long sentence.

Mr. GREEN. Well, I have the floor. I think many Senators who have asked questions have made much longer speeches and have not had them counted against them as their two speeches on this question, and I am not sure but that the Senator who interrupted me is guilty of that himself.

I say that these two limitations of $80,-000,000 each make a total of $160,000,000; but that is not all, because that counts only as the disbursements by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation; and commitments may be made by officers and employees of the United States.

In addition to those two, commitments are to be made by the Bureau itself. That provision has just been read:

All additional ores, metals, and minerals or the equivalent thereof resulting from incentive payments and which comply with Munitions Board minimum stock-pile specifications shall be purchased by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

In other words, there is a third element. That is merely one example of the commitments made by the bill. They do not come under the head of either of the others, and that is an indefinite amount.

So, instead of being $160,000,000, it may be $300,000,000 or $400,000,000 or $500,000,000.

If it is plain, as I have no doubt the Senator who is sitting on the edge of his chair, waiting to ask me a question, will claim, that such commitments are covered by one or the other of the paragraphs previously mentioned, I may say it is very poor drafting, because the words do not bear out the idea.

Mr. McFARLAND. Mr. President, if the Senator will yield for a question, let me ask if that is all the objection the Senator from Rhode Island has to the bill? If we cure that, so as to provide for a maximum of $160,000,000, is the Senator willing to vote for this bill then? Is that all the objection the Senator has to it?

Mr. GREEN. It certainly is not.

Mr. McFARLAND. Then I ask the Senator to state the other objection. We should like to have the bill brought up for consideration.

Mr. GREEN. The way to have it brought up for early consideration is not to ask me to restate all the objections which have been stated during the last few hours. [Laughter.]

Mr. McFARLAND. But I want to find out what the Senator's objection is. He has stated one, and we can cure that one easily enough, if that is his only

Mr. GREEN. Mr. President, the argument is as illogical as the phasing of the bill is irregular.

Mr. McFARLAND. Mr. President, will the Senator yield for a question?

Mr. GREEN. I yield.

Mr. McFARLAND. I want to know whether the Senator thinks perfecting a bill is an illogical argument.

Mr. GREEN. Mr. President, I think there have been too many so-called questions allowed by the Presiding Officer as questions, when in reality they have been speeches. They really should be counted against the questioner as the first of the two speeches to which he is entitled. I regret the necessity for a ruling of that kind.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. That will be taken up when the rules are revised.

Mr. GREEN. But I think the Chair has been very lenient in allowing many Senators to make speeches at length in the guise of questions, and long colloquies to be drawn out under the guise of a question and an answer. I thought it my duty to call my colleague's attention to the fact there is no limitation on the number of millions of dollars or, theoretically, billions of dollars, to which the United States Government might be committed if the bill were passed in its present form.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the motion of the Senator from Nebraska [Mr. Wherry] to proceed to consideration of Senate bill 2756.

Mr. KEM. I ask for the yeas and nays. The yeas and nays were ordered, and the legislative clerk called the roll.

Mr. WHERRY. I announce that the Senator from South Dakota [Mr. Bushfield], the Senator from Kansas [Mr. Capper], the Senator from Massachusetts [Mr. Lodge], the Senator from Wyoming [Mr. Robertson], the Senator from Maine [Mr. White], and the Senator from Iowa [Mr. Wilson] are necessarily absent.

The Senator from New Hampshire [Mr. Bridges], the Senator from Delaware [Mr. Buck], the Senator from Washington [Mr. Cain], the Senator from Oregon [Mr. Cordon], and the Senator from New Jersey [Mr. Hawkes] are detained on official business.

The Senator from California [Mr. Knowland], the Senator from Oklahoma [Mr. Moore], the Senator from Kansas [Mr. Reed], the Senator from West Virginia [Mr. Revercomb], the Senator from New Hampshire [Mr. Tobey], and the Senator from Wisconsin [Mr. Wiley] are unavoidably detained.

Mr. LUCAS. I announce that the Senator from California [Mr. Downey], the Senator from Mississippi [Mr. Eastland], the Senator from Arkansas [Mr. Mc-Clellan], the senior Senator from Tennessee [Mr. McKellan], the Senator from Maryland [Mr. O'Conor], the junior Senator from Tennessee [Mr. Stewart], the Senator from Nevada [Mr. McCarran], the Senator from Nevada [Mr. Taylor], and the Senator from New York [Mr. Wagner] are necessarily absent.

The Senator from Georgia [Mr. George] is absent because of a death in his family.

The Senator from Utah [Mr. Thomas] is absent by leave of the Senate, having been appointed a national delegate by the President to the annual conference of the International Labor Organization, meeting in San Francisco, Calif.

I announce further that if present and voting, the Senator from Maryland [Mr. O'Conor] would vote "nay."

The result was announced—yeas 40, nays 28, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That this act may be cited as the "National Minerals Development and Conservation Act of 1948."

STATEMENT OF POLICY

SEC. 2. It is the policy of the Congress that every effort be made to stimulate the exploration, development, mining, and maximum production of strategic and critical metals and minerals by private enterprise to supply the industrial, military, and naval needs of the United States by providing for the development and conservation of these materials in order to decrease and prevent, wherever possible, a dangerous and costly dependence of the United States upon foreign nations for supplies of such materials. To this end it is the further policy of the Congress that every effort be made to stimulate, stabilize, and maintain a sound and active mining industry within the United States and to coordinate the programs now provided for or to be provided for by law for making scientific, technologic, and economic investigations concerning the extent and mode of occurrence; the development, min-ing preparation, treatment, and utilization of ores and other mineral substances found in the United States or its Territories or insular possessions which are essential to the common defense or the industrial needs of the United States; and to stimulate the commercial extraction and production of the

SEC. 3. (a) There is hereby created within the Department of the Interior a Mine Incentive Payments Division, hereinafter called the "Division."

(b) The administrative officers of the Division shall be a Director, suitably qualified in actual administrative and mining experi-ence, and an Assistant Director. The salaries of the Director and Assistant Director shall be $12,000 per annum and $10,000 per annum, respectively. In the absence of the Director his duties shall be performed by the Assistant Director.

(c) It shall be the duty of the Director, and he is hereby authorized and directed,
(1) to perform the functions hereinafter specifically authorized, and (2) to prescribe rules and regulations for carrying out the provisions of this act in the simplest manner.

(d) The Director may select, employ, and fix the compensation of such engineers and other experts as may be necessary to carry out the purposes of this act without regard to the civil-service laws and the Classification Act of 1923 and shall employ such other

SEC. 4. All of the functions of the Office of Premium Price Plan for Copper, Lead, and Zinc, pertaining to the administration of said plan are hereby transferred to the Di-vision, together with all pertinent records and equipment.

SEC. 5. (a) To carry out the purposes of this act, development and conservation pay-ments shall be made hereunder for all ores, metals, and minerals determined to be strategic or critical, pursuant to section 2 (a), Public Law 520 (79th Cong., ch. 590, 2d sess.), and included in group A of the Munitions Board list of strategic and critical materials, dated January 1948, together with any minerals or metals that subsequently may be added thereto, produced from ores, dumps, tailings, slag piles, and residues (excluding scrap materials), except that in the event that the Munitions Board shall find that further purchases of particular ores, metals, or minerals for national security stock-pile purposes are no longer necessary or shall within 1 year of the date of finding cease to be necessary, then (1) if such finding is made within 30 days after the effective date of this act, no payments shall be made under the authority of this act, except in cases of small mines as hereinafter provided, with respect to such ores, metals, or minerals, and (2) if such finding is made more than 30 days after the effective date of this act, no payments under the authority of this act shall be made with respect to such ores, metals, or minerals, produced after 1 year from the date of such finding except in cases of small mines as hereinafter provided: Provided, That in the event any such findings are amended by the Munitions Board to the effect that purchases of such ores, metals, or minerals have again become necessary for national security stock-pile purposes the payment provisions of this act shall again become applicable subject to the limitations of this paragraph. Such payments shall be calculated at such rates within the limitations defined in this act so as to encourage exploration and development, increase production, and effect conservation and make reasonable allowances for depreciation and depletion and afford opportunity for a reasonable profit to the producer based upon the values of the recoverable metals and strategic and critical minerals contained in the ores. And in cases of small mines where production in any calendar year is less than 300 tons of recoverable metal, maximum payments shall be made on total production therefrom on application and none of the restrictions other than those of maximum payment limitations shall govern in such cases. Exploration payments shall be made in addition to development and conservation payments within the limitations provided in section 6 of this act, upon application of any mine operator upon either of the following bases: (1) Maximum exploration payments shall be based on production of recoverable metal produced from each mine operation at the rate of 7 cents per pound for the first 250 tons or fraction thereof of metal produced during any calendar year; at the rate of 6 cents per pound for the second 250 tons of metal or fraction thereof; 5 cents per pound for the third 250 tons of metal or fraction thereof; 4 cents per pound for the fourth 250 tons of metal or fraction thereof; 3 cents per pound for the fifth 250 tons of metal or fraction thereof; 2 cents per pound for the sixth 250 tons of metal or fraction thereof; and 11/2 cents per pound for all metals produced during any calendar year in excess of 1,500 tons and less than 2,000 tons; on (2) exploration payments shall be made at the discretion of the Director in amounts and on projects approved by him under rules as prescribed in section 3 (c). Exploration payments shall be made monthly, provided expenditures for such work are made prior to the end of the calendar year following the year in which such allowances accrue. It shall be a condition of the making of all such payments that recipients thereof shall pay no royalties on exploration payments or on such portion of the amount received by the producer as is in excess of market prices, except where landowners share in the expense of transportation, milling, and smelting of ores.

(b) In addition to the other powers and duties created by this act, the Director may authorize the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to enter into such contracts as would aid in effectuating the policies of this

SEC. 6. (a) Exploration, development, and conservation payments for any particular metals or minerals shall be in addition to the amount received per unit from other sources by the producer of the metal or mineral. The sum of such payments per unit of production shall not exceed the difference between the current market price and (1) in the case of metals produced under the premium-price plan, an amount equal to the highest market price plus the production premiums received by any domestic producer during the years 1942 to 1946, inclusive, and (2) in the case of other ores, metals, and minerals an amount equal to the highest amount paid any domestic pro-ducer for such metals and minerals during the years 1942 to 1946, inclusive, by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation or its subsidiaries or by other Government departments or agencies, such amounts specified in clauses (1) and (2) hereof to be adjusted by the Director in proportion to the changes in the Bureau of Labor Statistics wholesale price index of all commodities (1926 equals 100) since such highest sums or amounts were first offered or paid. All ores, concentrates, metals, and minerals on which payments are made shall meet previously established minimum industrial specifications or minimum specifications determined by the Munitions Board for the national security stock pile.

(b) All additional ores, metals, and min-erals or the equivalent thereof resulting from incentive payments and which comply with Munitions Board minimum stock-pile specifications shall be purchased by the Re-construction Finance Corporation. The Reconstruction Finance Corporation shall trans-fer such ores, metals, and minerals to the national security stock pile established pursuant to Public Law 520 (79th Cong., ch. 590, 2d sess.): Provided, That any producer may deliver an equivalent quantity of recoverable metal in form and grade satisfactory to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation in lieu of the particular metal or mineral resulting from payments hereunder.

(c) The Bureau of Federal Supply of the Treasury Department shall reimburse the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to the extent of the current market price for all metals, minerals, and ores placed in the national security stock pile under this

(d) Each producer shall at all times have access to a complete file of all copies of all calculations and analyses and all other information or determinations used as a basis for his individual assignment, revision, or denial of development and conservation payments or prices and exploration premiums.

(e) Copies of all rules, regulations, and policies and changes therein shall be furnished to each producer registered with the Division and shall be published in the Federal Register.

SEC. 7. (a) All disbursements for exploration and development and conservation pay ments as authorized by this act shall be made by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and shall not exceed $80,000,000 in any 1 year, nor shall any commitment be made by any officer or employee of the United States which obligates the United States Government (including all departments and agencies thereof) to make disbursements for exploration and development and conserva-tion payments as authorized by this act in excess of $80,000,000 in the aggregate in any

(b) The provisions of paragraph (a) of this section shall expire June 30, 1952.

(c) There is hereby authorized to be appropriated sums sufficient to carry out the administration of this act.

The amendments were agreed to.

Mr. MALONE. Mr. President, I wish to submit three amendments, and I ask that they be stated.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will state the first amendment offered by the Senator from Nevada.

The CHIEF CLERK. On page 2, line 10, it is proposed to insert a period after "States" and strike out the remainder of the section, as follows: "and to coordinate the programs now provided for or to be provided for by law for making scientific, technologic, and economic investigations concerning the extent and mode of occurrence; the development, mining preparation, treatment, and utilization of ores and other mineral substances found in the United States or its Territories or insular possessions which are essential to the common defense or the industrial needs of the United States; and to stimulate the commercial extraction and production of the same"; on page 6, line 7, insert a period in place of the semicolon after the word "tons" and strike out "on (2) exploration payments shall be made at the discretion of the Director in amounts and on projects approved by him under rules as prescribed in section 3 (c)."; on page 7, line 10, after the word "metals", insert the words "that were"; on the same page, line 1, strike the comma after the word "act" and insert "and subject to the limitations of section 7 (a) of this act"; on page 9, line 21, it is proposed to change $80,000,000" to "$60,000,000"; on page 10, line 3, to change "$80,000,000" to "$60,000,000"; on the same page, line 5, to change "1952" to "1951"; on page 10, line 3, after the word "year" and following the period, insert a new sentence reading, as follows: "During the fiscal year 1949, the Reconstruction Finance Corporation is hereby authorized and directed to transfer to the Department of the Interior not to exceed $350,000 for the administration of this act.'

Mr. TYDINGS. Mr. President, I shall not take much time, except to make a very short statement of a few sentences with regard to this bill. Any bill which looks ahead to the acquisition of critical and rare minerals or other essential war materials is worthy of consideration. Under normal circumstances, a bill coming before the Senate with the recommendation of the committee would receive more consideration from me, at least, than I could give to this measure, for the reason that no one in the Government service and no one connected with the business of national defense has recommended a bill. If it were supported by someone charged with the duty of national defense, such as the Chairman of the Natural Resources Board, and this were a scheme devised to build stock piles which are needed as a matter of defense, I should be delighted to support it; but the truth of the matter is that the bill comes here without any evidence, so far as I know, from anyone except those who are interested in the measure and who come primarily from mining States. This bill, in its last analysis, will cost a great many million dollars; indeed, it could cost several hundred million dollars, even if it were prudently administered. Here at 5 o'clock in the morning, as the sun comes up, it is a pretty large undertaking to commit the Government to a policy calling for an expenditure of more than a quarter of a billion dollars a year for a period of 4 years, without the slightest recommendation of anyone in America connected with or having the prime responsibility for the acquisition and stock piling of resources as a matter of national defense.

We may be very short on many critical materials, and it is our duty as the Congress to repair the shortage as speedly as we can. But there is certainly not the type of bill here, supported by expert testimony, to carry such a project to a conclusion. While I am normally in favor of stock piling of critical and rare minerals, I cannot give my support to this particular bill, for the reasons I have indicated.

RECESS

Mr. WHERRY. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent, and I direct my request to the proponents of this measure, that, because of the fact that it has become almost a physical impossibility for the reporters, in view of the long period of duty to which they have been subjected, to take the remarks of the Members of the Senate, the Senate recess for 20 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, the Senate will recess until 5:20 a. m.

5:20 a. m.

On the expiration of the recess, at 5:20 o'clock a. m., the Senate assembled and was called to order by the Presiding Officer (Mr. IVES in the chair).

Mr. WHERRY. Mr. President—
The PRESIDING OFFICER. The
Chair recognizes the Senator from Nebraska.

Mr. WHERRY. I wonder if I may ask unanimous consent for a further recess—

Mr. REVERCOMB. Mr. President, before the Senator does so, will he yield to me?

Mr. WHERRY. I yield.

EXCHANGE OF LAND ALONG MOUNT VERNON MEMORIAL HIGHWAY

Mr. REVERCOMB. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to report favorably, without amendment, from the Committee on Public Works, Senate bill 2694, to provide for the acquisition of additional land along the Mount Vernon Memorial Highway in exchange for certain dredging privileges, and for other purposes, and to submit a report (No. 1772) thereon.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, the report will be received.

Mr. REVERCOMB. Mr. President, I have discussed this bill with the acting majority leader, and I am quite sure there would be no controversy over it. It is unanimously approved by the Public Works Committee. It merely involves an exchange of land along the Mount Vernon Memorial Highway. A similar bill has been passed by the House. I am advised by those in charge of the highways that the exchange would be very advantageous to the Government. I will say to the Senator from Virginia [Mr. BYRD] that the land involved is in his State. The bill has been urged upon us. The committee has unanimously reported the bill, and I ask unanimous consent for its present consideration. I am sure that it will not involve discussion. If it does, I shall withdraw the request.

Mr. WHERRY. The Senators in charge of the bill which has been under discussion are the distinguished Senator from Nevada [Mr. Malone] and the distinguished Senator from Colorado [Mr. MILLIKIN]. It is up to them.

Mr. MILLIKIN. Mr. President, let me suggest that the Senator be patient so that we can get ahead with the amendments on which we are working.

Mr. REVERCOMB. I have been patient for hours. I brought the bill to the attention of the acting majority leader some time ago. I am sure that it will not delay anything. It is more or less a perfunctory matter. If we do not pass the bill now, it will probably die with the Congress.

Mr. MILLIKIN. Will the Senator agree that if there is any controversy over the bill he will withdraw his request?

Mr. REVERCOMB. I certainly agree to that. If there is any controversy or objection whatsoever, I shall withdraw the request.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection to the request of the Senator from West Virginia?

Mr. REVERCOMB. The bill is reported by unanimous vote of the committee. It is not on the printed calendar, but it can be considered by the Senate if the Senate will give consent for its consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

There being no objection, the bill (S. 2694) to provide for the acquisition of additional land along the Mount Vernon Memorial Highway in exchange for certain dredging privileges, and for other purposes, was considered, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That in order to protect more adequately the Mount Vernon Memorial Highway, and to add further to its memorial character, the Secretary of the Interior is hereby authorized to carry out the following transactions with the Smoot Sand & Gravel Corp.:

(a) The Secretary of the Interior is authorized to acquire certain lands in exchange for certain dredging and other rights on land already owned by the United States on the east side of the Mount Vernon Memorial Highway in Fairfax County, Va., extending from approximately station 426 to station 516 plus 50, shown as areas "A," "B," "C," and "D" on plan No. 105.22 minus 415 in the files of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission and more particularly set forth as follows:

(1) To accept on behalf of the United States of America a good and sufficient title in fee simple, free of all encumbrances, to that piece of land lying on the east side of the Mount Vernon Memorial Highway and extending from approximately opposite station 459 to station 516 plus 50, approximately 5,750 feet in length and averaging approximately 800 feet in width, and containing 110 acres, more or less, and as further shown as area "A" on said plan.

(2) To accept on behalf of the United States of America a good and sufficient title in fee simple, free of all encumbrances, to area "D" lying between area "A" and the Potomac River, and containing 150 acres, more or less; the Smoot Sand & Gravel Corp.

reserving unto itself, its successors and assigns, the right to remove sand and gravel therefrom for a period of 30 years, and for the same period reserving such riparian rights as may exist in area "D."

(3) To permit the Smoot Sand & Gravel Corp., its successors and assigns, to remove sand and gravel from that part of United States property lying east of area "B" and opposite stations 426 to 459, to the extent of 85 acres, more or less, of the total 110 acres in area "C," as shown on said plan, for a period of 20 years, and for the same period granting such riparian rights as may exist in this area

(4) To require that the scope of dredging operations necessary to remove the sand and gravel in areas "C" and "D" be so limited and conducted as not to undermine the adjacent shores of areas "A" and "B" and to provide that the Government shall have the right of ingress and egress from the Potomac River to the lands marked on the plan as areas "A" and "B" for the purpose of depositing dredged material in those areas; and to allow the workmen employed in the dredg-ing operations at the locations described above to have access to the Mount Vernon Memorial Highway for the purpose of going to and from work, and to park their cars at designated places.
(b) The Secretary of the Interior and the Secretary of War are hereby further authorized to prescribe in any contract or contracts entered into pursuant hereto any other terms and conditions deemed necessary to protect the interests of the United States in the above transactions.

(c) All lands acquired by the United States pursuant to this act shall be administered by the Secretary of the Interior through the National Park Service as a part of the Mount Vernon Memorial Highway and shall be subject to all laws and rules and regulations applicable thereto.

(d) All dredging shall be performed in accordance with plans recommended by the Chief of Engineers and authorized by the Secretary of War as provided in section 10 of River and Harbor Act approved March 3, 1899 (30 Stat. 1151; 33 U. S. C. 403), as amended.

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE

A message from the House of Representatives, by Mr. Swanson, one of its reading clerks, announced that the House had passed the bill (S. 2790) to amend the Servicemen's Readjustment Act of 1944, as amended, and for other purposes, with an amendment, in which it requested the concurrence of the

AMENDMENT OF SERVICEMEN'S READ-JUSTMENT ACT - HOUSING FOR VET-ERANS

Mr. TAFT. Mr. President, I ask that the Chair lay before the Senate the amendment of the House to Senate bill 2790.

The PRESIDING OFFICER laid before the Senate the amendment of the House of Representatives to the bill (S. 2790) to amend the Servicemen's Readjustment Act of 1944, as amended, and for other purposes, which was to strike out all after the enacting clause and insert:

That title III of the National Housing Act, as amended, is hereby amended to read as follows:

"TITLE III-FEDERAL NATIONAL MORTGAGE ASSOCIATION

"CREATION AND POWERS OF THE FEDERAL NATIONAL MORTGAGE ASSOCIATION

"SEC. 301. (a) The Administrator is further authorized and empowered to provide for the establishment of a Federal National Mortgage Association (hereinafter referred to as the "Association") which shall be au-thorized, subject to such rules and regulations as may be prescribed by the Associa-

"(1) to purchase, service, or sell any mortgages, which are insured after April 30, 1948, under section 203 or section 603 of this act. or guaranteed under sections 501, 502, or 505 (a) of the Servicemen's Readjustment Act of 1944, as amended: Provided, however, That-

"(A) no mortgage shall be offered to the Association for purchase by, or if it covers property held by, Federal, State, or municipal instrumentalities:

"(B) no mortgage may be purchased for an amount exceeding the unpaid principal balance thereof, plus accrued interest, at the time of purchase;

"(C) no mortgage shall be offered to the Association for purchase if the original principal obligation of the loan exceeds or exceeded $10,000 for each family residence or dwelling unit covered by the mortgage or other lien securing the loan;

"(D) no mortgage shall be offered to the Association for purchase unless offered by the original mortgagee prior to any other sale

"(E) no mortgage shall be offered to the Association for purchase by any one mortgagee (1) unless such mortgage is secured by property used, or designed to be used, for residential purposes and (2) if the unpaid principal balance thereof, when added to the aggregate amount paid for all mortgages purchased by the Association from such mortgagee pursuant to authority contained herein, exceeds 25 percent of the original principal amount of all mortgages made by such mortgagee which, except for this subparagraph (E), meet the requirements of this section.

"(F) no mortgage shall be purchased by the Association unless the mortgagee certifies that the housing with respect to which the mortgage was made meets the construction standards prescribed for insurance of mortgages on the same class of housing under the National Housing Act, as amended

"(2) to borrow money for any of the foregoing purposes through the issuance of notes or other such obligations as hereinafter provided.

"(b) The Federal National Mortgage Association, a subsidiary of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, and established pursuant to the provisions of this title as in effect prior to June 1, 1948, shall be the Association referred to in subsection (a) of this section. The Board of Directors of the Association shall consist of not less than five persons to be appointed by the Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, or the Acting Chairman in the case of a vacancy in the office of Chairman, from the Directors, officers, or employees of such Corporation and the officers shall be appointed by the Board of Directors from the Directors, officers, or employees of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

"(c) The Association created under this section shall have succession from the date of its organization unless it is dissolved by order of the Administrator as hereinafter provided, or by act of Congress, and shall have

(1) to adopt and use a corporate seal;

"(2) to make contracts;

"(3) to sue and be sued; complain and defend, in any court of law or equity, State or Federal:

"(4) to conduct its business in any State of the United States, or in the District of Columbia, Alaska, Hawaii, Puerto Rico, or the Virgin Islands, and to have one or more offices in such State, or in the District of Columbia, Alaska, Hawaii, or Puerto Rico, one of which offices shall be designated at the time of organization as its principal office;

"(5) to do all things as are necessary or incidental to the proper management of its affairs and the proper conduct of its business.

"(d) The Association may have a capital stock of not to exceed $20,000,000 and paid-in surplus of $1,000,000, subscribed by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

"(e) The Association, for the purpose of all actions by or against it, real, personal, or mixed, and all suits in equity, shall be deemed a citizen of the place in which its principal office is located.

"(f) No individual, association, partnership, or corporation, except the association organized under this section, shall hereafter use the words 'Federal National Mortgage Association' or any combination of such words, as the name or a part thereof under which he or it shall do business. Every individual, partnership, association, or corpora-tion violating this prohibition shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be punished by a fine of not exceeding $100 or imprisonment not exceeding 30 days, or both, for each day during which such violation is committed or repeated. The provisions of section 5243 of the Revised Statutes shall not apply to the association created under this title.

"OBLIGATIONS

"SEC. 302. The Association is authorized to issue and have outstanding at any time notes or other obligations in an aggregate amount not to exceed (1) 40 times the amount of its capital and surplus, and in no event to exceed (2) the current unpaid principal of mortgages held by it and insured under the provisions of titles II and VI of this act and guaranteed under sections 501, 502, or 505 (a) of the Servicemen's Readjustment Act of 1944, as amended, plus the amount of its cash on hand and on deposit and the amortized value of its investments in bonds or other obligations of, or in bonds or other obligations guaranteed as to principal and interest by, the United States.

"INVESTMENT OF FUNDS

"SEC. 303. Moneys of the Association not invested in mortgages or in operating facili-ties shall be kept in cash on hand or on deposit, or invested in bonds or other obliga-tions of, or in bonds or other obligations guaranteed as to principal and interest by, the United States; except that the Associa-tion shall keep and maintain such reserves as it may deem necessary.

"TAXATION PROVISIONS

"SEC. 304. The Association, including its franchise, capital, reserves, surplus, mortgage loans, income, and stock, shall be exempt from all taxation now or hereafter imposed by the United States, by any Territory, de-pendency, or possession thereof, or by any State, county, municipality, or local taxing authority, except that any real property of the Association shall be subject to State, Territorial, county, municipal, or local taxation to the same extent according to its value as other real property is taxed.

"MANAGEMENT OF ACQUIRED PROPERTIES

"SEC. 305. The Association shall have power to deal with, rent, renovate, modernize, or sell for cash, with a view to assuring a maximum financial return to the association, any property acquired by it as a result of foreclosure proceedings or otherwise.

"LIQUIDATION

"SEC. 306. The Administrator shall have power to terminate the existence of the Association and order its liquidation and the winding up of its affairs whenever the Administrator determines, in his judgment, that the need therefor no longer exists. The Association shall make a report of its activities to the Administrator in January and July of each year for the preceding 6 months' period, which report shall be transmitted to the Congress, together with the Administrator's recommendations thereon."

SEC. 2. Nothing in the amendment made by the first section of this act shall limit the authority of the Federal National Mortgage Association to service or sell any mortgage purchased prior to the date of the enactment of his act, or to purchase, service, or sell any mortgage with respect to which a commitment to purchase was made prior to the date of the enactment of this act

SEC. 3. Section 4 (c) of the Reconstruc-tion Finance Corporation Act, as amended, is hereby amended by striking out "$1,500,000,-000," and inserting in lieu thereof "$2,000,- 000,000 "

SEC. 4. Section 4 of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation Act, as amended, is hereby amended by adding at the end thereof a new subsection reading as follows:

"(h) The Corporation may subscribe for the nonassessable stock of the Federal National Mortgage Association: Provided, That the total face amount of stock so subscribed for and held by the Corporation shall not exceed at any one time $20,000,000."

SEC. 5. The Servicemen's Readjustment Act of 1944, as amended, is hereby amended by inserting immediately after section 510 thereof the following new section:

"INCONTESTABILITY

"Sec. 511. Any evidence of guaranty or insurance issued by the Administrator shall be conclusive evidence of the eligibility of the loan for guaranty or insurance under the provisions of this title and of the amount of such guaranty or insurance, except that nothing in this section shall preclude the Adminis trator from establishing, as against the original lender, defenses based on fraud or material misrepresentation, and except that the Administrator shall not, by reason of anything contained in this section, be barred from establishing, by regulations in force at the date of such issuance or disbursement, whichever is the earlier, partial defenses to the amount payable on the guaranty or insurance.'

SEC. 6. (a) Section 207 (c) of the National Housing Act, as amended, is hereby amended as follows:

(1) By striking out the semicolon and the ord "and" at the end of paragraph numbered (2), inserting in lieu thereof a colon, and adding the following new proviso: "And provided further, That, notwithstanding any of the provisions of this paragraph (2), a mortgage with respect to a project of a nonprofit cooperative ownership housing corporation (whose membership consists pri-marily of veterans of World War II) the permanent occupancy of the dwellings of which is restricted to members of such corpora-tion, or a project constructed by a nonprofit corporation (whose membership consists primarily of veterans of World War II) organized for the purpose of construction of homes for members of the corporation, at prices, costs, or charges comparable to the costs, or charges proposed to charged such members, may involve a principal obligation in an amount not exceeding percent of the amount which the Administrator estimates will be the value of the project when the proposed improvements are completed; and.'

Mr. TAFT. Mr. President, I move that the Senate concur in the House amendment

Mr. BARKLEY. Mr. President, may we have some explanation of the bill?

Mr. TAFT. Yes: I intend to explain

The Senate passed a bill introduced by the Senator from Indiana [Mr. JENNER], which provided for a secondary market for GI loans. The bill has been rewritten in the House. I have consulted with the author of the bill, and with other Senators who are interested.

In effect, the bill continues the powers of the Federal National Mortgage Association to buy and take off the hands of banks mortgages which are insured under section 203 or section 603 of the FHA Act, and also those guaranteed under section 501, 502, or 505 (a) of the The bill provides approximately $800,000,000 in capital with which such loans may be purchased from banks. The capital is provided by the RFC, which for that purpose is given an increase from one and a half to $2,000,000,000.

In addition to the power given to discount GI loans, one or two other small provisions have been inserted in the bill, relating to veterans, one providing for the incontestability of veterans' loans. similar to the incontestability clause for FHA loans: and another provides for special 95 percent loans on nonprofit cooperative housing corporations whose membership consists primarily of vet-erans of World War II. Those provisions relate to another feature, and are strictly provisions for the benefit of veterans.
Mr. O'MAHONEY. Mr. President, will

the Senator yield?

Mr. TAFT. I yield.

Mr. O'MAHONEY. Will the Senator from Ohio advise the Senate in what manner the Senate bill was rewritten in the House, with respect to the issuance or purchase of the GI loans?

Mr. TAFT. The text of the Senate bill was stricken out. The Senate bill provided the capital to the Veterans' Administration. This bill gives it to the Federal National Mortgage Association. It is a complete substitute for the Senate bill, but it does exactly the same thing in a somewhat more restricted way. The original bill provided, I think, for the purchase of something like 60 percent of the loans of any bank. This provides for only 25 percent.

The distinguished chairman of the Banking and Currency Committee of the House took the position that there are now approximately $7,000,000,000 of loans outstanding, and that unless we were somewhat restrictive in taking such loans off the hands of banks we might be flooded with billions of dollars worth of such mortgages. So it is provided that a bank may have only 25 percent of its loans rediscounted. I think that is somewhat small, but it is sufficient to last until next spring, when we may deal further with the problem.

Mr. O'MAHONEY. What standards are provided for the exercise of this authority by the purchasing agency?

Mr. TAFT. There is no provision, except that it is required that the GI loans must meet the construction standards provided for insurance of mortgages on the same class of housing under the FHA Act

Mr. O'MAHONEY. Is the purchasing agency free to decline to purchase such loans?

Mr. TAFT. Oh, yes. They are not bound to purchase any loans at all.

Mr. McCARTHY. Mr. President, I feel that there are a great many amendments which should be made to the bill. While it is not a good bill, it is better than nothing. That is about all we can say about it.

There is one amendment which I should like to offer, but I do not think it would be wise to offer it if it would mean that because of the lateness of the time we would get nothing.

I do not know whether or not Senators generally realize that if we adjourn and merely pass this bill, we shall have continued a freeze in public housing of all the over-income groups. There is now a tremendous demand for the few publichousing units by those who really need them. We cannot blame the publichousing officials for keeping in public housing men receiving $10,000, $12,000, or $20,000 a year, because we have frozen those over-income groups in public housing. If there were any possibility of adding the amendment, to which I am sure the Senate would agree, again placing upon the Public Housing Authority the duty to remove over-income groups and make way for those who really need those units, I should like to offer the amendment. But if the Senator from Ohio believes that by so doing and sending it back to conference it would mean that we would get nothing, I shall refrain from doing so.

Mr. TAFT. I have no hesitation in advising the Senator from Wisconsin that I think it would be exceedingly unwise to attempt to amend the House amendment. The chairman of the Banking and Currency Committee of the House, who wrote this amendment, is a very particular gentleman. He has written it exactly as he wishes it to be. I have no means of knowing whether he would reject the amendment which might be offered by the Senator from Wisconsin or not at this late hour. We hope to adjourn very shortly, as soon as we agree to the conference report on the farm bill.

I think it would be very dangerous, indeed, to attempt to add an amendment and send the bill back to a further conference.

So I feel that if the Senator wants the bill to be enacted into law, he had better not offer an amendment.

Mr. McCARTHY. Mr. President, I think it is inexcusable that we have come up to this late hour with nothing except the little that we have before us. I think it is almost entirely due to the emotional approach which so many of us have made to the housing problem, the insistence that we tie what is known as public housing with everything else we think should be done in a housing bill. Now we wind up with practically nothing at all.

The reason why I am not going to offer the amendment and other amendments which I think should be adopted is that I think the Senator from Ohio is correct. and that if we added some badly needed amendments, perhaps we would get nothing at all; and I think this is slightly better than nothing at all.

Mr. TAFT. Mr. President, I have only this to say about a secondary market for GI loans: The lack of such a market is a serious handicap to building today. In general, the market is very liberal. Certainly the financing of housing is not the bottleneck, except where banks have filled themselves up with this type of loan, and do not propose to take any more loans of this character. There are many regions in the country where the banks will not take any more GI loans. So this bill meets that particular phase of the problem.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the motion of the Senator from Ohio to concur in the amendment of the House.

The motion was agreed to.

GOP POLITICS AND THE VETERAN

Mr. MYERS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to have printed in the body of the RECORD a statement which I have prepared relative to 37 Pennsylvania veterans who have been nominated to the position of postmaster in the State of Pennsylvania.

There being no objection, the statement was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

STATEMENT BY UNITED STATES SENATOR FRANCIS

J. MYERS, DEMOCRAT, OF PENNSYLVANIA

GOP POLITICS AND THE VETERAN

Mr. President, a month or so ago the Senate passed a bill which pleased just about everyone and brought us much praise. The bill provided that over and above present civil-service preferences for veterans and disabled veterans, the Civil Service Commission must exert its efforts toward filling as many jobs in the Government as possible with disabled veterans. Where a nonveteran or even a veteran who is not disabled is selected for a job over a disabled veteran, the Civil Service Commission would be required to file a written explanation for its action in not picking the disabled veteran applicant.

And so the newspapers came out that day with headlines—I have one here from the Philadelphia Bulletin—stating, "Senate seeks more jobs for disabled veterans."

The Senate is always, either collectively or via statements of individual Senators, going on record as favoring the veteran, as recognizing our obligations to our veterans, as being determined to carry out our wartime pledges to these boys.

Memories aren't that short that all of us, Mr. President, cannot remember that flowery accolades streaming up to these iron rafters over our heads during the war for the men who were, a short while ago—4 years ago this month—hitting the beaches of Normandy; for the men battling the weary, steaming path up through the jungles which led to Japan. Three years ago when the Nazis yelled quits and gave in, and when Japan surrendered, pledges were made here—solemn pledges—as to what we would do for these brave men when they came home.

Homes? Why sure, there would be homes—modern American homes—for our soldiers when they came back to the families they had left, when they picked up again the home life that they had interrupted.

Oh well, perhaps the veterans should have realized that when we pledged them homes on their return, homes to replace the ones they left, homes to shelter newly established families, that we made a slight exaggeration and meant homes for those veterans who can afford $15,000 or $20,000 accommodations, Such veterans are getting homes.

And how about those good-paying jobs we promised—jobs which would enable our veterans to enjoy the conveniences of life and to buy the products of our expanding economy? Well, it's true there are jobs for nearly all of our veterans. But the poor fellows are learning, much to their amazement and regret, that the pay checks which would have looked so fancy to them before the war will hardly, today, cover the cost of feeding and sheitering their families—in many cases, not even that. It might be interesting to find out how many of those millions of American families which have had to cash out their war bonds completely, which have so gone into debt that consumer credit today is at the highest level it has ever been in our history—it might be interesting to know how many of these families are the families of veterans who accumulated their war bonds out of meager Army pay and allowances and by sacrifices and hard work on the part of the wives while their husbands were overseas.

The inflation which has been let loose on this country by the selfish action of the Congress 2 years ago in tearing the roof off the price level, in killing price control, has hit hardest at the very fellow we were pledging ourselves three short years ago to show our gratitude—that is, the veteran. The shortage of homes, due to the selfish ignorance of those who have refused to allow the Federal Government to carry through on a gigantic housing program—a private industry housing program—has hit hardest the same fellow,

Oh, Mr. President, we sure love the veteran. But it appears that the Congress of the United States seems to feel that the veteran went through so much travail and inconvenience and hardship during the war that he is tough by now and can take the consequences of congressional cruelty.

I would like to address myself for a few minutes to one group of veterans from my State who happen to have been kicked around by the Senate of the United States not just in the same way the Congress has kicked nearly all veterans around in these past 2 years, but kicked around personally, directly, individually.

They happen to be Pennsylvania veterans who took examinations for postmasterships, and they happen to have been selected by the President of the United States for jobs as postmasters on the basis of those examinations, on the basis of their war records, on the basis of their Americanism and their ability.

These men apparently made the mistake of believing that if they were qualified for a position, if they could obtain appointment to a position within the purview of their Government to grant, if their characters were commendable and if they were found not to be disloyal to our country, if they appeared able and willing to do the job for which they were selected, then they could expect the Senate of the United States to say—"All right, fellows, you've earned these jobs; they're yours."

As I said, they apparently made the mistake of believing that things work out here in that fashion. After all, it is the Soviet Union we generally think of these days when we speak of obstructionists, of apple-cart upsetters, when we think of the veto.

The Soviet Union has exercised her veto in the United Nations in order to prevent the UN from taking certain particular actions which the Soviet Union alone—or the Soviet Union and her satellites—thought to be against their interests.

The Senate of the United States—the Republican leadership of this Senate—has used the veto as ruthlessly, as spitefully, as maliciously as the Soviets have used it in the UN. The Republican leadership of the Senate, for purposes of raw political greed, has vetoed the chances of 30 American war veterans of becoming postmasters in Pennsylvania,

After sitting on nomination to postmasterships for months and months and months, the Senate Post Office Committee finally, on Wednesday, let out a dribble of nominations, sent a handful of nominations to the floor for possible action before adjournment of this session of Congress.

Among these were four Pennsylvania war

Among these were four Pennsylvania war veterans, and the widow of a fifth. The committee sat on these nominations interminably and finally let them out of committee at the very end of the last session of this Congress. I appreciate the committee's action in finally letting these nominations come out. It was, shall I say, decent of the Post Office and Civil Service Committee to let four veterans and the widow of a fifth Pennsylvania war veteran come before the Senate for final approval for jobs for which they happen to be fully qualified, for jobs they have earned on their merit, and on their records.

We should all sing hosannahs, Mr. President, to the patriotism of this committee and of the Republican leadership of the Senate for letting these five nominations come out after all these months of refrigeration

One of these nominations is that of a man who entered the Army as a private in the First World War, qualified eventually for an officership, a second lieutenant, was discharged in 1918, remained active from then on in the Reserve Corps, attended camp nearly every summer, became chairman of his county's Citizens Military Training Corps and stuck with it and went back to active service nearly a year before Pearl Harbor and rose to the rank of colonel; a man who served in steaming India; a man who twice served as commander of an American Legion post.

Isn't it nice, Mr. President, isn't it decent of the Senate Committee finally to give its O. K. to this man, William McCurdy, whom the President selected to be a postmaster at Pitcairn, Pa., a man who happened to be at the very top of the register.

The veterans of America owe the committee and the Senate's Republican leadership the most generous praise and gratitude for finally—finally—after months and months and months of delay—letting this man take his rightful job as postmaster in his home town.

In all the delay in the committee's action on this man's nomination—in all the long months of delay since January 26—there was not, Mr. President, a single word, a single shred of evidence against Colonel McCurdy and his qualifications for the postmastership. Then what held up action, Mr. President?

Now there's another the committee finally let out of its deep-freeze cabinet. He is Walter A. Hilsbos, Jr. He was nominated much more than a year ago, on April 7, 1947, to be postmaster of Oakford, Bucks County. He was naive enough to believe when he was nominated that if he gave the Senate com-mittee a few facts about himself, that the Senate confirmation would be prompt. In May of 1947, he expressed the belief to me in a letter that if I asked the Senate Post Office Committee to do so, it would certainly confirm the nomination of a marine who met all the requirements when our flag was to be put on Mount Suribachi and also met all the requirements of the Civil Service Com-mission. Well, he was right. The committee would approve him. All he had to do was wait more than a year, however. This was a young fellow who had served 28 days and 28 nights on Iwo Jima. He, too, should bend his knee, I presume, in grateful obeisance for the magnanimous action of the Senate Post Office Committee and the Republican leadership of the Senate in allowing his nomination finally to come before us.

Another of four Pennsylvania war-veteran nominations finally to come out of cold storage is of a Navy man, who served in the Pacific. He is Charles W. Brader, nominated for postmaster at Tannersville, Pa., in Monroe County. He is now acting postmaster. He was nominated January 30, 1948—a long time ago; a long time to wait and wait for the Senate of the United States to say he is a fit citizen—for on what grounds can these nominations be rejected?

Another nomination reported out was that of disabled First World War veteran, Albert Howe, wounded by shrapnel at Verdun in 1918. A combat engineer, he was nominated for postmaster at Vanport in Beaver County. First on the register, he is the father of a boy who flew 39 missions out of Italy in this No protest had been received against his nomination. The committee has no reason we know of to suspect wounded veteran Howe would not make a good postmaster. Yet, Mr. President, it has taken since February 7, 1947-16 months-since his nomination was first submitted, for the Post Office Committee of the Senate and for the Republican leadership of the Senate to satisfy themselves that this disabled veteran should be allowed to be a postmaster. Wasn't that nice of them?

A fifth nomination from Pennsylvania reported out was that of Pearl Chappell, widow of a First World War veteran. Her husband died in 1938. She subsequently took an examination for postmaster of Barnesville, in Schuylkill County, and was first on the register. She was nominated last January. Now, finally, she is approved by the committee.

Mrs. Chappell and the four veterans—and I—all thank the committee for these generous favors, for this speedy—shall we say, almost hasty?—action in their behalf. But we rather wonder, Mr. President, what took so long?

Further, Mr. President, I wonder—and so do a lot of other Pennsylvanians wonder—what has happened to the nominations of 31 other Pennsylvania war veterans which are still frozen up in that deep-freeze cabinet in the Senate Post Office Committee.

The 31 ignored veterans are, by and large, no less patriotic, no less honorable Americans than are the 4 whose nominations got out of committee. What happened, Mr. President? What are the measuring rods—the measures of value? What are the criteria?

Let us take one case, for instance. Let's take the case of veteran Woodrow W. S. Lehr of a little town in Pennsylvania called Fogelsville, in Lehigh County. Woodrow Lehr is acting postmaster. He was nominated for the permanent position last March, after having been the only man to qualify by examination. Woodrow Lehr is a veteran. Woodrow Lehr has 14 holes in his body from mortar shrapnel. Woodrow Lehr had nine bones broken. The nerve in Woodrow Lehr's left arm was cut. Woodrow Lehr's nomination to be postmaster at Fogelsville, Pa., is pigeonholed in the Senate Post Office Committee. The Republican Party is keeping it there. The Republican Party seems to feel that Woodrow Lehr doesn't deserve to be postmaster of Fogelsville, Pa.

Why not, Mr. President? Why not? Who shall say he is not deserving or qualified? Who has the gall to say so?

Weren't enough of his bones broken to suit the Republican Party's conception of wounded deserving veteran? Doesn't Woodrow Lehr carry enough shrapnel wounds? Don't his two Battle Stars and his Combat Infantry Badge, his Purple Heart, and the 14 mortar holes and nine bone fractures mean anything to the Republican leadership of this Senate? Are such wounds liabilities to a man seeking an office to which he was properly appointed?

What is the reason, Mr. President, that this nomination is still in committee? I would gladly yield to the chairman of the Senate committee long enough for him to explain to me why this nomination has not come out. I will gladly yield to any Senator who can explain who opposes Woodrow Lehr.

Woodrow Lehr served in France and Belgium and Holland and up to the Siegfried line with the Thirtieth Division. His division lost 1,800 men in a 6-day engagement in Lehr's first battle. When they hit the Siegfried line he was sent back to practice taking pill boxes. On October 2, 1944, the division attacked; all but six men in Lehr's company were either wounded or killed. Lehr was one of those wounded. He was shifted from one hospital to another until November 30, 1946. Both legs and an arm were in a cast for 5 months.

That's quite a record. We were pretty impressed with records like that a few short years ago. Today, a man with a record like that can't be postmaster of Fogelsville, Pa., because the Republican Senate won't let him.

Or, Mr. President, how about Herbert C.

Or, Mr. President, how about Herbert C. Klinger who was nominated by the President for the postmastership at Herndon, Pa., in Northumberland County. Like young Lehr from neighboring Lehigh County, Klinger is now acting postmaster. He was first on his register. The Republican Party serves notice on men like these two that if the GOP wins in November, these veterans lose their postoffice positions—positions they have qualified for, have earned.

Klinger enlisted as a volunteer in the Glider Corps. He has ability. He was trained in various enlisted men's schools and finally became a second lieutenant and a navigator. He was a lead navigator-bombardier on a B-17. He was wounded in action over Ludwigshafen, Germany, while bombing a chemical plant. After recovering, he was promoted to first lieutenant. He completed 30 combat missions—30 of them. He won the Distinguished Flying Cross for participating in 25 lead missions over Germany in the command bomber of the groups.

What do you think, Mr. President? This young veteran has the audacity—the gall—the nerve—to think that the Republican Senate would consider confirming him for postmaster of Herndon, Pa. What impudence. What naivete. What complete lack of understanding of the American politics as practiced here by this Republican Senate.

Personally, I am puzzled. I just can't figure what is holding up his nomination. Could it be the proveteran attitude of the Republican Party in the Senate of the United States?

Perhaps the Republican leadership of the Senate believes, despite his 30 missions over Germany, despite his wounds, despite his medal, his DFC, Postmaster-nominee Herbert Klinger, of Herndon, Pa., shouldn't be confirmed because he wasn't in the service long enough to deserve such a great concession from this Republican Senate. After all, he was only in the service for 31% years.

was only in the service for 3½ years.

Well, then, Mr. President, if that is the criterion—and I admit I just don't have any idea what the criterion might be in the Republican leadership's designation of which nominations are to be confirmed and which are to be ignored—what about the case of Wiley C. Hamby, of Salona, Pa.? Salona is in Clinton County. Hamby hasn't had too much opportunity to spend too much time in Salona these past 26 years because he has spent about 24 of them in the Navy. He enlisted in 1922. He stayed in. He was commissioned during the war. He was discharged in August 1946 as a lieutenant, senior grade, and a few months later took the postmaster examination. He was notified that he stood first on the register. He was nominated in January. But has he been confirmed? Has his nomination been approved by the Senate Post Office Committee? It has not

During the war this man served on the staff of the Commander in Chief of the Atlantic Fleet. He was senior communication watch officer in charge of code room and radio communication. He was top secret cipher officer for the Flagship. He was awarded a commendation by Admiral Ingersoll and a Bronze Star by Admiral Jonas Ingram.

But he can't be postmaster at Salona, Pa., because the Republican leadership of the Senate won't let him.

Why, Mr. President? Why?

Mr. President, do you remember the praise we used to heap here on the Navy's famous and courageous Seabees? Well, Eugene William Collins of Altglen, Pa., in Chester County, was a Seabee. He served in New Gulnea, in Manus, in Leyte, Luzon, Mendora. He knows everybody in Altglen, Pa. He has a wife and four children. He considers a postmastership a job which carries with it security in return for faithful service. He was nominated months ago—in March. The Republican Party now says he cannot be postmaster. Was his war record bad? It was not. It was spotless. But that doesn't seem to matter here.

George Hawkins Davis of Saxonburg, Pa., in Butler County, served 3 years and 2 days overseas in World War II. Does that carry any weight with a Republican United States Senate? Apparently not. The Senate says, in effect, that unless the Democrats win so that this nomination can be re-submitted, 3 years and 2 days of overseas service do not qualify, or influence in any way, the qualifications of George Hawkins Davis, who is now the acting postmaster, to be postmaster of Saxonburg, Pa.

Nothing, Mr. President, is too good for the veterans of America where this Congress is concerned. Nothing, that is. Just nothing. Nothing is what they get. We make our Flag Day speeches and our Armistice Day speeches and our Memorial Day speeches and we wave the flag all over the place and we shed the biggest crocodile tears you ever saw, and we shed them for the veterans. But when it comes down to the simple matter of letting a veteran take a position which he has earned, this Senate cannot be bothered.

Shame, Mr. President. Shame.

Perhaps the Republican leadership of the Senate believes that these postmaster nominees are not really qualified—that the Civil Service Commission just gave them high ratings for the pure, patriotic fun of it.

Here's Leonard Devilbiss, acting postmaster of Fawn Grove in York County. He was nominated last January. A veteran, yes. Top man on his register, yes. A man with a number of years of business experience before entering the Army. A man who was employed by the War Department as a civilian before entering the service, and was in charge of all procurement in the automotive testing section of the Aberdeen Proving Ground. A man who entered the Army as a private, rose to second lieutenant, and organized and directed, as postal officer, the Army post office in the Army service forces separation center at Camp Atterbury, Ind., supervising the setting up of the physical requirements of the post office, as well as the planning and determination of mailing schedules for incoming and outgoing official and personal mail. Who was also responsible for supervising military personnel in the operation of this post office activity. Doesn't it appear, Mr. President, that such a man would make a fine postmaster for Fawn Grove, York County, and its third-class post office? Wouldn't he, Mr. President, as a veteran, be entitled at least to the courtesy of an explanation from the Senate Post Office Committee and the Senate Republican leadership for their action in delaying and killing his nomination, in serving notice on him that if the Republicans win in November he is out as postmaster?

Joseph W. Petrovich, acting postmaster of Wilburton, Pa., in Columbia County, served overseas for 28 months of the 3 years he was in the Army. He has had business experience. He has had governmental experience. In the Army, one of his jobs was as supervising clerk of a service shop, in which he supervised 12 workers. The Senate committee, despite Petrovich's standing at the top of the civilservice register, won't let him be confirmed as postmaster. His nomination has been kicking around here since January. Raymond Stuckey, a World War II veteran and a career employee of the postal service in Newport, Pa., post office in Perry County, was nominated July 12, 1947, nearly a year ago, to be postmaster. His nomination recognized the desire I think all of us share to see career men who are qualified rise in the Government service. We applauded the appointment of a career man—for the first time—to be postmaster general. We have had, in this case, an opportunity to encour-age that trend. But Stuckey's nomination died in committee last year and is dying in committee again this year. This is the Re-publican Senate's method of encouraging career people and encouraging veterans in the Government service.

Steve Vrotny stands first on the register for postmaster at Natrona Heights in Allegheny County. He is a veteran. He was nominated by President Truman on June 27, 1947. No action was taken by the committee. He was renominated last January Again no action. Why?

Robert A. McNaul, nominated to be postmaster of Curwensville in Clearfield County, served both in the Navy and in the Army in the past 10 years. He enlisted in the Navy in 1937, served and was injured in line of duty aboard the USS Cuyama a year or so later, was hospitalized and then went back aboard ship and was finally given a medi-cal discharge in August 1949. The Veterans' Administration gave him, at that time, a 10percent disability rating. He had served 2 years and 19 days in the Navy.

In 1942 McNaul entered the Army and served 3½ years, including overseas service in Belgium and France with a hospital unit, and participated in a major engagement and earned a Battle Star. He was discharged as a technician, 3d grade. He still suffers from his Navy injuries, although his rating is not up to the minimum 10 percent to qualify him for disability preference.

He stands No. 1 on a register of three for this postmastership. He is the only veteran on the register.

Navy service, Army service, a service injury, overseas service, and civil service standing— all of these he has. Yet, he can't be post-master of Curwensville, Pa., because the Senate won't let him. For all of his service, he is receiving from this Senate dishonorable dis-

Mr. President, let me tell you about Thur-low C. Brenneman, the acting postmaster of York Haven in York County, Pa. Mr. Brenneman is a veteran. Mr. Brenneman is a disabled veteran. He served with the 90th Division in the European theater and there are two Bronze Stars on his European-African-Middle Eastern Campaign ribbon. He has the Purple Heart. He got it in the Battle of the Bulge. He lost six toes. He is mar-ried and has two children. He is a man of good character. He has been acting postmaster at York Haven for more than 2 years. He was a good soldier. He earned the Combat Infantry Badge. He participated in the Ardennes and Rhineland campaigns. This man was nominated to be postmaster of York Haven on March 26, 1947, nearly 15 months ago. The Senate Post Office Committee a year ago allowed the nomination to die in committee. The first session of the Eightieth Congress ended with no action on this nomination. President Truman resubmitted the nomination on January 26, 1948. Again, it is to die in committee. Again, Thurlow Brenneman, disabled war veteran and acting postmaster is to be told by the United es Senate, in effect, that he is not the sort of man they think should be postmaster of York Haven, Pa. Why?

How about Capt. Chester J. Kukleski, now

on temporary active duty with the Reserves, assigned as a unit instructor for the training of Reserve officers at Baltimore, Md.? He was nominated about 6 months ago to be postmaster at Braddock, Pa. He was the only veteran to qualify among the top three in the civil-service register. He entered the Army 9 months before Pearl Harbor and worked his way up through the ranks to an officership. He was traffic regulating officer for an ammunition depot on Omaha Beach in 1944. He later was put in command of an ammunition company and had the responsibility for operating an ammunition depot and railhead. He participated in the Normandy, northern France, southern France, and Rhineland campaigns, winning four Battle Stars. He was awarded the Bronze Star Medal. The Senate of the United States says, in effect, that despite the fact that he is the only veteran on this register, despite his impressive war record, and despite the responsible work he is now doing for the Army in training officers, in preparing training bulletins, directives, manuals, and handbooks for distribution to units of command and supervising administration and assignment of Reserve officers and enlisted men in training units, he may not be postmaster of Braddock, Pa.

Frank Coughanour, Jr., acting postmaster of Hopwood, Pa., in Fayette County, is another veteran whose nomination for permanent appointment has been strangled to death in committee. Let me, Mr. President, Jr. Three weeks after Pearl Harbor, at the age of 17, Frank Coughanour enlisted in the Navy. He served on the USS Tuscaloosa and the USS Guest. He has two Battle Stars for engagements in the European-African theater and seven Battle Stars for engagements in the Pacific. He was discharged as a seaman, first class. The Senate Post Office Committee and the Senate's Republican leadership, so vocal in their appreciation for the veteran in the abstract, doesn't seem at all impressed when it comes to acting on deserving veterans individually. Is there anything lacking in the qualifications of Frank Coughanour, Jr., to bar his promotion from acting postmaster to post-master at Hopwood, Pa.? Is it politics? What politics? Whose politics? He is the only eligible for this job.

Kenneth Eugene McQuiston came out of the war a corporal in the marines. He was in the marines for nearly 3 years. He took a civil-service examination to be postmas ter of Home, Pa., in Indiana County. He was the only person to qualify. He was nominated last January, but it appears as if he is not going to be confirmed. Marine Corporal McQuiston doesn't fit the Republican leadership of the Senate's idea of fit-ness for a postmaster. That is the only inference that can be taken for the failure to act on this nomination. He well suited Marine Corps ideas of a good American, Apparently, the marines have different standards from the standards of the Senate Post Office Committee and the Republican Party.

Walter F. Walsh, of Spangler, Pa., in Cambria County, finds it advisable not to tell me or anyone else exactly what it was he did in the Army. The reason for that is that Mr. Walsh, who was nominated to be postmaster of Spangler, had orders from his com-manding officer in the Signal Corps not to discuss it with anyone, even prospective em-ployers. This is what Maj. James H. Frier, Jr., wrote to Mr. Walsh at the time this nominee was honorably discharged as a technician, fourth grade:

"It is a pleasure to inform you that the War Department recognizes officially your contribution to the war effort by your faithful service with the Second Signal Service Battalion.

"The confidential nature of your work here prevents you from discussing it with anyone, even prospective employers. You may that your position here was of a confidential nature. You may also present this letter showing that your work was entirely satisfactory and your average efficiency rating was excellent. Anyone desiring further in-formation may contact this office."

Now here is a man who could be trusted with work so confidential that even after the end of the war, he was under instruc-tions not to discuss it with anyone. Being a mature man of 36 at the time he went into the Army, a family man, it would appear that he was selected for confidential work for which his maturity and judgment The Civil Service Commission suited him. says he qualified to be postmaster of Span-gler, Pa. Who says he isn't? Who, Mr. President, will come forward and say that this man is not the right type of American for the postmastership of Spangler, Pa.?

Here is a very interesting case. It is the nomination of Louis J. DePaul, now acting postmaster, to be postmaster of Mount Po-cono, Pa., in Monroe County. For some reason, for some mysterious, unfathomable reason, Mr. DePaul's nomination has rigor mortis in committee. It is dead. It won't come out. Since the Senate committee won't approve him, are we to understand that he is not a fit person for the job? Mr. DePaul, a lieutenant in the Naval Reserve, served 3 years, 8 months, and 14 days on active cuty. Thirty-two months of that time was spent continuously in overseas service. He was on LST 344. He participated in the initial amphibious assaults and follow-up operations at Gela, Sicily, at Salerno, and the Normandy invasion. He participated in the North African campaign. In the first three campaigns he and his LST were on enemy beaches on D-day. He is a college graduate. In addition to serving as acting postmaster of Mount Pocono, he is the volunteer recruiting officer for the United States Naval Reserve in his district. Before the war he had a year's experience in the Post Office Department here in Washington. All in all, I would say Lieutenant DePaul well earned this postmastership and would make a good postmaster. What does the Senate Post Office Committee say?

Willis C. Latshaw has been acting postmaster of Spring City, Pa., in Chester County since April 16, 1948. In an open competitive examination for the postmastership, he placed first on the register, and he is the only veteran on the register. Mr. Latshaw served in World War I. In the 2 years that he has been acting postmaster he has had every right to look forward to promotion to the permanent postmastership on the basis of his efficiency, ability, and veteran's preference. Yet, the Republican Party, as it operates through the leadership of the Senate, has bottled up Mr. Latshaw's nomination and has taken the position that war service, veteran's preference, civil-service standingall of these considerations—mean nothing, His nomination is to be salted away and forgotten. This is the Senate which so often has professed itself to be the friend of the veteran and the friend of civil service.

Another First World War veteran who is at present an acting postmaster and who is also No. 1 on the register is Eaton A. Hartman of Windsor, Pa., in York County. He was a corporal in the Meuse-Argonne offensive in the decisive last months of the First World War. Despite his service, despite his preference, despite his civil-service standing, and despite the Republican Party's solemn platform declaration in 1944 to support, and I quote, "suitable measures to reflect the Nation's gratitude and to discharge its duty toward the veterans of all wars, Mr. Hartman, like Mr. Latshaw, and like all the others I have mentioned whose nominations are frozen in committee, cannot be made postmaster of Windsor, Pa., cannot have the security of permanent status, cannot have the consideration his service and his ability earned for him.

Is this the way the Republican Party carries out its platform pledges, Mr. President? Going through that platform indicates that this is just one of numerous ways in which the Republican Party has demonstrated that its 1944 platform was something to run on, but not to stand on, once elected.

The acting postmaster of Twin Rocks in Cambria County, Pa., is Robert A. Lanzendorfer. He was nominated last January to the permanent position. He was an electronic technician's mate, third class, in the Navy. He spent a year on sea duty in the Pacific. He is an official of his Veterans of Foreign Wars post. He aided in the liberation of the Philippines, but the Republican Party won't let him be a postmaster. He is the only eligible for the job.

Here are some more acting postmasters in Pennsylvania, veterans, men qualified by Civil Service, some top men on their registers, others top among veterans, who can't be postmasters with permanent status at present because the Republican Party won't let them.

There is, for instance, former Master Sgt. William Debreczeni, of Richeyville, in Washington County, Pa., a man who spent 19 months overseas, and was a specialist in air intelligence, helping to chart and analyze enemy activity and enemy strength, and enemy strength and location, and probable intentions, while attached to the Fifteenth Air Force in Italy at the time it was operating in the Balkans and into France and Germany and the Po Valley, a man who once worked in the coal mines. He is the only veteran on his register.

There is Harry T. Richey, acting postmaster of Hyndman, in Bedford County, Pa., No. 1 on his register, a veteran of 4 years in the Navy, of which 2 years 3 months and 2 days were spent overseas; a yeoman, first-class, who was given responsible clerical work, admirably qualifying him for the post-office work he is now doing. His VFW post commander at Hyndman, Charles H. Sides, says that by training and experience, both in civilian and service life, Richey is completely qualified for the Job.

There is Thomas J. Zimmerlink, of Allison, in Fayette County, Pa., a radio operator overseas during the war for the Fifty-eighth Army Airways Communication System.

Another one is former First Sgt. Adam C. Dietrich, of East Petersburg, in Lancaster County, Pa., the only veteran on the register, a man with disability preference, a man who served overseas in Oahu and Guam.

These men are not being permitted by the Republican leadership of the United States Senate to take their rightful positions with the security and the prestige of permanent status as postmasters in their home towns. Why, Mr. President? Why? Who has protested their nomination? Who says they aren't fitted? Who says they shouldn't be confirmed?

Douglas McHenry, acting postmaster at Fort Washington, Montgomery County, a veteran of World War I, was first on the register in the civil-service examination for postmaster. He was nominated on July 17, 1947. Again, no action. He was renominated last January. His nomination, like so many others, is being passed over, neglected, ignored.

Let me name a few more veterans who have been pushed around by the Republican Senate personally and individually, for reasons unpublished, unknown, unfathomable:

Joseph Ersagovich, acting postmaster, nominated for postmaster at Crucible in Greene County; Frank W. Thomas, nominated for postmaster at Skytop, in Monroe County; Victor Lescovitz, nominated for postmaster at Midway, in Washington County; Robert N. Eisenhart, nominee for the postmastership at Aspers, Adams County; Michael J. Pagani, acting postmaster and nominee for postmaster at New Galilee, Beaver County; and Malcolm A. Young, Monroeton, Bradford County.

At this point, Mr. Chairman, I would like to read a letter I just received a few days ago from Acting Postmaster John A. Habel, of Garrett, in Somerset County, Pa. Mr. Habel was nominated for postmaster on January 26, 1948, 5 months ago. Here is what he wrote me:

GARRETT, PA., June 7, 1948.

Hon. FRANCIS J. MYERS,

United States Senator, Washington, D. C.
MY DEAR MR. MYERS: Although I received word several months ago that my name has been sent to the Senate for confirmation as postmaster, I have heard nothing about it since.

Is there any possible chance that my appointment may be confirmed before the adjournment of the present session of Congress? As a veteran with 45 months of service (42 of which were spent overseas), I am most anxious about the security of my position.

Your continued interest and support in my behalf will be greatly appreciated.

Very sincerely yours,

JOHN A. HABEL, Acting Postmaster.

Think of it, Mr. President, nearly 4 years in the service; exactly three and a half years spent overseas; shipped overseas only 3 months after he went into the service and left there for 3½ years—and now he cannot be postmaster of Garrett, Pa.

What can I tell Mr. Habel? That the

What can I tell Mr. Habel? That the Republican-controlled Senate, in 5 months, has not had time to examine his qualifications? That the Republican-controlled Congress thinks him unfit? That the Republican-controlled Congress is not interested in keeping 1944 Republican platform pledges to the veterans?

Mr. President, it occurs to me that since so many of these nominees are now acting postmasters, that if anything in their backgrounds or their records or their qualifications or their character or their habits or their standing in the community made them unsuitable, unfit or improper to be postmasters, then certainly those who oppose their confirmation, who are holding these nominations in cold storage, in the deep freeze, in the refrigerator of the Senate Post Office Committee, are derelict in their obligations as citizens in not bringing to the attention of the Post Office Department the scandal, if any, in the lives of these men, so that if they are unfit for office, they can be removed for cause from the present responsible positions they now hold.

Contrariwise, if there is nothing damaging in their records either as citizens or as veterans or as acting postmasters—those who now hold such positions—then by all that is right and decent and proper—under the pledges of the Republican Party in 1944 in their platform—these men should be confirmed for the positions to which they have been nominated.

Mr. President, I am amazed, I am disappointed, I am hurt by the arbitrary manner in which this Senate and its Post Office Committee, under the direction of the Republican Party, have allowed only four veterans from Pennsylvania to have their nominations for postmaster confirmed in this entire session of Congress and have arbitrarily ruled out about 30 others, similarly deserving, and have refused to allow their nominations to come to the floor.

What were the standards which were used? What were the criteria? How did the committee decide on the 4 that it approved and on the 30 or so that it refused to approve? If it was on the basis of service records, no standards were followed, because many of these 30 have outstanding service records. It could not have been on the basis of civil service rating. What could it have been?

I invite an answer. But I am afraid there is no Senator, Mr. President, who can, in any conscience, and with any conviction give an answer which will be reasonable or credible. There is only one answer. It is politics at the expense of the veteran.

This is a fine record for the Republican Congress to take to the veterans of America.

Mr. MYERS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to have printed in the body of the Record three editorials dealing with the housing bill or housing.

There being no objection, the editorials were ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

[From the Philadelphia Inquirer]

CONGRESS MUST NOT LET THE HOUSING BILL DIE

Omission of any provision for alleviating the housing shortage is by far the worst feature of the whittled-down "must" list of legislation to be passed by Congress before it adjourns.

The Nation's need for housing speaks for itself, through high prices, the virtual disappearance of rental space, doubling up of families, and the existence of trailer camps near many cities. All the arguments and pressures of the real-estate lobby cannot dispel the unpleasant fact that there is a shortage.

Congress had it in its power—and still has—to do something toward solving the problem. More than 6 weeks ago, the Senate passed the Taft-Ellender-Wagner long-range housing bill, which aimed at spurring the construction of 15,000,000 new housing units over the next 10 years.

That the House had done nothing about the measure since then is a tribute to its stubbornness, but not to its willingness to come to grips with a national need. Because of their opposition to the public-housing feature, a relatively few men have blocked the legislation, even though it contains many necessary inducements for continuing private building.

Attacks on the modest public-housing provision gloss over the fact that present high prices of homes put them out of reach of large numbers of families, including those of veterans. Opponents of any Federal low-cost housing program refuse to acknowledge the effects of the wartime halt in construction on the Nation's housing requirements.

It would take but a few hours of Congress' remaining time to complete action on a housing program. All that is needed is a decision to face the problem. The leaders of Congress should decide without further delay that they, and the Nation, cannot afford to let the housing bill die.

[From the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette of May 14, 1948]

PA PITT AND THE T-E-W BILL

The Allegheny Conference on Community Development, in urging passage of the Taft-Ellender-Wagner bill, rightly sees that measure as essential to Pittsburgh's as well as the Nation's welfare. Certainly private enterprise here and elsewhere has proved itself unable to meet the desperate need for low-cost rental housing—simply because it is just not profitable for builders to put up such units.

The T-E-W bill, which the Senate has already approved, would overcome this condition by making Federal loans and subsidy grants to municipalities in order to finance construction of 500,000 housing units over the next 4 years. This, of course, would greatly benefit Pittsburgh.

Moreover, the T-E-W bill would help the city in another way. One section of the measure permits the Federal Government to "write down" some of the cost of redeveloping local slum areas and other deteriorated districts. With this aid, the conference's executive director, Park H. Martin, notes, "the Pittsburgh Redevelopment Authority would be in a position to make a full-scale attack upon the city's blighted districts."

Actually, unless Federal assistance is forth-

Actually, unless Federal assistance is forthcoming, there is no real hope of meeting the Nation's housing crisis or of ridding Pittsburgh and other American metropolitan areas of the cancer of slums. The support now given the T-E-W bill by the Allegheny Conference should spur district Congressmen to do all they can to bring the measure, presently bottled up in committee, to an early yote in the House.

[From the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette of June 18, 1948]

THE HOUSING FIASCO

The Republican leadership in the House has resorted to unconscionable procedure in denying the American people an adequate long-range housing program.

After a long, bitter struggle, the House Banking Committee last week approved legislation substantially in accord with the Taft-Ellender-Wagner bill. That measure, already passed twice by the Senate, included provisions for public housing, slum clearance, and urban redevelopment. It was a broad approach to this country's greatest domestic need.

But then the Rules Committee, led by Chairman Leo S. Allen, vetoed the Banking Committee's action by voting 6 to 2 to table the legislation. Now Chairman Wolcott of the Banking Committee has come forth with another housing bill, an emasculated document eliminating the public-housing features of the T-E-W bill. It is expected to reach the floor under an airtight gag rule. The only hope now for a decent housing bill lies in the meager possibility that eventually the Senate might prevail in a joint conference.

Perhaps the best way to drive home the real nature of the blow the House leadership has dealt ill-housed Americans is to state briefly what it means to the Pittsburgh district.

It means, first, that the Pittsburgh Housing Authority's plans for 7,000 more badly needed low-rent housing units, now on file in Washington, are stymied. The need of 62,000 families in the district's lower rent market, like those of thousands of others over the Nation, have been ignored. The 30,000 families actively applying for low-rent housing here can continue to cool their heels.

The House action means that work of Pittsburgh's new urban redevelopment authority is severely handicapped. The law creating the authority provides quite properly that before a blighted area can be cleared for redevelopment, housing provisions must be made for persons who will be dislocated. Invariably, such areas are tenanted by those in the lower-income brackets, whose housing needs private industry has been unable to meet. The T-E-W bill would make available funds for the redevelopment work.

The T-E-W bill also provided for a subsidy to bridge the gap between the cost of acquiring land for urban redevelopment and the use value of the land after it is cleared. Moreover, it encouraged private housing projects by guaranteeing returns to large-scale investors like insurance companies.

Now these provisions, constituting the real backbone of a housing bill, have been knocked out by the House leadership.

Apparently the reactionary Martin-Halleck-Taber-Allen-Wolcott clique in the House cares not how many campaign obstacles it puts in the way of the man its party will nominate next week in Philadelphia.

RAY FOLEY

Mr. FLANDERS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to have printed in the Record an editorial from the Pontiac Daily Press congratulating Mr. Ray Foley.

There being no objection, the editorial was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

CONGRATULATIONS, RAY FOLEY

Today's chamber of commerce luncheon honoring Raymond M. Foley is a fitting and well-deserved tribute to a former Pontiac resident.

His unusual ability, unquestioned integrity, and devotion to the tasks at hand have highlighted the Washington career of Federal Housing Administrator Foley. They have enabled him to achieve a success in National Government equaled by few appointive officeholders.

Without resort to the political maneuverings of lesser men, Ray Foley has won a national reputation in an office so politically trying it has broken several predecessors.

Not only has he earned the confidence and respect of his own party, but of Republicans as well. His contribution to good government also has won him the unusual recognition of an honorary degree which was conferred on him Wednesday evening by the University of Detroit.

No one in Pontiac who has known him is surprised by Ray Foley's Washington success. He would succeed in any chosen field.

He doesn't know how to slight a task. In the finest and fullest meaning of the words, he is a former home-town resident who has made good in one of the most difficult appointive posts in our National Capital.

We of the Daily Press who worked with him when he was our managing editor are proud to join the congratulations extended to him.

NOTICE OF HEARINGS BY INTERSTATE AND FOREIGN COMMERCE COMMIT-

Mr. CAPEHART. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to have printed in the body of the Record a notice of public hearings which will be held during the adjournment by a special subcommittee of the Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee.

There being no objection, the notice was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

The special subcommittee of the Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee authorized by Senate Resolution 241 to conduct an inquiry into existing legislation concerning Government policy affecting the activities of the Federal Trade Commission and the Interstate Commerce Commission and impact of recent Supreme and other court decisions relative to basing-point or freight-equalization system of pricing and its effect upon small and large business and the American consumers and the trend toward economic concentration will hold hearings during the recess of the Congress to receive information and suggestions pertaining to the subject matter of the Senate resolution.

The exact date for the commencement of these hearings cannot now be stated. Further information as to the dates will appear in the public press.

Any person or organization wishing to testify or offer information on this subject matter to the subcommittee may do so by notifying the office of the subcommittee chairman, Senator Homer E. Capehart, room 140, Senate Office Building, Telephone National 3120, extension 814.

STIMULATION OF PRODUCTION AND CON-SERVATION OF STRATEGIC AND CRITI-CAL ORES, METALS, AND MINERALS

The Senate resumed the consideration of the bill (S. 2756) to stimulate the production and conservation of strategic and critical ores, metals, and minerals in the interest of national defense and for the establishment within the Department of the Interior of a Mine Incentive Payments Division, and for other purposes.

The amendment was agreed to.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The bill is open to further amendment.

Mr. O'MAHONEY. Mr. President, I tried to get the attention of the Chair in regard to the last amendment which was acted upon. I have tried to obtain the attention of the Senator from Nevada and those who have been following this bill.

We wish to meet the criticism made by the Senator from Missouri and also by the Senator from Rhode Island: namely, that there is a double authorization in section 7. The committee amendment which begins in line 22, on page 9, and ends at the end of line 3 on page 10, should be revised to read as follows:

Nor shall any commitment be made by any officer or employee of the United States which obligates the United States Government (including all departments and agencies thereof) to make disbursements for exploration and development and conservation payments or payments for administra-tive expenses as authorized by this act in excess of $60,000,000 in the aggregate in any one year, nor shall any such disbursement be made in excess of such sum.

Such a statement would definitely tie the two together, and would also bring the administrative expense within the $60,000,000.

Mr. MILLIKIN. Under the amendment which the Senator has sent to the desk, the administrative expense would be beyond the $80,000,000; would it?

Mr. O'MAHONEY. That is correct.

Mr. MILLIKIN. I certainly think it would be a good thing to clarify the possibility of a double authorization there, so that there could be no question whether the $60,000,000 is to be subtracted from the $80,000,000, or added to it.

Mr. O'MAHONEY. In view of the fact that the measure has been criticized because of the expenditures involvedalthough those of us who have supported the bill feel that in view of the great necessity for the building up of stock piles it is justified-I think it would be proper to have all the amounts in one authorization.

Mr. KEM. Mr. President, will the Senator read it again?

Mr. O'MAHONEY. I wish to read it as a whole, so that the entire committee amendment, as amended, will be understood:

Nor shall any commitment be made by any officer or employee of the United States which obligates the United States Government (including all departments and agencies thereof) to make disbursements for exploration and development and conservation pay-ments or payments for administrative expenses as authorized by this act in excess of $60,000,000 in the aggregate in any one year, nor shall any disbursement be made in excess

Mr. KEM. Would the Senator be willing to include in that limitation the amounts expended for additional ores, metals, or minerals or the equivalent thereof, under the provisions of subsection (b) on page 8? It is my understanding that it is the contention of the proponents of the bill that the over-all expense to the Government shall not exceed $80,000,000 a year.

Mr. O'MAHONEY. I was about to offer another amendment which would cover that point.

Mr. MALONE. If I may explain, that is not the entire expense of the Government. It is an expense incurred by the Board under the pending bill. The Stock-Piling Act provides the amount of money to buy the mineral. This is the amount of money the producers get.

Mr. BREWSTER. Mr. President, will

the Senator yield?
The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Wyoming has the floor.

Mr. MALONE. If I might finish my explanation, that is the money provided in the bill for the development payments. It is confined to the $80,000,000.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Does the Senator from Wyoming yield to the Senator from Maine?

Mr. O'MAHONEY. I shall be very glad to.

Mr. BREWSTER. I do not want to interrupt. There did not seem to be anything going on. I should like to get the floor as soon as I can. I have waited 5 hours now.

Mr. O'MAHONEY. Mr. President. I have offered an amendment which I suggest the Senators from Nevada and Colorado accept.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question arises, in that case, on reconsidering the committee amendment.

Mr. KEM. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. O'MAHONEY. Certainly.

Mr. KEM. Is the Senator from Wyoming including in the limitation the amounts paid for the acquisition of title to ores and metals?

Mr. O'MAHONEY. Is the Senator referring to subparagraph (b) on page 8?

Mr. KEM. Yes.

Mr. O'MAHONEY. That is not included in this amendment, but I have another amendment that I shall submit with respect to it.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. question is on reconsidering the committee amendment. Is there objection to the reconsideration thereof? The Chair hears none, and the committee amendment is reconsidered.

The question now recurs on agreeing to the amendment offered by the Senator from Wyoming.

Mr. WILLIAMS. I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. clerk will call the roll.

The Chief Clerk called the roll, and the following Senators answered to their names:

Mr. O'MAHONEY. Mr. President, on page 8, line 15, after the word "corporation", I move to insert the words "within the limitations of section 7."

The amendment was agreed to.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The bill is open for further amendment.

If there be no further amendments, the question is on the third reading of the bill.

The bill was read the third time. The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is, Shall the bill pass?

Mr. BALL. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The question is on the final passage of Senate bill 2756.

Mr. KEM. Mr. President, I do not for a minute pose as an expert in the mining business. I have had, however, an op-portunity for observation of that business in connection with the practice of law. In my judgment, there is nothing wrong with the metal market that a higher price will not cure. Most minerals are produced and come into use when the price is raised. If the price is lowered they go into hiding or are not produced. The same applies to the metals with which we are dealing. When the price is increased, production is increased; when the price is reduced, production falls off. There is no problem faced by the small mine today that cannot be cured by high Government metal The proponents of the bill say it is the small mine in which they are What such particularly interested. producers need, in my judgment, and in the judgment of many experienced mining men, is a higher price.

We have never had and never will have, even with subsidies, a sufficiently high price in the United States to justify the operation of every prospect of every kind in the country. That is the dilemma faced by those who currently urge subsidies based upon some such system as proposed in this bill—this price premium plan. They do not know where to draw the line without hurting somebody. If, for example, they believe that a subsidy amounting to 5 cents a pound should be given to eligible lead properties, any mines that could not operate short of the current price of 15 cents plus 5 cents a pound subsidy would feel discriminated against.

I wish to put this question to the Senate, Is it not better for a free market to decide whether a mine shall operate. rather than to have it depend on a Government subsidy? We have had Government subsidies in the past. We had them as recently as last June. We know from recent experience what the subsidy does and what the free market does. I placed in the RECORD a few minutes ago the records of production in different parts of the United States under the free-market plan and under the subsidy plan, and those figures show conclusively that in almost every district the production was larger under the free market than under a fixed regimented subsidy plan.

There is another immediate aspect of subsidies, Mr. President, which I think has been lost sight of, namely, its very impact on the metal market. In times of rising demands for metals and an unsaturated market, the metal produced by virtue of subsidies, if sold on the open market, has a restraining influence as a brake on a higher market. The effect is just the reverse when the market becomes filled and there is oversupply. Then sales of comparatively modest tonnages might even be demoralizing in their influence.

The only experience we have had in this country with subsidies in metal markets, so far as I know, was the recent one during the war that terminated in June 1947. That was a price premium plan not unlike that proposed in the pending bill.

I quoted some time ago the statement of Mr. Andrew Fletcher, the president of the St. Joseph Lead Co., to the effect that there was a marked drop in efficiency in mines operating in the southeast Missouri district during the operation of the plan because inefficiency was paid for by the Government. There is no incentive, there is no impetus, to the private operator to be efficient, insistent on a full day's work for a full day's pay, when the Government is holding an umbrella over the entire operation. I believe, on adequate evidence, that this experience was had by many mines in our State operating under the premium-price

Some advocates of subsidies say what they are interested in is the marginal mine. I assume by "marginal mine" they mean one that never appeared profitable in a free market. The argument is based, I understand, on the fact that increased production is necessary today. The contention is made that this is only procurable from marginal production; that they have to open up these marginal mines in order to supply the demand.

Let us see how that works out. The record does not bear out the contention. Recently the Hero mines indicated in its statistical report that 51 mines had been closed because of the termination of the premium-price plan. These 51 mines, closed for that reason, accounted for only 600 tons of lead a month. Of course, 600 tons a month is a very minor matter in a market which produces and consumes a hundred thousand tons and more a month.

As I have said, strangely enough the termination of the premium-price plan came along in June 1947, and, contrary to the expectations of many who studied the situation, instead of falling off, production increased.

I remember very well when a similar bill was under consideration by the Senate in the closing days of the last session. The feeling on the part of the proponents of the bill was that if the price-premium plan were allowed to expire, the whole metal business would go to pot; that very dire consequences would ensue. Induced by that feeling the Congress passed a bill providing for a price-premium plan. The bill, as I recollect, was vetoed by the President. So there was no pricepremium plan, but the dire consequences predicted did not ensue. To the contrary production increased.

This production increased, due partly to the migration of labor from subsidized markets where the output per mine is low, to the larger mines with richer ores where the metal output per day is bound to be higher.

If these gentlemen are really concerned about the actual amount of metal available for military purposes, if they think that the stock piles require increases in size, I think it is clear from the record that the place to secure those increases is not through sending out a lot of people boondoggling and trying to open up some new mines or trying to open some marginal properties, and get them into production again, but to turn to the large, known mineral deposits.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Will the Senator from Missouri suspend while the Senate may receive a message from the House of Representatives.

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE

A message from the House of Representatives, by Mr. Swanson, one of its reading clerks, announced that the House had agreed to the report of the committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H. R. 6248) to provide for a coordinated agricultural program.

The message also announced that the House had passed the bill (S. 2767) to provide assistance in the recruitment and distribution of farm labor for the increased production, harvesting, and preparation for market of agricultural commodities to meet domestic needs and foreign commitment, with amendments, in which it requested the concurrence of the Senate.

The message further announced that the House had agreed to the following concurrent resolutions, in which it requested the concurrence of the Senate:

House Concurrent Resolution 218

Resolved by the House of Representatives (the Senate concurring), That when the two Houses adjourn on Sunday, June 20, 1948, they stand adjourned until 12 o'clock m. on Friday, December 31, 1948, or until 12 o'clock m. on the third day after the respective Members are notified to reassemble in accordance with section 2 of this resolution, whichever event first occurs.

SEC. 2. The President pro tempore of the Senate, the Speaker of the House of Representatives, the acting majority leader of the Senate, and the majority leader of the House of Representatives, all acting jointly, shall notify the Members of the Senate and the House, respectively, to reassemble whenever, in their opinion, the public interest shall warrant it.

House Concurrent Resolution 219

Resolved by the House of Representatives (the Senate concurring), That notwithstanding the adjournment of the two Houses until December 31, 1948, the Speaker of the House of Representatives and the President pro tempore of the Senate be, and they are hereby, authorized to sign enrolled bills and joint resolutions duly passed by the two Houses and found truly enrolled.

Mr. AIKEN. Mr. President— Mr. LUCAS. Mr. President, a parliamentary inquiry.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator will state it.

Mr. LUCAS. Can the Senator from Illinois move the adoption of the report on the farm bill so we can get out of bere?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair is just about to recognize the Senator from Vermont [Mr. Alken] if the Senator from Missouri will be so kind as to yield to him.

Mr. KEM. I yield without protest.

LONG-RANGE AGRICULTURAL PRO-GRAM—CONFERENCE REPORT

Mr. AIKEN. Mr. President, I submit a conference report on the bill (H. R. 6248) to authorize the Secretary of Agriculture to stabilize prices of agricultural commodities; to amend section 22 of the Agricultural Adjustment Act, reenacted by the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, and for other purposes, and I ask unanimous consent for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The conference report will be read.

The report was read.

(For conference report, see House proceedings of the RECORD, p. 9338.)

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection to the present consideration of the conference report.

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the report.

Mr. AIKEN. The conference report, Mr. President, embodies that part of the House bill which provided temporary price supports for the six basic commodities and for milk, hogs, chickens, and eggs, at 90 percent of parity or comparable price for 1 year. At the conclusion of the 1 year titles III and IV of the Senate long-range farm program, which are the price-support part of the farm program, come into effect and continue thereon.

That, in brief, is what the conference bill is.

Mr. RUSSELL. I should like to ask the Senator from Vermont what disposition was accorded the so-called tobacco amendment. Is it still in the bill?

Mr. AIKEN. The amendments adopted by the Senate are still in the bill.

Mr. BARKLEY. Under this bill the amendment which extended the present situation for 2 years has been modified to extend for 1 year, although the bill adopted by the Senate a few days ago takes on from thereon without any change in the Senate bill as passed.

Mr. AIKEN. That is correct. The higher support levels the House proposed will prevail for 1 year instead of a year and a half. Then the titles III and IV of the Senate bill take effect on January 1, 1950, instead of 1949, the date fixed in the bill as it passed the Senate.

There is one little amendment in the conference report which does fix a base period for Maryland 32 tobacco for the period of 1 year.

Mr. TYDINGS. That is in what would be the House bill?

The AIKEN. That is in what would be the House bill.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the conference report.

Mr. RUSSELL. Mr. President, I shall say only two or three words. I congratulate the Senator from Vermont for the rugged obstinacy he has shown in securing the enactment of his bill. I am glad that we have I year to operate under the present program for I believe present laws are more advantageous to the farmers of the country than the Aiken bill which takes effect in January 1950.

Mr. JOHNSON of Colorado. Mr. President, I suggest that the Senator from Georgia include, along with the Senator from Vermont, the Senator from Louisiana [Mr. ELLENDER].

Mr. RUSSEIL. I certainly would not deny any honors the Senate conferees deserve, and they deserve the very highest accolade for imposing their will on the House. I refer to the Senator from Louisiana [Mr. ELLENDER], the Senator from Minnesota [Mr. THYE], the Senator from North Dakota [Mr. YOUNG], and the Senator from Oklahoma [Mr. THOMAS] who, I believe, were the conferees on the part of the Senate. But the Senator from Vermont, being the author of the bill, I thought was entitled to perhaps a small measure of credit larger than the other conferees.

Mr. President, I hope the committees of the two Houses which have to deal with agricultural matters will carefully study this legislation, because it has come upon us here at the end of a very lengthy session, a tiring session, and that they will examine it in the 1 year interim we

I think the general principle embodied in the Aiken bill is excellent for a normal period in this country. I have not yet been able to reconcile it in my mind as desirable under present conditions, in view of the great demands that are being made and that will be made upon American agriculture to increase production, because I do not believe sufficient incentives are provided to maintain the high levels of production in the future to enable us to meet our commitments under the Marshall plan. In any event, I am still opposed to any program to reduce the amount of parity and commodity loans. Farm income is not too high and Aiken bill will reduce it materially. I hope the next Congress will rewrite the Aiken bill before it takes effect and thereby avoid loss to the already underpaid farmers.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the conference report.

The report was agreed to.

RECRUITMENT AND DISTRIBUTION OF FARM LABOR

The PRESIDING OFFICER laid before the Senate the amendments of the House of Representatives to the bill (S. 2767) to provide assistance in the recruitment and distribution of farm labor for the increased production, harvesting, and preparation for market of agricultural commodities to meet domestic needs and foreign commitment, which were, on page 1, lines 3 and 4, to strike out "the Secretary of Labor" and insert "the Administrator of the Federal Security Agency", and on page 2, line 20, to strike out "the Secretary of Labor" and insert "the Administrator of the Federal Security Agency."

Mr. AIKEN. I move that the Senate concur in the amendments of the House. The motion was agreed to.

STIMULATION OF PRODUCTION AND CON-SERVATION OF STRATEGIC AND CRITI-CAL ORES, METALS, AND MINERALS

The Senate resumed the consideration of the motion of the Senator from Nebraska [Mr. Wherry] to take up the consideration of the bill (S. 2756) to stimulate the production and conservation of strategic and critical ores, metals, and minerals in the interest of national defense and for the establishment within the Department of the Interior of a Mine Incentive Payments Division, and for other purposes.

Mr. KEM. Mr. President, as I have been saying, there is no reason for speculation as to the effect of the price premium plan on production, because we have the actual figures of last year and of this year showing what the production was under the premium plan and what it has been since. I have put it in the Record. It is available there.

Mr. JOHNSTON of South Carolina. Mr. President—

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Does the Senator from Missouri yield to the Senator from South Carolina?

Mr. KEM. I will yield without prej-

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator yields without prejudice.

Mr. JOHNSTON of South Carolina. I should like to ask unanimous consent, should like to ask unanimous consent, and without prejudice at all to the Senator from Missouri, to have the Senate consider two stamp bills. When they were reached on the calendar I objected to one, and the Senator from New Hampshire [Mr. Tobey] objected to the other. I do not believe any other Senator objects to the two bills. I want to get them acted upon and off the calendar.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Will the Senator from Missouri yield to permit the Senator from South Carolina to have action on the bills to which he has re-

Mr. KEM. I shall be glad to yield for that purpose, if it will have no effect on PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair assures the Senator from Missouri that he can resume after action has been taken on the two bills in question.

Mr. WHERRY. I should like to have some information. The Senator from South Carolina asks unanimous consent that the Senate consider what bill?

Mr. JOHNSTON of South Carolina. House Joint Resolution 327, Calendar 1741, and House Joint Resolution 305. Calendar 1753. Both measures provide authorization for issuance of a special series of stamps. When the calendar was called I objected to one measure and the Senator from New Hampshire [Mr. Tobey] objected to the other.

Mr. BREWSTER. Mr. President, reserving the right to object, as I have indicated, I have been waiting very patiently for the bill which was next on the list presented. I do not think it will take a very long time.

Mr. JOHNSTON of South Carolina. If there is any opposition-

Mr. BREWSTER. I had understood that we were to terminate the discussion long before now. The bill to which I refer is a bill which very much concerns our national defense, one which the House has passed, and upon which it is awaiting our action. I want to have it considered by this body before we go away, and I must ask that we proceed as promptly as possible to that end.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection to the request of the Senator from South Carolina?

Mr. BREWSTER. I object.

The PRESIDING OFFICER, Objection is heard.

The Senator from Missouri has the

Mr. KEM. Mr. President, as I was saying, I have heretofore inserted in the RECORD a monthly tabulation of the mine production by States which shows that lead and zinc production actually increased, with certain minor exceptions, after the premium plan was ended. From expressions on the floor, there seems to be a particular interest in the proposed price premium plan in the Western States.

CONDITIONAL ADJOURNMENT OF THE TWO HOUSES

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Will the Senator from Missouri please yield to the Senator from Nebraska, without prejudice?

Mr. KEM. I yield.

Mr. ROBERTSON of Virginia. Mr. President, will the Senator from Nebraska yield to me for a question?

Mr. WHERRY. I shall be glad to vield.

Mr. ROBERTSON of Virginia. Before we adjourn-

Mr. WHERRY. Mr. President, we are not going to adjourn right now. We are going to transact some further business.

Mr. ROBERTSON of Virginia. I believe it is planned to have an executive session and take up the question of post-

Mr. WHERRY. I shall ask the Senate to be patient while we proceed.

Mr. President, I see no reason for not laying down the concurrent resolution which has come over from the House. I ask it be laid before the Senate at this time.

Mr. MAYBANK. Mr. President-

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Before the concurrent resolution is laid before the Senate, will the Senator from Nebraska yield to the Senator from South Carolina?

Mr. WHERRY. I yield. Mr. MAYBANK. I simply wished to ask my good friend from Nebraska what time he thought we might adjourn?

Mr. WHERRY. We have some other things to do. We plan to adjourn just as soon as we can.

Mr. MAYBANK. What time would the Senator guess?

Mr. WHERRY. I cannot tell the Sen-ator. It will not be long.

Mr. MAYBANK. I thank the Senator. Mr. FULBRIGHT. Mr. President, a parliamentary inquiry.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Senator will state it.

Mr. WHERRY. If the Senator wishes to ask unanimous consent to take up the oleomargarine bill-

Mr. FULBRIGHT. Has the pending bill been abandoned or laid aside?

Mr. WHERRY. No; this is a privileged matter.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The pending bill is still the unfinished business.

Mr. FULBRIGHT. I thank the Chair. The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair lays before the Senate a concurrent resolution coming over from the House of Representatives, which will be read.

The concurrent resolution (H. Con. Res. 218) was read by the Chief Clerk, as follows:

Resolved by the House of Representatives (the Senate concurring), That when the two Houses adjourn on Sunday, June 20, 1948, they stand adjourned until 12 o'clock meridian on Friday, December 31, 1948, or until 12 o'clock meridian on the third day after the respective Members are notified to reassemble in accordance with section 2 of this resolution, whichever event first occurs.

SEC. 2. The President pro tempore of the Senate, the Speaker of the House of Representatives, the acting majority leader of the Senate, and the majority leader of the House of Representatives, all acting jointly, shall notify the Members of the Senate and the House respectively, to reassemble whenever, in their opinion, the public interest shall

The PRESIDING OFFICER. question is on agreeing to the concurrent resolution.

Mr. BARKLEY, Mr. President—
The PRESIDING OFFICER. The
Chair points out that the concurrent resolution is not debatable.

Mr. BARKLEY. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to say a few words.

Mr. WHERRY. I shall be glad to yield for that purpose.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, the Senator from Kentucky may proceed.

Mr. BARKLEY. I merely wish to observe that in my opinion a resolution of this sort is really in violation of the provision of the Constitution with respect to the calling back of Congress by the President of the United States.

When the Democrats were in the majority, the Republicans insisted that a provision of this sort go into the resolution of adjournment; otherwise, they would fight the adjournment. But in the resolution we always gave the minority some voice in determining whether the Congress should be called back, even in an unconstitutional way. I am wondering why it is, in this resolution, that only the majority are to be consulted as to whether Congress shall be called back. Also, why is the adjournment proposed to be taken until the 31st of December. when the new Congress will meet on the third day of January?

Mr. WHERRY. Mr. President, there is precedent for this resolution. It is almost identical with the one adopted last

Mr. BARKLEY. That is true, but that still does not satisfy my inquiry.

Mr. WHERRY. I am giving the Senator one reason. If he will give me sufficient time, I can give him several more reasons. That is the first one.

The second reason is that I am quite satisfied that the minority leader would agree with the proponents of the resolution that the President has a right to bring the Congress back. He happens to be of the same party as the distinguished minority leader. The resolution provides that the opposite party, through their constitutional officers, have the right to summon the Congress back to their duties if it becomes necessary. That is reason No. 2.

Mr. BARKLEY. I wish to say further that heretofore all such resolutions have been adopted as a matter of expediency. I have never yielded in my opinion that they are not constitutional. We cannot by concurrent resolution modify the Constitution of the United States which provides for an adjournment of Congress, to be called back by the President of the United States under extraordinary circumstances.

Mr. WHERRY. That is a debatable question, and the Senator has a perfect right to his opinion.

Mr. TAFT. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. WHERRY. I yield. Mr. TAFT. Of course, the distinguished Senator from Kentucky sponsored resolutions exactly like this when he was majority leader.

Mr. BARKLEY. But it was on the demand of the minority, who would have been unwilling to adjourn unless we had done it.

Mr. TAFT. The argument that it is unconstitutional hardly lies in the Senator's mouth. He must at that time have satisfied his doubts as to the constitutionality or I presume he would not have sponsored such a resolution.

Mr. BARKLEY. I stated that we adopted similar resolutions as a matter of expediency, because the minority even threatened to bring about the failure of an effort to recess or adjourn unless we included them in the power to bring Congress back.

Mr. TAFT. But at the present time the Democratic Party, represented by the President, can bring Congress back at any time. This resolution in no way limits the power of the President to call us back, as he did last year, during the recess

Mr. BARKLEY. Is the Senator con-tending that he has more faith in the President of the United States than he has in the officers of the minority?

Mr. TAFT. Not at all: but so far as calling Congress back on its own motion is concerned, the Republican Party had no representation whatever. The only purpose of giving some right to call Congress back was to allow the minority party during the war to have some -not a final voice, but some voice. voice-I think it was a final voice. I think the two Republican leaders could have done it, if there had been no other way in which the Republican Party could call Congress back.

Mr. BARKLEY. I merely wished to call attention to the difference between the resolution now proposed and the kind of resolution we sponsored when we were in the majority in both Houses of Congress

Mr. WHERRY. Mr. President, this is the identical wording of the resolution adopted last year, which I think provided equal rights for all those who wanted them. It worked out very satisfactorily.

Mr. BARKLEY. That reminds mewhat about the equal-rights amend-

Mr. WHERRY. That is another measure which we have on the calendar. Would the Senator like to have it taken up at this session?

Mr. BARKLEY. I am merely asking the Senator-

Mr. WHERRY. The Senator has been after me day after day to adjourn with this type of resolution.

Mr. BARKLEY. Oh, no.

Mr. WHERRY. I know what the Senator has told me.

Mr. BARKLEY. I have said that I would cooperate in adjournment, but I never have said-

Mr. WHERRY. The Senator is one of those who has been complaining about adjournment, but I suppose he has his railroad ticket in his pocket right now.

Mr. BARKLEY. The Senator's supposition is as erroneous in that respect as it is on everything else.

Mr. WHERRY. Just a minute-

Mr. TAFT. Mr. President, a point of order.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator will state it.

Mr. TAFT. The resolution is not dehatable.

Mr. BARKLEY. I am sorry if a mere inquiry has stirred up so much discussion.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Senator from Kentucky was proceeding under unanimous consent.

Mr. RUSSELL. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. WHERRY. I yield. Mr. RUSSELL. I desire to make only one observation with respect to the statement of the Senator from Nebraska and the statement of the Senator from Ohio. The reason I regard this resolution as being unfair to the minority is based upon the fact that life is uncertain. We all hope and pray that nothing will happen to the present President of the United States. But in the event that providence should intervene to remove him from this scene of action, under the legislation sponsored by the Senator from Nebraska he would be succeeded by the Speaker of the House of Representatives; and in that event the minority would be absolutely helpless and would be denied the rights of the minority when the majority was in power.
Mr. WHERRY. Mr. President, I move the adoption of the concurrent resolu-

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. BARKLEY. Mr. President, let me ask the Senator from Nebraska a question, by unanimous consent: Why the hiatus between the 31st of December and the 3d of January, when the new Congress assembles?

Mr. WHERRY. New Year's Day falls on Saturday and is a holiday. Tuesday, January 3, is the day when the Congress would ordinarily convene. I think December 31 was selected, so that the Congress could come back without interfering with the meeting of the new Congress

Mr. BARKLEY. Well, the Congress would automatically have to come back.

Mr. WHERRY. At any rate, I gave the reasons; and now that the concurrent resolution has been adopted, I am satisfied that there will be no quarrel about it.

WALLACE H. WHITE, JR., OF MAINE

Mr. MORSE. Mr. President, I would like the RECORD to contain my very deep expressions of appreciation to our majority leader, Mr. WALLACE WHITE, for the advice and counsel he has given to me during my term in the Senate. I am wishing for him very many years of happy living, following his retirement from the Senate this year.

AUTHORIZATION FOR SIGNING ENROLLED BILLS AND JOINT RESOLUTIONS

The PRESIDING OFFICER laid before the Senate the concurrent resolution (H. Con. Res. 219), which was considered and agreed to, as follows:

Resolved by the House of Representatives (the Senate concurring), That notwithstanding the adjournment of the two Houses until December 31, 1948, the Speaker of the House of Representatives and the President pro tempore of the Senate be, and they are hereby, authorized to sign enrolled bills and joint resolutions duly passed by the two Houses and found truly enrolled. NORTHWEST FLOOD-RELIEF LEGISLA-TION-INTERPRETATIONS BY RECON-STRUCTION FINANCE CORPORATION

Mr. MORSE. Mr. President, a few days ago the Senate passed Senate bill 2877, a bill which seeks to afford some permanent housing relief to the flood victims of the Pacific Northwest.

The bill was so amended in the House of Representatives that it will provide very little relief to the flood victims. Nevertheless, in order that the matter might be clarified, I sent to Mr. Dougherty, of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, under date of June 18, 1948, a letter concerning certain questions as to interpretations by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation of Senate bill 2877. Under date of June 18, 1943, I received a reply to my letter. I ask that the two letters be inserted at this point in the body of the RECORD, as a part of my remarks.

There being no objection, the letters were ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

JUNE 18, 1948.

Mr. JAMES L. DOUGHERTY, General Counsel, Reconstruction Finance Corporation, Washington, D. C.

My DEAR MR. DOUGHERTY: In conference yesterday with members of the Senate Banking and Currency Committee, we worked out a bill to thoroughly adapt the RFC disaster loan operations to the situation resulting from the flood in the Pacific Northwest. In view of the understandings reached and statements made at that time I am anxious to have certain questions answered regarding operations under the bill.

You will recall that the bill which I had introduced clearly recognized and made adequate provisions for a direct and open subsidy operation where necessary to provide housing for families deprived of housing as a result of the Vanport flood disaster and who could not afford to buy or rent existing housing.

You will recall that in the course of discussions with the committee it was clearly pointed out that if the RFC disaster loan operation was to meet this portion of the need, the RFC would be required to take substantial losses on disaster loans made for this purpose. Furthermore, in this connection, in response to my questions you stated that this is clearly contemplated by the RFC. I think it would be desirable if this understanding were confirmed in writing.

I am listing below several statements of your undertakings which I would like to have confirmed. I am sure you agree that this information must be made available to the public officials and the people of the communities in the flood area at once. The RFC bill was substituted for my bill upon the understanding that it would meet fully the objectives which I had in mind, which were contained in my bill and which are obviously necessary to meet the needs of these disaster If the bill is to achieve these objectives, all parties concerned must be fully conversant with the program which you stated the RFC would undertake and carry forward expeditiously under the terms of this bill.

1. The RFC will be able to make loans to former residents of Vanport for both the purchase of existing or new dwellings and the construction of dwellings.

2. The granting of such a loan by the RFC will be based solely on the need of the family for housing and such loans will not be denied because the income of any family is too low or too uncertain to assure repayment of the RFC loan under normal mortgage loan payment and amortization schedule.

3. The RFC will be able to low monthly payments within the means of the former Vanport families, with a balloon payment subject to refinancing at the end of the twenty-fifth year.

4. In the event that the borrower fails to meet monthly payments on the RFC loan, except in the case of a willful failure to meet monthly payments, the RFC will undertake to refinance or otherwise adjust the debt and payments to avoid foreclosure. If foreclosure is thereafter necessary, the RFC will not obtain any deficiency judgment against the borrower as a result of any foreclosure sale, and will not dispossess the borrower, except for waste or other misuse of the property, and will offer the borrower continued occupancy as tenant for at least 5 years on terms reasonably suited to his ability to pay.

5. The RFC is prepared to make a loan or loans to the Portland Housing Authority for the construction and ownership of largescale rental-housing projects for rental to families formerly residents of Vanport who cannot pay economic rents and thus cannot assure sufficient income to assure repayment of the RFC loan over a 25-year period. The RFC will be able and willing to make such loans in order to meet this need which has resulted from the flood disaster even if the making of such loans involves the possibility or probability of substantial deferments of principal and interest and eventual loss at the end of the mortgage term. The RFC will not find it necessary to pass upon the pro-posed rent schedules of projects of this type, but will rely upon the physical properties as its security for the ultimate repayment of the loan.

I await your confirmation of these understandings in order that I may apprise local officials of this program at the earliest possible moment.

Yours very truly,

WAYNE MORSE.

RECONSTRUCTION FINANCE CORPORATION, Washington, D. C., June 18, 1948. Hon. Wayne Morse, United States Senate,

Washington, D. C.

My DEAR SENATOR MORSE: I have your letter of June 18, 1948, requesting a written reaction of this Corporation to the series of statements outlined therein with regard to the operations of this Corporation in connection with the disastrous flood situation existing in the Pacific Northwest.

You mention that the bill which you introduced clearly recognized and made adequate provisions for direct and open subsidy operation where necessary to provide housing for needy families, and that in lieu of your bill the modifications proposed to be made in the RFC bill with respect to disaster loan operations would constitute a substitute for the bill which you had introduced and that RFC would be required to take sub-stantial losses on disaster loans made for housing purposes. The amendatory bill which was voted out of the Senate Banking which was voted out of the Senate Banking and Currency Committee and passed by the Senate on Wednesday, June 16, 1948, had the effect of making two changes in the present RFC bill. The first was to eliminate the maturity limit of 10 years on disaster loans with the understanding that the loan maturity would not exceed 25 years, and secondly, increased the amount that this Corporation may have outstanding at any Corporation may have outstanding at any one time in disaster loans from $25,000,000 to $45,000,000. There was, however, no change made in the basic lending authority of the Corporation for disaster purposes, and we are of the opinion that the present RFC bill, as amended by the Senate, does not permit the making of grants or subsidies to alleviate flood sufferers, but is limited to the extension of loans on a reasonable credit basis with the expectation that such loans shall be repaid.

In the case of disaster loans as distinguished from loans made under other sec-tions of the RFC act, the Corporation does liberalize substantially its collaterial requirements. Notwithstanding this liberal approach, however, they are loans and not grants. The Corporation would be outside the scope of its authority under the act and the intent of Congress if, at the time of making a disaster loan, the Corporation an-ticipated that the loan would not be paid. It is obvious, however, that with the liberal approach to such loans, which we believe to be the intent of Congress, that substantial losses may occur in the aggregate of the loans made. As I stated to the subcommittee yesterday, loans of this character, if they are to serve the purpose intended, must be made even though the security is considered "light."

With respect to the statements set forth in your letter, I shall comment on them in numerical sequence as follows:

1. Those residents of Vanport who have been damaged and have suffered loss by the flood are eligible for loans for the purchase of existing or new dwellings and the construction, repair, rehabilitation of dwellings.

The granting of such loan by the RFC will be based on the need of the family for housing and a showing that the applicant has a reasonable possibility of repaying the loan under terms which would be more liberal than the normal mortgage-loan amortization. This does not mean, however, that a family which, by the application of minimum economic standards, is found fi-nancially incapable of repaying a loan made on liberal terms, will be granted the money to acquire a new dwelling.

3. The RFC will be able to establish reasonably low monthly payments with a bal-loon payment at maturity date as may be established by the Congress.

4. In the event the borrower fails to meet monthly payments on the loan, except in the case of willful failure, the RFC will make every effort to work out and adjust the terms and payments in order that foreclosure may be avoided. If, after all efforts have been exhausted, foreclosure becomes necessary, the RFC will be obligated to obtain a deficiency judgment against the borrower if the facts and circumstances in a particular case warrant such action. Dispossession of the borrower after foreclosure will have to be determined when and if such occasion arises, and no assurance can be given that the borrower will not be dispossessed when action to foreclose has been instituted.

5. The RFC is prepared to make a loan or loans to the Portland housing authority for the construction and ownership of largescale rental housing projects for rental such families as the Housing Authority may determine, provided that the housing authority is legally authorized to borrow money and makes a proper showing that the housing it will supply is necessitated to be a supply the supply the supply is necessitated to a supply the supply the supply is necessitated. sary and appropriate to relieve flood sufferers. The RFC, in passing upon a loan to the housing authority, will of necessity look to the housing authority's source of income in order that there may be some assurance that the loan, if made, will ultimately be repaid. In addition thereto, the RFC will rely upon the physical properties as security for the ultimate repayment of the loan.

I agree that it is appropriate that the officials in Oregon be apprised of these understandings.

Sincerely yours,

JAMES L. DOUGHERTY. General Counsel.

THE POSTAL PAY BILL

Mr. MORSE. Mr. President. I ask unanimous consent to have printed in the body of the RECORD certain telegrams addressed to me, dealing with various phases of the postal pay bill.

There being no objection, the tele-grams were ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

CASCADE LOCKS—BRIGHTEST TOWN BY A "DAMSITE"

In a few days Cascade Locks will observe the ninth anniversary of its municipally owned electric system, and city fathers are congratu-lating themselves on the record they have made in public distribution of Bonneville power. The success story is indelibly written into the ledgers and records of the city light department, but the men who can see the twinkling lights of the dam they built prefer to reminisce about shoulder-to-shoulder stand they made nearly a decade ago.

By a vote of better than 10 to 1, the people of Cascade Locks decided to issue bonds to operate their public power system. But the local utility refused to sell its lines to the town. In fact, the company president threatened to procure a court injunction to stop the townspeople from distributing Bonneville power themselves.

The community promptly responded by forming an emergency citizens' committee. Late that Saturday afternoon—and far into the night—they worked up and down the main street of Cascade Locks, setting up poles and insulators, helping the crews string the heavy wire that was to link their homes and shops to the newly built dam. Bonfires dotted the town, and the women kept huge pots of coffee brewing for the menfolk who were determined to build the backbone of their city light system before the courts reopened Monday morning.

Eventually the company relented and the town bought the local power lines with the bonds the people had voted. Seventy-nine thousand dollars worth of revenue bonds were issued—bonds which were to be paid for out of power earnings rather than taxes. Twenty-eight thousand dollars worth of the bonds already have been retired; the people have an equity in their business amounting to $57,000, or better than $100 a customer. The depreciated value of the power properties now exceeds $100,000. The town has improved and extended its lines, bringing electricity to many families who had never been

But the real achievement of Cascade Locks power system may be found in the power bill residents proudly pay at the end of each month. For the cost of electricity has dropped from 4.92 cents (per kilowatt-hour) to 1.39 cents—a reduction of 72 percent. Most astounding is the way the demand for electricity has skyrocketed under these low Nine years ago the average home used 53 kilowatt-hours a month; today the figure is 314—nearly six times as much. Forty-two homes are heated entirely by electric heat-and many are planning to follow

Official Federal Power Commission figures reveal that the average patron of Cascade Locks municipal system pays $14 less per year for electricity than the average householder in nearby Hood River Valley. Stores and mills have profited equally from the low price at which Cascade Locks distributes Bonneville power. Commercial rates have dropped nearly 60 percent and use has shot up 378 percent. That is why the lights burn so brightly in the shops that line the high-way at Cascade Locks. It explains why Gibbs Restaurant is all electric in every sense of the word.

With industrial power rates cut from 60 to 72 percent over the old charges, Cascade Locks is looking forward to its share of industrial expansion. The Cascade Locks Lumber Co. is completing its all-electric mill—safer and more efficient than the old-style operations with steam or Diesel power.

In 1939 the town's power system had 387 istomers; today it has 560. The new line customers; today it has 560. The new line to Bridal Veil has added 75 new customers to the books, and the lumber mill there absorbs 162,000 kilowatt-hours a month.

Nineteen hundred and forty-seven revenues of the city light system totaled $28,656. Cost of Bonneville power was $6,980, operating expenses $11,589, depreciation $1,330, taxes $1,330, and interest and bond payments $1,210. Add up these figures and you'll see that Cascade Locks city light department netted $6,217 after paying all expenses. This net of $6,217 represents a return of 10 percent upon the people's investment in the business of $57,000. But they still have their eye on the record of Monmouth's city light department, which just burned the last of its bonds and became another debt-free public power system.

HOUSING FOR VANPORT, OREG.,

Mr. MORSE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to have printed in the body of the RECORD a telegram which I have received relative to housing for the Vanport evacuees.

There being no objection, the telegram was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

PORTLAND, OREG., June 15, 1948. Senator Wayne L. Morse,

Senate Office Building: Two provisions are indispensable if private enterprise is to build for Vanport evacuees; (1) easy long-term financing; (2) guaranteed return so builder is assured of income to meet mortgage payments, fixed charges with small return for self in case of rental units. Financing would be easier if term were 32 years 7 months, the same as 608. Telegram mentions no provision in pro-posed legislation for guaranteed return to builder-owner in case of rental unit. Every unit should be built for either rent or sale without both above provisions. We doubt private enterprise will build many units. Any limitation in cost should apply equally to private and public housing. Until survey of family size is made formula for price limitation is difficult. Would prefer discretion in hands of Administrator. If limit is imposed it should be at least $9,000 to house larger families. Between properties owned and adjacent sites easily acquired builders have estimated 2,000 lots near utilities, many with improvements in construction, can start immediately. Within 5 to 8 months 3,000 to 4,000 units can be built. These scattered sites would not present problems of schools, playgrounds, utilities, and shipping centers. Only private enterprise using lots where improvements are substantially in place can do anything before next winter if flood victims live in emergency housing and trailers over winter. Many serious problems will develop, and the longer they live in this emergency phase the greater will be the expense for the Government. Legislation providing simultaneously for public and private housing should extend equal benefits to both. No public housing project will ever produce home ownership with attending responsibility and good citizenship. Over the long period most single-family units built by private enterprise will be sold. Result would be less cost to Federal Treasury and each such unit will pay its just share of the tax burden.

FLOOD DAMAGE TO FARMS IN COLUMBIA BASIN

Mr. MORSE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to have printed in the body of the Record, as a part of my remarks, a statement issued by the United States Department of Agriculture relative to flood damage to farms in the Columbia Basin.

There being no objection, the statement was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

FLOOD DAMAGE TO FARMS IN COLUMBIA BASIN ESTIMATED

Lost farm-production income estimated for this year in the areas of Washington, Oregon, and Idaho, devastated by the Columbia River floodwaters, will approximate nearly $10,-000,000, according to preliminary advance estimates sent to Secretary Charles F. Brannan, of the United States Department of Agriculture, today by George T. Hudson, special representative of the Secretary, stationed in the Pacific Northwest to coordinate efforts of the Department agencies in behalf of flood sufferers.

In making their estimates, the Department observers in the stricken areas did not include part-time farmers or nonfarm rural residents in the first list of damages. It is also exclusive of flood damage now being surveyed and reported by the Forest Service on upper watersheds. Likewise, possible damage to public roads, bridges, rural electric-power lines, or telephone lines are not included in any survey to date.

To date, the best available flood-damage figures furnished to the Department of Agriculture by State USDA councils and other agency specialists include the following for Washington and Oregon farms, which are sketchy and incomplete pending further surveys:

Washington State: 1,375 farms affected, with rehabilitation costs placed at $1,375,000; acres of farm land inundated, 104,000; cropland or cultivated pasture flooded, 52,135 acres, cost to return cropland to normal cultivation, $781,900; cows evacuated, 11,500 head; hay requirements to next pasture season, 20,000 tons, valued at $700,000; seed requirements, 263,800 pounds, worth $205,000; grain feed requirements, 10,625 tons, worth $1,062,500; fences destroyed, 1,955 miles, to cost $627,000 for replacement; 880 farm buildings damaged or destroyed, at a cost to rehabilitate of $2,279,500; fertilizer needed, 5,000 tons, worth $375,000; farm bridges to rebuild or repair, at cost of $200,000; repair of damaged farm roads, $50,000 loss of homegrown food, estimated at $137,500; and personal-property damages, valued at about $1,330,000. In addition, special needs must be met in Chelan, Douglas, and Pend Oreille Counties, at cost of about $272,000, the estimate concludes.

Oregon estimates: 800 farms affected with rehabilitation costs put at $450,000; acres of farm land inundated, 50,000; cropland or cultivated pasture flooded, 26,000 acres; cost to return cropland to normal cultivation, $390,000; number of cows evacuated, 5,400 hcad; hay requirements to next pasture season, 12,150 tons, at a value of $425,000; seed requirements, $430,000 for replanting mint and seeding pasture and hay crops; grain feed requirements, 4,050 tons, worth $405,000; fences destroyed, 500 miles, to cost $157,000 for replacement; 450 farm buildings damaged or destroyed, at a rebuilding and repair cost of $1,350,000; fertilizer needed, 1,000 tons, worth $75,000; $50,000 for repair of farm bridges; $20,000 for repair of farm roads; loss of home-grown food, $45,000; and personal-property damages, estimated at $225,000.

Loss of income from crops and livestock, in addition to the current flood-damage rehabilitation costs, is estimated for Washington, Oregon, and Idaho farms at $9,863,000.

ALBERT W. HAWKES, OF NEW JERSEY

Mr. MORSE. Mr. President, to my friend, Albert W. Hawkes, with whom I have disagreed on some issues, I wish to say, as he retires from the Senate, that my sincere good wishes go with him. Although we have had our differences, I think both Senator HAWKES and I have sought in the sincerity of our convictions to preserve what we call the American system in accordance with the principles and guaranties of the Constitu-I served with Senator HAWKES when both of us were members of the War Labor Board, during the war. My association with him there, as well as here in the Senate, has been a source of inspiration to me.

ARTHUR CAPPER, OF KANSAS

Mr. MORSE. Mr. President, I also wish to pay my respects to the grand young man of the Senate, ARTHUR CAPPER. As a boy on a farm in Wisconsin, I first came under the influence of Senator CAPPER as I read his writings in the Capper Farm Journal. All one needs to say about ARTHUR CAPPER is that he retires from the Senate rich in the love of all of us.

CARL A. HATCH, OF NEW MEXICO

Mr. MORSE. Mr. President, I should like to have the Record show my appreciation of my very good friend, Carl Hatch, for our many pleasant associations in the Senate.

DUPLICATION OF CLEAR CHANNELS AND SUPERPOWER—CORRESPONDENCE BE-TWEEN SENATE INTERSTATE AND FOR-EIGN COMMERCE COMMITTEE AND THE FEDERAL COMMUNICATIONS COMMIS-SION

Mr. JOHNSON of Colorado. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to insert in the body of the Record an exchange of letters between the Senate Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce and the Federal Communications Commission. As ranking member of the minority side of that committee, I believe that these letters will help clarify the existing situation with respect to the question of duplication of clear channels and superpower, a subject which has had a great deal of committee attention during the present session of Congress.

I believe it will be clear from this exchange of letters and the favorable committee report of the White radio bill (S. 1333), which includes a section-section 6-prohibiting the granting of power in excess of 50 kilowatts for any AM radio broadcast station, that the Federal Communications Commission must maintain its present policy of limiting power to 50 kilowatts. It is important to likewise point out that the language of Senate bill 1333 makes clear that the Commission's present authority to duplicate clear channels wherever and whenever the Commission finds that it is in the public interest to do so is not interfered with in any way and that the Commission retains such authority. I insist that it continue to exercise that authority, but with more vigor, in the public interest.

The letters, which follow, include the letter of Rebruary 27 from the committee to Chairman Coy, of the Commission, advising him that the committee has under consideration a bill dealing with the question of superpower, and requesting the Commission to take no administrative action on that question until the committee has held hearings on the legislation: the letter of March 2, 1948, from the committee to Chairman Coy, of the Commission, requesting that the Commission take no action on the question of clear channels and superpower until the committee has taken definite action on the legislation then pending; the letter of April 5, 1948, from Chairman Coy, of the Commission, to the acting chair-man of the committee, the Senator from New Hampshire [Mr. Tobey], advising him that the Commission will take no action on the question of clear channels and superpower under the conditions set forth in the committee's letter of February 27; the letter of June 9, 1948, from the committee to Chairman Coy, of the Commission, advising him that the committee had voted to favorably report Senate bill 1333, and that under the circumstances the letter of February 27 was being withdrawn; and finally the letter of June 15, 1948, from Chairman Coy to the committee acknowledging receipt of the letter of June 9, 1948.

I repeat that in the interests of clarification, I deem it important to point out that the committee has favorably reported legislation which sets a limitation on power and preserves the Commission's authority to duplicate AM radio frequencies. To the extent that the committee's views are important to a quasi-judicial agency which is an arm of Congress, I assume the Commission will take into the fullest consideration these views.

There being no objection, the letters were ordered to be printed in the REC-ORD, as follows:

UNITED STATES SENATE, COMMITTEE ON INTERSTATE AND
FOREIGN COMMERCE,
February 27, 1948.

Hon. WAYNE COY, Chairman, Federal Communications

Commission, Washington, D. C.

MY DEAR CHAIRMAN COY: I understand that your Commission has been giving long and serious consideration to the question of clear channels and superpower; that your public hearings have been completed; and that the Commission will shortly take up the matter for decision. We of the committee, primarily concerned with the peoples' interest, are anxious that no decision be reached in the premises which is contrary to the public interest, convenience, and necessity.

For your information, there has been introduced in the Senate, as of yesterday, S. 2231, introduced by Senator Johnson, a bill to limit the power of radio broadcast stations and to provide for the break-down of clear-channel frequencies. A copy of the bill is enclosed herewith. The bill speaks for itself. You will understand it fully upon reading

Because of the importance of this legislation and of the interest of our committee as expressed in executive session today, I have been instructed by the committee unanimously, by formal vote, to write you, advising you of this legislation and request your Commission to reach no conclusions and take no action in the pending matter of superpower and clear channels until such time as the Senate Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce has assigned hearings on S. 2231 and have you and other interested parties come before this committee in the premises,

I write this letter upon the instruction of the Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee, made in executive session this afternoon. Will you kindly acknowledge receipt of this letter and confirm that your Commission will take no action on the question of superpower and clear channels until the enclosed bill, S. 2231, has been assigned for hearing and testimony is heard from interested and affected parties.

Sincerely yours,
CHARLES W. TOBEY,
Acting Chairman.

United States Senate, Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce,
March 2, 1948.

Hon. WAYNE COY, Chairman, Federal Communications Commission, Washington, D. C.

MY DEAR MR. CHARMAN: Enclosed is a copy of a letter being mailed by the committee this week to all radio stations in the United States. It is being sent you for the information of the Commission.

You will note that it is an announcement that hearings on the Johnson bill, S. 2231, will begin on or about April 5 before the full Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

In my letter of February 27, as acting chairman, I requested that no further action be taken in the so-called clear-channel case until our committee has completed hearings on the pending bill. I will appreciate confirmation from you that the commission will take no action in the matter of clear channels and superpower until such time as the committee has taken definite action for or against the proposed legislation.

Very sincerely yours,

CHARLES W. TOBEY, Acting Chairman.

APRIL 5, 1948.

Hon. Charles W. Tobey, United States Senate,

Washington, D. C.

Dear Senator Toper: I have your letter of February 27, 1948, and your note of February 28, 1948. In your letter you refer to the introduction in the Senate of S. 2231 and you state that because of the importance of this legislation and the interest of the Senate Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce as expressed in an executive session that you have been instructed by the committee, by unanimous vote, to write the Commission advising us of this legislation and requesting that the Commission reach no conclusions and take no action on the question involved until testimony is heard by the Senate committee. You request that I confirm that the Commission take no action confirm that the Commission take no action on the question.

You will recall that in a conference with you shortly after receipt of your letter I explained the situation which the Government of the United States faced with respect to the North American Regional Broadcasting Agreement which expires March 28, 1949. I am sure that after our discussion you and I were in agreement that we should persuade the State Department to seek agreement with the other countries involved to a further extension of NARBA. At a later date the Assistant Secretary, Garrison Norton and Mr. Walter Radius of the Telecommunications Division, State Department, accompanied me to a conference with Senator Johnson. The result of that conference was that Senator Johnson, as you had done earlier, expressed his opinion that the State Department should seek an extension of NARBA. The State Department is now proceeding with the negotiations looking toward an extension of NARBA.

In view of the understanding which the State Department now has of your views and Senator Johnson's views and in view of the fact that they are proceeding to seek an extension of NARBA, the Federal Communications Commission now confirms the Committee's request that it take no action on the question of superpower and clear channels under the conditions set forth in your letter of February 27.

Sincerely yours,

WAYNE COY, Chairman.

JUNE 9, 1948.

Hon. WAYNE COY, Chairman, Federal Communications Commission, Washington, D. C.

My Dear Mr. Chairman: In view of the fact that the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce today voted to favorably report the bill S. 1333, dealing with various amendments to the Communications Act of 1934, as amended, the committee voted to instruct me, as chairman, to advise you that the committee is hereby withdrawing its letter of February 27, 1948, addressed to you as Chairman of the Federal Communications Commission, in which was discussed the matter of superpower and clear channels. Very sincerely yours

WALLACE H. WHITE, Jr., Chairman.

FEDERAL COMMUNICATIONS COMMISSION, Washington, D. C., June 15, 1498. Hon. WALLACE H. WHITE, Jr., Chairman, Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce,

United States Senate,

Washington, D. C.
DEAR SENATOR WHITE: This will acknowledge receipt of your letter of June 8, 1948, informing me of the action of the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce in voting to withdraw its letter of February 27, 1948, addressed to me as Chairman of the Commission, concerning the matter of superpower and clear-channel broadcasting. I . have informed my fellow Commmissioners of the action of your committee. Sincerely yours,

WAYNE COY, Chairman.

AUTHORITY FOR APPOINTMENTS TO COMMISSIONS AND COMMITTEES AND FOR SECRETARY TO RECEIVE MESSAGES AFTER ADJOURNMENT

On motion of Mr. WHERRY, and by unanimous consent, it was Ordered, That notwithstanding the final adjournment of the present session of the Congress, the President pro tempore be, and he is hereby, authorized to make appointments to commissions or committees authorized by law, by concurrent action of the two Houses, or by order of the Senate.

Ordered further, That the Secretary of the Senate be, and he is hereby, authorized to receive messages from the House of Representatives subsequent to the adjournment of the present session.

ENROLLED BILL AND JOINT RESOLUTIONS PRESENTED

The Secretary of the Senate reported that on today, June 19, 1948, he presented to the President of the United States the following enrolled bill and joint resolu-

S. 2591. An act to provide for the acceptance on behalf of the United States of a statue of General Jose Gervasio Artigas, and for other purposes;

S. J. Res. 37. Joint resolution requesting the President to proclaim February 1 as National Freedom Day; and

S. J. Res. 206. Joint resolution consenting to an interstate boundary compact by and between the States of Michigan, Minnesota, and Wisconsin.

DEVELOPMENT OF CIVIL TRANSPORT AIRCRAFT

Mr. BREWSTER. Mr. President, even in this closing hour of the session, I am very hopeful that we may get to the next If those who are responsible for the pending bill will consider laying it aside at this stage, I shall ask the Senator from Nevada whether he feels it proper to do that, so that we may take up Senate bill 2644, Calendar No. 1507, a defense measure which many of us feel to be of very considerable importance.

Mr. WHERRY. Mr. President, may I inquire of the distinguished Senator from Nevada whether he will consent to let the Senator from Maine be recognized to request the consideration of a bill?

Mr. MALONE. I yield.

Mr. BREWSTER. Mr. President, ask for the present consideration of Calendar No. 1507, Senate bill 2644, to provide for the development of civil transport aircraft adaptable for auxiliary military service. I have spent a very interesting 5 hours waiting to be recognized so that I could request consideration of this bill. I shall take only 5 minutes to explain briefly what the bill is, in the hope that it may be considered and passed at this time.

Mr. REVERCOMB. Has the bill been passed by the House?

Mr. BREWSTER. Yes; it has been passed unanimously by the House, and also has been approved by every Government agency concerned with our defense and with the development of civil aviation, and also by every other group that has studied it. The President's Board on Aviation Policy strongly recommended its passage, and the Joint Aviation Board has strongly recommended it.

The bill has been very carefully prepared, and it is considered the only means by which American aviation can continue its progress.

The more recent planes which have been developed have cost around $25,000,-000 to $30,000,000 to develop; and the two or three companies that have done that have literally lost their shirts. They have to sell 300 of these planes in order to get their money back. The air lines cannot buy them, so that situation is perfectly hopeless.

The defense aspect of the matter is perfectly apparent. We need thousands of these planes of the most modern and constantly improved types. With the complete stoppage of the development of new types of transport planes, our defense transport will be terribly crippled.

I hold in my hand a list of six jetpropelled planes being developed by England at the present time. That gives us an indication of how seriously England regards this matter. Some of these planes are actually flying. They are 2 years ahead of us in the development of this type of transport plane.

The only way this desirable development can be brought to pass is by having an authorization of this character. It creates within the various defense agencies concerned the Government group which shall determine the different types to be developed.

One small one and one large one are contemplated at the start, with the idea that once the Government develops a prototype, at whatever expense may be involved, private companies will then build the planes, at whatever reasonable profit shall be determined, and with whatever recapture of Government costs may be determined.

In the judgment of those who are concerned with aviation, it is the only way by which this development can possibly be carried on.

I hope very much that the Senate may see fit to pass this measure at this time. Mr. PEPPER. I object.

Mr. BREWSTER. Then I move that the bill be considered.

Mr. WHERRY. Mr. President, a motion of that sort, if agreed to, would displace the unfinished business, would it

The PRESIDING OFFICER. That is correct.

Mr. BREWSTER. But the Senator from Nevada permitted it to be brought

Mr. WHERRY. I simply wish to make plain what the situation is.

Mr. BREWSTER. I now move that the Senate proceed to consider Senate bill 2644

The motion was agreed to; and the Senate proceeded to consider the bill (S. 2644) to provide for the development of civil transport aircraft adaptable for auxiliary military service, and for other purposes, which had been reported from the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, with an amendment.

Mr. BREWSTER. I ask now that House bill 6501, which is in exactly the same terms, be substituted for the Senate bill.

Mr. WILLIAMS. Does it require unanimous consent in order to take up consideration of the House bill at this time? Has the House bill been printed, and is it on the calendar?

Mr. BREWSTER. No.

Mr. WILLIAMS. I shall have to ob-

Mr. BREWSTER. Then, may we not proceed with the consideration of the Senate bill?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. That is perfectly in order.

Mr. BREWSTER. I ask that that be

Mr. PEPPER. Mr. President, is the House bill on the calendar?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. No. Mr. PEPPER. Does it require unanimous consent?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. It does. Mr. PEPPER. I object.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Senate bill is now before the Senate, having been taken up on motion. The Clerk will state the committee amendment.

The CHIEF CLERK. It is proposed to strike out all after the enacting clause and to insert the following:

That it is hereby declared to be the policy of the Congress that in the interest of na-tional security the Federal Government should promote the employment in air commerce in as large numbers as possible of more efficient transport and cargo aircraft; and, to this end, sponsor the design, develop-ment, testing, tooling, construction, service testing, and modification of prototype trans-port and cargo aircraft, intended primarily for commercial use, but adaptable also for auxiliary military service.

Sec. 2. The Civil Transport Aircraft Evaluation and Development Board (referred to hereinafter as "the Board") hereinafter provided for, is authorized and directed-

(a) to survey the national requirements for aircraft types designed primarily for commercial transport and cargo service, but adaptable also as auxiliary military trans-port for one or more of the departments of the National Military Establishment;

(b) to prepare and recommend, from time to time, the operating and utility characteristics and specifications of such aircraft: Provided, That such characteristics and specifications shall be consistent with the requirements of the civil air regulations promulgated by the Civil Aeronautics Board; and

(c) to advise the Secretary of the Air Force (referred to hereinafter as "the Secretary") of the Board's findings and recommendations under this section, and to recommend the allotment by the Secretary, from funds cppropriated to carry out the purposes of this act, of appropriate sums for design, development, testing, tooling, construction, service testing, and modification of prototypes of each such type of aircraft.

SEC. 3. (a) The Board shall be composed of one representative designated by each of the following agencies: The United States Air Force, the United States Navy, the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics, the Civil Aeronautics Administration, the Civil Aeronautics Board, and such other agencies of the Federal Government, concerned with aeronautics, as the Board may, from time to time, determine.

(b) To assist the Board in carrying out its functions, it is authorized to establish an industrial advisory committee composed of not less than six members appointed by the Board with the approval of the Secretary. Each member of such committee shall serve for a term of 2 years, except that (1) the terms of three of the members first taking office after the enactment of this act shall expire at the end of 1 year, and (2) any member appointed to fill a vacancy occuring prior to the expiration of the term for which his predecessor was appointed shall be appointed for the unexpired term of the member whom he succeeds. ber shall be eligible to serve continuously for more than one term unless in the opinion of the Board his reappointment is necessary to effectuate the purposes of this act. Members of such committee may be designated without regard to the civil-service laws or the Classification Act of 1923, as amended, and shall receive such compensation, not in excess of $50 for each day or part of a day actually devoted to the performance of the duties of such committee, as the Board shall determine. Each member of such committee shall be allowed actual necessary transportation expenses and an allowance not to exceed $10 per diem in lieu of subsistence when engaged in the performance of the duties of such committee at any place other than his permanent residence or place of business. Nothing contained in section 41, 109, 112, or 113 of the Criminal Code (U.S. C. title 18, secs. 93, 198, 202, and 203), section 190 of the Revised Statutes (U. S. C., title 41, sec. 119), or any other provision of law imposing restrictions, requirements, or penalties in relation to the employment of persons, the performance of services, or the payment or receipt of compensation in connection with any claim, proceeding, or mat-ter involving the United States, shall apply to any such person solely by reason of mem-bership on such committee: Provided, That the provisions of the act of July 12, 1870 (R. S. 3679; U. S. C., title 31, sec. 665), as amended, shall not apply to the acceptance of voluntary service by any member of any such committee.

(c) The Chairman of the Board shall be designated by the Secretary from among the members thereof and the Board shall act in accordance with such regulations and rules of procedure as it may, from time to time, prescribe. The Board is authorized and directed to consult with manufacturers of aircraft, and with United States operators of transport aircraft. Members of the Board shall serve as such without additional compensation, but each member of the Board shall be allowed actual necessary transportation expenses and an allowance not to exceed $10 per diem, in lieu of subsistence, when engaged in the performance of the duties of the Board at any place other than his permanent station.

(d) The Board and the Secretary are authorized, subject to the civil-service laws and the Classification Act of 1923, as amended, but without regard to any provision of law limiting the number of civilian personnel which may be employed by the Department of the Air Force, to employ and fix the compensation of such personnel as may be deemed necessary to assist the Board and the Secretary in carrying out their respective functions under this act: Provided, That to the extent possible, consistent with other duties and assignments, the personnel and facilities of the member agencies of the Board shall be used to carry out the duties

SEC. 4. The Secretary is authorized and directed, if he concurs in the advice and recommendations of the Board referred to in section 2 of this act, to provide, out of funds appropriated to carry out the purposes of this act, for the design, development, testing, tooling, construction, service testing, and modification of prototypes of each such type of aircraft, by contract or otherwise. Any such contract entered into by the Government shall contain a provision that-

(1) sales of aircraft subsequently manufactured from the design specifications of such prototype or prototypes shall be made at a price allowing a reasonable profit, not exceeding such profit as may be prescribed

by the Secretary; and

(2) in determining the fair selling price of such aircraft, except to the extent required by the Secretary, there shall not be included in the cost thereof any development, engineering, tooling, or other costs which have been reimbursed to the manufacturer by the Secretary; and

(3) aircraft subsequently manufactured from the design specifications of such prototype or prototypes shall be sold only to purchasers who, by contract with the Secretary, have undertaken (a) unless required by the civil air regulations to make no changes in the design or standard equipment of such aircraft without first obtaining the approval of the Secretary; and (b) to make, for an agreed sum payable by the Secretary, such changes in the design or standard equipment of such aircraft, not inconsistent with the civil air regulations, as the Secretary may prescribe.

SEC. 5. (a) The Secretary, in carrying out the provisions of section 4 of this act, may enter into contracts or other arrangements, or modifications thereof, with or without legal consideration, with or without performance or other bonds, and, in carrying such contracts, arrangements, or modifications thereof, may make advance, progress, and other payments without regard to the provisions of section 3648 of the Revised Statutes.

(b) Each contract, arrangement, or modification thereof, executed pursuant to this act, shall contain such provisions, consistent with the laws affecting the issuance or use of patents, governing the disposition and use of inventions made thereunder as are appropriate, in the judgment of the Secretary, to protect the public interest and the equities of the individual or organization with which the contract, arrangement or modification thereof is executed.

SEC. 6. The Secretary is authorized to procure and test prototype aircraft from any manufacturer whose design meets the operating and utility characteristics and specifications recommended by the Board: Provided, That, in the event such manufacturer is not in a position to produce promptly the proto-type aircraft desired, then the Secretary may procure such prototype aircraft from any other qualified manufacturer.

SEC. 7. Aircraft manufactured from design specifications pursuant to this act shall not be sold directly or by resale to either foreign governments or other foreign users without the approval of the Secretary: Provided, That in approving any such sale the Secretary may waive such of the requirements of section 3 hereof as he may deem proper.

SEC. 8. The Secretary is authorized and di-rected, if he concurs in the advice and recommendations of the Board with respect thereto, by appropriate contractual conditions, or otherwise, to recover, in whole or in part, as deemed to be practicable and expedient, the costs incurred by the United States pursuant to this act. The Secretary shall transmit to the Congress within a period of 1 year following the passage of this act a re-port setting forth the means and methods which he intends to utilize in effecting such

SEC. 9. In the event the Board shall recommend the development of a seaplane commercial transport or cargo aircraft and the Secretaries of the Navy and the Air Force concur, the Secretary of the Navy shall be authorized to perform all of the functions with respect to such aircraft as are vested in the Secretary of the Air Force by this act, and the Secretary of the Air Force is authorized to transfer to the Secretary of the Navy such funds appropriated under this act as may be necessary for the performance of such functions.

SEC. 10. As used in this act—
(a) The term "aircraft" shall include engines, propellers, instruments, accessories, and standard equipment for such aircraft.

(b) The term "standard equipment" means all operational features of such aircraft, including, without limitation, standard cockpit arrangement, communications facilities, and provisions for such items, but excluding commercial equipment.

(c) The term "commercial equipment" means removable furnishings and fittings, not part of the primary structure or the mechanical apparatus of such aircraft, and which is generally installed for the accommodation of passengers, baggage, or cargo.

(d) The term "prototype aircraft" means the initial models of each type, built primarily for static tests, flight performance, and service test

SEC. 11. The Secretary and the Board shall transmit to the Congress, on the 1st day of January in each year, a report on (1) the progress made in the accomplishment of the purposes of this act and (2) the amounts of the expenditures made or obligated pursuant thereto.

SEC. 12. There are hereby authorized to be appropriated to the Department of the Air Force such sums as may be necessary to carry out the purposes of this act.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment.

Mr. WILLIAMS. Mr. President, reason for objecting was that the bill is pretty much in the same class as the one we were discussing in the earlier part of the evening-perhaps I should say morning. I do not understand why bills of such importance should come to us right at the end of the session, and on Sunday morning.

Mr. BREWSTER. I think the Senator will recognize that the reason it is so late in being presented is because the Senator from Delaware has been objecting for the last 2 weeks when I was trying to have it considered. That is why it is necessary to call it up now.

Mr. WILLIAMS. I thought it was not the kind of bill to be disposed of on a call of the consent calendar, but the Senator will recall I told him I would not delay consideration of the bill, but would limit my remarks to 10 minutes.

I think the bill has some merit. On the other hand, the bill in my opinion is too uncertain in some respects. Section 12 authorizes funds to be appropriated for the Department of the Air Force in such amount as may be necessary to effectuate the purposes of the bill, with absolutely no limitation on the amount. As many of the so-called prototype planes may be developed as may be thought adSection 7 of the bill provides that the airplanes produced may be sold to foreign governments if the Secretary of Defense sees fit. Congress has nothing to say about it.

The best explanation I can make of the bill is to read an analysis of it that appeared in the Wall Street Journal of June 4, entitled "Airplane Subsidy." The headlines are, "Taxpayers may foot bill for costly design of new commercial craft; Senate bill would lift load from makers, airlines; insure going industry; Air Force would be boss." I am going to read this, because it is the best analysis of the bill I can get.

It says:

The commercial air fleet of the future may be designed with taxpayers' dollars.

Congress is pressing a measure to shift the burden of development costs for new style cargo and passenger planes from aircraft manufacturers and commercial air lines to the Federal budget.

The argument: A modern, healthy commercial air fleet is a necessary defense supplement for the military air force.

Backers of the plan think they have a better than a 50-50 chance of getting it enacted this session. The Senate Commerce Committee approved the bill yesterday and House sanction is expected if the full Senate adopts the plan.

Air-minded Congressmen are pushing this new subsidy for aircraft in the closing minutes of Congress because they think it a needed defense measure. Also, this would put into effect one major recommendation of the Congressional Air Policy Board.

MONEY SAVER FOR AIR LINES

The so-called prototype bill would enable air lines to buy the latest planes for a fraction of the price they now plunk down for new cruisers like the DC-6's and the Constellations.

I shall not take the time of the Senate to read the remainder of the articlé, but I ask unanimous consent to have it printed in the RECORD at this point in my remarks.

There being no objection, the remainder of the article was ordered to be printed in the Record, as follows:

They'd have to pay only actual production cost of each plane plus a "reasonable profit" for plane makers. Uncle Sam would foot the bill for all the costly research, designing, tooling, building, testing, and refining of the first basic model—the prototype.

But, paying the piper, the Government would also call the tune. There would be Federal control over all the prototypes it finances—right down to the matter of determining what the "reasonable profit" should be for makers of the aircraft.

The goal of the subsidized airplane development program is nearly 1,000 newly developed cargo and passenger planes in the air by 1953. Cost estimates range as high as $1,000,000,000.

Senator Brewster, Republican, of Maine, sponsor of the Senate measure, hesitates to estimate the total outlay required. He generalizes that it "used to cost" from $25,000,000 to develop a new style aircraft. There would be at least three prototype planes to start with. More would be promoted as the program gets under way. Aircraft makers estimate only $10,000,000 would be needed to get started on designs for the three planes in the first year.

IN THE PILOT'S SEAT

The United States Air Force would ride in the pilot's seat to guide the spending of "such sums as may be necessary" and to determine final specifications for the plane research.

Arguments flared over who should control this new Federal subsidy program. The Civil Aeronautics Administration, contending the show should be run by civilians, lost out to the Secretary of the Air Force. Senator Brewster said Congress would be likely to approve the measure only on grounds of national defense.

Here's how the prototype bill would work:
A Civil Transport Aircraft Evaluation and Development Board, working with a special industry advisory committee, would survey national requirements for new commercial aircraft types. Recommendations would go to the Air Force Secretary.

The Air Force Secretary, if he approved the plans, would authorize funds. The Air Force would contract with an aircraft manufacturer to make a prototype to recommended specifications, with the Government paying for all design and development costs. Once the working model was perfected, manufacturers could fill orders from commercial air lines. But the cost of the individual plane wouldn't have to include the expense of developing the model. Each airplane would be priced to cover only actual cost of production plus a reasonable profit. The Air Force Secretary would decide what a reasonable profit should be.

AIR FORCE CONTROLS DESIGN

Air lines buying planes fashioned on the Government-sponsored prototype would be required to make no changes in the design or standard equipment without special Air Force permission. Also, they would be required to make any changes the Air Force might demand. The aircraft made from the specifications couldn't be sold to foreign governments, directly or through resale, without special Air Force approval.

The Senate bill suggests that the Air Force Secretary should figure out some way to get back part or all of the Government funds put into aircraft development. The legislation is vague on whether this is mandatory or not and merely directs the Air Secretary to report to Congress on how he would go about getting the Government repaid.

Prototype contracts would be let by the Air Force in design competition among the aircraft manufacturers. The plane makers could also submit their ideas for new type planes to the Air Force.

The air lines back the measure because it means more and cheaper cargo and passenger planes for them. Aircraft manufacturers consider such a subsidy necessary if they are to keep up the research and development needed for a modern United State air fleet. The miltary favors the proposal because it will guarantee a going aircraft industry, with designs convertible for military use.

MARKET IS LIMITED

When private plane manufacturers pay the cost of bringing out a new airplane model, they have to pass on the costs to the air lines—the main purchasers. But the market is comparatively limited.

For example, Douglas Aircraft Corp. designed the new DC-6. At the time the corporation put the plane into production it figured it had to sell about 200 planes at nearly $800,000 each to break even on its cost of development. Now, Douglas officials think, the break-even point will come after some 350 DC-6's have been sold and they've boosted the price to $900,000. So far, only 97 DC-6's are in use, and around 50 more are still to be delivered against orders on the books.

Under the prototype plan, the development of this plane might have been paid for by the Air Force. Thus, the company would have passed the break-even point when it sold its first plane at a reasonable profit.

In the first year aircraft officials believe there will be three design competitions—one for a trans-Atlantic passenger-cargo plane, one for a feeder-line plane, and one for a cargo type capable of operating for 5 cents a ton-mile or less.

Speed and economy of operation are the two main features that the development board will look for in paper plans submitted to it.

Here's what the Nation's air-transport system needs to get it out of the financial doldrums, according to the industry:

1. High-speed, long-range transports capable of carrying 50 or more passengers on nonstop flights from coast to coast and between continents. Jet-propelled transports promise speeds of 500 miles an hour or more, but there are plenty of bugs to be taken out of existing jet engines before they can be used on scheduled flights. At present, jet propulsion hasn't much range. It burns fuel too quickly to be practical over long distances.

2. A small, compact plane for use on the feeder or regional air lines—the short-route operators which link the trunk-line air systems with outlying towns. What's needed is a safe passenger-cargo plane which can be operated cheaply enough to break even when only half of its seats are taken. At present the feeder air lines are largely operating surplus DC-3's. Empty seats, coupled with rising costs of operation, make them increasingly dependent on Government mail pay.

3. A cargo plane which will cost less than 5 cents a ton-mile to operate. Such a development would have a ready market for several thousand planes, a prototype bill witness told Congress. Present theoretical operating costs range upward from 7.5 cents a ton-mile.

Lawrence B. Richardson, president of Fairchild Engine & Airplane Co., told the congressional committee that commercial cargo operators "cannot make full use of the terrific potential" volume of business until they have this inexpensive type airplane.

What may evolve from the prototype program could be a combination of any of these needs. A basic plane for use on the feeder lines might, for instance, be converted for all-cargo service over short routes. Or a long-range jet-propelled passenger plane prototype could also be used for transcontinental cargo.

The development board could also recommend new seaplanes, if the Secretaries of Navy and Air Force agree. For seaplane development, the Secretary of the Navy would be given the powers vested in the Air Secretary for land aircraft.

Mr. WILLIAMS. I am not saying the bill does not have some merit, but I think it is much too loosely drawn to be a suitable defense measure.

In section 8 it is provided that the Secretary of Defense shall prepare and transmit to the Congress within a specified time a plan whereby the Government may be able to regain a part of the money which is to be expended.

If a plan to regain some of the money is to be prepared by the Secretary of Defense, I think the plan should have accompanied the bill. The Senator from Maine has pointed out that discussions have been had on the subject of the bill for nearly a year. I think it is time it came to Congress. We should have had a program for that purpose in our minds, indicating how the money is to be regained.

We should also have been advised how much money the program is to cost. The article from which I have read claims the cost might amount to as much as $1,000,000,000 in the next 2 years. I do not agree with that estimate, of course.

Mr. BREWSTER. The Wall Street Journal spoke of the $1,000,000,000 which was to be paid by private interests who would purchase the planes from aircraft companies. It was not in any sense a suggestion that the cost to the Government might be any such sum.

Mr. WILLIAMS. I have said I do not agree that the figures are accurate. I think they are overloaded. But I believe the bill could cost the Government a substantial amount of money. As the Senator from Maine well knows, I think, when we first discussed the possibility of an amendment limiting the amount of money to be spent, the suggestion was that the maximum should be $5,000,000. The last suggestion was that it should

Mr. BREWSTER. Six million dollars. Mr. WILLIAMS. Six million dollars for the first year. But the Senator wanted an 8-year limitation. I opposed the bill, until we could determine what the program would cost, and until we might know.

I think if the Government is going to subsidize planes in the interest of military defense, it is inexcusable to include a provision in the bill authorizing the Secretary of Defense, if he sees fit, to sell the planes to a foreign government. Therefore I object to the bill. If the Senate wants to pass it, I shall not block its passage, but I believe it to be an unsound measure.

Mr. LANGER. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. WILLIAMS. I yield. Mr. LANGER. So long as the Senator from Delaware does not like this bill, I wonder if he would object if I requested unanimous consent for the Senate to consider a bill to pay a bonus of 30 cents a bushel on wheat and corn.

Mr. WILLIAMS. I suggest the Sen-ator might put it on this bill as an amendment.

Mr. SALTONSTALL. Mr. President, I must object to the bill. If I correctly understand what the Senator from Delaware says, I think he is absolutely cor-The Committee on Armed Services has already held up a bill which was passed by the House, which would authorize the Air Force, the Army, and the Navy to make contracts and then come to the Congress and ask for an appropriation, without any prior knowledge of the authorization on the part of the Congress. At the present time the Navyand I say this advisedly, because I have studied the subject-has 1,161,000 tons of ship capacity which it can build by getting the consent of the President, and then coming to the Congress and saying, "Here is the bill; now appropriate the money." The House put through a bill to allow the same authority to be extended to the Army and to the Air Force, putting the Air Force on a pound basis for planes, and the Army for tanks and trucks. If the authority is extended, if I understand the last section of this bill along with its other sections, we would completely lose our authority over the building of planes. The Air Secretary could authorize contracts, and then could come to Congress and say, "Appropriate the money to pay for them."

Mr. BREWSTER, Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. SALTONSTALL. I yield.

Mr. BREWSTER. I am sure this bill in no way affects any existing authority of the Secretary for Air. In fact, he is one of the sponsors of this measure and is the one given authority to handle the entire appropriation. He also has other authority which would be in no way mitigated by the passage of this bill. He says that appropriations should be separately allocated. They do not want them merged with other appropriations. That is really the purpose of the bill.

Mr. SALTONSTALL. The Senator from Maine confirms my idea. If we pass bills of this character we give the National Defense Establishment complete authority to go ahead on a large scale and then they can come to Congress and say, without any prior authority, "Pay these bills." Of course the Secretary of the Air Force has approved He approved the other bill that came before the Senate Committee on Armed Services. So did the Secretary of the Army, and the Secretary of the Navy, with some hesitation. I believe we would make progress by proceeding in the other direction and taking away, if necessary, some of the powers we have given the naval authorities, rather than to give them more power.

I hope this bill will not pass without more careful consideration.

Mr. WHERRY. Mr. President, may I inquire who has the floor?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Maine has the floor.

Mr. SALTONSTALL. I think I have the floor, Mr. President.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Massachusetts is correct. The Chair inadvertently overlooked that fact

Mr. SALTONSTALL. I yield to the Senator from Maine.

Mr. BREWSTER. I have never conceived, and I do not now conceive, that there is any contractual authority whatsoever in this bill for the Secretary for Air or any other Government official, apart from appropriations which will have to be made by the Congress, or the authority for contract issuing by the Congress. We simply say that "there is hereby authorized to be appropriated" to the Department, or to the Air Force, "such sums as may be necessary." Until the appropriation is made, there is not a cent that can be either expended or obligated.

Mr. SALTONSTALL. Section 5 (a) provides that the Secretary, in carrying out the provisions of section 4, enter into contracts or other arrangements or modifications thereof, with or without legal consideration, with or without performance or other bonds, and, in carrying out such contracts, arrangements, or modifications thereof, may make advance, progress, and other payments without regard to the provisions of section 3648 of the Revised Statutes.'

Section 12 provides:

There are hereby authorized to be appropriated to the Department of the Air Force such sums as may be necessary to carry out the purposes of this act.

In other words, if I read it correctly-I want to be right about it before we attempt to pass it-the Air Force could make contracts and then say, "Pay for them."

Mr. CAPEHART. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. SALTONSTALL. I yield.

Mr. CAPEHART I am a member of the Air Policy Board and am on the committee that sponsored this legislation. Unless I am badly mistaken, and I do not believe I am, the bill permits the Secretary of Air only to engineer and design one airplane, called a prototype. It does not contemplate in any way the construction of airplanes. It is purely to design one prototype, or possibly more than one model.

Mr. WILLIAMS. Mr. President, will

the Senator yield?

Mr. SALTONSTALL. I yielded to the Senator from Indiana.

Mr. CAPEHART. I have finished. I think I have said all anyone can say about it.

Mr. SALTONSTALL. Then I yield to the Senator from Delaware.

Mr. WILLIAMS. I think the Senator from Indiana is correct. The bill authorizes the Government to pay for one initial plane; but I should like also to point out that in some of the recent hearings which were held before our committee, as the Senator from Maine well knows, it was testified that the cost of prototypes would be $12,500,000; that is, for the first plane.

Paragraph (2), page 13 provides that-

Any contract entered into by the Government shall contain a provision that in de-termining the fair selling price of such aircraft, except to the extent required by the Secretary, there shall not be included in the cost thereof any development, engineering, tooling, or other costs, which have been reimbursed to the manufacturer by the Secretary.

The tooling costs might make up threefourths of the cost of the airplane, just as in the case of General Motors when they are designing and building a Chevrolet. The first one costs a great deal more than the second one.

Mr. BREWSTER. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. SALTONSTALL. I yield.

Mr. BREWSTER. Mr. President, it is very evident that there is objection to this bill. I have spoken to the Senator from Florida [Mr. PEPPER], the Senator from Delaware [Mr. WILLIAMS], and the Senator from Massachusetts [Mr. Sal-TONSTALL], and I do not want to engage in any such strange ventures as we have been embarking upon in the last 3 or 4 hours. So if there is a single objection it will make it impossible for us to act. While the House bill is here and has been approved, since it did not go on the calendar, after 42 hours, technically it would have to go to the calendar and be printed.

LONG-RANGE AGRICULTURAL PROGRAM (S. 2318) AND FEDERAL CHARTER FOR COMMODITY CREDIT CORPORATION (S. 1322)

Mr. AIKEN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to have printed in the RECORD that is to come out after the adjournment an analysis of the longrange farm bill and the Commodity Credit Corporation charter bill as they were reported by the conference committees.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection? The Chair hears none, and the order is entered.

JULIETTE LOW COMMEMORATIVE STAMP

Mr. WHERRY. Mr. President, a short time ago the Senator from South Carolina [Mr. Johnston] submitted a unanimous-consent request regarding a joint resolution about which he said there was no controversy. I think the Senator objected to the consideration of the joint resolution, and desired to see that it was passed. At that time there was an indication at least that he would have an opportunity to present the joint resolution and I say now that I shall be glad to yield for that purpose, providing there is no objection to it. If there is objection, I shall ask for the regular order.

Mr. JOHNSTON of South Carolina. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate take up Calendar No. 1741. House Joint Resolution 327.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the joint resolution (H. J. Res. 327) to authorize the issuance of a special series of stamps commemorative of Juliette Low, founder and organizer of Girl Scouting in the United States of America, which was ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

ROUGH RIDERS COMMEMORATIVE STAMP

Mr. JOHNSTON of South Carolina. Mr. President, there is on the calendar another joint resolution similar to the one just passed, which merely authorizes the issuance of a commemorative stamp, and I wish to have it passed also. I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of Calendar No. 1753, House Joint Resolution 305.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

There being no objection, the joint resolution (H. J. Res. 305) authorizing the issuance of a special series of stamps, commemorative of the fiftieth anniversary of the organization of Rough Riders of the Spanish-American War, was considered, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

JOINT BOARD ON DEFENSE, UNITED STATES AND CANADA

Mr. BARKLEY. Mr. President, there is a bill on the calendar, Order No. 1436, House bill 5708, relating to the exemption of civilian members of the permanent Joint Board on Defense, United States and Canada, from certain statutory restrictions on outside activities, which I think should be passed by the Senate, having already been passed by the House.

Mr. WHERRY. Mr. President, I have an objection to the bill, and I am sorry, but it would have to be raised now on a request for unanimous consent.

Mr. BARKLEY. I was about to ask unanimous consent for the consideration of the bill.

Mr. WHERRY. I should have to object.

ALASKAN RAILROADS AND RECIPROCAL TARIFFS AND IMMIGRATION ARRANGE-MENTS

Mr. MAGNUSON. Mr. President— The PRESIDING OFFICER. Does the Senator from Nebraska yield to the Senator from Washington?

Mr. WHERRY. Is the Senator about to present a unanimous-consent request?

Mr. MAGNUSON. Yes.

Mr. WHERRY. What is the calendar number of the measure?

Mr. MAGNUSON. It is Senate Concurrent Resolution 59, requesting the President to commence negotiations with Canada relating to the existing railroad system, and studies relating to tariff and immigration arrangements.

Mr. WHERRY. To what committee was it referred?

Mr. MAGNUSON. It is Calendar No.

1830.
Mr. GURNEY. I can acquaint the Senator from Nebraska with the objective of the concurrent resolution.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair suggests that the concurrent resolution be reported by title.

Mr. WHERRY. If it is not on the

Mr. WHERRY. I have the floor, have I not?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Nebraska has the floor.

Mr. WHERRY subsequently said: I should like to inquire of the Senator from Washington if there are amendments of any importance to the concurrent resolution (S. Con. Res. 59), which I see is on the latest calendar.

Mr. MAGNUSON. I do not know of any important amendments. The Foreign Relations Committee reported it unanimously.

Mr. WHERRY. I shall not object if the Senator from Washington wishes to bring it up now.

Mr. MAGNUSON. Mr. President, I ask for the present consideration of Senate Concurrent Resolution 59.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the concurrent resolution (S. Con. Res. 59) relative to negotiations with the Canadian Government concerning the construction of railroads in Alaska and the establishment of reciprocal tariff and immigration arrangements, which had been reported from the Committee on Foreign Relations with amendments.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will state the amendments.

The amendments of the Committee on Foreign Relations were, on page 2, line 2, after the word "toward", to insert "determining the desirability of"; in line 4, after the name "Alaska", to strike out "and"; in line 5, after the word "specifications", to insert "and"; in the same line, after the word "prepared", to strike out "for the purposes of constructing" and insert "covering the construction of"; in line 10, after the word "including", to strike out "negotiations" and insert "studies"; in line 11, after the word "for", to strike out "the establishment of"; and in line 12, after the word "arrangements", to insert "in connection with this project", so as to make the concurrent resolution read:

Resolved, etc., That the President is requested to commence negotiations with the Canadian Government with a view toward determining the desirability of extending the existing railroad system now terminating at Prince George, British Columbia, Canada, to the Territory of Alaska, to cause surveys to be made and plans, specifications, and cost estimates, and budget requests to be prepared covering the construction of a railroad connecting the existing railroad system terminating at Fairbanks, Alaska, with a railroad system extended from Prince George, British Columbia, Canada, to the Territory of Alaska; also including studies with the Canadian Government for reciprocal tariff and immigration arrangements, in connection with this project.

The question is on agreeing to the amendments of the committee.

The amendments were agreed to.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the concurrent resolution, as amended.

The concurrent resolution (S. Con. Res. 59), as amended, was agreed to.

The preamble was agreed to, as follows:

Whereas the defense of the Territory of Alaska is essential to the national security of the United States; and

Whereas further development of mineral, timber, and other resources of Alaska is necessary to the defense of that Territory and to the welfare and security of the United States; and

Whereas adequate transportation facilities within the Territory of Alaska and between the Territory of Alaska and the United States are essential to the development of the resources and the defense of Alaska; and

Whereas existing transportation facilities within the Territory of Alaska and between the Territory of Alaska and the United States are inadequate for the development of the resources and the defense of Alaska: Therefore he it

NOMINATION OF FRIEDA B. HENNOCK TO THE FEDERAL COMMUNICATIONS COM-MISSION

Mr. WHERRY. Mr. President, 2 days ago a nomination on the Executive Calendar came up for consideration, and at that time I said that I felt that the nomination should go over because objection had been made. I understand the objection still exists. I realize the Senate has been continuously in session for 2 days and 2 nights, and Senators are worn out, and certainly this is no time for bringing up something which will provoke argument. But so long as I have been the acting majority leader I have tried to be fair about all the duties surrounding that position, and even though some Members of the Senate on this side are insistent that this nomination not come up. I feel that because of the representations made, and because of the fact that those who are interested feel that they would have a right at least not to be short circuited in regard to the nomination, I now ask, as in executive session, that the Senate proceed to the consideration of the nomination of Frieda B. Hennock, of New York, to be a member of the Federal Communications Commis-

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mr. YOUNG. I object.

Mr. WHERRY. Then, Mr. President, I move that the nomination of Frieda B. Hennock, of New York, be confirmed.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the motion of the Senator from Nebraska.

Mr. BALL. Mr. President, what kind of procedure is this? We are not in executive session.

Mr. WHERRY. I asked for unanimous consent.

Mr. BALL. I did not hear any motion. Mr. WHERRY. I understand that. I asked for unanimous consent.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Senator asked unanimous consent, and unanimous consent was granted.

Mr. BALL. I am sorry.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair did not understand that that is what it was for.

Mr. WHERRY. If there is any doubt

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Consent was granted.

Mr. WHERRY. Very well.

Mr. BALL. Are we in executive session, then?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. We are. Mr. WHERRY. We are, for the con-sideration of the nomination of Miss Frieda B. Hennock.

Mr. BALL. May we proceed in the regular order, then, and have the nomination stated, so that we will know what we are doing? I do not like to have the Senate doing things by unanimous consent. I am not going to hold up the Senate

Mr. WHERRY. That is the very thing that is done after the Executive Calendar is taken up, and I ask that the nomination be stated.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will state the nomination.

The LEGISLATIVE CLERK. Nomination passed over. Frieda B. Hennock, of New York, to be a member of the Federal Communications Commission.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is, Will the Senate advise and consent to the nomination?

Mr. BALL. Mr. President, I do not intend to make a lengthy speech about this nomination. I am opposed to it, and I want the RECORD to show that. So far as I can discover, the only investigation, the only hearing, regarding this nomination, was a brief executive session of the subcommittee of the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce. For several weeks the reports were that the nomination would never get out of committee. Then all of a sudden it was reported, with, I may say, somewhat suspicious haste. It is for a 7-year term on the Federal Communications Commission. In my opinion that is a tremendously important Commission. I think it is up to the Senate to satisfy itself—and frankly I am not satisfied; I do not know about the wisdom of the nomination one way or the other-that appointments to this Commission will really serve the best interests of the Nation.

I myself have observed some rather disturbing things about the Federal Communications Commission. heard more disturbing reports since this nomination was reported. I have heard a report, on what I consider reliable authority-and obviously in the past few days I have not had any opportunity to investigate it, I do not know whether it is true or not-which indicates that certain interests, groups, who are greatly interested in this nomination, have a direct pipe line to the Federal Communications Commission, which we certainly would not want to have occur. What the score is I do not know. So far as I can determine, Miss Hennock is a lawyer from New York, and I might point out that the late President Roosevelt never appointed a member of the Federal Communications Commission from New York City, for the simple reason that New York City is the center of the radio industry, and he wanted to avoid any possibility of the industry itself having too much influence on the Commission. So far as I can discover, she has had no experience in radio matters, and from what I can learn of her background, frankly I do not think she is qualified for the job, and I want to be on record as opposed to her confirmation.

Mr. BREWSTER. Mr. President, think the Senator from Minnesota has been very fair in his statement. As chairman of the subcommittee which investigated this nomination for the Senate Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, which reported it by a vote of 8 to 0, with another member voting "present," I think the Senate should know what we have learned as to the circumstances.

Miss Hennock has been a member of the New York bar for 20 or 25 years. I hesitate to estimate the age of a lady, but I should say she is between 40 and 50 years old, so she is reasonably mature. She has had quite a brilliant record at the bar. She is a member now, which is somewhat unusual for a woman, of the third largest law firm in New York City, one of the most highly respected and distinguished, one composed almost exclusively of Republicans. She has had no experience in radio, as the Senator from Minnesota has said, which, it seemed to many of us, was perhaps most fortunate, because one who had been active in radio work, representing radio clients, would by that very fact come in under somewhat of a cloud. The committee took into consideration her breadth of experience and training and recognized abilities.

I may say that one of her most earnest sponsors was John W. Davis, of New York, who certainly is a leader of the New York bar, and who vouched most earnestly for her capacity and character. And from many other quarters there have come most earnest testimonials as to the character and competency of this share the concern which the Senator from Minnesota has experienced concerning the functioning of the Federal Communications Commission. We think it needs new blood, and it was the consensus of those of us who became familiar with this matter through contact with many who were acquainted with her and through various representations, that she would be well qualified to fit into this position, and we believed her confirmation was warranted and wise.

Obviously only the future can tell how well she can fulfill these responsibilities. I can say that we in our committee.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is, will the Senate advise and consent to this nomination?

The nomination was confirmed.

POSTMASTERS

EXECUTIVE REPORT OF A COMMITTEE

The following favorable report of a committee was submitted:

By Mr. LANGER, from the Committee on Post Office and Civil Service:

The nomination of Jack Bostwick to be postmaster at Bastrop, in the State of Louisiana.

On motion by Mr. Langer, and by unanimous consent, it was Ordered, That the said nomination be considered with those postmasters appearing on today's calendar.

Mr. BARKLEY. Does the Senator intend that the nominations of postmasters shall be considered?

Mr. WHERRY. Yes. The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will state the nominations of postmasters on the calendar.

The legislative clerk proceeded to read the nominations of postmasters on the

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, the nominations of postmasters will be confirmed en bloc.

Without objection the President will be notified of all nominations this day confirmed on the Executive Calendar.

Mr. WHERRY. Mr. President, are there any measures any Senator desires to bring up at this time, or is there any other matter that is desired to be considered?

Mr. O'MAHONEY. Mr. President, may I ask the majority leader whether there is any intention to proceed with Calendar No. 1253, Senate Joint Resolution 76?

Mr. WHERRY. That is the equalrights amendment?

Mr. O'MAHONEY. Yes.

Mr. WHERRY. I believe the Senator who was particularly interested in the legislation stated that it would not be taken up at this time. I would not undertake to take it up. Mr. O'MAHONEY.

Very well.

CONDITIONAL ADJOURNMENT TO DECEMBER 31, 1948

Mr. WEERRY. I move that the Senate do now adjourn.

The motion was agreed to; and (at 7 o'clock and 14 minutes a. m., Sunday, June 20, 1948) the Senate adjourned, the adjournment being under the provision of House Concurrent Resolution 218, to Friday, December 31, 1948, at 12 o'clock meridian.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

SATURDAY, JUNE 19, 1948

The House met at 10 o'clock a. m. The Chaplain, Rev. James Shera Montgomery, D. D., offered the following prayer:

Blessed Lord God, forever let our prayers go up and Thy blessings of love and mercy come down upon all associated with the Congress. In these final hours, as we make difficult decisions, be Thou with us and guide us, for what we do here is of untold influence upon all our people.

As we separate for a while, O keep us beneath the shadow of a great protection, for we know that naught Thou hast made, above, below, can part us from Thy tender care. Let Thy wonderful love encircle all our homes and bless us The with good health and comfort. Lord bless you and keep you. The Lord make His face to shine upon you and be gracious unto you. The Lord lift the light of His countenance upon you and give you peace. Through Christ. Amen.

The Journal of the proceedings of the legislative day of Thursday, June 17 (June 17 and 18), 1948, was read and approved.

MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE

A message from the Senate, by Mr. Carrell, one of its clerks, announced that the Senate had passed, with amendments in which the concurrence of the House is requested, bills of the House of the following titles:

H. R. 4044. An act to amend the Trading With the Enemy Act, as amended; to create a commission to make an inquiry and report with respect to war claims; and to provide for relief for internees in certain cases; H. R. 4816. An act to amend section 624 of the Public Health Service Act so as to provide a minimum allotment of $250,000 to each State for the construction of hospitals;

Joint resolution to authorize the President, following appropriation of the necessary funds by the Congress, to bring into effect on the part of the United States the loan agreement of the United States of America and the United Nations signed at Lake Success, N. Y., March 23, 1948; and S. J. Res. 223. Joint resolution to author-

S. J. Res. 223. Joint resolution to authorize the issuance of a special series of stamps commemorative of the three hundredth anniversary of Annapolis, Md.

The message also announced that the Senate agrees to the reports of the committees of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendments of the House to bills of the Senate of the following titles:

S. 2821. An act to provide increases of compensation for certain veterans with serviceconnected disabilities who have dependents; and

S. 2825. An act to increase the rates of service-connected death compensation payable to certain widows, children, and dependent parents of persons who served in the active military or naval service, and for other purposes.

The message also announced that the Senate agrees to the report of the committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H. R. 5888) entitled "An act to amend and supplement the Federal-Aid Road Act approved July 11, 1916 (39 Stat. 355), as amended and supplemented, to authorize appropriations for continuing the construction of highways, and for other purposes."

EXTENSION OF REMARKS

Mr. SMITH of Wisconsin asked and was given permission to extend his remarks in the RECORD and include extraneous material.

Mr. HOFFMAN asked and was given permission to extend his remarks in the RECORD on two matters.

Mr. ELLIS asked and was given permission to extend his remarks in the RECORD in two instances.

Mr. MILLER of Nebraska asked and was given permission to extend his remarks in the Recorp in two instances.

Mr. DEANE asked and was given permission to extend his remarks in the RECORD in three instances.

HOUSING LEGISLATION

Mr. MONRONEY. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend my remarks.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Oklahoma?

There was no objection.

Mr. MONRONEY. Mr. Speaker, two things become most apparent today. One is that the House will not be given a chance to vote on a genuine housing bill that will do something to eliminate the critical housing shortage for veterans in the cities and for veterans on the farms.

It also becomes apparent that the Congress will not adjourn sine die tonight, but will be back here in session. Therefore, I urge you and all Members who want a real housing bill, instead of a phony one, to sign the discharge petition to discharge the Taft-Ellender-Wagner bill so that when we come back here after this recess this bill will be up for action and the House will be able to stand up and be counted on how we stand on a genuine and a real housing bill.

CHRONIC SOBBING

Mr. HOFFMAN. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend my remarks.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Michigan?

There was no objection.

Mr. HOFFMAN. Mr. Speaker, it is amusing to hear the gentleman from Oklahoma [Mr. Monroney], the great statesman who was awarded $10,000 and the Collier's certificate of merit as an outstanding Member of the Congress, take the floor and cry and sob and complain about the shortcomings of the Republican Congress—and his sob story he will probably leave out of the Record.

He has long been a member of the Democratic, or of the New Deal, I know not which, party in the Congress. For 14 years his party was in control of the Congress or, perhaps more accurately, of the executive branch of the Government, which was a Democratic or a New Deal—shall we say—institution or mouthpiece—perhaps the latter is the better term—for as many long-haired, dizzy crackpots as could conveniently find housing in Washington.

For that period, the Democratic Party—and let us get down to facts—was under the domination of the New Dealers. The majority party was so be-fuddled, confused, and without leadership, so spineless, that it became known the country over as the "yes man" party, the rubber stamp party. The party organization had no mind of its own; consequently, no will of its own. It merely executed orders which came from the executive branch, of which the New Dealers had control.

It might be said, with a degree of truth, that the gentleman's party dictated the policy of the judicial branch of the Government; that we had in that branch of the Government men who, instead of interpreting the laws enacted by the Congress in accordance with judicial precedence and the will of Congress as expressed in the debates, wrote their ideas of what the Congress should do or imposed them upon the enactments of the Congress.

The gentleman's party organization spent and caused to be spent billions upon billions of dollars, some of it needfully, most of it extravagantly, much of it wastefully. According to some of the reports of congressional committees of which the party which was doing the spending had control, some of the money was spent for political purposes.

The gentleman's party caused to be given to foreign governments, much of it to politicians of other nations, since 1940, something like $80,000,000,000. That does not include the cost of the war to which we were surreptitiously committed and in which we were engaged months before the Congress declared war.

During the war and after the war, as well as prior to the war, the gentleman's party caused other billions to be spent upon unsound projects. Lend-lease, UNRRA, the Voice, to mention but three, have been demonstrated to be the sources for corruption and activities which, instead of being good for the country were had—absolutely had country, were bad—absolutely bad.

Billions upon billions of dollars were spent by the gentleman's party, taken from the taxpayers, and wasted upon socialistic plans and schemes. A million or more unnecessary Federal employees were put upon the Federal pay roll. Millions of dollars were spent on public housing, and while a few were provided with homes, the cost was exorbitant, and the number who were disappointed and disillusioned was far greater than the number of those who actually received a benefit.

Oh, the gentleman can criticize the Republican Party for its failure to cure all of the ills inflicted upon the country during the 14 years his party was in control, but the mess they left us it will take years to clean up. The cleaning of the Aegean stables was but child's play compared to the job which the Republicans inherited from the New Dealers.

Our efforts to do a worth-while job have been obstructed, hindered, delayed, and thwarted by the executive branch of the Government. With an Executive whose agencies cover up the stealing of elections, pardon known gangsters, and who himself assails the Congress and attempts to discredit it in the eyes of the people, it is small wonder that we have been able to accomplish anything worth while.

Yet the fact remains that, in spite of the obstacles thrown in its pathway, not-withstanding the efforts of a President who has time and again vetoed legislation and which—may I say to the gentleman—the members of his own organization have been forced to override, this Congress—the Eightieth Congress—has done a worth-while job.

If the gentleman from Oklahoma [Mr. MONRONEY] can find consolation in forgetfulness of the sins of omission and commission of his own party, whose activities seem destined to involve us in a third world war and to make certain our national bankruptcy, by crying and whining about the Republican Party, I shall not sob, but I do not propose to let the gentleman nor his party forget that, in addition to all the financial ills which we have inherited from his party, we have been confronted with a situation where a majority of the Congress seems to feel that it is necessary to draft our young men, to conscript them, to take them from their homes in order that we may meet a situation which, we are told, threatens our national security and which the gentleman's party in the Congress and in the executive depart-ments—particularly in the State Department-lacks the statesmanship to prevent.

Talking about housing, how can the gentleman expect a returned veteran to get building materials when all the time his organization has been insisting that it and other essential items be sent abroad?

I wonder, sometimes, if there will be lumber enough left in this country to make caskets to bring back the ashes and the bones of those who, if we continue our foolishness, vacillation, and interference in the problems of other nations, will be what is left of the boys we conscript to back up United Nations.

Mr. SMITH of Wisconsin. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. HOFFMAN. I yield to the gentleman from Wisconsin.

Mr. SMITH of Wisconsin. Is it not true also they had the so-called Wyatt housing bill and spent billions on it?

Mr. HOFFMAN. They had everything. They had the public purse, they had the ability to tax the taxpayers, the citizens of this country. The net results are bankruptcy, hardships for our citizens, higher and ever higher prices, and conscription in peacetime.

The record is so bad, I think the gentleman should hang his head in shame, repent in sackcloth and ashes, and ask the good Lord to forgive his party for the irreparable harm it has done to our citizens, to our Nation.

HOUSING LEGISLATION

Mr. RICH. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to address the House for 1 minute.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Pennsylvania?

There was no objection.

Mr. RICH. Mr. Speaker, I am surprised at the gentleman from Oklahoma, absolutely surprised. We had a bill up here yesterday to help the veterans to get more housing, and it will help them, and he voted against that bill. It is a great thing for some of these New Deal Democrat spenders to come in here now at the end of a session and cry "Wolf, wolf, wolf." For 14 years they have had everything their own way, and they did not do what they should have done for some of the people of this country. For 14 long years they have spent money like drunken sailors. They have thrown everything in the category of permanent help to our people to the winds. A lot of people in this country who needed help, they overlooked, yet they go out here now and cry, "Wolf, wolf." There is the gentleman from Texas. He did the same thing; he voted against the housing bill. It is about time that some of these fellows take recognition of what they have done in the past. They cry "Wolf, wolf," and there is no wolf. They try to let veterans know there is no help, it is just the opposite—it gives the greatest help to all veterans. If you will just come to the conclusion that the Republican Party is going to help the people of America instead of selling out to the people in foreign countries, we will do something for our own people.

The housing bill passed yesterday will aid the veterans get more housing than ever before and last year we built the most houses ever built for veterans.

The slum-clearance feature of a bill at this time does not make sense, if they tore down slums now it would increase cost of veterans' houses because it would make materials more scarce and cause the price to be higher. It would work against the veterans.

We can postpone slum clearance for another year because it is sensible to do so and I am for slum clearance and I hope we start here in the District of Columbia, but not this year.

I hope the gentlemen from Oklahoma and Texas stop such criticism as they offer as I think it is anything but just practical or gives the honest situation. Do not try to fool the people any longer. It is not good taste or sound.

CALL OF THE HOUSE

Mr. RANKIN. Mr. Speaker, I make the point of order that a quorum is not present.

The SPEAKER. Obviously a quorum is not present.

Mr. HALLECK. Mr. Speaker, I move a call of the House.

A call of the House was ordered.

The Clerk called the roll, and the following Members failed to answer to their names:

[Roll No. 123]

Anderson, Calif. Gallagher Meade, Md. Mitchell Andresen, Gamble August H Hall. Norton Andrews, N. Y. Bates, Mass. Edwin Arthur O'Konski Harless, Ariz. Peden Price, Fla. Rains Beckworth Bell Hartley Hébert Brown, Ohio Buffett Isacson Regan Jackson, Calif. Rivers Robertson Celler Jensen Johnson, Okla. Johnson, Tex. Chapman Russell Clark Kee Kefauver Cox Cravens Scoblick Simpson, Ill. Simpson, Pa. King Kirwan Lane Cunningham Smith, Maine Stigler Dawson, Ill. Domengeaux Ludlow Macy Manasco Marcantonio Stratton Dorn Ellsworth Thomas, N. J. Fellows Flannagan Meade, Ky. Fuller

The SPEAKER. On this roll call 369 Members have answered to their names, a quorum.

By unanimous consent, further proceedings under the call were dispensed with.

WAR CLAIMS BILL OF 1947

Mr. HINSHAW. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to take from the Speaker's table the bill (H. R. 4044) to amend the Trading With the Enemy Act, as amended; to create a commission to make an inquiry and report with respect to war claims; and to provide relief for internees in certain cases, with a Senate amendment thereto, disagree to the Senate amendment, and ask for a conference with the Senate.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California?

Mr. RANKIN. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, I just want to say that in my opinion, Congress ought not to adjourn sine die if it means rushing legislation through in this way.

It is doing infinitely more harm than good. If you want to adjourn over for a few days so that you can hold your convention, that is all right; but I do not believe in rushing important legislation through without due consideration.

I am not going to object to sending this bill to conference.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California? [After a pause.] The Chair hears none, and appoints the following conferees: Messis. Hinshaw, O'Hara, Hugh D. Scott, Jr., Chapman, and Beckworth.

FEDERAL-AID ROAD ACT

Mr. DONDERO. Mr. Speaker, I call up the conference report on the bill (H. R. 5888) to amend and supplement the Federal-Aid Road Act approved July 11, 1916 (39 Stat. 355), as amended and supplemented, to authorize appropriations for continuing the construction of highways, and for other purposes, and ask unanimous consent that the statement of the managers on the part of the House be read in lieu of the report.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Michigan?

Mr. WHITTINGTON. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, and I shall not object, I call the attention of the Members of the House to the conference report, including the statement on the part of the manager of the House.

Mr. DONDERO. Mr. Speaker, the report, I might say, is unanimous.

Mr. WHITTINGTON. Mr. Speaker, I withdraw my reservation of objection.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Michigan?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the statement.

The conference report and statement are as follows:

CONFERENCE REPORT

The committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H. R. 5888) entitled "An Act to amend and supplement the Federal-Aid Road Act approved July 11, 1916 (39 Stat. 355), as amended and supplemented, to authorize appropriations for continuing the construction of highways, and for other purposes," having met, after full and free conference, have agreed to recommend and do recommend to their respective Houses as follows:

That the Senate recede from its amendments numbered 5, and 14.

That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendments of the Senate numbered 1, 3, 4, 6, 10, 11, 12, 13, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, and 21, and agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 2: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 2, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: change the figure "$40,000,000" to read "$450,000,000"; and the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 7: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 7, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows:

Fage 2, line 4, of the amendments of the Senate, strike out the words "one fiscal year" and insert in lieu thereof the words two fiscal years;

Page 2, line 12, of the amendments of the Senate, after the word "year" insert the following: ", including any funds authorized to be appropriated under this Act,"; and the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 8: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 8, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows:

Page 2, strike out all of subsection (a) under 2 (a) and on page 3, line 8, strike out "(b)"; and the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 9: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 9, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows:

Page 4, line 8, of the amendments of the Senate, change the figure "$20,000,000" to read "$17,500,000";

Page 5, line 19, change the colon to a period, and strike out the remainder of the paragraph through line 9, on page 6; and the Senate agree to the same. GEO. A. DONDERO,

J. HARRY McGREGOR, PAUL CUNNINGHAM, E. G. ROHRBOUGH. J. GLENN BEALL, WILL M. WHITTINGTON, A. J. ELLIOTT, GEORGE H. FALLON,

Managers on the Part of the House. CHAPMAN REVERCOMB, JOHN SHERMAN COOPER. DENNIS CHAVEZ

Managers on the Part of the Senate.

STATEMENT

The managers on the part of the House at the conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H. R. 5888) submit the following statement in explanation of the effect of the action agreed upon and recommended in the accompanying conference report as to each of such amendments, namely:

Amendment No. 1 strikes out the unnecessary word "postwar".

Amendment No. 2 fixes the amount authorized to be appropriated at $450,000,000, $50,000,000 less than the House bill, for each fiscal year.

Amendment No. 3 inserts the word "and". an insertion made necessary by elimination of the authorization for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1952.

Amendment No. 4 eliminates the authorization for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1952.

Amendment No. 6 advances the latest date on which the apportionment to the States for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1950, must be made to September 1, 1948. Under existing law such apportionment could have been made as late as January 1, 1949.

Amendment No. 7, as agreed to by the conferees, makes the grace period, in which apportionments shall be available for expenditure, 2 years; the House bill provided for 3 years. Also, insertion of the words ", including any funds authorized to be appropriated under this Act." after the word "year", in line 1, page 4, makes more definite the application of the provisions regarding apportionment under the Federal-Aid Highway Act of 1948.

Amendment No. 8, as agreed to by the conferees, strikes out section 2 (a) and thereby eliminates amendment of existing law regarding the Federal share payable on projects on the national system of interstate highways. Subsection (b) becomes section 2.

Amendment No. 9, as agreed to by the conferees, authorizes $20,000,000 for forest highways, as compared to $25,000,000 in the House bill; authorizes $17,500,000 for forest development of roads and trails, as compared to $12,500,000 in the House bill. By changing the colon, after the word "program", in line 17, page 7, and striking out the balance of the language in section 3 (a), the provision is eliminated whereby any State where-in forest highways are located, and where it is not found feasible to expend all of the funds apportioned under section 1 for the purposes for which such funds were so apportioned, the Commissioner of Public Roads in his discretion, and upon application in writing by the State highway department of the State, could agree to pay, from the funds apportioned under section 1 to the State, any or all of the funds which are not covered formal agreements with the Commissioner of Public Roads for the improvement of specific projects, for payment up to the full cost of the construction of forest highways across national-forest lands within the State.

Section 3 (b) of amendment No. 9 cancels the authorization in section 9 of the Federal-Aid Highway Act of 1944 for forest highways for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1948.

Section 3 (c) of amendment No. 9 provides that-Hereafter, construction work on forest-development roads and trails, pursuant to the provisions of section 23 of the Federal Highway Act of November 9, 1921, as amended and supplemented, estimated to cost $10,000 or more per mile, exclusive of bridges, shall be advertis a and let to contract. If such estimated cost is less than $10,000 per mile, or if. after proper advertising, no acceptable bid is received, or the bids are deemed excessive. the work may be done by the Secretary of Agriculture on his own account.

Amendment No. 10 changes a section designation; amendments Nos. 12, 13, 15, 16, 17, and 18 are made necessary by elimination of the fiscal year ending June 30, 1952.

Amendment No. 11 increases the amount authorized for the construction, reconstruction, improvement, and maintenance of roads and trails, inclusive of necessary bridges, in national parks, monuments, and other areas administered by the National Park Service, from $4,250,000 in the House bill to $10,000,-000

Amendment No. 14 was receded to by the Senate conferees, leaving the authorizations for access roads to national parks and Indian reservation roads, but in each instance eliminating the authorization for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1952.

Amendment No. 19 merely changes a section designation.

Amendment No. 20 corresponds to H. R. 3759, passed by the House on July 7, 1947. and increased the percent for administrative costs from 21/2 percent to 33/4 percent.

Amendment No. 21 merely changes a section designation.

GEO. A. DONDERO. J. HARRY MCGREGOR, PAUL CUNNINGHAM, J. GLENN BEALL, E. G. ROHRBOUGH, WILL M. WHITTINGTON, A. J. ELLIOTT,

GEORGE H. FALLON, Managers on the Part of the House.

The conference report was agreed to. A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

VETERANS' AFFAIRS

Mr. TRIMBLE. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to take from the Speaker's desk the bill (S. 2849) to authorize the Administrator of Veterans' Affairs to convey a certain tract of land in the State of Arkansas to Washington County, Ark., and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the title of the bill. The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Arkansas?

Mr. RANKIN. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, I desire to say that the Veterans' Committee went into this proposition fully. We think this measure is justified.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Arkansas?

The Clerk read the bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Administrator of Veterans' Affairs is authorized and directed to convey by quitclaim deed to Washington County, Ark., without consideration, the following-described tract of land, which is a part of the lands of the Veterans' Administration hospital, Fayetteville, Washington County Ark .

A part of the southeast quarter of northeast quarter of section 9 and a part of the southwest quarter of northwest quarter of section 10, township 16 north, range 30 west. fifth principal meridian, more particularly described as follows: Beginning at the southwest corner of southeast quarter of northeast quarter of said section 9, running thence north 200 feet; thence east 530 feet; thence north 50 degrees 18 minutes east 2348 100 feet; thence east 74413100 feet to the center of said United States Highway No. 71; thence south 2 degrees 2 minutes west along center of said United States Highway No. 71 3502100 feet; thence west 1,44240100 feet to the place of beginning, containing 980100 acres.

With the following committee amend-

Page 1, line 4, insert after the word "directed" the words "subject to such terms and conditions as the Administrator of Veterans' Affairs may prescribe."

The amendment was agreed to. The Clerk read as follows:

Committee amendment: Page 2, line 17, insert: "The deed shall reserve to the United States all interest in and to any oil, mineral, or fissionable material in said land, and shall provide for reversion to the United States if the land ceases to be used for hospital pur-

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed, and a motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

Mr. BEALL (at the request of Mr. MILLER of Maryland) was granted permission to extend his remarks in the Appendix of the RECORD and include an editorial.

Mr. REED of New York asked and was given permission to extend his remarks in the Appendix of the Record in four separate instances and to include extraneous matter in each.

Mr. LODGE asked and was given permission to extend his remarks in the Appendix of the Record and include extraneous matter.

Mr. McGREGOR asked and was given permission to extend his remarks in the Appendix of the Record in three separate instances and in each to include extraneous matter.

Mr. SCHWABE of Missouri asked and was given permission to extend his remarks in the Appendix of the Record in two separate instances, in one to include an article from the Women's Investors' League.

Mr. H. CARL ANDERSEN asked and was given permission to extend his remarks in the Appendix of the Record and to include extraneous matter.

Mr. McCOWEN asked and was given permission to extend his remarks in the Appendix of the Record in three separate instances, one on the late Thomas L. Owen, one on veterans' legislation, and in one to include a telegram on parachutes for airplanes.

Mr. ENGEL of Michigan asked and was given permission to extend his remarks in the Appendix of the Record and include quotations.

Mr. MUNDT. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to extend my remarks in the Appendix of the Record in two separate instances, in each to include extraneous material. In one I ask unanimous consent to include the Meet the Press program of a recent date. This will probably slightly exceed the limit established by he Joint Committee on Printing. The Government Printing Office has not supplied the figure. Notwithstanding the excess I ask unanimous consent that the extension may be made.

The SPEAKER. Without objection, the requests of the gentleman from Nebraska are granted.

PATMAN WITHDRAWS RESTRAINING AMENDMENT CONCERNING PERU

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to extend my remarks at this point in the Record.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas?

There was no objection.

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Speaker, I am to-day withdrawing my proposed amendment to the Export-Import Bank Act which I introduced a few days ago in the House Banking and Currency Committee. This amendment would have prohibited loans to countries who had failed to live up to their agreements with the United States. This proposal was the result of action on the part of Peru in suspending the operating permit of Braniff International Airways into Lima. The reason for my change of position is that the Government of Peru Thursday lifted the Braniff suspension, and Braniff Airways is now able to inaugurate service into Lima, effective immediately. UNITED STATES MUCH IN COMMON WITH PERU

I am only too happy to learn of the decision of the Government of Peru to lift the Braniff suspension. Peru has worked side by side with us during the war. They have stood shoulder to shoulder with the United States in many problems before the United Nations. We want to maintain the friendly relations with Peru which have existed these many years.

COLOMBIA, ARGENTINA, AND MEXICO

It is my sincere hope that the Governments of Colombia, Argentina, and Mexico will soon complete the Bilateral Air Transport Agreements with the United States which have been under discussion for many months. Nothing would bring our countries closer together than rapid means of transportation, and nothing would pour dollars into these countries quicker than an air line tringing in tourists and businessmen.

PERMISSION TO EXTEND REMARKS AT THIS POINT

Mr. BUSBEY. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to extend my remarks at this point in the RECORD on a uniform American pension.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Illinois?

There was no objection.

Mr. BUSBEY. Mr. Speaker, I deeply regret that this Congress has not done more to provide a reasonable and uniform American pension for the aged of this country. I have, from time to time. raised my voice not only in the Third

Congressional District of Illinois which I have the honor to represent in Congress, but elsewhere pleading that something really constructive be done about this matter this matter.

When I think of the billions and billions, and then more billions of dollars that have been appropriated by this Congress for so-called foreign aids of all kinds, the major portion of which money can be considered as having been poured down a rat hole, I think the least that we could have done was to have given more consideration to our aged here at home. It is this group of people who, over the past generations, have done their part to bring America forward to the great nation that we are today. They certainly are entitled to and should have received more consideration than has been given them. It is appalling when we consider that all we have done for our aged is approximately raise the figure of assistance of $1 a day to $1.17 a day on an average. Mr. Speaker, I am sure my colleagues agree with me that this can only be considered little or nothing in view of the increased cost of living that has taken place in the last few years. It really amounts to nothing more than a moderate-priced dessert for one meal. As my colleague the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. GERALD LANDIS], has put it, this leaves nothing for breakfast, nothing for dinner, nothing for housing, nothing for medical care, and nothing for the myriads of incidentals so necessary to the security and comfort to which they are entitled in the twilight of life.

Mr. Speaker, we should all stand and bow our heads in shame for what we have failed to do for the honored and respected mothers and fathers of our country to whom we owe so much. For Europe we say, "How much does it take?" Then we appropriate it. Why not say with respect to our elder citizens, "How much do they need?" and then appropriate that? That is, in my opinion, the least we can do with any conscience. Is it so much worse, Mr. Speaker, to be hungry and cold in Europe than it is in America? God forbid. Cold and hunger are no respecters of persons or places.

Do we feel so much more concern for the poor in Europe than we do in America? Whom do we as Representatives in the Congress really represent?

I know not what course other Members of this great legislative body propose to take, but as for myself, I shall continue to raise my voice to the best of my ability and strive to do something for our aged.

When we assumed our most solemn obligation to discharge the duties of our offices as Members of the Congress in support of the Constitution of the United States, we obligated ourselves to "promote the general welfare and make secure the liberties" of the people of this country. That is our first and most solemn duty, Mr. Speaker. I am agreeable to being a good neighbor to other countries, but I also believe that charity begins at home. Our first duty is to the citizens of this country. I cannot, therefore, reconcile myself to the idea of billions for foreign countries and mere "beans" for the fathers and mothers who preserved and made this country a great

I am sincerely convinced that a great many of our bureaus in the executive department of our Government are thoroughly unnecessary and if the proper economy measures were taken in the right places billions of dollars could be stricken from our budget and more than enough money left over after making a substantial payment on our national debt to provide a uniform American pension that would be hailed by people in every walk of life as one of the greatest social advancements of our age. This seems to me not only the American way of doing things but also the Christian thing to do.

The united pension program sponsored by the gentleman from Indiana, Representative Landis, is, in my opinion, reasonable and just. It would provide for a uniform payment to the elder citizens of our country and certainly is not out of line when we stop to consider the high cost of living in these reconstruction days. This program is not promoted to glorify any individual or any organization either in Congress or out of Congress, but is a sincere desire on the part of many people to recognize a pressing American problem and to strive to do something about it. This matter, in my opinion, should be given earnest and prayerful consideration and should be enacted into law. Failure of this Congress, Mr. Speaker, to do something about this urgent problem may be responsible for bringing about untold suffering and hardships upon millions of our elder citizens this coming winter. This is one of the emergencies which should have been given proper consideration and legislation passed to correct the deplorable condition. Even at this late hour, it is my hope that this Congress will do something about it before we adjourn and go home. The responsibility is ours and should be acted upon now.

Mr. Speaker, in the name of God and for the sake of the aged of this country let us assume our responsibility and take care of them.

Before taking my seat I cannot help but pay tribute to the many people who have worked so diligently and tirelessly to bring the attention of Congress to this grave problem, and to those Members of Congress who have banded themselves together in this cause. These patriotic men and women who have a great love for our country and a sincere desire to assist in bringing about proper recognition for our elder citizens. God bless them and give them strength to carry on the fight.

EXTENSION OF REMARKS

Mr. BATES of Kentucky asked and was given permission to extend his remarks in the RECORD.

Mr. GWINN of New York asked and was given permission to extend his remarks in the Appendix of the Record and include a speech on labor legislation.

COLUMBIA RIVER FLOODS

Mr. ANGELL. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to extend my remarks at this point in the Record.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Oregon?

There was no objection.

Mr. ANGELL. Mr. Speaker, we in the great Pacific Northwest are thankful that the flood waters are receding, but it will be several weeks before the submerged lands are uncovered and an appraisal and survey can be made of the destruction wrought and the actual property damage as well as the accurate determination of the lives lost. The Department of Agriculture reports that loss in farm crops and production alone in the Washington-Oregon-Idaho areas will approximate nearly $10,000,000. The loss to buildings privately owned, Federal and public structures and facilities cannot be accurately determined at this time.

I include for the information of the House Members the following reports which give such information as is available now:

UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE,
OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY,
Washington, June 16, 1948.

FLOOD DAMAGE TO FARMS IN COLUMBIA BASIN ESTIMATED

Lost farm production income estimated for this year in the areas of Washington, Oregon, and Idaho devastated by the Columbia River flood waters will approximate nearly $10,000,000, according to preliminary advance estimates sent to Secretary Charles F. Brannan, of the United States Department of Agriculture, today by George T. Hudson, special representative of the Secretary stationed in the Pacific Northwest to coordinate efforts of the Department agencies in behalf of flood sufferers.

In making their estimates, the Department observers in the stricken areas did not include part-time farmers or nonfarm rural residents in the first list of damages. It is also exclusive of flood damage now being surveyed and reported by the Forest Service on upper watersheds. Likewise, possible damage to public roads, bridges, rural electric power lines or telephone lines are not included in any survey to date.

To date, the best available flood damage figures furnished to the Department of Agriculture by State USDA councils and other agency specialists include the following for Washington and Oregon farms, which are sketchy and incomplete pending further surveys:

Washington State: One thousand three hundred and seventy-five farms affected, with rehabilitation costs placed at $1,375,-000; acres of farm land inundated, 104,000; cropland or cultivated pasture flooded, 52,135 acres; cost to return cropland to normal cultivation, $781,900; cows evacuated, 11,500 head; hay requirements to next pasture season, 20,000 tons valued at $700,000; seed requirements, 263,800 pounds, worth $205,000; grain feed requirements, 10,625 tons worth $1,062,500; fences destroyed, 1,955 miles, to cost $627,000 for replacement: 880 farm buildings damaged or destroyed at a cost to rehabilitate of $2,279,500; fertilizer needed, 5,000 tons worth $375,000; farm bridges to rebuild or repair at cost of $200,-000; repair of damaged farm roads, $50,-000; loss of home-grown food estimated at $137,500, and personal property damages valued at about $1,230,000. In addition special needs must be met in Chelan, Douglas, and Pend Oreille Counties at cost of about $272,000, the estimate concludes.

Oregon estimates: Eight hundred farms affected with rehabilitation costs put at $450,-000; acres of farm land inundated, 50,000; cropland or cultivated pasture flooded, 26,000 acres; cost to return cropland to normal cultivation, $390,000; number of cows evacuated, 5,400 head; hay requirements to next pasture season, 12,150 tons at a value of $425,000; seed requirements, $430,000 for replanting mint and seeding pasture and hay crops; grain feed requirements, 4,050 tons worth $405,000; fences destroyed, 500 miles, to cost $157,000 for replacement; 450 farm buildings damaged or destroyed at a rebuild-ing and repair cost of $1,350,000; fertilizer repair of farm bridges; $20,000 for repair of farm bridges; $20,000 for repair of farm roads; loss of home-grown food, $45,000; and personal-property damages estimated at $225,000. needed, 1,000 tons, worth $75,000; $50,000 for

Loss of income from crops and livestock, in addition to the current flood damage rehabil-itation costs, is estimated for Washington, Oregon, and Idaho farms at $9,863,000.

Columbia and Willamette are dropping faster than estimated with prospects of 2-foot recession by Saturday. Portland level down to 29.35 and Vancouver stage at 29.6 Tuesday noon. River forecaster Elmer Fisher expects river at Portland to be 28.4 Thursday, 27.9 Friday, and 27.5 Saturday.

Down-river dikes, seriously saturated, described as still critical, but no new breaks reported. Levee repairs on upper Puget Island about completed which will permit Puget faster drainage of flooded acreage below, and the Columbia slough, filling the Multnomah drainage district northeast of Portland since Friday morning, has been plugged at both ends. Army engineers expressed hope their battle was nearing an end.

Flood levels started dropping on the upper Columbia 4 days ago and in British Columbia the flood-control commission announced recessions in the Frazer River Valley.

Known dead attributable to the flood

Red cross case load in Oregon and Washington numbered 8,523 families Tuesday, homeless families 43,440. It is sheltering 8,533 individuals and feeding 19,354. Peak case load registration expected to reach 12,000 families.

Red Cross emergency relief expenditures so far approximately $600,000 for food, clothing, some shelter, and hay for cattle.

Housing: Dr. J. Bion Philipson, representing Foley, arrived Monday, visited Vancouver Tuesday with Epstein and Portland-Van-couver Housing Authority. Floyd S. Ratch-ford, Vancouver, said 22 apartment wings at Ogden Meadows would be renovated, work starting today and first families moving in July 1. Rearrangement will provide 43 three-room units, 88 two-room, and 12 one-room units. The buildings were up for sale 3 days before the Vanport disaster. Bids were returned and the sale canceled. Cost estimate for work is $400,000 to come out of $10,000,000 flood-relief fund.

Ten buildings being renovated at Vancouver Barracks include four barracks-type buildings to be made into 128 three- and four-bedroom apartments, three apartments to house 26 families and two nurses' homes to be developed into 16 apartments. Believe War Assets would make more buildings available at the deactivated Army post. About 1,300 evacuees already housed at Swan Island.

Unable yet to get working figure on estimated number of housing units needed. Two hundred eighty-three trailers expected by Thursday at Guilds Lake housing site, under FWA assignment. Been coming in since Saturday from Stockton and 100 due Wednesday afternoon on 50 flatcars from San Antonio. A trailer city is growing on the housing site. Water and sewers ready to be hooked up.

Philipson unwilling to guess number of houses needed, everybody else reluctant to hazard opinion at this time, among the Federal men.

FWA: Large amounts of materials, expendable and inexpendable, are converging on Portland by trains, trucks, and vans. B mattresses, and bedding for more than 1,500 families, other furniture, mobile unexpenda-ble equipment out of WAA surplus, are being assigned to various areas of the disaster district. Formal applications for such assistance are being received from towns, counties, and diking districts. The big impact of the movement has not yet arrived, but eight car-loads of additional furniture, including 560 beds, mattresses, chests, chairs, and tables would reach the FWA warehouse on Swan Island by tonight. Twenty-five vanloads of furniture and expendable equipment from housing projects and military installations in Texas, Arkansas, New Mexico, and Kansas were expected in Portland by Sunday. An additional 25 vanloads of materials and equipment, including furniture, have been loaded at Willow Run, Mich.; Ottawa, Ill., and Manitowoc, Wis., for shipment here. Movement of nonexpendable equipment into the flood-disaster areas about Bonners Ferry, Orofino, and St. Maries, Idaho, includes 32 Quonset huts in transit from Cincinnati to replace city and county buildings lost in the flood at Orofino. Equipment also includes dump trucks, drag lines, a bull-dozer, and lumber for rebuilding bridges. Materials were moving into the Kootenai River flood areas from the Ogden Army depot and WAA warehouses in Spokane and San Francisco, and included 43,000 feet of cable, power shovels, and trucks, a suction dredge, pile driver, and steam cleaning unit. Also included were DDT spray and portable sprayers. A water-purification system for Bonners Ferry was located at the University of

Have assigned a fire pumper truck located by WAA in Portland to the mayor of Clatskanie.

Public health: Dr. H. M. Erickson, Oregon State health director, and Porter Stephens, in charge of the Portland-Vancouver area for the State sanitary service, report ex-cellent cooperation with USPHS, Department of the Interior, FWA, and other Federal agencies. The present need is for prompt immunization and typhoid vaccine has been received in sufficient quantities. Sanitary engineers have been sent to the flood area from Atlanta, New Orleans, and San Francisco, with Federal entomologists. The environmental sanitation problem will grow as the water recedes, the work of mosquito and fly eradication is already proceeding. In the Oregon-Washington area 10,000 pounds of 40-percent DDT, 400 pounds of 100-percent DDT, and 3,000 gallons of oil are now available.

Interior expects more funds by July 1 for its work on rat control. Col. Roy Bessey, executive director for the Pacific Northwest region, says that mobile and electrical equipment and transportation services have been supplied to flooded areas

Public roads, FWA: The Union Avenue cut-off is now serving for emergency travel, busses, milk, vegetables, and other perish-ables. Public Roads Administration engineers in Washington, Montana, and Idaho are reporting on the condition of roads, and the State highway departments in Washington and Oregon are taking care of emergency traffic with detours and temporary work such as candbagging between Portland and Longview, Wash.

Department of Agriculture: Reports engineering assistance and the assignment of equipment, bulldozers, drag lines, etc., in rehabilitation of irrigation work in Okanogan County, and the Methow and Kittitas Valleys, in Washington, and in northern Idaho (Don't know about the sources

Idaho. (Don't know about the reported $1,400,000 residue from 1942 act.)

Reconstruction Finance Corporation: Receiving some applications for loans for repair or rebuilding of barns and other farm buildings, William Kennedy, Portland man-ager, said. Reconstruction Finance Corporation has opened offices in Woodland, Rainier, and Vancouver. To examiners from Cleveland and two from San Francisco, experienced in disaster work, have been assigned to Portland. An anticipated situation of considerable gravity is expected as the flood waters recede.

RESIGNATION AS MEMBER OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

The SPEAKER laid before the House the following communication which was

JUNE 17, 1948.

To the SPEAKER OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTA-TIVES OF THE UNITED STATES AND THE MEM-

This is to notify you that I have resigned as a Representative in Congress from the Sixth Congressional District of Indiana, effective at the close of the day, July 1, 1948, and have transmitted my resignation to the Governor of the State of Indiana, a copy of such resignation so transmitted is hereto attached.

NOBLE JOHNSON.

To the Governor of the State of Indiana: This is to notify you that the undersigned, a Representative in Congress from the Sixth Congressional District of Indiana, hereby and by this instrument resigns as such Representative in Congress, said resignation to take effect on the 1st day of July Dated this 17th day of June 1948. NOBLE JOHNSON.

RESIGNATION AS MEMBER OF COMMIT-TEE ON APPROPRIATIONS

The SPEAKER laid before the House the following communication which was read:

JUNE 19, 1948.

Hon. Joseph W. Martin, Jr.,

The Speaker, House of Representatives, United States, Washington, D. C. DEAR MR. SPEAKER: I herewith tender my resignation as a member of the standing committee of the House of Representatives on appropriations.

Respectfully yours,

NOBLE JOHNSON.

The SPEAKER. Without objection. the resignation will be accepted. There was no objection.

CONFERRING JURISDICTION ON THE COURTS OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK WITH RESPECT TO OFFENSES COM-MITTED ON INDIAN RESERVATIONS

Mr. D'EWART. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to take from the Speaker's desk the bill (S. 1683) to confer jurisdiction on the courts of the State of New York with respect to offenses committed on Indian reservations within such State.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Montana?

There being no objection, the Clerk read the bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the State of New York shall have jurisdiction over offenses committed by or against Indians on Indian reservations within the State of New York to the same extent as the courts of the State have jurisdiction over offenses committed elsewhere within the State as defined by the laws of the State.

With the following committee amend-

The committee amendment was agreed to

The bill was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed, and a motion to reconsider was laid on CONFERRING JURISDICTION ON THE STATE OF IOWA OVER OFFENSES COM-MITTED BY OR AGAINST INDIANS ON THE SAC AND FOX INDIAN RESERVA-

Mr. D'EWART. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to take from the Speaker's desk the bill (S. 1820) to confer jurisdiction on the State of Iowa for offenses committed by or against Indians on the Sac and Fox Indian Reservation, and ask unanimous consent for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Montana?

There being no objection, the Clerk read the bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That jurisdiction is hereby conferred on the State of Iowa over offenses committed by or against Indians on the Sac and Fox Indian Reservation in that State to the same extent as its courts have jurisdiction generally over offenses committed within said State cutside of any Indian reservation: Provided, however, That nothing herein contained shall deprive the courts of the United States of jurisdiction over offenses defined by the laws of the United States committed by or against Indians on Indian reservations.

The bill was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed, and a motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

CONFEDERATED TRIBES OF THE WARM SPRINGS RESERVATION OF OREGON

Mr. D'EWART. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to take from the Speaker's desk the bill (S. 1243) to provide for the payment of revenues from certain lands into the tribal funds of the Confederated Tribes of the Warm Springs Reservation of Oregon, and for other purposes, and ask unanimous consent for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the title of the bill, The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Montana?

Mr. GAVIN. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, will the gentleman tell us what this bill is all about?

Mr. D'EWART. Mr. Speaker, this has to do with certain lands adjoining a national forest in Oregon, formerly held by the Indians in that area. It is proposed in this bill to give the revenues from this national forest to the Indians, but the land is to be administered by the National Forest Administration.

Mr. GAVIN. Mr. Speaker, is this S. 580?

Mr. D'EWART. It is S. 1243.

Mr. GAVIN. Mr. Speaker, I withdraw

my reservation of objection.

Mr. FERNANDEZ. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, will the gentleman tell us what happened to the provision with respect to attorney's fees?

Mr. D'EWART. Section 3 is stricken from the bill.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Montana?

There being no objection, the Clerk read the bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That (a) all money received by or on account of the Forest Service of other agency of the United States after the dismissal of the proceeding in the Court of Claims entitled "The Warm Springs" Tribe of Indians of Oregon versus the United States," numbered M-112, for timber (on a stumpage basis) grown on, the lease or rental of, or other rights in, the lands described in subsection (b) of this section shall be deposited into the Treasury of the United States to the credit of the Confederated Tribes of the Warm Springs Reservation of Oregon, pursuant to the provisions of the Act of May 17, 1926 (44 Stat. 560). The funds so deposited together with any other funds credited to the Confederated Tribes of the Warm Spring Reservation of Oregon under said act shall be available for such purposes as may be designated by governing body of said Confederated Tribes and approved by the Secretary of the In-terior. The sixth paragraph under the heading "Forest Service" of the act of May 23, 1908, and section 13 of the act of March 1, 1911, both as amended (16 U.S.C., sec. 500) and the fourteenth paragraph under the heading "Forest Service" of the act of March 4, 1913 (16 U. S. C., sec. 501), shall not be applicable to the money so received.

(b) The lands referred to in subsection (a) of this section are described as follows:

All lands of the United States included within the Mount Hood National Forest in the State of Oregon and lying and being within an area bounded by a line beginning at a point in the middle of the channel of the Deschutes River, established as the initial point of the Handley survey of 1871; thence in a direct line northwestwardly to the seven-and-one-half-mile post of the Mc-Quinn survey of 1887; thence continuing northwestwardly along the line of the Mc-Quinn survey to the 30-mile post thereof at Little Dark Butte in the Cascade Moun-tains; thence following the McQuinn survey southwestwardly in a direct line to the summit of Mount Jefferson; thence northeast-wardly in a direct line to the western terminus of the northern boundary of the Warm Springs Indian Reservation as established by the act of June 6, 1894 (28 Stat. 86); thence along said northern boundary to the place of beginning.

(c) The lands described in subsection (b) of this section shall continue to be administered by the departments and agencies now administering them.

SEC. 2. The benefits herein granted to the Confederated Tribes of the Warm Springs Reservation of Oregon shall be in full satisfaction of all claims of such Indians asserted in the above-mentioned proceeding in the Court of Claims. Any remaining jurisdiction of the Court of Claims with respect to such proceeding is hereby withdrawn, and no court or commission shall have jurisdiction over the subject matter of such proceeding.

SEC. 3. The Secretary of the Interior shall determine the proper fees to be paid to the attorneys of said Confederated Tribes as full compensation for services rendered and amounts necessarily expended by them in representing the tribes in the above-mentioned proceeding. Such fees shall be paid out of the tribal funds of said Confederated Tribes: Provided, That no payment on account of said fees in any year shall exceed 50 percent of the sums received by said Confederated Tribes in said year under the terms of this act.

SEC. 4. This act shall not become effective unless the Confederated Tribes of the Warm Springs Reservation of Oregon accept its provisions, in such manner as may be designated by the Secretary of the Interior, within 1 year after the approval hereof.

VALIDATING CONVEYANCES OF THE OREGON SHORT LINE RAILROAD CO. AND THE UNION PACIFIC RAILROAD

Mr. D'EWART. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent for the immediate consideration of the bill (S. 2371) validating certain conveyances of the Oregon Short Line Railroad Co. and the Union Pacific Railroad Co. and waiving, relinquishing, and disclaiming all title and all right of reverter and forfeiture of the United States of America to the lands described in said conveyances.

The Clerk read the title of the bill. The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Mon-

Mr. RICH. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, will the gentleman please explain this bill?

Mr. D'EWART. This bill clears the title to a fraction of an acre of land along the rights-of-way of these railroads on which an elevator and a mill has been built. It was formerly owned by the Indians, and a flaw has developed in the title. This simply clears the title of this fraction of an acre of ground.

Mr. RICH. I withdraw my reservation of objection, Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Mon-

There being no objection, the Clerk read the bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That that certain conveyance made by Oregon Short Line Railroad , a corporation of Utah, to the Colorado Milling & Elevator Co., a corporation of Colorado, dated September 30, 1927, and recorded April 25, 1932, at 9:02 a. m. in book 68 of deeds at page 42, records of Bannock County, Idaho, and covering the following-described land located in Bannock County, Idaho, to wit: A tract of land one hundred feet wide and one hundred and forty feet long in northeast quarter of southwest quarter of section 26, township 6, south, range 34 east, of Boise meridian, and more particularly described as follows: Beginning at the present northeasterly corner of right-of-way of Oregon Short Line Railroad Co. opposite and west of block 329 of townsite of Pocatello, said corner bearing south thirty-three degrees forty-two minutes twenty seconds east three thousand four hundred and sixty-one and three-tenths feet from northwest corner of said section 26; thence south eight degrees forty-one minutes east along present easterly right-of-way boundary of said railroad company, one hundred and forty feet; thence south eighty-one degrees nineteen minutes west one hundred feet; thence north eight degrees forty-one minutes west one hundred and forty feet to point in the present northerly right-ofboundary of said railroad company; thence north eighty-one degrees nineteen minutes east along said northerly right-ofway boundary one hundred feet to point of beginning, and containing in all thirty-two one-hundredths of an acre, more or less; and that certain conveyance made by the Union Pacific Railroad Co., a corporation of Utah, to the Colorado Milling & Elevator Co., a corporation of Colorado, dated April 28, 1941, and recorded May 29, 1941, at 2:14 p. m. in book 84 of deeds at page 183, records of Ban-nock County, Idaho, and covering the fol-lowing-described land located in Bannock County, Idaho, to wit: A tract of land one hundred feet wide and one hundred and forty feet long in northeast quarter of southwest quarter of section 26, township 6 south, range 34 east, of Boise meridian and more particularly described as follows: Beginning at the present northeasterly corner of rightof-way of Oregon Short Line Railroad Co. opposite and west of block 329 of townsite of Pocatello, said corner being southeasterly corner of that certain tract of land conveyed Oregon Short Line Railroad Co. to Colorado Milling & Elevator Co. by quit claim deed dated September 30, 1927, and recorded April 25, 1932, in book 68 at page 42 of deeds, records of Bannock County; thence south eight degrees forty-one minutes east along said right-of-way boundary one hundred and forty feet; thence south eighty-one degrees nineteen minutes west one hundred feet; thence north eight degrees forty-one minutes west one hundred and forty feet; thence north eighty-one degrees nineteen minutes east one hundred feet to point of beginning, and containing thirty-two onehundredths of an acre, more or less; which said lands heretofore formed part of the right-of-way, station grounds, and yards of the Oregon Short Line Railroad Co. and the Union Pacific Railroad Co. granted by United States of America to the Utah & Northern Railway Co., predecessor of the Oregon Short Line Railroad Co. and the Union Pacific Railroad Co., by act of Con-gress dated September 1, 1888, or by any other act of Congress, are hereby legalized, validated, and confirmed and all title and all rights of reverter or forfeiture of the United States of America in or to the lands described in said conveyances, as provided in the act of September 1, 1888 (25 Stat. 452), or otherwise, is hereby waived, relinquished, and disclaimed.

Mr. WEICHEL. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent for the immediate consideration of the bill (S. 2747) to amend the Canal Zone Code for the purpose of incorporating the Panama Railroad Company.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Ohio? There being no objection, the Clerk read the bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc .-

DECLARATION OF POLICY

SECTION 1. It is the policy of this act, in-corporating the Panama Railroad Company pursuant to section 304 (b) of the Government Corporation Control Act, approved December 6, 1945, for the purpose of conducting business activities incident to the care, maintenance, sanitation, operation, improve-ment, government, and protection of the Panama Canal and Canal Zone; to pre-serve the authority vested in the President by the Panama Canal Act of August 24, 1912; to govern and operate the Panama Canal and govern the Canal Zone, or cause them to be governed and operated, through a Governor of the Panama Canal and such other persons as he may deem competent to discharge the various duties connected with the care, maintenance, sanitation, operation, government, and protection of the Canal and Canal Zone. Also it is the policy of this act that the operations in the Canal Zone shall continue to be coordinated, through the President, in order that the responsibility for and authority over this important utility shall not be divided.

REINCORPORATION OF THE PANAMA RAILROAD COMPANY

SEC. 2. Chapter 12 of title 2 of the Canal Zone Code, approved June 19, 1934 (48 Stat. 1122), is amended by adding at the end of said chapter a new article numbered 3, embracing new sections 245 to 256 of said title 2, and reading as follows:

"ARTICLE 3-PANAMA RAILROAD COMPANY ACT

"245. Creation, purpose, offices, and residence of Panama Railroad Company: For the purpose of conducting business operations incident to the care, maintenance, sanitation, operation, improvement, government, and protection of the Panama Canal and the Canal Zone, there is hereby created, as an agency and instrumentality of the United States, and as an adjunct of the Panama Canal, a body corporate to be known as the Panama Railroad Company, hereinafter referred to as the 'corporation'. The principal offices of the corporation shall be in the city of New York, N. Y., and in the Canal Zone, but the corporation may establish according but the corporation may establish agencies or branch offices in such other place or places as it may deem necessary or appropriate in the conduct of its business. Within the meaning of the laws of the United States relating to venue in civil actions, the corporation shall be deemed to be an inhabitant and resident both of the southern judicial district of New York and of the Canal Zone.
"246. Investment of the United States:

(a) As of the beginning of business July 1, 1948, the corporaton shall issue to the United States, and deliver to the Secretary of the Treasury, a receipt for $1 acknowledging the transfer to the corporation, under the provisions of section 251 of this title, of the net assets of the Panama Railroad Company, hereinafter referred to as the 'New York company', a corporation created by an act of the Legislature of the State of New York passed on April 7, 1849, as amended by an act of that legislature passed on April 12, 1855, and which is wholly owned by the United States, and such receipt shall be evidence of the ownership of the corporation by the United States of America. In its capacity as owner of the corporation, the United States shall be represented by the President of the United States or such officer of the United States as may be designated by him, hereinafter referred to as the 'stockholders'.

"(b) The amount of the receipt (referred to in paragraph (a) above) shall be increased by subsequent additional direct investments of the United States, in excess of repayments to the Treasury and extraordinary expenditures and losses applicable as offsets to such investments under the provisions of paragraph (d) of this section, due to (1) funds advanced to the corporation from the Treasury within such appropriations by the Congress as may from time to time be made to meet increased capital needs, and (2) transfers to the corporation from other Government agencies (or, conversely, decreased by transfers from the corporation to other Government agencies), pursuant to applica-ble provisions of law, of business enterprises, facilities, appurtenances, and other assets, less liabilities assumed in connection with such transfers. Transfers of properties and other assets from or to other Government agencies under clause (2) above shall be at such appropriate amount or amounts as shall be agreed upon between the corporation and the agencies concerned and approved by the Director of the Bureau of the Budget, and in the determination thereof due consideration shall be given to the cost and probable earning power of the transferred assets, or usable value to the transferee if clearly less than cost, and adequate provisions made for depreciation of properties and equipment, obsolete or otherwise unusable inventories, and other reasonably determinable shrinkages in values, and, insofar as practicable, there shall be excluded from such amount any portion of the value of the transferred property which is properly allocable to national defense. board of directors shall certify to the Secretary of the Treasury the amount of each such transfer, the amount of any accumulated repayments to the Treasury or extraordinary expenditures or losses applicable as offsets to the amount of such transfer under the provisions of paragraph (d) of this section, and the effective date of the transfer.

"(c) In order to reimburse the Treasury, as nearly as possible, for the interest cost of the funds or other assets directly invested in the corporation, the corporation shall pay interest to the Treasury, at least annually, on the net direct investment of the Government in the corporation, as defined in paragraphs (a) and (b) of this section, and shown by the receipt described therein, at a rate or rates determined by the Secretary of the Treasury as required to reimburse the Treasury for its cost.

"(d) The corporation shall account for its surplus as follows: (1) The total net income from operations from and after 1904 (when the Government acquired control of the New York company), plus the undistributed net income prior to 1904, less (2) payments to the Treasury as dividends from and after 1904, not applied as offsets to direct capital contributions as described below, and less (3) extraordinary expenditures or losses incurred through directives based on national policy and not related to the operations of the corporation, not reimbursed through specific appropriations by the Congress, and not applied as offsets to direct capital contributions as described below. The corporation shall not be required to pay interest to the Treasury on any part of its surplus, as above defined. Repayments to the Treasury as dividends shall be applicable as offsets against directly contributed capital, past or future, in determining the base for the interest payments required under paragraph (c) of this section. Extraordinary expenditures and losses (as defined in clause 3 above), to the extent not reimbursed through specific appropriations, shall be considered as repayments to the Treasury analogous to dividends and similarly applicable as off-sets against directly contributed capital.

"247. Board of Directors: The management of the corporation shall be vested in a board of directors consisting of not less than 9 nor more than 13 persons who shall be appointed by and hold office at the pleasure of the stockholder, or if he so elects, consisting of the stockholder and 8 to 12 other persons: Provided, That the Governor of the Panama Canal shall be a director and president of the corporation. Before entering upon his duties, each of the directors so appointed shall take an oath faithfully to discharge the duties of his office. The directors shall receive no salary for their services on the board, but under regulations and in amounts prescribed by the board of directors, with the approval of the stockholder, may be paid by the corporation a reasonable per diem allowance in lieu of subsistence expenses in connection with attendance at meetings of the board or in connection with the time spent on special service of the corporation, and their traveling expenses to and from meetings or when upon such special service, without regard to the Subsistence Expense Act of 1926, as amended, or the Standardized Government Travel Regulations. Nothing contained in this article or in any other act shall be construed to prevent the appointment and service, as a director, officer, or employe of the corporation, of any officer or employee of the United States. The directors, of whom a majority shall consti-tute a quorum for the transaction of business, shall meet for organization purposes when and where called by the stockholder, and for subsequent meetings as provided by "248. General powers of corporation: The corporation shall have and may exercise the following general powers, in addition to those elsewhere conferred in this article:

(a) Shall have perpetual succession in its corporate name, unless dissolved by act of Congress.

"(b) May adopt, alter, and use a corporate seal, which shall be judicially noticed.

"(c) May adopt, amend, and repeal bylaws governing the conduct of its general business, and the performance of the powers and duties granted to or imposed upon it by law.

"(d) May sue and be sued in its corporate name

"(e) May appoint such officers, agents, attorneys, and employees as may be necessary for the conduct of the business of the corporation, define their authority and duties, fix their compensation, delegate to them such of the powers of the corporation as may be necessary, require that such of them as it may designate be bonded, and fix the penalties and pay the premiums of such bonds. Persons employed by the corporation whose compensation is paid on any basis other than a per annum basis shall not be included in making computations pursuant to the pro-visions of section 607 of the Federal Employees Pay Act of 1945.

"(f) May enter into contracts, leases, agreements, or other transactions.
"(g) Shall have, in the payment of debts out of bankrupt estates, the priority of the United States.

"(h) May determine the character of and necessity for its obligations and expenditures and the manner in which they shall be incurred, allowed, and paid, and may incur, allow, and pay the same, subject to pertinent provisions of law generally applicable to Government corporations.

"(i) May purchase, lease, or otherwise acquire, and hold, own, maintain, work, develop, sell, lease, exchange, convey, mortgage, or otherwise dispose of, and deal in, lands, leaseholds, and any interest, estate, or rights in real property, and any personal or mixed property, and any franchises, concessions, rights, licenses, or privileges necessary or appropriate for any of the purposes expressed in this article.

"249. Specific powers of corporation: Subject to the provisions of the Government Corporation Control Act, the corporation shall have and may exercise the following specific powers, in addition to those elsewhere conferred in this article:

"(a) May construct, maintain, and operate a railroad across the Isthmus of Panama.

"(b) May construct or acquire vessels, and operate the same for transportation of passengers or freight and for other purposes

"(c) May construct or acquire, establish, maintain, and operate docks, wharves, piers, harbor terminal facilities, shops, yards, rine railways, salvage and towing facilities, fuel-handling facilities, motor-transporta-tion facilities, power systems, water systems, a telephone system, construction facilities, living quarters and other buildings, ware houses, storehouses, hotels, a printing plant, commissaries and manufacturing, processing or service facilities in connection therewith, laundries, dairy facilities, restaurants, amuse ment and recreational facilities, and other business enterprises, facilities, and appurtenances necessary or appropriate for the accomplishment of the purposes of this article.

"(d) May make or furnish sales, services, supplies, and materials, as conequipment, templated by this article, to vessels, to agencies of the Government of the United States, to employees of the Government of the United States, and to any other governments, agencies, persons, corporations, or associations eligible to make or receive such purchases, services, supplies, or materials under the laws prevailing at the time and the policies heretofore or hereafter adopted consistently with such laws

"(e) May use the United States mails in the same manner and under the same conditions as the executive departments of the Federal Government.

"(f) May take such actions as may be necessary or appropriate to carry out the powers in this article or hereafter specifically con-ferred upon it: Provided, That the corporation shall undertake no new types of activities not included in the annual budget program prescribed by section 102 of the Gov-ernment Corporation Control Act (except those which may be transferred to it under the provisions of section 246 (b) of this title): And provided further, That in the event an emergency is declared to exist by the board of directors during a period when the Congress is not in session (or by the Governor of the Panama Canal, acting in his capacity as president of the corporation, with the concurrence of as many of the directors as may be consulted without loss of time unreasonable in the circumstances), recommended appropriate action within the scope of this article may be undertaken. A report on such emergency activity shall be presented promptly to the Congress, when it reconvenes, for its approval and such action as it may deem necessary or desirable with respect to reimbursement through supplemental appropriation of funds to cover costs or losses arising from such emergency.

"250. Subjection of corporation to laws applicable to New York company: The corporation shall, so far as consistent with the terms of this article, be deemed subject to all provisions in treaties and in acts of the Congress of the United States, now in force, which relate or apply to the New York company; and shall have all the rights, privileges, and exemptions, and be subject to all the obligations, liabilities, and responsibilities applicable to the New York company under or by virtue of such provisions.

"251. Taking over of assets and liabilities of, and dissolution of, New York company; release of United States treaty rights in assets: The corporation is authorized and directed to take over the assets and assume the liabilities of the New York company as of July 1, 1948. To accomplish the transfer of such assets to, and the assumption of such liabilities by, the corporation, and to accom-plish the dissolution of the New York company, the two corporations are authorized and directed to take, under the supervision of the stockholders, whatever action shall be determined to be appropriate and necessary, whether by agreement, transfer, merger, consolidation, dissolution, or otherwise. tive upon the transfer of such assets and the assumption of such liabilities, there are hereby released and transferred to the corporation all the right, title, and interest, in and to such assets, which the United States now has or may hereafter acquire by virtue of the convention of November 18, 1903, between the United States and the Republic of Panama; and, specifically, there are hereby released to the corporation any and all reversionary rights of the United States in the lands of the corporation located in the cities of Panama and Colon, Republic of Panama.

"252. Reimbursement of other agencies: The corporation shall reimburse the Civil Service and Canal Zone Retirement and Disability Funds for Government contributions to the retirement fund applicable to the corporation's employees, and the Employees' Compensation Fund, Bureau of Employees' Compensation, Federal Security Agency, for the benefit payments made to the corporation's employees, and shall also reimburse other Government agencies for any payments of a similar nature made on its behalf.

"253. Payment of excess funds into the Treasury: The board of directors shall have the power and duty to appraise, at least annually, its necessary working capital requirements, together with reasonable foreseeable requirements for authorized plant replacement and expansion, and to pay into the Treasury as dividends the amount of funds in excess thereof. Such dividends shall be treated by the Treasury as miscellaneous receipts, but shall be treated on the books of the corporation as applicable to reduction of past or future direct Government capital contributions (as provided in section 246 (d) of this title) in determining the base for interest payments required under section 246 (c).

"254. Emergency fund: The corporation may borrow from a fund to be established and maintained in the Treasury, for any authorized purposes of the corporation, but for limited periods only, sums of money not to exceed a total of $10,000,000 outstanding at any one time. The fund shall be established by the deposit by the New York com-pany with the Treasury on or before June 30, 1948, of the sum of $10,000,000 from the invested depreciation reserve funds presently maintained by the New York company, which amount, less any amounts borrowed therefrom by the corporation from time to time, shall be maintained by the Treasury as a separate fund. Amounts borrowed from from said fund shall be paid over to the corporation by the Secretary of the Treasury, and repayments thereof shall be redeposited in said fund and will be available for sub-sequent loans. Loans to the corporation from this fund shall not bear interest.

"255. Amendment or repeal: The right to alter, amend, or repeal this article is expressly reserved.

"256. Separability clause: If any provision of this article, or the application of such provision to any person or circumstances, is held invalid, the remainder of this article and the application of such provision to other persons and circumstances shall not be affected thereby.'

The bill was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed, and a motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

The bill was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed, and a motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

MAMMOTH CAVE NATIONAL PARK

Mr. BARRETT. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to take from the Speaker's table the bill (H. R. 2096) to amend section 11 of the act approved June 5, 1942 (56 Stat. 317) relating to Mammoth Cave National Park in the State of Kentucky, and for other purposes, with a Senate amendment thereto, and concur in the Senate amendment.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The Clerk read the Senate amendment, as follows:

Page 2, line 9, after "receipts" insert ": Provided, That no part of this authorization shall be used for road development or construction until after all the lands within the maximum boundaries, as authorized by the act of May 25, 1926 (44 Stat. 635), have been acquired by purchase, condemnation or otherwise."

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Wyoming?

There was no objection.

Mr. CHELF. Mr. Speaker, the total cost of the Mammoth Cave area was $2,600,000, which was raised through the medium of State and Federal funds, which included $800,000 contributed from a voluntary Mammoth Cave National Park Association with a membership of some 17,000 loyal Kentuckians.

In order to acquire the present acreage of some 50,000, it was necessary to buy out and to move over 600 families. Mammoth Cave was known for its scenic beauty and had attracted thousands of tourists for more than 50 years before the State of Wyoming came forth with the report of its now famous Yellowstone National Park.

I believe that the late Irvin S. Cobb has described this magnificent natural beauty far better than anyone when he stated that the cave was "an open mouth to proclaim the glories of Kentucky and an open door to her hospitality." It was said at the dedication ceremony at which the State transferred the park to the Federal Government:

Kentucky does not part with Mammoth Cave; it merely transfers to the custody of the Nation a great national asset for the perpetual use of a great and generous people.

In the acquisition and purchase of this vast acreage of surface land, the additional rights to the cave's and cavern's minerals, gas, oil, timber, and limestone were also acquired. In the acceptance speech at the dedication on September 17, 1946, Secretary of the Interior Krug said:

Public interest has always, and naturally, been focused on the underground here. Yet this park has those things above ground which contribute much to the enjoyment of visitors. So far as I know, no other park can boast of two navigable rivers—and these are rivers of loveliness and charm. I hope to see developed here better means by which the traveler may become acquainted with what they have to offer.

H. R. 2096 provides for the authorization of an appropriation not to exceed $350,000 to acquire additional adjoining lands and interest in adjoining lands which are so vitally necessary for the full and complete development of the Mammoth Cave National Park. At the present time, there are several caves individually owned which are not only contiguous to the boundary of Mammoth Cave National Park, but in some instances, are completely bounded by the present park area. For instance, there is one cave known as the Great Onyx Cave located under a tract of land which is entirely surrounded by the Mammoth Cave Park and, at the present time, the owners of this and other privately owned caves are placed in the unfortunate and unhappy position, as taxpayers, of competing against the United States Government which pays no taxes.

The purchase of these additional caves which are contiguous to the Mammoth Cave Park itself would most certainly enhance the value, prestige, and scenic beauty of the Mammoth Cave National Park. The additional revenues from these caves would add considerably to the revenue now derived by the Mammoth Cave Park from the tourist trade. It is estimated that the total receipts from these privately owned caves, within less than a period of 10 years, will be more than enough to repay to the Federal Treasury the sum authorized in this appropriation.

As my good friend and former colleague from the Second District of Kentucky, the Honorable Earle C. Clements, who is now the Governor of Kentucky, has said:

The entrance is in FRANK's district—but I have the cave over in the Second District.

Mr. Speaker, I am not interested in the proper development and expansion of Mammoth Cave National Park simply because the entrance lies within the boundary of the Fourth Congressional District, which I have the honor to represent in Congress, but I am interested in its growth and development because it will mean so much to all native Kentuckians and citizens throughout the Nation and the world.

For these reasons I urge the passage of this legislation.

Mr. WHITAKER. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to extend my remarks at this point in the RECORD.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Kentucky.

There was no objection.

Mr. WHITAKER. Mr. Speaker, H. R. 2096, as amended and passed by the Senate, revises this bill and brings it into line with the original form in which it was introduced by my distinguished predecessor, the Honorable Earle C. Clements, presently Governor of the Commonwealth of Kentucky; this bill is now in the form that it should be and the Senate amendment thereto has my hearty endorsement and approval.

The purpose of this legislation is to enable the National Park Service to acquire additional cave lands in the present area of the Mammoth Cave National Park, which will not only add to the value and increase the revenues of this national park but contribute to the more orderly, efficient, and harmonious operation of this entire cave area. As the House report on H. R. 2096 explains, under existing conditions an unsatisfactory situation exists, in that the Mammoth Cave National Park is contiguous to and in some instances completely surrounds privately owned caves. Out of this situation has developed confusion and even a competitive spirit which, obviously, is not in the interests of the public or the National Park Service. The enactment of H. R. 2096 will correct this situation.

Mammoth Cave was discovered in 1799-hundreds of thousands of people have visited this marvel of nature's work and countless thousands of people will continue to visit it; while some of you may not as yet have afforded yourselves the opportunity and pleasure of seeing it, all of us are familiar with itin fact, long before the discovery and development of many of our other great national parks and playgrounds, Mam-moth Cave was listed among the "Seven Wonders of the World." Because it is one of America's great natural marvelsone of our national treasures-we all share in it and all of us are interested in its development, progress and welfare.

The Senate amendment was concurred

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

ELIZABETH PICKERING WINN

Mr. BOGGS of Delaware. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent for the immediate consideration of the bill (S. 83) authorizing the naturalization of Elizabeth Pickering Winn.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Delaware?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That, notwithstanding any other provision of law, at any time within 1 year after the date of enactment of this act, Elizabeth Pickering Winn may be naturalized as a citizen of the United States by taking the naturalization oath of allegiance before any court having jurisdiction of the naturalization of allens, or by taking such oath before any diplomatic or consular office of the United States abroad.

The bill was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed, and a motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

MRS. ANNA V. REYER ET AL.

Mr. BOGGS of Delaware. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to take from the Speaker's desk the bill (S. 1730) for the relief of Mrs. Anna V. Reyer, Alexander A. Reyer, and Vitaly A. Reyer, and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Delaware?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That, in the administration of the immigration and naturalization laws, Mrs. Anna V. Reyer, who was admitted into the United States on a visitor's visa, and her two sons, Alexander A. Reyer and Vitaly A. Reyer, who were admitted into the United States on student visas, shall be deemed to have been lawfully admitted into the United States for permanent residence as of the date of their last entries.

SEC. 2. Upon enactment of this act, the Secretary of State is authorized and directed to instruct the proper quota-control officer to deduct one number from the nonpreference category of the first available quota for nationals of the Soviet Union and two numbers from the nonpreference category of the first available quota for nationals of China

The bill was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed, and a motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

ARMED SERVICES

Mr. COLE of New York. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to take from the Speaker's desk the bill (H. R. 6039) to authorize the permanent appointment in the Regular Army of one officer in the grade of general and to authorize the permanent appointment in the Regular Air Force of one officer in the grade of general, and for other purposes, with a Senate amendment thereto, and concur in the Senate amendment.

The Clerk read the title of the bill. The Clerk read the Senate amendment as follows:

Page 2, line 10, after "1946", insert "The President is further authorized, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, to appoint in the Regular Navy one officer in the permanent grade of admiral from among any officers on the active list of the Regular Navy who served in the temporary grade of admiral from February 4, 1944, to the present date, and commanded a major combatant unit of the United States Fleet in the Pacific Theater of Operations during all or any part of the Second World War."

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New York?

Mr. RICH. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, I would like to know the purpose of making these appointments.

Mr. COLE of New York. Mr. Speaker, this bill as passed by the House provides for the appointment in the Army of one general of permanent rank and in the Air Force of a general of permanent rank. It was amended in the Senate to provide for the promotion of one admiral to permanent rank. My request is to concur in the Senate amendment, so that the bill when passed will authorize the appointment of one permanent general in the Army, one permanent general in the Air Force, and one permanent admiral of the Navy. The individuals affected by the bill are General Spaatz, General Bradley, and Admiral Spruance.

Mr. RICH. Is this going to add to the high-ranking officials of our Government additional officers?

Mr. COLE of New York. All of these men within a few days will be in retirement. As a matter of fact, one of them already is in retirement.

Mr. RICH. As I understand it, in the last 3 or 4 years, you have been increasing the rank of so many people in the Army and the Navy that it has become quite a burden on the taxpayers of this country.

Mr. COLE of New York. On the contrary, I can assure the gentleman that it has been the determined effort of the Committee on Armed Services to hold down the advancement of and appointment of top-ranking generals. In fact, we wrote a provision of limitation in the promotion bill adopted by the Congress last year designed to effect that very objective.

Mr. RICH. I understand that if the bill which was before the House yesterday on conscription is not passed, that a great many generals and admirals who are now in the Navy will have to be demoted because they do not have a sufficient number of men to keep these ranks. Is that an accurate statement?

Mr. COLE of New York. I cannot advise the gentleman of the effect of the selective-service bill upon the retention or promotion of individuals to the rank of general. However, I can assure the gentleman that the promotion or retention of individuals to the rank of general and admiral was not considered as one of the purposes of the Selective Service Act.

Mr. RICH. Is there such a motive behind the high-ranking officials of the Army and Navy that if they do not keep a great large Army they will not be permitted to keep their rank?

Mr. COLE of New York. All I can say in reply to the gentleman is that so far as I have observed, I have seen no indication of that as being their motive. Mr. RICH. Mr. Speaker, I withdraw my reservation of objection.

Mr. BRADLEY. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, I should like to compliment the committee highly upon their fairness in dealing with this bill. Does this extend the same privilege to Admiral Spruance as to the generals involved?

Mr. COLE of New York. The gentleman is correct.

Mr. BRADLEY. Mr. Speaker, I withdraw my reservation of objection.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New York?

There was no objection.

TO AMEND THE CIVIL SERVICE RETIRE-MENT ACT

Mr. REES. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to take from the Speaker's table the bill (H. R. 6641) entitled "An act to amend the Civil Service Retirement Act of May 29, 1930, to provide annuities for certain surviving spouses of annuitants retired prior to April 1, 1948," with a Senate amendment, and concur in the Senate amendment.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The Clerk read the Senate amendment, as follows:

Strike out all after the enacting clause and insert "That section 8 of the Civil Service Retirement Act of May 29, 1930, as amended, is amended by inserting after the first sentence thereof a new sentence as follows: 'Any such annuitant who died during the period beginning on February 29, 1948, and ending on April 30, 1948, leaving a surviving wife or husband, shall be deemed to have made the election authorized in the foregoing proviso and to have named such wife or husband to receive an annuity as provided in such proviso, but no such annuity shall become due or payable to such wife or husband prior to April 1, 1948.'"

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Kansas [Mr. Rees]?

There was no objection.

The Senate amendment was agreed to.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

CONTESTED ELECTION—WILSON AGAINST GRANGER

Mr. LECOMPTE. Mr. Speaker, I desire to call up House Resolution 692 and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the resolution, as follows:

Resolved, That the election contest of David J. Wilson, contestant, against Walter K. Granger, contestee, First Congressional District of Utah, be dismissed, and that the said Walter K. Granger is entitled to his seat as a Representative of said district and State.

Mr. Lecompte. Mr. Speaker, the committee has reached a conclusion on a very difficult contest; and in behalf of the committee I want to say that every member of the committee approached this contest in a judicial frame of mind, and throughout the hearing of evidence, arguments, and deliberations that attitude and frame of mind was maintained.

The conclusion represented by this resolution is an honest, sincere, and, I think, judicial decision of this difficult matter. All angles and all phases and incidents were considered. It is true this is not a unanimous conclusion, but it is a carefully considered decision, and the members of the committee did what seemed to be right and correct in the premises. There were irregularities in connection with the election beyond doubt, and these were weighed. The majority believes that this resolution represents the correct conclusion.

Mr. Speaker, no one has asked to be heard, and I move the previous question. The previous question was ordered.

The SPEAKER. The question is on agreeing to the resolution.

The resolution was agreed to.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

FARMERS' HOME ADMINISTRATION ACT

Mr. HOPE. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to take from the Speaker's table the bill (H. R. 4856) entitled "An act to delay the liquidation of mineral interests reserved to the United States as required by the Farmers' Home Administration Act of 1946, and for other purposes," with a Senate amendment, and concur in the Senate amendment.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The Clerk read the Senate amendment. as follows:

Line 9, after "law.", insert "Nothing contained in this act shall be construed to supersede or modify in any way the provisions of section 9 of the Farmers' Home Adminis-tration Act of 1946."

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Kansas [Mr. HOPE]?

There was no objection.

The Senate amendment was agreed to. A motion to reconsider was laid on the

RESCINDING CITATION FOR CONTEMPT AGAINST JOSEPH P. KAMP

Mr. CHURCH. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent for the immediate consideration of the resolution (H. Res. 495) to rescind the citation for contempt against Joseph P. Kamp, vice chairman of the Constitutional Educational League, Inc.

The Clerk read the resolution, as fol-

Resolved, That the citation heretofore voted by the Special Committee to Investigate Campaign Expenditures, 1944, Seventy-eighth Congress, second session, for contempt against Joseph P. Kamp, vice chairman of the Constitutional Educational League, Inc., be, and the same hereby is, rescinded for the following reasons:

1. Said citation was not the legal act of the said committee for the reason that information necessary to said committee and to each member thereof for their consideration was withheld from them.

Certain of said withheld and necessary information was improperly deleted from the official printed record of the hearings without the knowledge of any member of said committee and, therefore, was not available to the members of the said committee at the time they considered the matter and took action resulting in voting a citation for con-

Certain of other withheld and necessary information was denied to some members of said committee who were refused answers to specific questions about information available to other members of the commit-tee. Some of this same withheld and necessary information was deliberately kept from the knowledge and consideration of a majority of the members of the said committee.

2. Said citation was not the legal act of the said committee for the reason that exhibits in evidence before the committee and necessary to said committee and to each member thereof for their consideration was withheld from them.

The said withheld necessary exhibits were illegally removed from the committee's files prior to the consideration of the matter by the committee and were not available to the members of the committee at the time they took final action resulting in voting a citation for contempt.

3. The said citation resulted in the indictment of the said Joseph P. Kamp, who was tried for criminal contempt of the Congress in the District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia in December 1946.

On behalf of the defense, the court issued a subpena for one of the said withheld exhibits. Because the said withheld exhibit was not available in the files of the Clerk of the House of Representatives, where it legally belonged, having been removed without the knowledge of the committee or by the authority of the House, the defendant, the said Joseph P. Kamp, was prevented from presenting a full defense and therefore was denied a fair trial.

4. The said Joseph P. Kamp is again to be tried under the said indictment which resulted from the said illegal act of the said committee. The said withheld exhibit, together with the other committee exhibits, were delivered to a representative of the American branch of an international propaganda movement, and the former chairman of the said committee has unsuccessfully attempted to have the said withheld exhibits returned to the Clerk of the House of Representatives and has written to the said Joseph P. Kamp. * * "We have made another effort to secure the memorandum you desire. We have not been able to get it." Therefore, the said withheld exhibit will again be unavailable and the said Joseph Kamp will again be unable to subpena this evidence in his behalf and will therefore again be denied his constitutional right to a fair trial.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the present consideration of the resolution?

Mr. EBERHARTER and Mr. KLEIN objected.

REVENUE REVISION ACT OF 1948

Mr. KNUTSON. Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and pass the bill (H. R. 6712) to provide for revenue revision, to correct tax inequalities, and for other purposes, with committee amend-

Mr. EBERHARTER. Mr. Speaker, a parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. EBERHARTER. I notice the motion stated "permission to offer amendments." Am I correct?

The SPEAKER. The gentleman misheard the request. The request was to suspend the rules and pass the bill with committee amendments.

Mr. EBERHARTER. Does that allow those who oppose the amendments 5 minutes on each amendment?

The SPEAKER. The rule provides for 20 minutes on each side. That is, the Republican side will have 20 minutes and the gentleman from North Carolina [Mr. Doughton], who will demand a second, will have 20 minutes.

Mr. EBERHARTER. Mr. Speaker, the only amendments that may be considered then are those that the committee acted upon?

The SPEAKER. The gentleman is correct. The Clerk will report the bill. The Clerk read as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That (a) Short Title: This act, divided into titles and sections according to the following table of contents, may be cited as the "Revenue Revision Act of 1948":

TITLE I-INCOME TAXES

SEC. 101. Taxable years to which amendments applicable.

Except as otherwise expressly provided, the amendments made by this title shall be applicable only with respect to taxable years beginning after December 31, 1947.

SEC. 102. Definition of corporation surtax net income.

(a) The first sentence of section 15 (a) (relating to corporation surtax net income) is hereby amended to read as follows: the purposes of this chapter, the term 'corporation surtax net income' means the net income minus the credit for dividends re-ceived provided in section 26 (b) (computed by limiting such credit to 85 percent of the net income in lieu of 85 percent of the adjusted net income) and minus, in the case of a public utility, the credit for dividends paid on its preferred stock provided in section 26 (h)."

(b) Effective date: The amendment made by this section shall be effective as if it were made by section 122 (g) of the Revenue Act of 1945

SEC. 103. Dividends on preferred stock of public utilities.

(a) Surtax on corporations: The second sentence of section 15 (a) (relating to corporation surtax net income) is hereby amended to read as follows: "For the purposes of this subsection dividends received on the preferred stock of a public utility with respect to which the credit provided in section 26 (h) is allowed shall be disregarded in computing the credit for dividends re-ceived provided in section 26 (b)."

(b) Effective date: The amendment made this section shall be effective as if it were made by section 116 of the Revenue Act of

SEC. 104. Life insurance, annuities, etc.

(a) Paragraphs (1) and (2) of section 22 b) (relating to exclusions from gross income) are hereby amended to read as fol-

"(1) Proceeds of life insurance:
"(A) Amounts received under a life insurance contract paid by reason of the death of the insured, whether in a single sum or otherwise (but if such amounts are held by the insurer under an agreement to pay interest thereon, the interest payments shall be included in gross income);

"(B) Transfers: In the case of a transfer for a valuable consideration, by assignment or otherwise, of a life insurance contract, or any interest therein, only the portion of the amounts received thereunder equal to the aggregate of the value of such consideration and the amount of the premiums and other sums subsequently paid by the trans-feree shall be exempt from taxation under paragraph. This subparagraph shall not apply in the case of such a transfer if such contract or interest therein has a basis for determining gain or loss in the hands of a transferee determined in whole or in part by reference to such basis of such contract or interest therein in the hands of the transferor.

"(C) Life insurance in discharge of all-mony: This paragraph shall not apply with respect to so much of a payment under a life insurance contract, or any interest there-in, as, under section 22 (k), is includible in gross income

"(2) Annuities, etc.:
"(A) Amounts other than annuity pay"(A) Amounts received (other than amounts excludible from gross income un-der paragraph (1) (A) of this subsection and other than amounts includible in gross income under subparagraphs (B) and (C) of this paragraph) under an annuity, endowment, or life insurance contract, but if such amounts (when added to amounts received before the taxable year under such contract and excluded from gross income) exceed the aggregate premiums or consideration paid for such contract (whether or not paid during the taxable year) then the s shall be included in gross income

"(B) Amounts received as an annuity: There shall be included in gross income all amounts received as an annuity, whether for a period certain or during one or more lives, under an annuity contract or under an en-dowment or life insurance contract payable other than by reason of death, and all additional amounts received under such tract on or after the date on which the first annuity payment is received; except that there shall be excluded from gross income an amount equal to the same proportion of the amounts received as an annuity during the taxable year under such contract which the total consideration paid for such contract bears to the aggregate of the amounts receivable as an annuity under such contract.

"(C) Employees' annuities:

"(1) If any annuity contract is purchased by an employer for an employee under a plan with respect to which the employer's contribution is deductible under section 23 (p) (1) (B), or if an annuity contract is purchased for an employee by an employer exempt under section 101 (6), or if an employer enters into an employee retirement benefit contract with an employee, the employee shall include inhis income the amounts received under such contract for the year received; except that if the employee paid any of the consideration for such contract, amounts received as an annuity under such contract shall be included in his income as provided in subparagraph (B) of this paragraph; and except that in the case of amounts received under a contract with respect to which the employer's contribution is deductible under section 23 (p) (1) (B), if the total distributions payable with respect to the employee are paid to the distributee within one taxable year of the distributee on account of the employee's separation from the service, the amount of such distribution to the extent exceeding the consideration paid by the employee, shall be considered a gain from the sale or exchange of a capital asset held for more than months.

"(ii) If an annuity contract (other than a contract described in clause (i) of this subparagraph) is purchased by an employer for an employee and if the employee's rights under the contract are nonforfeitable except for failure to pay future premiums, the amount contributed by the employer for such annuity contract on or after such rights become nonforfeitable shall be included in the income of the employee in the year in which the amount is contributed, and amounts received as an annuity under such contract shall be included in the income of such employee as provided in subparagraph (B) of this paragraph: Provided, however, That amounts contributed by an employer to a That trust (other than a trust, which on May 25, 1948, met the requirements of section 165 (a)) to be applied by the trustee for the purchase of annuity contracts for the benefit of an employee of said employer shall not be included in the income of the employee in the year in which the amount is contributed if the amount is contributed to the trustee pursuant to a written agreement entered into prior to October 21, 1942, between the employer and the trustee, or between the employer and the employee, and if under the terms of the trust agreement the employee is not entitled, except with the consent of the trustee, during his lifetime to any payments under annuity contracts purchased by the trustee other than annuity payments.

"(D) Annuities in discharge of alimony:

Subparagraph (B) shall not apply with respect to so much of a payment under a life insurance, endowment, or annuity contract, or any interest therein, as, under section 22 (k), is includible in gross income.

"(E) Annuities having a refund feature: Where an annuity contract contains a provision giving the estate or beneficiary of a deceased annuitant the right to a refund in respect of the consideration paid, the following special rules shall apply:

"(1) the refund received by the estate or beneficiary of the annuitant shall be included in gross income only to the extent that it, plus any amounts received by the annuitant prior to his death, exceeds the total consideration paid; "(ii) where the entire consideration for an annuity contract is paid by the annuitant or annuitants, the amount of the 'total consideration paid for such contract', as defined in subparagraph (F) (1), shall be further re-duced by the value of any payments to be made to a beneficiary or the estate of an annuitant upon or after the death of the annuitant or annuitants which are in the nature of a return of the consideration;

"(iii) for the purposes of this paragraph, the term 'refund in respect of the consideration paid' shall include amounts paid after the death of an annuitant by reason of a provision in the contract for an annuity cer-

"(F) Definitions: For the purposes of this paragraph-

"(1) the term 'total consideration paid for such contract' means the aggregate consideration paid reduced by any amounts received prior to January 1, 1948, under such contract or prior to the date on which the first annuity payment under such contract is receivable, whichever is later, and excluded from gross income; and, in the case of an annuity contract referred to in subparagraph (C) (i) or in the proviso in subparagraph (C) (ii), the portion of the consideration contributed by the employee reduced by any amounts re ceived prior to January 1, 1948, under such contract and excluded from gross income; and, in the case of an annuity contract referred to in subparagraph (C) (ii) (but not in the proviso thereof), the aggregate of the portion of the consideration contributed by the employer on or after the employee's rights under such contract become nonforfeitable except for failure to pay premiums and the portion thereof contributed by the employee, reduced by any amounts received prior to January 1, 1948, under such contract and excluded from gross income; and, in the case of a transfer for a valuable considera tion, by assignment or otherwise, of a life insurance, endowment, or annuity contract, or any interest therein, if such contract or interest does not have a basis for determining gain or loss in the hands of a transferee determined in whole or in part by reference to such basis of such contract or interest in the hands of the transferor, the aggregate of the value of the consideration paid for such contract and the amount of the premiums and other sums subsequently paid by the transferee, reduced by any amounts received prior to January 1, 1948, under such contract and excluded from gross income:

(ii) the term 'aggregate of the amounts receivable as an annuity under such contract' includes, in the case of a contract providing for annuity payments during one or more lives, the sum of the amounts receivable as an annuity under an annuity, endowment or life-insurance contract during the period of normal expectation of life of the person or persons whose life or lives were involved in determining the cost of such contract, computed as of the date on which the first annuity payment under such contract was receivable or January 1, 1948, whichever is later, in accordance with mortality tables under regulations prescribed by the Commissioner with the approval of the Secretary, except that if such contract was transferred but does not have a basis as provided in clause (i), such period of normal expectation of life shall be computed as of the date on which the first annuity payment after the transfer was receivable by the transferee.

"(G) Definition of employee retirement benefit contract: For the purposes of sub-paragraph (C) of this paragraph, the term employee retirement benefit contract' means a bona fide contract between an employer and his employee under which the employer agrees to pay to the employee a specified amount, annually or at more frequent intervals, for the period beginning with the date of retirement of such employee from the service of such employer and ending with the date of death of such employee, if-

"(i) the rights of the employee to receive ayments under such contract are to be forfeited in the event of his separation from such service prior to such date of retirement,

"(ii) no life insurance, endowment or an-nuity contract is at any time purchased or acquired by such employer for the purpose of providing, directly or indirectly, for the pay-ments to be made under such contract,

"(iii) such employee does not, at any time during such employment, own stock posses-sing more than 10 percent of the total combined voting power of all classes of stock of the employer corporation or of a parent corporation. For the purposes of this clause such individual shall be considered as owning the stock owned, directly or indirectly, by or for his brothers and sisters (whether by the whole or half blood), spouse, ancestors, and lineal descendants; and stock owned, directly or indirectly, by or for a corporation, partner-ship, estate, or trust, shall be considered as being owned proportionately by or for its shareholders, partners, or beneficiaries,

(iv) the date of retirement under such contract will in no event occur before such employee attains the age of 65, except in the case of his total and permanent disability,

(v) in any case where such employee is an officer, director, or highly compensated employee of a corporation, the contract has been approved or ratified at a duly consti-tuted meeting of the stockholders of the employer corporation after reasonable notice to such stockholders of the proposed contract; except that such term shall not include any such contract which has as a principal purpose the prevention of the imposition of the surtax on such employee during any part of the period of such employment."

(b) Section 23 (relating to deductions from gross income) is hereby amended by adding at the end thereof the following new

"(bb) Employee retirement benefit contract: If amounts are paid by an employer to an employee under an employee retirement benefit contract as defined in section 22 (b) (2) (G), such payments shall be deductible only in the taxable year when paid by the employer without regard to the method of accounting used by the taxpayer."

SEC. 105. Certain employees' annuities.

(a) In the case of taxable years beginning after December 31, 1938, and prior to January 1, 1948, amounts contributed by an employer to a trust to be applied by the trustee for the purchase of an annuity contract described in the second sentence of section 22 (b) (2) (B) of the Internal Revenue Code (prior to its amendment by this Act) for the benefit of an employee of such employer shall not be included, notwithstanding any provision of the Internal Revenue Code, in the income of the employee in the year in which the amount is contributed if-

(1) the amount is contributed to the trustee pursuant to a written agreement entered into prior to October 21, 1942, between the employer and the trustee, or between the employer and the employee; and

(2) under the terms of the trust agreement the employee is not entitled, except with the consent of the trustee, during his lifetime to any payments under annuity contracts purchased by the trustee other than annuity payments.

Such amounts contributed by the employer shall not constitute consideration paid by the employee for such annuity contract in determining the amount of annuity pay-ments required to be included in his gross income under section 22 (b) (2) of such code, unless the tax under chapter 1 of such code has been paid by the employee with respect to such amounts and not credited or refunded.

(b) No interest shall be allowed or paid on any overpayment, or assessed on any de-ficiency, resulting from the application of this section.

SEC. 106. Restriction on exclusion of certain compensation for disability.

Section 22 (b) (5) (relating to compensation for injuries or sickness) is hereby amended to read as follows:

"(5) Compensation for injuries or sick-

"(A) Except in the case of amounts attributable to (and not in excess of) deductions allowed under section 23 (x) in any prior taxable year, amounts received, through accident or health insurance or under workmen's compensation acts, as compensation for personal injuries or sickness, plus the amount of any damages received whether by suit or agreement on account of such injuries or sickness; and

"(B) Amounts received as a pension, annuity, or similar allowance for personal injuries or sickness resulting from active service in the armed forces of any country, except that if such amounts exceed $2,400 during the taxable year, and the taxpayer also receives during the same taxable year earned income, as defined in section 116 (a) (3), the exclusion under this subparagraph shall be reduced by the amount of such earned income, but not to an amount less than $2,400. The provisions of this subparagraph shall not affect amounts exempt from taxation under the act of August 12, 1935, entitled 'An act to safeguard the estates of veterans derived from payments of pension, compensation, emergency officers' retirement pay and insurance, and for other purposes' (49 Stat. 609; 38 U. S. C. 454a).

Sec. 107. Allowance for military and naval personnel.

(a) Section 22 (b) (13) (relating to excluslons from gross income) is hereby amended by striking out "January 1, 1949" wherever occurring therein, and inserting in lieu thereof "January 1, 1950."

(b) Section 10 (b) of the act of August 1947 (Public Law 384, 80th Cong.), entitled "An act to terminate certain tax provisions before the end of World War II" is hereby amended by striking out "January 1, 1949" and inserting in lieu there of "January 1, 1950."

SEC. 108. Last-in first-out inventory,

(a) Section 22 (d) (6) (A) (relating to the involuntary liquidation and replacement of elective inventories) is hereby amended

(1) By amending that portion thereof preceding clause (i) to read as follows:

"(A) Adjustment of net income and resulting tax: If, for any taxable year beginning after December 31, 1940, and prior to January 1, 1948, the closing inventory of a taxpayer inventorying goods under the method provided in this subsection reflects a decrease from the opening inventory of such goods for such year, and if the taxpayer elects, at such time and in such manner and subject to such regulations as the Commissioner with the approval of the Secretary may prescribe, to have the provisions of this paragraph apply, and if it is estab-lished to the satisfaction of the Commissioner, in accordance with such regulations, that such decrease is attributable to the involuntary liquidation of such inventory as defined in subparagraph (B), and if the closing inventory of a subsequent taxable year, ending prior to January 1, 1951, reflects a replacement, in whole or in part, of the goods so previously liquidated, the next income of the taxpayer otherwise determined for the year of such involuntary liquidation shall be adjusted as follows:".

(2) By amending the last sentence thereof to read as follows: "Any increase in such taxes resulting from such adjustments shall be assessed and collected as a deficiency with interest computed from January 1, 1948, or from the date prescribed by law for the payment of the tax for the year of replace-ment, whichever date is the later, and any overpayment so resulting shall be credited or refunded to the taxpayer with interest computed from January 1, 1948, or from the date of expiration of one year after the filing of a claim for credit or refund of such overpayment, whichever date is the later."

(b) The amendments made by this section shall be applicable with respect to taxable years beginning after December 31, 1940. SEC. 109. Tax treatment upon death of partner.

(a) Income tax treatment of surviving partners: Section 22 (b) (relating to exclusions from gross income) is hereby amended by adding at the end thereof a new paragraph to read as follows:

"(15) Exclusion of income after death of partner:

"(A) If, in accordance with an agreement between individuals carrying on business in partnership, a share of the net income from the business is paid, subsequent to the death of a partner, to the estate of the decedent or to any person who acquired from, or by reason of the death of, such decedent the right to receive such share, the amount so paid, except as provided in subparagraph (B) of this paragraph, shall not be included in the gross income of a surviving partner or in computing the distributive shares of surviving or successor partners under section

"(B) The provisions of subparagraph (A) of this paragraph shall not apply to any portion, as determined under regulations approval of the Secretary, of the amount paid in accordance with such an agreement which is paid on account of such decedent's interest in partnership property having a basis (unadjusted) for determining gain or loss on sale or exchange in the hands of the partnership prior to such death in excess of

(b) Income-tax treatment of decedent's estate, etc: So much of section 126 (a) (1) (relating to income in respect of decedents) as precedes subparagraph (A) thereof is hereby amended to read as follows:

"(1) General rule: The amount of all items of gross income in respect of a decedent which are not properly includible in respect of the taxable period in which falls the date of his death or a prior period, and all amounts paid in respect of a deceased partner to which section 22 (b) (15) (A) applies, shall be included in the gross income, for the taxable year when received, of:".

(c) Basis: Section 113 (a) (13) (relating to the basis of partnership property) is hereby amended to read as follows:

(13) Partnerships:

"(A) If the property was acquired, after February 28, 1913, by a partnership and the basis is not otherwise determined under any other provision of this subsection, then the basis shall be the same as it would be in the hands of the transferor, increased in the amount of gain or decreased in the amount of loss recognized to the transferor upon such transfer under the law applicable to the year in which the transfer was made. If the property was distributed in kind by a partnership to any partner, the basis of such property in the hands of the partner shall be such part of the basis in his hands of his partnership interest as is properly allocable to such property.

"(B) If any interest in partnership property with a basis (unadjusted) for determining gain or loss on sale or exchange of zero in the hands of the partnership prior to the death of a partner is acquired by a surviving partner or partnership making a payment under an agreement described in section 22 (b) (15) (A), and if any amount paid under such agreement on account of such interest is not includible under such section in the gross income of a surviving partner or in computing the distributive shares of surviving or successor partners under section 182 (c), the basis of such in-terest shall be zero."

SEC. 110. Expenses incurred by farmers for soil and water conservation.

(a) Section 23 (a) (1) is hereby amended adding at the end thereof the follow-

"(D) In the case of a taxpayer engaged in the business of farming, expenditures made for the purpose of soil and water conservation and the prevention of erosion of land used in farming shall be allowed as deductions under subparagraph (A). For the purposes of this subparagraph, the term 'exposes of this subparagraph, the term 'expenditures made for the purpose of soil and water conservation and the prevention of erosion' means expenditures for the treatment, moving, or cultivation of earth, including (but not limited to) leveling, grading, and terracing, contour furrowing, the contractive of discoverion changes and desirance. struction of diversion channels and drainage ditches, the control and protection of watercourses, outlets, and ponds, the planting and cultivation of cover and protective crops or windbreaks, the control of weeds and brush and other special or emergency cultivation and tillage; but such term does not include the purchase, construction, installation, or improvement of structures, appliances, and facilities made of masonry, concrete, tile, metal, or wood, such as tanks, reservoirs, pipes, conduits, canals, dams, wells, and pumps, which are subject to the allowance for depreciation provided in section 23 (1) For the purpose of this subparagraph, the term 'land used in farming' means land used (prior to the expenditure for conservation made by the taxpayer) by the taxpayer or his tenant or the predecessor owner or his tenant for the production of crops, fruits, and similar agricultural products or for the sustenance of livestock."

(b) Section 24 (a) (2) is hereby amended by inserting before the semicolon at the end thereof a comma and the following: "except, in the case of a taxpayer engaged in the business of farming, expenditures incurred for the purpose of soil and water conservation and the prevention of erosion within the meaning of section 23 (a) (1)

(c) Section 113 (b) (1) (A) is hereby amended by inserting after "other carrying charges" the following: ", or for expenditures described in section 23 (a) (1) (D),". SEC. 111. Reduction on account of worthless stock or securities in affiliated corporations.

Section 23 (g) (4) (B) (relating to worth-less stock in affiliated corporations) and section 23 (k) (5) (B) (relating to worthless securities in affiliated corporations) are hereby amended to read as follows:

"(B) either-

Section 23 (p) (1) (E) (relating to contributions of an employer to an employees' trust or annuity plan) is hereby amended by striking out "within 60 days after" and in-serting in lieu thereof "on or before the fifteenth day of the third month following". SEC. 115. Charitable contributions by corporations.

(a) Section 23 (q) (relating to charitable and other contributions) is hereby amended by adding at the end thereof the following:

"In the case of a corporation whose net income is reported on the accrual basis, con-tributions or gifts payment of which is made on or before the fifteenth day of the third month following the close of a taxable year shall, at the election of the taxpayer, be considered as paid during such taxable year and not during the succeeding taxable year. Such election shall be made at such time and in such manner as is provided under regula-tions prescribed by the Commissioner with the approval of the Secretary.

(b) The amendment made by this section shall be applicable with respect to taxable years beginning after December 31, 1942. If the taxpayer elects the benefits of the amendment made by this section for any taxable year beginning before January 1, 1948, such election shall not be allowed unless the taxpayer, in accordance with reg-ulations prescribed by the Commissioner with the approval of the Secretary, consents in writing to the assessment (within such period as may be agreed upon) of any deficiency, to the extent resulting from such election, for any other taxable year of the taxpayer, even though on the date of the filing of such consent such assessment is otherwise prevented by the operation of any law or rule of law.

SEC. 116. Change of election with respect to standard deduction.

(a) Subparagraphs (A) and (B) of section 23 (aa) (3) (relating to optional standard deduction for individuals) are hereby amended by striking out the word "only"; and subparagraph (C) of section 23 (aa) (3) is hereby amended to read as follows:

"(C) If the taxpayer upon making his return fails to signify, in the manner provided by subparagraph (A) or (B), his election to take the standard deduction, such failure shall be considered his election not to take the standard deduction."

(b) Section 23 (aa) is further amended by adding at the end thereof the following new paragraph:

"(7) Change of election: Under regulations prescribed by the Commissioner with the approval of the Secretary, a change of election with respect to the standard deduction for any taxable year may be made after the filing of the return for such year. If the spouse of the taxpayer filed a separate return for any taxable year corresponding, for the purposes of paragraph (4), to the taxable year of the taxpayer, the change shall not be allowed unless, in accordance with such regulations-

"(A) the spouse makes a change of election with respect to the standard deduction for the taxable year covered in such separate return, consistent with the change of elec-tion sought by the taxpayer, and

"(B) the taxpayer and his spouse consent in writing to the assessment, within such period as may be agreed upon with the Commission, of any deficiency, attributable such change of election, even though at the time of the filing of such consent the assessment of such deficiency would otherwise be prevented by the operation of any law or rule of law.

SEC. 117. Disallowance of deduction for wearing apparel.

Section 24 (a) (relating to items not deductible) is hereby amended by striking out the word "or" at the end of paragraph (6) thereof, by striking out the period at the end of paragraph (7) and inserting in lieu thereof a semicolon, and by adding after paragraph (7) a new paragraph to read as follows:

(8) Any amount otherwise allowable as a deduction under section 23 (a) or (1) with respect to wearing apparel (including uniforms and work clothes), but this paragraph shall not prevent the allowance of a deduction to an employer with respect to such apparel furnished to an employee; or."

SEC. 118. Wages paid to dependents.

(a) Section 24 (a) (relating to items not deductible) is hereby amended by adding at the end thereof the following new para-

"(9) Any amount paid or accrued as salary or other compensation for personal services rendered by any individual with respect to whom a credit is allowed to the taxpayer by section 25 (b) (1) (D) for the taxable year

(b) (1) (d) for the taxable year in which such amount is paid or accrued."
(b) Section 25 (b) (1) (D) (relating to credits for dependents) is hereby amended by striking out "$500" and inserting in lieu thereof "$600."

SEC. 119. Items not deductible in the case of related taxpayers.

Section 24 (c) (relating to unpaid expenses and interest) is hereby amended to read as follows:

"(c) Unpaid expenses and interest: In computing net income no deduction shall be allowed under section 23 (a), relating to expenses incurred, or under section 23 (b), relating to interest accrued-

"(1) if, at the close of the taxable year of the taxpayer or at any time on or before the fifteenth day of the third month following the close of such taxable year, both the taxpayer and the person to whom the payment is to be made are persons between whom losses would be disallowed under section 24 (b); and

"(2) if, by reason of the method of ac-counting of the person to whom the payment is to be made, the amount thereof does not become includible in the gross income of such person during the period ending on or before the fifteenth day of the third month following the close of the taxable year of the taxpayer."

SEC. 120. Dividends received credit.

Section 26 (b) (relating to dividends re-ceived credits of corporations) is hereby amended to read as follows:

"(b) Dividends received: 85 percent of the amount received as dividends

"(1) from a domestic corporation which is subject to taxation under this chapter,

"(2) from a foreign corporation which is subject to taxation under this chapter and is engaged in trade or business within the United States if more than 50 percent of the gross income of such foreign corporation for the 3-year period ending with the close of its taxable year preceding the dec-laration of such dividends (or for such part of such period as the corporation has been in existence) was derived from sources within the United States as determined under the provision of section 119, but only in an amount which bear the same ratio to 85 percent of such dividends as the gross income of the corporation for such period from sources within the United States bears to its gross income from all sources.

For the purpose of the preceding sentence, if the whole or any part of a dividend is received in property other than money, and if no gain or loss is recognized to the tributing corporation by reason of the distribution, then, with respect to such property. the shareholder shall be considered to have received as a dividend an amount not in excess of the adjusted basis of such property in the hands of the distributing corporation at the time of distribution. In no event shall the credit allowed by this subsection exceed 85 percent of the adjusted net income. The credit allowed by this subsection shall not be allowed in respect of dividends received from a corporation organized under the China Trade Act, 1922, 42 Stat. 849 (U. S. C., title 15, ch. 4), or from a corporation which under section 251 is taxable only on its gross income from sources within the United States by reason of its receiving a large percentage of its gross income from sources within a possession of the United States."

SEC. 121. Installment basis.

Section 44 (d) (relating to gain or loss upon disposition of installment obligations) is hereby amended by inserting immediately after the fourth sentence thereof the following new sentence: "For the purposes of section 23 (w) (2) and section 126 (c) (relating to deduction for estate tax), all amounts of income for which bonds are filed as provided in the preceding sentence shall be considered income in respect of a decedent described in section 126 (a) (1), and the recipient shall be considered a person who includes such amount in income under section 126 (a) (1)."

SEC. 122. Taxable years of approximately 12 months.

Section 48 (b) (defining fiscal year) is hereby amended to read as follows:

"(b) Fiscal year: 'Fiscal year' means—
"(1) an accounting period of 12 months ending on the last day of any month other than December, or

"(2) under regulations prescribed by the Commissioner with the approval of the Secretary, an accounting period regularly adopted and used by the taxpayer varying from 52 weeks to 53 weeks and ending within 7 days of the last day of any month. last day of such month shall be deemed the close of the fiscal year for the purpose of determining the time for filing the return and the time for payment of the tax." SEC. 123. Returns by certain tax-exempt organizations

Section 54 (f) (relating to returns by certain tax-exempt organizations) is hereby amended by striking out paragraphs (2) to the following:

(6), inclusive, and inserting in lieu thereof

"(2) which is an organization exempt under section 101 (15), if such organization is a corporation wholly owned by the United or any agency or instrumentality thereof, or a wholly owned subsidiary of such a corporation: or

"(3) which is an organization exempt under section 101 (3) or (6) and has gross receipts of less than $25,000 (exclusive of gifts or contributions, dues or assessments other than service charges, and payments made by or on behalf of students, patients or inmates) and, in the case of an organization exempt under section 101 (6), is

"(A) an educational organization which normally maintains a regular faculty and curriculum and normally has a regularly organized body of pupils or students in attendance at the place where its educational ac-tivities are regularly carried on; or

"(B) a charitable organization, or an organization for the prevention of cruelty to children or animals, which is supported, in whole or in part, by funds contributed by the United States or any State or political subdivision thereof, or is primarily supported by contributions of the general public; or "(C) an organization operated, super-

(C) an organization operated, supervised, or controlled by or in connection with a religious organization exempt under section 101 (6).

If, under the provisions of paragraph (3), an organization would not be required to file a return but for the fact that its gross receipts are $25,000 or more, such organiza-tion will not be required to itemize its gross receipts from gifts or contributions, dues or assessments other than service charges, and payments made by or on behalf of students. patients or inmates, but the aggregate of each class of such receipts shall be shown on the return."

SEC. 124. Farmers' returns as declaration of estimated tax.

Section 60 (a) is hereby amended by striking out the period at the end thereof and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "; and if such an individual files a return on or before January 31 of the succeeding tax-able year, and pays in full the amount computed on the return as payable, such return shall have the same effect as that prescribed in section 58 (d) (3) in the case of a return filed on or before January 15."

Sec. 125. Surtax on corporations improperly accumulating surplus.

(a) Reasonable needs of the business: Section 102 (c) (relating to evidence determinative of purpose) is hereby amended to read as follows:

"(c) Accumulation of surplus:
"(1) Fvidence determinative of purpose: The fact that the earnings or profits of a corporation are permitted to accumulate beyond the reasonable needs of the business shall be determinative of the purpose to avoid surtax upon shareholders unless the corporation by the clear preponderance of the evidence shall prove to the contrary. "(2) Reasonable needs of the business: In any case in which the Commissioner proposes to determine a deficiency with respect to the tax imposed by subsection (a) he may, prior to the mailing of a notice of deficiency as provided in section 272 (a), give the taxpayer notice, by registered mail, of an op-portunity to file with the Commissioner a statement of the grounds (together with facts sufficient to apprise the Commissioner of the basis thereof) on which the taxpayer relies as establishing that the earnings or profits of the corporation have not been accumulated beyond the reasonable needs of business. If a statement of such grounds, with such supporting facts, is filed with the Commissioner within such time (not less than 30 days after such notice is mailed) as the Commissioner may prescribe, the burden of proof with respect to the issue as to whether earnings or profits have been permitted to be accumulated beyond the reasonable needs of the taxpayer's business shall be upon the Commissioner if the taxpayer (after the mailing of a notice of deficiency as provided in section 272 (a)) files a petition with the Tax Court of the States, and if the taxpayer in the proceedings before such court does not rely upon any grounds with respect to such issue other than those presented to the Commissioner in such statement. If the Commissioner mails such notice of deficiency for any taxable year without giving the taxpayer an opportunity to file such a statement, the Commissioner shall have the burden of proof in any proceeding before the Tax Court of the United States with respect to such issue

(b) Long-term capital gains: Section 102
 (d) (1) (relating to definition of section 102 net income) is hereby amended by adding for such year."

at the end thereof the following new

subparagraph:

(D) Long-term capital gains: The excess of the net long-term capital gain for the taxable year over the net short-term capital loss for such year, minus the taxes imposed by this chapter attributable to such excess. The taxes attributable to such excess shall be an amount equal to the difference between (i) the taxes imposed by this chapter (except the tax imposed by this section) for such year and (ii) such taxes computed for such year without including such excess in net income."

(c) Dividends paid after close of year: Section 102 (d) (2) (relating to definition of undistribution section 102 net income) is hereby amended by adding at the end thereof the following new sentences: "At the election of the taxpayer, the computation of such credit under section 27 (b) for any taxable year shall be made by considering the dividends paid within 75 days after the close of such taxable year, to the extent such dividends exceed the dividends paid within the first 75 days of such year, as paid within such taxable year; but if such election is made for the taxable year, then such dividends to the extent of such excess shall not, for the purposes of computing the tax imposed by this section for the succeeding taxable year, be considered as paid during such succeeding taxable year. Such election shall be made in accordance with regulations prescribed by the Commissioner with the approval of the Secretary, but may not be made at any time after the filing of any claim for refund, or after the date of the filing of a petition with the Tax Court of the United States, with respect to the tax imposed by this section."

SEC. 126. Service rendered for a period of 36 months or more.

(a) Section 107 is hereby amended by inserting before the closing parenthesis in sub-section (a) a comma and the words "or, in the case of uncompleted services, to the close of the taxable year."

(b) The amendment made by this section shall be applicable with respect to taxable years beginning after December 31, 1947, and at the election of the taxpayer, made in accordance with regulations prescribed by the Commissioner with the approval of the Sec-retary, shall be applicable with respect to taxable years beginning after December 31,

SEC. 127. Election as to recognition of gain in certain corporate liquidations.

(a) Section 112 (b) (7) is hereby amended to read as follows:

"(7) Election as to recognition of gain in certain corporate liquidations:

"(A) General rule: In the case of property distributed in complete liquidation of a domestic corporation, if-

"(i) the liquidation is made in pursuance of a plan of liquidation adopted after the date of the enactment of the Revenue Revision Act of 1948; and

"(ii) the distribution is in complete cancellation or redemption of all the stock, and the transfer of all the property under the liquidation occurs within some one calendar month in 1949-then in the case of each qualified electing shareholder (as defined in subparagraph (C)) gain upon the shares owned by him at the time of the adoption of the plan of liquidation shall be recognized only to the extent provided in subparagraphs (E) and (F).

"(B) Excluded corporation: The term 'excluded corporation' means a corporation which at any time between May 1, 1948, and the date of the adoption of the plan of liquidation, both dates inclusive, was the owner of stock possessing 50 percent or more of the total combined voting power of all classes of stock entitled to vote on the adoption of such plan.

"(C) Qualified electing shareholders: The term 'qualified electing shareholder' means a shareholder (other than an excluded corporation) of any class of stock (whether or not entitled to vote on the adoption of the plan of liquidation) who is a share-holder at the time of the adoption of such plan, and whose written election to have the benefits of subparagraph (A) has been made and filed in accordance with subparagraph

"(i) in the case of a shareholder other than a corporation, only if written elections have been so filed by shareholders (other than corporations) who at the time of the adoption of the plan of liquidation are owners of stock possessing at least 80 per centum of the total combined voting power (exclusive of voting power possessed by stock owned by corporations) of all classes of stock entitled to vote on the adoption of such plan of liquidation; or

"(ii) in the case of a shareholder which is a corporation, only if written elections have been so filed by corporate shareholders (other than an excluded corporation) which at the time of the adoption of such plan of liquidation are owners of stock possessing at least 80 per centum of the total voting power (exclusive of voting power possessed by stock owned by an excluded corporation and by shareholders who are not corporations) of all classes of stock entitled vote on the adoption of such plan of liquidation.

"(D) Making and filing of elections: The written elections referred to in subparagraph (C) must be made and filed in such manner as to be not in contravention of regulations prescribed by the Commissioner with the approval of the Secretary. The filing must within 30 days after the adoption of the plan of liquidation, and may be by the liquidating corporation or by the shareholder.

"(E) Noncorporate shareholders: In the case of a qualified electing shareholder other than a corporation—

"(i) There shall be recognized, and taxed as a dividend, so much of the gain as is not in excess of his ratable share of the earnings and profits of the corporation accumulated after February 28, 1913, such earnings and profits to be determined as of the close of the month in which the transfer in liquidation occurred under subparagraph (A) (ii), but without diminution by reason of distributions made during such month; but by including in the computation thereof all amounts accrued up to the date on which the transfer of all the property under the liquidation is completed; and

"(ii) There shall be recognized, and taxed as short-term or long-term capital gain, as the case may be, so much of the remainder of the gain as is not in excess of the amount by which the value of that portion of the assets received by him which consists of money, or of stock or securities acquired by the corporation after May 1, 1948, exceeds his ratable share of such earnings and profits.

"(F) Corporate shareholders: In the case of a qualified electing shareholder which is a corporation the gain shall be recognized only to the extent of the greater of the two fol-

"(i) The portion of the assets received by it which consists of money, or of stock or securities acquired by the liquidating corporation after May 1, 1948; or

"(ii) Its ratable share of the earnings and profits of the liquidating corporation accumulated after February 28, 1913, such earnings and profits to be determined as of the close of the month in which the transfer in liquidation occurred under subparagraph (A) (ii), but without diminution by reason of distributions made during such month; but by including in the computation thereof all amounts accrued up to the date on which the transfer of all the property under the liquidation is completed."

(b) The amendment made by this section shall be applicable only to taxable years ending after December 31, 1948.

SEC. 128. Distribution of stock on reorganization.

(a) Section 112 (b) is hereby amended by adding after paragraph (10) thereof the following new paragraph:

"(11) Distribution of stock on reorganization:

"(A) In liquidation: If there is distributed (whether in one distribution or a series of distributions), in pursuance of a plan of reorganization, to a shareholder of a corporation which is a party to the reorganization, in complete cancellation or redemption of all of its stock, solely stock in two or more corporations, each of which is a party to the reorganization in pursuance of which its stock is distributed, no gain or loss to the distributee from the receipt of such stock shall be recognized, unless it appears that any corporation whose stock is so distributed pursuant to such reorganization (i) was not intended to carry on business or (ii) was principally a device for the distribution of earnings or profits to the shareholders of the corporation whose stock was canceled or redeemed.

"(B) Not in liquidation: If there is distributed, in pursuance of a plan of reorganization, to a shareholder of a corporation which is a party to the reorganization, stock (other than preferred stock) in such cor-poration or in another corporation which is a party to the reorganization, without the surrender by such shareholder of stock in such a corporation, no gain or loss to the distributee from the receipt of such stock shall be recognized, unless it appears that (1) any corporation which is a party to such reorganization was not intended to carry on business after such reorganization, or (ii) the corporation whose stock is distributed was principally a device for the distribution of earnings and profits to the shareholders of any corporation a party to the reorgani-

"(C) Any provision of this section, other than this paragraph and so much of subsec-tion (c) or (e) as refers to this paragraph (except as otherwise provided in section 371 (g)) shall not apply in respect of any property distributed, in respect of which the provisions of this paragraph or so much of the provisions of subsection (c) or (e) as refers to this paragraph are applicable."

(b) Technical amendments:

(1) Section 112 (c) is hereby amended by striking out "or (5)," and inserting in lieu thereof "(5), or (11) (A)."

(2) Section 112 (e) is hereby amended by striking out "or (10)," and inserting in lieu thereof "(10), or (11) (A)."

(c) Section 113 (a) is hereby amended by adding at the end thereof the following new paragraph:

"(23) Tax-free distributions: If the property consists of stock distributed after August 1, 1948, to a taxpayer in connection with a transaction described in section 112 (b) (11) (B), the basis in the case of the stock in ct of which the distribution was made shall be apportioned, under rules and regu-lations prescribed by the Commissioner with the approval of the Secretary, between such stock and the stock so distributed."

(d) The amendments made by this section shall be applicable with respect to dis-tributions of stock made after August 1, 1948, but only if, in the case of a series of distributions in complete cancellation or redemption of all of the stock, the first distribution in such series is made after such date. SEC. 129. Gain or loss in connection with certain corporate liquidations. (a) Gain or loss on sales or exchanges in connection with certain corporate liquidations: Section 112 (b) is hereby amended by adding at the end thereof the following new paragraph:

"(12) Gain or loss on sales or exchanges in connection with certain corporate liquida-

"(A) In general: No gain or loss from the sale or exchange by a corporation of prop-erty shall be recognized to such corporation

"(i) prior to such sale or exchange a written plan of complete liquidation is formally adopted and, within 30 days after the date of adoption of such plan, the Commissioner is notified thereof in accordance with regulations prescribed by the Commissioner with the approval of the Secretary; and

'(ii) within 12 months after the date of adoption of such plan of liquidation, all the assets of the corporation are distributed in complete liquidation, other than such ass in reasonable amounts as are set aside for the purpose of meeting unascertained or contingent liabilities and expenses.

"(B) Definitions: As used in subparagraph (A)

(i) the term 'property' includes (1) stock in trade of the taxpayer or other property of a kind which would properly be included in the inventory of the taxpayer if on hand at the close of the taxable year, and property held by the taxpayer primarily for sale to customers in the ordinary course of its trade or business, if, in accordance with this paragraph, substantially all of the assets (including such stock in trade and other property) the corporation are sold or exchanged to one person, and (2) installment obligations acquired in respect of such sale or exchange;

(ii) except as provided in clause (i), the term 'property' does not include (1) stock in trade of the taxpayer or other property of a kind which would properly be included in the inventory of the taxpayer if on hand at the close of the taxable year, (2) property held by the taxpayer primarily for sale to customers in the ordinary course of its trade or business, (3) installment obligations acquired in respect of property sold or ex-changed prior to the date of adoption of the plan of liquidation referred to in subparagraph (A), or (4) installment obligations acquired in respect of the sale or exchange (without regard to whether such sale or exchange occurred prior to, on, or after such date) of stock in trade or other property referred to in (1) and (2) of this clause;

"(iii) the term 'sale or exchange' does not include a sale or exchange in respect of which gain or loss in whole or in part is not recognized under any provision of this section (other than this paragraph); and

"(iv) the term 'liquidation' does not include a liquidation which is a liquidation within the provisions of subsection (b) (6) or as to which an election under subsection (b) (7) is made."

(b) Gain or loss on the distribution in liquidation of certain installment obligations: Section 44 (d) is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new sen-tence: "If an installment obligation is distributed by a corporation in liquidation and if no gain or loss would have been recognized to the corporation under the provisions of section 112 (b) (12) if the corporation had sold or exchanged such installment obligation on the day of such distribution, then no gain or loss shall be recognized to such corporation by reason of such distribution."

The amendments made by this section shall be applicable only with respect to plans of liquidation adopted after the date of the enactment of this act.

SEC. 130. Gain resulting from involuntary conversions

(a) Section 112 (f) (relating to recogni-tion of gain or loss resulting from involun-tary conversions) is hereby amended as

(1) by striking out "(f) Involuntary conversions.—" and inserting in fleu thereof
"(f) Involuntary conversions:
"(1) In general.—."

(2) by adding at the end thereof the following new paragraph:

"(2) Anticipatory replacement: If a conversion described in paragraph (1) is into money, and the taxpayer before the receipt of such money, for the purpose of replacing the property so converted, makes expenditures or incurs indebtedness in the acquisi-tion of other property similar or related in service or use to the property so converted, or in the acquisition of control of a corporation owning such other property, at the election of the taxpayer such money so received shall be considered, for the purposes of paragraph (1), as having been expended in the acquisition of such other property or control of such corporation to the extent that such money is forthwith used by the taxpayer in replacement of the amounts so expended or in liquidation of such indebtedness. Such election shall be made at such time and in accordance with such regulations as the Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary, may prescribe. If such other property or control of such corporation was acquired prior to the taxable year in which any part of the money was received, such elec-tion may be made only if the taxpayer, in accordance with such regulations, consents in writing to the assessment (within such period as may be agreed upon) of any deficiency, to the extent resulting from such election; for any taxable year ending before the date of the filing of such consent, even though on such date such assessment is otherwise prevented by the operation of any law or rule of law."

(b) The amendments made by this section shall be applicable only with respect to money received after December 31, 1947, except that the amendments shall not be applicable to the extent that such money is used in replacement of amounts expended, and in liquidation of indebtedness incurred, on or before such date.

(a) Section 120 is hereby amended by striking out "in respect of preceding taxable years" and inserting in lieu thereof "in re-spect of such year or preceding taxable years".

(b) The amendment made by this section shall be applicable to taxable years beginning after December 31, 1942.

SEC. 136. Net operating loss deduction.

(a) Amendment of section 122 (a): Section 122 (a) (relating to definition of net operating loss) is hereby amended to read as follows:

"(a) Definition of net operating loss: As used in this section, the term 'net operating loss' means the excess of the deductions allowed by this chapter over the gross income. Such excess shall be computed, in the case of a net operating loss for a taxable year be-ginning before January 1, 1949, with the ex-ceptions, additions, and limitations provided in subsection (d), or in the case of a net operating loss for a taxable year beginning after December 31, 1948, with the exceptions and limitations provided in subsection (d) (3) and (5)."

(b) Amendment of section 122 (b): Section 122 (b) (relating to amount of carryback and carry-over) is hereby amended to read as follows:

"(b) Amount of carry-back and carry-

"(1) Net operating loss carry-back:
"(A) Loss for taxable year beginning before 1949: If for any taxable year beginning after December 31, 1941, and before January 1, 1949, the taxpayer has a net operating loss, such net operating loss shall be a net operating loss carry-back for each of the two preceding taxable years, except that the carry-back in the case of the first preceding taxable year shall be the excess, if any, of the amount of such net operating loss over the net income for the second preceding taxable year computed-

"(i) with the exceptions, additions, and limitations provided in subsection (d) (1), (2), (4), and (6); and

(ii) by determining the net operating loss deduction for such second preceding taxable year without regard to such net operating loss or to any reduction specified in subsection (c).

"(B) Loss for taxable year beginning after 1948: If for any taxable year beginning after December 31, 1948, the taxpayer has a net operating loss, such net operating loss shall be a net operating loss carry-back for the preceding taxable year.

"(2) Net operating loss carry-over:

"(A) Loss for taxable year beginning before 1949: If for any taxable year beginning before January 1, 1949, the taxpayer has a net operating loss, such net operating loss shall be a net operating loss carry-over for each of the two succeeding taxable years, except that the carry-over in the case of the second succeeding taxable year shall be the excess, if any, of the amount of such net operating loss over the net income for the intervening taxable year computed-

"(i) if such intervening taxable year began before January 1, 1949, with the exceptions, additions, and limitations provided in subsection (d) (1), (2), (4), and (6), or if such intervening taxable year began in 1949, with the limitation provided in subsection

(4) (B); and

"(ii) by determining the net operating loss deduction for such intervening taxable year without regard to such net operating loss, to any net operating loss carry-back, or to any reduction specified in subsection (c).

For the purposes of the preceding sentence the net operating loss for any taxable year beginning after December 31, 1941, shall be reduced by the sum of the net income for each of the two preceding taxable years computed for each such preceding taxable year—

"(iii) with the exceptions, additions, and limitations provided in subsection (d) (1), (2), (4), and (6); and

"(iv) by determining the net operating loss deduction without regard to such net operating loss, to any net operating loss for the succeeding taxable year, or to any reduction specified in subsection (c).

"(B) Loss for taxable year beginning after 1948: If for any taxable year beginning after December 31, 1948, the taxpayer has a net operating loss, such net operating loss shall be a net operating loss carry-over for each of the five succeeding taxable years, except that the carry-over in the case of each of such succeeding taxable years (other than the first succeeding taxable year) shall be the excess, if any, of the amount of such net operating loss over the sum of the net income for each of the intervening taxable years computed-

"(1) with the limitation provided in subsection (d) (4) (B); and

"(ii) by determining the net operating loss deduction for each intervening taxable year without regard to such net operating loss or to the net operating loss for any succeeding taxable year.

For the purposes of the preceding sentence the net operating loss for any taxable year shall be reduced by the amount, if any, of the net income for the preceding taxable year computed-

"(iii) if such preceding taxable year began after December 31, 1948, with the limitation provided in subsection (d) (4) (B), or if such preceding taxable year began in 1948, with the exceptions, additions, and limitations provided in subsection (d) (1), (2),

(4), and (6); and
"(iv) by determining the net operating loss deduction for such preceding taxable year without regard to such net operating loss or to any reduction specified in subsection (c)."

(c) Amendment of section 122 (c): Section 122 (c) (relating to amount of net operating loss deduction) is hereby amended by striking out "taxable year reduced" and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "taxable year, except that in the case of a taxable year beginning before January 1, 1949, such aggregate shall be reduced."

Amendment of section 122 (d):

(1) Section 122 (d) (4) is hereby amended

read as follows:

'(4) (A) Gains and losses for any taxable year beginning before January 1, 1949, from sales or exchanges of capital assets shall be taken into account without regard to the provisions of section 117 (b). As so computed the amount deductible on account of such losses shall not exceed the amount includible on account of such gains.

"(B) In the case of gains and losses for any taxable year beginning after December 1948, from sales or exchanges of capital assets, the amount deductible on account of such losses shall not exceed the amount includible on account of such gains.'

(2) The last sentence of section 122 (d) (5) is hereby amended to read as follows: For the purposes of this paragraph deductions and gross income for taxable years beginning before January 1, 1949, shall be computed with the exceptions and limitations specified in paragraphs (1) to (4), both inclusive, of this subsection."

(e) Rule for application of section 122: Section 122 is further amended by adding at the end thereof the following new sub-

"(f) Law applicable in computing gross income, etc.: In computing the net operating loss deduction for any taxable year, the gross income and deductions for any other taxable year involved in such computation, and the exceptions, additions, and limitations (provided in subsection (d) in effect for such other taxable year) with respect to such gross income and deductions, shall be determined under the law applicable to such other year."

(f) Effective date: The amendments made by subsections (a), (b), (c), and (d) of this section shall be applicable in computing the net operating loss deduction for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1941, and the amendment made by subsection (e) of this section shall be applicable in computing the net operating loss deduction for any taxable year beginning after December 31, 1940.

(g) Carry-overs in the case of certain reorganized railroads: Subsection (c) of the first section of the act of July 15, 1947 (Public Law 189, 80th Cong.), entitled "An act to allow to a successor railroad corporation the benefits of certain carry-overs of a predecessor corporation for the purposes of certain ressor corporation for the purposes of certain provisions of the Internal Revenue Code" is hereby amended by striking out "three instead of two" and inserting in lieu thereof "one more than that prescribed in the Internal Revenue Code."

SEC. 137. Stock options.

(a) Supplement B of chapter 1 is hereby amended by adding at the end thereof the following new section:

"SEC. 130A. Employee Stock Options.
"(a) General rule: In the case of an option granted by an employer (or any other person) to an individual, for any reason connected with the employment of such individual, to purchase stock of a corporation, no income shall result upon the granting of such option; but if stock is transferred to such individual upon his exercise of such option for an amount less than its fair market value, the difference between the amount paid for such stock and the fair market value of the stock at the time of the transfer shall be included as compensation in the gross income of such individual for the taxable year in which falls the date of such transfer.

"(b) Restricted stock options: In the case of a restricted stock option (as defined in subsection (c))-

"(1) Option price not less than 90 percent of value of stock: Notwithstanding the provisions of subsection (a), if, at the time such option is granted, the option price is at least 90 percent of the fair market value at such time of the stock subject to the option-

"(A) No income shall result at the time of the transfer of such stock to the employee upon his exercise of the option; no deduction under section 23 (a) shall be allowable at any time to the employer corporation with respect to the stock so transferred; and no amount other than the option price shall be considered as received by the employer corporation for the stock so transferred:

"(B) If the employee, within 3 years after the transfer to him of such stock, makes a disposition (as defined in subsection (c)) of the stock, there shall be included as compensation (and not as gain upon the sale or exchange of a capital asset) in his gross in-come, for the taxable year in which falls the date of such disposition, an amount equal to the lesser of-

"(i) the amount of the excess of the fair market value of the stock at the time of its transfer to the employee over the option price; or

"(ii) the amount of the excess of the fair market value of the stock at the time of such disposition over its adjusted basis determined without regard to the following sentence.

The basis of such stock in the hands of such employee shall be increased by an amount equal to the amount so includible in his gross income.

"(2) Option price less than 90 percent of value of stock: Notwithstanding the provisions of subsection (a), if, at the time such option is granted, the option price is less than 90 percent of the fair market value at such time of the stock subject to the op-

"(A) For the taxable year in which falls the date of the transfer of such stock to the employee upon his exercise of the option, there shall be included in his gross income as compensation an amount equal to the amount by which the option price is exceeded by the lesser of—
"(1) the fair market value of the stock at the time the option is granted, or

"(ii) the fair market value of the stock at the time of the transfer of the stock to the employee.

No deduction under section 23 (a) shall be allowable at any time to the employer cor-poration, with respect to the stock so transferred, in any amount in excess of the amount so includible as compensation, and no amount other than the option price plus the amount of such compensation shall be con-sidered as received by the employer corporation for the stock so transferred. If, upon the application of this subparagraph (without regard to this sentence) for any taxable year of the employee, not more than $200 is includible in his gross income by reason of all such transfers of stock of any one corporation, the provisions of subparagraph (A) of paragraph (I), and not the provisions of this subparagraph, shall be applicable for such year with respect to the transfers of

"(B) If the employee, within 3 years after the transfer to him of such stock, makes a disposition (as defined in subsection (c)) of the stock there shall be included as compensation (and not as gain upon the sale or exchange of a capital asset) in his gross income, for the taxable year in which falls the date of such disposition, an amount equal to the lesser of-

(i) the amount of the excess of the fair market value of such stock at the time of its transfer to the employee over the option price plus the amount includible in gross income under the provisions of subpara-graph (A); or

"(ii) the amount of the excess of the fair market value of the stock at the time of such disposition over its adjusted basis determined without regard to the following

gross income.
"(3) Acquisition of new stock: If the stock transferred by the employer corporation to the employee upon his exercise of the option is exchanged by him for stock or securities in an exchange within the provisions of section 112 (b) (2) or (3), or if new stock, as described in section 113 (a) (19), is acquired upon a distribution with respect to such stock, the stock or securities acquired in such exchange and such new stock shall be considered as having been transferred to the employee upon his exercise of such option. A similar rule shall be applied in the case of a series of such exchanges or acquisitions.

"(4) Death of employee: If such option is exercised after the death of such employee by his executor or any other person, the provisions of this subsection shall not be applicable with respect to such exercise or any subsequent disposition of the stock acquired upon such exercise. (For provisions relating to such exercise by an executor, etc., see section 126.) If stock received by an employee during his lifetime upon his exercise of such option is disposed of after his death by his executor or any other person, the provisions of this subsection shall not be applicable with respect to such disposition.

"(c) Definitions: As used in this section—
"(1) Restricted stock option: The term
'restricted stock option' means an option granted by a corporation to an individual, for any reason connected with its employment of such individual, to purchase stock of the employer corporation or stock of a parent corporation, but only if-

"(A) Such option by its terms is not exercisable after the expiration of 10 years from the date such option is granted;

"(B) Such option by its terms is not transferable by such individual otherwise than by will or under the laws of descent and distribution, and, during his lifetime, is exercisable only by him and only if he is an employee of the employer corporation at the time of exercise:

"(C) Such option, prior to any exercise thereof, is approved or ratified at a duly constituted meeting of the stockholders of the employer corporation, after reasonable notice to such stockholders of the proposed option; and

"(D) Such individual, at the time the option is granted, does not own stock posses ing more than 10 percent of the total com-bined voting power of all classes of stock of the employer corporation or of a parent corporation. For the purposes of this subparagraph-

"(i) such individual shall be considered as owning the stock owned, directly or indirectly, by or for his brothers and sisters (whether by the whole or half blood), spouse, ancestors, and lineal descendant; and

"(ii) stock owned, directly or indirectly, by or for a corporation, partnership, estate, or trust, shall be considered as being owned proportionately by or for its shareholders, partners, or beneficiaries.

"(2) Parent corporation: The term 'parent corporation' means any corporation in an unbroken chain of corporations ending with the employer corporation if, at the time of granting of the option, each of the corporations other than the employer corporation owns stock possessing more than 50 percent of the total combined voting power of all classes of stock in one of the other corporations in such chain.

"(3) Disposition: The term 'disposition' includes a sale, exchange, gift, or any transfer of legal title, but does not include "(A) a transfer from a decedent to his estate or a transfer by bequest or inheritance:

"(B) an exchange which is within the provisions of section 112 (b) (2) or (3); or "(C) a mere pledge or hypothecation."

"(d) Modification, extension, or renewal of option: If the terms of any option to purchase stock are modified, extended, or re-newed, the following rules shall be applied with respect to transfers of stock made upon an exercise of the option after the making of such modification, extension, or renewal:

"(1) For the purposes of subsection (c) such modification, extension, or renewal shall be considered as the granting of a new option:

"(2) For the purposes of subsection (b). the fair market value of such stock at the time of the granting of such option shall be considered as (A) the fair market value of such stock on the date of the original granting of the option, (B) the fair market value of such stock on the date of the making of such modification, extension, or renewal, or (C) the fair market value of such stock at the time of the making of any intervening modification, extension, or renewal, whichever is the highest."

(b) Amendment of section 126: Section 126 (a) (relating to income in respect of decedents) is hereby amended by adding at the end thereof the following new paragraph: "(4) Employee stock option: If an option to purchase stock granted by an employer (or any other person) to a decedent, for any reason connected with the employment of such decedent, is acquired by the estate of the decedent from the decedent or by a person who acquires such option by reason of the death of the decedent or by bequest, devise, or inheritance from the decedent—

"(A) upon transfer of the stock subject to the option to such estate or such person, the excess of the fair market value of such stock at the time of transfer over the option price shall be considered as an item of gross income in respect of the decedent; and

"(B) such option shall, for the purposes of paragraph (2), be considered as a right to receive an item of gross income in respect of the decedent."

(c) Amendment of section 22: Section 22 (relating to gross income) is hereby amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

"(o) Employee stock options: For provi-sions relating to amounts includible in gross income upon the transfer of stock to an employee upon his exercise of a stock option, see section 130A."

Amendment of section 24: Section 24 (relating to items not deductible) is hereby amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

"(f) Certain stock options granted to employees: For disallowance of deductions in the case of certain stock options granted by employers to employees, see section 130A

(e) Amendment of section 113 (b) (1): Section 113 (b) (1) (relating to adjustment of basis of property) is hereby amended by adding at the end thereof the following new

subparagraph:

"(I) to the extent provided in subparagraph (B) of section 130A (b) (1) or (2) in the case of certain dispositions of stock acquired upon the exercise of a restricted stock option."

(f) Effective date: (1) General rule: Except as hereinafter provided, the amendments made by this section shall be applicable only with respect to options granted on or after the date of the enactment of this act. If the terms of an option granted before such date are modified, extended, or renewed on or after such date, the amendments made by this section shall be applicable with respect to such option after the making of such modification, extensions, or renewal. If an option granted before such date is a restricted stock option on the date of such enactment, the amendments shall be applicable with respect to any exercise, by the employee receiving such option, made on or after such date, even though the terms of such option have not been modified, extended, or re-newed on or after such date.

(2) Restricted stock options: In the case of any transfer of stock made before the date of the enactment of this act upon the exercise of a restricted stock option granted after February 26, 1945, at the election of the employee receiving such stock the amendments made by this section shall be applicable with respect to such a transfer, but only if there are filed with the Commissioner before July 1, 1949 (in accordance with regulations prescribed by him with the approval of the Secretary), by such persons as may be pre-scribed under such regulations, signed con-

(A) that the basis of such stock received by the employee shall be determined in ac-cordance with the provisions of such amendments; and

(B) that there shall be paid, at such time as the Commissioner may prescribe, all of the taxes under chapter 1 or chapter 2 of the Internal Revenue Code which would have been imposed for all taxable years concerned if such amendments had been applicable with respect to such option.

(3) Deficiencies and overpayments: The period of limitations provided in sections 275 and 276 of the Internal Revenue Code on making of assessments and the beginning of distraint or proceeding in court for collection shall with respect to any deficiency resulting from any such consents include 1 year immediately after the date such consents were filed, and such assessment and collection may be made notwithstanding any provision of law or any rule of law which would otherwise prevent such assessment or collection. No interest shall be allowed or paid on any overpayment, or assessed on any deficiency, resulting from the application of paragraph (2) of this subsection.

SEC. 138. Foreign tax credit.

(a) Refund of foreign taxes: Section 131 (c) (relating to adjustments on payment of accrued taxes) is hereby amended by adding at the end thereof the following new sen tences: "In such redetermination by the Commissioner of the amount of tax due by the taxpayer for the year or years affected by a refund, the amount of the taxes refunded for which credit has been allowed under this section shall be reduced by the amount of any tax described in subsection (a) imposed by the foreign country or possession of the United States with respect to such refund; but no credit under this section shall be allowed for any taxable year with respect to such tax imposed on the refund. No interest shall be assessed or collected on any amount of tax due upon any redetermination by the Commissioner, resulting from a refund to the taxpayer, for any period prior to the receipt of such refund, except to the extent interest was paid by the foreign country or possession of the United States on such refund for such period."

(b) Effective date of subsection (a): The amendment made by subsection (a) shall be applicable with respect to taxable years be-ginning after December 31, 1938. If the allowance of a credit or refund of any over-If the payment of tax resulting from the application of the amendment made by subsection (a) is prevented on the date of the enactment of this act, or within 1 year from such date, by the operation of any law or rule of law (other than section 3761 of the Internal Revenue Code, relating to compromises), credit or refund of such overpayment may, nevertheless, be allowed or made if claim therefor is filed within 1 year from the date of the enactment of this act.

(c) Taxes of foreign corporations: Section 131 (f) (relating to credit for taxes of foreign corporations) is hereby amended as follows:

(1) by striking out-

"(f) Taxes of foreign subsidiary—
"(1) Foreign subsidiary of domestic corporation .- " and inserting in lieu thereof-

(f) Taxes or foreign corporations:

"(1) Stock of foreign corporation owned by domestic corporation .- "

(2) by amending the first sentence of paragraph (1) thereof to read as follows: "For the purposes of this section, a domestic corporation which owns stock of a foreign corporation from which it receives dividends in any taxable year shall be deemed to have paid the same proportion of any income, warprofits, or excess-profits taxes paid or deemed to be paid by such foreign corporation to any foreign country or to any possession of the United States, upon or with respect to the accumulated profits of such foreign cor-poration from which such dividends were paid, which the amount of such dividends bears to the amount of such accumulated profits."

(d) Limitation on claims for refund: (1) Section 322 (b) is hereby amended by adding at the end thereof the following new

paragraph:
"(7) Special period of limitation with respect to foreign taxes paid or accrued: If the claim for credit or refund relates to an over-payment attributable to any income, war profits, and excess-profits taxes paid or ac-crued to any foreign country or to any possession of the United States for which credit is allowed against the tax imposed by this chapter in accordance with the provisions of section 131 or the provisions of any treaty to which the United States is a party, in lieu of the 3-year period of limitation prescribed in paragraph (1), the period shall be 7 years from the date prescribed by law for filing the return for the year with respect to which the claim is made. In the case of such a claim, the amount of the credit or refund may exceed the portion of the tax paid within the period provided in paragraph (2) or paragraph (3), whichever is applicable, to the extent of the amount of the overpayment attributable to the allowance of a credit for attributable to the allowance of a credit for the taxes described in this paragraph."

(2) Section 322 (d) is hereby amended by inserting in lieu of the period at the end thereof a semicolon and by adding the following thereafter: "or (4) if such portion was not paid within the period described in clause (1), but the notice of deficiency was mailed within 7 years from the time prescribed for the filing of the return, or a claim. scribed for the filing of the return, or a claim described in subsection (b) (7) was filed, that such portion does not exceed the amount of the overpayment attributable to the allowance of a credit for taxes described in subsection (b) (7)."

(e) Effective date of subsection (d): The amendments made by subsection (d) shall be applicable to taxable years beginning after December 31, 1945.

SEC. 139. Withholding of tax at source.

The first sentence of section 143 (c) (relating to return and payment of certain taxes withheld at source) is hereby amended to read as follows: "Every person required to deduct and withhold any tax under this ction shall, on or before June 15 of the following year, make return thereof and pay the tax to the collector designated in section 53 (b)."

(b) The amendment made by this section shall be applicable with respect to taxes required to be deducted and withheld after December 31, 1947.

SEC. 140. Taxation of the income of estates and trusts.

(a) Income of estates and trusts: Section 162 (b), (c), and (d) (relating to the computation of the net income of estates and trusts) is hereby amended to read as fol-

"(b) Income required to be distributed currently: There shall be allowed as an additional deduction in computing the net income of the estate or trust the amount of the income of the estate or trust for its taxable year which is to be distributed currently as income by the fiduciary to the beneficiaries, but the amount so allowed as a deduction shall be included in computing the net income of the beneficiaries whether distributed to them or not. No deduction shall be allowed under this subsection with respect to any amount of the income of the estate or trust which does not constitute gross income of the estate or trust under this chapter; and no such amount shall be included in computing the net income of the beneficiaries.

"(c) Income not required to be distributed currently: There shall be allowed as an additional deduction in computing the net income of the estate or trust the amount of the income (other than an amount deductible under subsection (b)) of the estate or trust for any period which is distributed as income by the fiduciary to the beneficiaries during the taxable year of the estate or trust, but not in excess of the distributable income. If the aggregate of such distribu-tions during the taxable year exceeds the distributable income, the amount of the deduction allowed with respect to the distribution to any one beneficiary shall be that proportion of the distributable income which the amount so distributed bears to the aggregate of such distributions. The amount allowed as a deduction under this subsection shall be included in computing the net in-come of the beneficiaries. For the purposes of this subsection, 'distributable income' means the income of the estate or trust for the taxable year less amounts allowed as deductions under subsections (a) and (b) and excluding amounts which do not constitute gross income of the estate or trust under this chapter.

"(d) Other distributions: There shall be allowed as an additional deduction in computing the net income of the estate or trust amounts (other than an amount deductible under subsection (b) or (c)) distributed by the fiduciary to the beneficiaries during the taxable year of the estate or trust, but not in excess of the statutory income. If the aggregate of such distributions during the taxable year exceeds the statutory income, the amount of the deduction allowed with respect to the distribution to any one beneficiary shall be that proportion of the statutory income which the amount so distributed bears to the aggregate of such distributions. The amount allowed as a deduction under this subsection shall be included in computing the net income of the beneficiaries. Amounts allowed as deductions under this subsection shall not include any amount distributed under the terms of the will or trust instrument as a gift of a specific sum of money (not to be made at intervals) or as a gift of specific property. For the purposes of this subsection, 'statutory income' means the net income of the estate or trust for the taxable year computed under this chapter without the deductions allowed under this subsection.

- (b) Distributions by estates and trusts: Section 162 is further amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsections:
- "(g) Rules for the application of subsections (b), (c), and (d):
  "(1) No deduction shall be allowed to the
- estate or trust under subsection (b), (c), or (d) with respect to any amount which is not includible in computing the net income of the beneficiaries.
- "(2) If the gross income of the estate or trust for the taxable year includes gains from the sale or exchange of capital assets, that portion of the amounts to be included under subsection (b), (c), or (d) in computing the net income of the beneficiaries which is attributable to such capital gains shall, under regulations prescribed by the Commissioner with the approval of the Secretary, be treated as long-term capital gains or short-term capital gains in the hands of such beneficiaries depending upon the period during which such capital assets were held by the estate or trust, but the provisions of section 117 (b) shall not be applicable with respect to such portions in computing their net capital gain, net capital loss, and net income.

"(h) Definition of beneficiary: For the purposes of this section, the term beneficiary' includes heir, legatee, and devisee."

(c) Credits of beneficiary: Section 163 (b)

(relating to credits of beneficiary) is hereby amended to read as follows:

- "(b) Credits of beneficiary: If the income of the estate or trust for the taxable year includes interest specified in section 25 (a), each beneficiary, required to include amounts under this supplement in computing his net income, shall, for purposes of the normal tax, be allowed as a credit against net in-come, in addition to the credits allowed to him under section 25 an amount equal to that portion of the amount so included by such beneficiary which is attributable to such interest. Any portion of such interest with respect to which credits are not al-lowed to the beneficiaries shall, for the purpose of the normal tax, be allowed as a credit to the estate or trust."
- (d) Bond premium deduction: Section 163 (c) (2) is hereby amended to read as follows:
- "(2) For the purposes of subsection (b) the portion of the amount included by the beneficiary which is attributable to such interest shall be such portion (determined without regard to this paragraph) reduced by so much of the deduction under section (v) attributable to such portion, remainder of such deduction, for the purposes of the last sentence of subsection (b). shall be applied in reduction of such credits of the estate or trust."

(e) Gifts of income: The last sentence of section 22 (b) (3) (relating to exclusion of gifts, etc., from gross income) is hereby amended to read as follows: "For the purposes of this paragraph, a gift, bequest, de-vise, or inheritance shall be considered a gift, bequest, devise, or inheritance of income from property to the extent that it is paid out of income from property, if under the terms of the gift, bequest, devise, or inheritance the distribution thereof is be made at intervals, or to the extent that the distribution thereof constitutes a deduction to the estate or trust under section 162."

(f) Effective date: The amendments made by this section shall be applicable to taxable years beginning after December 31, 1948, except that, in the case of amounts distributed or to be distributed by an estate or trust, the amendments made by this section shall not be applicable with respect to such amounts distributed or to be distributed in any taxable year of the estate or trust beginning prior to January 1, 1949.

Sec. 141. Life insurance trusts.

(a) Section 167 (a) (3) is hereby amended by striking out "or of any person not having a substantial adverse interest in the disposition of such part of the income" and inserting in lieu thereof; "not acting as trustee or cotrustee."

(b) Section 167 (a) is hereby amended by adding at the end thereof the following new sentence: "In cases where premiums upon policies of such insurance are paid out of corpus or out of other than income for the taxable year, such premiums shall be considered paid out of income to the extent of the income of the trust for such taxable year which is not paid, credited, or to be distributed under section 162 and which is not otherwise taxable to the grantor."

SEC. 142. Family partnerships.

(a) In general: Supplement F of Chapter 1 is hereby amended by adding at the end thereof the following new section:

"SEC. 191. Family Partnerships.

"(a) Partnership status: An individual who is carrying on business in partnership and who is a relative of another member of such partnership shall be deemed to be a partner for the purpose of the tax imposed by this chapter if—

"(1) he was 21 years of age or over at the beginning of the taxable year of the partnership or at the date the partnership agreement was entered into, whichever is later; "(2) he contributes either capital or substantial personal services to the partnership;

"(3) the partnership agreement is in writing; partnership books are kept showing the contribution, if any, of such individual to the capital of the partnership and his interest in the partnership income; and no misrepresentation has been made by any partner with respect to such contribution or interest:

"(4) his distributive share in any partnership income is determined on the basis of a reasonable allocation of the income of the business as between income attributable to personal services and income attributable to capital, with the amount of income attributable to such services apportioned between him and the other members of the partnership who are his relatives on the basis of the fair value of the services rendered by each, and with the amount of income attributable to capital contributed by him and such relatives apportioned between him and such relatives on the basis of the capital contributed by each;
"(5) he has an equal right with other members of such partnership who are his relatives to determine whether or not partnership income is to be distributed; and "(6) his distributed share of the partnership income is not subject to any control by another member of the partnership.

"(b) Definitions: As used in this section—
"(1) The term 'capital' includes money or other property (including good will and an interest in an existing business) acquired by an individual at any time by purchase, be quest, device, inheritance, or bona fide gift from any person even though such person is his partner and relative. A gift is a bona fide gift if the donce has absolute control over the money or property acquired.

"(2) The term 'relative' means an individual who bears any of the following rela-tionships either to the partner or his spouse: (A) spouse, (B) son or daughter, or a descendant of either, (C) brother or sister, (D) father or mother, or an ancestor of either, (E) stepfather or stepmother, (F) son or daughter of a brother or sister, (G) brother or sister of the father or mother, (H) son-inlaw, daughter-in-law, father-in-law, motherin-law, brother-in-law, or sister-in-law. As used in this paragraph the terms 'brother' and 'sister' include a brother or sister by the half-blood. For the purpose of determining whether any of the foregoing relationships exist, a legally adopted child of a person shall be considered a child of such person by blood and a trust or an estate shall be emed to be a relative of another partner if a beneficiary thereof is a relative of such other partner.

"(3) The term 'individual' includes a trust created by the will of a deceased partner, a trust where neither the grantor nor any trustee is a partner or the spouse of a partner, and the estate of a partner who is deceased or who is incompetent (other than by reason of minosity). Such term also includes a guardian of a minor if such guardian is not a relative of such minor, and if no capital contributed to the partnership by such guardian on behalf of such minor originated with any partner."

(b) Taxable years to which applicable: The amendment made by subsection (a) shall be applicable only with respect to partnership taxable years beginning after December 31,

(c) Treatment of family partnerships for taxable years 1941-47:

(1) Partnership status: An individual who was carrying on business in partnership dur-ing any taxable year beginning after December 31, 1940, and before January 1, 1948, and who was a relative of an individual who was a member of such partnership during any such taxable year shall be deemed to be a partner for such taxable year for the purpose of the tax imposed by chapter 1 of the Internal Revenue Code if-

(A) with respect to any such taxable year, was 21 years of age or over at the beginning of the taxable year of the partnership or at the date the partnership agreement was entered into, whichever is later;

(B) he contributed either capital or substantial personal services to the partnership;

(C) in cases where formal books of account were kept by the partnership, such books of account show the contribution, if any, of the taxpayer to the capital of the partnership and his interest in the partnership income;

(D) his distributed share of the partnership income was not subject to absolute control by another member of the partnership; and

(E) he had an equal right with other members of such partnership who are his relatives to determine whether or not partner-ship income was to be distributed.

(2) Computation of distributive share: For the purposes of section 182 of the Internal Revenue Code, the distributive share of an individual, with respect to whom the requirements of paragraph (1) of this sub-section have been complied with, in any partnership income shall be an amount which is determined on the basis of a reasonable allocation of the income of the partnership as between income attributable to personal services and income attributable to capital, with the amount of income attributable to such services apportioned between him and the other members of the partnership who are his relatives on the basis of the fair value of the services rendered by each, and with the amount of income attributable to capital contributed by him and such relatives apportioned between him and such relatives on the basis of the capital contributed by each.

(3) Definitions: As used in this subsection the terms "capital," "relative," and "individual" shall have the meaning assigned to them in section 191 (b) of the Internal Revenue Code.

(d) Taxable years to which applicable: The provisions of subsection (c) shall be applicable to taxable years beginning after December 31, 1940, and prior to January 1, 1948, at the election of the taxpayer, made in accordance with regulations prescribed by the Commissioner with the approval of the Secretary. Such election shall not be allowed unless in accordance with such regulations, the taxpayer and his partners who are his relatives consent in writing to the assessment, within such period as may be agreed upon with the Commissioner, of any deficiency attributable to such election, even though at the time of the filing of such consent the assessment of such deficiency would otherwise be prevented by the operation of any law or rule of law; and such assessment and collection may be made notwithstanding any provision of the internal revenue laws or any rule of law which would otherwise prevent such assessment and collection.

SEC. 143. Capital gains of nonresident alien individuals.

(a) Section 211 (a) (1) (B) (relating to tax on nonresident alien individuals not engaged in trade or business within the United States) is hereby amended to read as follows:

"(B) Capital gains of aliens temporarily present: In the case of a nonresident alien individual not engaged in trade or business in the United States, there shall be levied, collected, and paid for each taxable year, in addition to the tax imposed by subparagraph

"(i) if he is present in the United States for a period or periods aggregating less than 90 days during such taxable year—a tax of 30 percent of the amount by which his gains, derived from sources within the United States, from sales or exchanges of capital assets effected during his presence in the United States exceed his losses allocable to sources within the United States, from such sales or exchanges effected during such presence; or

"(ii) if he is present within the United States for a period or periods aggregating 90 days or more during such taxable year-a tax of 30 percent of the amount by which his gains, derived from sources within the United States, from sales or exchanges of capital assets effected during such year exceed his losses, allocable to sources within the United States, from such sales or exchanges effected during such year.

For the purposes of this subparagraph, gains and losses from sales or exchanges of capital assets shall be computed without regard to the provisions of section 117 (b), and such losses shall be determined without the benefit of the capital loss carry-over provided in section 117 (e).

"(C) Cross reference: For inclusion in computation of tax of amount specified in share-holder's consent, see section 28."

SEC. 151. Short sales of capital assets.

(a) Section 117 (relating to capital gains and losses) is hereby amended by adding at the end thereof the following new sub-

"(1) Short sales, etc.: In the case of a short sale of property made by the taxpayer after May 31, 1948:

(1) Short-term gains and holding periods: If substantially identical property has been held by the taxpayer on the date of such short sale for not more than 6 months (de-termined without regard to the effect, under subparagraph (B) of this paragraph, of such short sale on the holding period), or if substantially identical property is acquired after such short sale and on or before the date of the closing thereof-

"(A) any gain upon the closing of such short sale shall be considered as a gain upon the sale or exchange of a capital asset held for not more than 6 months (notwithstanding the period of time any property used by the taxpayer to close such short sale has been held); and

"(B) the holding period of such substantially identical property shall be considered to begin (notwithstanding the provisions of subsection (h)) on the date of the closing of the short sale, or on the date of a sale, gift, or other disposition of such property, whichever date occurs first. This subparagraph shall apply to such substantially identical property in the order of the dates of the acquisition of such property, but only to so much of such property as does not exceed the quantity sold short.

"(2) Long-term losses: If substantially identical property has been held by the tax-payer on the date of such short sale for more than 6 months, any loss upon the closing of such short sale shall be considered as a loss upon the sale or exchange of a capital asset held for more than 6 months (notwithstanding the period of time any property used by the taxpayer to close such short sale has been held, and notwithstanding the provisions of subsection (g) (2)).

"(3) Rules for application of subsection: "(A) The provisions of paragraph (1) (A) or (2) shall not apply to the gain or loss, respectively, on any quantity of property used to close such short sale which is in excess of the quantity of the substantially identical property referred to in the applicable paragraph.

"(B) For the purposes of this subsection-"(i) the term 'property' includes only stock, securities, or commodity futures which are capital assets in the hands of the taxpayer; and

'(ii) an option to sell such property at a fixed price shall be considered as a short sale, and the exercise or failure to exercise such option shall be considered as a closing of such short sale."

(b) The amendment made by this section shall be applicable with respect to taxable years ending after May 31, 1948.

TITLE II-ESTATE AND GIFT TAXES

SEC. 207. Transfers for public, charitable, and religious uses.

(a) Section 812 (d) (relating to transfers for public, etc., uses) is hereby amended to read as follows:

"(d) Transfers for public, charitable, and religious uses: The amount of all bequests, legacies, devises, or transfers (including the interest which falls into any such bequest, legacy, devise, or transfer as a result of an irrevocable disclaimer of a bequest, legacy, devise, transfer, or power, if the disclaimer made prior to the date prescribed for the filing of the estate tax return) to or for the use of:

"(1) the United States, any State, Territory or any political subdivision thereof or the District of Columbia, or any possession of the United States, for exclusively public

"(2) a corporation, trust, or community chest, fund or foundation, created or organized in the United States or in any possession thereof or under the law of the United States or of any State or Territory, or of the District of Columbia, or of any possession of the United States, organized and operated exclusively for religious, charitable, scientific, veteran rehabilitation service, literary, or educational purposes, including the encouragement of art and the prevention of cruelty to children or animals, no part of the net earnings of which inures to the benefit of any private shareholder or individual, and no substantial part of the activities of which is carrying on propaganda, or otherwise at-tempting, to influence legislation; or

"(3) posts or organizations of war veterans, or auxiliary units or societies of, or trusts or foundations for, any such posts or organizations, if such posts, organizations, units, societies, trusts, or foundations are organized in the United States or any of its possessions, and if no part of their net earnings inures to the benefit of any private shareholder or individual; or "(4) a domestic fraternal society, order, or association, operating under the lodge system, no substantial part of the activities of which is carrying on propaganda, or other-wise attempting, to influence legislation, but only if such contributions or gifts are to be used exclusively for religious, charitable, scientific, literary, or educational purposes, including the encouragement of art and the prevention of cruelty to children or animals. Property includible in the decedent's gross estate under section 811 (f) received by a donee described in this subsection shall, for the purposes of this subsection, be considered a bequest of such decedent. If the tax imposed by section 810, or any estate, succession, legacy, or inheritance taxes, are, either by the terms of the will, by the law of the jurisdiction under which the estate is. administered, or by the law of the jurisdiction imposing the particular tax, in whole or in part out of the bequests, leg-acies, or devises otherwise deductible under this paragraph, then the amount deductible under this paragraph shall be the amount of such bequests, legacies, or devises reduced by the amount of such taxes. The amount of the deduction under this subsection for any transfer shall not exceed the value of the transferred property required to be included in the gross estate."

(b) Section 861 (a) (3) (relating to transfers for public, etc., uses) is hereby amended to read as follows:

"(3) Transfers for public, charitable, and religious uses: The amount of all bequests, legacies, devises, or transfers (including the interest which falls into any such bequest, legacy, devise, or transfer as a result of an irrevocable disclaimer of a bequest, legacy, devise, transfer, or power, if the disclaimer is made prior to the date prescribed for the filing of the estate tax return) to or for the use of:

"(A) the United States, any State, Territory, or any political subdivision thereof or the District of Columbia, or any possession of the United States, for exclusively public purposes; or

"(B) a corporation, trust, or community chest, fund or foundation, created or or-ganized in the United States or in any possession thereof or under the law of the United States or of any State or Territory, or of the District of Columbia, or of any possession of the United States, organized and operated exclusively for religious, charitable, scien-tific, veteran rehabilitation service, literary or educational purposes, including the encouragement of art and the prevention of cruelty to children or animals (but in the case of contributions or gifts to a trust, chest, fund, or foundation, only if such contributions or gifts are to be used within the United States or any of its possessions exclusively for such purposes), no part of the net earnings of which inures to the benefit of any private shareholder or individual, and no substantial part of the activities of which is carrying on propaganda, or otherwise at-tempting, to influence legislation; or

(C) posts or organizations of war veterans, or auxiliary units or societies of, or trusts or foundations for, any such posts or organizations, if such posts, organizations, units, societies, trusts, or foundations are organized in the United States or any of its possessions, and if no part of their net earnings inures to the benefit of any private shareholder or individual; or

"(D) a domestic fraternal society, order, or association, operating under the system, no substantial part of the activities of which is carrying on propaganda, or oth-erwise attempting to influence legislation, but only if such contributions or gifts are to be used within the United States or any of its possessions exclusively for religious, charitable, scientific, literary, or educational purposes, including the encouragement of art and the prevention of cruelty to children or animals.

Property includible in the decedent's gross estate under section 811 (f) received by a donee described in this paragraph shall, for the purposes of this paragraph, be considered a bequest of such decedent. If the tax imposed by section 860, or any estate, succession, legacy, or inheritance taxes, are, either by the terms of the will, by the law of the jurisdiction under which the estate is administered, or by the law of the juris-diction imposing the particular tax, payable in who: or in part out of the bequests, legacies, or devises otherwise deductible under paragraph, then the amount deductible under this paragraph shall be the amount of such bequests, legacies, or devises reduced by the amount of such taxes. The amount of the deduction under this paragraph for any transfer shall not exceed the value of the transferred property required to be included in the gross estate."

SEC. 208. Marital deduction in case of life insurance or annuity payments.

(a) Section 812 (e) (1) (G) (relating to life insurance with power of appointment in surviving spouse) is hereby amended to read

as follows:

"(G) Life insurance or annuity payments with power of appointment in surviving spouse: Where proceeds receivable under an insurance contract on the life of the decedent, or under an endowment or annuity contract, are payable in annual or more frequent installments commencing not later than 13 months after the decedent's death, or where proceeds of an insurance or endowment contract are held by the insurer under an agreement to pay interest thereon annually or at more frequent intervals, if, the terms of the contract, all amounts payable during the life of the surviving spouse are payable only to such spouse, and such spouse has the power to appoint all amounts payable under such contract (exercisable in favor of such surviving spouse, or of the estate of such surviving spouse, or in favor of either, whether or not in each case the power is exercisable in favor of others), with no power in any other person to appoint to any person other than the surviving spouse any part of the amounts payable under such contract—

(i) such proceeds shall, for the purposes of subparagraph (A), be considered as passing to the surviving spouse, and

"(ii) no part of such proceeds shall, for the purposes of subparagraph (B) (i), be considered as passing to any person other than the surviving spouse.

This subparagraph shall be applicable only if, under the terms of the contract, such power in the surviving spouse to appoint, whether exercisable by will or during life, is exercisable by such spouse alone and in all events."

(b) The amendment made by this section shall be applicable with respect to estates of decedents dying after December 31, 1947.

SEC. 209. Technical amendments

(a) Section 821 (a) (3) (relating to requirement of estate-tax return) is hereby amended by striking out "$40,000" and inserting in lieu thereof "$60,000."

(b) Section 851 and Supplement E of chapter 3 (relating to estates in China) are hereby repealed.

SEC. 210. Credit for taxes of foreign countries and of Puerto Rico.

(a) Credit against basic estate tax: Section 813 (relating to credits against tax) is hereby amended by adding at the end thereof two new subsections to read as follows:

(c) Same-Paid to foreign countries:

- "(1) The tax imposed by section 810 (after deducting from such tax the credits provided by subsections (a) and (b) of this section shall be credited with the amount of any estate, inheritance, legacy, or succession taxes actually paid to any foreign country in respect of any property situated within such foreign country and included in the gross estate (not including any such taxes paid with respect to the estate of a person other than the decedent). The determination of the country within which property is situated shall be made in accordance with regulations prescribed by the Commissioner. with the approval of the Secretary, in accordance with principles not inconsistent with the provisions of section 862. If the decedent was not a citizen of the United States, credit shall not be allowed under this subsection unless the country of which such decedent was a national, in imposing such taxes, allows a similar credit in the case of a citizen of the United States resident in such country.
- "(2) The credit provided in this subsection-
- "(A) shall not exceed an amount which bears the same ratio to the tax actually paid to such foreign country as the value of property which is-

(i) situated within such foreign country, "(ii) subjected to the tax of such foreign country, and

"(iii) included in the gross estate bears to the value of all property subjected to the tax of such foreign country; and

"(B) shall not exceed an amount which bears the same ratio to the tax imposed by section 810 as the value of property which

"(i) situated within such foreign country,

"(ii) subjected to the tax of such foreign country, and
"(iii) included in the gross estate

bears to the value of the entire gross estate reduced by the aggregate amount of the deductions allowed under subsections (c). (d). and (e) of section 812.

"(3) (A) The values referred to in the ratio stated in paragraph (2) (A) are the values determined for the purposes of the tax imposed by such foreign country.

The values referred to in the ratio stated in paragraph (2) (B) are the values determined under this chapter; but, in applying such ratio, the value of any property described in clauses (i) (ii), and (iii) of such ratio shall be reduced by such amount as will properly reflect, in accordance with regulations prescribed by the Commissioner with the approval of the Secretary, the deductions allowed in respect thereof under subsections (c), (d), and (e) of section 812, "(4) The credit provided in this subsec-tion shall be allowed only if the taxpayer establishes to the satisfaction of the Commissioner (A) the amount of tax actually paid to the foreign country, (B) the amount and date of each payment of such tax, (C) the description and value of the property in respect of which such tax is imposed, and (D) all other information necessary for the verification and computation of the credit.

(5) The credit provided in this subsection shall be allowed only for such taxes as were actually paid and credit therefor claimed within 4 years after the filing of the return required by section 821, except that—

(A) If a petition for redetermination of a deficiency has been filed with the Tax Court of the United States within the time prescribed in section 871, then within such 4-year period or before the expiration of 60 days after the decision of the Tax Court becomes final.

"(B) If, under section 822 (a) (2) or section 871 (h), an extension of time has been granted for payment of the tax shown on the return, or of a deficiency, then within such 4-year period or before the date of the expiration of the period of the extension.

Refund based on the credit may (despite the provisions of sections 910 to 912, inclusive) be made if claim therefor is filed within the period above provided. Any such refund shall be made without interest.

"(d) Same-Paid to Puerto Rico: If the decedent died on or after March 22, 1946, the tax imposed by section 810 (after deducting from such tax the credits provided by sec. 813 (a) and (b) shall be credited with the amount of any inheritance taxes actually paid to Puerto Rico in respect of any property situated within Puerto Rico and included in the gross estate. Such credit shall be computed, allowed, and refund based thereon made, as provided in section 813 (c)."

(b) Technical amendment: Effective with respect to estates of decedents dying on or after March 22, 1946, section 813 (b) is hereby amended by inserting after "United States" the following: "(except Puerto Rico)."

(c) Credit against additional estate tax: Section 936 (relating to credits against tax) is hereby amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsections:

"(c) (1) The tax imposed by section 935 after deducting from such tax credit provided by subsec. (b) of this section) shall be credited with the amount of any estate, inheritance, legacy, or succession taxes actually paid to any foreign country in respect of any property situated within such foreign country and included in the gross estate (not including any such taxes paid with respect to the estate of a nonresident not a citizen of the United States or a person other than the decedent). The determination of the country within which property is situated shall be made in accordance with regulations prescribed by the Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary, in accordance with principles not inconsistent with the provisions of section 862. If the decedent was a resident but not a citizen of the United States, credit shall not be allowed under this subsection unless the country of which such decedent was a national, in imposing such taxes, allows a similar credit in the case of a citizen of the United States resident in such country.

"(2) The credit provided in this subsection—

"(A) shall not exceed the amount by which such tax paid to such foreign country exceeds the amount of the credit allowed for such tax under section 813 (c); and

"(B) shall not exceed an amount which bears the same ratio to the tax imposed by section 935 as the value of property which is—

"(i) situated within such foreign country,
"(ii) subject to the tax of such foreign country, and

"(iii) included in the gross estate

bears to the value of the entire gross estate reduced by the aggregate amount of the deductions allowed under subsections (c), (d), and (e) of section 812.

"(3) (A) For the purposes of paragraph.
(2) (A) 'such tax paid to such foreign country' shall be an amount which hears the same ratio to the tax actually paid to such foreign country as the value of property which is—

"(1) situated within such foreign country,
"(ii) subjected to the tax of such foreign country, and

tax imposed by such foreign country.

"(B) The values referred to in the ratio stated in paragraph (2) (B) are the values determined under this chapter; but, in applying such ratio, the value of any property described in clauses (f), (ii), and (iii) of such ratio shall be reduced by such amount as will properly reflect, in accordance with regulations prescribed by the Commissioner with the approval of the Secretary, the deductions allowed in respect thereof under subsections (c), (d), and (e) of section

"(4) The credit provided in this subsection shall be allowed only if the taxpayer establishes to the satisfaction of the Commissioner (A) the amount of tax actually paid to the foreign country, (B) the amount and date of each payment of such tax, (C) the description and value of the property in respect of which such tax is imposed, and (D) all other information necessary for the verification and computation of the credit.

"(5) The credit provided in this subsection shall be allowed only for such taxes as were actually paid and credit therefor claimed within 4 years after the filling of the return required by section 821, except that—

"(A) If a petition for redetermination of a deficiency has been filed with the Tax Court of the United States within the time prescribed in section 871, then within such 4-year period or before the expiration of 60 days after the decision of the Tax Court becomes final.

"(B) If, under section 822 (a) (2) or section 871 (h), an extension of time has been granted for payment of the tax shown on the return, or of a deficiency, then within such 4-year period or before the date of the expiration of the period of the extension. Refund based on the credit may (despite the provisions of sections 910 to 912; inclusive), be made if claim therefor is filed within the period above provided. Any such refund period above provided. Any such refund shall be made without interest. "(d) If the decedent died on or after March 22, 1946, the tax imposed by section 935 (after deducting from such tax the credit provided by section 936 (b)) shall be credited with the amount of any inheritance taxes actually paid to Puerto Rico in respect of any property situated within Puerto Rico and included in the gross estate. Such credit shall be computed, allowed, and refund based thereon made, as provided in section 936 (c)."

(dl) Technical amendment: Section 927 (relating to credit for State death taxes) is hereby amended to read as follows:

"Sec. 927. Credit for death taxes.

"Such part of any estate, inheritance, legacy, or succession taxes allowable as a credit under section $13 (b), (c), or (d) against the tax imposed by this subchapter, or under section 936 (c) or (d) against the tax imposed by subchapter B, as is attributable to such reversionary or remainder interest may be allowed as a credit against the tax attributable to such interest, subject to the limitations on the amount of credit contained in such sections, if such part is paid, and credit therefor claimed, at any time prior to the expiration of 60 days, after the termination of the precedent interest or interests in the property."

(e) Estates or residents of Puerto Rico:
(1) The heading to subpart IV of part II of subchapter A of chapter 3 reading "Subpart IV—Special classes of residents" is hereby amended to read as follows: "Subpart IV—

Special classes of decedents."
(29) Such subpart IV is further amended by insenting at the end thereof a new section to read as follows:

"SEC. 852. Residents of Puerto Rico.

"In the case of the estate of a resident of Puerto Rico (other than such a resident who was at the time of his death a citizen of the United States and who was not, at the time he became such a citizen, a resident of Puerto Rico) the tax under this subchapter shall be imposed in the same manner as in the case of the estate of a nonresident not a citizen of the United States."

(f) Extension of period of limitations, etc., in case of recovery of taxes claimed as credit: Section 874 (b) (relating to exceptions to general rule as to period of limitation upon assessment and collection) is hereby amended by inserting at the end thereof the following new paragraph:

"(3). Recovery of taxes claimed as credit: If any tax claimed as a credit under section 813 (b), (e), or (d) or section 936 (c) or (d) is recovered from any foreign country, State, Territory, the District of Columbia, or possession of the United States, the executor, or any other person or persons recovering such amount, shall give notice of such recovery to the Commissioner at such time and in such manner as may be required by regulations prescribed by the Commissioner with the approval of the Secretary, and the Commissioner shall redetermine the amount of the tax under this chapter and the amount, if any, of the tax due upon such redetermination, shall be paid by the executor or such person or persons, as the case may be, upon notice and demand by the collector."

Sec. 211. Requirement of transfer certificates, Section 828 (relating to certain cross-references) is hereby renumbered section 829, and there is inserted immediately following section 827 the following new section:

"SEC. 828. Transfer Certificates.

"If any corporation or its transfer agent or registrar transfers certificates of its stock or bonds situated in the United States and standing in the name of or known by such corporation or its agent to belong to a non-resident decedent, or if any corporation or person transfers, removes, or extinguishes a property right situated in the United States of the estate of a nonresident decedent (such as a debt, stock, bond, or note) issuing from or enforcible against corporation or person, or if any bank, trust company, or custodian in possession of property situated in the United States of the estate of a nonresident decedent transfers or removes such property (whether or not such stock, bend, property right, or property was jointly held with one or more other persons), before the tax, interest, and penalties, if any, imposed by this chapter with respect to the estate of such nonresident decedent is fully paid or pro-vided for to the satisfaction of the Commissioner, such corporation, agent, registrar, person, bank, trust company, er custodian shall be personally liable for such tax, interest, and penalties, to the extent of the value at the time of the decedent's death of such stock, bends, property right, or property, unless prior to such transfer, removal, or extinguishment, the Commissioner issues his certificate permitting the transfer, removal, or extinguishment of such stock, bonds, property, or property rights without personal liability or unless under regulations, prescribed by the Commissioner with the approval of the Secretary, such transfer, removal, or extinguishment may be made without such certificate."

SEC. 212. Period of limitation upon assessment and collection.

(a) Section 874 (b) (relating to exceptions to period of limitation upon assessment and collection) is hereby amended by adding at the end thereof the following new parsgraph:

paragraph:

"(4) Omission from gross estate: If the executor fails to make disclosure in or with the return of property the value of which is properly includible in the gross estate and such value exceeds 25 percent of the value of the gross estate stated in the return, the tax may be assessed or a proceeding in court for the collection of such tax may be begun without assessment at any time within 5 years after the return was filed."

(b) Effective date: The amendment made

(b) Effective date: The amendment made by this section shall be applicable only with respect to returns filed after the date of enactment of this act.

SEC. 213. Exemption from the additional estate tax for members of armed forces.

(a) Subchapter B of chapter 3 (relating to additional estate tax) is hereby amended by adding at the end thereof the following new section:

"SEC. 939. Members of the Armed Forces.

"The tax imposed by section 935 shall not apply to the transfer of the net estate of a citizen or resident of the United States dying on or after December 7, 1941, and before January 1, 1947, while in active service as a member of the military or naval forces of the United States er of any of the other United Nations if such decedent—

"(1) was killed in action; or

"(2) died as a result of wounds or other injuries, or of disease, suffered while in line of duty by reason of a hazard to which he was subjected as an incident of military or naval service."

(b) If the refund of any overpayment resulting from the application of this section is prevented on the date of the enactment of this act, or within I year from such date, by the operation of any law or rule of law (other than section 3761 of the Internal Revenue Code, relating to compromises), refund of such overpayment may, nevertheless, be made if claim therefor is filed within I year from the date of the enactment of this act. No interest shall be paid on any overpayment resulting from the application of this section.

PARTI IL-GIFT TAX

SEC. 251. Reciprocal trusts.

Section 1000 (relating to imposition of gift tax) is hereby amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

"(g) Certain reciprocal trusts: In the case of property in a trust created prior to January I, 1940, if and to the extent that such property may be deemed to have been transferred to such trust by a person other than the nominal grantor of such property (by reason of the fact that such person has made a reciprocal transfer of property in trust), then a relinquishment by such person on or before December 31, 1948, of any power over such property or the income therefrom shall not be deemed a transfer of property for the purposes of this chapter. If such property was transferred in trust while a law was in effect imposing a tax upon the transfer of property by gift, this subsection shall apply only if (1) a gift tax was paid with respect to the aforesaid reciprocal transfer of property, and not credited or refunded, by the person relinquishing such power, or (2) a gift tax return was made by such person on account of such reciprocal transfer within the time prescribed but no gift tax was paid with respect to such reciprocal transfer because of the deductions and exclusions claimed on such return. If a relinquishment is exe-cuted under this subsection, then such reciprocal transfer made by the person relin-quishing such power shall for all purposes be deemed to have been a completed gift at the time when such reciprocal transfer was made."

(a) For the purposes of chapter 1 of the Internal Revenue Code, if after March 11, 1941, and prior to July 1, 1945, stock in a corporation held by a testamentary trust was exchanged by such trust solely for other stock and securities in such corporation, in pursuance of a recapitalization of the corporation under the applicable State law, and if the stock and securities so received by such trust are surrendered prior to January 1, 1949, to the corporation solely in exchange for stock identical in character and amount with that held by the trust prior to the original exchange, no gain, profit, income, loss, or deduction (from such exchange or reexchange) shall be recognized to the corporation or to the trust.

(b) In the case of stock acquired by the trust in a reexchange described in subsection (a), the basis for determining gain or loss in the hands of the trust, or any per-son in whose hands the basis is determined by reference to the basis in the hands of the trust, shall be the same as the basis of the stock originally exchanged by the trust in connection with such recapitalization. SEC. 312. Travel of field employees.

Section 4040 (relating to posts of duty of employees in field service or traveling) is hereby amended by adding at the end there-of the following new sentence: "Authorization of employees of the internal revenue service to travel on official business may be provided by any officer or employee of the internal revenue service designated by the Commissioner.".

The SPEAKER. Is a second demanded?

Mr. DOUGHTON. Mr. Speaker, I demand a second.

Mr. EBERHARTER. Mr. Speaker, a parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. EBERHARTER. Is not one who is opposed to the bill entitled to recognition to demand a second?

The SPEAKER. The gentleman is correct. Is the gentleman from North Carolina [Mr. Doughton] opposed to the bill?

Mr. DOUGHTON. Mr. Speaker, I am in favor of the bill.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman does not qualify to demand a second. Is the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. EBERHARTER] opposed to the bill?

Mr. EBERHARTER. Mr. Speaker, I am opposed to the bill.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman qualifies.

Mr. EBERHARTER. Mr. Speaker, I demand a second.

Mr. Speaker, I ask Mr. KNUTSON. unanimous consent that a second be considered as ordered.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Minnesota?

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Minnesota [Mr. Knutson] is recognized for 20 minutes, and the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. EBERHARTER] is recognized for 20 minutes.

Mr. KNUTSON. Mr. Speaker, the bill H. R. 6712 which we have before us today is a revenue revision measure and, in my opinion, the bill represents a new and progressive era in revenue revision. It is not designed to raise revenue or to reduce taxes, nor does this measure contain any excise tax provisions. Rather it is a bill to alleviate hardships, remove inequities, and simplify the administration of our tax laws.

May I say that the committee has worked for over 13 months on this meas-We began hearings on the 9th day of May 1947, and we have worked practically continuously ever since.

I shall not take much time on the bill, because it is highly technical, as every member of the committee will agree, but I do wish to say that this legislation is something that the country needs very much. I doubt if there are any who have had experience with the administration of the Internal Revenue Code who are not in favor of Congress ironing out the wrinkles and removing the inequities

Mr. Speaker, it is significant that the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. EBER-

HARTER], who now says he is against the bill, which, of course, is nothing out of the ordinary or unusual, did not vote against reporting the measure out. The bill H. R. 6712 was voted out of the committee without a dissenting vote. gentleman from Pennsylvania was there at the time. I realize, even though we were to bring in and propose to enact into legislation the Ten Commandments, that the gentleman from Pennsylvania would find something highly objectionable in what was proposed to be done, and if he does not believe in the Bible, it is because he did not write it.

Mr. DOUGHTON. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. KNUTSON. I yield to the gentleman from North Carolina. Mr. DOUGHTON. I notice the absence of any minority report or any minority views or anything in opposition to the bill. Usually minority views, at least, are filed. Mr. KNUTSON. It comes with a complete surprise to me that the gentleman from Pennsylvania is opposed to the bill, but in light of his past performances, I should not be surprised. Mr. EBERHARTER. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. KNUTSON. I yield to the gentleman from Pennsylvania.

The gentleman Mr. EBERHARTER. well knows that several Members reserved the right to oppose the bill on the floor of the House. I think the House should know that. The gentleman from Minnesota also knows full well that on Friday, June 11, I spoke on the bill and I inserted in the RECORD a complete analysis of what my objections were, and I have repeated those objections at all times that I was opposed to the bill.

Mr. KNUTSON. The analyses that the gentleman inserted in the RECORD are suspected of having been made by the Treasury Department.

Mr. EBERHARTER. Then the gentleman admits that the Treasury is opposed to the bill.

Mr. KNUTSON. Oh, the Treasury Department blows hot and cold. They did when the gentleman's side was in control; in fact, on several occasions it was necessary for the distinguished gentleman from North Carolina [Mr. Dough-TON], while chairman—and I want to say he was one of the greatest chairmen that the committee has had in my timeto intimate to the Secretary of the Treasury that certain of his aides were persona non grata so far as the Committee on Ways and Means was concerned.

I might say, further, that we have worked in the closest collaboration with the Treasury Department, and when I talked to Mr. Wiggins, Under Secretary of the Treasury, over the telephone, he informed me that there were only three major items in disagreement. You can imagine my surprise when I received a letter from the Treasury saying that there were 12 matters to which they took exception, and a lot of minor ones. Well, exception, and a lot of minor ones. I say, as the distinguished gentleman from Tennessee [Mr. Cooper] said upon that occasion after the letter had been read, that it would be passing strange if there would not be something in here that would be objectionable to the Treasury Department, and I consider it a great accomplishment that we have been able to report out a bill to which the Treasury could only find 10 percent objection. I hope I have not misquoted the gentleman from Tennessee [Mr. Cooper].

Mr. LYNCH. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. KNUTSON. I yield to the gentleman from New York.

Mr. LYNCH. The committee adopted many of the suggestions and recommendations of the Treasury, did it not?

Mr. KNUTSON. Yes. We met them more than halfway, as the gentleman knows.

Mr. McCORMACK. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. KNUTSON. Gladly.

Mr. McCORMACK. There is one provision that many Members are interested in in relation to the exemption of veterans. I think the chairman ought to explain that to the Members of the House.

Mr. KNUTSON. As I said before, this bill is very technical.

Mr. McCORMACK. There is a provision in there in relation to the GI's relating to the exemption of those getting disability payments, officers and men, subject to the income tax. I think it is $1,200. My understanding is that the amendment is being offered to that.

Mr. KNUTSON. We exempt all payments under the veterans' law, so that is taken care of.

Mr. VAN ZANDT. I think my friend from Massachusetts has reference to paragraph 13, extension of additional allowances for military and naval personnel.

Mr. KNUTSON. The amendment was prepared and offered by the gentleman from Iowa [Mr. MARTIN] and I yield to him at this point to answer the gentleman's question.

Mr. MARTIN of Iowa. With regard to section 106, which has for its purpose the removal of a part of the exemption provided in the present law for ex-servicemen because of physical disability, the committee since this bill was drawn has proposed and adopted committee amendments which lift the exemption to $2,400 of retired pay and which also eliminate the application of this restriction, so that it now does not apply to enlisted men at all and does not apply to any veteran who draws his pay through the Veterans' Administration. Under the pay charts, which I have here but which are too bulky to review, you can say roughly that any veteran of the rank of captain or less who has less than 12 years' service has complete exemption of his retired pay under the bill as amended, any warrant officer with less than 30 years' service has complete exemption, and any chief warrant officer with less than 12 years' service has complete exemption. All officers and warrant officers retired for physical disability carry a $2,400 exemption of their retired pay from income

Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to extend my remarks at this point in the RECORD in order to give a full discussion of section 106 of the bill H. R. 6712

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Iowa?

There was no objection.

Mr. MARTIN of Iowa. Mr. Speaker, section 22 (a) of the Internal Revenue Code, chapter I, defines gross income. Section 22 (b) sets out the various exclusions from gross income and among the items not to be included in gross income and that are granted exemptions from taxation under chapter I is listed section 22 (b) (5) entitled "Compensation for Injuries or Sickness." Section 22 (b) (5) in the present law reads as follows:

Except in the case of amounts attributable to (and not in excess of) deductions allowed under section 23 (x) in any prior taxable year, amounts received, through accident or health insurance or under workmen's compensation acts, as compensation for personal injuries or sickness, plus the amount of any damages received whether by suit or agreement on account of such injuries or sickness (and amounts received as a pension, annuity, or similar allowance for personal injuries or sickness resulting from active service in the armed forces of any country).

You will note by comparing section 106 (A) of the bill, H. R. 6712, and the committee amendment offered to that section by the Committee on Ways and Means the only change proposed by section 106 has reference to that part enclosed in parentheses in the foregoing quotation of the law. The portion of the above-quoted law that I have enclosed in parentheses will be changed by section 106 as amended to read as follows:

Except that if such amounts exceed $2,400 during the taxable year, and the taxpayer also receives during the same taxable year earned income, as defined in section 116 (a) (3), the exclusion under this subparagraph shall be reduced by the amount of such earned income, but not to an amount less than $2,400. The provisions of this subparagraph shall not affect amounts exempt from taxation under the act of August 12, 1935, entitled "An act to safeguard the estates of veterans derived from payments of pension, compensation, emergency officers' retirement pay and insurance, and for other purposes" (49 Stat. 609; 38 U.S. C. 454a).

Payment of benefits for disability incurred in line of duty in the armed services fall into two general classes. In the case of officers the amount of compensation is governed by the rank held by the officer and by his length of service and no additional payments are made to a retired officer because of the seriousness of his disability. An officer is retired whenever he is found disabled for general military duty and the amount of his retired pay is not dependent upon the extent of his disability beyond that point. On the other hand, veterans' disability compensation is based upon the extent of the veterans' disability for civilian employment. Therefore, the assumption that the recipient is handicapped in competing in civilian employment is far more valid in the case of veterans' pensions than is the case with retired officers. This entire matter came to the attention of the Committee on Ways and Means because of the number of officers retired for physical disability who are earning large incomes in private industry while benefiting from the full exclusion of their retired pay under the present law. The maximum compensation that a disabled ex-enlisted man can draw is $360 a month but the higher compensation rates are paid only in cases of extreme disability and necessary care. I should add also that at the time of retirement proceedings an officer who is seriously disabled may elect to forfeit his status as a retired officer and qualify for disability compensation if such compensation exceeds his pay on the retired list. Because the retired pay of officers has generally exceeded the maximum allowances at which they may be entitled under veterans' laws granting disability compensation, I understand very few officers have availed themselves of that

Exemption from taxes of retired pay based upon disability came into the law in the 1942 Revenue Act and with the greatly increased rank of officers because of the wartime expansion of the armed forces the tax exemption granted by the 1942 Revenue Act brought about a great increase of retirements based upon physical disability. The legal sub-committee of the Committee on Armed Services has just completed a very good survey and study of this matter and I refer you to their recent report to the Committee on Armed Services rather than take the time here to set out the very interesting and informative data and analysis contained in that report. I will confine my remarks here entirely to the matter of tax liability. I do not believe many Members of Congress would oppose exemption from income tax any compensation based upon the extent of the disability incurred in line of duty in the armed forces. On the other hand, high retired pay based upon the rank of the officer retired should not be granted complete exemption from income tax, especially in those cases where the disability that is great enough to disqualify the officer for general military service is not a disability to him in a great many civilian occupations. Section 106 of the bill, H. R. 6712, approaches this problem by continuing the tax exemption of all veterans disability compensation. Section 106 as amended also continues the exemption of retired pay based upon physical disability for those officers who have no other earned income. This action is based logically upon the assumption that the total absence of earned income is due generally to the seriousness of the disability of such retired officer. Section 106 as amended will reduce the tax exemption of officers retired for physical disability by the amount of their earned income but in no case will the exemption of retired pay be reduced below $2,400. This is a fair limitation.

I should add by way of explanation that when section 106 was first drafted it did apply to both retired officers and disabled veterans drawing veterans' disability compensation and when the situation was more fully analyzed by the Committee on Ways and Means the committee quickly approved the proposed committee amendment to produce the effect I have described above.

DISCUSSION OF SECTION 107 OF THE BILL H. R. 6712

Section 22 (b) 13 of the Internal Revenue Code and section 10 (B) of the act of August 8, 1947 (Public Law 384, 80th Cong.) exclude from gross income $1,500 active-duty pay of commissioned officers and commissioned warrant officers of the military or naval forces and they exclude also the full compensation of men below those ranks. These exclusions in present law terminate with respect to taxable years beginning after December 31, 1948 and section 107 of the bill, H. R. 6712, changes the termination date from January 1, 1949, to January 1, 1950. The extension of these laws for 1 year was approved by the Committe on Ways and Means and is recommended for enactment by Congress in order to give the armed services additional time to complete their study relating to pay scale of the armed services.

The studies of the pay structure are now under way and have been conducted at the direction of the Secretary of Defense. An advisory commission to study service pay was appointed and this commission has held numerous meetings, instituted exhaustive collection of data, and has held hearings on the subject. The commission recently advised the Secretary of Defense that their studies could not be completed in time to permit a recommendation being submitted to the Eightieth Congress and the commission recommended the extension of the ex-emption through the calendar year of 1949, since the discontinuance of the exemption would be in effect an actual reduction in pay starting January 1949. The Committe on Ways and Means desires to cooperate with the Secretary of Defense in this matter in the hope that the extension of the period of exemption will be beneficial in maintaining the personnel strength of the armed services until the Eighty-first Congress has an opportunity to consider the pay matter.

The Service Pay Commission, which is making a comprehensive analysis of the pay structure of the armed services, met in Washington on May 17, and will meet here again on June 15. Since its appointment, last December, the Commission, of which Mr. Charles R. Hook, formerly president of the American Rolling Mills Co., is chairman, has been meeting at least once a month to receive and review reports from subcommittees and a corps of consultants. Special studies are being conducted in four fields:

- 1. Industrial wage comparisons
- 2. Retirement and allied benefits.
- 3. Special pay and allowances.
- 4. Historical analysis.

It is expected that the Commission will report its findings to Secretary of Defense James Forrestal about September 1. It will make recommendations for pay scales in all branches of the armed services, including uniformed personnel in the Coast Guard, the Coast and Geodetic Survey, and the United States Public Health Service.

In addition to Chairman Hook, members of the Commission include the Rev. John J. Cavanaugh, president, Notre Dame University; Mr. Keith S. McHugh, vice president, American Telephone & Telegraph Co.; and Mr. Lawrence H. Whiting, president of Whiting & Co. and of the American Furniture Mart Building Co. The executive secretary is Mr. John L. Hoen.

DISCUSSION OF SEC. 213 OF THE BILL H. R. 6712

Section 213 of the bill adds a new section, subchapter B of chapter III-relating to additional estate tax. The new section will be section 939 and will provide that the tax imposed by section 935 shall not apply to the transfer of the net estate of a citizen or resident of the United States dying on or after December 7, 1941, and before January 1, 1947, while in active service if the decedent was killed in action or died as a result of wounds, injuries, or disease suffered while in line of duty and because of a hazard incident to the service. Provision is made for refund without interest of overpayment of any taxes already made and 1 year from date of enactment is provided for making application for

The Committee on Ways and Means does not believe that the estate of a member of the armed services meeting the above qualifications should be subjected to the additional burden of an estate tax. A similar exemption was made during World War I.

The exemption provided in section 213 of this bill is restricted to the additional estate tax and does not apply to the basic estate tax. This provision is made in order to avoid interference with the inheritance- and estate-tax laws of the individual States.

Mr. KNUTSON. May I say to the gentleman from Massachusetts that one of the amendments I have sent to the desk by direction of the committee allows a special deduction for expenses incurred by disabled persons traveling to and from work where the use of public transportation results in undue hardship or danger

Mr. McCORMACK. I appreciate that very much. I called that to the attention of the chairman and he cooperated very effectively.

Mr. KNUTSON. The gentleman always has helpful suggestions to make and we always listen to him. He was for years a valued member of the committee.

Mr. McCORMACK. I thank the gentleman.

Mr. KNUTSON. Mr. Speaker, only in a very few instances do any of the provisions of this bill entail any consequential loss and the effect on the budget is relatively negligible. The loss to the budget for the fiscal year 1949, for example, will be approximately one hundred and fifty million, most of which comes from the provision in the bill continuing for another year the exemption from the income tax of the pay of military personnel. The 1950 fiscal year budget will suffer by about three hundred million, approximately one-half of which is again the result of this same provision.

The task before us is long overdue. Not since 1927 has Congress made any thorough study of the Internal Revenue Code in order to keep its provisions in line with our constantly shifting economic forces, and to make it more workable and fair to all our taxpayers. As you well know, our present tax system was adopted in the midst of great financial stress. Like "Topsy" it has been permitted to grow with too little regard for its effect and operation. Fully recognizing the need for general revision of the tax laws, and in conformity with the recommendation of Secretary Snyder, our committee started hearings on general tax revisions early in May of 1947. These hearings were continued through the winter of 1947-48 and embrace over 3,000 pages of printed testimony. More than 100 witnesses from every part of the country appeared and outlined to us particular recommendations for improving and streamlining the effective operation of our tax laws. In addition, the committee appointed a special tax study group of which the Honorable Roswell Magill, former Under Secretary of the Treasury, was the chairman. This committee made a report containing a great many useful suggestions for simplifying and improving our tax laws. We have had, moreover, the benefit of suggestions from the Treasury Department and, as a matter of fact, almost half of the provisions of this bill are based directly on recommendations made to us by the Treasury Department. Furthermore, we have had the constant service of our own staff of the Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation, as well as suggestions from the American Bar As-sociation and many State bar associations. You will fully appreciate, therefore, that this measure is the result of long, careful, and detailed planning; that each provision has been studied and analyzed with the utmost attention, and that there exists today a real need for the remedial provisions in this administrative revenue revision bill.

The bill before us contains some eighty-odd changes in the Internal Revenue Code, and there are provisions which specifically benefit every type of taxpayer. For example, members of the armed forces have received attention under section 167 of the bill, which provides for the continuance for another year of the existing law which specifically excludes the first $1,500 of compensation for officers, and all the compensation of enlisted men, from the income tax. These exclusions would otherwise expire January 1, 1949, and the armed forces have particularly requested us to make this extension effective in order to assist them in attracting high-caliber personnel. This provision will, as I have stated, result in the largest single revenue loss. estimated at $145,000,000 for the calendar year 1949. Moreover, the bill provides that a person who gave his or her life while serving in the armed forces during World War II should not be made to bear the additional penalty of an estate tax. This is similar to the relief Congress granted to persons killed in action during World War I.

The bill contains several provisions specifically benefiting our farmers. The bill provides, for example, for the deductibility as an expense of amounts spent on soil and water conservation, yet at the same time we have been careful to provide that improvements which involve the construction or purchase of assets subject to depreciation must continue to be treated as capital outlays. The bill, moreover, rectifies a congested situation by giving a farmer the option to file his final return on January 31 following the close of his taxable year in lieu of making a declaration of estimated tax. Under present law a farmer in order to avoid making an estimate is required to file his final return on er before January 15.

As in the case of military personnel and farmers, the bill contains several specific provisions which will benefit employees of all businesses throughout cur country. Section 137 of the bill deals, for example, with the over-all problem of employee stock options. The underlying purpose of the provision in this bill is to encourage and increase incentive in employees by giving them a stake in the business, and to eliminate the present uncertainty existing as the result of current Bureau regulations. Under the present law the general rule is that an employee exercising an option to purchase stock from his employer corporation receives taxable income at the time of the exercise of the option to the extent of the difference between the market value of the stock at the time of the exercise and the option price. Actually, you see, at this time the employee has received nothing but stock, and yet he must, under existing law, pay an income tax on what is at most a paper profit. In order to pay this tax, however, the employee must in many cases sell the very stock given him under an option as an incentive for him to remain with the company. Under the provisions of our bill, however, the imposition of a tax at the time the option is exercised is delayed, and in the ordinary case where the option price is approximately equal to the fair market value of the stock at the time the option is granted, no tax is levied against the employee until the employee subsequently sells his stock which he purchased under the option from his company. We have provided special rules to govern cases where the option price differs materially from the fair market value, and we have limited this favorable treatment only if the option in question conforms to certain rules intended to distinguish options which have the characteristics of true incentive

In this bill we have added a new section to the code dealing with family partnerships in order to clarify the existing law in this field, which extends to small businesses in all parts of our country, and in order to remedy an inequitable situation resulting from two recent Supreme Court cases.

This new section provides in general that related members of a partnership shall be partners for purposes of Federal income tax if they meet the tests which are set forth in the section. Family partnerships qualifying under section 191 will determine their distributive share in the manner provided in the bill, and members of the family will not be denied partnership status because the capital they contributed to the partnership originated with some other member of the family if the provisions of this section are complied with. Partners who do not meet the test set forth in the new section 191 are now, however, denied status as partners but they are restricted to the present law and decisions in determining whether or not they are partners and to what extent they are recognized as partners for income-tax purposes.

We have provided new and simpler laws in regard to the taxation of estates and trusts and their beneficiaries. Section 140 of the bill provides that a beneficiary is taxable only on the part of the income as defined in the terms of the trust instrument (or local applicable law), which is also included in the gross income of the trust for tax purposes. Under present law distributions are in some cases taxable to the beneficiary even where the amounts involved do not represent taxable income to the estate or trusts. The distributions out of past accumulations are deductible by the trust and included as income to the beneficiaries to the extent of the current income of the trust. The bill also provides that income received by the beneficiary will be taxable to him in the same way as if he had received it directly, rather than through the estate or trust. As a result of this rule a long-term capital gain received by the trust or estate and distributed, will also be considered for tax purposes, as a long-term capital gain in hands of the beneficiary.

The bill also contains provisions relating to a pension and profit-sharing plan and we have revised the present formula applied to annuities under the individual income tax by eliminating the so-called 3-percent rule which excludes from taxable income the portions of the annual receipt in excess of 3 percent of the price the annuitant paid for the annuity. Our bill substitutes a new plan for the 3-percent rule. In the simple case the amount of the annuity payment to be excluded from the taxpayer's annual income is calculated by applying to the annuity payment a percentage obtained by dividing the annuitant's aggregate consideration by the total sum receivable under the annuity contract during the period of the annuitant's life expectancy at the time the annuity period begins.

In the field of corporate taxes we have amended the net operating loss carry-over by substituting a 5-year carry-forward and a 1-year carry-back for the 2-year carry-forward and 2-year carry-back allowed under the existing law. The bill moreover, redefines the content of the net operating loss in order to eliminate the current discrimination against those businesses with fluctuating incomes

Section 125 of the bill contains three amendments to section 102 of the code which provides for the surtax on corporate earnings improperly accumulated. Our amendments have been made necessary in order to permit corporations to retain in their businesses their reasonable needs in order that they may have a cushion for the less prosperous times which will some day come. Also in the field of corporations the bill contains a clarification of the existing law in connection with certain corporate liquidations. This provision is made necessary by the Court Holding Company case.

Just as we have provided for the relief of hardship cases and inequities, so have we endeavored to plug existing loopholes in our tax structures. The bill, for example, contains a provision relating to the capital gains on nonresident aliens. This is section 143 of the bill which provides that nonresident aliens who have been within this country for less than 90 days during a taxable year are taxed on such capital gains as were realized in the United States during their presence in this country. If the nonresident alien is present 90 days or more then the tax applies to all such capital gains during the entire taxable year, whether or not the nonresident alien is present in the United States at the time the sales took place. The 30-percent tax on net capital gains provided in this bill applies only to those nonresident aliens not engaged in trade or business in the United States. Nonresident aliens who have a place of business in the United States are already taxed on capital gains.

These are a few of the major provisions which this revenue-revision bill contains. Many important and urgent revisions could not be made at this time because of the revenue loss which they would entail. Among these are the double taxation of dividends, earned income, the additional penalty on consolidated returns, relief from unincorporated business, accelerated depreciation, and the elimination of the "notch" provision in the corporation tax on small business.

This bill, however, represents the first step in our tax-revision program. We hope to and we plan to continue our studies on tax revision so that we may place the Internal Revenue Code on a sound, practicable, and workable basis.

Section 106 of your committee's bill limits the exclusion from the income tax in the case of pensions, annuities, and similar allowances for disability resulting from active service in the armed forces. Under the bill where the taxpayer also receives earned income, the exclusion is reduced by the amount of the earned income, but never below $1,200 a year. the bill as reported by your committee this restriction applies to veterans' pensions, as well as officers' disability pay. An amendment is now being offered which will make section 106 apply only to officers retired by reason of physical disability and raises the limit to $2,400 below which the exclusion is never reduced.

As the committee report indicates, section 106 was intended to correct a situation in which retired officers earning large incomes in private industry are also benefiting from the full exclusion of their retirement pay. This is possible because the test used to determine disability in these cases is the officer's fitness for military service rather than civilian employment. Moreover, the amount of the retirement pay depends not on the extent of the officer's disability, but upon his rank at the time of retirement and his length of service.

The assumption that the recipient is handicapped in competing in civilian employment is far more valid in the case of veterans' pensions. These are based squarely upon disability for civilian rather than military activities, and the size of the payment depends on the degree of disability rather than rank or length of service. When recipients of veterans' pensions obtain earned incomes, they usually do so in the face of very real handicaps. Therefore, your committee recommends that in the case of veterans' pensions the full exclusion allowed under existing law continue in effect and that the $1,200 limit be raised to $2.400.

The proposed amendment to section 106 is drafted so as to restrict the application of the section to cases where the exclusion depends entirely upon the existence of section 22 (b) (5) of the Internal Revenue Code. Payments received under the act of August 12, 1935 (49 Stat. 609; 38 U. S. C. 454a) and any other similar veterans' legislation are not subject to the restriction imposed by section 106 of this bill.

RETURNS OF CERTAIN TAX-EXEMPT ORGANIZATIONS

Most types of tax-exempt organizations are now required to file an informational return, although they pay no income taxes. Section 123 of your committee's bill extends this filing requirement to certain fraternal beneficiary societies and educational and charitable organizations. However, these organizations are required to file the return only if they have gross receipts of $25,000 from sources other than dues or assessments, tuition, and gifts or contributions. The primary purpose of this extension of the filing requirement is to give the Government some indication of the extent of the business and investment income of these organizations. It does not in any way change their tax-exempt status

Tuition was excluded in determining whether or not one of these exempt organizations must file a return, so that educational organizations with only a small amount of income from investments or business enterprise would not be required to file. However, the attention of your committee has been called to the fact that schools frequently receive fees and service charges from students in addition to tuition. These fees and charges, like tuition, are essential in carrying on educational activities and do not represent a type of receipt on which more information is needed. For this reason your committee is offering an amendment to liberalize the filing requirement by substituting the phrase payments made by or on behalf of students" for the word "tuition."

The amendment offered by your committee also adds to the list of receipts, which will not be taken into consideration in determining whether one of these organizations must file a return, payment by or on behalf of "patients or inmates." Thus tax-exempt hospitals, homes for the aged, orphanages and various similar types of charitable institutions will not be required to file the informational return because of receipts of these types.

Even where a return is required from a tax-exempt organization by reason of section 123 of the bill, your committee believes that there is no need to make them itemize the receipts from gifts or contributions, dues or assessments, and payments made by or on behalf of students, patients, or inmates. Therefore, this amendment requires that only the aggregates of each class of such receipts need to be shown on the return.

COMMUTING EXPENSES OF DISABLED INDIVIDUALS

Your committee is offering an amendment to H. R. 6712 to provide for the deduction by disabled persons of commuting expenses up to a limit of $600 a year.

It is believed that disabled persons, who despite their handicap are supporting themselves, should be encouraged to continue working. However, present tax laws place disabled persons, who are forced to take taxis or private cars, at a disadvantage because they must pay a tax on the portion of their income devoted to this extraordinary commuting expenses—an expense not required in the case of the average person.

To correct this inequity your committee is offering an amendment to permit special deductions in these cases. A deduction of up to $600 is allowed a disabled individual for expenses paid during a taxable year for transportation to and from work. A disabled individual is defined for the purpose of this new subsection as an individual who has lost the use of a leg, of both legs, or of both arms to such an extent that he is unable during the entire taxable year to use. without undue hardship or danger, a streetear, bus, subway, train or similar form of public transportation in traveling to and from work. The words "similar form of public transportation" as used here do not include taxicabs.

TAX AVOIDANCE THROUGH SHORT SAUES

Under existing law, as it has been since the passage of the Revenue Act of 1942, the tax on a net long-term capital gain is not more than, and may be less than one-half the tax on a net short-term capital gain. Under section 117 (b), for an individual, only 50 percent of the gain or loss resulting from the sale or exchange of a capital asset held more than 6 months is taken into account in computing net income-whereas 100 percent of such gain or loss is taken into account if the capital asset has been held not more than 6 months-and under section 117 (c) (2) the maximum rate of tax on this 50 percent of the gain is 50 percent. It is thus not surprising that various devices have been used to give what is in effect a short-term gain the appearance of being a long-term gain.

A device which has been widely used and extensively publicized is the use of a short sale within the 6 months' period instead of an actual sale, to convert a short-term gain into a long-term gain, and, if circumstances are favorable, to reduce the amount of the gain which is to be taxed. A short sale of stock is effected by selling borrowed stock. At a later time stock either previously owned or bought for that purpose, is delivered to the lender to close the short sale.

As applied to steek and securities, transactions and devices commonly used may be illustrated as follows:

A. January 1 buys 100 shares of stock at $10 per share for a total of $1,000. June 1, sells short 100 shares at $16 per share for a total of $1,600.

July 2, he delivers the 100 shares he bought January 1 to the lender of the stock used to effect the short sale.

Actually, the taxpayer has a shortterm gain of $600, but by deferring delivery of his long stock this is converted into a long-term gain, so that $300 instead of $600 is included in taxable income.

B. January 1, buys 100 shares of stock at $10 per share for a total of $1,000. On June 1, he sells short 100 shares at $16 per share for a total of $1,600.

July 2, he sells 100 shares of stock at $13 per share for a total of $1,800. He buys 100 to cover at $18 for a total of $1,800

Here also, the true result is a short-term gain of $600. But, under existing law, the four transactions are viewed as: First, the purchase of 100 shares in January and their sale in July with a long-term gain of $600; and, second, a short sale in June, closed by purchase and delivery in July, with a short-term less of $200. This results in a tax of $200 instead of a tax on $600.

It should be noted that when a taxpayer having a long position in securities sells short an equal number of shares, bonds, and so forth, nothing that happens thereafter can affect his actual gain. If the market goes down after the short sale is effected, this decline does not affect the taxpayer, since he has sold at the higher price and can deliver the stock which he holds long at any time to close the short sale. On the other hand, if the market goes up, he is similarly unaffected, since any loss resulting therefrom in his short position is exactly offset by a gain in his long position. Although his actual gain is thus unaffected, the tax saving resulting from the use of a short sale may be substantial.

The device of a short sale can be used whenever, within a period of not more than 6 months, the taxpayer is willing to take any gain he may then have, being so uncertain about the future trend of the market as not to risk the chance of the price of his security going down thereafter, or being uncertain whether any additional gain would be greater than probable tax savings.

Having made his short sale, the taxpayer will then use device A above if, after 6 months from his original purchase: the price has dropped below the price at which he made the short sale. If, for example, the price on July 2 is 14, if he used device B he would have a long-term gain of $400 and a short-term gain of $200, with $400, instead of $300, as his taxable income. He will use device B if the price, after 6 months from the original purchase, is higher than at the time of the short sale. The greater such an increase, the less the tax. If, for example, the price on July 2, or any time after July 1, were 24 instead of 18, there: would be, for tax purposes, a long-term gain of $1,400 and a short-term loss of $800, with a deductible loss of $100 instead of taxable income of $600.

Taxation should be based upon realities—upon gains or losses as they actually are—not as they may appear to be. For that reason it is proposed that the Internal Revenue Code be amended by adding new provisions, subsection (I), to section 117, which will give rules intended to eliminate the tax advantages resulting from short sales made at a time when the taxpayer has equivalent property. The provisions of the new subsection will apply in the case of short sales made after May 31, 1948.

The new provisions deal with the first situation described above-where the taxpayer sells short within the 6 months' period and delivers his long stock to cover the short sale after he has held it 6 months-by providing that where a short sale is made at a time when the taxpayer has substantially identical property, held not more than 6 months. any gain on the closing of such short sale shall be considered as a short-term gain. Thus, if these provisions were applied to the situation described in A above, the taxpayer, instead of having a long-term gain of $600 as under existing law, would have a short-term gain of $600.

The situation described in the second example—where the taxpayer buys stock to cover his short sale, and sells his long stock independently when it has been held more than 6 months-is dealt with by a provision which treats the holding period of the long stock as beginning on the date the short sale is closedunless it is disposed of previous to that date, in which case, the date of such disposition starts the building period. If this provision were applied to the illustration given in B above, the $800 gain on the sale of the long stock would become a short-term gain, since the holding period would be 1 day-beginning on July 2 when the short sale was closedinstead of 6 months and 1 day. The loss on the closing of the short position would still be a short-term loss of $200, but such a loss offsetting a short-term gain of $800 leaves, as the amount to be included in taxable income, the actual net gain of $600

These two provisions apply only to the extent that, at the time of the short sale, the taxpayer has substantially identical property which he has held not more than 6 months at that time. Thus, these provisions do not apply to a normal short sale effected at a time when the taxpayer does not own substantially identical property. Neither do they apply if the substantially identical property has been held by the taxpayer for more than 6 months at the time the short sale is made, since in that case a long-term gain would result whether the taxpayer sold his long stock outright or indirectly by means of a short sale.

Another provision deals with a loss arising from the closing of a short sale, where the taxpayer has substantially identical property which he has held for more than 6 months at the time of the short sale. Here there is no question of converting a short-term gain into a longterm gain, but by making a short sale instead of selling his stock directly, the taxpayer can offset any loss that may arise from buying stock in the open market to close his short position against double the amount of long term gain. For example, if stock which was acquired at 10 and has been held more than 6 months is selling at 16, the taxpayer may make a short sale at that time. If subsequently the market goes up to 20, there is a loss of 4 points on his short position offset by a gain of 4 points in his long position. Under existing law, if the taxpayer then buys to close his short sale and sells his long stock, he will have a long-term gain of $1,000, of which $500 is taken into account, offset by a shortterm loss of $400, leaving $100 net to be included in taxable income, whereas the actual gain was $600. To eliminate this device, the amendment provides that in such cases the loss on closing the short sale shall be deemed to be a long-term loss rather than a short-term loss, so that the net long-term gain is $600, with the correct $300, instead of $100, taken into

Instead of using an actual short sale, as in the illustrations previously given, the taxpayer may buy a "put," which is an option to sell stock of securities at a fixed price during a given period of time, even though the market may go lower than the price indicated. If the market does in fact go lower, the taxpayer holding such a "put" will exercise the "put" and sell his long stock at the price stipulated, when he has held it more than 6 months. If the market goes up he will not exercise his "put" and will thus lose the amount which he paid for the option. Since the use of such a "put" can have tax consequences similar to the use of a short sale, it is provided that, for the purposes of the new subsection, such a "put" shall be deemed to be a short sale, and failure to exercise such a "put" shall be considered as a closing of such short sale.

Similar tax avoidance practices are, of course, possible if the taxpayer starts his operations with a short sale instead of with a purchase. If, for example, the taxpayer makes a short sale in January and buys an equivalent amount of identical property in March at a lower price, he may convert the short-term gain into a long-term gain by holding the property thus acquired for 6 months before delivering it to close the short sale, or he may similarly reduce his taxes by matching purchase and sale transactions at that time. To meet such situations, the provisions of the proposed amendment apply not only where substantially identical property is held at the time of the short sale, but where substantially identical property is acquired after a short sale, and on or before the date of the closing of the short sale.

Substantially similar tax avoidance schemes have been, until recently, practiced on a considerable scale with respect to transactions in commodities for future delivery, and to a limited extent are still possible. If, for example, a taxpayer in January buys, through a member of the Chicago Board of Trade, 10,000 bushels of wheat for delivery in September, he may in March sell 10,000 bushels for delivery in September. Ordinarily the sale in March would be deemed the sale of the wheat bought in January, and a short-term capital gain or loss would result. However, many taxpayers have directed their brokers to keep both transactions open. By then ordering the two transactions to be offset against each other at a date more than 6 months after the date of original purchase, or by arranging matching additional purchase and sale transactions, tax results similar to those described above were possible. Alternatively, the purchase of a commodity for future delivery may be made through one broker and the offsetting sale be made through another broker.

In a ruling issued on March 8, 1948, Mimeograph 6243, the Bureau of Internal Revenue has held that such simultaneous long and short transactions in the same commodity, for delivery in the same future period, and on the same market, are shams, and that the gain or loss is realized at the time the offsetting purchase or sale is made. Moreover, the Commodity Exchange Authority of the Department of Agriculture has recently amended its regulations under the Commodity Exchange Act by adding a new section, section 1.46, chapter 1 of title 17, Code of Federal Regulations. This new section of the regulations provides that when any broker makes a sale for any customer when he is at that time long, of the same commodity, in the same future, on the same market, or vice versa, such purchase or sale must be immediately applied against the previously held long or short position. regulation was issued on May 3, 1948, to be effective June 8, 1948.

Whether or not these recent rulings

Whether or not these recent rulings may be effectively questioned, or their effect avoided by devices which do not come specifically within their terms, the proposed amendment would have the effect of eliminating the tax avoidance features of such devices as may be applied in that field.

To avoid interference with bona fide hedging operations by operators of grain elevators, millers, producers of cloth, and so forth, the proposed amendment will apply only to purchases and sales of capital assets as defined in section 117 (a).

The new provisions will apply only when substantially identical property is owned by the taxpayer. No definition of substantially identical is given, since it is believed that the term must be applied in accordance with the actual circumstances of each transaction. As applied to securities, this term has for many years been in section 118 of the code, and various rulings and decisions have been made which will, in general, be equally applicable to the provisions of this proposed amendment. It is not believed that the term substantially identical should be applied to securities of different corporations, nor, in general, to preferred stock bonds as compared with common stocks. However, in special situations where preferred stocks or bonds are convertible in common stocks of the same corporation, it may be that the relative values and price changes during the period in question may be so similar as to make them substantially identical. It is not believed that different commodities, such as corn and wheat, would ever be substantially identical; and, in general, it appears probable that different futures-for example, May wheat and July wheat-and contracts in different markets—for example, Minneapolis and Kansas City—may be so different as to make transactions in different futures, or in different markets, not substantially identical. In special circumstances, however, contracts on different markets, or with respect to different delivery periods, may be in fact so similar as to be substantially identical.

Mr. EBERHARTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 8 minutes.

Mr. Speaker, just a little while ago the Speaker said that this is very important legislation. He said it affects every person in the United States, and with that I agree. Mr. Speaker, is it not a sham and a shame to bring a measure up that affects the pocketbooks of every person in the United States, and to be allowed only 40 minutes' consideration of it? The chairman of the committee stands up and cannot even explain the provisions of the bill. He cannot even tell what one of the important provisions of the bill would do. The committee report does not even contain the usual detailed explanations of the technical sections. Here you are asked to vote for this measure on the last day of the session when any child knows that it is not going to be acted upon finally by the present Congress. So this is all just a question of taking up time uselessly, or passing this in order to promise to the people of great wealth and great means what they may expect in the future from a Republican Congress. There is scarcely a provision here that will affect persons making less than $5,000 a year. The report itself says that it may reduce the revenue by $400,000,000. Where does that benefit go under this bill? That benefit goes only to those of great accumulated wealth. Yes, the bill does a couple of things affecting the workingman. workingman who has to buy uniforms or special equipment on account of his work is allowed under existing law to charge that as an expense. But in this measure, they take that little bit of crumb away from the man who goes out and works in hazardous employment.

Mr. KNUTSON. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. EBERHARTER. I yield, gladly. Mr. KNUTSON. The gentleman's statement is not accurate, and he knows it. One hundred and forty-five million dollars is chargeable to our continuing the law which gives $1,500 exemption to those in the military service, and it was placed in the law at the request of John L. Sullivan, Secretary of the Navy. Why does not the gentleman give the facts?

Mr. EBERHARTER. I tried to introduce an amendment the other day to take care of that very situation, and the gentleman from Minnesota raised a point of order because he knew that the House would vote overwhelmingly for it. He knows I am for that provision which continues the same exemption they had since 1943.

Mr. KNUTSON. Exactly.

Mr. EBERHARTER. So you are not giving them anything extra.

Mr. KNUTSON. Exactly.

Mr. EBERHARTER. And the exemption continues under the present law until the end of the year. So you are not doing a thing extra for them.

Mr. KNUTSON. And it is costing us in revenue $145,000,000. Will the gentleman deny that?

Mr. EBERHARTER. I am not denying that that is a good provision.

Mr. KNUTSON. Why does not the gentleman stick to the facts?

Mr. EBERHARTER. The gentleman himself objected to the consideration of an identical provision the other day. The benefits will not be shut off under the present law until January 1, 1949.

Of course, the committee knew that it made some errors in passing out this bill so rapidly. Now they have come along with a lot of amendments, committee amendments. Yet they want to consider the measure in 40 minutes. Here is where the number of loopholes is increased and the loopholes made larger.

First, you know that during the war, partnerships increased fourfold. The Treasury started to investigate that mat-They found that men who were in the high-income surtax brackets would form a partnership taking in as partners with them their wife or cousin or a couple of sons, thereby reducing the bracket in which they had to pay tax, and thus saving to themselves and their families thousands upon thousands of dollars.

The Treasury Department caught up with those tax dodgers. Yet here in this bill is a retroactive feature, back to 1940, which legalizes all this tax dodging that occurred during the war.

Mr. CURTIS. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. EBERHARTER. I cannot yield. My time is limited.

This bill legalizes that tax-dodging practice back to 1940.

Mr. CURTIS. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. EBERHARTER. I decline to yield. I do not have the time.

Second. Another thing this bill does, and an example is in the RECORD. I put it in the RECORD on Friday, June 11. der certain provisions of this bill, with relation to estate taxes on insurance proceeds, a man can get an insurance policy for his wife and three children, for instance. He dies, and he pays no estate tax, even though the value of his estate in insurance may exceed a million dollars. He can distribute a million dollars by using the technical definitions and other provisions of this bill. So we are taking care of the wealthy again. It is not without reason that there have been advertisements in the newspapers by tax experts, by banks and trust companies, reviewing the last tax bill, saying: "Bring your will in. We want to reexamine it in view of the provisions contained in the Revenue Act of 1948."

Now, if the provisions of this bill become law, every tax accountant in the country, every tax lawyer will have still more business from the wealthy people. They would all distribute their estates differently. They would all form family partnerships, or they would all find ways in which to dodge taxes.

Mr. Speaker, where would these taxes come from? The $400,000,000 that they even admit in their own report would be lost by this bill? Who is going to pay those taxes? I will tell you who will pay those taxes. The workingman; the man in the bracket up to five, six, seven, and eight thousand dollars.

Another nice thing they did in this bill: For years and years executives of large corporations have been trying to get Congress to legalize what is known as the stock-option plan. By that, corporations give their high-salaried executives, in lieu of salary, an option on their stock.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. CANFIELD). The time of the gentleman from Pennsylvania has expired.

Mr. EBERHARTER. I yield myself two additional minutes, Mr. Speaker.

Now, the Congress never saw fit to do that, because they knew these corporations could give a stock option to an executive, and then, after a few years, he would sell that stock and would only have to pay the capital-gains tax of 35 percent: whereas, if he received the salary as cash compensation, he would have to pay a higher tax rate, perhaps 50 or 60 or 70 percent. So, finally, on the last day of the session, they slip this bill in with 40 minutes' debate, 20 minutes for the opposition.

Mr. SABATH. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. EBERHARTER. I yield.

Mr. SABATH. This is a bill to relieve those rich people of their income taxes.

Mr. EBERHARTER. That is correct. There is another nice thing. empt from the estate tax the value of the interest of these big corporation executives in a pension plan. In other words, in lieu of giving him all of his salary on which he pays a higher income tax rate. they say, "We will give you a pension. After you quit work you will be getting practically the same salary you are getting now." The interest of a surviving widow or other dependent in such a pension or annuity would be excluded from the gross estate of the exemptive. Of course, everybody is exempt from estate tax up to the extent of $60,000. So this provision is just to lower the tax rate on anybody leaving an estate of more than $60 000

Yes, Mr. Speaker, this is a great day. I am going to ask for the reading of the bill. I am going to ask for the reading of every word in the bill, and then, perhaps, some of the Members will realize what is being done.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The time of the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. EBERHARTER] has expired.

Mr. KNUTSON. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Florida [Mr. SMATHERS].

Mr. SMATHERS. Mr. Speaker, I have asked for this time to go a little more fully into section 106 which has to do with the tax which will be applied to military personnel. The committee has agreed to raise the exemption to $2,400 rather than leave it at $1,200. As I understand it what this means is that a man in the services who lost both arms or both legs and receives a pension which might go up as high as $2,400 a year it will be exempt from taxation. But anything he may earn by reason of his own labor over and above his $2,400 pension is taxable and in some cases his tax exemption on his pension will be reduced.

Now, when these boys came out of the service the Government spent a great deal of money training them to become useful citizens and again take their place in society. We have trained these men to earn a portion of their living. Now we turn around and penalize them by taxing them on the money they derive from their own efforts. It seems to be a very unwise, inconsistent policy and constitutes a waste of the taxpayers' money. I do not think it ought to be done.

The report on this bill indicates a saving will be effectuated to some corporations of $71,000,000-which may be justified but not when the loss in revenue is to be made up by taxing the pensions of paraplegics, amputees, and combat injured veterans.

Mr. KEATING. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. SMATHERS. I yield to the distinguished gentleman from New York.

Mr. KEATING. Would not such a policy lead to idleness on the part of the veterans?

Mr. SMATHERS. Absolutely.

Mr. CURTIS. But it does not do what the gentleman says it does.

Mr. SMATHERS. This legislation instead of being an incentive to work penalizes them for working.

Mr. CURTIS. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. SMATHERS. I yield.

Mr. CURTIS. But the gentleman will find out that this does not apply to any sums veterans might receive from the Veterans' Administration.

Mr. SMATHERS. That is entirely true; but there are a lot of Regular officers who receive their money direct from the Army.

Mr. CURTIS. They can receive it from the Veterans' Administration if they want to.

Mr. SMATHERS. If they do, they get less; and it is my understanding that some Regular officers have to receive their retirement pay from the Army.

I recognize, of course, the purpose that is sought to be accomplished with this legislation. You are trying to work out a situation in this bill where the big generals and admirals who get large retirement pay will not be able to go out and make a lot of money in high-priced jobs while they are still drawing large pensions. Certainly, I sympathize with the purpose; but the result of this legislation in its present form will be to penalize the little fellow-the enlisted men, the lieutenants, and the captains, and the majors, in which ranks were suffered the greatest casualties. In the Marine Corps the highest rate of attrition was in the grades of lieutenants and captains. Certainly, these restrictions on earnings and the tax penalties should not apply to anyone of the rank of major and below.

Mr. BRADLEY. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. SMATHERS. I yield.

Mr. BRADLEY. I believe the gentleman misunderstands the purpose of the section. As I understand, it does not take anything away from the retired personnel but merely provides that he shall be taxed on a certain part of his income.

Mr. SMATHERS. Let me read the section. It reads:

Except that if such amounts exceed $1,200 during the taxable year, and the taxpayer also receives during the same taxable year earned income, as defined in section 116 (a) (3), the exclusion under this subparagraph shall be reduced by the amount of such earned income, but not to an amount less than $1,200.

It does not take anything away from retired personnel; it just puts an unjustified tax on his pension and what he may earn.

The SPEAKER. The time of the gentleman from Florida has expired.

Mr. KNUTSON. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself I minute to call the attention of the membership to the Appendix of the Record, at page A3892, which answers in great detail the points raised by the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. Eberharter] in his extension of remarks of last week.

Mr. EBERHARTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. SABATH].

Mr. SABATH. I presume the minority members of the committee, feeling that in the interest of the country the House will adjourn shortly, have not raised a great deal of opposition to this bill. I further feel that the other body will not have the temerity to pass such an untenable and outrageous piece of legislation.

Nevertheless, I feel that the House should know what the Under Secretary of the Treasury has to say regarding these measures. I quote from his statement, as follows:

Representing the Treasury, I opposed these measures in hearings before the Ways and Means Committee, but they were nevertheless adopted by the committee. If the objectionable features are removed by the House or the Senate we feel you will have to some extent an acceptable bill.

But none of these objectionable features the Under Secretary of the Treasury has called attention to have been removed. In fact, other objectionable features have been added, and this bill is simply another privileged-class bill, catering and exempting certain special interests from taxation—a practice that the Ways and Means Committee has been guilty of during this Congress. That is, reducing the taxes of those who can best afford to pay and unloading that burden onto the shoulders of those least able to pay.

I feel that this bill will never pass; however, the country ought to know to what extent you are going in trying to aid those you rely on for large contributions which you will need in the forthcoming campaign.

Never before throughout all the years have I witnessed such a procedure as is contemplated in passing H. R. 6712. This bill, containing 145 pages, is being brought up under suspension of the rule and only a very few members of the Ways and Means Committee are familiar with its provisions, to say nothing of the membership of the House.

Not only is this bill being considered under suspension, which will permit only 20 minutes for each side to speak, but a request that it be read has been denied by the action of the Speaker.

I fully appreciate that the Speaker is trying to expedite the business before the House before adjournment this evening, but this does not justify his preventing the bill from at least being read for those Members who would like to know its provisions.

It has been stated that of the 82 provisions, 68 have had the approval of the Treasury Department, but, unfortunately, the 14 remaining provisions that have not been approved by the Treasury Department are the loopholes that will work in the interest of those with large incomes who will be benefited again to the amount of about $400,000,000.

Because I am confident that the other body will not dare to match the shameful action of the House, I shall not say any more about it. Since I made my statement the bill was declared passed by the Speaker denying the request that it should be read without really submitting it to a vote.

Mr. KNUTSON. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may desire to the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. Church].

Mr. CHURCH. Mr. Speaker, at long last we have before us a bill to revise the internal-revenue code. Not since 1927 has the Congress made a detailed study of our Federal tax laws and acted on legislation to correct the inequities, simplify the tax system, and generally improve our tax structure. The bill before us is long overdue.

The gentleman from Illinois [Mr. Sabath] who just addressed you called this measure an outrageous piece of legislation and expressed the opinion that this bill would never pass. While there is some doubt that there is sufficient time, in view of the present adjournment plans, for the Senate to act on the bill, nonetheless the passage of the bill by the House will itself be a forward step. When the new Congress assembles in January we will be in a position to take prompt action for immediate enactment of the bill.

I have no doubt that if those who have the same philosophy as the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Sabath) were to control the Congress a bill of this character, however meritorious, would never pass. But there has been a great awakening in the United States, and I venture the prediction that it will be many many years—if ever—before the American people allow their Government to come under the control of those who would use the Federal taxing power to socialize our economy.

My colleague the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. SABATH] has called this a privileged-class bill. He would have us continue the injustices and the inequities of existing law, because those injustices and inequities operate against those who have been successful. Mr. Speaker, when the day comes that it is a crime to be successful, that thrift, hard work, and self-sacrifice are to be penalized, there will be an end of national progress.

I believe in the principle that taxes should be paid upon a basis of ability to pay. That is a sound principle. In general those with the largest property holdings and those with the larger incomes receive and have received greater benefits from the Government than those with no property holdings and little income. No one objects to a graduated income-tax scale.

The principle of ability to pay is not in issue here. The bill before us makes no income-tax reductions. It is simply designed to improve our existing tax structure. It is simply designed to correct certain more or less obvious injustices in the operation of our Federal tax laws and, at the same time, provide increased incentives to management and venture capital.

The bill contains 80 sections dealing with income, estate, and gift taxes, as well as with certain administrative provisions. Only a few of the provisions would entail any material revenue loss. It has been estimated that the total revenue loss by virtue of this bill would amount to around $400,000,000, and this total loss will not be effective for a couple of years. Indeed, of this total estimated revenue loss, about $145,000,000 arises from the provision in the bill continuing the $1,500 exemption from individual income tax of the pay of military personnel.

No, Mr. Speaker, this is not an outrageous piece of legislation. It is outrageous to think that it has taken so long for Congress to act on this type of legislation. A general tax revision of this character is long overdue.

The point was also made by my colleague, the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. Sabath], and by the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. Eberharter], in their opposition to this measure that the House does not have sufficient knowledge of what is in the bill. The fact is, however, that this measure is the product of many weeks of hearings and exhaustive study by the Treasury Department itself, by the staff of the Committee on Ways and Means and by the committee members, as well as by individual Members of Congress.

The hearings on the subject of improving and streamlining our tax laws began in May of 1947. Over 100 witnesses appeared before the committee, and the testimony embraces over 3,000 printed pages. The bill before us embodies the suggestions of many experts. To assist the committee in this technical job, a special tax study group under the chairmanship of a former Under Secretary of the Treasury, the Honorable Roswell Magill, was set up and made its report. And it is my understanding that about half of the provisions of the bill are the recommendations of the Treasury Department.

To be sure, this is a very technical measure. A bill of this nature could never be written on the floor of the House. A single reading of it would not enable one to understand all its contents. The bill is the product of many minds and many weeks of exhaustive study. To try to leave the impression with the country that the measure is being rushed through, without adequate consideration, is pure nonsense.

If this proposed revision of the internal revenue code, as embodied in the pending bill, is so outrageous, why is it that the minority did not file a report? Why is it that the ranking minority member of the committee, Mr. Doughton, for whom everyone of us on both sides of the aisle has great respect, has spoken in favor of the bill? The fact is, Mr. Speaker, that the only people who oppose this bill are that small group who would socialize our whole economy. They believe that the way to help the poor is to destroy the rich.

I hold no brief for the wealthy and the rich. But, Mr. Speaker, one of the things that has made this country great is the fact that each and everyone of us has the opportunity to be wealthy and rich. As each of us strives to improve ourselves we inevitably serve to improve our community and Nation. Those who have the ability and the capacity to create and to produce are entitled to their That is what opportunity reward. means, and this is the land of opportu-That is why the United States of America is the strongest and the greatest in the world. That is why hundreds of thousands seek to come here.

I did not intend to enter into a discussion of the philosophy of government. I felt constrained to do so, because I become very much annoyed with those who try to make it appear that it is a crime to be successful. I become very much annoyed with those who try to make it appear that every rich man is a criminal and should be punished. Our job is to encourage, not discourage, self-advancement.

It is impossible to discuss all the features of the pending bill in the time allotted me. There is one feature of the bill, however, that I believe should receive special mention. I refer to the attempt to furnish incentives to management and venture capital.

On previous occasions I have pointed out that in order for the country to meet the increasing demands there must be not only sustained production but there must be an expanding production. There must be an expansion of existing facili-Existing facilities and equipment must be replaced and improved.

In his message to Congress on the state of the Union, President Truman stated that in the next few years industry must invest $50,000,000,000 in new facilities and equipment. I believe his figure was conservative, particularly considering the plant replacement costs at present inflated prices. At any rate, it is perfectly clear that many billions of dollars are needed by industry to improve, replace, and enlarge existing productive facilities.

But where is this money to come from? There is a very grave shortage of venture capital in the United States today. One of our problems is to encourage the flow of venture capital into private en-

This bill assists in that regard by the amendment to the net operating loss carry-over provision of existing law. Under existing law a 2-year carry-back and a 2-year carry-forward is allowed. The bill before us provides for a 1-year carry-back and a 5-year carry-forward.

Thus, under the proposed change more emphasis is placed on the loss carry-forward than on the carry-back. By this provision both management and investors are given greater incentive, and it brings an advantage to the new businesses which cannot benefit in any way by the carry-back. Likewise, established businesses undergoing a material expansion are favored by the change.

Another provision of the bill which is worthy of mention in this regard is that relating to the improper accumulation of surplus under section 102 of the code. This section provides for the imposition of a surtax on corporate earnings accumulated to prevent the imposition of the surtax on individual stockholders.

In order to reduce the pressure on taxpayers to distribute earnings needed for real business purposes, the bill amends this particular section. In the first place, it places on the Commissioner of Internal Revenue the burden of proving that the accumulation of earnings and profits is beyond the reasonable needs of the business. In the second place, the existing law is amended to provide that the excess of net long-term capital gains over net short-term capital losses of any corporation shall not be included in the tax base on which the penalty tax under section 102 is imposed. And, in the third place, the bill would allow a cor-poration 75 days after the close of its taxable year to make a distribution of dividends and have this distribution deducted in computing the corporation's income for the purposes of the section.

In other words, Mr. Speaker, without entering into all the technical phases of the bill, it is designed not only to correct certain injustices and inequities that have developed in our Federal tax law, but it is also designed to furnish greater incentives to management and to venture capital so that our national economy may continue to move forward. If this were the sole purpose of the bill, that in itself would be sufficient reason for our passing it. Surely we recognize that the key to the problems confronting us, both nationally and internationally, is to find ways and means to stimulate more and more production.

Over the last several years we have allowed our Federal tax laws to become a patchquilt affair. We have even allowed our tax laws to be used for social purposes rather than simply to raise revenue. This bill is a corrective step. I intend to vote for it.

Mr. EBERHARTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentlewoman from California [Mrs. DougLas].

Mrs. DOUGLAS. Mr. Speaker, this bill is in keeping with the legislative record of the Eightieth Congress. Congress has not concerned itself with the general welfare of the people. It has legislated to the benefit of those in the high-income groups.

Mr. Speaker, we are in the last hours We have failed to pass of the session. a bill to control prices. And yesterday, the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. Wol-COTT], backed by the Republican leadership, succeeded in killing the long-range housing program-a program sponsored by both major parties. A battle was waged between the real estate lobby and the American people. The real estate lobby won at the expense of family life in America.

Yesterday this House voted to subsidize the continuance of slums-breeders of delinquency, disease, crime, and des-When I say subsidize, I mean subsidize, Mr. Speaker. Do we not pay for crime? Do we not pay for disease? Do we not pay for juvenile delinquency with hard, cold cash?

What is this nonsense that is talked when Congress seeks to help the great mass of American people? Why is any form of social legislation always referred to as socialism?

If subsidy is socialistic, then this Congress voted for socialism yesterday when it voted to subsidize those who will build penthouses for the rich. When Congress seeks to help those in the high-income brackets, some call that free enterprise.

But if we seek to clean out the slums that rot our American democracy at the grass roots, those same people call that

In the last hours of Congress, what do we do? Take time out to consider this unjust, unfair, loophole-creating, taxrebating bill when time is so precious.

Here we have a small picture of what we have been doing all year long. We have had time for tax cuts, time to take the railroads out from under the jurisdiction of the Interstate Commerce Commission and the antitrust laws, time to pass the tidelands bill—time to further impair the Labor Department, time to strike a blow at social security while vowing to believe in it wholeheartedlytime, in fact, for everything but the legislation that is needed to strengthen the Nation and to give hope and security to the American people and leadership to the world.

By the way, where is the Federal aid to education bill? Where is the health insurance bill so desperately needed? Where is minimum wage legislation? I can tell you-in the deep freeze.

By the way, where is the building fund for the United Nations? There is no time, I suppose, to bring that out on the Does the Republican leadership have the effrontery, in the face of its refusal to bring this bill out, to go on protesting its faith in the United Nations?

But, to get back to the tax bill before us, I would like to point out that the bad features do not total more than 10 or 15 new loopholes in a bill of eighty-odd sections. But that argument is like trying to average horses and rabbits.

We are now being asked to vote for this bill because there has been so much work put into it and because it embodies sound revision of the tax structure. Yes, that is right, but it has some jokers in it, tooand I, for one, will not buy jokers.

Why has this bill been brought to the floor, anyway? The President will not sign it. The Under Secretary of the Treasury, in his letter appearing in the RECORD of June 11, has given us advance notice-in my opinion-that he will recommend a veto.

Why then are we considering it? communication sent by the Republicans after the last tax bill to their contributors via the Republican News, a publication sponsored by the Republican National Committee, throws some light on the subject. Under the title-and I quote-"Do Not Throw Peanuts to the Elephant," we find this language:

Many of our friends feel that, entirely apart from other important considerations, the least they can do to express their appreciation is to contribute a substantial part of their tax savings for this year to insure the reelection of the Congress which made this

Then they have the gall to print the savings of families under the new plan. I read it:

Savings of family of 4 under new tax plan

Net income	Present tax	New tax	Savings
$2,500	$95. 00	$16, 60	$78. 40
$5,000	589. 00	431, 60	157. 40
$10,000	1, 862. 00	1, 360, 96	501. 04
$15,000	3, 658. 50	2, 512, 00	1, 126. 50
$25,000	8, 521. 50	5, 475, 84	3, 045. 66
$50,000	24, 111. 00	16, 577, 92	7, 533. 08

In other words, Mr. Speaker, the Republicans are asking for a kick-back on the first tax bill that was passed by this Congress. The Republican News, in the same June 1948 issue, does not stop there. It goes on to say brazenly:

Don't delay, contribute today.

Don't throw peanuts to the elephant.

Don't count on winning by throwing peanuts to the elephant. The Republican Congress did more than provide a few peanuts for the harassed taxpayer.

We are not going to win this election by sitting around denouncing Democrats or Henry Wallace. We are going to win only by hard work and by liberal contributions. The stakes are too high to take any chance on not winning. If we do not win this year, we may not have another chance.

Mark those words, Mr. Speaker-"the stakes are too high to take any chance on not winning." What are the stakes? Is the bill before us one of them? It won't become law under a Democratic President, but it can be held up as another of the exhibits of what may become law if we have a Republican President and a Republican Congress.

To illustrate just how bad this bill is, let me mention just two provisions which alone should be enough to kill it:

Let me read from the memorandum inserted in the RECORD on June 11, 1948. by the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. EBERHARTER], a couple of examples to show the tax avoidance possibilities under the bill. One relates to salaries of corporate executives paid to them in the form of options to buy stock at less than market prices. For example, consider an executive with a net salary (before exemptions) of $50,000. Prior to this year he would have paid a tax of $38,500 on an additional income of $50,-000, realized on the exercise of an option to purchase stock in the corporation. The tax has already been reduced to $29,-200, or 24 percent, by the Revenue Act of 1948. That, Mr. Speaker, is the tax bill we just got through passing. Remember? This provision in the bill before us would reduce the tax by another 43 percent, to $12,500, for a total 67 percent reduction this year. How's that, Mr. Speaker? I agree with the Republican newspaper that this isn't peanuts.

Mr. Speaker, this sort of carefully selective tax reduction is reckless in its disregard of elementary fairness to taxpayers who continue to be burdened with most of the heavy war-imposed taxes.

The second outrageous provision in this bill is a return to the family partnership device which was such a useful surtax evasion during the war. What does a family partnership enable a taxpayer to do? Consider this example:

Prior to this year a married businessman with two children and an income of $100,000 paid $62,300 in taxes. The Revenue Act of 1948 has already reduced this tax to $45,600 or by 27 percent. If the taxpayer divided the profits in four equal parts between him-self, his wife, and two children, the tax would be reduced by this provision by another 18 percent to $34,400, or a total reduction this year of 45 percent. Such possibilities for tax avoidance would weaken, and might eventually discredit, the income-tax system as the fairest method of producing large amounts of revenue.

So, what we have here is another refund of taxes at the top level of the income brackets and this time we do not even sugarcoat the cut in taxes with any pretense of doing anything for the low income groups which are literally abandoned by the premature adjournment of Congress. The Eightieth Congress has done nothing at all for the old peoplethe mothers and fathers of Americasome of whom barely exist on pensions, and nothing at all for the bulk of the wage earners of the country who are in desperate straits. In fact, there is hardly one of the 80 sections of the bill that has general application to the 48,000,000 taxpayers below $5,000.

Yet, Mr. Speaker, those who introduce this bill still have the effrontery to talk about communism. They are not really interested in whether or not communism develops in this country. They are interested in one thing: Winning the next election at any cost.

Mr. Speaker, this bill goes to the heart of the whole peace program and right to the heart of the problem that confronts us here at home.

We still owe a tremendous war debt. Who is going to pay off that war debt? Who is going to pay for the last war while we continue to talk about the next? Are we going to remove from the shoulders of the high income brackets-those who have enjoyed the highest profits in history-the responsibility for paying the war debt and place it on the backs of those in the middle- and low-income brackets? That is what this bill proposes to do. The House should reject it.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The time of the gentlewoman from California has expired.

Mr. KNUTSON. * * *.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from New York [Mr. LYNCH].

Mr. SABATH. Mr. Speaker, I demand that the words of the gentleman from Minnesota be taken down.

Mr. KNUTSON. I will withdraw the words.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Minnesota?

Mr. EBERHARTER. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman has not asked unanimous consent to withdraw them. He just said, "I will withdraw the words." Let us have a little regularity here.

Mr. KNUTSON. I make the point of order that the objection comes too late, because I had recognized the gentleman

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair will put the request at this time.

Mr. EBERHARTER. He did not make any request, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. CHURCH. Regular order, Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Chair will put the request at this time. Is there objection to the request that the words be withdrawn?

Mr. BLOOM. A parliamentary inquiry, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. KNUTSON. The request that the words be taken down comes too late.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Minnesota asks unanimous consent to withdraw his words, and the Chair puts the question to the House.

Mr. BLOOM. I object.

Mr. EBERHARTER. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, the Members on this side of the aisle did not hear the gentleman say that he asked unanimous consent to withdraw the words: he just said, "I will withdraw the words." I reserve the right to object. I want it clearly understood.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Minnesota?

Mrs. DOUGLAS. I object, Mr. Speaker. Mr. BLOOM. Mr. Speaker, a further parliamentary inquiry. The gentleman from Minnesota did not make any unanimous-consent request.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Chair will put the request to the House.

Mr. BLOOM. Mr. Speaker, I appeal from the decision of the Chair. I ask that the words be taken down.

Mr. KNUTSON. Mr. Speaker, I ask that the gentleman from New York [Mr. LYNCH] be permitted to proceed.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair will put the request to the House. Mr. BLOOM. Mr. Speaker, there was an objection. I objected.

Mr. HOLIFIELD. And the gentlewoman from California [Mrs. DougLAS] objected.

Mr. McCORMACK. Mr. Speaker, a parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. McCORMACK. For the benefit of the Members of the House, may I inquire of the Speaker what the present status

The SPEAKER. The words will be reported to the House as taken down unless they are withdrawn, which the Chair thinks would be a happy solution of the whole situation.

Mr. KNUTSON. I should like to make a brief statement, Mr. Speaker. I had no reference to the gentlewoman from California. I was referring to the applause up in the gallery.

Mr. McCORMACK. The gentleman from Minnesota has asked unanimous consent that he withdraw his words?

Mr. BLOOM. That is what I objected to. He did not.

The SPEAKER. The Chair understands that he did not ask unanimous consent, but the previous occupant of the chair put it as a unanimous-consent request.

Mr. McCORMACK. Has the unani-mous-consent request that he withdraw his words been granted?

The SPEAKER. The Chair is in a little doubt about that. The previous occupant of the chair thought the request had been granted.

Mr. McCORMACK. When a gentleman asks unanimous consent to withdraw his words, that is an admission that he has perhaps unconsciously said something he should not have said, and I hope the request will be granted.

Mr. BLOOM. He has not asked for it. That is the idea.

Mr. McCORMACK. Ask again.

Mr. EBERHARTER. Mr. Speaker, I demand the regular order, that the words taken down be reported.

Mr. KNUTSON. Mr. Speaker, in view of the wise counsel of the gentleman from Massachusetts, I ask unanimous consent that I be permitted to withdraw my remarks, all of them.

Mr. SABATH. I have no objection. The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Minnesota?

There was no objection. Mr. LYNCH. Mr. Speaker, I am glad that the previous discussion was not taken out of my time. I hope, now that we are back to business, we can look at this without any feeling one way or the other. I am afraid that perhaps a little feeling has been aroused against this bill by this occurrence, but we want to be practical about the matter.

This is a bill that has some 80 amendments to the Internal Revenue Code. These amendments are absolutely necessary. Many of them were recommended by the Treasury. To the 80 amend-ments something like 13 objections were made by the Treasury, and only 3 are of any great importance. These matters were given careful consideration by the committee.

It has been said here, and truly so, that no great benefit comes to the people in the low brackets with respect to this bill, but I must call your attention to the fact that it is not a tax bill as such; it is a revision bill that was brought in for the purpose of ironing out inequities that developed. The Treasury Department itself did not, nor did anyone on our side, recommend any cut in taxes whatsoever. We understood that it was going to be a revision bill without a reduction in tax rates. We understood that no excise taxes would be taken up. We understood that the purpose of the bill was to try to cut away the underbrush that has developed in connection with the interpretation of the Internal Revenue Code over the past

Mr. COMBS. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. LYNCH. I yield to the gentleman from Texas.

Mr. COMBS. Is it not true, however, that even a revision, when applied to a tax matter, may have the effect of reducing the amount of taxes that may be paid? Mr. LYNCH. There is no question about the fact that the gentleman has made a correct statement. There was bound to be some loss of revenue because of the inequities that developed, and it was decided that in view of these inequities, even though it should cost the Government a certain amount of money, and the amount of money is small as we look upon it in these days, a revision of the Internal Revenue Code should be made to do away with these inequities. The very fact that the Treasury recognized these inequities should be sufficient to convince you that a revision was necessary. It takes a long time for the Treasury to recognize an inequity, and a far longer time to recommend that the injustice be corrected.

Every recommendation of the Treasury was carefully considered and a large majority of them adopted. We did not adopt all of the Treasury recommendations, nor did we adopt all the recommendations of the joint staff.

Mr. KNUTSON. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 days in which to extend their remarks at this point.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Min-

There was no objection.

Mr. REED of New York. Mr. Speaker, H. R. 6712, as its name implies, is a bill designed to revise the tax structure, not to reduce taxes. The bill is concerned with the income, estate, and gift taxes, and also with certain administrative features of the tax law.

The introduction in the report on H. R. 6712 points out that the bill will remove inequities, eliminate uncertainties for both taxpayers and tax administrators, prevent tax avoidance, simplify the tax system, moderate certain harsh pro-visions, and provide increased incentives to management and venture capital. This is a large order, but I can assure you that the sentence I quoted is not an empty phrase. I shall use the time at my disposal to point out to you specific provisions in the bill designed to accomplish each of these goals.

REMOVAL OF INEQUITIES

The first aim of the bill is to remove inequities. This objective is evident in the provisions dealing with the content of the net operating loss carry-over, reverters under the estate tax, the tax treatment of annuities, lump-sum distributions under qualified pension plans, life insurance under the estate tax, corporate liquidations, and the averaging provision for earned income contained in section 107 of the Internal Revenue Code.

At the present time the net operating loss used in the carry-over to off-set income of prior or succeeding years is defined in such a way that this loss is reduced by the amount of tax-exempt interest, the excess of percentage depletion over cost depletion, and the 50 percent of long-term capital gains not taken into account in computing net income.

Your committee believes that it is not equitable to deny these deductions and exclusions to businesses with losses while they are being allowed to businesses which have net incomes. Therefore, your committee's bill removes the present major limitations now being applied in the calculation of the net operating loss.

Another inequality is corrected in the case of reverters under the estate tax. To illustrate how this works at present assume, for example, that a taxpayer has made a gift of property to a friend to take effect at or after the taxnaver's death. Also assume that the property will revert to the taxpayer in case the friend dies before the taxpayer. In this case the taxpayer would pay a gift tax at the time the gift was made. Moreover, at the time of his death the full value of the property, less a credit for the gift tax, is included in his estate. This is true even though the possibility of his outliving his friend on an actuarial basis may be infinitesimally small. Your committee's bill corrects this inequity by including in the taxpayer's gross estate only the actuarial value of the decedent's interest in such property just prior to his death.

Your committee's bill also removes inequities in the tax treatment of annuities. At present annuities are taxed under the so-called 3-percent rule, the vagaries and inequities of which are now well known. In some cases the annuitants can expect to recapture under this rule the amount they paid for the annuity on a tax-free basis only if they live many years beyond their normal life expectancy. In other cases the exclusions during the first years of the annuity period are so large that they exceed the personal exemption and thus are wasted. Your committee's bill replaces the 3-percent rule with a more equitable formula which spreads the amount returned on a tax-free basis over the normal life expectancy of the individual in question. Thus, in the average case there will be neither a wastage of exemption on the one hand, nor a failure to recapture tax-free, before death, the amount paid for the annuity.

Inequity is also removed in the case of lump-sum distributions under qualified pension plans. Existing law treats such distributions as long-term capital gains only if they happen to be paid under trusteed plans. Your committee believes that the treatment of qualified plans should be the same irrespective of whether a trust is employed in financing the plan. Therefore, long-term capital gains treatment is also provided for qualified plans financed without the use of a trust.

The present treatment of life insurance under the estate tax represents still another important example of inequitable tax treatment. At the present time if a husband takes out insurance on his own life and makes his wife the beneficiary, the payments received from the life insurance are includible in the husband's gross estate upon his death. This would not be the case if the situation involved any other type of property. Therefore, the so-called premium payment, which provides for such inclusions in the gross estate under present law, is removed in order to place life insurance on a comparable and equitable basis in this respect with other forms of property.

Certain aspects of the present laws and regulations governing corporate liquidations also are inequitable. At present if a corporation is liquidated by distributing its assets to its stockholders. no tax is imposed on the corporation on any appreciation in the value of the assets while in the hands of the corporation. On the other hand, if the corporation sells its assets just prior to liquidation, a tax is imposed on the corporation. The two methods of liquidation are essentially the same, and your committee believes that there is no justification for subjecting the second method to discriminatory tax treatment. Therefore, your committee's bill provides that if a corporation sells its assets just prior to liquidation, no gain or loss shall be recognized to the corporation if certain specified rules are followed.

The last example which I shall mention of inequality corrected by the bill concerns the averaging provision relating to personal services covering a period of 3 years or more, where 80 percent of the compensation is received in a single year. Present law limits relief under this averaging device in cases where the work is completed. Relief is denied in situations where an individual is employed continually for long periods but receives portions of his compensation for the work in lump sums at infrequent intervals. Your committee believes that it is only equitable to provide relief in these cases, as well as those where the work is completed.

ELIMINATION OF UNCERTAINTY FOR TAXPAYERS AND TAX ADMINISTRATORS

A very large number of provisions in your committee's bill are designed partially, at least, to eliminate uncertainties for both the taxpayers and the tax administrators. Of the many examples available I shall discuss only the contemplation of death provision under the estate tax, the tax treatment of family partnerships, stock options, the use of 52- or 53-week periods for reporting income taxes, and the tax treatment given to deceased partners where the surviving partners make payments to his estate.

Existing law includes all transfers made within 2 years prior to death within the gross estate of the taxpayer, unless the estate can prove that these transfers were not made in contemplation of death. Transfers made more than 2 years prior to death are not includible in the gross estate unless the Government can prove that they were made in contemplation of death. While the taxation of such transfers has long been recognized as necessary in order to prevent tax avoidance, this feature of the law has resulted in a great deal of uncertainty for both taxpayers and the Government. result has been much needless litigation. Principally this is due to the fact that contemplation of death deals with intent, and intent is difficult for either the estate or the Government to establish. To eliminate this uncertainty, your committee's bill makes the contemplation of death clause inapplicable to transfers made more than 3 years prior to death, and extends from 2 to 3 years the presumption that transfers were made in con-templation of death. This will give much greater certainty for everyone involved and will probably result in some increase in revenue.

The tax treatment of family partnerships represents another area in which your committee provides more certain tax treatment. At the present time, largely as the result of the Tower and Lusthaus cases, members of a family who are also partners in a business cannot be sure of how the earnings from the partnership will be treated for tax purposes. This is an especially perplexing problem where the capital of one partner arose from a gift made to him by another related partner. Your committee's bill provides that where family partners can meet certain tests laid down in the bill, no question may be raised as to the validity of the partnership even though the capital of one partner was originally given to him by another related partner. It is important to emphasize, however, that this provision of your committee's bill will not in any way deny partnership treatment for tax purposes to any partners who can now qualify under present law irrespective of whether or not they can meet the tests set out in the new section. It simply provides certainty for family partnerships meeting these tests.

Certainty of tax treatment is also provided under your committee's bill for employee stock option plans meeting certain specified tests. This, however, I shall discuss more fully at a later point.

At the present time the Internal Revenue Code requires taxpayers to report their income on the 12-month basis, yet for business reasons many taxpayers have been keeping their records on a 52- or 53-week basis as a matter of business convenience. Although not specifically provided for by present law, the Bureau of Internal Revenue accepts reporting on this basis for purposes of the income tax. Your committee's bill removes the uncertainty faced by taxpayers keeping their records in this manner by giving specific legal sanction to this practice.

The tax law is also made more specific in its application to the tax treatment of payments made to a partner after his death. This provision is concerned with personal service partnerships, such as law partnerships. These partnership agreements often provide for the payment of a specified portion of future partnership income for a limited period to the estate of a deceased partner, as a rough equivalent of the decedent partner's share of the partnership assets at the time of his death. The tax status of such payments is uncertain under existing law. Your committee's bill specifically ex-cludes amounts so distributed from the distributive share of the surviving partners and includes them in the income of the estate of the deceased partner in the year received.

PREVENTION OF TAX AVOIDANCE

Many of the provisions of H. R. 6712 are designed to prevent tax avoidance. For example, your committee's bill plugs loopholes in the case of intercorporate distributions in kind, capital gains of nonresident aliens, and exclusion of military retirement pay. Your committee is also offering an amendment to the bill to plug a loophole in the case of short sales of stock or commodities.

A practice has been developing in recent years which leads to an undesirable type of tax avoidance through the distribution of dividends by one corporation to another in the form of stock in trade rather than money. As a result the distributing corporation realizes no income and pays no tax. Because of the intercorporate dividend credit the corporation to whom the property is distributed pays a tax on only 15 percent of the value added by the first corporation. Thus, through this type of an arrangement it is possible almost entirely to escape the corporate income tax. To plug this loophole your committee's bill restricts the allowance of the dividends received credit to the value of the stock in trade in the hands of the distributing corporation. Thus, when the second corporation sells the stock in trade, income is realized and taxable to it even if the stock in trade has not appreciated in value since it was received by the second corporation.

I am sure that most of you are well acquainted with the fact that under existing law capital gains of nonresident aliens are exempted from the income tax. A number of cases have been brought to the attention of your committee where these nonresident aliens are escaping the capital gains tax, although in fact they are in this country for considerable periods of time and are carrying out transactions on American exchanges. Your committee's bill plugs this loophole by subjecting capital gains derived from sources within the United States by nonresident aliens to a 30-percent tax. If the nonresident alien is present less than 90 days during the year, he is taxed only on such capital gains realized while he was present in the United States. If he is present 90 days or more, the tax applies to all such capital gains during the entire year whether or not he was present in the United States at the time of the sale.

The Armed Forces Committee and the Secretary of Defense have already called attention to the fact that military retirement pay is excluded from the income tax even though the recipient of such a pension or annuity may be receiving a large salary from private industry. Your committee's bill plugs this loophole by restricting this exclusion from the income tax to cases of real need. This is done by reducing the exclusion by the amount of any earned income received, although in no case is the exclusion allowed reduced by the bill below $1,200. An amendment which will be offered by your committee, however, will limit this in such a way that it will not apply to veterans receiving disability pensions and to raise this $1,200 limit to $2,400.

Your committee also intends to offer an amendment to plug a loophole now existing in the case of short sales of stock or commodities. At the present time it is possible to manipulate short sales in such a way that gains on risks entered into on the stock or commodity markets for periods of 6 months or less can technically be made to qualify as long-term capital gains. As a result only half of the gain is now taken into consideration in computing taxable income, while short-term capital gains, which would realistically characterize these transactions, are fully taxable. The amendment to be offered by your committee recognizes reality in these transactions. and treats gains on risks taken for periods of 6 months or less as short-term capital gains irrespective of the form in which they may be carried out.

TAX SIMPLIFICATION

A very large proportion of your committee's amendments have simplification as one of their aims. Outstanding examples of this are the provisions relating to estates and trusts, contemplation of death, and deductions for charitable and other similar contributions.

The present provisions relating to the tax treatment of estates and trusts and their beneficiaries are extremely complex, especially those dealing with taxes imposed on beneficiaries when the prior year's earnings are distributed. complexity is so great that even lawyers specializing in the field of estates and trusts have complained vociferously. Much of the difficulty has centered around the so-called 65-day and 12month rules for the taxation of the prior year's earnings distributed in the current year. Your committee's bill eliminates these rules entirely. It substitutes in their place a rule which, in effect, would treat distributions by estates or trusts as if they were made out of any current earnings of the estates or trusts not actually distributed currently. Other changes in your committee's bill improve the equity of the tax treatment of trusts and estates, and it is hoped that it will be possible in the future to do still more along this line.

I have already outlined to you the changes which your committee's bill will make in the estate tax with respect to the contemplation of death provisions. From the standpoint of simplification, this feature of your bill will be especially beneficial.

Your committee's bill makes a series of amendments to the Internal Revenue Code relating to income-, estate-, and gift-tax deductions for contributions to charitable and similar organizations. These amendments are intended to simplify the tax laws by placing the deductions allowed for charitable and related contributions on a comparable basis under all three of these taxes. At the present time one type of contribution may he deductible under the estate tax and not deductible under the income or gift taxes, or vice versa. Your committee's amendment correlates these deductions so that generally any charitable or similar deduction allowed, or limitation imposed, with respect to one of these taxes is also allowed or imposed with respect to the other two.

MODERATION OF HARSH PROVISIONS

The moderation of harsh tax provisions is another aim of your committee's bill. I have already explained to you how harsh and inequitable features of the taxation of annuities, and the taxation of family partnerships are remedied in the bill. Other particularly harsh features of the tax law which also are moderated by your committee's bill include the provision dealing with the improper accumulation of surplus under section 102, the extension of the military exclusions and deductions for another year, the revision of the tax treatment of corporate reorganizations, the leeway granted in the case of deductions for charitable contributions by corporations and the last-in, first-out inventory ad-

Your committee has received many taxpayers' complaints that administrative officials are too harsh in their interpretation of what constitutes improperly accumulated surpluses. Reports have been received that the fear of subjecting earnings to the penalty tax imposed on improper accumulated earnings has in many cases resulted in distributions of funds needed by the corporation for valid business purposes. Your committee's bill contains three amendments designed to reduce the pressure on taxpayers to distribute earnings needed for real business purposes and to remove some of the harsher aspects of this penalty tax.

First, the burden of providing that an accumulation of earnings and profits in certain cases is beyond the reasonable needs of a business is shifted from the taxpayer to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue. This was done to assure the taxpayer that the penalty will be imposed only where there is proof of an improper accumulation.

Second, your committee's bill removes the penalty tax from any excess of net long-term capital gains over net shortterm capital gains. Your committee believed that the application of penalty tax in this case is unduly harsh. When such income is realized by a corporation, it is taxed at 25 percent. This represents the maximum rate at which it would be taxed if realized directly by an individual. Thus the accumulation of capital gains by a corporation does not in reality represent a means of avoiding the regular graduated individual income tax, and your committee did not believe that a penalty tax should be applied in this situation.

Third, your committee's bill provides that dividends paid within 75 days after the close of the corporation's taxable year may be deducted in computing the income of the corporation subject to the penalty tax. Many businesses customarily distribute dividends after the end of the year and it is recognized as a legitimate business practice. To ignore this practice and subject these earnings to a penalty tax in the opinion of your committee is unduly harsh.

Your committee believes that it would also represent a real hardship to members of the armed forces if the present exclusions from tax are not continued. in view of the fact that their pay has not been revised upward for some time. As a result your committee's bill extends for another year the full exclusion now available to enlisted personnel and the $1,500 exclusion now granted commissioned officers. Without this extension these exclusions would lapse after December 31 of this year. Your committee is providing this extension at the specific request of the Secretary of the Navy, who has indicated that a study is being made of the pay scales of the armed forces.

Your committee believes that there are many areas of hardship in the present tax treatment of corporate reorganizations, and intends to give this problem further study. However, one feature of the reorganization provisions appeared so harsh as to deserve immediate attention. At the present time where two new corporations are formed by the liquidation of an old corporation, no tax is customarily imposed as a result of such a reorganization. However, if it is desired to retain the old corporate charter and form only one new corporation, the reorganization would be a taxable one. It appeared to your committee that it was undesirable to compel corporations to follow the first rather than the second type of reorganization where there were valid business reasons for using the latter. As a result your committee's bill provides for tax-free organizations in the latter, as well as the former case. However, certain limitations are imposed to assure the Government that this form of reorganization will not be used as a tax avoidance scheme.

Your committee believes that the present tax treatment of charitable contributions by corporations is unduly strict. Many corporations desiring to make the maximum charitable contributions allowable as tax deductions are unable to determine what constitutes 5 percent of their adjusted gross income before closing their books at the end of their taxable year. Yet present law requires them to make these contributions before the end of the taxable year if they are to be taken as deductions for that year. H. R. 6712 permits corporations to treat contributions made in the first 21/2 months of the succeeding year as charitable deductions in the current year if they so desire.

There are also certain harsh aspects in the tax law applying to last-in first-out inventory adjustments. One provision under this feature of the law provides for the payment of refunds to taxpayers because of the liquidation of inventories during the war which could not be replaced until the cost of the replacements had risen substantially. However, in many cases these refunds have not yet been paid, and in some cases it appears likely that it will be necessary to wait several more years for these payments. This delay is due in large part to the fact that the corporations involved are also faced with complex excess profits tax problems which must be settled before the refunds may be paid. These refunds do not, however, bear interest, and as a result taxpayers are being denied the use of their money, while at the same time receiving no interest for its use by the Government. For this reason your committee's bill provides that refunds of this type shall bear interest beginning January 1, 1948, or the date for the payment of the tax for the year of replacement, whichever is later.

Other harsh aspects of the tax treatment of last-in first-out inventory adjustments arise from the fact that it has not always been possible for taxpayers to know that they would benefit under this provision. For that reason your committee's bill gives the Commissioner of Internal Revenue discretion in determining when the taxpayer must exercise the election under the last-in first-out adjustment for the involuntary liquidation and replacement of inventories. Thus, it will be possible for him to provide relief in hardship cases.

INCREASED INCENTIVES TO MANAGEMENT AND CAPITAL

The fifth and last aim of your committee's bill outlined in the general statement of the report is to provide increased incentives to management and venture capital. I shall attempt to give you only the two most outstanding examples of provisions in your committee's bill providing such incentives. They are the net operating loss carry-over and stock-option provisions.

At the present time it is possible for either incorporated or unincorporated business to carry a net operating loss first back to the income of the two prior years, and then forward to the two succeeding years. Thus, present law provides a 5-year averaging period for such losses. Your committee's bill extends this averaging period to 7 years. More-over, a 5-year carry-forward and a 1-year carry-back are substituted for the present 2-year carry-back and 2-year carryforward. The longer averaging period provided by your comittee's bill will decrease business risks and, therefore, increase the willingness of investors to buy new stock or bond issues. The increased reliance placed on the carry-forward and the decreased emphasis on the carryback should also be advantageous from an incentive standpoint, since to gain relief under the carry-forward a business must be brought back to a profitable basis, while a carry-back automatically provides relief to business with profitable years in the past.

The stock-option provisions in your committee's bill are also of prime importance from an incentive standpoint. They represent devices which can be used to attract new and better management. They may also be used to increase the interest of employees in the business by giving them a stake in the business. The present method of taxing these options is so severe that they cannot be used extensively for either of these purposes. Moreover, the Bureau of Internal Revenue is attempting to extend the application of court decisions in this area to cases which your committee feels confident that the Congress did not intend them to apply. As a result, businesses frequently are afraid to use stock options because they cannot be certain how either the employer or employee will be

To remove this difficulty, your committee's bill establishes what are called restricted stop options. For these options where there is only a relatively small leeway between the price at which the employee has the option to buy stock and the fair market value of the stock at the time the options are granted, any difference between the option price and the price at the time the option is exercised under your committee's bill is taxed to the employee at the time the stock is purchased. As a result, under present law, the employee frequently finds that he must sell part of this stock in order to pay the tax due. Your committee's bill removes this deterrent to the use of stock options.

In addition to postponing the date when the tax must be paid, your committee's bill also provides that the gain representing the difference between the option price and the market price of the stock at the time the option is exercised will be treated as a capital gain rather than as ordinary income in certain cases. This special treatment is provided to encourage the holding of stock by the employee and is available to him if he holds the stock purchased under an option for 3 years or more.

The favorable type of tax treatment afforded restricted stock options is limited to stock-option plans which meet certain tests specified in the bill. This was necessary to assure the Government that stock-option plans would be used only as incentive devices or means of increasing employee interest in the business.

SUMMARY

In showing you how H. R. 6712 removes inequities, eliminates uncertainties for taxpayers and tax administrators, prevents tax avoidance, simplifies the tax system, moderates certain harsh provisions and provides incentives to management and capital, I have drawn upon only about a third of the sections in the bill—25 out of a total of 80 sections. Yet despite the size of this bill it represents only a modest beginning on a program of correcting the flaws and incongruities in our tax system.

It is modest in that it loses only about $150,000,000 of revenue in 1949. It is also modest in that many more changes, some much more far-reaching than the provisions in this bill, must be undertaken before we shall have a satisfactory tax structure. However, I believe it is important that we, here and now, take the first step in overhauling the hybrid tax system that has grown up in the last few years. Everyone has recognized the importance of the job to be done, and the passage of this bill represents the best way we can show the country that we are starting on this journey.

Mr. KEAN. Mr. Speaker, this bill includes a committee amendment in which I am greatly interested.

It is aimed at closing a loophole which has been discovered in the capital-gains provision of the law.

Speculators on the stock and grain exchanges have managed to change what are really short-term profits into long-term profits and thus have avoided a large part of their taxes. I cannot blame anyone for taking advantage of quirks in the law to reduce his taxes. But it is our duty here to watch the workings of the law and plug up loopholes as we find them.

What they have been doing is briefly as follows:

If a man bought shares of a certain stock or so many bushels of a commodity and within the 6 months' period had a profit thereon, instead of selling the item when he felt it the time to do so marketwise, thus subjecting himself to the full income tax on short-term capital gains, he would sell the same number of shares of stock or the same amount of a commodity short keeping both transactions open until the 6 months' holding period had expired and thus pay only a 25 percent tax on the profit as a long-term capital gain, where if he had closed out the transaction technically when he actually did so and ceased to have any risk marketwise, he would have paid a full tax on the entire profit as a short-term capital gain.

There are many ramifications in this method of tax avoidance. There is, of course, the reverse of what I have described—where the short sale is made first, covered by a purchase later.

There is what is called short selling against "box" where securities are already held.

There is the use of "puts" which are an option to sell stock at a fixed price during a given time.

We have attempted in this amendment to close up all the loopholes along this line which we could find. Drafting has been extremely difficult and it is possible that we have not covered everything. However, if other loopholes develop we can correct them at a later date.

Though tax avoidance is legal, those who avoid taxes make necessary higher taxes for others who cannot avoid their own taxes. Therefore, it is the duty of our committee to do everything we can to make everyone pay his fair share. By this amendment we hope to help accomplish this purpose.

Mr. BOGGS of Delaware. Mr. Speaker and Members of the House, the main objection—if it may be called an objection—to this measure is simply that it does not go far enough. There are many other instances, in my opinion, where the Internal Revenue Code should be revised to correct tax inequities and to clarify some of the interpretations of the internal-revenue laws as made by the Internal Revenue Bureau.

I have in mind one instance in particular which I would like to point out at this time. Section 3649 (b) of the Internal Revenue Code provides that the tax imposed on the transportation of persons is interpreted to include transportation on fishing party boats. I had introduced a bill, known as H. R. 5537, to amend the above-mentioned provision of the Internal Revenue Code so that this tax would not apply to persons merely on a fishing party from shore to short distances to fishing grounds and return. This part of the Internal Revenue Code was never intended to apply for fishing I have searched party purposes. through the legislative history of this section. Nowhere in the record can I find any intention, even by inference, that this tax should apply for fishing party purposes. I had hoped that this bill before us now would include a provision to correct this situation. It was my hope that the provisions of the bill which I introduced would have been made a part of the bill before us. I have been working during this Congress to get this matter corrected, and I have found very sympathetic support; and while the members of the committee were very sympathetic, yet, unfortunately, this bill does not go far enough to correct the provision which I have pointed out.

I would like to make it clear that I intend to continue my fight against the application of this transportation tax to fishing parties.

For the information of all Members of Congress, I would like to insert right here a copy of H. R. 5537:

H. R. 5537

A bill to amend section 3469 (b) of the Internal Revenue Code to provide that the tax imposed on the transportation of persons shall not apply to transportation on boats for fishing purposes

boats for fishing purposes

Be it enacted, etc., That section 3469 (b) of the Internal Revenue Code (relating to the exemption of certain trips from the tax on the transportation of persons) is amended to read as follows:

to read as follows:

"(b) Exemption of certain trips: The tax imposed by subsection (a) shall not apply to amounts paid for transportation which do not exceed 35 cents, to amounts paid for commutation or season tickets for single trips of less than 30 miles, to amounts paid for commutation tickets for 1 month or less, or to amounts paid for transportation in a boat where the transportation takes place for the sole purpose of fishing from the boat in which such transportation is furnished."

in which such transportation is furnished."

Sec. 2. The amendment made by the first section of this act shall apply to amounts paid on or after the first day of the first month which begins more than 30 days after the date of the enactment of this act for transportation on or after such first day.

WORTH-WHILE TAX REVISION

Mr. CURTIS. Mr. Speaker, for many years we have just added and added to our tax structure and the time is overdue when we should have a major revision of our tax program. This tax-revision bill is the first step in the right direction.

There are certain features of it that may have to have a second look when they reach the Senate. I refer particularly to the section on family partnerships. It will, however, be a big improvement over the present situation. Our report calls attention to the fact that in our attempt to clarify the situation in regard to family partnerships, we do not want anyone to lose any of his present rights with respect to rulings and holdings of the Bureau of Internal Revenue,

There are two important matters in this bill dealing with agriculture. It was my privilege to sponsor these measures, but I am grateful to many others who have helped me in advancing them.

In the first place, we extend the time in which a farmer must file his tax returns. At the present time a farmer's estimated return must be filed by January 15. A high percentage of the farmers like to have this estimated tax be their final tax return. This bill provides that if it is their final return they may have until January 31, instead of the 15th, to make this return. This will be very helpful.

The other provision that I would mention relates to soil conservation. It mean in substance that the farmer who spends his money to improve the soil not only for himself, but for his country and for the benefit of his neighbors shall pay less taxes than if he were a soil robber. Sound soil-conservation practices are a business expense for the farmer. This provision says that they shall be so regarded for the purposes of income tax. This section provides that—

Expenditures made for the purpose of soil and water conservation and the prevention of erosion of land used in farming shall be allowed as business deductions. The term "expenditures made for the purpose of soil and water conservation and the pre-vention of erosion" means expenditures for the treatment, moving, or cultivation of earth including (but not limited to) leveling, grading and terracing, contour furrowing, the construction of diversion channels and drainage ditches, the control and protection of watercourses, outlets, and ponds, the planting and cultivation of cover and protective crops, or windbreaks, and other special or emergency cultivation and tillage; but such term does not include the purchase, construction, installation, or improvement of structures, appliances, and facilities made of masonry, concrete, tile, metal, or wood, such as tanks, reservoirs, pipes, conduits, canals, dams, wells, and pumps, which are subject to the allowance for depreciation.

Mr. Speaker, I agree with the gentleman from Kansas [Mr. Hope], chairman of the Committee on Agriculture, that this proposal will be a great boost to conservation in America.

Mr. JENKINS of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, this tax revision bill is a very important piece of legislation. It represents the work of the members of the Ways and Means Committee for several months and also the work of the Treasury force and the force of the Joint Committee on Taxation, all of whom are tax experts.

For a number of years there has developed a larger number of inequities by reason of overlapping tax laws and regulations. There has been much confusion and much litigation by reason of unfair and unjust regulations and interpretations of any laws controlling the levying and collection of taxes.

The Ways and Means Committee decided to revise the general tax laws and the bill that we are considering today is the result of that decision.

Nobody could give a complete and thorough analysis of this bill in less than an hour. I shall not attempt it here today. I worked on this bill many hours. I listened to the testimony of many witnesses with reference to its provisions. I have no hesitancy in recommending the passage of this legislation. It is not claimed that this bill is a complete revision in all respects. There are many other changes that could yet be made before all the tax legislation is free from any inconsistencies or inequities.

This bill should be passed.

Mr. BUSBEY. Mr. Speaker, I know that I am speaking the sentiments of every Member of this House when I say that we have no intention of legislating in such a manner as to work a hardship upon the men who became disabled in the service of our country. I am sincerely interested in the welfare of those men who have served their Nation, whose service has been honorable and because of such service they have become disabled and are receiving compensation for their disabilities from our Government. I believe a great many of our disabled veterans were under the impression that section 106 of this bill would make it necessary for them to pay taxes on their small compensation or pension. I am glad that the intent of the committee to set substantial maximum earnings which retired officers may receive before exemption of their retirement is affected is clarified with this amendment, and I urge its adoption.

Mr. CASE of South Dakota. Mr. Speaker, sometimes the best legislation gets the least attention at the time it is passed. There is a section of this bill (H. R. 6712) which may get far less attention than it deserves.

Its long-range benefits, however, warrant special mention. I refer to section 110, which establishes expenditures for soil and water conservation as deductible business expenses in farming operations.

That it is in the national interest, no one can deny. We often appropriate money directly for soil and water conservation. This section says that if a farmer uses his own money for that purpose he may enter it as a business-operating expense in making out his return for income-tax purposes.

The idea is one which I have discussed many times with my good friend and neighbor the gentleman from Nebraska, the Honorable Carl T. Curts, a member of the Committee on Ways and Means. He introduced a bill to accomplish it and I am glad to see it now incorporated in this bill as section 110.

Mr. EBERHARTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield the remaining time to the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. DINGELL].

Mr. DINGELL. Mr. Speaker, House will understand my attitude in this matter when I say I favored reporting the bill in order that the House may have the opportunity to vote upon the provisions of the bill, but I made it definite and clear at the time that I had some fundamental objections to the bill and that I reserved the right to oppose the measure. I admit there is much good in the bill. There were many things that should have been corrected over the years. The committee tries to correct these. The administrative difficulties develop with time. They develop with succeeding changes in our tax structure. No one is particularly to blame for these occurrences which manifest themselves in due time. The revisions in the pending bill make many minor administrative corrections, but also and more important several changes are made which constitute a material reduction in taxes. I believe the resulting loss of revenue, approximating about $400,000,000, for the large part that amount of tax cut goes to the benefit of the people with incomes above $5,000-I think that is correct—although people with incomes under that amount do get some concessions for uniforms and certain clothing and other things that they use, perhaps in their business or trade.

I call your attention to the fact that section 102 is being destroyed by changes. I am not a lawyer, so I will not discuss it from a technical standpoint, but the lawyers knew when these changes were proposed that it was intended to weaken that section and give the benefits of the change to a certain class of taxpayers. I favor strengthening rather than weakening section 102 even while making administrative changes.

The Secretary of the Treasury says in his letter of objections that "the present protective tax to prevent corporations from being used as a depository for avoidance of surtaxes by their stockholders would be weakened by increasing the burden of the Government in proving its case."

Instead of weakening section 102, I have always contended that it should have been strengthened. That could be done with justice and fairness, both to the taxpayers and the Treasury. Section 203 also is found to be costly insofar as the Treasury is concerned, and the Treasury strenuously objected to this provision. The Secretary says:

I quote:

SECTION 203. PROCEEDS OF LIFE INSURANCE

Under existing law insurance purchased by the insured on his own life is included in his taxable estate. The basic purpose of this provision is, of course, very clear. Life insurance is inherently testamentary and, like any testamentary arrangement, is intended to benefit the insured's family after his death. In the absence of the present law, wealthy individuals might—as they once did—pass on large portions of their wealth through the form of life insurance without paying an estate tax. The proposed amendment would permit precisely this result. In fact, this amendment, when coupled with the large gift-tax exemptions and exclusions already provided by the Revenue Act of 1948 would permit taxpayers to leave very large estates without paying either an estate tax or a gift tax.

For example, a 40-year-old married man with three children could make annual taxfree gifts of $6,000, each to his wife and children for the payment of life-insurance pre-miums. These premiums would provide $900,000 worth of life insurance. If at death he left a net estate of $700,000 to his wife, in addition to his insurance estate of $900,000, the estate tax would be $73,300, or 65 percent less than the $206,900 tax due on the $1,-600,000 net estate under existing law.

Moreover, if the insured's estate, over and above his life insurance, were $120,000, one-half of which was left to his wife, there would be no tax at all. Thus an estate of over $1,000,000 would pass entirely free of all estate and gift taxes

These changes constitute at one and the same time, revision and even more reduction in taxes for the favored few.

Mr. KNUTSON. Mr. Speaker, I yield the remainder of my time to the distinguished gentleman from North Dakota [Mr. Doughton].

Mr. DOUGHTON. Mr. Speaker, I shall support the pending tax revision bill, which was reported by the Committee on Ways and Means. Although time did not permit a complete revision of the Internal Revenue Code, it has been possible to correct a number of errors and inequities in the present law.

After hearings lasting many weeks to obtain the views of the Treasury Department, practicing tax attorneys and accountants, and spokesmen for agriculture, industry, and labor, the committee went into executive session to write this

The unanimous vote of the committee to report favorably H. R. 6712, without even a supplementary minority report, is, in my opinion, an achievement and a well-deserved tribute to the leadership of my good friend, the gentleman from Minnesota. I know by experience the heavy responsibilities that fall upon the committee chairman in the preparation of a technical tax revision bill. And I take the opportunity here to acknowledge for myself, and I feel sure the other minority members of the committee as well, the fair, courteous, friendly, nonpartisan consideration extended to all the members in our deliberations on this

The bill contains more than 30 technical changes recommended by the Treasury Department. Other amendments originated with the staff of the Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation, or with members of the com-The more than 80 amendments mittee. of the Federal tax structure were agreed to only after discussion with the Under Secretary of the Treasury and his technical staff. At all times the Chief of Staff of the Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation gave us the benefit of his able and experienced judgment. But in the final analysis, this is a committee bill for which joint responsibility has been assumed by the entire membership of the Committee on Ways and Means. In a few instances the committee declined to follow the recommendations of the Treasury, but never was this decision a partisan issue.

It has been my experience that it is impossible to write a technical tax bill that does not contain at least a few provisions which each Member would alter in some respect if he were writing the bill alone. It is my sincere belief and conviction, however, that passage of H. R. 6712 will be a contribution toward a sounder and more equitable Federal tax system.

Mr. FULTON. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield for a question?

Mr. DOUGHTON. I yield. Mr. FULTON. I believe you stated this bill was considered on a nonpartison

Mr. DOUGHTON. It was.

Mr. FULTON. Is it not correct that 68 of the 82 amendments that are submitted have been approved as being just and fair by the Treasury Department?

Mr. DOUGHTON. There were about 30 technical amendments contained in the bill that were recommended and insisted upon by the Treasury Department. I think the bill contains about 80 changes in the code, and 30 of those were recommended by the Treasury. There were only a few provisions in this bill that were opposed by the Treasury.

Mr. FULTON. Is it not true that your committee brought this bill out unanimously? It was by unanimous vote of the members of the Ways and Means Committee, was it not?

Mr. DOUGHTON. Well, I thought so at the time, but the distinguished gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. EBERHAR-TER], who is opposed to it, and whose ability and sincerity nobody questions, said that in voting to report the bill he reserved the right to oppose the bill on the floor. But I heard so little opposition to the bill when it was originally reported that it seems extremely strange that someone did not have enough interest to write a minority report to be included with the majority views, so that we would have known if there were so many objections. There has certainly been ample time to get out a minority report. I think there is much more good in this bill than there is bad.

Mr. JENKINS of Ohio. Mr. Speaker. will the gentleman yield?

Mr. DOUGHTON. I yield.

Mr. JENKINS of Ohio. Is it not also true that not one single provision was ever put into this bill with any idea of saving taxes for anybody?

Mr. DOUGHTON. It seems that you cannot bring out any tax bill but that somebody raises the issue of trying to do something for the rich. I have no brief for the wealthy and the rich. I have helped write a great many tax bills, but where would the Treasury be if somebody did not have some wealth and pay some taxes? Yet every time a bill comes in that issue is raised.

The SPEAKER. The time of the gentleman from North Carolina has expired.

All time has expired.

The question is on the motion to suspend the rules and pass the bill.

Mr. EBERHARTER. Mr. Speaker, a point of order.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. EBERHARTER. Are we not entitled to a reading of the bill?

The SPEAKER. That time has passed.

Mr. EBERHARTER. No one asked unanimous consent to dispense with the reading of the bill.

The SPEAKER. Nobody demanded the reading of the bill at the right time. If the gentleman wanted the bill read, he should have done that before a second was ordered.

Mr. EBERHARTER. In order to give the Members an opportunity to know what is in this bill, and study it before a vote is taken, I demand the reading of the engrossed copy of the bill.

The SPEAKER. There can be no demand for reading of the engrossed copy under suspension of the rules.

The question is on the motion of the gentleman to suspend the rules and pass

The question was taken; and (twothirds having voted in favor thereof) the rules were suspended and the bill was passed.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

The SPEAKER. Without objection, House Resolution 656, making in order consideration of the tax-revision bill will be laid on the table.

There was no objection.

MILITARY FUNCTIONS APPROPRIATION BILL, 1949

Mr. ENGEL of Michigan. Mr. Speaker, I call up the conference report on the. bill (H. R. 6771) making appropriations for military functions administered by the National Military Establishment for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1949, and for other purposes, and ask unanimous consent that the statement of the managers may be read in lieu of the report.

The Clerk read the title of the bill. The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Michigan?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the statement of the managers on the part of the House.

The conference report was agreed to.
The conference report and statement are as follows:

CONFERENCE REPORT

The committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H. R. 6771) "making appropriations for military functions administered by the National Military Establishment for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1949, and for other purposes," having met, after full and free conference, have agreed to recommend and do recommend to their respective Houses as follows:

That the Senate recede from its amendments numbered 3, 6, 8, 16, 41 and 55.

RECESSES MADE IN ORDER TODAY

Mr. HALLECK. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that it may be in order for the balance of the day for the Speaker to declare a recess subject to the call of the Chair.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Indiana?

There was no objection.

MILITARY FUNCTIONS APPROPRIATION BILL, 1949

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will report the first amendment in disagreement.

The Clerk read as follows:

Senate amendment No. 19: Page 24, line 18, insert "and in addition to this appropriation the Secretary of the Army may, prior to July 1, 1949, enter into contracts in an amount not in excess of $25,000,000."

Mr. ENGEL of Michigan. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House recede and concur in the Senate amendment.

The motion was agreed to. The SPEAKER. The Clerk will report the next amendment in disagreement.

The Clerk read as follows:

Senate amendment No. 28: Page 34, after line 15, insert the following:

"Military construction, Army: For construction, installations, and equipment of temporary or permanent public works, military installations and facilities, as authorized by the act of June 12, 1948 (Public Law 626), without regard to sections 1136 and 3734, R ised Statutes, as amended, including hire of passenger motor vehicles; payment of claims under the act of July 3, 1943 (31 U. S. C. 223b), and pursuant to section 403 of the Federal Tort Claims Act of August 2, 1946 (28 U.S. C. 921); $76,000,000, to remain available until expended; and in addition, the Secretary of the Army is authorized to enter into contracts for the purposes of this appropriation in an amount not to exceed $75,000,000: Provided, That this appropriation shall not be used for the construction of family quarters for personnel of the Army at a cost per family unit in excess of $14,040, except that when such units are constructed outside the continental United States the average cost per unit of all such units constructed shall not exceed $20,800.

Mr. ENGEL of Michigan. Mr. Speaker. I move that the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 28 and agree to the same with an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment No. 28: Mr. Engel moves that the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 28, and agree to the same with an amendment, as follows: In lieu of the matter inserted by said amendment, insert the following:

"Military construction, Army: For construction, installations, and equipment of temporary or permanent public works, military installations and facilities, as authorized by the act of June 12, 1948 (Public Law 626), without regard to sections 1136 and 3734, Revised Statutes, as amended, including hire of passenger motor vehicles; payment of claims under the act of July 3, 1943 (31 U. S. C. 223b), and pursuant to section 403 of the Federal Tort Claims Act of August 2, 1946 (28 U. S. C. 921); $76,000,000, to be immediately available and to remain available until expended, including not to exceed $205,000 for the purchase, development, or construction in connection with land adjacent to the Percy Jones Hospital, Michigan; and, in addition, the Secretary of the Army is authorized to enter into contracts for the purposes of this appropriation in an amount not to exceed $75,000,000: Provided, That the funds made available in this paragraph by appropriation and contract authorization shall not be subject to section 10 of this act."

Mr. ENGEL of Michigan. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from South Dakota [Mr. CASE].

Mr. CASE of South Dakota. Mr. Speaker, I merely wish to call the attention of the membership to the fact that this military construction program started by the Senate amendment is under the authorization of the recently passed Bates bill. Members of the House will recall the debate which I precipitated on the floor in reference to the limitation on the size of quarters which might be built. This appropriawhich might be built. This appropria-tion bill as passed by the House, in section 10, carried language which has been carried in appropriation bills for a number of years providing a dollar limitation on the size of quarters. In order that the action we are here taking will be consistent with the construction authorization, we carry a proviso in this paragraph in the amendment offered by the gentleman from Michigan that the funds made available in this paragraph by appropriation and construction authorization shall not be subject to section 10 of this act. This leaves housing construction in this paragraph subject to the space limitation that no quarters shall be built with a space in excess of 1,080 feet but exempts it from section 10 of this bill. That was the only way we could bring the bill in harmony with the action that was worked out by the House when we had the construction authorization bill before us.

With permission of the House, I will insert at this point the construction program with priorities as indicated by the armed services and a summary of the estimates and appropriations picture in this bill.

	PERMISSION TO EXTEND REMARKS AT THIS POINT
	THIS FOINT

Mr. COLMER. Mr. Speaker, I ask manimous consent to extend my renarks at this point in the RECORD.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Mississippi 2 ssippi? There was no objection.

apparent now, with the Congress set to adjourn this week, that no Federal-aidto-education bill will pass the Congress at this session. This is a deep disappointment, not only to the teachers and trustees of our public-school system in the United States, and others interested, but it is also disappointing to many of us here who would like to see an appropriate law enacted providing for Federal aid to our public schools.

As one who taught in the public schools of my native State of Mississippi, and who realizes the necessity for such legislation, I became interested in this subject shortly after I came to Congress. In fact, the late and lamented Senator Pat Harrison from my State, and I, several years ago, cosponsored a bill for this purpose. Unfortunately our efforts at that time were of no avail. Since that time others have sponsored similar legis-This year it appeared that we lation. were within sight of the goal when a leading Republican, Senator TAFT, of Ohio, introduced and succeeded in passing Senate 472 in the other body, which, of course, like this one, is dominated by the Republican Party.

However, for some unknown reason, the Republican leadership in this body has seen fit to shelve this legislation, notwithstanding the fact that extensive hearings were conducted in the House Labor and Education Committee, and notwithstanding the further fact that I am informed that a majority of the members of that House committee were favorable to such legislation.

I have not only been in close touch and have worked with the representatives of the cause of education in my own State, but have also been in contact with and have cooperated with the officers of the National Education Association of the United States, who have sponsored this worth-while legislation. When it became evident that the majority leadership was stymieing the legislation in committee I was among the first to sign the petition on the Clerk's desk to discharge that committee from further consideration of the bill and to automatically bring it to the floor for a vote, but again the House leadership was successful in preventing the required number of signatures of the Members to get the bill to the floor for a vote.

In this connection, I am appreciative of the following communications from those with whom I have labored in this cause:

NATIONAL EDUCATION ASSOCIATION OF THE UNITED STATES, Washington, D. C., June 15, 1948. Hon. WILLIAM M. COLMER House of Representatives,

Washington, D. C. DEAR MR. COLMER: A large share of the credit should be yours for the progress that has been made toward the enactment of Federal aid to education.

We wish to take this opportunity to express appreciation for your support of this legislation not only in the Eightieth Congress but over a number of preceding years

Your counsel and assistance will be anticipated and valued as further steps are made in behalf of the Federal-aid program as a means of equalizing basic educational

Mr. COLMER. Mr. Speaker, it is quite - opportunity without impairing State control of educational policy.

Sincerely yours R. B. MARSTON, Director, Legislative-Federal Relations Division.

MERIDIAN PUBLIC SCHOOLS. OFFICE OF THE SUPERINTENDENT. Meridian, Miss., June 15, 1948. Congressman WILLIAM M. COLMER, House Office Building,

Washington, D. C. DEAR MR. COLMER: Now may I take occasion to express personal appreciation on the part of myself and all teachers, school officials, and patrons who are interested in the proper development of public education facilities in our State and Nation for the help you have been and will continue to be in securing the passage of this legislation and securing it without Federal control. You and I join our fellow Mississippians in opposing Federal dictatorship as to how we shall operate our public schools, but we recognize that our economic status requires that we have national assistance in solving our elementary and secondary school problems, more particularly, in view of the fact that we send so many of our white and Negro youths annually to live in other States in which they become either assets or liabil-

Looking forward to seeing you some time soon and with kindest personal regards, I am Yours very truly, H. M. Ivy, Superintendent.

It seems strange, indeed, that the Federal Government can and does grant Federal aid to the farms, to roads, to hospitals, and many other activities in the interest of and for the welfare of the people of the several States of the Union, but cannot and does not grant Federal aid to one of the most important activities aimed at the common good of the country, the education of our children.

I realize that there are those from my own section who oppose Federal aid to education for one reason or another. One of the arguments made is that it would eventually mean the break-down of the segregation customs in our public schools of the South.

Of course, Mr. Speaker, there is no one in this Congress or in the South, for that matter, who has been more active against the efforts of the politicians, the northern "do-gooders," and the President to enact the so-called civil-rights program into law, and generally break down our southern traditions with reference to segregation, and so forth, than have I. My selection as chairman of the group of 78 southern Members of Congress organized to fight this program is evidence of this.

But there is nothing in this proposed legislation that would tend to do that. On the contrary, the bill which passed the Senate and which was tentatively approved by the House committee specifically provides that the Federal Government shall have no control whatever over the administration of our public schools; that the administration and control, on the contrary, shall be left entirely within the State and its institutions. Of course, I would not support any legislation which either authorized or appropriated Federal funds in aid to our public school system that carried with it any Federal control whatsoever.

On the other hand, due to the fact that the Southern States are not as wealthy as States in other sections of our common country, they are forced to tax their people on a higher ratio for educational purposes than their more wealthy sister States. And even with this, they are unable to raise anything like a comparative per capita revenue for the education of their children. For instance, up until this year my State of Mississippi taxed its people for this purpose at a higher rate than any other State in the Union, and yet it was at the bottom of the list of States in the amount of revenue expended per child. Therefore, it is obvious that the Southern States, and particularly Mississippi, have more to gain from this legislation than the States in other sections.

The bill, if authorized into law, providing as it does three hundred million dollars a year for this purpose, would not only bring up the standard of opportunities for Mississippi children, and enable our school authorities to pay better salaries to our teachers and those who transport our children to and from school, but would also lighten the burden of taxation on our overburdened taxpayers.

Mr. Speaker, I am very much in hopes that when this Congress reconvenes. either after the November elections or at the beginning of the Eighty-first Congress in January, that this most desirable and necessary legislation will be enacted.

. EXTENSION OF REMARKS

Mr. WILLIAMS. Mr. Speaker, on yesterday I asked and received permission to insert in the RECORD a speech by Maj. W. Calvin Wells, before the Mississippi State Bar Association, at the University of Mississippi. This speech, as I stated yesterday, exceeds the amount allowed under the rule and will require 41/2 pages and cost $301.75.

I ask unanimous consent that I may be permitted to insert the speech in the Appendix, notwithstanding the cost.

The SPEAKER. Notwithstanding, and without objection, the request is granted. There was no objection.

Mr. PRICE of Florida, Mr. McCUL-LOCH, and Mr. ARNOLD asked and were granted permission to extend their remarks in the RECORD.

Mr. BROOKS asked and was granted permission to extend his remarks in the RECORD in three instances and include certain excerpts, letters, and documents.

RECESS

The SPEAKER. The Chair declares the House in recess for 20 minutes.

Thereupon (at 1 o'clock and 19 minutes p. m.) the House stood in recess.

AFTER RECESS

The recess having expired, the House was called to order by the Speaker at 1 o'clock and 50 minutes p. m.

FREE ENTRY OF CERTAIN IMPORTED ARTICLES

Mr. FORAND. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent for the immediate consideration of House Joint Resolution 433, permitting the free entry of certain articles imported to promote international good will, and for other purposes.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Rhode Island?

There being no objection, the Clerk read the bill, as follows:

Resolved, etc., That any articles, including approximately 48 railroad cars and inci-dental equipment, certified by the Secretary of State as being donated in promotion of international good will by the people or Government of the Republic of France for sale for charitable purposes in the United States or for presentation, in the case of the railroad equipment, to noncommercial organizations in the United States may be entered, or withdrawn from warehouse, for consumption free of customs duties, fees, or charges, internal-revenue taxes, and marking or other import requirements or restric-

Sec. 2. This act shall be effective as to articles entered, or withdrawn from warehouse, for consumption on or after the date of its enactment and prior to the close of December 31, 1948.

The resolution was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, was read the third time, and passed, and a motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

Mr. FORAND. Mr. Speaker, this resolution, House Joint Resolution 433, was introduced for the purpose of permitting the free entry of certain articles im-ported into the United States from foreign countries in the promotion of international good will.

The people of France now are planning to send, next October, a train of 48 freight cars (40 hommes—8 chevaux) to the 48 States of the United States, as a gesture of gratitude for the American Freedom Train.

These 48 cars will be filled with French merchandise, such as handbags, women's wear, hats, furniture, perfume, and other typical French productions. The plan is to deliver one car to the capital of each of the 48 States, and let local State committees auction off the merchandise, the money to be used for the benefit of a charity in that State. The freight cars will remain in the United States as a token gift to the American Legion or Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Existing law requires the payment of duty on goods under these circumstances, and for that reason I believe that this legislation should pass so as to encourage this gesture of international good will.

REFUND OF TAXES PAID ON BEER LOST THROUGH BOTTLING OPERATIONS

Mr. FORAND. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to take from the Speaker's table the bill (H. R. 6808) to permit refund of taxes paid on beer lost in bottling operations, with a Senate amendment and concur in the Senate amendment.

The Clerk read the title of the bill and the Senate amendment, as follows:

"SEC. 5. That section 3404 (d) of the Internal Revenue Code (relating to manufacturers' excise taxes on musical instruments) is hereby amended to read as follows:

"'(d) Musical instruments, but the tax imposed by this section shall not apply to musical instruments sold for the use of any religious or nonprofit educational institution for exclusively religious or educational pur-poses. The right to exemption under this subsection shall be evidenced in such manner as the Commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary, may prescribe by regulations.

"SEC. 6. Section 3443 (a) (3) (A) (i) of the Internal Revenue Code (relating to credits and refunds) is hereby amended to read as follows:

"'(i) resold for the exclusive use of any State, Territory of the United States, or any political subdivision of the foregoing, or of the District of Columbia, or in the case of musical instruments embraced in section 3404 (d), resold for the use of any religious or nonprofit educational institution for exclusively religious or educational purposes;'.

"SEC. 7. The amendments made by sections 1 and 2 of this act shall be applicable with respect to sales made after the date of enactment of this act."

Mr. McCORMACK (interrupting the reading). Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that further reading of the amendments be dispensed with.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentlemar from Rhode Island?

There was no objection.

The Senate amendments were concurred in.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the

AMENDMENT TO TRADING WITH THE ENEMY ACT

Mr. HINSHAW. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to take from the Speaker's table the bill (H. R. 6116) to amend the Trading With the Enemy Act, with Senate amendments and concur in the Senate amendments.

The Clerk read the title of the bill and the Senate amendments, as follows:

Page 2, lines 3 and 4, strike out "August 9, 1948" and insert "April 30, 1949."

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California?

There was no objection.

The Senate amendments were concurred in.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

EXTENSION OF REMARKS

Mr. VAN ZANDT asked and was given permission to extend his remarks in the Appendix of the RECORD.

Mr. JACKSON of California asked and was given permission to extend his remarks in the Appendix of the RECORD and include an editorial.

Mr. KEARNS asked and was given permission to extend his remarks in the RECORD.

DOMESTIC TIN-SMELTING INDUSTRY

Mr. WOLCOTT. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to take from the Speaker's table the bill (S. 2830) to extend for 5 years the authority to provide for the maintenance of a domestic tinsmelting industry, insist upon the amendments of the House, agree to the conference asked by the Senate and that the Chair appoint conferees.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Michigan? [After a pause.] The Chair hears none and appoints the following conferees: Messrs. Wolcott, Gamble, Smith of Ohio, KUNKEL, Brown of Georgia, and PATMAN

PROVIDING FOR CERTAIN ADMINISTRA-TIVE EXPENSES IN THE POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT

Mr. REES submitted the following conference report and statement on the bill (S. 2510) to provide for certain administrative expenses in the Post Office Department, including retainment of pneumatic-tube systems, and for other purposes:

CONFERENCE REPORT

The committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendment of the House to the bill (S. 2510) to provide for certain administrative expenses in the Post Office Department, including retainment of pneumatic-tube systems, and for other purposes, having met, after full and free conference, have agreed to recommend and do recommend to their respective Houses as follows:

That the Senate recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the House and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: In lieu of the matter proposed to be inserted by the House amendment insert the following: "$12,000"; and the House agree to the same.

EDWARD H. REES, KATHARINE ST. GEORGE, Tom Murray,
Managers on the Part of the House. WILLIAM LANGER, ZALES N. ECTON, HERBERT R. O'CONOR, Managers on the Part of the Senate.

STATEMENT

The managers on the part of the House at the conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendment of the House to the bill (S. 2510) to provide for cer-tain administrative expenses in the Post Office Department, including retainment of pneumatic-tube systems, and for other purposes, submit the following statement in explana-tion of the effect of the action agreed upon by the conferees and recommended in the accompanying conference report:

The Senate bill amends the provisions of law relating to contracts for transmission of mail by pneumatic tubes in New York, N. Y., including the Borough of Brooklyn, so as to provide that the annual rental contract payment rate for the use of the 26,969 miles of double-line pneumatic-tube facilities shall not exceed $12,000 per mile nor be less than $10.500 per mile.

The amendment of the House provided that the maximum rate should not exceed $11,000 per mile, and eliminated the minimum payment figure contained in the Senate bill.

The conference agreement restores the $12,-000 per mile maximum rate as provided by the Senate bill, and eliminates the $10,500 per mile minimum in accordance with the House amendment.

Edward H. Rees, Katharine St. George, Tom Murray,

Managers on the Part of the House.

Mr. REES. Mr. Speaker, I call up the conference report on the bill (S. 2510) to provide for certain administrative expenses in the Post Office Department, including retainment of pneumatic-tube systems, and for other purposes.

The Clerk read the conference report.

The SPEAKER. The question is on the conference report.

The conference report was agreed to.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

JAMES & PHELPS CONSTRUCTION CO.

Mr. RIZLEY. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent for the immediate consideration of the bill (S. 2705) to reimburse the James & Phelps Construction Co.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Oklahoma?

There being no objection, the Clerk read the Senate bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Treasury is authorized and directed to pay, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, to the James & Phelps Construction Co., of Oklahoma City, Okla., in full settlement of all claims under contracts numbered 12r 15920 and 12r 15994, providing for the construction of earthworks and structures, laterals and Altus City pipe line, city laterals and sublaterals, on the W. C. Austin project of the Bureau of Reclamation, Department of the Interior, in Oklahoma, such sum, not in excess of $193,617.58, as the Secretary of the Interior or his authorized representative may find is required to reimburse the James & Phelps Construction Co. for losses, exclusive of profit, incurred by the company as a result of the failure of the United States to furnish steel reinforcement bars as required under specifications numbered 1180 and 1182: Provided, That no part of the amount appropriated in this act in excess of 10 percent thereof shall be paid or delivered to or received by any agent or attorney on account of services rendered in connection with this claim, and the same shall be unlawful, any contract to the contrary notwithstanding. Any person violating the provisions of this act shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be fined in any sum not exceeding $25,000.

The bill was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed, and a motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

GABEL CONSTRUCTION CO.

Mr. JENNINGS. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to take from the Speaker's desk the bill (H. R. 1734) for the relief of Gabel Construction Co., with Senate amendment thereto, and concur in the Senate amendment.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The Clerk read the Senate amendment, as follows:

Strike out all after the enacting clause and insert "That jurisdiction is hereby conferred upon the District Court of the United States for the Southern District of Florida to hear, determine, and render findings of fact as to the amount of loss and damages, if any, sustained by Louis E. Gabel, an individual, trading as Gabel Construction Co., of Orlando, Fla., under contract No. NOY-9336 of the Bureau of Yards and Docks of the Department of the Navy arising out of or attributable to the alleged delay in supplying materials as provided for in said contracts: Provided, That the jurisdiction conferred by this section shall be confined to questions of fact.

AMENDING OFFICER PERSONNEL ACT OF

Mr. SHORT. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to take from the Speaker's desk the bill (H. R. 6707) to amend the Officer Personnel Act of 1947 (Public Law 381, 80th Cong.), and for other purposes, with a Senate amendment thereto, and concur in the Senate amendment.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The Clerk read the Senate amendment, as follows:

Strike out all after the enacting clause and insert "That the laws requiring retirement of Regular Army and Regular Air Force officers because of age shall not apply to officers of the Regular Army or Regular Air Force appointed in the grade of General of the Army pursuant to the act of March 23, 1946 (60 Stat. 59). The President, may, in his discretion, upon the request of the officer concerned, restore to the active list of the Regular Army or Regular Air Force any officer of the Regular Army or Regular Air Force on the retired list who was appointed in the grade of General of the Army pursuant to the act of March 23, 1946 (60 Stat. 59).

"Officers appointed in the grade of General of the Army pursuant to the act of March 23, 1946 (60 Stat. 59), shall not be counted within the limited number of officers authorized to be serving on active duty in grades above lieutenant general as provided in section 504 of the Officer Personnel Act of 1947 (Public Law 381, 80th Cong.) unless they be serving as Chief of Staff or in command of any territorial or tactical subdivision of the Army or the Air Force.

GEORGE B. SOTO

Mr. SHORT. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent for the immediate consideration of House Resolution 350.

The Clerk read the resolution, as follows:

Resolved, That the Committee on the Judictary, acting as a whole or by subcommittee, is authorized and directed to conduct a full and complete investigation of the action of the Department of State with respect to the claim of George B. Soto, a native-born American citizen, against the Government of Guatemala, amounting to approximately $3,000,000, which has been pending in the Department of State since 1929; to ascertain why the agreement made by Guatemala with Department of State to arbitrate this claim in 1932 was not carried out by the Department of State; to ascertain why, when the claim was approved as valid and meritorious by the Legal Department and the Counselor of the Department of State in 1938 and 1940, and dispatches sent to Guatemala demanding settlement of the claim in June 1941, such claim should by October 1941 become not valid and not meritorious and be dropped by the Department of State after Guatemala had made two offers of cash payments of the claim, thereby admitting liability under the claim; to ascertain whether or not the dropping of the Soto claim by the Department of State was the quid pro quo for securing the cooperation of Guatemala in the freezing order issued by the late President Roosevelt in July 1941, and before Guatemala was at war with Germany and Japan; to ascertain the liability of the United States Government for the payment of this claim when the claim has been used by the Government for its own purposes and, if so, to provide for payment of the claim out of Department of State appropriations, if, by the failure of the Department of State to act, the liability has been fixed by the Department of State on the United States Government; to ascertain and determine whether the legal rights of an American citizen under the Pecuniary Claims Convention of Buencs Aires of 1910 to arbitration of the claim can be denied by the Department of State under color of a bureaucratic practice and procedure established by the Department of State for which there is no statutory authority.

The committee shall report to the House (or to the Clerk of the House if the House is not in session) within 120 days after the date of the adoption of this resolution the results of its investigation, together with such recommendations as it deems advisable.

For the purpose of carrying out this resolution the committee or subcommittee is authorized to sit and act during the present Congress at such times and places within the United States, whether the House is in session, has recessed, or has adjourned, to hold such hearings, and to require, by subpena or otherwise, the attendance and testimony of such witnesses and the production of such books, records, correspondence, dispatches, papers, and documents, as it deems necessary. Subpenas may be issued under the signature of the chairman of the committee or any member of the committee designated by him, and may be served by any person designated by such chairman or member.

The resolution was agreed to.
A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

Mr. SHORT. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to extend my remarks at this point in the RECORD.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Missouri?

There was no objection.

Mr. SHORT. Mr. Speaker, I am submitting for your action a resolution introduced by me on July 25, 1947, calling for an investigation of the handling of a claim of a native-born American citizen against the Government of Guatemala, which has been in the hands of the State Department for 19 years without conclusive action.

Our Nation has a treaty with the Government of Guatemala which is known as the Convention of 1910 for the Arbitration of Pecuniary Claims, the first article of which treaty provides as follows:

The high contracting parties agreed to submit to arbitration all claims for pecuniary loss or damage which may be presented by their respective citizens and which cannot be amicably adjusted through diplomatic channels, when said claims are of sufficient importance to warrant the expense of arbitration.

The claim of Mr. Soto for loss, damage, and interest is approximately $3,000,000 and is, therefore, such a claim as would be considered of sufficient importance to warrant the expense of arbitration. I wish you also to note that the provisions of the article read and of the remaining articles of the treaty do not provide for any action on the part of the State Department except that of arranging for the arbitration of claims. As you know, the claims of American citizens against foreign governments must be made through the intermediary of the State Department. The provisions of the article cited do not require or suggest that the intermediary, the State Department, has any other function than that of demanding arbitration for the American claimant. The treaty does not provide, nor is there any law which authorizes the Department of State to prejudge, the claim of an American citizen who seeks justice and relief under the treaty cited. There is no law or provision of the treaty which requires the State Department to support the claim of an American citizen, the treaty only granting to the claimant the right to arbitration. Any points of difference which may arise between the parties as to facts are within the sole jurisdiction of the arbitrator who may be selected to determine the validity and merits of the claim.

The foregoing are the facts with reference to international arbitration of claims of American citizens under treaties entered into between our Nation and other governments.

It is indeed unfortunate that our State Department considers itself free from the obligations of our international treaties, disregards them as though they were not the supreme law of the land, arrogate to themselves the powers of judge and jury and deny American citizens of their rights under the law. It is because of this wanton disregard of our national obligation under our treaty with Guatemala that the resolution was submitted to this house, was sent to the Rules Committee, which has approved the resolution for an investigation of the handling of this claim by the State Department, and which I now present to you in order that the investigation may be carried forward by the Judiciary Committee.

The State Department is more interested in relief for the peoples of other nations than it is to secure the rights of American citizens under our laws and treaties. It is apparent from this particular case that we cannot depend upon our State Department to respect our international treaties and to preserve for our citizens the rights to which they are entitled under those treaties.

In my statement before the House at the time I introduced H. R. 350, I stated that the handling of this claim by the State Department had been submitted to the Foreign Relations Committee of the Senate which had declared that this American citizen was entitled to arbitration of his claim under the treaty. I further stated that this particular claim had been called to the attention of the State Department by Senators WILEY, BUTLER, JENNER, and myself, but the Department refuses to act.

The purpose of this resolution is to require a thoroughgoing investigation of this claim not only in fairness to this American citizen, by the name of Soto, but because of the possibility, if this matter has been grossly mishandled, of similar action having been taken in other instances involving our own citizens. I earnestly request that whichever committee of the House of Representatives receives my resolution, will follow the matter to its conclusion. I am personally confident that an investigation is warranted.

My only interest is in obtaining redress for an American citizen who from all available facts is certainly entitled thereto. I further submit that it is the duty of Congress to extend its power for the protection of the rights of our citizens, and if it appears—as it definitely does-that the Legal Department of the State Department is so engrossed in other matters that it not only neglects but refuses to maintain and protect the rights of our own citizens, at a time when we are being called upon to assist the plight of foreign nationals, then, I say, Mr. Speaker, that something effective must be done.

The sole relief which the claimant—Soto—desires, is that the rights granted under the treaty cited, be made available to him by the State Department and that he may have his claim arbitrated under the provisions of that treaty. In other words, that the State Department be compelled to obey the law as set out in this treaty.

Truly, gentlemen, we have reached a sorry state when it becomes necessary for an American citizen to appeal to this body to investigate the State Department and to exert its power to enforce respect of our treaties and to insist that the State Department abide by and carry out the supreme laws of our land.

Mr. CUNNINGHAM. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to extend my remarks at this point in the RECORD.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Iowa?

There was no objection.

CUNNINGHAM. Mr. Speaker. when the Eightieth Congress adjourns sine die it will mark the end, for a time at least, of the services of a great American, a true Congressman and a fine statesman. I refer to my beloved colleague from Iowa, the Honorable John W. GWYNNE. JOHN GWYNNE has served his country in the House long, faithfully, and ably, he has become known for his fearless and courageous stand for all things American. The country, the Congress, and his own State of Iowa will suffer from the loss of his influence and leadership. However, wherever he may be and in whatever he may do he will always serve his native State and country loyally and well. He is that kind of a citizen. I am sure I speak for the entire membership, and especially the Iowa delegation in Congress when I say "We all regret he will not be a Member of the Eighty-first Congress." Best wishes and good luck to the Honorable John W. GWYNNE.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. Gille].

THE LATE JAMES I. FARLEY

Mr. GILLIE. Mr. Speaker, it is with genuine sorrow that I report the death of a former Member of Congress from Indiana, James I. Farley, of Auburn, on Wednesday, June 16, at Philadelphia, Pa. Mr. Farley died after a heart attack while visiting the home of a daughter. He was 76 years old.

Mr. Farley, a Democrat, preceded me as Representative in Congress from the Fourth Indiana District. He was elected to the House in 1932 and served three terms. He was an authority on finance and was a member of the Banking and Currency Committee.

Surviving are the widow, Lotta; three sons, Frank and Thain, of Auburn, Ind., and Paul, of Fort Lauderdale, Fla.; two daughters, Mrs. J. D. Spurrier, of Philadelphia, and Mrs. Robert Shaw, of Scarsdale, N. Y.

Born near Hamilton, Ind., Mr. Farley spent his entire life in the Hoosier State and for the past 34 years had been a resident of Auburn, Ind., where he maintained a farm. Before coming to Congress he served as president of the Auburn Auto Corp. He was a thirty-second degree Mason.

Mr. Farley's passing is noted with sorrow by Members of the Indiana delegation in Congress and by former colleagues, on both sides of the aisle, who served with him during the eventful years from 1932 to 1938.

The SPEAKER. Pursuant to the provisions of House Concurrent Resolution 129, Eightieth Congress, the Chair appoints as members of the joint committee to make a study and investigation of the islands and other areas of the Pacific subject to the authority of the United States the following Members of the Committee on Public Lands of the House of Representatives: Mr. Crawford, Mr. Lemke, Mr. Fernandez.

And the following Members of the Committee on Foreign Affairs of the House of Representatives: Mr. Fulton, Mr. Jackson of California, Mr. PFEIFER.

NEW MEXICO MILITARY INSTITUTE

Mr. FERNANDEZ. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent for the immediate consideration of the bill (S. 2698) to authorize the transfer of horses and equipment owned by the United States Army to the New Mexico Military Institute, a State institution, and for other purposes.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New Mexico?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That, notwithstanding any other provision of law, the Secretary of the Army is hereby authorized, upon the request of the institution, to transfer without reimbursement, to the New Mexico Military Institute, Roswell, N. Mex., a tax-supported State institution, to Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y., to Norwich University, Norwich, Vt., and to Virginia Military Institute, Lexington, Va., all horses, except those used in the Remount breeding program, together with their records and equipment, property of the United States Army, located at and utilized by each of the said institutions for military training purposes: Provided, That the receiving institution in each case agrees to arrange for the proper pension and old-age care of the donated horses.

The bill was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed, and a motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

RECESS

The SPEAKER. The House will stand in recess subject to the call of the Chair.

Accordingly (at 2 o'clock and 6 minutes p. m.) the House stood in recess subject to the call of the Chair.

AFTER RECESS

The recess having expired the House was called to order by the Speaker at 2 o'clock and 54 minutes p. m.

THE HONORABLE PETE JARMAN

Mr. FULTON. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to insert in the Record a resolution of the Committee on Foreign Affairs of the House of Representatives, a resolution of esteem and good wishes extended to the gentleman from Alabama, Hon. Pete Jarman.

The SPEAKER. Without objection it is so ordered.

The resolution referred to follows: COMMITTEE ON FOREIGN AFFAIRS,

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,
Washington.

RESOLUTION OF ESTEEM AND GOOD WISHES EXTENDED TO HON. PETE JARMAN

Whereas the Honorable Pete Jarman has served as Representative in Congress of the Sixth District of Alabama from the Seventy-sixth through the Eightleth Congress, and has demonstrated a constant devotion to the public good; and

Whereas his diligence and wisdom have been of particular value on the Committee on Foreign Affairs, of which he has been a member throughout his career in the House of Representatives; and

Whereas his retirement from the House of Representatives brings a sense of loss to those who appreciate the value of his faithful collaboration in the development of United States foreign policy in a fateful period of the history of this Nation: Therefore be it

Resolved by the Committee on Foreign Affairs, That an expression of esteem and good wishes be extended to the Honorable PETE JARMAN in the name of all his colleagues on the committee.

Charles A. Eaton, chairman; Robert B. Chiperfield; Sol Bloom; John M. Vorys; Karl Mundt; John Kee; Bartel J. Jonkman; J. P. Richards; Frances P. Bolton; Joseph L. Pfeifer; Lawrence H. Smith; Chester E. Merrow; Wirt Courtney; Walter H. Judd; Thomas S. Gordon; James G. Fulton; Helen Gahagan Douglas; J. K. Javits; Mike Mansfield; Thomas E. Morgan; John Davis Lodge; Wm. M. Colmer; Donald L. Jackson; Franklin J. Maloney; Boyd Crawford, administrative officer.

STILL FURTHER MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE

A still further message from the Senate, by Mr. Burke, one of its clerks, announced that the Senate had passed without amendment a bill of the House of the following title:

H. R. 5355. An act authorizing a per capita payment of $50 each to the members of the Red Lake Band of Chippewa Indians from the proceeds of the sale of timber and lumber on the Red Lake Reservation.

The message also announced that the Senate agrees to the amendment of the House to the bill (S. 2877) entitled "An act to amend the Reconstruction Finance Corporation Act, as amended," with an amendment, as follows: Strike out "$35,- 000,000" and insert in lieu thereof "$40,-000,000."

The message also announced that the Senate agrees to the report of the committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendment of the House to the bill (S. 2242) entitled "An act to authorize for a limited period of time the admission into the United States of certain European displaced persons for permanent residence, and for other purposes."

The message also announced that the Senate agrees to the report of the committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H. R. 6771) entitled "An act making appropriations for military functions administered by the National Military Establishment for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1949, and for other purposes."

The message also announced that the Senate agrees to the amendments of the House to the amendments of the Senate Nos. 28 and 30 to the above-entitled bill.

The message also announced that the Senate agrees to the report of the committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendment of the House to the bill (S. 2510) entitled "An act to provide for certain administrative expenses in the Post Office Department, including retainment of pneumatic-tube systems, and for other purposes."

SELECT COMMITTEE TO INVESTIGATE FEDERAL COMMUNICATIONS COMMISSION

Mr. HARNESS of Indiana. Mr. Speaker, I call up House Resolution 691, authorizing the appointment of a select committee to conduct a study and investigation of the organization, personnel, and activities of the Federal Communications Commission, and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read as follows:

Resolved, That there is hereby created a select committee to be composed of five Members of the House to be appointed by the Speaker, one of whom he shall designate as chairman. Any vacancy occurring in the membership of the committee shall be filled in the same manner in which the original appointment was made.

The committee is authorized, empowered, and directed to conduct a study and investigation of the organization, personnel, and activities of the Federal Communications Commission with a view to determining whether or not such Commission in its organization, in the selection and appointment of personnel, and in the conduct of its functions and activities, has been, and is, acting in accordance with law and the public interest; including (but not limiting the foregoing authority) a study and investigation of the Commission's licensing and license renewal activities; the Commission's power and authority, if any, to promulgate and issue its so-called "Blue Book", and the extent to which, if any, the same has been, or is being, used as the basis or excuse for regulation by the Commission, directly or indirectly, of radio-program content at licensed radio stations; whether the Commission has licensed, or proposes to license, any radio station or stations owned or controlled by persons who are members of, or affiliated with, subversive or Communist-front organizations or who might permit the facilities of such radio stations to be used contrary to the public interest; and whether there has been, or is, any concerted movement or effort to procure the concentration of radio station licenses, including frequency modulation, amplitude modulation, and television, in the hands of a limited class of persons or concerns rather than a distribution of such licenses on a geographical and equitable basis, as provided by the Communications Act of 1934, as amended.

The committee shall report to the House (or to the Clerk of the House if the House is not in session) at the earliest practicable date, but during the first session of the Eighty-first Congress, the results of its investigation, together with such recommendations as it deems desirable.

For the purposes of this resolution the committee is authorized to sit and act during the present Congress at such times and places within the United States, whether or not the House is sitting, has recessed, or adjourned, to hold such hearings, to require the attendance of such witnesses and the production of such books, papers, records, and documents, and to take such testimony, as it deems necessary. Subpenas may be issued over the signature of the chairman of the committee or any member designated by him, and may be served by any person designated by such chairman or member.

Mr. HARNESS of Indiana. Mr. Speaker, I yield 30 minutes of my time to the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. SABATH] and at this time I yield myself such time as I may require.

Mr. Speaker, this resolution speaks for itself. It proposes a five-member select committee of the House to make a study and investigation of the Federal Communications Commission. I doubt if there is a Member of the House who is not aware of the widespread apprehension that exists throughout the Nation of the activities of this agency of our Government.

I make no charges against this agency because I have no personal knowledge of the facts; however, if this agency is operating in the public interest and according to law, it should be as eager as any one to have this investigation made. My conception of such an investigation would be to examine the charges carefully, make a searching investigation of the agency and report to this Congress and let the chips fall where they may. If there is no foundation for the charges, then the Congress should be informed and the agency should be cleared and exonerated.

Mr. Speaker, I hope this resolution will be adopted.

Mr. RAYBURN. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. HARNESS of Indiana. I yield to the gentleman from Texas.

Mr. RAYBURN. Under the Reorganization Act the committees of Congress are given general powers to investigate. It is my understanding that the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce—and I am very fond of that committee, because I happened to be a member of it for 24 years and chairman of it for 6 years—has made some investigation. They tell me that they went as far as they could under the general powers of investigation, and in that committee they voted out a resolution for further investigation, which resolution has been lying in the Committee on Rules for several months. I am wondering why that resolution has not been acted upon by the Committee on Rules. I am wondering why the Committee on Rules did not report that resolution and give a committee that knows about this matter, a committee that brought into existence the Federal Communications Commission under my chairmanship, or a subcommittee of the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, the power to go into these things.

Mr. HARNESS of Indiana. That is the first knowledge that I had that there was such a resolution pending.

Mr. RAYBURN. I am informed by the gentleman from Tennessee [Mr. PRIEST! that such a resolution has been lying in the Committee on Rules for some weeks, if not months.

Mr. HARNESS of Indiana. The gentleman understands that unless this resolution is adopted the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce would not have the authority, after the adjournment of the Congress, to make such an investigation.

m investigation.

Mr. RAYBURN. Well, that is, of talking about. The committee did ask for that authority. I understand that the gentleman from New Jersey [Mr. WOLVERTON] was the author of the resolution. But it has been lying in the Committee on Rules for quite some time.

Mr. WOLVERTON. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. HARNESS of Indiana. I vield to the gentleman from New Jersey.

Mr. WOLVERTON. I ask for this time for the purpose of stating that the resolution to which the distinguished minority leader refers is House Resolution 165, which I introduced at the request of the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce on March 31, 1947

Mr. SABATH. Mr. Speaker, this resolution before us was introduced day before yesterday, in the afternoon, I think around 2 or 2:30. At 3 o'clock a meeting of the Committee on Rules was called. The committee acted upon the resolution even before it was printed. It was reported without any hearings and in the few moments that the committee was in session, there was no testimony with the exception of a statement that was made by my colleague, the gentleman from Georgia [Mr. Cox]. I observed that other members of the comwere not familiar with the

Now, this action to authorize an investigation is not a new matter. Commission has been investigated by the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce and a select committee before, and I have the reports before me. It was in 1943 or 1944 that a resolution was introduced by the gentleman from Georgia [Mr. Cox], and a special committee was appointed, and the gentleman from Georgia was made the chairman of this special committee.

Mr. COX. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. SABATH. I yield to the gentleman from Georgia.

Mr. COX. The gentleman from Georgia will tell this House the story if the gentleman from Illinois so desires. Never in the history of this Congress was so outrageous a campaign initiated and prosecuted against a Member of this House as was that carried on against myself, in the effort to prevent the exposure of a record that would be shocking even to the gentleman that has the floor if he knew it.

Mr. SABATH. It was because of the strong personal plea of the gentleman from Georgia made at that time that the resolution was adopted and the investigation was ordered, but later the gentleman from Georgia resigned from the select committee and the gentleman from California [Mr. LEA], chairman of the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, was appointed in his place, and the final report which I now have before me does not bear out the statement of the gentleman from Georgia. It does not indicate that there was any interference in the investigation. I want to be fair with the gentleman from Georgia, being a member of the Committee on Rules, which I had the honor to serve as chairman, and he as a member for many years, but I also want to be fair with Mr. LEA, who succeeded him as chairman of the select investigating committee. and only because of the remarks of the gentleman from Georgia, and in fair play, I quote in part from the report of the select committee dated January 2, 1945. as follows:

The hearings have also emphasized the personalities involved in the matters investigated, both those connected with the Commission and those in private life who had some relation to the matters investigated. This investigation has been contemporaneous with innumerable bitter conflicts based on personal interests and animosities which have tended to obscure the constructive properly which were the matters of most concern to legitimate investigation. These animosities provoked exaggerated statements. Suspicions and rumors were distorted into reckless charges. This led to distortion of facts and the difficulties in the consideration and proper appraisement of the real merits of the controversies involved. tisans of each side were parties to these bitter and vindictive activities which contributed more of confusion than enlightenment to the proceedings of the investigation.

This bitterness had more of its impulse in personalities than in concern for the public good. It would be a perversion of this investigation to give undue emphasis to the personal equations involved, many of which should be charged off to personal idiosyncrasies and impetuous temperaments. The memories of these should best be charged off and placed in the discard.

The committee hopes and believes, by patient and friendly cooperation and consideration, a substantial number of the difficulties that now exist can be eliminated or greatly minimized.

Mr. COX. Yes. The investigation continued under the domination and under the control of a power that the committee simply could not resist, and after every record bearing upon the whole question had been impounded at the White House and the committee denied the right to summons it.

Mr. SABATH. Personally, I am not going to contradict the gentleman from Georgia. I know he was demanding the investigation and made certain charges. and it was on those charges that the investigation was held. I was not a member of that committee and I can only go on the record. As I stated, the select committee carried on the investigation for upward of 2 years and indi-cated in its final report that many of the allegations, charges, and countercharges were not borne out by facts.

Now, Mr. Speaker, speaking to the resolution before us, I was surprised, as I have stated, with respect to the unusual introduction of the resolution, the hurried hearings, and reporting of the resolution by the Committee on Rules, especially in view of the fact that House Resolution 165 covering the same proposed investigation was introduced last year and has been pending before the committee ever since. The resolution, instead of proposing the appointment of a special select committee, gave the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce the authority to make the investigation. Therefore, I cannot grasp why in the closing hours of this session this new resolution should have been reported in such extraordinary haste and rushed to the floor for consideration. I have my suspicion. My position in the meeting of the Committee on Rules was to withhold hasty action and to obtain more facts and information before passing on the resolution. It was not my desire or intent to defend anyone who might be guilty of any unfair or illegal act, but to avoid the smearing of any of the members of the Federal Communications Commission against whom charges had been made. I felt that in all justice and in the spirit of fair play they should be accorded the opportunity to explain or refute the charges that were made, but, unfortunately, that privilege was denied me and the resolution was reported out. From the brief statement that was made in the hearing before the Committee on Rules, the country would be made to believe that the membership of the Com-mission was composed of Reds or with men affiliated with communistic fronts.

Mr. COX. Does the gentleman know the members of the Commission? They are not all Reds, of course.

Mr. SABATH. I did not know any one of them. I do not know any of the employees. I do not have a single appointee in the Commission and I do not think I have been in the offices of the Commission for 10 years. I have never requested anything of the Commission and, naturally, I was not denied anything. I am disinterested in the affairs of the Commission, but, believing in fair play, believe that when men are once in the service of the Government they should not be unfairly and unjustly assailed, attacked, or investigated. Even if they are not guilty of anything an investigation in itself is a reflection on their character and good reputation. In my desire to have first-hand information, I questioned three of the members of the Commission and learned that most of them have served with the Commission for many years, with the exception of the Chairman, Mr. Wayne Coy, and a former Republican Member of the House from Ohio, Bob Jones, who was appointed a member last year, who was charged at one time with being a member of the Black Legion, which is surely not a communistic-front organization. The remaining five members have advanced from the ranks of the Commission and have been promoted to commissioner-The Commission consists of seven members, three of whom are Republicans, three Democrats, including the chairman, and one an independent.

Mr. Speaker, mention has been made of the fact that the Commission granted several licenses to a gentleman, a Mr. Lamb, whom I do not know and to my knowledge never have met. It was charged that he has leanings to the left and it was charged that two of the stations he has operated for the past several years have carried broadcasts allegedly communistic in character or that might be deemed in advocacy of communisticfront organizations. I wish to state that if I thought for one moment that the Commission had issued these licenses to Mr. Lamb's organization without warrant or justification and without any investigation, they ought to be investigated and I would be keenly interested to know about it. The fact is that while the applications were approved a few weeks ago, one of them was filed as far back as 5 years ago. It is also a matter of record that no complaints have been filed against Mr. Lamb's two operating stations by the citizens in the cities in which the two stations are located. The issuance of the four permits was not unusual because the Commission has been investigating whether the activities and the character of the broadcasts of the two operating stations entitled his organizations to these additional permits. The record shows that the Commission, as well as the FBI, had made a thorough investigation and that the four licenses were granted conditionally. Two of the stations. I am informed, he is not in position to finance. He does not own them personally; they are held by different corporations, but he has the controlling management.

Mr. Lamb, I understand, is the same gentleman who filed the first portal-toportal suit against a certain corporation. I wonder if that fact is not the underlying reason for the attack being made against him. Personally, I feel there is no evidence that either of his operating stations has been or will be used by left-wingers or communisticfront organizations because it is a known fact that he has been supporting Republican candidates for Congress in radio broadcasts in Ohio, and, if I am not mistaken, in broadcasts in one of his stations in Pennsylvania. Furthermore, he has advocated the loan of money to Spain and has advocated friendship with Spain. Surely he cannot be a leftwinger if he has been advocating the loan to Spain and supporting Fascist Franco. Surely no one can charge that Franco is pink. If anything, from the evidence that I have been able to obtain, he is very much to the right and more conservative than many of the gentlemen who actually advocate legislation that we on the progressive side

Mr. Speaker, I do not wish to delay the House unnecessarily. I think the resolution has no place here. As to the question as to whether the employees in the Commission are disloyal, I am told that the 1.300 men who are employed have been investigated by the FBI.

Mr. CURTIS. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Yes, I yield. Mr. SABATH.

The gentleman re-Mr CHRTIS ferred to himself and others as progressives. Is the gentleman referring to the Progressive Party headed by Mr. Wallace?

Mr. SABATH. Again, I will say that that is not the issue at this time.

Mr. CURTIS. I understand, but I just wanted some information.

Mr. SABATH. I am not here to pass upon whether Mr. Wallace is a progressive or whether Mr. TAFT is a pink because he introduced the housing bill that has been described as socialistic. I am not going into that. I do not want to hurt Mr. TAFT, and I do not want to boost Mr. Dewey or any of the other Republican candidates, because, as I have said before, if, unfortunately, we must have a Republican President, I would rather have JOE MARTIN than anybody else that I know of.

I hope the Speaker will not hold me out of order or hold me in contempt for what I have said.

Mr. RAYBURN. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. SABATH. I yield. Mr. RAYBURN. For fear the Speaker was engaged in something else and did not hear what the gentleman from Illinois said. I will repeat his remarks as well as I remember them, that if this country for the next 4 years must be afflicted with a Republican President, then the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. SABATH] thinks it would be better for the country to have the gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. MARTIN] in that seat.

Mr. SABATH. That is about what I had intended to say. However, I think I said if the country should be so unfortunate as to have a Republican Presi-

Mr. O'TOOLE. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. SABATH. I yield.

Mr. O'TOOLE. Coming from Illinois, will the gentleman now proceed in the regular order and nominate the Vice President?

Mr. SABATH. I am being placed in a very embarrassing position. I did not want to make a political speech. know I always try to keep away from politics. The gentleman from New York [Mr. O'Toole] places me in this unfortunate position, that in Illinois we have an outstanding Democratic Senator, Scott Lucas, and I recollect that I succeeded in obtaining his endorsement for Vice President by the Illinois State delegation in 1944. I presume he may be willing to listen to the demands of the people of Illinois and consent to be a candidate, and I believe he would not only make a strong candidate for the Vice Presidency but even for the Presidency.

However, we have in this House a gentleman from Massachusetts, the former majority leader [Mr. McCormack]. a friend of mine and whose friendship I value highly, whom a vast majority of the membership of this House and the people of his State urge as a candidate for Vice President. With his splendid record, ability, and popularity, he would add strength to any Presidential candidate that the Democrats may select, and whom I am confident the Democrats will elect in the ensuing election. Now, I am torn between love and duty. But if the lightning strikes, notwithstanding my high regard for the Senator from Illinois, I think that New England, perhaps, might be in better geographical position to succeed in obtaining the nomination for the Vice Presidency than a candidate from my State or any of the Middlewestern States. I am giving you my candid opinion for what it is worth and, as usual, I am trying to be frank.

Now, to the resolution.

Mr. EBERHARTER. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. SABATH. On the resolution?

Mr. EBERHARTER. No. 'The gentleman did not quite make himself clear. I think he meant to say that the country could do no better in selecting a Vice Presidential candidate and electing one than to reach out to the City of Boston and select our beloved whip, the Honorable John McCormack, of Massachusetts. Is that what the gentleman meant to say?

Mr. SABATH. That is what I intended to say. Again I am thankful to the gentleman from Pennsylvania for making clear my thoughts and expressions. It is difficult for me at times at the end of a long-day's session to express myself as clearly as I would like to, but Members who have served with me know that I mean well even though I do not say it well on such occasions.

Mr. COX. Mr. Speaker, will the gen-tleman yield?

Mr. SABATH. I yield.

Mr. COX. Is it the gentleman's intention to yield some time to some of his colleagues on the committee?

Mr. SABATH. Oh, yes; I always do so, even when they disagree with me, but I have not had any requests for time from Members to speak on the resolution.

Mr. COX. The gentleman has about 10 minutes left.

Mr. SABATH. Now, having stated my position, I feel that this resolution is not entitled to favorable consideration, because under the Reorganization Act which was passed last year, we have given power and jurisdiction to the legislative committees to investigate matters coming within their jurisdiction and in view of the fact that the chairman and several members of the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce were on the select committee that conducted the last investigation of the Federal Communications Commission, I feel that by every right and precedent, they are entitled to conduct this investigation, which they originally sought under House Resolution 165, which as I have stated was introduced and referred to the Committee on Rules last year and which has remained buried in the committee during all these months. Consequently, I wondered and have sought the underlying reason for this hastily introduced and hastily reported resolution now before us. I surmise what is behind it but I am constrained to express my suspicions. However, in view of the statement and interruption of my colleague from Georgia [Mr. Cox] I strongly feel that he may have been behind the influence in urging this action. I also wonder why the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce held a meeting this morning and by a nearly unanimous vote agreed to oppose this resolution and now have been obliged to reverse its position and to support the resolution. Again, I refrain to express my views because it has been my policy that if I could not do a person some good, I would not harm him.

Mr. Speaker, the Commission has doubled the number of stations since the war. It has had a work load not exceeded by any department or agency of the Government and it has done a good job. Its employees have been conscientious, faithful, and the investigations thus far conducted by the FBI have not disclosed disloyalty on the part of any one of them, and I am confident that when the investigations have been completed the record of personnel loyalty of the Commission will rank with the top governmental agencies.

I could have proceeded further, had I not yielded to the Member, and have given additional information and facts. As some Members have indicated that they desire to speak to the resolution, I shall conclude my remarks and yield them the balance of my time.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of

Mr. HARNESS of Indiana. Mr. Speaker, I yield 5 minutes to the gentleman from New Jersey [Mr. WOLVERTON].

Mr. WOLVERTON. Mr. Speaker, the resolution which is before the House deals with a matter which comes within the jurisdiction of the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce. Under the Reorganization Act the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce is given legislative jurisdiction over matters relating to the Federal Communications Commission. The Reorganization Act lodges with each of the regular committees of Congress the responsibility of examining into the administration of the agencies of Government within their respective jurisdictions. In other words to constantly examine whether such agencies of Government were properly fulfilling their duties within the authority set forth in the statutes that created such agencies. In order that the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce might deal intelligently with the several agencies of the Government which come within its jurisdiction, immediately after the convening of this Congress in January of 1947, we called before our committee representatives of all of the different agencies of Government over which our committee had jurisdiction. You know how great a list that is. Practically all of the regulatory bodies within our Government come under the legislative jurisdiction of the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

The committee took approximately 6 weeks of time in examining the several commissioners, their top employees, and such others as were necessary to the end that our committee members, some of whom were new to the work of the committee, might be fully aware of the extent of its jurisdiction, that the committee might have knowledge of the manner in which the authority of these several commissions was being carried out, their procedures, and so forth. In addition to that, we brought to the attention of these commissions the complaints that had come to the attention of the committee in one way or another and they were discussed with the Commissioners. I think all of the members of the committee will agree with me when I say it was one of the most constructive things that any committee of this House has ever done. I am of the opinion, and I believe the Members of this House are, that the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce has been faithful to the duties entrusted to it. I know of no committee of Congress that has worked harder, that has spent more time in the holding of hearings on matters that related to the welfare of this Nation than has the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commrce. Today I am filing with this House a report of the wide scope of inquiries that have been made and hearings held by the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce. I hope the Membership of the House will have time to read that report. I am sure they will be astounded at the scope that has been covered by this committee and I am certain that you will feel as proud of its efforts as the committee itself.

At this point may I express a tribute of appreciation and praise to the members of that committee. When I speak of the members of the committee I draw no distinction as to whether they be majority or minority members. In each instance they have been loyal, they have been able, they have been constructive in their efforts and it has been the unanimous action of the committee that brought to the attention of this House the many important matters that the committee has had to consider during the work of this session of Congress.

Mr. SABATH. This resolution does not authorize the gentleman's committee to make the investigation, does it?

The SPEAKER. The time of the gentleman from New Jersey has expired. Mr. HARNESS of Indiana. Mr.

Speaker, I yield the gentleman two additional minutes.

Mr. WOLVERTON. Mr. Speaker, that brings me to the point that notwithstanding the wide scope that our inquiries have taken in matters within the jurisdiction of the committee and that includes the Federal Communications Commission, there are limitations to the authority of committees of the House in the Reorganization Act that, in my opinion, should not be there.

I do not think that the regular committees of this House should be restricted in their powers to investigate the matters that are within their jurisdiction. In that portion of the Reorganization Act that deals with Senate committees, by statute Senate committees have been given the right to carry on investigations of matters within the jurisdiction of the committees, with power of subpena, allocation of funds, and so forth. I think that similar authority should also have been given to the House committees, but it was not, and, therefore, it is necessary to ask for these special powers such as are provided for in the resolution which has been introduced by the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. HARNESS].

On March 31, 1947, as chairman of the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, at the direction of the committee after full consideration, I introduced House Resolution 165, that would have given the power and authority to the committee to go further than we had been able to do under the powers that had been granted to us under the Reorganization Act. I am convinced that a resolution for this purpose should be passed, because there is a line beyond which the committee cannot go in its investigations. Such a resolution would make any investigations more effectual.

I would have been pleased to have seen House Resolution 165 reported out long ago. However, the committee has been busy, and whatever work has to be done of a special character will have to be done during the recess. But if we are not to have House Resolution 165, which is general in character, and in accord with what I believe is expected of House committees, then, Mr. Speaker, we must accept this resolution which is presented today, because it does provide the authority which the regular committee does not have.

Mr. McCORMACK. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. WOLVERTON. I yield to the gentleman from Massachusetts.

Mr. McCORMACK. Does not the gentleman feel that his committee should, if it can be given power, make this investigation?

Mr. WOLVERTON. I am of the opinion that in the formation of a special committee—and maybe the wish is father of the thought—the Speaker will take into consideration the high caliber of the men on the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce and recognize that fact in connection with whomever he will appoint to this committee.

Mr. SABATH. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Texas [Mr. RAYBURN].

Mr. RAYBURN. Mr. Speaker, I deeply regret to hear the statement of the gentleman from New Jersey just before he closed. When I was chairman of the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, and any other committee of this House had tried to take jurisdiction away from that committee, they would have had a fight with me. Now, I was the author of the bill which brought into being the Federal Comunications Commission, the old Radio Commission, which was not doing much of anything.

We took telegraph and telephone from the Interstate Commerce Commission and put all communications together.

Mr. HARNESS of Indiana. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. RAYBURN. I yield to the gentleman from Indiana

Mr. HARNESS of Indiana. I think the gentleman understands that this resolution does not take any jurisdiction away from the great Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

Mr. RAYBURN. Well, they ask for extended authority. They do have authority to investigate and they have investigated this very thing, and all these other things, but they said they could not go as far under the general powers as they thought they should, and they asked the Committee on Rules more than a year ago, 15 months ago, to give them this additional power.

Mr. HARNESS of Indiana. That resolution is not before the House.

Mr. RAYBURN. I know it is not.

Mr. HARNESS of Indiana. And if this resolution is not adopted they will be without that power.

Mr. RAYBURN. Oh, it is an easy matter for the gentleman to offer as a substitute for his resolution the resolution that was advocated by the great Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, and this investigation to be made by somebody who knows something about it.

Mr. McCORMACK. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. RAYBURN. I yield to the gentleman from Massachusetts.

Mr. McCORMACK. The gentleman could yield to the gentleman from New Jersey for the purpose of offering an amendment, and he could offer his substitute, and there would be no opposi-

Mr. WOLVERTON. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. RAYBURN. I yield to the gentleman from New Jersey.

Mr. WOLVERTON. The gentleman from Texas knows there is no one in this House for whom I have higher regard than the gentleman from Texas. It was my privilege to serve under him when he was chairman of the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce. I cannot find words that would adequately express the high regard I have had for him ever since he presided over that committee. I am grateful to the gentleman for having directed attention to the issue as to whether this resolution takes any jurisdiction away from the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce. I had intended to include in my remarks a reference to that subject. I am grateful to the gentleman that he has reminded me of it. I do not consider that this resolution will diminish the jurisdiction of the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce. The jurisdiction of that committee was fixed by the Reorganization Act. Unfortunately it does not extend as far as this resolution does. It should in my opinion, but, as I say unfortunately it does not. However, I assure the gentleman from Texas that as long as I am chairman of the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, that committee will exercise as fully as is within our power our jurisdiction in this matter or any other matter, regardless of whether or not any special resolutions such as this are passed.

The SPEAKER. The time of the gentleman from Texas has expired.

Mr. HARNESS of Indiana. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Texas.

Mr. RAYBURN. Yes: but the trouble about that is the gentleman does not have the authority under the general When I was chairman of that committee I went out and fought for that jurisdiction and I did not give it up. That is the reason I brought in about six major bills here in about 4 years.

I do not want to say something myself about this Commission. I am not in love with this Commission. I want you to understand that. I do not believe in persecuting anybody. I have had a good deal to do with this Commission. I have watched it. I think it is a better Commission now than it was several months or a year or two ago. I think then we had on that Commission some men, not a majority of them, who were cowards and weaklings. I do not know what kind of a chairman Wayne Coy is going to make. I think he is a very good and a very able man. But whatever he is, he is a better man and a better chairman than the man he succeeded was capable of being.

Mr. SABATH. 'Mr. Speaker, I yield 21/2 minutes to the gentleman from Oklahoma [Mr. MONRONEY].

Mr. MONRONEY. Mr. Speaker, what we face here today has a very important relationship to efficiency and effectiveness of the Congress. In the reorganization of Congress, after many, many months of study, and testimony by some of your leaders on your own Republican side, it was determined that special committees performing investigatory duties destroyed the jurisdiction, the authority. and the responsibility of the standing legislative committees of this House. As a result, 12 or 13 special committees, which, like Topsy, had "just growed," were lopped off in the reorganization.

Jurisdiction of the reorganized committees was clarified. Congress has been pretty good about holding the line against breaking down the new committee organization. I think there have been three or perhaps four special committees established during the 2 years of this Congress. Some of those were on matters which spread-eagled two or three jurisdictions, and perhaps ac-counted for a few of those special committees. But this proposed investiga-tion here is directly the responsibility of the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, make no mistake about that.

To remove this jurisdiction here and create an unneeded special committee at vast extra expense violates the spirit. if not the letter of our own Reorganization Act.

The men on the regular Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee have the powers and can come here by unanimous consent and get the subpena powers if that is necessary if they wish to conduct this investigation.

A vote for this resolution today is a vote of "no confidence" in a great com-mittee headed by a great chairman, the gentleman from New Jersey [Mr. Wol-VERTON], one of the greatest chairmen in the House.

With ranking members on his committee, such as the gentleman from California [Mr. LEA], as well as other Members, these men understand the problem and are perfectly capable of doing this

You are not only destroying the jurisdiction of the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, but you are weakening other legislative committees so far as their watchdog functions provided for in the Reorganization Act are concerned.

Things are beginning to take hold now where the legislative committees consider it a part of their duty to follow up legislation to find out if the bureaus under their control are carrying out their duties. When you strip a committee of its jurisdiction, as is being done here, by establishing control outside of the framework of your standing committees system, you destroy that much of the value of reorganization and you weaken all other regular committees.

Mr. PRIEST. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. MONRONEY. I yield.

Mr. PRIEST. Is it not true that if the previous question on the pending resolution is voted down, it will then be in order to substitute the resolution introduced by Chairman Wolverton of the Interstate and Foreign Commerce Com-

Mr. MONRONEY. The gentleman from Tennessee is exactly correct, and that is what should be done if you are in favor of living up to your own rules that you have established, if you favor keeping the jurisdictional lines of the Congress straight and clear.

If you oppose, as I do, the usurpation of the jurisdiction of the regular standing committees of the House of Representatives, by these hit-or-miss special committees, then you should vote down the resolution.

Mr. SABATH. Mr. Speaker, I yield 5 minutes to the gentleman from Georgia [Mr. Cox].

Mr. COX. Mr. Speaker, the statement of the gentleman from Oklahoma does not surprise me, but I must confess that I was pained at my long-time and most devoted friend, the gentleman from Texas, giving the impression by the statement that he made that he is resisting the adoption of the pending resolution. My colleagues, I have labored here with you for a long time. It has been my hope that I would so conduct myself as to earn your confidence. I come to you as a party interested in the setting up of this committee and in carrying out an honest investigation of the Communications Commission and I am looking to my friends on the Democratic side who have confidence in me and who are willing to stand by me, to vote for this resolution. I do not want to rip this thing open, because to me it would be most painful. The resolution simply proposes the naming of a committee to take up where a previous special committee left off in the business of investigating the Federal Communications Commission.

You recall that when the first committee was set up, it was my resolution, and I was named chairman. The committee engaged the services of the best people that could be found to do the work. We were able to enlist the services of a very great lawyer. He came here at enormous expense to himself and spent many months with the committee in building up a record to be used as the basis for recommendations to the House of Representatives.

Due to the fight that was made upon me, I left the committee in the hope that so doing would make it easier for the committee to carry on. I want to say to you that never in the history of this Congress was a meaner thing done to a Member than that which was done to me. I was made the object of the most terrible smear campaign that was ever built up. The thing is too painful to me for me to rest. I hate to tell you all about it. Unfortunately, the committee found itself opposed by an angry White House. All the powers attaching to that great office were brought into play against the committee. The committee had the cooperation of the Army and the Navy. Communications Commission had been interfering with the communications of both the Army and the Navy. The committee had the benefit of the assistance of representatives of both Army and Navy. They worked with us and in some instances helped in the investigation that was being made.

As I say, the counsel for the committee was not only a great lawyer but was also a conscientious man who was seeking to do a man's job. He was persistent and through various sources of information kept informed.

The SPEAKER. The time of the gentleman from Georgia [Mr. Cox] has expired.

Mr. HARNESS of Indiana. Mr. Speaker, I yield the gentleman 5 minutes.

Mr. COX. But this is what happened: People in the Government were directed to dishonor any summons that the committee might issue; and, to make certain that the committee would not be able to get the evidence it wanted, the records in the War Department, the Navy Department, the Communications Commission, the Bureau of the Budget, and others were seized, taken to, and impounded at the White House.

After I left the committee, the smear artists then directed their attention to Gene Garey, the counsel for the committee, and to show you the extent that these people were willing to go in their effort to intimidate and smear one of the country's greatest lawyers, they searched his record from the time he was a boy selling newspapers on the streets of Chicago in order to support a widowed mother. They followed him down to that particular moment, but they were never able to get anything that might be used to intimidate, browbeat, and drive him from the committee. But here is what they resorted to, and listen to me:

When the representatives of Japan were here and our President, through the State Department, was undertaking to reach some sort of an understanding, or get some particular information, they gained knowledge that Mr. Desvernine, one of the associates of the then lawyer of the committee had at one time been the counsel of the Mikado Bank in this country. Through Mr. Baruch, as I recall, Mr. Desvernine was brought in and under the urge and direction of the White House, he obtained from the representatives of Japan information that the President wanted. At the time the committee was undertaking to prosecute the investigation. Desverning was told that if Garey continued to represent the committee that he, Desvernine, would be charged with having, prior to Pearl Harbor, been the representative of the Mikado, and threats of prosecution were made against him.

The story, as I recall, is that Mr. Baruch, great man that he is, sought to protect Desvernine. It was, as I remember, Mr. Baruch who got Desvernine to come into the picture. Finally, and in order to save Desvernine from being smeared and ruined, Garey left the committee in disgust and the investigation fizzled out.

Let me say to you there is no Member of this House who has a greater appreciation of the Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee than myself, but this is a special job that ought to be done by a special committee. The Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee has not, in view of the tremendous burden that rests upon the committee, found it possible to conduct a thorough investigation of the Commission up to the present time. The splendid chairman of that committee tells you that this is a job that ought to be done, and since that committee is not empowered to carry on the work, the resolution ought to be adopted and this special committee set up.

Mr. Speaker, let me say again that I hope the membership will find it consistent with their sense of what is right to support this resolution.

The Commission is carrying on now just as it has carried on through the several years that have gone by. You recall the disclosure made by the gentleman from Louisiana [Mr. HÉBERT] with reference to the issuance of five licenses to one man within 2 weeks, of whom it has been said-witnesses can be produced who will so testify—that he served in the Communist Party with him for some length of time. Think of it—five licenses to one man in 2 weeks and he a man with Communist connections. Mr. Speaker, the broadcast carriers live under a terrorism exercised by this Commission; law-abiding, high-minded, patriotic Americans always under the gun of the Commission, and yet here is a man who, the Commission was informed had Communist connections, comes in and obtains within 2 weeks' time five licenses worth millions of dollars.

The SPEAKER. The time of the gentleman from Georgia has expired. Mr. HARNESS of Indiana. I yield two additional minutes to the gentleman from Georgia.

Mr. HÉBERT. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. COX. I yield.

Mr. HÉBERT. I may say to the gentleman from Georgia in connection with the case of this man who has Communist associations and the fact that he obtained five licenses in 2 weeks, I wrote a letter to the chairman of the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce of this House and asked him to obtain an explanation from the Communications Commission. That was approximately 7 or 8 weeks ago, yet as of this date I have received no explanation and do not know what is going on about it.

Mr. COX. Let me say this, no blame should attach to any member of that committee. I understand that; but what the gentleman says argues strongly the importance of the setting up of this committee to carry on this all-important investigation.

Mr. Speaker, I hope the membership will support the resolution.

Mr. HARNESS of Indiana. Mr. speaker, I yield such time as he may desire to the gentleman from Indiana the majority leader [Mr. HALLECK].

Mr. HALLECK. Mr. Speaker, I think this resolution should be adopted. Certainly it is no invasion of the affairs of any other committee and certainly no reflection upon any other committee.

It was my privilege to serve on the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce for a number of years. I enjoyed my services there. I know of the greatness of that committee.

However, this is something that needs to be done. I recall the circumstances about which the gentleman from Georgia has just spoken, and I was as resentful at some of the tactics there pursued as he was. I take it that this resolution is not intended to go back into matters of that day but, rather, is to inquire into some of the things that are presently alleged to be going on.

For that purpose this resolution is proper and should be adopted.

Mr. WOLVERTON. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. HALLECK. I yield to the gentleman from New Jersey.

Mr. WOLVERTON. I have asked the gentleman to yield in order that I may reply to the gentleman from Louisiana [Mr. HÉBERT]. I understood he said that he had written to me and had received no reply.

Mr. HÉBERT. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. HALLECK. I yield to the gentleman from Louisiana.

Mr. HEBERT. I do not think I said that. If I did, I did not intend to do so. I said I had written to the gentleman asking for an explanation from the Federal Communications Commission and as of this day there has been no explanation, as far as I know, from the Federal Communications Commission.

Mr. WOLVERTON. I am pleased to hear from the gentleman what he did sav.

Mr. HÉBERT. I am not talking about the gentleman or about the committee.

Mr. WOLVERTON. Upon receipt of the information on the matter of which he complained I wrote to the gentleman under date of May 7, 1948, stating that I had received the complaint and would proceed immediately to investigate it. Upon the same day I communicated with Hon. Wayne Coy, Chairman, Federal Communications Commission, asking him for an explanation. Afterward I received the explanation which I have here in my hand and which is a part of the files of the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

Mr. HÉBERT. May I ask on what day the reply from the Federal Communications Commission was received?

Mr. WOLVERTON. The first reply was made on the 13th.

Mr. HÉBERT. That was merely an acknowledgment. I mean the explana-

Mr. WOLVERTON. May 13.

Mr. HÉBERT. Since May 13 the Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee has been in possession of an explanation of the relationship between Mr. Lamb and the Federal Communications Commission?

Mr. WOLVERTON. Yes. The committee, however, has not closed the

Mr. HÉBERT. I may say to the gentleman that since May 7 I have received no additional information at all, nor have I ever received any information or acknowledge that he had received a reply or explanation from the Federal Communications Commission.

Mr. WOLVERTON. Nor have I heard a word from the gentleman from Louisiana since that time.

Mr. HÉBERT. I may say I was waiting on the gentleman replying to my letter.

Mr. WOLVERTON. I think that is the easiest thing to say, you were waiting, but the fact is we acted on the gen-tleman's complaint. We have taken more interest in it than he has and now he is seeking to raise an issue which does not exist.

Mr. HALLECK. Mr. Speaker, I think the matter has been sufficiently explored. I am sure there is no reason for recriminations between the gentleman from Louisiana and the gentleman from New Jersey. Probably the information which the gentleman sought is another reason why this resolution should be adopted.

Mr. HÉBERT. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. HALLECK. I yield to the gentleman from Louisiana.

Mr. HÉBERT. Of course, I do not care to engage in a controversy with the distinguished gentleman from New Jersey except to keep the RECORD absolutely correct. His letter told me he would inform me when he had received the information, and I am still waiting on the information. To this I have not been informed.

Mr. HALLECK. If I understand the matter correctly, the gentleman from New Jersey was seeking further information that probably would complete the story. Under those circumstances the gentleman's understanding about it and his present view could be very well justified, as I am sure the view and understanding of the gentleman from New Jersey could be justified.

Mr. SABATH. Mr. Speaker, will the

gentleman yield?
Mr. HALLECK. I yield to the gentleman from Illinois.

Mr. SABATH. Is it desired to pass this resolution to investigate Bob Jones. one of the new members of the commission, and a former Member of this House?

Mr. HALLECK. Well, now, of course, the gentleman, I am sure, is quite facetious in his question. The resolution of inquiry is general in its terms and has to do with the commission, and I suppose any individual's action in connection with the commission would be under scrutiny so far as the committee is concerned if this resolution is adopted which again, I say, I hope shall turn out to be the case

Mr. RANKIN. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. HALLECK. I yield to the gentleman from Mississippi.

Mr. RANKIN. If this committee is no more successful in getting information than the Committee on Un-American Activities has been in getting a letter from the FBI on Dr. Condon, then I fear we are wasting our time.

Mr. HARNESS of Indiana. Mr. Speaker, I move the previous question on the resolution

The question was taken; and on a division (demanded by Mr. SABATH) there were-ayes 174, noes 50.

So the previous question was ordered. The SPEAKER. The question is on the resolution

Mr. SABATH. Mr. Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were refused. The resolution was agreed to.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

EXTENSION OF REMARKS

Mr. SANBORN. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to extend my remarks in the RECORD and include a statement. This statement exceeds the prescribed limit, but I ask unanimous consent that notwithstanding the rule it be printed.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Idaho?

There was no objection.

Mr. SANBORN further asked and was given permission to extend his remarks in the Record and include two radio addresses.

Mr. KUNKEL asked and was given permission to extend his remarks in the RECORD and include a radio address.

Mr. REEVES asked and was given permission to extend his remarks in the RECORD in three instances and include extraneous matter in each.

STEFAN MAGURA AND MICHAL MAGURA

Mr. GRAHAM. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent for the immediate consideration of the bill (S. 2709) for the relief of Stefan Magura and Michal Magura

The Clerk read the title of the bill. The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Pennsylvania?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That, in the administration of the immigration and naturalization laws, Stefan Magura and Michal Magura, of Donora, Pa., who were admitted into the United States on temporary visas, shall be deemed to have been lawfully admitted into the United States for permanent residence as of April 29, 1948, upon payment of visa fees and head tax.

SEC. 2. Upon the enactment of this act, the Secretary of State is authorized and directed to instruct the proper quota-control officer to deduct two numbers from the nonpreference category of the first available immigration quota for Czechoslovakia.

The bill was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed, and a motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

AMENDMENT OF SECTION 624 OF THE PUBLIC HEALTH SERVICE ACT

Mr. WOLVERTON. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to take from the Speaker's table the bill (H. R. 4816) to amend section 624 of the Public Health Service Act so as to provide a minimum allotment of $250,000 to each State for the construction of hospitals, with Senate amendments thereto, and concur in the Senate amendments

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The Clerk read the Senate amendments, as follows:

SALE OF INTERESTS IN ESTATES OF DECEASED CROW INDIAN ALLOTTEES

Mr. D'EWART. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to take from the Speaker's desk the bill (H. R. 2352) to provide for sale to the Crow Tribe of interests in the estates of deceased Crow Indian allottees, with Senate amendments thereto, and concur in the Senate admentments.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The Clerk read the Senate amendments, as follows:

SEC. 4. That the Secretary of the Interior with the consent, in writing, of the tribal council representing the Indians of the Kiowa, Comanche, and Apache Reservation, is hereby authorized and directed to sell and convey to the Board of County Commissioners of Comanche County, Okla., for public purposes, to wit: A site for a county hospital for said county upon such terms and conditions as he may prescribe—ten acres from the north one-half of section 30, township 2 north, range 11 west, Indian meridian, and more definitely described as follows:

"The southeast quarter of the southeast quarter of the northwest quarter of said section 30, township 2 north, range 11 west, Indian meridian: Provided, That out of the preceeds of such sale the sum of $1.25 per acre shall be credited to the general fund of the United States Treasury and the balance shall be deposited in the United States Treasury to the credit of the tribal fund of Indians of the said Kiowa, Comanche, and Apache Reservation.

Amend the title so as to read: "An act to provide for sale to the Crow Tribe of interests in the estates of deceased Crow In-dian allottees, and to provide for the sale of certain lands to the Board of County Commissioners of Comanche County, Okla, and for other purposes.'

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentlemen from Montana?

There was no objection.

The Senate amendments were concurred in.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the

APPROPRIATIONS FOR CORPORATIONS AND GOVERNMENT INDEPENDENT EXECUTIVE AGENCIES. 1949

Mr. PLOESER submitted the following conference report and statement on the bill (H. R. 6481) making appropriations for Government corporations and independent executive agencies for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1949, and for other purposes:

CONFERENCE REPORT

The committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H. R. 6481) making appropriations for the Government corporations and independent executive agencies for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1949, and for other purposes, having met, after full and free conference, have agreed to recommend and do recommend to their respective Houses as follows:

That the Senate recede from its amendments numbered 4, 5, 8, and 21,

That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendments of the Senate numbered 6, 9, 11, 12, 15, 17, 19, 22, 23, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, 32, and 33, and agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 10: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 10, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: In lieu of the sum proposed by said amendment insert "$2,300,000"; and the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 14: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 14, and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: In lieu of the sum proposed by said amendment insert "$9,500,000"; and the Senate agree to the same.

KENNETH MCKELLAR, RICHARD B. RUSSELL, Managers on the Part of the Senate.

STATEMENT

The managers on the part of the House at the conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H. R. 6481) making appropriations for Government corporations and independent executive agencies for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1949, and for other purposes, submit the following report in explanation of the effect of the action agreed upon and recommended in the accompanying conference report as to each of such amendments, namely:

Amendment No. 1 is reported in disagree-

Amendment No: 2 is reported in disagree-

Amendment No. 3 is reported in disagreement.

Amendment No. 4 appropriates to the Public Housing Administration $4,840,000, as proposed by the House, for payments of annual contributions to locally owned low-rent housing projects, instead of $6,200,000, as proposed by the Senate.

Amendment No. 5 restores the provision of the House bill requiring that no part of the appropriation to the Public Housing Administration for annual contributions to low-rent housing projects be paid to such projects making payments in lieu of taxes in excess of the amount specified in the original contract between such projects and the Public Housing Administration.

TITLE II

Amendment No. 6 changes the effective time when the Board of Directors of the Panama Rallroad Company are required to declare and pay a dividend to the Treasury of the United States from "immediately upon the enactment of this Act" to "prior to July 31, 1948"

Amendment No. 7 is reported in disagreement.

Amendment No. 8 restores the provision of the House bill limiting the amount of funds available for liquidation of the Tennessee Valley Associated Cooperatives, Inc., and requiring this corporation to be liquidated and dissolved at the earliest practicable date without additional appropriations therefor.

Amendment No. 9, relating to the standard under which the Reconstruction Finance Corporation shall account for its administrative expenses, changes the require-ment of the House bill so that "generally recognized" accounting principles and practices must be followed.

Amendment No. 10 authorizes not to exceed $2,300,000 for administrative expenses of the Home Owners' Loan Corporation, instead of not to exceed $2,250,000, as proposed by the House, and not to exceed $2,500,000, as proposed by the Senate.

Amendments Nos. 11 and 12 authorize the Secretary of the Treasury to cancel bonds of the Home Owners' Loan Corporation as proposed by the Senate, instead of capital stock as proposed by the House, upon transfer of the capital stock of the Federal Sayings and Loan Insurance Corporation from the Home Owners' Loan Corporation to the Treasury

Amendment No. 13 is reported in disagree-

Amendment No. 14 authorizes not to exceed $9,500,000 for administrative expenses of the Public Housing Administration, in-stead of not to exceed $9,000,000, as proposed by the House, and $10,000,000, as proposed by the Senate.

Amendment No. 15 requires the capital stock of the Defense Homes Corporation to be transferred to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, as proposed by the Senate, instead of to the Secretary of the Treasury, as proposed by the House.

Amendment No. 16 is reported in disagree-

Amendment No. 17 authorizes not to exceed $3,000 of the funds of the Housing and Home Finance Agency available for travel expenses to be used for attendance at meetings, as proposed by the Senate.

Amendment No. 18 authorizes payment by the Federal intermediate credit banks to the Farm Credit Administration for services rendered in amount not to exceed $330,000, instead of not to exceed $373,600, as proby the House, and not to exceed $223,600, as proposed by the Senate.

Amendment No. 19 authorizes not to exceed $1,500,000 for administrative expenses of the production credit corporations, as proposed by the Senate, instead of not to exceed $1,350,000, as proposed by the House.

Amendments Nos. 20 and 21 provide that the production credit corporations shall return Government capital of not less than $30,000,000, instead of not less than $60,000,-000, as proposed by the House, and not less than $20,000,000, as proposed by the Senate, and that such capital be carried to the surplus fund and covered into the Treasury, as proposed by the House, instead of being re-turned to the production credit corporations revolving fund authorized in title 12 of the United States Code, as proposed by the Sen-

Amendment No. 22 authorizes not to exceed $146.800 for administrative expenses of the Regional Agricultural Credit Corporation of Washington, D. C., as proposed by the Senate, instead of not to exceed $46,800, as proposed by the House.

Amendment No. 23 authorizes payment by the Regional Agricultural Credit Corporation of Washington to the Farm Credit Administration for services rendered in amount not to exceed $21,000, as proposed by the Senate, instead of not to exceed $12,500, as proposed Amendment No. 25 authorizes the Inland Waterways Corporation to pay not to exceed $1,482.90 for services actually rendered by 12 former employees who had been reemployed after having engaged in a strike against the Government, for which the Corporation has no present authority to pay, instead of not to exceed $3,918.48 for 18 such former employees, as proposed by the House, and the elimination of any such authority, as proposed by the Senate.

In recommending authority to pay certain of such former employees to the exclusion of others, it is the intention of the managers on the part of both Houses that such action shall not be construed as a bar or a limitation on the rights of any of such former employees of this Corporation to make or prosecute claims for funds alleged to be owing to them

Amendment No. 27 provides that funds of the Federal Prison Industries, Inc., shall be available in amounts not to exceed $338,000 during the fiscal year 1948 and $380,000 during the fiscal year 1949 for expenses of vocational training of prisoners as authorized by the act of May 11, 1948 (Public Law 521), as proposed by the Senate.

TITLE III

Amendment No. 28 strikes out, as proposed by the Senate, the provision of the House bill increasing the salaries of the Governor of the Farm Credit Administration and the Housing and Home Finance Administrator.

Amendment No. 29 changes the number of a section of the bill.

Amendments Nos. 30, 31, and 32 strike from the bill language, proposed by the House, to forbid employment by agencies included in the bill of members of labor or-ganizations the officers of which are not in compliance with the Labor-Management Relations Act, 1947.

Amendment No. 33 changes the number of a section of the bill.

AMENDMENTS IN DISAGREEMENT

Amendment No. 7, relating to the requirement that the Board of Directors of the Panama Railroad Company declare and pay a dividend of $10,000,000 into the Treasury of the United States, if not otherwise required to be turned in to the Treasury under the provisions of the proposed Federal char-ter: The managers on the part of the House will move to recede and concur with an amendment.

Amendment No. 13, providing that the amount of bonds canceled by the Secretary of the Treasury upon receipt from the Home Owners' Loan Corporation of the outstanding capital stock of the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation shall equal the par value of such stock plus accrued divi-dends thereon: The managers on the part of the House will move to recede and concur with an amendment.

Amendment No. 16, relating to the effective date for the transfer of the stock, assets, liabilities, and records of the Defense Homes Corporation to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation: The managers on the part of the House will move to recede and concur with an amendment.

Amendment No. 24, authorizing the Re-gional Agricultural Credit Corporation of Washington, D. C., to make loans to fur farmers and to incur administrative expenses in connection therewith: The managers on the part of the House will move to recede and concur with an amendment.

Amendment No. 26, authorizing the Virgin Islands Company to borrow $500,000 from the Treasury; appropriating $500,000 for this purpose; and enabling the company to continue its present operations until June 30, 1949: The managers on the part of the House will move to recede and concur with an amendment.

> WALTER C. PLOESER, BEN F. JENSEN, F. R. COUDERT, Jr., CLIFF CLEVENGER, GEORGE MAHON, JAMIE L. WHITTEN, ALBERT GORE,

Managers on the Part of the House.

Mr. PLOESER. Mr. Speaker, I call up the conference report on the bill (H. R. 6481) making appropriations for Government corporations and independent executive agencies for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1949, and for other purposes, and ask unanimous consent that the statement of the managers on the part of the House be read in lieu of the report.

The Clerk read the title of the bill. The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Missouri?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the statement. Mr. PLOESER. Mr. Speaker, I move the previous question on the conference report.

The previous question was ordered. The conference report was agreed to.

Mr. PLOESER, Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that Senate amendments Nos. 1, 2, and 3, which are in disagreement, be considered en bloc.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Missouri?

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will report the first three amendments in disagree-

The Clerk read as follows:

Senate amendment No. 1: Page 2, line 5, strike out "$27,389,061" and insert "$30,972,-061."

Senate amendment No. 2: Page 2, line 9, strike out "$21,689,000" and insert "$25,689,-

Senate amendment No. 3: Page 2, line 11, fter the word "dams", insert "one steam after the word "dams", insert plant at New Johnsonville, Tenn."

Mr. PLOESER. Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion, which I send to the desk.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. PLOESER moves that the House insist on its disagreement to the amendments of the Senate Nos. 1, 2, and 3.

Mr. GORE. Mr. Speaker, I offer a preferential motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. Gore moves that the House recede and concur in Senate amendments Nos. 1, 2, and 3.

Mr. PLOESER. Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Texas [Mr. Mahon] the ranking minority member of the committee, 25 minutes, to be yielded by him as he sees fit.

Mr. MAHON. Does the gentleman wish me to use some time now?

Mr. PLOESER. Yes. Mr. MAHON. The gentleman will take an equal amount of time?

Mr. PLOESER. Yes. Mr. MAHON. And will alternate speakers?

Mr. PLOESER. Yes. We want the last 10 minutes on this side.

Mr. MAHON. Mr. Speaker, I would like to say that the closing speaker on this side will be the gentleman from Mississippi [Mr. WHITTEN] and he will be recognized for 10 minutes just before the final time on the other side.

I now yield 10 minutes to the gentleman from Tennessee [Mr. Gore].

Mr. GORE. Mr. Speaker, I appreciate the long hours that we have been laboring together, but I trust that for a few minutes my colleagues will give me a respectful hearing on this important matter, despite the fatigue suffered by all.

The motion I have offered would concur in the Senate action, by which $400,-000,000 was appropriated for a steam generating plant.

What is the purpose of the steam plant here in disagreement? The purpose of the steam plant is to firm up the vast amount of hydroelectric power which is generated by the Tennessee Valley Authority, owned entirely by the Federal Government.

The issues involved here were debated rather fully in the House and I shall not go into them in detail. I think the REC-ORD shows, however, that since the matter left this body the issues have been further clarified. For one thing, some Members of this body seemed to be bothered or troubled as to whether the original TVA Act was broad enough in its authority to give authorization for this appropriation. That question, how-ever, did not seem to trouble more than one or two Members of the other body. True, the question was raised, that very point of order was made, the able lawyers of the other body debated it, but the distinguished presiding officer. President pro tempore of the other body, ruled on the point of order and he ruled that the original TVA Act did authorize appro-priations for the construction of steam plants.

Suffice it to say that up until this year that question has never been raised before and Congress has previously appropriated money to build a TVA steam plant.

Some additional clarification came out in the hearings and in the debates of the other body. For instance, it was argued here that this steam plant was not needed to supply energy to preferred customers. That opinion, as set out in the committee report, seemed to be based upon testimony before the committee which Mr. Purcell Smith, the representative of the private power companies, admitted during the hearings of the Senate committee were incorrect. Omitted from preferred customers as referred to in the House committee report was the Federal Government, and in the TVA Act the Federal Government and its agencies have top priority even over the local REA's and municipalities.

I have here a letter from the Atomic Energy Commission which I shall read. When this question was before the House we did not seek to justify it on any grounds other than a necessary addition to generating capacity to meet normal peacetime growth of our demand for electricity. We did recognize, of course, and make reference to the war plants located in the valley. I did not know how much electricity the atomic energy plant at Oak Ridge used or needed now or would need in the future, and I so said in debate. Perhaps I was derelict in my duties, but I have not tried to find out too much about the atomic energy plant. Nevertheless, the senior Senator from Connecticut did seek such information. He wrote the Atomic Energy Commission and received a letter which I would like to read, and I want the Members who may contemplate voting against this to reflect on this letter written to Senator McMahon:

JUNE 10, 1948. DEAR SENATOR McMahon: We have your letter of June 7 regarding power requirements for Oak Ridge. While we have not publicized the figures on the quantity of power furnished Oak Ridge by the Tennessee Valley Authority, we agree with you that such information does not involve classified information. The present contract between the Commission and TVA establishes an elec-trical power demand of 225,000 kilowatts. The present power load averages about 211,-000 kilowatts. There are, however, certain particulars regarding our power requirements that do involve classified information, be-cause these particulars, together with certain other facts, could possibly provide an index to the rate of production of fissionable materials at Oak Ridge. This information would include figures on the power generated by the Commission itself at Oak Ridge, details on type and quantity of power required by any individual facility within Oak Ridge, and records of total power consumption over an extended period of operation. If you wish, we shall be glad to send a representative of the Commission to discuss these matters with you.

At present there is no definite program for reactivating any of the facilities at Oak Ridge which are in stand-by status. However, there is always the possibility that future developments or an emergency might necessitate the start-up of these facilities. The minimum additional power required for reactivating such facilities is estimated to be in excess of 50,000 kilowatts and the maximum might be several times this figure. None of this additional power requirement could be met from the Commission's own installed power generating capacity at Oak Ridge.

Sincerely yours, UNITED STATES ATOMIC ENERGY COMMISSION, SUMNER T. PIKE, Acting Chairman.

Mr. Speaker, you cannot order large generating facilities from Sears Reebuck and get them overnight. It has been estimated by responsible engineers and leaders that another great country with whom we are not always in accord may have atomic energy developed by 1952. If we start now, or on July 1, 1948, as provided by my motion, building this plant, the very first generator will not come into production until 1951

There is in this country only twotenths of 1 percent reserve of electric energy above that demanded. If an emergency should arise, and unless there is danger, why are we enacting a draft law? I am not one who wants to be responsible for denying this additional generating capacity in an area in which there is not only the atomic-energy plant but the largest aluminum plants, arsenals, and munition plants in the entire

United States.

Though this proposed plant is important as a national-defense reserve of electric energy, it is fully justified on a peacetime basis. If there were no atomic energy plants in the valley this steam plant should be constructed. The desirable economic relationship of steam to hydro in the Tennessee Valley is 25 to 30 percent steam to 70 to 75 percent hydro. What is the ratio now? It is down to 16 or 17 percent, and with the additional hydroelectric units coming into production the ratio will sink in 2 years down to 13 or 14 percent steam. That is a wholly uneconomic relation-

Unless there is additional generating capacity the Tennessee Valley faces an acute shortage of power. We can only look to the TVA because it is the sole supplier of power in the valley. This proposed steam plant is the practical way to augment the generating capacity.

Mr. PLOESER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 5 minutes to the gentleman from New York [Mr. COUDERT].

Mr. COUDERT. Mr. Speaker, those of you who were present at the time this bill was originally debated at great length—in fact, it was debated over a period of 2 days—will recall that in substance this was an issue and still is an issue between those charming people who inhabit the beautiful Valley of the Tennessee, their charming Representatives in this House and the rest of the country. the taxpayers who provide them with subsidized public power that makes living so pleasant for the people of the valley and attracts to its delightful valley, hillsides, and slopes, the industry of the rest of the country at the expense of and to the detriment of communities in the rest of the country. Some of those charming peoples' Representatives, I know, have been very busy pressing for a favorable vote on this bill.

I am confident however, that Members will be governed by the funda-mentals involved here and will not yield to the charming people who are appealing, very naturally, to get something more for nothing at the expense of the rest of the taxpayers of the country. substance, as was fully debated and fully made clear when the House originally voted down the steam plant, this is an attempt to effect a revolution in the operation of the TVA. It is, in effect, a first step in establishing the principle that the United States Government shall set up, not hydroelectric power plants as an incident to the development of a great river valley area, but shall set up steam generating public utility enterprises in competition with private industry and in competition with all of those other communities in the United States who do not have the advantages of Federally subsidized cheap power. All this talk about firming up is nothing but nonsense. Every kilowatt-hour of power that is generated by the hydroelectric facilities in the Tennessee Valley is used; not one bit of it goes to waste. It is not as though power were being lost or potential power not used.

Moreover, in this bill provision is made for additional dams, and additional generating capacities that will increase the total generating production of TVA by 400,000 kilowatts, and that without the steam plant. In addition to that, 200,-000 additional kilowatt-hours of power will come to TVA through the development of the Cumberland River Dam by the Army engineers, the disposition of which is to be turned over to TVA. So that really effectively disposes of the argument which my friend from Tennessee has just made about the needs of this steam plant in a particular place in the interest of national defense. Now, a steam plant, gentlemen, as you all know, can be set up anywhere. You can set up the same plant in my district, on the island of Manhattan, and generate just as much power as that steam plant is going to generate in the valley of the Tennessee. The only difference is that the inhabitants in the Tennessee area, and the stockholders of those great industrial companies who had the sense to settle there and take advantage of cheap public power, are given the benefit of it rather than my constituents who are going to pay the bill.

So I say to you, gentlemen, the issue is the same one that we fought out once before and decided, I think, properly in this House. Until there is a clear-cut legislative determination defining the Authority's power and purpose and placing a clear-cut limitation upon the territorial area that it is to serve, then certainly we should not decide upon an anpropriation bill, an issue that is as far reaching as this one.

The SPEAKER. The time of the gen-tleman from New York, has expired.

Mr. PLOESER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from New York [Mr. Taber].

Mr. TABER. Mr. Speaker, the issue here is whether we shall go ahead and waste money to build this steam plant. In the situation we are at the present time the charges for electricity in the Tennessee Valley by the Authority are below the cost of production, if you consider the cost of the installations that have been made, and the interest on the money. The issue is whether your folks and my folks back home shall pay the electric light bills of those people. Just the other day I read in the paper where the representatives of those communities that are served by the TVA were in New York making arrangements for loans from bankers for the purpose of installing steam plants of their own. Why not let them do that, instead of making a contract with them on the part of the TVA, which prohibits the customers of the TVA from putting in power plants of their own? These people can do it. Let them run their own business in their own way. There is no sense in the Govown way. ernment of the United States putting itself out and getting into this situation. I hope the motion will not be agreed to.

Mr. MAHON. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 7 minutes.

Mr. RANKIN. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. MAHON. I yield to the gentleman from Mississippi.

Mr. RANKIN. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Texas [Mr. Mahon] for yielding to me at this time.

This amendment providing for a steam plant in the Tennessee Valley, to firm up the power generated in that area, is one of the most important issues that has come before this Congress.

It not only means the saving of billions of kilowatt-hours of electricity for consumers within the distribution radius, but it means additional power for our atomic bomb plant at Oak Ridge, Tenn., the greatest defense project the world has ever known.

The Senate has already voted favorably on this amendment twice, and I trust the membership of this House will not cripple this great development by voting against it.

The American people who pay the electric bills, and especially the residential and commercial consumers, have a right to be alarmed at these efforts that are being made to cripple or destroy the TVA and other public power projects throughout the country.

As I have pointed out time and time again, the power business is a public business. Electricity is the lifeblood of our advancing civilization. It has become a necessity of our modern life. No home is complete without it. No business establishment can operate successfully without it. It must be handled by a monopoly. If a half dozen different concerns were engaged in distributing electricity to a given community, the overhead expense would be so great the people could not bear it.

Any monopoly of a necessity of life is a public business.

Besides, the water power of this Nation, that is, the hydroelectric power in our navigable streams and their tributaries, already belongs to the Government. The Supreme Court so held in the Appalachian Power case as well as in the Ashwander case.

The yardsticks provided by our public power projects, such as the Tennessee Valley Authority and the Bonneville Power Administration, have a tremendous effect in holding down the power rates to the American consumer.

The same thing is true of the Tacoma. Wash., public power system, which, by the way, pays a higher rate of taxation, or money in lieu of taxes, than is paid by the average power company serving a city of its size.

The Ontario Power Commission, operating just across the line from New York, is another outstanding example of the benefits the people derive from public

I am inserting at this point a table showing the number of power consumers in each State in 1947, the amount of electricity used, the cost of that electricity. and the savings that would have accrued if this power had been supplied at the TVA rates, the Tacoma, Wash., rates, the Bonneville rates, or the Ontario rates.

You will note that there were 38,431,-950 consumers of electricity in the United States last year. That includes the residential, the commercial, and the industrial users. For that electricity they paid $3,852,764,700.

If the TVA rates had been in effect in every State in the Union, they would have paid $2,009,489,255, and the savings would have amounted to $1,843,275,445. Under the Tacoma, Wash., rates they would have saved $2,133,611,765. Under the Bonneville rates they would have saved $1,502,298,734. Under the Ontario rates they would have saved $1,745,-277,482.

If it had not been for these yardsticks, I daresay that the cost of this electricity to the consumers of this Nation, would have been multiplied many times.

RESIDENTIAL CONSUMERS

Now let us take the residential consumers of electricity. In 1947 there were 31,621,959 residential users of electricity throughout the United States. They used 44,171,314,000 kilowatt-hours of electricity for which they paid $1,366,498,200. Under the TVA rates they would have paid $729,920,006, and would have saved $636,578,194. Under the Tacoma rates they would have paid $676,953,298, and would have saved $689,544,902. Under the Bonneville rates they would have paid $860,482,582, and would have saved $596,015,618. Under the Ontario rates they would have paid $632,044,096, and would have saved $734,454,104.

In order to show the number of residential consumers, the amount of electricity used, and the overcharges in each State, I am inserting a table which covers every State in the Union.

The table referred to follows:

If it were not for these yardsticks, I dare say that the average user of electricity in this country would be paying many times the rates which he now pays. That would curtail his use of electricity and limit the enjoyment of those appliances that lift the burden of drudgery, and go to make the American home more pleasant and more attractive.

The same elements that are trying to destroy this public power program fought the development of rural electrification. If they had succeeded, the chances are that we would not have had 1 farm house out of 10 in this country electrified at the present time. Whereas, we now have about 70 or 75 percent of our farm homes electrified, and we are moving forward to the day when we will see electricity in every farm home in America.

It has done more for the farmers of the Nation than anything else that has ever been proposed. It takes to the farmer everything people have in the cities—except the noise and city taxes.

COMMERCIAL CONSUMERS

Now let us turn to the commercial consumers, the merchants, the hotel people, the operators of restaurants, filling stations, and so forth. There were 4,960,-895 of them last year who used 38,378,-995,000 kilowatt-hours of electricity for which they paid $1,031,335,100.

Under the TVA rates they would have paid $440,824,620 which would have given them a savings of $590,510,480.

Under the Tacoma rates they would have paid $420,878,747, which would have given them a savings of $610,456,353.

Under the Bonneville rates they would have paid $564,059,382, which would have given them a savings of $467,275,718.

Under the Ontario rates they would have paid $506,447,654, which would have given them a savings of $524,887,446.

Here is a table showing the number of commercial consumers for each State in the Union for 1947, the amount of electricity used, as well as what it cost them in each State, and showing what they would have saved.

The table referred to follows:

If the Power Trust could get rid of these yardsticks I dare say that those rates would increase by leaps and bounds until the average commercial consumer would be paying many times the rates he now pays for his electricity.

As I have said before, this power issue is the greatest economic question now before the American people. The hydroelectrical power in our navigable streams and their tributaries constitute the greatest wealth of this Nation, outside of the soil from which we live. It is our duty to see that this power is developed and supplied to the American people at rates based upon the cost of generation, transmission, and distribution.

Now let us take the industrial consumers. Last year there were 1,849,036 industrial users of electricity in this country. They used 135,031,188,000 kilowatt-hours of electricity for which they paid $1,454,931,400. Under the TVA rates they would have paid $838,744,629 which would have meant a saving of $616,186,771; under the Tacoma rates they would have paid $621,320,890, which would have meant a saving of $833,610,- 510; under the Bonneville rates they would have paid $925,924,002 which would have meant a saving of $529,007,-398; under the Ontario rates they would have paid $968,995,468 which would have meant a saving of $485,935,932.

At this point I am inserting a table showing the number of industrial users of electricity in every State, the amount of electricity used, the amount paid for it, and the overcharges according to the TVA rates, the Tacoma rates, the Bonneville rates, and the Ontario rates.

The table referred to follows:

Let me remind you that in 1921 there was only 40,000,000,000 kilowatt-hours of electricity produced and sold in this country for all purposes, including residential, commercial, and industrial, as well as for street lighting and transportation purposes.

You will note from table 1 that last year there were 217,581,497,600 kilowatthours of electricity sold in this country for residential, commercial, and industrial consumption alone. There were probably thirty or forty billion kilowatthours used for street lighting and transportation purposes.

Just the other day I called attention to the fact that the engineers of the Federal Power Commission, together with the Army engineers, have made an investigation and found that there are 394,000,000,000 kilowatt-hours of hydroelectric power going to waste every year in our navigable streams and their tributaries.

If that power were all harnessed and firmed up to the peak of the average year, there would be an additional supply of 510,000,000,000 kilowatt-hours a year, which added to our present production would light every home, including every farm home, operate every industry, and every commercial enterprise, and heat every house in America.

It would make this the richest and the most powerful Nation the world has ever known.

Then, America could go on her glorious march of progress throughout the unfolding centuries as Henry W. Grady once said, holding high the torch and "making light the way up which all other nations of the earth must come in God's appointed time"

(Mr. Rankin asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks and include certain statistics.)

Mr. JENNINGS. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. MAHON. I yield to the gentleman from Tennessee. Mr. JENNINGS. May I say to the

Mr. JENNINGS. May I say to the Members of this House in reply to the statement made by my good friend from New York [Mr. Taber] in which he states that the people of the Tennessee Valley area are getting electricity at less than they ought to pay for it, that he is utterly wrong. Those dams were built for a triple purpose, for flood control, for navigation, and to translate the energy of the falling water into electric energy.

This country has spent billions of dollars elsewhere for flood control and for navigation, and this is the first time any money was ever spent in the valley of the Tennessee River and its tributaries for flood control or for navigation.

When Mr. Taber stated that he had read in the paper where people from Tennessee cities were borrowing or seeking to borrow money in New York with which to build steam plants, he was repeating a falsehood that was put in circulation by the $65,000-per-year lobbyist Purcell Smith who trailed his slimy length across the threshold of this Capitol in his effort to retard and, if possible, destroy the future growth and development of the State of Tennessee and all the other parts of the 90,000 square miles of territory and the property of the 5,000,000 people who live in the area. The people of my congressional district, who number 460,000 souls, have no other source from which to purchase electric power than the Tennessee Valley Authority, and unless this steam plant is authorized and this $4 .-000,000 appropriated to begin its construction, thousands of citizens of the Second Congressional District of Tennessee will be deprived of the benefits of electricity in their homes, on their farms, and in their businesses. The defeat of this project will be a deadly blow to the growth, development, and prosperity of 5,000,000 American citizens. It will be a victory for the corrupt, ruthless private power lobby that has haunted this Capitol since the day the proposal to build this steam plant came before the Con-

Mr. MASON. Mr. Speaker, we are, in a short time, to cast one of the significant votes in this session of the Congress.

Mr. Speaker, the matter involved is not a local issue. I do not live in the Tennessee Valley. I live in the great Southwest. I believe in free enterprise, private business, and in fair opportunity for individual effort. But I am among those throughout the Nation who believe that this issue today must be resolved in favor of this steam plant. America must be strong within. People who, like most of you, are so interested in the aviation program and who realize that one of the vital issues before the world today is atomic energy can hardly be other than in favor of the motion made by the gentleman from Tennessee. Yes, the vote on the issue today is a significant one, particularly in view of the tense world situation and the demands of the future. It was no accident that the Senate, in voting on this issue, approved this plant in the Tennessee Valley by a vote of 47 to 37. If we should retard that development where we now have this atomicenergy plant by refusing to provide this steam plant, we would be playing havoc with the long-range aluminum and aviation program which has been adopted by the Congress. I am thinking of the 70group Air Force program which we have put through Congress at this session.

So I think, Mr. Speaker, that on a basis of broad policy it is the duty of the Congress to approve the pending motion. The vote today is going to be one that Members will look back to and say, "Yes, upon that occasion I did all I could to promote the aviation program and the cause of national defense."

Mr. KEFAUVER. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Has this not been voted on twice in the other body?

Mr. MAHON. It has, and it has been voted on favorably. This is not a local issue, as I said. This vote today will be looked back upon by Members as a vote in favor of a real program of development of our own country. We have done enough—we have certainly done much to build up our friends abroad. But this Nation, if it is to be strong, must be strong from within. We must be sure to develop our own resources in the interest of the peace and happiness of our people.

Our atomic energy plants in Tennessee represent an investment of huge magnitude. This investment should be made to yield the maximum in the interest of peace, national defense, and the promotion of our own domestic welfare.

Mr. PLOESER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 5 minutes to the gentleman from Iowa

[Mr. JENSEN].

Mr. JENSEN. Mr. Speaker, this question has, as you know, been before the House before, and as we all know, the House voted down the provision for this steam plant in the TVA.

Mr. JENNINGS. Mr. Speaker, if the gentleman will yield to me, do you not know that in 1941 they built one that cost $40,000?

Mr. JENSEN. When you talk about firming up power in the TVA, is it not more important to firm up the United States Treasury and keep it firmed up? I ask you in all sincerity, my colleagues on both sides of the middle path of this House of Representatives of the United States of America.

I made a short talk on the radio not long ago in cooperation with my good friend, Congressman KEFAUVER, of Tennessee. I shall read a part of that speech, but before I do that I would like to say that I have just received a letter from the Iowa Development Commission as did the other Iowa Congressmen, and I wish to read one paragraph from that letter which is signed by Mr. Rodney Selby, director:

The commission feels that the use of Federal taxes collected from Iowa citizens and industries should not be used in the promotion of this TVA expansion which will comwith the growth of Iowa, and do so on an unfair and subsidized basis.

Now, Mr. Speaker, it has been said that we were short of aluminum cable for transmission lines because of the shortage of aluminum. The fact of the matter is, I have information from Alcoa to the effect that the bottleneck was not aluminum but it was the steel core which goes into the cable.

I humbly request your attention while I read the remarks which I recently made over a national network and which I am sure a great majority of the deepthinking people of America will endorse.

Mr. PLOESER. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. JENSEN. I yield. Mr. PLOESER. Will the gentleman explain that this propaganda that was put out about a shortage of aluminum was purely and wholly a lie?

Mr. JENSEN. They said it was mainly a shortage of the steel core, and not a shortage of aluminum.

I will now read the radio talk that I referred to:

I am glad to take part in this broadcast with my good friend and colleague, Estes

A primary function of the Federal Government is to defend the Nation and to break the will of any enemy to our free-enterprise system in peacetime as well as in time of ag-That function in time of war is chiefly confined to the actions and activities of the armed forces. Nevertheless the activities of the military forces must be closely allied to the functions of the national economy.

Fortunately, the lessons of World War II too recent to have been forgotten. will be recalled that prior to World War II the Nation underwent an era of preparation during which Federal agencies, dedicated to promotion of Government ownership, continually raised the cry of "power shortage," with the assertion that private enterprise was incapable of meeting the emergency of war.

There were several gross miscalculations in their estimates, however. These were revealed when the industry was put to the actual test of war production. True, some additional capacity was added in Government-owned systems, but the main burden fell directly upon private industry. The capacity that was added to Federal systems could as well have been added to the installations of private enterprise, built with private funds and subject to taxation by the local, State, and Federal governments.

As Mr. Krug, then Chairman of the War Production Board, and presently Secretary of the Interior, was free to state:

"Electric power has been the lubrication for this tremendous war plant this unique record of the electric utilities is an inspiring tribute to the men and women in the industry whose unfailing efforts made the record possible."

He could well have added that TVA itself was "bailed out" on its war contract com-mitments through the facilities of private enterprise which during drought periods interchanged power from adjacent private power systems from distances of as far as a thousand miles away. He also could have added that under the direction of the United States Army, private enterprise built the steam plant which furnished most of the power at the Oak Ridge atomic plant.

The pent-up buying power and consumptive capacity of the Nation following VJ-day released an enormous demand for increased electric capacity far greater than existed even during World War II. This placed a combined demand on the private companies and municipal facilities. Furthermore, addi-tional capacity since installed is all now available for any emergency to an extent greater than dreamed of during World War II, and more is on the way.

The private utilities' construction program is bigger than that of any other single industry in America because they have faith in the patriotism and good sense of the American people to properly protect private enterprise.

The present emphasis on national defense must not be permitted to become a clinching argument in the hands of those who seek to nationalize, socialize, or communize America. The Administration's proposal to construct steam plants now carries with it a precedent affecting the time-tested principles of our Nation. With these proposals the great planners no longer hide behind what Senator Norris called the "constitution peg" of navigation and flood control as a legal basis upon which to conduct electric power business. They also appear to forget the fact that our laws provide that Federal power production from multipurpose projects must be justified on need for irrigation.

They now want to embark upon a program of manufacture and sale of electric energy as an end in itself. We know now what actually is in the mind of the great planners who brazenly admit they want to put the Government in direct competition with its own citizens.

If the principle is established this precedent certainly will not be confined to electric power. This can only lead to Government ownership of every industry including farming, mercantile, and all, both large and small, upon which the life and productive capacity of our Nation is dependent for its very existence.

The privately owned electrical industry cannot now be a "power trust," for the reason that Congress long ago took steps under the death-sentence clause—by breaking up the large holding companies in this industry-to effectively eliminate the possibility of the existence of a private power trust,

But the same cannot be said of the federally dominated power trust which is entirely different than farmer-owned REA or municipally owned or PUD-owned power facilities.

Acting in obvious concord and prearranged plan, the Federal power trust fostered and aided by the policies of the Federal Government for the past 15 years, has now become a very real threat to the operation of our free economy. Let us not forget in this elec-tric age that he who controls the electric energy of America controls America.

It is noteworthy that the privately owned electric companies pay annually over $650,-000,000 in local, State, and Federal taxes which would have to be paid by other taxpayers if the Federal power trust has its way.

I should like to quote to you the candid statement of David E. Lilienthal, former Chairman of the Tennessee Valley Authority and at present the Chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, in an article appearing in October 1945:

"* * those who control energy, con-trol people."

Mr. PLOESER. Mr. Speaker, may I inquire how the time stands?

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Missouri has 20 minutes remaining, the gentleman from Texas 8.

Mr. PLOESER. I have an agreement not to use 10 minutes of my time. I therefore ask the gentleman from Texas to use his time.

Mr. MAHON. I think in fairness the RECORD should show that numerous Members have requested time but that it is not possible to give it to them.

Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Mississippi [Mr. WHITTEN], a member of the committee, the remainder of

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Mississippi is recognized for 8 minutes.

Mr. WHITTEN. Mr. Speaker, I hope I may have the attention of every man on this floor.

Mr. Speaker, I do not live in the Tennessee Valley. My home section is served by the Mississippi Power & Light Co., though a large part of my State is served by the TVA. How-ever, I have been privileged to sit on this committee and to hear the testimony with regard to this proposed steam plant. I say to the Members on the left side of the aisle, who have been led to believe that this steam plant is a proposal to take away business from the private utilities, such is not the case. This power to be generated by this steam plant is for the purpose of firming up additional water power that is provided in this bill.

This is not a question of public power against private power. That question was decided when this region was made to depend on the TVA for power.

Insofar as the Tennessee Valley is con-cerned it was determined by this Congress a number of years ago that the TVA would be the sole utility serving a big area in seven States. That is the only utility to which those people can look for current, that is the only source of supply; and here today is an amendment to provide that they have a steam plant to fill in during the dry summer months so that the hydro power will be dependable on a year-round basis, and not left as dump power, largely usable only by industry.

Mr. COUDERT. Mr. Speaker, will

the gentleman yield?

Mr. WHITTEN. I am sorry, I do not have time to yield.

This Congress decided that the TVA was the only source of supply they would have.

Mr. GAVIN. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. WHITTEN. I refuse to yield. I have only a few minutes. I wish I could.

This Congress decided that question for them, having decided that question we should see to it that the TVA is permitted to meet the needs of the area as the private utilities meet the needs in their areas. Having set the TVA system up, it belongs to the United States, the dams, the distribution system, everything. Last year we provided that the TVA repay over a period of 40 years, the Federal Government the money we have invested.

When this is done, and it will be done, the TVA system will still belong to the United States.

Owning this system, we have placed numerous war plants in the region. These take hundreds of thousands of kilowatt-hours of electricity that is not available for use by domestic users in the region. The atomic energy plant at Oak Ridge there for the defense of this Nation takes annually more than 225,000 kilowatt-hours and the record shows that in the future they are going to need 50,000 more kilowatt-hours of electricity.

This is not a new venture. The TVA today operates five steam plants. The Congress transferred one, authorized the purchase of others, and we built another.

These steam plants produce about a billion kilowatt-hours of electricity as a result of these steam plants' production. The TVA has been able to supply three or four million dollars of extra kilowatthours of hydro, firm dependable power that they could not sell and could not deliver to the people of this Nation in the absence of those steam plants. The record shows last year three or four million kilowatt-hours were made available to this country that is starving for electric current. Today millions of people beg for electricity. According to the Federal Power Commission there is only two-tenths of 1 percent margin of safety between the electricity used in this country today and our total capacity to produce.

The addition of this steam plant manufacturing 200,000 kilowatt-hours will make dependable 1,000,000,000 kilowatt-hours of electricity needed by the municipalities and REA co-ops in the region and elsewhere.

Oh, this Congress has appropriated this year and for next year $800,000,000 for the REA. We thought we were doing a whole lot for the American farmer. But as stated today there is only two-tenths of 1 percent margin of safety between the amount of electricity that we are consuming and the maximum that we can produce? We do not have the needed electricity in this Nation. Did you know that the TVA is interconnected with the private utilities, that any firm power, manufactured by the TVA, and not needed by them, goes to the private companies and helps to serve their areas too; that during the war the TVA is all that saved us.

Under the terms of this bill a number of new hydro units are provided.

For about 7 months of the year those hydro units can produce electricity. It is said you do not want to move industry from other areas to the Tennessee Valley, and I can appreciate that feeling. The TVA has made no effort to do that and the record shows industry has grown throughout the South. I believe this is wholesome for the area and the Nation. You are providing this current from hydroelectric facilities for 7 months of the year and the folks cannot get it the rest of the time unless it is firmed up. What REA cooperative could take electricity for only 7 months? How could they provide this extra energy for the people who want it in their homes, for the municipalities, unless it is firmed up and made available on a year-round basis. I would like to see it go to the homes, to the people, to the communities. I would like to see it firmed up so it will be dependable, otherwise industry is bound to be the only taker, directly or through the private utilities who would buy the hydroelectricity at dump rates.

This Congress only yesterday considered the drafting of the youth of this land to be put in the Army for the defense of this Nation. I say to you when you are willing to do that, and I know there is not a man who did not regret casting that vote, it is just as important to provide for the future national defense of this country by having power necessary for the operation of war plants in time of need. I do not come from the Tennessee Valley. I am served by a public utility. As I stated, it is just as important to provide for the future national defense of this country in this bill as it was in the other bill.

They may say that this is just starting a plant and it is not supposed to be in being until 1951. But let me tell you that the Watts Bar Dam built in 1940 and 1941 under the exigencies of the situation was completed in 18 months. We are starting that which we can call on in time of need.

Did you know that in the Tennessee Valley 51 percent of all the aluminum that was used in the last war was produced by reason of TVA electricity? That there is no other area that is able to provide that? Did you know that you just passed a bill providing for a 70-group air force and that air force will not be built unless you can get the aluminum? That the TVA is the source of power to which we must look?

Mr. JENNINGS. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. WHITTEN. I yield to the gentleman from Tennessee.

Mr. JENNINGS. Is it not a fact that in 1941 this Congress appropriated virtually $40,000,000 for construction of the Watts Bar steam plant?

Mr. WHITTEN. That is true. The Congress did that and it was a life saver during the recent war. I hope we will not have any war in the future. I hope you will see that this is just as much in the interest of the national defense as were these acts you have passed in the last few days.

The Senate has just approved this plant for the second time. The vote was by a considerable majority. A few days ago this House of Representatives provided under the Marshall plan more than $5,000,000,000 in foreign aid in an effort to provide for the national security. I believe that this Congress having provided that the people of a great part of 7 States must look to the TVA and the TVA alone for their electricity that we are obligated to make additions to the TVA system to meet the needs of the region. We cannot justify doing otherwise. We owe it to the Nation to make available the extra billion kilowatt-hours the steam plant would make firm, but above all else in this time of emergency. we should provide the maximum amount of electricity available for the very security of the Nation in time of war, badly needed by the people in time of peace. I plead with you to support this amendment.

Mr. BATES of Massachusetts. Mr. Speaker, I believe this matter now before the House is of paramount importance to every Member of the House from every part of the country. We are changing the entire philosophy of the Tennessee Valley Authority. That Authority was originally authorized to build dams for flood control and navigation. Now they come in here and for the first time in this bill ask us to authorize a project, the initial cost of which will be $4,000,000, for the benefit of a group of industries and which it is estimated will cost ultimately $80,000,000.

We would like to have these power plants in our part of the country. In the daily papers we read that the private industries in the New England area and in the other great industrial areas of the country are building their own power plants at their own expense. Why then should we authorize power plants to be built in the Tennessee Valley area with public money in order that low-cost electricity may be provided for competing industries to those industries in our part of the country? I hope the pending proposition will be defeated.

Mr. PLOESER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 9 minutes.

Mr. Speaker, I think it is highly important that all of the Members of the House understand at this point the parliamentary situation. The situation is that the Committee on Appropriations did not allow any money and felt that it would be subject to a point of order if they authorized by any language the building of a steam-power plant at New Johnsonville in connection with the Tennessee Valley Authority. When the bill came to the floor of this House there was an attempt made to amend it. The language was not offered because it was clear to both sides that such language probably could not withstand a point of order. The request here for $4,000,000 to begin construction would result ultimately in the establishment of an $84,-000,000 project. The House denied that amendment by a vote of 192 to 152. The amendment was included, I should say, in a motion to recommit, and a roll call was had. The Senate restored this amount and sought to put in the language. The conference became deadlocked because the House refused to yield.

Now we are back to the House in disagreement. I have offered a motion to insist upon the House position, because I have confidence and reason to think that if this House maintains its position, which I believe to be right, that that will be the ultimate position of the Congress when the bill becomes law. There has been a preferential motion made to recede from the House position and concur in the Senate amendment. So, those who believe in the House position have the duty and the obligation to vote "no" on the motion before the House at the present time. "No" means no money for an unauthorized steam plant at New Johnsonville; "yes" means an attempt to authorize that which has not heretofore been authorized in the TVA Act.

This committee has been most liberal with TVA. We have given them $29,-000,000 for the acquisition and installation of hydroelectric generators-11 in all. We have given them $15,000,000 for the completion of two dams. There has never been an attempt on the part of this committee, and I have been a member of it since its inception, to forestall in any way that part of the development of the Tennessee Valley which is legally authorized. Now the attempt is to reach out and go into the full utility business, even though it is clearly stated in the law and clearly admitted by even the advocates of the Tennessee Valley Authority that there was never any intent on the part of the organic act that hydroelectric power be anything but a surplus commodity, the original intent of the act being navigation and flood control.

As to the argument that this is a national defense project the Atomic Energy Commission refused me as chairman of this committee the very information which they gave to the former chairman of the Atomic Energy Committee, and which he made public. I had to visit the Tennessee Valley Authority and Oak Ridge where the management of Oak Ridge very freely gave me the information in the presence of numerous people, even including one newspaper reporter, and said there was no secret about it.

Oddly enough, that information was available from the former head of the TVA, who in testimony in years past admitted that they had no authority to build a steam plant. Oddly enough, that testimony was readily available when they thought they had a chance to put it over in the other body. But to an official Appropriations Committee of this House it was a secret matter and could not be made available.

They did make available to me certain figures as regards the uses of power from TVA, but they were made to me as totally restricted. I have them in my possession and they have never been released, so I cannot give them to you, but I can tell you that TVA bought power from Oak Ridge. I yield to the vice chairman of the Atomic Energy Committee for a statement he might wish to make on this subject.

Mr. COLE of New York. I think it is most unfortunate that the proponents of this steam plant for TVA have seen fit to justify it upon the needs of the Atomic Energy Commission in its operations at Oak Ridge. Oak Ridge was selected by the Manhattan District for the purpose of obtaining cheap power from TVA, that is true, but in order to make sure that the Commission's activities at Oak Ridge would not be completely dependent upon TVA power during slack periods, it has constructed and is operating a steamgenerating plant, and, as the gentleman said, in times past has sold its surplus power back to TVA. So the answer is that if the Atomic Energy Commission needs additional power, and there is some indication that it does, the way to get it is not to rely on TVA, but simply to expand its presently operated steamgenerating plant at Oak Ridge, which I understand can be done by the installation of one additional boiler.

Mr. PLOESER. That is correct. I thank the gentleman from New York. Let me say the chairman of the Atomic Energy Committee, a Senator, and the gentleman from New York [Mr. Cole] voted against this plant.

Mr. HALLECK. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. PLOESER. I yield to the gentleman from Indiana.

Mr. HALLECK. As one Member of the Congress of the United States who has felt that some curtailment of Federal spending is absolutely essential in the interest of the country, I want to say to the gentleman and the members of his Committee on Appropriations who have fought for economy and who have fought for integrity in the affairs coming before them that they have my compliments and my commendation. I know it is not an easy job to do some of the things you gentlemen on the committee have been called on to do, but you have done them and dealt with them as best you could. I am glad to have observed as we have gone along through this Congress the willingness of the Members to stand with the committee.

Mr. PLOESER. I thank the distinguished majority leader.

Let me read one more thing in connection with national defense, but let me preface it by saying that when Mr. Clapp was before the committee at no point did he attempt to make any pretense of the argument of national defense. I want to quote the hearings, because this particular quotation is vitally important.

This is what the gentleman from Tennessee [Mr. Gore], for whom I have the highest regard and who is a very able member of this committee, said during the hearing:

It seems to me that it is very fundamental. It goes beyond the questions which have, I think, only been scratched. It goes to the very basic purposes of the TVA Act. That was my purpose. I specifically reemphasize and purposely so the fact that on yesterday Mr. Clapp stated categorically and repeatedly that this program was not related to the national defense and that he in no way was attempting to justify on that basis.

Mr. Speaker, there has been a great deal said about lobbying. Personally I am one of those fellows who do not care whether lobbyists are here or not. I do not pay any attention to them. There are more lobbyists per square foot in this town from the bureaus than you can find in the balance of the world from any place else. I just want to let you see how lobbying does go on for cheap power.

I hold in my hand an enlargement of a circular. It says:

Be sure and write your Senator from Tennessee to see that he votes right on this steam plant.

That is lobbying for cheap power. I just show that to you. These people have a right to do that. They have a perfect right to do it. I do not blame them. All I say, and the only purpose for calling that to your attention is that it is cheap power because the balance of the United States of America is subsidizing it. Why delude ourselves?

It has been said that they need this to firm up power. I doubt that argument. I could deny the argument, but let us concede it for the sake of contro-Why cannot these various communities put in their own steam plants? The reason is very simple-because the TVA has negotiated and completed with them monopoly contracts that prohibit them from purchasing power from any other source or developing it themselves. Talk about monopolies? Is a monopoly any less damnable because it is operated by government? In my conception of free enterprise, you can be equally as oppressive so far as the progress of a nation is concerned by the deadening monopoly hand of government as you can by any other monopoly.

I have before me an article from the New York Herald Tribune which announces on its financial page that—

The four cities of Memphis, Chattanocga, Nashville, and Knoxville have been reported in financial and utility circles as drawing plans for the possible construction of a steam generating plant in the event that the Senate should not grant the authority to TVA.

I compliment those cities for doing that. That is the way we do it in good old Missouri—we do it ourselves. When I was in the Tennessee Valley I was asked by a newspaperman, "Well, what are we going to do if we want to bring more industry into Tennessee?" I said, "Do it as we do it in Missouri." He said, "How is that?" "Well," I said, "we get the lead out of your energy and go out and build it yourselves."

Mr. BATES of Massachusetts. And we pay for it.

Mr. PLOESER. Yes; and we pay for it ourselves.

Now, I have no objection to the development of hydroelectric power, but I do have a very definite objection to the creation of a corporate state which like an octopus keeps reaching, and reaching socialistically until it engulfs and monopolizes and controls everything within its vicious, oppressive grasp.

I do not mind telling you that I think, if we allow these things to go on until they expand and cover the entire 48 States, you will have by that time completely crushed freedom in America, because you will have crushed free enterprise.

I ask this House again to stand by its conferees and vote down this motion to recede and concur, and vote for the motion to stand firm in the conference for the elimination of this item from the bill.

Mr. KEFAUVER. Mr. Speaker, after thorough study and deliberation the Senate has passed favorably upon the TVA request for funds with which to commence construction of a steam powered electric generating plant at New Johnsonville, Tenn. Much detailed discussion of great length and complexity has been heard on this subject but the basic question is clear and simple. Is the TVA to be allowed to continue its vitally important development? There is no question but that this great project which has met its many obligations, has served the people and has stimulated private industry to a higher peak of development than this area has ever before known. TVA must be allowed to continue.

I submit that the continued development of TVA is linked directly with our national preparedness and our Nation's industrial strength which is the main artery of our military strength.

I wish to make three fundamental points concerning the need for the New Johnsonville steam plant.

First, I submit that TVA power is the only source of supply in this area and failure to allow the construction of this much needed new source with which to firm up power during the summer months will adversely affect the 5,000,000 people and hundreds of industries in the Valley.

Second. I submit that the entire Nation is faced with a power shortage and that to deny the right of expansion of power anywhere in the Nation at this time would be an ill-conceived move. Demand for power in the Tennessee Valley has increased 60 percent since the war and those who distribute TVA power expect a 60-percent increase on top of that

Third. I submit that in the face of the billions we are spending to rehabilitate foreign countries and reestablish their economies we must not overlook the reasonable needs of the people of our own country

The full weight of the validity of the claim we make as to the serious need for this new steam plant as wholly necessary to TVA in carrying on its power supply and over-all development of the resources of this region has been underscored by the approval given this appropriation in the Senate. I sincerely hope that my colleagues in the House will review the facts and carefully consider the voluminous evidence in favor of allowing TVA to construct the New Johnsonville steam plant. This matter is of deep concern to the millions of people who live in this area. They are anxiously awaiting the answer of the

The territory served by the TVA is fixed by contract. We are not asking this appropriation for the purpose of competing with any utility in any other section. It is for the service of the people in the Tennessee Valley. Remember that Congress has decreed that the people of the Tennessee Valley must rely upon the TVA for power. It is the sole supplier. In good faith Congress should allow this further development. It is not fair to any section to put an economic lid on their further progress. The TVA is only asking for authority to do for the people of the Tennessee Valley the very things that private power companies are seeking to do for people in other sections-that is to increase their electric supply.

We are operating on a dangerous margin of available electric energy. These different plants, such as the atomic energy plant and the aluminum plants have been located in the Tennessee Valley recently. They cannot be moved. If we are to carry out our program of preparedness we cannot in good faith deny available electricity for these plants.

Mr. Speaker, it has been suggested that the taxpayers of the rest of the Nation will pay for this investment. This is not Under the law the TVA investment will be amortized in 40 years. It will be paid for by the users of electricity in the Tennessee Valley and our vital defense plants will have electric power available

I have served here for 9 years. I have made many pleas to my colleagues but I have never been more concerned or more vitally interested in a project than I am in this one. I urge you to consider it on the basis of its merits. I wish to make a personal plea to my colleagues to not put an economic ceiling on the development of the great Tennessee Valley region. I urge you personally to vote for the motion of the gentleman from Tennessee.

Mr. PLOESER. Mr. Speaker, I move the previous question.

The previous question was ordered. Mr. DONDERO. Mr. Speaker, a parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. DONDERO. What is the vote in order to stand by the conferees of the House?

The SPEAKER. The vote will come on the motion of the gentleman from Tennessee to recede and concur in the Senate amendment.

The question is on the motion of the gentleman from Tennessee [Mr. Gore] to recede and concur in the Senate amendment.

The question was taken; and on a division (demanded by Mr. Gore) there were-ayes 143, noes 157.

Mr. GORE. Mr. Speaker, I ask for the yeas and nays.

The yeas and navs were ordered. The question was taken; and there were-yeas 186, nays 201, answered "present" 1, not voting 42, as follows:

Mr. WADSWORTH. Mr. Speaker, I am recorded in the negative. I have a pair with the gentleman from North Dakota, Mr. Lemke. Had he been present he would have voted in the affirmative. I therefore withdraw my vote and ask to be recorded as present.

Mr. Kearney changed his vote from "yea" to "nay."

Mr. Bradley changed his vote from "yea" to "nay."

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

The SPEAKER. The question is on the motion of the gentleman from Missouri [Mr. Ploeser] to insist on the disagreement of the House to the Senate amendments.

The motion was agreed to.
The SPEAKER. The Clerk will report the next amendment in disagreement.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment No. 7: On page 8, line 17, insert "if not otherwise required to be turned into the Treasury under the provisions of the proposed Federal charter."

Mr. PLOESER. Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion, which I send to the desk.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. PLOESER moves that the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate No 7, and agree to the same with an amendment, as follows: Before the period at the end thereof, insert ": Provided further, That section 304 (b) of the Government Corporation Control Act, as amended (Public Law 248, approved December 6, 1945), shall not be applicable with respect to the Panama Railroad Company until after June 30, 1949."

The SPEAKER. The question is on the motion of the gentleman from Missouri [Mr. PLOESER].

The motion was agreed to.

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will report the next amendment in disagreement.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment No. 13: Page 6, line 24, Insert "plus accrued dividends thereon: Provided further, That not to exceed $5,000 of the funds of said Corporation shall be available until June 30, 1952, for the payment of such expenses as the Chairman of the Home Loan Bank Board or his designee or designees may find necessary for winding up the affairs and effecting the dissolution of the United States Housing Corporation and the United States Housing Corporation of Pennsylvania."

Mr. PLOESER. Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion, which I send to the desk.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. PLOESER moves that the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 13, and agree to the same with an amendment, as follows: after "plus accrued dividends thereon" insert "which, notwithstanding any other provision of law, shall be computed at a rate approximating the average interest cost incurred by the Home Owners' Loan Corporation on its total borrowings during each respective fiscal year.

Mr. MAHON. Mr. Speaker, as chairman of the Texas delegation in Congress, and in behalf of the delegation, I have asked for this time in order to take note of the fact that the gentleman from Texas [Mr. WEST], who has recently been in the hospital, is back on the House floor. [Applause, the Members rising.]

Mr. Speaker, the Members have indicated by their standing and applause the high regard which Members have for Milton West. Few will have an opportunity to speak but the spontaneous applause of Members on both sides of the aisle will mean more to MILTON WEST than any number of rhetorical speeches. For him I want to thank you for the tribute you have paid him.

When that great Texan, John Nance Garner, went from the speakership of the House of Representatives to the Vice Presidency, MILTON WEST was elected in his district to succeed him. MILTON West has served faithfully and well through the years. He has occupied a position of power and usefulness on the Ways and Means Committee, the major committee of the House. He is retiring voluntarily from Congress after the end of this term, and this may be the last day that he will be on the floor with us in an official capacity; and in behalf of my colleague from Texas and the others who love MILTON WEST I wanted to say this word of tribute and good cheer.

I yield to the gentleman from Texas [Mr. RAYBURN], the distinguished Democratic leader of the House and former Speaker.

Mr. RAYBURN. I am not going to delay the proceedings, but I cannot let this opportunity pass without saying something about one of the loveliest men I have ever known, a man of sterling character, of stout heart, a great friend. and a fine American.

Mr. RICH. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. MAHON. I yield to the gentleman from Pennsylvania.

Mr. RICH. Of all the men with whom I have served in Congress, MILTON WEST is one of the finest fellows I have ever known in or out of Congress. He is a gentleman of the highest order and I am glad to call him a real friend and a fine Congressman.

Mr. COLMER. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. MAHON. I yield to the gentleman from Mississippi.

Mr. COLMER. I would just like to add my word of appraisal of MILTON

WEST, a fine friend, a great man, one of the true western type. MILT WEST will be missed by his many friends in this

Mr. JENKINS of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. MAHON. I yield. Mr. JENKINS of Ohio. I just want to say on behalf of the Republican membership of the Ways and Means Committee that we have enjoyed the companionship of Milton West and his fine character. We are sorry to see him go.

Mr. KEARNEY. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. MAHON. I yield to the gentleman from New York.

Mr. KEARNEY. I wish to inform the House that the gentleman from Texas comes from the neighborhood of Mission, McAllen, and that area of Texas where I served in 1916. Since I became a Member of the House I have come to know Milton West personally and I want to say that when he retires a real American will leave this House.

Mr. MAHON. Mr. Speaker, I realize there are many who want to speak, many who have asked me to yield to them, but in view of the limitation of the time I will not be able to. Yet, I will yield to the gentleman from New York [Mr. REED], a senior member of the Ways and Means Committee.

Mr. REED of New York. I think MIL-TON WEST comes nearer to being the typical American that will keep this country safe than any man with whom I am acquainted. I have a great affection and respect for him. I am sorry he is leaving.

The SPEAKER. The time of the gentleman from Texas has expired.

Mr. MAHON. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have the privilege of extending their remarks at this point in the RECORD.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas?

There was no objection.

Mr. KNUTSON. Mr. Speaker, the following resolution was offered by the gentleman from Minnesota, Hon. Harold Knutson, on June 19, 1948, and was unanimously adopted by the Committee on Ways and Means:

RESOLUTION OF THE MEMBERSHIP OF THE COM-MITTEE ON WAYS AND MEANS, UNITED STATES HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Whereas the Honorable Milton H. West, of Texas, has been a Member of Congress since 1933 and a member of the Committee on Ways and Means since 1939; and

Whereas the said MILTON H. WEST has by his diligence and ability made a lasting contribution to the work accomplished by the Ways and Means Committee in the preparation and passage of important legislation; and

Whereas the said Milton H. West has gained the respect, admiration, and affection of all the members of the committee for his devotion to the highest principles of public service to his country; and

Whereas the said MILTON H. WEST is resigning from Congress at the end of his present term: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the membership of the Committee on Ways and Means, United States House of Representatives hereby express its sorrow over the loss to us of the intelligent, farsighted, and statesmanlike services of Mr. Milton H. West, and that a copy of this resolution be presented to him as a tangible token of our high esteem for him and as evidence and recognition of our appreciation for his services on our committee.

At this time I wish to add my own personal sentiments on the retirement of my friend and colleague. It was a pleasure and a privilege for me to have served on the Ways and Means Committee with the distinguished gentleman from Texas [Mr. West]. His advice and his constructive thinking on the legislation which came before us was always of the greatest value and assistance to the committee. His retirement from Congress is both a personal loss to me and to the membership of the Ways and Means Committee.

The gentleman from Texas [Mr. West] is an outstanding public servant, and I know I speak for every member of the Ways and Means Committee in wishing him continued success and happiness.

Mr. THOMAS of Texas. Mr. Speaker, all of us are happy to see Milton West on the floor again. We regret he is retiring. No man in the House is more respected and admired more.

Mr. WORLEY. Mr. Speaker, I join with his many other friends in the House who regret to see Milton West retire from Congress. As a member of the Texas Legislature and during his tenure in Congress, Milt was a real public servant and a great American. We hate to see him leave.

Mr. BECKWORTH. Mr. Speaker, as one of Mr. West's colleagues from Texas, I desire to pay tribute to him. It was my privilege to serve in the Texas Legislature after Milton had served there. He was recognized as one of the most able members of the Texas House of Representatives. This was demonstrated by the fact the the people of the congressional district in which he lived chose him to succeed Hon. John Nance Garner when Mr. Garner was elected Vice President.

When I came to Congress 10 years ago, one of the Members of Congress who helped me most was Milton West. ways he has been and is considerate of and helpful to new Members who consult him as a member of the Ways and Means Committee, on committee assignments. The people of MILTON'S district and of Texas as well as the membership of the House know about and are aware of the faithful and efficient job of work MILTON has done here. It is known well that he is competent, conscientious, courageous. and able. We are not happy that MILton is leaving Congress. We all shall miss him and his effective and constructive work; however, as he leaves Congress voluntarily, we wish for him every success and happiness.

Mr. HOBBS. Mr. Speaker, this is the first time I have ever known any Member of the House to "go West" without causing me profound sorrow.

This afternoon the entire membership of the House has gone "WEST" in a glorious outpouring of affectionate regard the like of which these walls have rarely, if ever, heard or witnessed.

It was genuine. Spontaneous. Heartwarming. Never to be forgotten. Such popularity must be deserved. It is. Our joy in paying these tributes is tinged with sorrow, only our sense of loss that we share with the district, State, and Nation he served so well till he voluntarily laid the burden of that service down.

He can leave us, but never our love. Mr. LUCAS. Mr. Speaker, I want to add a few words to those already spoken in praise of MILTON WEST. Before I came to Congress I had heard many times of the great stature of the man and now that I have served with him I know that his reputation, as I had known it, and his stature, is even greater and higher than I had expected. He has served this House and our country well and diligently and his retirement from this body will create a vacancy among us which will be keenly felt. We all regret that he has chosen to leave us but we wish him restored health and happiness among his people in the southern tip of Texas. God speed you, Milton. You take with you our best wishes, always.

Mr. PATMAN. Mr. Speaker, the House of Representatives is losing a valuable and able Member, the Honorable Milton West. He has made a wonderful record in Congress and has as many friends in this House as any Member I have ever known. He has always been constructive in his efforts and no district has had a truer and more effective Representative than Milton West.

Mr. POAGE. Mr. Speaker, the applause of his fellow Members attests the high regard in which Milton West is held. I served with Milt in the legislature of Texas 15 years ago. I admired his character and ability then. For 10 years I have been his neighbor on the fifth floor of the House Office Building. All those years I have known him as a good neighbor. He enjoys the friend-ship and the respect not only of his Texas neighbors but of the entire House. He is retiring of his own volition. We all wish him well. We regret the parting, but those of us who know his "magic valley" will understand why he might prefer a home there instead of the tumult of Washington. Adios, mi amigo.

Mr. KEFAUVER. Mr. Speaker, it is fitting here to say that the people of the Fifteenth District of Texas are losing a fine Representative with the departure from Congress of MILTON WEST. This hard-working and conscientious Congressman from Brownsville served his people and his Nation well. I know I echo the regret of all in his leaving.

Mr. TEAGUE. Mr. Speaker, as a freshman Member of Congress I sought advice from the elder members of the Texas delegation and I sincerely appreciate the helpful counsel given me by the Honorable Milton West. He has been an able Representative for his Texas district here in Congress and is deserving of the rest and relaxation of retirement he looks forward to after this session of Congress.

Mr. Speaker, I sincerely wish that Mr. Wesr will enjoy good health which all of us pray he has regained and we will long remember our pleasant association with him in Congress.

Mr. GREGORY. Mr. Speaker, as a member of the Ways and Means Committee, I, of course, joined in the resolution unanimously adopted by the committee and presented by Hon. HAROLD KNUTSON, chairman, on June 19, 1948. However, I desire to add my own personal comment on the retirement of this splendid public servant.

It has been my pleasure to serve with him throughout the years and although I have served with many men since I have been a Member of this body, I have not served with any person who has made a more favorable impression on me than has MILTON WEST. He is a rugged individual and a credit to the great State of Texas from whence he comes. I have found him to be a man of strong personal convictions and possessing at all times the courage of his convictions. I have never known a more kindly individual, a more loyal friend, or a more modest public servant than Milton West. I think his autobiography in the Congressional Directory is expressive of the modesty of this outstanding individual. It simply states: MILTON H. WEST, Democrat, of Brownsville, Tex.

It is with deep regret that I learned of his voluntary retirement but I know that he has longed for the wide open spaces of Texas, and, as he returns to the land of his nativity and the soil he loves so well, he carries with him the affection, the high esteem, and the best wishes for health, happiness, and prosperity of every Member of this body.

Grande.

Mr. LYNCH. Mr. Speaker, it was with keen regret that I learned of the determination of our colleague, the gentleman from Texas, Hon. MILTON WEST, to retire from public life. The Congress, the country, and the congressional district which he has served so well during the past 15 years will lose a valuable and distinguished Representative.

It was my good fortune to have served with him on the Committee on Ways and Means for the past 6 years. His quiet humor, his logical thinking, the cheerful presentation of his views won for him the admiration and respect of his colleagues on the committee.

I wish him many years of happiness and good health down along the Rio lowing:

"SURPLUS PROPERTY DISPOSAL

"Effective February 28, 1949, the Office of War Assets Administrator is abolished and the War Assets Administration shall cease to exist as an agency of the Government and its affairs, functions, and responsibilities shall thereafter be disposed of and liquidated in accordance with the following:

"(1) All powers, authority, functions, and responsibilities of the War Assets Administrator and of the War Assets Administrator pertaining to surplus real property, which as used herein shall mean land and interests in land together with buildings, fixtures, facilities, utilities, equipment, and other property located thereon or adapted to use in connection with such property for its highest and best use, and all right, title, and interest in notes, mortgages, and contracts of sale or lease in connection with surplus real property shall be transferred to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, to be held and disposed of by such Corporation in accordance, except as provided herein, with the terms of the Surplus Property Act of 1944, as amended;

"(2) All aircraft and aircraft parts shall be transferred to the Department of the Air Force to be held and disposed of by such Department in accordance, except as provided herein, with the terms of the Surplus Property Act of 1944, as amended;

"(3) All personal property (other than aircraft and aircraft parts), except such as may be necessary to the liquidation of the War Assets Administration or the exercise of the functions transferred herein, shall be transferred to the Bureau of Federal Supply, Treasury Department, to be held and disposed of by such Bureau in accordance, except as provided herein, with the terms of the Surplus Property Act of 1944, as amended;

"(4) Except as necessary to the administration of the functions herein transferred to the Department of the Air Force, the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, and the Bureau of Federal Supply, all administrative property, records, and accounts of the War Assets Administration shall be transferred to the Treasury Department for liquidation of the affairs of the War Assets Administration;

"(5) Such administrative property, records, and personnel of the War Assets Administration as determined by the Director of the Bureau of the Budget to be necessary to the administration of any of the functions herein transferred shall be transferred to the agency to which such function is transferred: Provided, That the right to retention in employment by the Government of the personnel so transferred shall be neither greater nor less than such right would have been had the War Assets Administration continued as an independent agency of the Government;

"(6) The provisions of section 9 of the Reorganization Act of 1945 (Public Law 263, 79th Cong.) shall apply to the transfers effected by this paragraph in like manner as if such transfer were a reorganization of the agencies and functions concerned under the provisions of that act:

"(7) Priorities and preferences provided for in the Surplus Property Act of 1944, as amended, shall not continue beyond August 31, 1948, as to the disposal of personal property but shall continue as to the disposal of real estate;

"(8) The agencies herein authorized to dispose of surplus personal property may, after the date of enactment hereof, transfer any of such property without charge to any other agency of the Government if such property, by such transfer, can be put to public use by the transferee agency;

"(9) The agencies herein authorized to dispose of surplus property shall proceed with due diligence and use all reasonable means within the purview of this Act and the Surplus property Act of 1944, as amended, to accomplish such purpose at the earliest practicable date and shall report to the Committees on Appropriations of the Senate and the House of Representatives at the end of each month as to progress made;

"(10) The Secretary of the Treasury, the Secretary of the Air Force, or the Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation may authorize the abandonment, destruction, or donation to public bodies of personal property herein transferred to their respective agencies which has no commercial value or the estimated cost of care and handling of which would exceed the estimated proceeds from its sale;

"(11) The Surplus Property Act of 1944, as amended, shall not apply to property of the Government which has not been declared surplus under the terms of such Act as of the date of enactment hereof and any such property determined to be surplus shall be disposed of in accordance with the terms of other existing law.

"SALARIES AND EXPENSES, WAR ASSETS ADMINISTRATION SPECIAL FUND

"Salaries and expenses: There is hereby appropriated from the special fund account in the Treasury as provided for in the First Deficiency Appropriation Act, 1946, not to exceed $65,000,000, which may be apportioned for obligation during the period ending February 28, 1949, for necessary expenses of the War Assets Administration established by Reorganization Plan Numbered 1 of 1947; for allocation or reimbursement by the War Assets Administrator to Government agencies designated by the Administrator as disposal agencies by or pursuant to law, and for payment to Government agencies designated by the Administrator for rendering special services in connection with the disposal of surplus property, in such amounts as shall be approved by the Bureau of the Budget; and for allocation or reimburse-ment to owning agencies for the care and handling (including pay and allowances and subsistence of military and naval personnel) of surplus property subsequent to the filing of a declaration of surplus covering such property with a disposal agency designated by the Administrator, or, if the Administrator prescribes procedures whereby declarations of surplus are made at approximately the time of disposal or removal, subsequent to notice by the owning agency to the disposal agency that property has been determined to be surplus and is subject to such procedures, such funds to be available for personal services in the District of Columbia; fees and mileage of witnesses at rates provided by law for witnesses attending in the United States courts (28 U. S. C. 600c); payment of claims pursuant to Section 403 of the Federal Tort Claims Act (28 U. S. C. 921); services as authorized by section 15 of the Act of August 2, 1946 (5 U.S. C. 55a), and other special services and reports by contract without regard to section 3709 of the Revised Statutes as amended including real estate brokers and appraisers at rates of pay or fees not to exceed those usual for similar services; health service program as authorized by law (5 U. S. C. 150), (not to exceed $73,000); acceptance and utilization of voluntary and uncompensated services; printing and binding; expenses of attendance at meetings of organizations concerned with the work of the Administration; procure-ment of supplies, equipment, reports, and services in connection with the care, handling, and disposition of surplus property without regard to the provisions of section 3709 of the Revised Statutes, as amended, upon determination by the Administrator or by any official designated by him for this purpose that such method of procurement is necessary; purchase and procurement of re-ports of experts or consultants or organizations thereof; advertising, including radio time; maintenance, operation, and repair of aircraft in the Territories and possessions in connection with disposal activities and. the continental limits of the United States in connection with the disposition of aircraft and airports; acquisition of build-ings, lands, leaseholds, and other interests therein, and temporary use thereof for the care, handling, and disposition of surplus property; payments to States or political subdivisions thereof of sums in lieu of taxes accruing against real property declared surplus to the Administration by Government corporations; advance of funds to Administration cashiers and collection officials upon furnishing bond, for the purpose of handling cash transactions and making change at surplus property sales: Provided, That any employee of the War Assets Administration is authorized, when designated for the purpose by the Administrator, to administer to or take from any person an oath, affirmation, or affidavit, when such instrument is required in connection with the performance of the functions or activities of the War Assets Administration: Provided further, That the Administration may procure by contract or otherwise and furnish to governmental employees and employees of Gov-ernment contractors at the reasonable value thereof food, meals, subsistence, and medical supplies, emergency medical services, quarters, heat, light, household equipment, launservice, and sanitation facilities, and erect temporary structures and make altera-tions in existing structures necessary for these purposes, when such employees are engaged in the disposal of surplus property, or in the preparation for such disposal, at locations where such supplies, services, equipment, or facilities are otherwise unavailable, the proceeds derived therefrom to be credited to this appropriation.

And the Senate agree to the same.

STATEMENT

The managers on the part of the House at the conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H. R. 6829) making sup-plemental appropriations for the Executive Office and sundry independent executive bureaus, boards, commissions, and offices, for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1949, and for other purposes, submit the following report in explanation of the effect of the action agreed upon and recommended in the accompanying conference report as to each of Amendment No. 1 inserts the provision of the Senate limiting the purchase of news-papers and periodicals by the Atomic Energy Commission to not to exceed $8,000.

Amendment No. 2 inserts the provision of the Senate limiting travel expenses of the Atomic Energy Commission and limits the amount at $1,500,000, instead of $1,842,000, as proposed by the Senate.

Amendment No. 3 appropriates $511,850,-000 for expenses necessary to carry out the purposes of the Atomic Energy Act of 1946, instead of $501,850,000, as proposed by the House and $521,850,000, as proposed by the Senate. The managers on the part of the House and the Senate have agreed that no part of the increase above the original House figure shall be available for administrative expenses

Amendment No. 4 is reported in disagreement.

Amendment No. 5 relating to the Rural Electrification Administration is eliminated.

Amendment No. 6 relating to the United States Maritime Commission appropriates $68,360,775 for salaries and expenses as proposed by the House, instead of $69,360,775, as proposed by the Senate.

proposed by the Senate.

Amendment No. 7 provides a limitation of $10,600,000 for administrative expenses, United States Maritime Commission, as proposed by the House, instead of $11,600,000, as proposed by the Senate.

Amendment No. 8 is reported in disagree-

Amendment No. 9 appropriates $7,744,000 for Maritime training, instead of $8,133,080, as proposed by the House, and $6,943,000, as proposed by the Senate, and provides that $75,000 shall be available for restoration or repair of buildings at the maritime training repair of buildings at the martime training station at Pass Christian, Miss., as proposed by the Senate. It is understood and agreed between the House and Senate conferees that of the reduction from the above mentioned House proposal, no decrease is to be made in the number of students anticipated to be trained under the House proposal.

Amendment No. 10 relating to the conversion of C-4 type vessels of the United States Maritime Commission, as proposed by the Senate, is eliminated.

Amendment No. 11 eliminates language carried in the House and Senate bills and substitutes therefor, the following language:

For the purpose of this proviso, education or training for the purpose of teaching a veteran to fly or related aviation courses in connection with his present or contemplated business or occupation, shall not be considered avocational or recreational.

The language as finally agreed upon is intended to permit all training which will contribute to bona fide use in the veteran's present or future business or employment.

Amendment No. 12 inserts the provision of the Senate permitting payment from the fund "veterans' miscellaneous benefits" to certain veterans as authorized by law in acquiring specially adapted housing which they require by reason of the nature of their service-connected disabilities.

Amendment No. 13 provides for liquidation of the War Assets Administration, as proposed by the House, but makes such liquidation effective February 28, 1949, instead of August 31, 1948, and appropriates $65,000,000 for salaries and expenses, instead of $50,000,000, as proposed by the House, and $90,000,000, as proposed by the Senate.

Amendment No. 14 inserts the provision of the Senate making funds available for examination of appropriation estimates in

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Iowa? There was no objection.

Mr. CUNNINGHAM. Mr. Speaker, in these closing days of Congress I desire to pay tribute to the magnificent service the Honorable J. HARRY McGREGOR has rendered as chairman of the Subcommittee on Public Buildings and Grounds of the Public Works Committee of the House. He has been courageous and courteous. He has worked hard and brought forth much needed legislation, and at the same time worked diligently to save the taxpayers' money. As a member of his committee I am proud of and commend his leadership.

Mr. Speaker, the Honorable George A. DONDERO, as chairman of the Public Works Committee of the House, has performed an outstanding service during the Eightieth Congress. He is courteous, capable, and efficient, and as chairman of a complex committee has been responsible for much beneficial legislation, and at the same time protected the economy of our Nation. He believes in economy but is forward looking when the need arises. It has been a pleasure for me to serve under his leadership.

In lieu of the matter proposed to be inserted by the Senate amendment insert the following:

"That subsection (1) of section 5 of the Home Owners' Loan Act of 1933, as amended, is hereby amended by adding the following provision at the end thereof:

'Any Federal savings and loan association may convert itself into a savings and loan type of institution organized pursuant to the laws of the State, district, or Territory (hereinafter referred to in this section the State) in which the principal office of such Federal association is located: Pro-vided, (1) That the State permits the conversion of any savings and loan type of institution of such State into a Federal savings and loan association; (2) that such conversion of a Federal savings and loan association into such a State institution is determined upon the vote in favor of such conversion cast in person or by proxy at a special meet-ing of members called to consider such action, specified by the law of the State in which the home office of the Federal associa-tion is located, as required by such law for a State-chartered institution to convert itself into a Federal association, but in no event upon a vote of less than 51 per centum of all the votes cast at such meeting, and upon compliance with other requirements reciprocally equivalent to the requirements of such State law for the conversion of a State-chartered institution into a Federal associa-tion; (3) that notice of the meeting to vote on conversion shall be given as herein provided and no other notice thereof shall be necessary; the notice shall expressly state that such meeting is called to vote thereon, as well as the time and place thereof, and such notice shall be mailed, postage pre-paid, at least 20 and not more than 30 days prior to the date of the meeting, to each member of record of the Federal association at his last address as shown on the books of the Federal association and to the General Manager of the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation, Washington, District of Columbia; (4) that, upon the effective date of the conversion, the association has repurchased the total amount invested in its shares by the Secretary of the Treasury; and (5) that if, upon the effective date of conversion, the Home Owners' Loan Corporation will hold of record shares of the association, its approval of the conversion has been obtained; (6) that, in the event of dissolu-tion after conversion, the members or shareholders of the association will share on a mutual basis in the assets of the association in exact proportion to their relative share or account credits; (7) that such conversion shall be effective upon the date that all the provisions of this act shall have been fully complied with and upon the issuance of a new charter by the State wherein the association is located; it being provided that its act of converting into a State-chartered institution shall constitute an agreement to be bound by all the requirements that the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation may legally impose under section 403 of title IV of the National Housing Act, as now or hereafter amended, and the association shall upon conversion and thereafter be authorized to issue securities in any form currently approved at the time of issue by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation for issuance by similar insured institutions in such State, District, or Territory. "'In addition to the foregoing provision for conversion upon a vote of the members only any association chartered as a Federal savings and loan association, including any having outstanding shares held by the Sec-retary of the Treasury or Home Owners' Loan Corporation, may convert itself into a State institution upon an equitable basis, subject to approval, by regulations or otherwise, by the Home Loan Bank Board and by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corpora-tion: Provided, That if the insurance of accounts is terminated in connection with such conversion, the notice and other action shall be taken as provided by law and regulations for the termination of insurance of accounts.

"Sec. 2. Section 19 of the Federal Home Loan Bank Act, as amended, and subsection (c) of section 402 of the National Housing Act, as amended, are hereby each amended by adding at the end thereof the following new sentence: 'All necessary expenses in connection with the making of supervisory or other examinations (except examinations of Federal home loan banks), including the provision of services and facilities therefor, shall be considered as nonadministrative expenses."

And the Senate agree to the same.

STATEMENT

The managers on the part of the House at the conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendment of the Senate to the bill (H. R. 2798) to amend section 5, Home Owners' Loan Act of 1933, and for other purposes, submit the following statement in explanation of the effect of the action agreed upon by the conferees and recommended in the accompanying conference report:

The Senate amendment to the bill strikes out all after the enacting clause and inserts a substitute amendment. The committee conference recommend that the House recede from its disagreement to the amend-ment of the Senate with an amendment which is a substitute for both the House bill and Senate amendment and that the Senate agree to the same.

Both the House bill and the Senate amend-ment contain provisions for the conversion of any Federal savings and loan association into a comparable State association. The Senate amendment also permitted conversion into a State mutual savings bank. The pro-visions of the Senate amendment with respect to the procedure for conversion were more detailed than the provisions of the House bill.

The Senate amendment contained a provision not contained in the House bill amending section 19 of the Federal Home Loan Bank Act, and subsection (c) of section 402 of the National Housing Act, to provide that all necessary expenses in connection with the making of supervisory or other examinations (except examinations of Federal home loan banks), including services and facilities therefor, shall be considered as nonadministrative expenses.

The conference substitute, while following the more detailed procedural provisions of the Senate amendment, permits the conversion of a Federal savings and loan association into a comparable State association but not into a State mutual savings bank. The conference substitute also contains the provisions of the Senate amendment referred to above with respect to expenses in connection with the making of supervisory or other examinations.

JESSE P. WOLCOTT, RALPH A. GAMBLE, FREDERICK C. SMITH, JOHN C. KUNKEL, BRENT SPENCE, PAUL BROWN, WRIGHT PATMAN,

Managers on the Part of the House.

Mr. WOLCOTT. Mr. Speaker, I call up the conference report on the bill (H. R. 2798) to amend section 5, Home Owners' Loan Act of 1933, and for other purposes, and ask unanimous consent that the statement of the managers on the part of the House be read in lieu of the report.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Michigan?

There was no objection. The Clerk read the statement.

Mr. WOLCOTT. Mr. Speaker, I move the previous question on the conference report.

The previous question was ordered.
The conference report was agreed to.

EXTENSION OF REMARKS

Mr. HALLECK asked and was given permission to extend his remarks in the RECORD and include an address by Prof. Claude Horack.

Mr. LEA asked and was given permission to extend his remarks in the Record.

Mr. ROONEY asked and was given permission to extend his remarks in the RECORD and include an article.

HIGH COST OF LIVING

Mr. PHILBIN. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to extend my remarks at this point in the RECORD.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Massachusetts?

There was no objection.

Mr. PHILBIN. Mr. Speaker, one of the great issues facing us at this time is the high cost of living. The prices of necessaries of life are bounding into the inflationary stratosphere. Commodity prices have skyrocketed. Things which manufacturers and businessmen utilize to keep business and employment at a high level are not only scarce and difficult to procure in all too many instances, but prices thereof are excessive. What is even more disturbing to a great many of us, the prices of food, clothing, and essentials of life have risen to new high

These inflationary features operating in the economic system are causing great hardship to the rank and file of the American people who have to pay heavy taxes and who are burdened down with the utterly crushing current costs of necessaries like meat, groceries, provisions, clothing, household accessories, and the like, which are indispensable to the ordinary American family to provide comfort and a decent living standard to breadwinners and children, indeed to the American family.

This threat of the inflational spiral was manifest to me some time ago. Right after VJ-day I urged that wages and prices be brought into a proper equitable relationship and held at that level. As long ago as February 1947 I introduced a resolution in this House calling for a study of the prices of necessaries of life and problems facing the purchasing public as the result of price advances and to take remedial action looking toward increased production, efficient distribution, lower prices for consumer goods, and increase in consumer provers.

Although I urged favorable action along these lines to check inflation, very unfortunately the resolution was never reported from the Rules Committee and consequently no effective steps have been taken to try to hold back the onrushing tide of inflationary pressure that is bringing such high prices and such great hardship to the people.

There are many causes for current high prices. In the first place exceptional pent-up domestic demand for goods, commodities, and materials of every kind has tended to create serious shortages. Secondly, the impact of ERP and other foreign-aid programs upon the American economy has augmented these shortages. The related gigantic military program channeling billions of dollars of essentials out of uses of the consumer into uneconomic purposes of the military-necessary though some of them may be-is of course a very material factor in the advance of the general price level and will continue to exert even greater influence as military expenditures grow beyond the huge figure of twenty-two billion as is contemplated for fiscal year 1949.

I feel strongly that Congress should have dealt with this basic question affecting so vitally the well-being of the Nation long ago.

Most assuredly Congress should deal with this question of the high cost of living before adjournment. I hope it will not be too presumptuous on my part to express the wish that Congress had acted on my House Resolution 121 many months ago and I utter the hope that vigorous, forthright, decisive action along these lines will not be further delayed.

COMMITTEE ON INTERSTATE AND FOREIGN COMMERCE

Mr. HINSHAW. Mr. Speaker, on behalf of the managers on the part of the House, I ask unanimous consent that they be permitted to file a conference report on the bill (H. R. 4044) by midnight to-night.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California?

There was no objection.

SPECIAL ORDER GRANTED

Mr. MILLER of Connecticut. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that today, following any special orders heretofore entered, I may be permitted to address the House for 1 hour.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Connecticut?

There was no objection.

DONATION OF EXCESS AND SURPLUS ARMED FORCES PROPERTY FOR EDUCA-TIONAL PURPOSES

Mr. ANDERSON of California. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to take from the Speaker's desk the bill (H. R. 5882) to authorize the Secretary of the Army, the Secretary of the Navy, and the Secretary of the Air Force to donate excess and surplus property for educational purposes, with a Senate amendment thereto, and concur in the Senate amendment.

The Clerk read the title of the bill. The Clerk read the Senate amendment, as follows:

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California?

There was no objection.

The Senate amendment was concurred in.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

ASSISTANCE TO CERTAIN LOCAL SCHOOL AGENCIES

Mr. LANDIS. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to take from the Speaker's desk the bill (H. R. 6527) to provide assistance to certain local school agencies overburdened with war-incurred, or postwar national-defense-incurred, enrollments, with a Senate amendment thereto, disagree to the Senate amendment, and ask for a conference with the Senate.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentlemen from Indiana? [After a pause.] The Chair hears none, and appoints the following conferees: Messis. McCowen, Landis, Brehm, Kearns, Barden, and Lucas.

PROVIDING EXPENSES FOR CONDUCTING THE INVESTIGATION INCURRED BY THE SELECT COMMITTEE AUTHORIZED BY HOUSE RESOLUTION 691

Mr. LECOMPTE. Mr. Speaker, I submit a privileged resolution (H. Res. 697) and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the resolution, as follows:

Resolved, That the expenses of the investigation to be conducted by the select committee created by House Resolution 691, Eightieth Congress, not to exceed $25,000, including expenditures (a) for the employment of investigators, attorneys, and clerical, stenographic, and other assistants, and (b) for necessary expenses incurred by advisers to such committee, shall be paid out of the contingent fund of the House on vouchers authorized by such committee, signed by the chairman thereof, and approved by the Committee on House Administration.

The resolution was agreed to.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

PRINTING AND BINDING OF A REVISED EDITION OF CANNON'S PROCEDURE IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Mr. Lecompte. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to take from the Speaker's table the joint resolution (H. J. Res. 190) authorizing the printing and binding of a revised edition of Cannon's Procedure in the House of Representatives and providing that the same shall be subject to copyright by the author, with Senate amendments thereto, and concur in the Senate amendments.

The Clerk read the title of the joint resolution.

The Clerk read the Senate amendments as follows:

Line 4, strike out "of a revised edition." Line 11, strike out "such revised edition."

Amend the title so as to read: "Joint resolution authorizing the printing and binding of Cannon's Procedure in the House of Representatives and providing that the same shall be subject to copyright by the author."

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Iowa? There was no objection.

The Senate amendments were concurred in.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

RECESS

The SPEAKER. The House will stand in recess subject to the call of the Chair. Accordingly (at 6 o'clock and 9 minutes p. m.) the House stood in recess subject to the call of the Chair.

AFTER RECESS

The recess having expired, the House was called to order by the Speaker at 7 o'clock and 13 minutes p. m.

SELECTIVE SERVICE ACT OF 1948

Mr. ANDREWS of New York submitted the following conference report and statement on the bill (S. 2655) to provide for the common defense by increasing the strength of the armed forces of the United States, including the Reserve components thereof, and for other purposes:

The conference report and statement are as follows:

CONFERENCE REPORT

The committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendment of the House to the bill (8. 2655) to provide for the common defense by increasing the strength of the armed forces of the United States, including the reserve components thereof, and for other purposes, having met, after full and free conference, have agreed to recommend and do recommend to their respective Houses as follows:

That the Senate recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the House and agree to the same with an amendment as follows:

In lieu of the matter proposed to be inserted by the House amendment insert the following:

"TITLE I

"SECTION 1. (a) This Act may be cited as the 'Selective Service Act of 1948.'

"(b) The Congress hereby declares that an adequate armed strength must be achieved and maintained to insure the security of this Nation.

"(c) The Congress further declares that in a free society the obligations and privileges of serving in the armed forces and the Reserve components thereof should be shared generally, in accordance with a system of selection which is fair and just, and which is consistent with the maintenance of an effective national economy.

"(d) The Congress further declares, in accordance with our traditional military policy as expressed in the National Defense Act of 1916, as amended, that it is essential that the strength and organization of the National Guard, both Ground and Air, as an integral part of the first line defenses of this Nation, be at all times maintained and assured.

"To this end, it is the intent of the Congress that whenever Congress shall determine that units and organizations are needed for the national security in excess of those of the Regular components of the Ground Forces and the Air Forces, and those in active service under this title, the National Guard of the United States, both Ground and Air, or such part thereof as may be necessary, together with such units of the Reserve components as are necessary for a balanced force, shall be ordered to active Federal service and continued therein so long as such necessity exists.

"(e) The Congress further declares that adequate provision for national security requires maximum effort in the fields of scientific research and development, and the fullest possible utilization of the Nation's technological, scientific, and other critical manpower resources.

"AUTHORIZED PERSONNEL STRENGTHS

"SEC. 2. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the authorized active duty personnel strength of the armed forces, exclusive of personnel of the reserve components on active duty for training purposes only, officer candidates, personnel of the armed forces employed in the Selective Service System, and persons paid under the appropria-tions for the Naval Reserve and the Marine Corps Reserve, is hereby established as follows: (1) Of the Army of the United States, eight hundred thirty-seven thousand plus one hundred ten thousand one-year enlistees; (2) of the Navy, including the Marine Corps, the present authorized statutory strength of six hundred sixty-six thousand, eight hundred and eighty-two, plus thirty-six thou-sand one-year enlistees; and (3) of the Air Force of the United States, five hundred two thousand plus fifteen thousand one-year enlistees. The strength herein established for each of the armed forces shall mean the daily average number of persons on active duty therein during the fiscal year.

"REGISTRATION

"Sec. 3. Except as otherwise provided in this title, it shall be the duty of every male citizen of the United States, and every other male person residing in the United States, who, on the day or days fixed for the first or any subsequent registration, is between the ages of eighteen and twenty-six, to present himself for and submit to registration at such time or times and place or places, and in such manner, as shall be determined by proclamation of the President and by rules and regulations prescribed hereunder.

"TRAINING AND SERVICE

"Sec. 4. (a) Except as otherwise provided in this title, every male citizen of the United States, and every other male person residing in the United States, who is between the ages of nineteen and twenty-six, at the time fixed for his registration, or who attains the age of nineteen after having been required to register pursuant to section 3 of this title, shall be liable for training and service in the armed forces of the United States. Any citizen of a foreign country, who is not deferable or exempt from training and service under the provisions of this title (other than this subsection), shall be relieved from liability for training and service under this title if, prior to his induction into the armed forces, he has made application to be relieved from such liability in the manner prescribed by and in accordance with rules and regulations prescribed by the President; but any person who makes such application shall thereafter be debarred from becoming a citizen of the United States. The President is authorized from time to time, whether or not a state of war exists, to select and induct into the armed forces of the United States for training and service in the manner provided in this title such number of persons as may be required to provide and maintain the personnel strengths (other than one-year enlistee personnel strengths) of the respective armed forces authorized by section 2 of this title.

"No person shall be inducted for training and service under this title unless and until he is acceptable to the armed forces for such training and service and his physical and mental fitness for such training and service has been satisfactorily determined under standards prescribed by the Secretary of Defense.

"No persons shall be inducted for such training and service until adequate provision shall have been made for such shelter, sanitary facilities, water supplies, heating and lighting arrangements, medical care, and hospital accommodations, for such persons, as may be determined by the Secretary of Defense to be essential to public and personal health.

"The persons inducted into the armed forces for training and service under this title shall be assigned to stations or units of such forces. Persons inducted into the land forces of the United States pursuant to this title shall be deemed to be members of the Army of the United States; persons inducted into the naval forces of the United States pursuant to this title shall be deemed to be members of the United States Navy or the United States Marine Corps, as appropriate; and persons inducted into the air forces of the United States pursuant to this title shall be deemed to be members of the Air Force of the United States.

"No person, without his consent, shall be inducted for training and service under this title, except as otherwise provided herein, after he has attained the twenty-sixth anniversary of the day of his birth.

"(b) Each person inducted under the provisions of subsection (a) shall serve in the armed forces for a period of twenty-one consecutive months, unless sooner discharged in accordance with standards and procedures prescribed by the Secretary of Defense.

"(c) (1) Under the provisions of applicable laws and regulations any person between the ages of nineteen and twenty-six shall be offered an opportunity to enlist in the Regular Army for a period of service equal to that prescribed in subsection (b) of this section.

"(2) Any enlisted member of any reserve component of the Armed Forces may, during the effective period of this Act, apply for a period of service equal to that prescribed in subsection (b) of this section and his application shall be accepted: Provided, That his services can be effectively utilized and that his physical and mental fitness for such service meet the standards prescribed by the head of department concerned: And provided further, That active service performed pursuant to this section shall not prejudice his status as such member of such reserve component.

"(3) The passing requirement for the General Classification Test shall be fixed at seventy points.

"(d) (1) Each person who hereafter is inducted, enlisted, or appointed (except a person enlisted under subsection (g) of this section) and serves for a period of less than three years in one of the armed forces and meets the qualifications for enlistment or appointment in a reserve component of the armed force in which he serves, shall be transferred to a reserve component of such armed force, and until the expiration of a period of five years after such transfer, or until he is discharged from such reserve component, whichever occurs first, shall be deemed to be a member of such reserve component and shall be subject to such additional training and service as may now or hereafter be pre-scribed by law for such reserve component: Provided, That any such person who completes at least twenty-one months of service in the armed forces and who thereafter serves satisfactorily (1) on active duty in the armed forces under a voluntary extension for a period of at least one year, which extension is hereby authorized, or (2) in an organized unit of any reserve component of any of the armed forces for a period of at least thirty-six consecutive months, shall, except in time of war or national emergency declared by the Congress, be relieved from any further liability under this subsection to serve in any reserve component of the armed forces of the United States, but nothing in this subsection shall be construed to prevent any such person, while in a reserve component of such forces, from being ordered or called to active duty in such forces.

"(2) Each person who hereafter is enlisted under the provisions of subsection (g) of this section and who meets the qualifications for enlistment or appointment in a reserve component of the armed forces shall, upon discharge from such enlistment under honorable conditions, be transferred to a reserve component of the armed forces of the United States and shall serve therein for a period of six years or until sooner discharged. Each such person shall, so long as he is a member of such reserve component, be liable to be ordered to active duty, but except in time of war or national emergency declared by the Congress no such person shall be ordered to active duty, without his consent and except as hereinafter provided, for more than one month in any year. In case the Secretary of the Army, the Secretary of the Navy, or the Secretary of the Air Force determines that enlistment enrollment, or appointment in, or assignment to, an organized unit of a reserve component or an officers' training program of the armed force in which he served is available to, and can without undue hardship be filled by, any such person, it shall be the duty of such person to enlist, enroll, or accept appointment in, or accept assignment to, such organized unit or officers' training program and to serve satisfactorily therein for a period of four years. Any such person who fails or refuses to perform such duty may be ordered to active duty, without his consent, for an additional period of not more than twelve consecutive months. Any such person who enlists or accepts appointment in any such organized unit and serves satisfactorily therein for a period of four years shall, except in time of war or national emergency declared by the Congress, be relieved from any further liability under this subsection to serve in any reserve component of the armed forces of the United States, but nothing in this subsection shall be construed to prevent any such persons, while in a reserve component of such forces, from being ordered or called to active duty in such forces. Secretary of Defense is authorized to prescribe regulations governing the transfer of such persons within and between reserve components of the armed forces and determining, for the purpose of the requirements of the foregoing provisions of this paragraph, the credit to be allowed any person so trans-ferring for his previous service in one or more reserve components.

"(e) With respect to the persons inducted for training and service under this title there shall be paid, allowed, and extended the same pay, allowances, pensions, disability, and death compensation, and other benefits as are provided by law in the case of other enlisted men of like grades and length of service of that component of the armed forces to which they are assigned. Section 3 of the Act of July 25, 1947 (Public Law 239, Eightlieth Congress), is hereby amended by deleting therefrom the following: 'Act of March 7, 1942 (56 Stat. 143–148, ch 166), as amended.' The Act of March 7, 1941 (56 Stat. 143–148), as amended, is hereby made applicable to persons inducted into the armed forces pursuant to this title.

"(f) Nothing contained in this or any other Act shall be construed as forbidding the payment of compensation by any person, firm, or corporation to persons inducted into the armed forces of the United States for training and service under this title, or to members of reserve components of such forces now or hereafter on any type of active duty, who, prior to their induction or order to active duty, were receiving compensation from such persons firm or corporation.

from such persons, firm, or corporation.

"(g) Subject to the authorized one-year enlistee active duty personnel strengths established by section 2 of this title for the respective armed forces, the Secretaries of the Army, the Navy, and the Air Force are authorized and directed to accept enlistments for periods of one year in the Army of the United States, the United States Navy or the United States Marine Corps, and the Air Force of the United States, respectively, from among qualified male persons between the ages of eighteen and nineteen.

"(h) No person who is enlisted in the Army of the United States under the provisions of subsection (g) shall be permanently assigned to duty at any place cutside of the continental limits of the United States; and no person who is enlisted under the provisions of such subsection in the United States Navy, the United States Marine Corps, or the Air Porce of the United States shall be assigned to duty at any naval or air force installation which is located on land outside of the continental limits of the United States.

"SELECTION

"SEC. 5. (a) The selection of persons for training and service under section 4 shall be made in an impartial manner, under such rules and regulations as the President may prescribe, from the persons who are liable for such training and service and who at the time of selection are registered and classified, but not deferred or exempted: Provided, That in the selection of persons for training and service under this title, and in the in-terpretation and execution of the provisions of this title, there shall be no discrimination against any person on account of race or color: Provided further, That in the classifi-cation of registrants within the jurisdiction of any local board, the registrants of any particular registration may be classified, in the manner prescribed by and in accordance with rules and regulations prescribed by the President, before, together with, or after the reg-istrants of any prior registration or registrations; and in the selection for induction of persons within the jurisdiction of any local board and within any particular classification, persons who were registered at any particular registration may be selected, in the manner prescribed by and in accordance with rules and regulations prescribed by the President, before, together with, or after persons who were registered at any prior registration or registrations.

"(b) Quotas of men to be inducted for training and service under this title shall be determined for each State, Territory, possession, and the District of Columbia and for subdivisions thereof, on the basis of the actual number of men in the several States, Territories, possessions, and the District of Columbia, and the subdivisions thereof, who are liable for such training and service but who are not deferred after classification, except that credits shall be given in fixing such quotas for residents of such subdivisions who are in the armed forces of the United States on the date fixed for determining such quotas. After such quotas are fixed, credits shall be given in filling such quotas for residents of such subdivisions who subsequently become members of such forces. Until the actual numbers necessary for determining the quotas are known, the quotas may be based on estimates, and subsequent adjustments therein shall be made when such actual numbers are known. All computations under this subsection shall be made in accordance with such rules and regulations as the President may prescribe.

"DEFERMENT AND EXEMPTIONS

"Sec. 6. (a) Commissioned officers, warrant officers, pay clerks, enlisted men, and aviation cadets of the Regular Army, the Navy, the Air Force, the Marine Corps, the Coast Guard, the Coast and Geodetic Survey, and the Public Health Service; cadets, United States Military Academy; midshipmen, United States Navy; cadets, United States Coast Guard Academy, members of the reserve components of the armed forces, the Coast Guard, and the Public Health Service, while on active duty; and foreign diplomatic representatives, technical attachés of foreign embassies and legations, consuls general, consuls, vice consuls, and other consular agents of foreign countries who are not citizens of the United States, and members of their families, and persons in other categories to be specified by the President, residing in the United States, and who have not declared their intention to become citizens of the United States, shall not be required to be registered under section 3 and shall be relieved from liability for training and service under section 4 (b)

"(b) (1) No person who served honorably on active duty between September 16, 1940, and the date of enactment of this title for a period of twelve months or more, or between December 7, 1941, and September 2, 1945, for a period in excess of ninety days, in the Army, the Air Force, the Navy, the Marine Corps, the Coast Guard, the Public Health Service, or the armed forces of any country allied with the United States in World War II prior to September 2, 1945, shall be liable for induction for training and service under this title, except after a declaration of war or national emergency made by the Congress subsequent to the date of enactment of this title.

"(2) No person who served honorably on active duty between September 16, 1940, and the date of enactment of this title for a period of ninety days or more but less than twelve months in the Army, the Air Force, the Navy, the Marine Corps, the Coast Guard, the Public Health Service, or the armed forces of any country allied with the United States in World War II prior to September 2, 1945, shall be liable for induction for training and service under this title, except after a declaration of war or national emergency made by the Congress subsequent to the date of enactment of this title, if—

"(A) the local board determines that he is regularly enlisted or commissioned in any organized unit of a reserve component of the armed force (or the Coast Guard) in which he served, provided such unit is reasonably accessible to such person without unduly interrupting his normal pursuits and activities (including attendance at a college or university in which he is regularly enrolled), or in a reserve component (other than in an organized unit) of such armed force or the Coast Guard in any case in which enlistment or commission in an organized unit of a reserve component of such armed force or the Coast Guard is not available to him; or

"(B) the local board determines that enlistment or commission in a reserve component of such armed force or the Coast Guard is not available to him or that he has voluntarily enlisted or accepted appointment in an organized unit of a reserve component of an armed force other than the armed force in which he served or in the Coast Guard. Nothing in this paragraph shall be deemed to be applicable to any person to whom paragraph (1) of this subsection is applicable.

(3) No person who after the date of enactment of this title is honorably discharged upon the completion of a period of three years or more of active duty in the Army, the Air Force, the Navy, the Marine Corps, the Coast Guard, or the Public Health Service, shall be liable for induction for training and service under this title, except after a dec-laration of war or national emergency made by the Congress subsequent to the date of enactment of this title.

"(4) No person who is honorably discharged upon the completion of an enlistment pursuant to section 4 (c) or section 4 (g) shall be liable for induction for training and service under this title, except after a declaration of war or national emergency made by the Congress subsequent to the date of enactment of this title.

"(5) For the purposes of computation of the periods of active duty referred to in paragraphs (1), (2), or (3) of this subsection, no credit shall be allowed for—

"(A) periods of active duty training performed as a member of a reserve component pursuant to an order or call to active duty solely for training purposes;

"(B) periods of active duty in which the service consisted solely of training under the service consisted solely of training under the Army specialized training program, the Army Air Force college training program, or any similar program under the jurisdiction of the Navy, Marine Corps, or Coast Guard;

"(C) periods of active duty as a cadet at the United States Military Academy or United States Coast Guard Academy, or as a mid-shipman at the United States Naval Academy, or in a preparatory school after nomination as a principal, alternate, or candidate for sion to any of such academies; or

"(D) periods of active duty in any of the armed forces while being processed for entry into or separation from any educational pro-gram or institution referred to in paragraphs

(B) or (C).

"(c) (1) Persons who, on the effective date of this title, were members of organized units of the federally recognized National Guard, the federally recognized Air National Guard, the Officers' Reserve Corps, the Regular Army Reserve, the Air Force Reserve, the Enlisted Reserve Corps, the Naval Reserve, the Marine Corps Reserve, the Coast Guard Reserve, or the Public Health Service Reserve, shall, so long as they continue to be such members satisfactorily participate in scheduled drills and training periods as prescribed by the Secretary of Defense, be exempt from training and service by induction under the provisions of this title, but shall not be exempt from registration unless on active duty.

"(2) (A) In any case in which the Gover-nor of any State determines and issues a proclamation to the effect that the authorized strength of any organized unit of the National Guard of his State cannot be maintained by the enlistment or appointment of persons referred to in subsection 6 (b) (2) or persons who are not liable for training and service under this title, any person who prior to attaining the age of eighteen years and six months enlists or accepts appointment in any such organized unit shall be deferred from training and service under this title so long as he continues to serve satisfactorily as a member of such organized unit.

"(B) Except as provided in subsection (b) or clause (A) of this paragraph, no person who shall become a member of a reserve component after the effective date of this title shall thereby be exempt from registration or training and service by induction under the provisions of this title.

"(d) (1) Any person, who on the effective date of this title, is enrolled in the advanced course, senior division, Reserve Officers' Training Corps or the Air Reserve Of-Naval Reserve Officers' Training Corps, or is a member of the Naval Reserve Officers' Training Corps and has entered upon the junior or senior year, or is a midshipman, United States Naval Reserve, shall be deferred from induction for training and service under this title until the completion or termination of the course of instruction and so long as he continues in a regular or reserve status upon being commissioned, but shall not be exempt from registration.

(2) Within such number as may be prescribed by the Secretary of Defense any per-(A) on or after the effective date of this title, is selected for enrollment or continuance in the senior division, Reserve Officers' Training Corps, or the Air Reserve Officers' Training Corps, or the Naval Reserve Officers' training Corps, or who, on or after the effective date of this title, is appointed a midshipman, United States Naval Reserve, and (B) agrees, in writing, to accept a com-mission if tendered and to serve, subject to call by the Secretary of the Army, the Secretary of the Air Force, or the Secretary of the Navy, respectively, not less than two years on active duty after receipt of a commission, shall be deferred from induction for training and service under this title until after completion or termination of the course of instruction and so long as he continues in a regular or reserve status upon being commissioned, but shall not be exempt from registration.

(e) Fully qualified and accepted aviation cadet applicants of the Army, Navy, or Air Force who have signed an agreement service shall, in such numbers as may be designated by the Secretary of Defense, be deferred, during the period covered by the agreement but not to exceed four months, from induction for training and service under this title but shall not be exempt from registration.

(f) The Vice President of the United States; the governors of the several States, Territories, and possessions, and all other officials chosen by the voters of the entire State, Territory, or possession; members of the legislative bodies of the United States and of the Several States, Territories, and possessions; judges of the courts of record of the United States and of the several States, Territories, possessions, and the District of Columbia shall, while holding such offices, be deferred from training and service under this title in the armed forces of the United

"(g) Regular or duly ordained ministers of religion, as defined in this title, and students preparing for the ministry under the direction of recognized churches or religious organizations, who are satisfactorily pursuing organizations, who are satisfactorily pursuing full-time courses of instruction in recognized theological or divinity schools, or who are satisfactorily pursuing full-time courses of instruction leading to their entrance into recognized theological or divinity schools in which they have been preenrolled, shall be exempt from training and service (but not from registration) under this title.

"(h) The President is authorized, under such rules and regulations as he may pre-scribe, to provide for the deferment from training and service under this title in the armed forces of the United States of any or all categories of persons whose employment in industry, agriculture, or other ment in industry, agriculture, or other occupations or employment, or whose continued service in an office (other than an office described in subsection (f)) under the United States or any State, Territory, or possession, or the District of Columbia, or whose activity in study, research, or medical, scientific, or other endeavors is found to be necessary to the maintenance of the national health, safety, or interest: Provided, That no person within any such category shall be deferred except upon the basis of his individual status. The President is also individual status. The President is also authorized, under such rules and regulations as he may prescribe, to provide for the deferment from training and service under this title in the armed forces of the United States (1) of any or all categories of persons in a status with respect to persons dependent upon them for support which renders their deferment advisable, and (2) of any or all categories of those persons found to be physically, mentally, or morally deficient or defective. For the purpose of determining whether or not the deferment of any person is advisable, because of his status with respect to persons dependent upon him for support, any payments of allowances which are payable by the United States to the dependents of persons serving in the armed forces of the United States shall be taken into consideration, but the fact that such payments of allowances are payable shall not be deemed conclusively to remove the grounds for deferment when the dependency is based upon financial considerations and shall not be deemed to remove the ground for deferment when the dependency is based upon other than financial considerations and cannot be eliminated by financial assistance to the dependents. The President is also authorized, under such rules and regulations The President is also as he may prescribe, to provide for the deferment from training and service under this title in the armed forces of the United States of any or all categories of persons who have wives or children, or wives and children, with whom they maintain a bona fide family relationship in their homes. No deferment from such training and service shall be made in the case of any individual except upon the basis of the status of such individual. There shall be posted in a conspicuous place at the office of each local board a list setting forth the names and classifications of those persons who have been classified by such local board.

"(i) (1) Any person who, while satisfactorily pursuing a full-time course of instruction at a high school or similar institution of learning, is ordered to report for induction under this title prior to his graduation from such school or institution, shall, upon the facts being presented to the local board, have his induction under this title postponed (A) until the time of his graduation therefrom, or (B) until he attains the twentieth anniversary of his birth, or (C) until he ceases satisfactorily to pursue such course of instruction, whichever is the earliest. induction of any such person shall not be postponed under this paragraph beyond the date so determined.

"(2) Any person who, while satisfactorily pursuing a full-time course of instruction at a college, university, or similar institu-tion of learning, is ordered to report for induction under this title, shall, upon the facts being presented to the local board, have his induction under this title postponed (A) until the end of such academic year or (B) until he ceases satisfactorily to pursue such course of instruction, whichever is the earlier. Nothing in this paragraph shall be deemed to preclude the President from providing, by regulations prescribed under subsection (h) of this section, for the deferment from training and service of any category or categories of students for such periods of time as he may deem appropriate.

"(j) Nothing contained in this title shall be construed to require any person to be subject to combatant training and service in the armed forces of the United States who, by reason of religious training and belief, conscientiously opposed to participation in war in any form. Religious training and belief in this connection means an individual's belief in a relation to a Supreme Being involving duties superior to those arising from any human relation, but does not include essentially political, sociological, or philosophical views or a merely personal moral code. Any person claiming exemp-tion from combatant training and service because of such conscientious objections whose claim is sustained by the local board shall, if he is inducted into the armed forces under this title, be assigned to noncombatant service as defined by the President, or shall, if he is found to be conscientiously opposed to participation in such noncombatant service, be deferred. Any person claiming exemption from combatant training and service because of such conscientious objections shall, if such claim is not sustained by the local board, be entitled to an appeal to the appropriate appeal board. Upon the filing of such appeal, the appeal board shall refer any such claim to the Department of Justice for inquiry and hearing. The Department of Justice, after appropriate inquiry, shall hold a hearing with respect to the character and good faith of the objections of the person concerned, and such person shall be notified of the time and place of such hearing. The Department of Justice shall, after such hearing, if the objections are found to be sustained, recommend to the appeal board that (1) if the objector is inducted into the armed forces under this title, he shall be assigned to noncombatant service as defined by the President, or (2) if the objector is found to be conscientiously opposed to participation in such noncombatant service, he shall be de-ferred. If after such hearing the Department of Justice finds that his objections are not sustained, it shall recommend to the appeal board that such objections be not sustained. The appeal board shall, in making its decision, give consideration to, but shall not be bound to follow, the recommendation of the Department of Justice together with the record on appeal from the local board. Each person whose claim for exemption from combatant training and service because of con-scientious objections is sustained shall be scientious objectors.

"(k) No exception from registration, or exemption or deferment from training and service, under this title, shall continue after the cause therefor ceases to exist.

"(1) Notwithstanding any other provisions of law, no person between the ages of 18 and 21 shall be discharged from service in the armed forces of the United States while this title is in effect because such person entered such service without the consent of his parent or guardian.

"(m) No person shall be relieved from training and service under this title by reason of conviction of a criminal offense, except where the offense of which he has been convicted may be punished by death, or by imprisonment for a term exceeding 1 year.

"(n) In the case of any registrant whose principal place of employment is located outside the appeal board area in which the local board having jurisdiction over the registrant is located, any occupational deferment made under subsection (h) of this section may, within 5 days after such deferment is made, be submitted for review and decision to the appeal board having jurisdiction over the area in which is located the principal place of employment of the registrant. Such decision of the appeal board shall be final unless modified or changed by the President, and such decision shall be made public.

"(o) Where one or more sons or daughters of a family were killed in action or died in line of duty while serving in the armed forces of the United States, or subsequently died as a result of injuries received or disease incurred during such service, the sole surviving son of such family shall not be inducted for service under the terms of this title.

"ACTIVE DUTY FOR CERTAIN MEMBERS OF RESERVE COMPONENTS

"Sec. 7. Notwithstanding any other provision of law or of this title, the President is hereby authorized to order into the active service of the armed forces of the United States, without their consent and for a period not to exceed 21 consecutive months each. members (other than those exempted or deferred from training and service under the provisions of section 6 (c)) of any or all reserve components of the armed forces of the United States who shall have had less than 90 days' continuance active service in the armed forces of the United States, exclusive of periods of active training duty. No member of the National Guard of any State, Territory, or the District of Columbia shall be ordered into the active service of the armed forces of the United States under this section unless the governor of such State or Territory, or the Commanding General of the District of Columbia National Guard in the case of a member of the District of Columbia National Guard, has consented to the order-ing into active service of the armed forces of the United States of members of the National Guard of his State, Territory, or District, as the case may be, in accordance with such program or programs as may have been mutually agreed upon. Nothing in this section shall be construed to repeal or abridge any existing law which authorizes the ordering of members of reserve components of the armed forces into active service.

"BOUNTIES; SUBSTITUTES; PURCHASES OF RELEASE

"SEC. 8. No bounty shall be paid to induce any person to enlist in or be inducted into the armed forces of the United States: Provided, That the clothing or enlistment allowances authorized by law shall not be regarded as bounties within the meaning of this section. No person, liable for training and service in such forces shall be permitted or allowed to furnish a substitute for such training and service; no substitute as such shall be received, enlisted, enrolled, or inducted into the armed forces of the United States; and no person liable for training and service in such forces under section 4 shall be permitted to escape such training and service or be discharged therefrom prior to the expiration of his period of such training and service by the payment of money or any other valuable thing whatsoever as consideration for his release from such training and service or liability therefor.

"SEPARATION FROM SERVICE; REEMPLOYMENT RIGHTS

"Sec. 9. (a) Any person inducted into the armed forces under this title for training and service, who, in the judgment of those in authority over him, satisfactorily completes his period of training and service under section 4 (b) shall be entitled to a certificate to that effect upon the completion of such period of training and service, which shall include a record of any special profi-ciency or merit attained. In addition, each such person who is inducted into the armed forces under this title for training and service shall be given a physical examination at the beginning of such training and service, and upon the completion of his period of training and service under this title, each such person shall be given another physical examination and, upon his written request, shall be given a statement of physical condition by the Secretary concerned: Provided, That such statement shall not contain any reference to mental or other conditions which in the judgment of the Secretary concerned would prove injurious to the physical or mental health of the person to whom it pertains.

"(b) In the case of any such person who, in order to perform such training and service, has left or leaves a position (other than a temporary position) in the employ of any employer and who (1) receives such certificate, and (2) makes application for reemployment within ninety days after he is relieved from such training and service or from hospitalization continuing after discharge for a period of not more than one year—

"(A) if such position was in the employ of the United States Government, its Territories, or possessions or political subdivisions thereof, or the District of Columbia, such person shall—

"(i) if still qualified to perform the duties of such position, be restored to such position or to a position of like seniority, status, and pay; or

"(ii) if not qualified to perform the duties of such position by reason of disability sustained during such service but qualified to perform the duties of any other position in the employ of the employer, be restored to such other position the duties of which he is qualified to perform as will provide him like seniority, status, and pay, or the nearest approximation thereof consistent with the circumstances in his case;

"(B) If such position was in the employ of a private employer, such person shall—"(1) if still qualified to perform the duties of such position, be restored by such employer or his successor in interest to such position or to a position of like seniority, status, and pay; or

"(ii) if not qualified to perform the duties of such position by reason of disability sustained during such service but qualified to perform the duties of any other position in the employ of such employer or his successor in interest, be restored by such employer or his successor in interest to such other position the duties of which he is qualified to perform as will provide him like seniority, status, and pay, or the nearest approximation thereof consistent with the circumstances in unless the employer's circumstances have so changed as to make it impossible or unreasonable to do so;

"(C) if such position was in the employ of any State or political subdivision thereof, it is hereby declared to be the sense of the Congress that such person should—

Congress that such person should—
"(i) if still qualified to perform the duties of such position, be restored to such position or to a position of like seniority, status, and pay; or pay; or

"(ii) if not qualified to perform the duties of such position by reason of disability sustained during such service but qualified to perform the duties of any other position in the employ of the employer, be restored to such other position the duties of which he is qualified to perform as will provide him like seniority, status, and pay, or the nearest approximation thereof consistent with the circumstances in his case.

"(c) (1) Any person who is restored to a position in accordance with the provisions of paragraph (A) or (B) of subsection (b) shall be considered as having been on furlough or leave of absence during his period of training and service in the armed forces, shall be so restored without loss of seniority, shall be entitled to participate in insurance or other benefits offered by the employer pursuant to established rules and practices relating to employees on furlough or leave of absence in effect with the employer at the time such person was inducted into such forces, and shall not be discharged from such position without cause within one year after such restoration.

"(2) It is hereby declared to be the sense of the Congress that any person who is restored to a position in accordance with the provisions of paragraph (A) or (B) of subsection (b) should be so restored in such manner as to give him such status in his employment as he would have enjoyed if he had continued in such employment con-tinuously from the time of his entering the armed forces until the time of his restoration to such employment.

"(d) In case any private employer fails or refuses to comply with the provisions of subsection (b) or subsection (c) (1), the district court of the United States for the district in which such private employer maintains a place of business shall have power, upon the filing of a motion, petition, or other appropriate pleading by the person entitled to the benefits of such provisions, specifically to require such employer to comply with such provisions and to compensate such person for any loss of wages or benefits suffered by reason of such employer's unlawful action: Provided, That any such compensation shall be in addition to and shall not be deemed to diminish any of the benefits of such provisions. The court shall order speedy hearing in any such case and shall advance it on the calendar. Upon applica-tion to the United States district attorney or comparable official for the district in which such private employer maintains a place of business, by any person claiming to be entitled to the benefits of such provisions, such United States district attorney or official, if reasonably satisfied that the person so applying is entitled to such benefits, shall appear and act as attorney for such person in the amicable adjustment of the claim or in the filing of any motion, petition, or other appropriate pleading and the prosecution thereof specifically to require such employer to comply with such provisions: Provided, That no fees or court costs shall be taxed against any person who may apply for such benefits: Provided further, That only the employer shall be deemed a necessary party respondent to any such action.

"(e) (1) Any person who is entitled to be restored to a position in accordance with the provisions of paragraph (A) of subsection (b) and who was employed, immediately before entering the armed forces, by any agency in the executive branch of the Government or by any Territory or possession, or political subdivision thereof, or by the Dis-trict of Columbia, shall be so restored by such agency or the successor to its functions, or by such Territory, possession, politi-cal subdivision, or the District of Columbia. In any case in which, upon appeal of any person who was employed immediately before entering the armed forces by any agency in the executive branch of the Government or by the District of Columbia, the United States Civil Service Commission finds that-

"(A) such agency is no longer in existence and its functions have not been transferred to any other agency; or

"(B) for any reason it is not feasible for such person to be restored to employment by such agency or by the District of Columbia, the Commission shall determine whether or not there is a position in any other agency in the executive branch of the Government in the government of the District of Columbia for which such person is qualified and which is either vacant or held by a person having a temporary appointment thereto. In any case in which the Commission determines that there is such a position, such person shall be restored to such position by the agency in which such position exists or by the government of the District of Columbia, as the case may be. The Commission is authorized and directed to issue regulations giving full force and effect to the provisions of this section insofar as they relate to persons entitled to be restored to positions in the executive branch of the Government or in the government of the District of Columbia, including persons entitled to be restored under the last sentence of paragraph (2) of this subsection. The agencies in the executive branch of the Government and the government of the District of Columbia shall comply with such rules and regulations and orders issued by the Commission pursuant to this subsection. The Commission is author-ized and directed whenever it finds, upon appeal of the person concerned, that any agency in the executive branch of the Government or the government of the District of Columbia has failed or refuses to comply with the provisions of this section, to issue an order specifically requiring such agency or the government of the District of Co-lumbia to comply with such provisions and to compensate such person for any loss of salary or wages suffered by reason of failure to comply with such provisions, less any amounts received by him through other employment, unemployment compensation, or readjustment allowances: Provided, That any such compensation ordered to be paid by the Commission shall be in addition to and shall not be deemed to diminish any of the benefits of such provisions, and shall be paid by the head of the agency concerned or by the gov-ernment of the District of Columbia out of appropriations currently available for salary and expenses of such agency or government, and such appropriations shall be available for such purpose. As used in this paragraph, the term "agency in the executive branch of the Government" means any department, independent establishment, agency, or corpor ation in the executive branch of the United States Government.

"(2) Any person who is entitled to be re-stored to a position in accordance with the provisions of paragraph (A) of subsection (b) and who was employed, immediately before entering the armed forces, in the legislative branch of the Government, shall so restored by the officer who appointed him to the position which he held immediately before entering the armed forces. In any case in which it is not possible for any such person to be restored to a position in the legislative branch of the Government and he is otherwise eligible to acquire a status for transfer to a position in the classified (competitive) civil service in accordance with section 2 (b) of the Act of November 26, 1940 (54 Stat. 1212), the United States Civil Service Commission shall, upon appeal of such person, determine whether or not there is a position in the executive branch of the Government for which he is qualified and which is either vacant or held by a person having a temporary appointment thereto. In any case in which the Commission determines that there is such a position such person shall be restored to such position by the agency in which such position exists.

"(3) Any person who is entitled to be restored to a position in accordance with the provisions of paragraph (A) of subsection (b) and who was employed, immediately be-fore entering the armed forces, in the judicial branch of the Government, shall be so restored by the officer who appointed him to the position which he held immediately before entering the armed forces.

"(f) In any case in which two or more persons who are entitled to be restored to a position under the provisions of this section or of any other law relating to similar re-employment benefits left the same position in order to enter the armed forces, the person who left such position first shall have the prior right to be restored thereto, without prejudice to the reemployment rights of the other person or persons to be restored.

"(g) (1) Any person who, subsequent to the date of enactment of this title and while it is in effect, enlists in the armed forces of the United States (other than in a reserve component) or the Coast Guard (other than in a reserve component) for not more than three years shall, if such enlistment is his first enlistment in the armed forces or the Coast Guard subsequent to the date of en-actment of this title, be entitled, upon the expiration of his enlistment (including any extension thereof by law but not including any voluntary extension thereof) or upon his discharge under honorable conditions prior to the expiration thereof, to all the reemployment rights and other benefits provided for by this section in the case of inductees.

"(2) Any person who, subsequent to the effective date of this title and while it is in effect, enters upon active duty in the armed forces of the United States, the Coast Guard. or the Public Health Service in response to an order or call to active duty shall, upon his relief from active duty under honorable conditions, be entitled to all of the reemploy-ment rights and benefits provided by this section in the case of inductees, if he is relieved from active duty not later than three years after the date of entering upon active duty or as soon after the expiration of such three years as he is able to obtain orders relieving him from active duty.

"(h) The Secretary of Labor, through the Bureau of Veterans' Reemployment Rights, shall render aid in the replacement in their former positions of persons who have satisfactorily completed any period of active duty in the armed forces of the United States, the Coast Guard, or the Public Health Service. In rendering such aid, the Secretary shall use the then existing Federal and State agencies engaged in similar or related activities and shall utilize the assistance of volunteers.

"(i) Any person inducted into the armed forces for training and service under this title shall, during the period of such service, be permitted to vote in person or by ab-sentee ballot in any general, special, or pri-mary election occurring in the State of which he is a resident, whether he is within or outside such State at the time of such elec-tion, if under the laws of such State he is otherwise entitled so to vote in such election; but nothing in this subsection shall be construed to require granting to any such person a leave of absence or furlough for longer than 1 day in order to permit him to vote in person in any such election. No person inducted into, or enlisted in, the armed forces for training and service under this title shall, during the period of such service, as a condition of voting in any election for President, Vice President, electors for President or Vice President, or for Senator or Member of the House of Representatives, be required to pay any poll tax or other tax or make any other payment to any State or political subdivision thereof.

"(j) The Secretaries of Army, Navy, or Air Force shall furnish to the Selective Service System hereafter established a report of separation for each person separated from active duty.

"THE SELECTIVE SERVICE SYSTEM; CONSTRUCTION; CIVILIAN EMPLOYEES

"SEC. 10. (a) (1) There is hereby established in the executive branch of the Government an agency to be known as the Se-lective Service System, and a Director of Selective Service who shall be the head thereof.

"(2) The Selective Service System shall include a national headquarters, at least one State headquarters in each State, Territory, and possession of the United States, and in the District of Columbia, and the local boards, appeal boards, and other agencies provided for in subsection (b) (3) of this section.

"(3) The Director shall be apopinted by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate. The Director shall receive compensation at the rate of $12,500 per year.

"(4) The functions of the Office of Selective Service Records (established by the Act of March 31, 1947) and of the Director of the Office of Selective Service Records are hereby transferred to the Selective Service

System and the Director of Selective Service, respectively. The personnel, property, rec-ords and unexpended balances (available or to be made available) of appropriations, allocations, and other funds of the Office of Selective Service Records are hereby transferred to the Selective Service System. Office of Selective Service Records shall cease to exist upon the taking of effect of the provisions of this title: Provided, That, effective upon the termination of this title and notwithstanding such termination in other respects, (A) the said Office of Selective Service Records is hereby reestablished on the same basis and with the same functions as obtained prior to the effective date of this title, (B) said reestablished Office shall be responsible for liquidating any other outstanding affairs of the Selective Service System, and (C) the personnel, property, rec-ords, and unexpended balances (available or to be made available) of appropriations, allocations, and other funds of the Selective Service System shall be transferred to such reestablished Office of Selective Service Rec-

"(b) The President is authorized-

"(1) to prescribe the necessary rules and regulations to carry out the provisions of this title:

"(2) to appoint, upon recommendation of the respective governor or comparable executive official, a State director of the Selective Service System for each headquarters in each State, Territory, and possession of the United States and for the District of Columbia, who shall represent the governor and be in immediate charge of the State headquarters of the Selective Service System; to employ such number of civilians, and to order to active duty with their consent and to assign to the Selective Service System such officers of the selective-service section of the State headquarters and headquarters detachments and such other officers of the federally recognized National Guard of the United States or other armed forces personnel (including personnel of the Reserve com-ponents thereof), as may be necessary for the administration of the national and of the several State headquarters of the Selective Service System;

"(3) to create and establish within the Selective Service System civilian local boards, civilian appeal boards, and such other civilian agencies, including agencies of appeal, as may be necessary to carry out its functions with respect to the registration, examination, classification, selection, assignment, delivery for induction, and maintenance of records of persons registered under this title, together with such other duties as may be assigned under this title. He shall create and establish one or more local boards in each county or political subdivision cor-responding thereto of each State, Territory, and possession of the United States, and in the District of Columbia. Each local board shall consist of three or more members to be appointed by the President from recommendations made by the respective governors or comparable executive officials: Provided, That an intercounty local board consisting of at least one member from each component county or corresponding subdivision may be established for an area not exceeding five counties or political subdivisions corresponding thereto within a State or comparable jurisdiction when the President determines, after considering the public interest involved and the recommendation of the Governor or comparable executive official or officials, that the establishment of such local board area will result in a more efficient and economical operation. Any such intercounty local board shall have within its area the same power and jurisdiction as a local board has in its area. No member of any local board shall be a member of the armed forces of the United States, but each member of any local board shall be a civilian who is a citizen of the United States residing in the county or political subdivision corresponding thereto in which such local board has jurisdiction, and each intercounty local board shall have at least one member from each county or political subdivision corresponding thereto included within the intercounty local board Such local boards, under rules and regulations prescribed by the President, shall have the power within their respective juris-dictions to hear and determine, subject to the right of appeal to the appeal boards herein authorized, all questions or claims with respect to inclusion for, or exemption of deferment from, training and service under this title, of all individuals within the jurisdiction of such local boards. The decisions of such local board shall be final, except where an appeal is authorized and is taken in accordance with such rules and regulations as the President may prescribe. There shall be at least one appeal board for each State. Appeal boards within the Selective Service System shall be composed of civilians who are citizens of the United States and who are not members of the armed forces. The decision of such appeal boards shall be final in cases before them on appeal unless modified or changed by the President. The President, upon appeal or upon his own motion, shall have power to determine all claims or questions with respect to inclusion for, or exemption or deferment from training and service under this title, and the determination of the President shall be final. No person who is a civilian officer, member, agent, or employee of the Office of Selective Service Records, or the Selective Service System, or of any local board or appeal board or other agency of such Office or System, shall be excepted from registration or deferred or exempted from training and service, as provided for in this title, by reason of his status as such civilian officer, member, agent, or employee;

"(4) to appoint, and to fix, in accordance with the Classification Act of 1923, as amended, the compensation of, such officers, with the agents, and employees as he may deem necessary to carry out the provisions of this title: Provided, That the compensation of employees of local boards and appeal boards may be fixed without regard to the Classification Act of 1923, as amended: Provided further, That any officer on the active or retired list of the armed forces, or any reserve component thereof with his consent, or any officer or employee of any department or agency of the United States who may be assigned or detailed to any office or position to carry out the provisions of this title (except to offices or positions on local boards or appeal boards established or created pursuant to section 10 (b) (3)) may serve in and perform the functions of such office or position without loss of or prejudice to his status as such officer in the armed forces or reserve component thereof, or as such officer or employee in any department or agency of the United States;

"(5) to utilize the services of any or all departments and any and all officers or agents of the United States, and to accept the services of all officers and agents of the several States, Territories, and possessions, and subdivisions thereof, and the District of Columbia, and of private welfare organizations, in the execution of this title;

"(6) to purchase such printing, binding, and blank-book work from public, commercial, or private printing establishments or binderies upon orders placed by the Public Printer or upon waivers issued in accordance with section 12 of the Printing Act approved January 12, 1895, as amended, and to obtain by purchase, loan, or gift such equipment and supplies for the Selective Service System, as he may deem necessary to carry out the provisions of this title, with or without advertising or formal contract;

"(7) to prescribe eligibility, rules, and regulations governing the parole for service in the armed forces, or for any other special service established pursuant to this title, of any person convicted of a violation of any of the provisions of this title;

"(8) subject to the availability of funds appropriated for such purpose, to procure such space as he may deem necessary to such space as he may deem necessary to carry out the provisions of this title and Public Law 26, Eightleth Congress, approved March 31, 1947, by lease pursuant to existing statutes, except that the provisions of the act of June 30, 1932 (47 Stat. 412), as amended by section 15 of the act of March 3, 1933 (47 Stat. 1517; 40 U. S. C. 278a), shall not apply to any lease entered into under the authority of this title; "(9) subject to the availability of tunds

"(9) subject to the availability of funds appropriated for such purposes, to determine the location of such additional temporary installations as he may deem essential; to utilize and enlarge such existing installations; to construct, install, and equip, and to complete the construction, installation, and equipment of such buildings, structures, utilities, and appurtenances (including the necessary grading and removal, repair or remodeling of existing structures and instal-lations), as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this title; and, in order to accomplish the purpose of this title, to acquire lands, and rights pertaining thereto, or other interests therein, for temporary use thereof, by donation or lease, and to prosecute construction thereon prior to the approval of the title by the Attorney General as required by section 355, Revised Statutes, as amended:

"(10) subject to the availability of funds appropriated for such purposes, to utilize, in order to provide and furnish such services as may be deemed necessary or expedient to accomplish the purposes of this title, such personnel of the armed forces and of Reserve components thereof with their consent, and such civilian personnel, as may be necessary. For the purposes of this title, the provisions of section 14 of the Federal Employees' Pay Act of 1946 (Public Law 390, Seventy-ninth Congress) with respect to the maximum limitations as to the number of civilian employees shall not be applicable to the Department of the Army, the Department of the Navy, or the Department of the Air Force.

"(c) The President is authorized to delegate any authority vested in him under this title, and to provide for the subdelega-tion of any such authority.

"(d) In the administration of this title, gifts of supplies, equipment, and voluntary services may be accepted.

"(e) The Chief of Finance, United States
Army, is authorized to act as the fiscal, disbursing, and accounting agent of the Director in carrying out the provisions of this title.

"(f) The Director is authorized to make final settlement of individual claims, for amounts not exceeding $50, for travel and other expenses of uncompensated personnel of the Office of Selective Service Records, or the Selective Service System, incurred while in the performance of official duties, with-out regard to other provisions of law governing the travel of civilian employees of the Federal Government

"EMERGENCY MEDICAL CARE

"SEC. 11. Under such rules and regulations as may be prescribed by the President, funds available to carry out the provisions of this title shall also be available for the payment of actual and reasonable expenses of emergency medical care, including hospitalization, of registrants who suffer illness or injury, and the transportation, and burial of the remains of registrants who suffer death, while acting under orders issued under the provisions of this title, but such burial expenses shall not exceed $150 in any one case.

"Sec. 12. (a) Any member of the Selective Service System or any other person charged as herein provided with the duty of carrying out any of the provisions of this title, or the rules or regulations made or directions given thereunder, who shall knowingly fail or neglect to perform such duty, and any person charged with such duty, or having and exercising any authority under said title, rules, regulations, or directions who shall knowingly make, or be a party to the making, of any false, improper, or incorrect registration, classification, physical, or men-tal examination, deferment, induction, enrollment, or muster, and any person who shall knowingly make, or be a party to the making of, any false statement or certificate regarding or bearing upon a classification or in support of any request for a particular classification, for service under the provisions of this title, or rules, regulations, or directions made pursuant thereto, or who otherwise evades or refuses registration or service in the armed forces or any of the requirements of this title, or who knowingly counsels, aids, or abets another to refuse or evade registration or service in the armed forces or any of the requirements of this title, or of said rules, regulations, or directions, or who in any manner shall knowingly fail or neglect or refuse to perform any duty required of him under or in the execution of this title, or rules, regulations, or directions made pursuant to this title, or any person or persons who shall knowingly hinder or interfere or attempt to do so in any way, by force or violence or otherwise, with the administration of this title or the rules or regulations made pursuant thereto, or who conspires to commit any one or more of such offenses, shall, upon conviction in any district court of the United States of competent jurisdiction, be punished by imprisonment for not more than 5 years or a fine of not more than $10,000, or by both such fine and imprisonment, or if subject to military or naval law may be tried by court martial, and, on conviction, shall suffer such punishment as a court martial may direct. No person shall be tried by court martial in any case arising under this title unless such person has been actually in-ducted for the training and service prescribed under this title or unless he is subject to trial by court martial under laws in force prior to the enactment of this title. Precedence shall be given by courts to the trial of cases arising under this title, and such cases shall, upon request of the Attorney General, be advanced on the docket for immediate hearing, "(b) Any person (1) who knowingly transfers or delivers to another, for the purpose of aiding or abetting the making of any false identification or representation, any registration certificate, alien's certificate of nonresidence, or any other certificate issued pursuant to or prescribed by the provisions of this title, or rules or regulations promulgated hereunder; or (2) who, with intent that it be used for any purpose of false iden-tification or representation, has in his possession any such certificate not duly issued to him; or (3) who forges, alters, or in any manner changes any such certificate or any notation duly and validly inscribed thereon; or (4) who, with intent that it be used for any purpose of false identification or representation, photographs, prints, or in any manner makes or executes any engraving, photograph, print, or impression in the likeness of any such certificate, or any colorable imitation thereof; or (5) who has in his possession any certificate purporting to be a certificate issued pursuant to this title, or rules and regulations promulgated hereunder, which he knows to be falsely made, reproduced, forged, counterfeited, or altered; or (6) who knowingly violates or evades any of the provisions of this title or rules and regulations promulgated pursuant thereto relating to the issuance, transfer, or possession of such certificate, shall, upon convic-tion, be fined not to exceed $10,000 or be imprisoned for not more than five years, or both, Whenever on trial for a violation of this subsection the defendant is shown to have or to have had possession of any certificate not duly issued to him, such possession shall be deemed sufficient evidence to establish an intent to use such certificate for purposes of false identification or representation, unless the defendant explains such possession to the satisfaction of the jury.

"NONAPPLICABILITY OF CERTAIN LAWS

"SEC. 13. (a) Nothing in section 109 or 113 of the Criminal Code (U.S. C., title 18, secs 198 and 203), in section 190 of the Revised Statutes (U. S. C., title 5, sec. 99), in section 19 (e) of the Contract Settlement Act of 1944 (U. S. C., title 41, sec. 119 (e)), or in the second sentence of subsection (a) of section 9 of the Act of August 2, 1939 (53 Stat. 1148), entitled "An act to prevent pernicious political activities", as amended, shall be deemed to apply to any person because of his ap-pointment under authority of this title or the regulations made pursuant thereto, as an uncompensated official of the Selective Service System, or as an individual to conduct hearings on appeals of persons claiming exemption from combatant or noncombatant training because of conscientious objections.

"(b) All functions performed under this title shall be excluded from the operation of the Administrative Procedure Act (60 Stat. 237) except as to the requirements of section 3 of such Act.

"(c) In computing the lump-sum payments made to Air Force reserve officers under the provisions of section 2 of the Act of June 16, 1936, as amended (U. S. C., title 10, sec. 300a), and to reserve officers of the Navy or to their beneficiaries under section 12 of the Act of August 4, 1942, as amended (U. S. C., title 34, sec. 850k), no credit shall be allowed for any period of active service performed from the effective date of this title to the date on which this title shall cease to be effective. Each such lump-sum payment shall be prorated for a fractional part of a year of active service in the case of any reserve officer subject to the provisions of either such section, if such reserve officer performs continuous active service for one or more years (inclusive of such service performed during the period in which this title is effective) and such active service includes a fractional part of a year immediately prior to the effective date of this title, or immediately following the date on which this title shall cease to be effective, or both.

"CIVIL RELIEF

"Sec. 14. Notwithstanding the provisions of section 604 of the Act of October 17, 1940 (54 Stat. 1191), and the provisions of section 4 of the Act of July 25, 1947 (Public Law 239, Eightieth Congress), all of the provisions of the Soldiers' and Sailors' Civil Relief Act of 1940, as amended, including specifically article IV thereof, shall be applicable to all persons in the armed forces of the United States, including all persons inducted into the armed forces pursuant to this title, the Coast Guard, or the Public Health Service, until such time as the Soldiers' and Sailors Civil Relief Act of 1940, as amended, is repealed or otherwise terminated by subsequent Act of the Congress: Provided, That, with respect to persons inducted into the armed forces while this title is in effect, wherever under any section or provision of the Sol-diers' and Sailors' Civil Relief Act of 1940, as amended, a proceeding, remedy, privilege, stay, limitation, accounting, or other transaction has been authorized or provided with respect to military service performed while such Act is in force, such section or provision shall be deemed to continue in full force and effect so long as may be necessary to the exercise or enjoyment of such proceeding, remedy, privilege, stay, limitation, accounting, or other transaction.

"NOTICE OF TITLE; VOLUNTARY ENLISTMENTS

"SEC. 15. (a) Every person shall be deemed to have notice of the requirements of this title upon publication by the President of a proclamation or other public notice fixing a time for any registration under section 3.

"(b) It shall be the duty of every registrant to keep his local board informed as to his current address and changes in status as required by such rules and regulations as may be prescribed by the President. "(c) If any provision of this title, or the application thereof to any person or circumstance, is held invalid, the remainder of the title, and the application of such provision to other persons or circumstances, shall not be affected thereby.

"(d) Except as provided in section 4 or section 4 (g), nothing contained in this title shall be construed to repeal, amend, or suspend the laws now in force authorizing voluntary enlistment or reenlistment in the armed forces of the United States, including the reserve components thereof, except that no person shall be accepted for enlistment after he has received orders to report for induction and except that, whenever the Congress or the President has declared that the national interest is imperiled, voluntary enlistment or reenlistment in such forces, and their reserve components, may be sus-pended by the President to such extent as he may deem necessary in the interest of national defense.

Any person with whom an order is placed pursuant to the provisions of this section shall be advised that such order is placed pursuant to the provisions of this section. Under any such program of national procurement, the President shall recognize the valid claim of American small business to participate in such contracts, in such manufactures, and in such distribution of materials, and small business shall be granted a fair share of the orders placed, exclusively for the use of the armed forces or for other Federal agencies now or here-after designated in this section. For the purposes of this section, a business enterprise shall be determined to be "small business" if (1) its position in the trade or industry of which it is a part is not dominant,
(2) the number of its employees does not exceed 500, and (3) it is independently owned and operated.

"(b) It shall be the duty of any person with whom an order is placed pursuant to the provisions of subsection (a), (1) to give such order such precedence with respect all other orders (Government or private) theretofore or thereafter placed with such person as the President may prescribe, and (2) to fill such order within the period of time prescribed by the President or as soon thereafter as possible.

"(c) In case any person with whom an order is placed pursuant to the provisions of subsection (a) refuses or fails

"(1) to give such order such precedence with respect to all other orders (Government or private) theretofore or thereafter placed with such person as the President may have prescribed;

"(2) to fill such order within the period of time prescribed by the President or as soon thereafter as possible as determined by the President:

"(3) to produce the kind or quality of articles or materials ordered; or

"(4) to furnish the quantity, kind, and quality of articles or materials ordered at such price as shall be negotiated between such person and the Government agency concerned; or in the event of failure to negotiate a price, to furnish the quantity, kind, and quality of articles or materials ordered at such price as he may subsequently be deter-mined to be entitled to receive under subsection (d);

the President is authorized to take immediats possession of any plant, mine, or other facility of such person and to operate it, through any Government agency, for the production of such articles or materials as may be required by the Government.

"(d) Fair and just compensation shall be paid by the United States (1) for any articles or materials furnished pursuant to an order placed under subsection (a), or (2) as rental for any plant, mine, or other facility of which possession is taken under subsection (c).

"(e) Nothing contained in this section shall be deemed to render inapplicable to any plant, mine, or facility of which possession is taken pursuant to subsection (c) any State or Federal laws concerning the health, safety, security, or employment standards of em-

"(f) Any person, or any officer of any person as defined in this section, who willfully fails or refuses to carry out any duty imposed upon him by subsection (b) of this section shall be guilty of a felony and, upon conviction thereof, shall be punished by imprisonment for not more than three years, or by a fine of not more than $50,000, or by both such imprisonment and fine.

"(g) (1) As used in this section—
"(A) The term 'person' means any individual, firm, company, association, corporation, or other form of business organization.

(B) The term 'Government agency' means any department, agency, independent establishment, or corporation in the Executive branch of the United States Government.

"(2) For the purposes of this section, a plant, mine, or other facility shall be deemed capable of producing any articles or materials if it is then producing or furnishing such articles or materials or if the President after consultation with and receiving advice from the National Security Resources Board de-termines that it can be readily converted to the production or furnishing of such articles or materials.

"(h) (1) The President is empowered, through the Secretary of Defense, to require all producers of steel in the United States to make available, to individuals, firms, associations, companies, corporations, or organ-ized manufacturing industries having orders for steel products of steel materials required by the armed forces, such percentages of the steel production of such producers, in equal proportion deemed necessary for the expeditious execution of orders for such products or materials. Compliance with such requirement shall be obligatory on all such producers of steel and such requirement shall take precedence over all orders and contracts theretofore placed with such producers. any such producer of steel or the responsible head or heads thereof refuses to comply with such requirement, the President, through the Secretary of Defense, is authorized to take immediate possession of the plant or plants of such producer and, through the appropriate branch, bureau, or department of the armed forces, to insure compliance with such requirement. Any such producer of steel or the responsible head or heads thereof refusing to comply with such requirement shall be deemed guilty of a felony and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by imprisonment for not more than three years and a fine not exceeding $50,000.

"(2) The President shall report to the Congress on the final day of each six-month eriod following the date of enactment of this Act the percentage figure, or if such information is not available, the approximate percentage figure, of the total steel production in the United States required to be made available during such period for the execu-tion of orders for steel products and steel materials required by the armed forces, if such percentage figure is in excess of 10 per centum.

"Sec. 201. The Articles of War (41 Stat. 787 to 811, as amended) are hereby amended as follows:

"Article 1 is amended to read as follows: "'(a) The word "officer" shall be construed to refer to a commissioned officer.

"'(b) The word "soldier" shall be construed as including a noncommissioned officer, a private, or any other enlisted man or woman.
"'(c) The word "company" shall be construed as including a troop, battery, or corresponding unit of the ground or air forces.

'(d) The word "battalion" shall be construed as including a squadron or corresponding unit of the ground or air forces.

"'(e) The word "cadet" shall be construed to refer to a cadet of the United States Military Academy.'
"Sec. 202. Article 2, subparagraph (a), is amended to read as follows:

'(a) All officers, warrant officers, and soldiers belonging to the Regular Army of the United States; all volunteers, from the dates of their muster or acceptance into the mili-tary service of the United States; and all other persons lawfully called, drafted, or ordered into, or to duty or for training in, the said service, from the dates they are required by the terms of the call, draft, or order to obey the same;'

"SEC. 203. Article 4 is amended to read as follows:

"'ART. 4. Who May Serve on Courts-Martial: All officers in the military service of the United States, and officers of the Marine Corps when detached for service with the Army by order of the President, shall be competent to serve on courts-martial for the trial of any persons who may lawfully be brought before such courts for trial.

"'All warrant officers in the active military service of the United States and war-rant officers in the active military service of the Marine Corps when detached for service with the Army by order of the President, shall be competent to serve on general and special courts martial for the trial of warrant officers and enlisted persons, and persons in this category, shall be detailed for such service when deemed proper by the appointing authority.

"'Enlisted persons in the active military service of the United States or in the active military service of the Marine Corps when detached for service with the Army by order of the President, shall be competent to serve on general and special courts martial for the trial of enlisted persons when requested in writing by the accused at any time prior to the convening of the court. When so request no enlisted person shall, without his consent, be tried by a court the membership of which does not include enlisted persons to the number of at least one third of the total membership of the court.

"'When appointing courts-martial the appointing authority shall detail as members thereof those officers of the command and when eligible those enlisted persons of the command who, in his opinion, are best qualified for the duty by reason of age, training, experience, and judicial temperament; and officers and enlisted persons having less than two years' service shall not, if it can be avoided without manifest injury to the service, be appointed as members of courts-martial in excess of minority membership thereof. No person shall be eligible to sit as a member of a general or special court-martial when he is the accuser or a witness for the prosecution.'

'SEC. 204. Article 5 is amended to read as

"'ART. 5. General Courts-Martial: General courts-martial may consist of any number of members not less than five.'

"SEC. 205. Article 6 is amended to read as

"'ART. 6. Special Courts-Martial: Special courts-martial may consist of any number of members not less than three.' "SEC. 206. Article 8 is amended to read as

"'ART. 8. General Courts-Martial: The President of the United States, the commanding officer of a Territorial department, the Superintendent of the Military Academy, the commanding officer of an Army group, an Army, an Army corps, a division, a separate brigade, or corresponding unit of the Ground or Air Forces, or any command to which a member of the Judge Advocate General's Department is assigned as staff judge advocate, as prescribed in article 47, and, when empowered by the President, the commanding officer of any district or of any force or body of troops may appoint general courtsmartial; but when any such commander is the accuser or the prosecutor of the person or persons to be tried, the court shall be appointed by superior competent authority, and may in any case be appointed by superior authority when by the latter deemed desirable. "'The authority appointing a general court-martial shall detail as one of the members thereof a law member who shall be an officer of the Judge Advocate General's Department or an officer who is a member of the bar of a Federal court or of the highest court of a State of the United States and certified by the Judge Advocate General to be qualified for such detail: Provided, That no general court-martial shall receive evidence or vote upon its findings or sentence in the absence of the law member regularly detailed. The law member, in addition to his duties as a member, shall perform the duties prescribed in article 31 hereof and such other duties as the President may by regulations prescribe.

"Sec. 207. Article 9 is amended to read as follows:

"'ART. 9. Special Courts-Martial: The commanding officer of a district, garrison, fort, camp, station, or other place where troops are on duty, and the commanding officer of an Army group, an Army, an Army corps, a division, brigade, regiment, detached bat-talion, or corresponding unit of Ground or Air Forces, and the commanding officer of any other detached command or group of detached units placed under a single commander for this purpose may appoint special courts-martial; but when any such commanding officer is the accuser or the prosecutor of the person or persons to be tried, the court shall be appointed by superior authority, and may in any case be appointed by superior authority when by the latter deemed desirable.'

"SEC. 208. Article 11 is amended to read as follows:

"'ART. 11. Appointment or Trial Judge Advocates and Counsel: For each general or special court-martial the authority appointing the court shall appoint a trial judge advocate and a defense counsel, and one or more assistant trial judge advocates and one or more assistant defense counsel when necessary: Provided, That the trial judge advocate and defense counsel of each general court-martial shall, if available, be members of the Judge Advocate General's Department or officers who are members of the bar of a Federal court or of the highest court of a State of the United States: Provided further, That in all cases in which the officer ap-pointed as trial judge advocate shall be a member of the Judge Advocate General's De-partment, or an officer who is a member of the bar of a Federal court or of the highest court of a State, the officer appointed as de-fense counsel shall likewise be a member of the Judge Advocate General's Department or an officer who is a member of the bar of a Federal court or of the highest court of a State of the United States: Provided further, That when the accused is represented by counsel of his own selection and does not desire the presence of the regularly appointed defense counsel or assistant defense counsel, the latter may be excused by the president of the court: Provided further, That no person who has acted as member, trial judge advocate, assistant trial judge advocate or investigating officer in any case shall subse-quently act in the same case as defense counsel or assistant defense counsel unless expressly requested by the accused: Provided further, That no person who has acted as member, defense counsel, assistant defense counsel, or investigating officer in any case shall subsequently act in the same case as a member of the prosecution: Provided further, That no person who has acted as member, trial judge advocate, assistant trial judge advocate, defense counsel, assistant defense counsel, or investigating officer in any case shall subsequently act as a staff judge advocate to the reviewing or confirming authority upon the same case.

"SEC. 209. Article 12 is amended to read as follows:

"'ART. 12. General Courts-Martial: General courts-martial shall have power to try any person subject to military law for any crime or offense made punishable by these articles, and any other person who by the law of war is subject to trial by military tribu-nals: Provided, That general courts-martial shall have power to adjudge any punishment authorized by law or the custom of the service including a bad-conduct discharge.

"SEC. 210. Article 13 is amended to read as follows:

"'ART. 13. Special Courts-Martial: Special courts-martial shall have power to try any person subject to military law for any crime or offense not capital made punishable by these articles: Provided, That the officer competent to appoint a general court-martial for the trial of any particular case may, when in his judgment the interests of the service so require, cause any case to be tried by a special court-martial notwithstanding the limita-tions upon the jurisdiction of the special court-martial as to offenses herein prescribed.

"'Special courts-martial shall not have power to adjudge dishonorable discharge or dismissal, or confinement in excess of six months, nor to adjudge forfeiture of more than two-thirds pay per month for a period of not exceeding six months: Provided, That subject to approval of the sentence by an officer exercising general court-martial juris-diction and subject to appellate review by The Judge Advocate General and appellate agencies in his office, a special court-martial may adjudge a bad-conduct discharge in addition to other authorized punishment: Provided further, That a bad-conduct discharge shall not be adjudged by a special courtmartial unless a complete record of the pro-ceedings of and testimony taken by the court is taken in the case.'

"SEC. 211. Article 14 is amended to read as follows:

" 'ART. 14. Summary Courts-Martial: Summary courts-martial shall have power to try any person subject to military law, except an officer, a warrant officer, or a cadet, for any crime or offense not capital made punishable these articles: Provided, That noncommissioned officers shall not, if they object thereto, be brought to trial before a summary court-martial without the authority of the officer competent to bring them to trial before a special court-martial: Provided fur-ther, That the President may, by regulations, except from the jurisdiction of summary courts-martial any class or classes of persons subject to military law.

"Summary courts-martial shall not have power to adjudge confinement in excess of one month, restriction to limits for more than three months, or forfeiture or detention of more than two-thirds of one month's pay.' "SEC. 212. Article 16 is amended to read as follows:

"ART. 16. Persons in the Military Service How Triable: Officers shall be triable only by general and special courts-martial and in no case shall a person in the military service, when it can be avoided, be tried by persons inferior to him in rank. No enlisted person may sit as a member of a court-martial for the trial of another enlisted person who is assigned to the same company or corresponding military unit.

'No person subject to military law shall be confined with enemy prisoners or any other foreign nationals outside of the continental limits of the United States, nor shall any defendant awaiting trial be made sub-ject to punishment or penalties other than confinement prior to sentence on charges against him.'

"SEC. 213. Article 22 is amended to read as follows:

"'ART. 22. Process to Obtain Witnesses: Every trial judge advocate of a general or special court-martial and every summary court-martial shall have power to issue the like process to compel witnesses to appear and testify which courts of the United States having criminal jurisdiction may lawfully issue; but such process shall run to any part of the United States, its Territories, and possessions. Witnesses for the defense shall be subpensed, upon request by the defense counsel, through process issued by the trial judge advocate, in the same manner as witnesses for the prosecution.'

"SEC. 214. Article 24 is amended to read as

"'ART. 24. Compulsory Self-Incrimination Prohibited: No witness before a military court, commission, court of inquiry, or board, or before any officer conducting an investi-gation, or before any officer, military or civil, designated to take a deposition to be read in evidence before a military court, commission, court of inquiry, or board, or before an officer conducting an investigation, shall be compelled to incriminate himself or to answer any question the answer to which may tend to incriminate him or to answer any question not material to the issue or when such answer might tend to degrade him, "'The use of coercion or unlawful influence in any manner whatsoever by any person to obtain any statement, admission, or confession from any accused person or witness, shall be deemed to be conduct to the prejudice of good order and military discipline, and no such statement, admission, or confession shall be received in evidence by any court-martial. It shall be the duty of any person in obtaining any statement from an accused to advise him that he does not have to make any statement at all regarding the offense of which he is accused or being investigated, and that any statement by the accused may be used as evidence against him in a trial by court-martial.

"SEC. 215. Article 25 is amended to read as

"'ART. 25. Depositions—When Admissible: A duly authenticated deposition taken upon reasonable notice to the opposite party may be read in evidence before any military court or commission in any case not capital, or in any proceeding before a court of inquiry or a military board, if such deposition be taken when the witness resides, is found, or is about to go beyond the State, Territory, or district in which the court, commission, or board is ordered to sit, or beyond the dis-tance of one hundred miles from the place of trial or hearing, or when it appears to the satisfaction of the court, commission, board, or appointing authority that the witness, by reason of age, sickness, bodily infirmity, imprisonment, or other reasonable cause, is unable to, or, in foreign places, because of nonamenability to process, refuses to, appear and testify in person at the place of trial or hearing: Provided, That testimony by deposition may be adduced for the defense in capital cases: Provided further, That a deposition may be read in evidence in any case in which the death penalty is authorized by law but is not mandatory, whenever the appointing authority shall have directed that the case be treated as not capital, and in such a case a sentence of death may not be adjudged by the court-martial: And provided further, That at any time after charges have been signed as provided in article 46, and before the charges have been referred for trial, any authority competent to appoint a court-martial for the trial of such charges may designate officers to represent the prosecution and the defense and may authorize such officers, upon due notice, to take the deposition of any witness, and such deposition may subsequently be received in evidence as in other cases

"SEC. 216. Article 31 is amended to read as follows:

'ART. 31. Method of Voting: Voting by members of a general or special court-martial upon questions of challenge, on the findings, and on the sentence shall be by secret written ballot. The junior member of the court shall in each case count the votes, which count shall be checked by the president, who shall forthwith announce the result of the ballot to the members of the court. The law member of a general court-martial or the president of a special court-martial, shall rule in open court upon interlocutory questions, other than challenge, arising during the proceedings: Provided, That unless such ruling be made by the law member of a general court-martial, if any member object thereto, the court shall be closed and closed and the the court shall be cleared and closed and the question decided by a majority vote, viva voce, beginning with the junior in rank: And provided further, That any such ruling made by the law member of a general courtupon any interlocutory question other than a motion for a finding of not guilty, or the question of accused's sanity, shall be final and shall constitute the ruling of the court; but the law member may in any case consult with the court, in closed session. before making a ruling, and may change any ruling made at any time during the trial. It shall be the duty of the law member of a general or the president of a special court-martial before a vote is taken to advise the court that the accused must be presumed to be innocent until his guilt is established by legal and competent evidence beyond a reasonable doubt, and that in the case being considered, if there is a reasonable doubt as to the guilt of the accused, the doubt shall be resolved in the accused's favor and he shall be acquitted; if there is a reasonable doubt as to the degree of guilt, the finding must be in a lower degree as to which there is no such doubt; that the burden of proof to establish the guilt of the accused is upon the Government

'SEC. 217. Article 36 is amended to read as follows:

" 'ART. 36. Disposition of Records-Special and Summary Courts-Martial: After having been acted upon by the officer appointing the court, or by the officer commanding for the time being, the record of each trial by special court-martial and a report of each trial by summary court-martial shall be transmitted to the headquarters of the officer exercising general court-martial jurisdiction over the command, there to be filed in the office of the staff judge advocate: Provided, however, That each record of trial by special courtmartial in which the sentence, as approved by the appointing authority, includes a bad-conduct discharge, shall, if approved by the officer exercising general court-martial jurisdiction under the provisions of article 47, be forwarded by him to The Judge Advocate General for review as hereinafter in these articles provided. When no longer of use, records of summary courts-martial may be destroyed as provided by law governing destruction of Government records.'

"SEC. 218. Article 38 is amended to read as

"'ART. 38. President May Prescribe Rules: The President may, by regulations, which he may modify from time to time, prescribe the procedure, including modes of proof, in cases before courts-martial, courts of inquiry, military commissions, and other military tribunals, which regulations shall, insofar as he shall deem practicable, apply the principles of law and rules of evidence generally recognized in the trial of criminal cases in the district courts of the United States: Provided, That nothing contrary to or inconsistent with these articles shall be so prescribed: Provided further, That all rules and regulations made in pursuance of this Article shall be laid before the Congress.'
"SEC. 219. Article 39 is amended to read

as follows:

"'ART. 39. As to Time: Except for desertion or absence without leave committed in time of war, or for mutiny or murder, no person subject to military law shall be liable to be tried or punished by a court-martial for any crime or offense committed more than two years before arraignment of such person: Provided, That for desertion in time of peace, rape or for any crime or offense punishable under articles 93 and 94 of this code the period of limitations upon trial and punish-ment by court-martial shall be three years: Provided further, That the period of any absence of the accused from the jurisdiction of the United States, and also any period during which by reason of some manifest impedi-ment the accused shall not have been amenable to military justice, shall be excluded in computing the aforesaid periods of limitation: Provided further, That this article shall not have the effect to authorize the trial or punishment for any crime or of-fense barred by the provisions of existing law: And provided further, That in the case of any offense the trial of which in time of war shall be certified by the Secretary of the Department of the Army to be detrimental to the prosecution of the war or inimical to the Nation's security, the period of limitations herein provided for the trial of the said of-fense shall be extended to the duration of the war and six months thereafter.

"Sec. 220. Article 43 is amended to read as follows:

"'ART. 43. Death Sentence—When Lawful; Vote on Findings and Sentence: No person shall, by general court-martial, be convicted of an offense for which the death penalty is made mandatory by law, nor sentenced to suffer death, except by the concurrence of all the members of said court-martial present at the time the vote is taken, and offense in these articles expressly made punishable by death; nor sentenced to life im-prisonment, nor to confinement for more than ten years, except by the concurrence of three-fourths of all the members present at the time the vote is taken. Conviction of any offense for which the death sentence is not mandatory and any sentence to con-finement not in excess of ten years, whether by general or special court-martial, may be determined by a two-thirds vote of those members present at the time the vote is taken. All other questions shall be determined by a majority vote.'

follows:
"'ART. 44. Officers—Reduction to Ranks: When a sentence to dismissal may lawfully be adjudged in the case of an officer the sentence may in time of war, under such regulations as the President may prescribe, adjudge in lieu thereof reduction to the grade of private.'
"Sec. 222. Article 46 is amended to read as follows:

"'ART. 46. Charges; Action Upon:

"'a, Signature; oath: Charges and specifications must be signed by a person subject to military law, and under oath either that he has personal knowledge of, or has investigated, the matters set forth therein and that the same are true in fact, to the best of his knowledge and belief.

"'b. Investigation: No charge will be re-ferred to a general court-martial for trial until after a thorough and impartial investigation thereof shall have been made. This investigation will include inquiries as to the truth of the matter set forth in said charges, form of charges, and what disposition of the case should be made in the interest of justice and discipline. The accused shall be permitted, upon his request, to be represented at such investigation by counsel of his own selection, civil counsel if he so provides, or military if such counsel be reasonably available; otherwise by counsel appointed by the officer exercising general courts martial juris-diction over the command. At such investigation full opportunity shall be given to the accused to cross-examine witnesses against him if they are available and to present anything he may desire in his own behalf, either in defense or mitigation, and the investigating officer shall examine available witnesses requested by the accused. If the charges are forwarded after such investigation they shall be accompanied by a statement of the substance of the testimony taken on both sides.

"'c. Forwarding charges; delays; service of charges: When a person is held for trial by general court-martial, the commanding offi-cer will, within eight days after the accused is arrested or confined, if practicable, forward the charges to the officer exercising general court-martial jurisdiction and furnish the accused a copy of such charges. If the same be not practicable, he will report to superior authority the reasons for delay. The trial judge advocate will cause to be served upon the accused a copy of the charges upon which trial is to be had, and a failure so to serve such charges will be ground for a continuance unless the trial be had on the charges furnished the accused as hereinbefore pro-vided. In time of peace no person shall, against his objection be brought to trial before a general court-martial within a period of five days subsequent to the service of charges upon him.'
"Sec. 223. Article 47 is amended to read

as follows:

"'ART. 47. Action by Convening Authority:
"'a. Assignment of judge advocates; channels of communication: All members of the Judge Advocate General's Department will be assigned as prescribed by The Judge Advocate General after appropriate consulta-tions with commanders on whose staffs they may serve; and The Judge Advocate General or senior members of his staff will make frequent inspections in the field in supervision of the administration of military justice. Convening authorities will at all times communicate directly with their staff judge advocates in matters relating to the adminis-tration of military justice; and the staff judge advocate of any command is authorized to communicate directly with the staff judge advocate of a superior or subordinate command, or with The Judge Advocate Gen-

"'b. Reference for trial: Before directing the trial of any charge by general court-martial the convening authority will refer it to his staff judge advocate for considera-tion and advice; and no charge will be referred to a general court-martial for trial unless it has been found that a thorough and impartial investigation thereof has been made as prescribed in the preceding article, that such charge is legally sufficient to allege an offense under these articles, and is sustained by evidence indicated in the report of investigation.

"'c. Action on record of trial: Before acting upon a record of trial by general court-martial or military commission, or a record of trial by special court-martial in which a bad-conduct discharge has been adjudged and approved by the authority appointing the court, the reviewing authority will refer it to his staff judge advocate or to The Judge Advocate General for review and advice; and no sentence shall be approved unless upon conviction established beyond reasonable doubt of an offense made punishable by these articles, and unless the record of trial has been found legally sufficient to support it.

"'d. Approval: No sentence of a courtmartial shall be carried into execution until the same shall have been approved by the convening authority: Provided, That no sentence of a special court-martial including a bad-conduct discharge shall be carried into execution until in addition to the approval of the convening authority the same shall have been approved by an officer au-thorized to appoint a general court-martial. "'e. Who may exercise: Action by the convening authority may be taken officer commanding for the time being, by a successor in command, or by any officer exercising general court-martial jurisdiction.

"'f. Powers incident to power to approve: The power to approve the sentence of a court-martial shall include—

"'(1) the power to approve or disapprove a finding of guilty and to approve only so much of a finding of guilty of a particular offense as involves a finding of guilty or a lesser included offense;

"'(2) the power to approve or disapprove the whole or any part of the sentence; and
"'(3) the power to remand a case for rehearing under the provisions of article 52.'
"Sec. 224. Article 48 is amended to read as

"'ART. 48. Confirmation: In addition to the approval required by article 47, confirma-tion is required as follows before the sentence of a court-martial may be carried into execution, namely:

"'a. By the President with respect to any sentence—
"'(1) of death, or
"'(2) involving a general officer:

Provided, That when the President has already acted as approving authority, no additional confirmation by him is necessary; "'b. By the Secretary of the Department of the Army with respect to any sentence not requiring approval or confirmation by the President, when The Judge Advocate General does not concur in the action of the Judicial Council: "'c. By the Judicial Council, with the concurrence of The Judge Advocate General, with respect to any sentence-

"'(1) when the confirming action of the Judicial Council is not unanimous, or when by direction of The Judge Advocate General his participation in the confirming action is required, or

"'(2) involving imprisonment for life, or "'(3) involving the dismissal of an officer other than a general officer, or "'(4) involving the dismissal or suspension of a cadet;

"'d. By the Judicial Council with respect to any sentence in a case transmitted to the Judicial Council under the provisions of article 50 for confirming action.'

"SEC. 225. Article 49 is amended to read as follows:

"'ART. 49. Powers Incident to Power to Confirm: The power to confirm the sentence of a court-martial shall be held to include-

"'a. The power to approve, confirm, or disapprove a finding of guilty, and to approve or confirm so much only of a finding of guilty of a particular offense as involves a finding of guilty of a lesser included offense:

"'b. The power to confirm, disapprove vacate, commute, or reduce to legal limits the whole or any part of the sentence;

"'c. The power to restore all rights, privileges, and property affected by any finding or sentence disapproved or vacated;

"'d. The power to order the sentence to be carried into execution;

"'e. The power to remand the case for a rehearing under the provisions of article 52.

"SEC. 226. Article 50 is amended to read as follows:

"'ART. 50. Appellate Review:

"'a. Board of review; judicial council: The Judge Advocate General shall constitute, in his office, a Board of Review composed of not less than three officers of the Judge Advocate General's Department. He shall also constitute, in his office, a Judicial Council composed of three general officers of the Judge Advocate General's Department; Pro-vided. That the Judge Advocate General may, under exigent circumstances, detail as members of the Judicial Council, for periods not in excess of sixty days, officers of the Judge Advocate General's Department of grades be-low that of general officer.

"'b. Additional boards of review and judicial councils: Whenever necessary, the Judge Advocate General may constitute two or more Boards of Review and Judicial Councils in his office, with equal powers and duties, composed as provided in the first paragraph of this article.

"'c. Branch offices: Whenever the President deems such action necessary, he may direct The Judge Advocate General to establish a branch office, under an Assistant Judge Advocate General who shall be a general officer of The Judge Advocate General's Department, with any distant command, and to establish in such branch office one or more Boards of Review and Judicial Councils composed as provided in the first paragraph of this article. Such Assistant Judge Advocate General and such Board of Review and Judicial Council shall be empowered to perform for that command under the general supervision of The Judge Advocate General, the duties which The Judge Advocate Gen eral and the Board of Review and Judicial Council in his office would otherwise be required to perform in respect of all cases involving sentences not requiring approval or confirmation by the President: Provided, That the power of mitigation and remission shall not be exercised by such Assistant Judge Advocate General or by agencies in his office, but any case in which such action is deemed desirable shall be forwarded to The Judge Advocate General with appropriate recommendations.

"'d. Action by board of review when approval by President or confirming action is required: Before any record of trial in which there has been adjudged a sentence requiring approval or confirmation by the President or confirmation by any other confirm-ing authority is submitted to the President or such other confirming authority, as the case may be, it shall be examined by the Board of Review which shall take action as follows:

"'(1) In any case requiring action by the President, the Board of Review shall submit its opinion in writing, through the Judicial Council which shall also submit its opinion in writing, to the Judge Advocate General, who shall, except as herein otherwise provided, transmit the record and the Board's and Council's opinions, with his recommendations, directly to the Secretary of the Department of the Army for the action of the President: Provided. That the Judicial Council, with the concurrence of the Judge Advocate General shall have powers in respect to holdings of legal insufficiency equal to the powers vested in the Board of Review by subparagraph (3) of this paragraph.

"'(2) In any case requiring confirming action by the Judicial Council with or without the concurrence of the Judge Advocate General, when the Board of Review is of the opinion that the record of trial is legally sufficient to support the sentence it shall submit its opinion in writing to the Judicial Council for appropriate action.

"'(3) When the Board of Review is of the opinion that the record of trial in any case requiring confirming action by the President or confirming action by the Judicial Council is legally insufficient to support the findings of guilty and sentence, or the sentence, or that errors of law have been committed injuriously affecting the substantial rights of the accused, it shall submit its holdings to the Judge Advocate General and when the Judge Advocate General concurs in such holding, such findings and sentence shall thereby be vacated in accord with such holding and the record shall be transmitted by the Judge Advocate General to the appropriate convening authority for a rehearing or such other action as may be proper.

"'(4) In any case requiring confirming action by the President or confirming action by the Judicial Council in which the Board of Review holds the record of trial legally insufficient to support the findings of guilty and sentence, or the sentence, and the Judge Advocate General shall not concur in the holding of the Board of Review, the holding and the record of trial shall be transmitted to the Judicial Council for confirming action or for other appropriate action in a case in which confirmation of the sentence by the President is required under article 48a.

"'e. Action by board of review in cases in-volving dishonorable or bad-conduct discharges or confinement in penitentiary: No authority shall order the execution of any sentence of a court-martial involving dishonorable discharge not suspended, bad-conduct discharge not suspended, or confinement in a penitentiary unless and until the appellate review required by this article shall have been completed and unless and until any confirming action required shall have been completed. Every record of trial by general or special court-martial involving a sentence to dishonorable discharge or badconduct discharge, whether such discharges be suspended or not suspended, and every record of trial by general court-martial in-volving a sentence to confinement in a peni-tentiary, other than records of trial examina-tion of which is required by paragraph d of this article, shall be examined by the Board of Review which shall take action as follows:

"'(1) In any case in which the Board of Review holds the record of trial legally sufficient to support the findings of guilty and sentence, and confirming action is not by the Judge Advocate General or the Board of Review deemed necessary, the Judge Advocate General shall transmit the holding to the convening authority, and such holding shall be deemed final and conclusive.

"'(2) In any case in which the Board of Review holds the record of trial legally suf-ficient to support the findings of guilty and sentence, but modification of the findings of guilty or the sentence is by the Judge Advocate General or the Board of Review deemed necessary to the ends of justice, the holding and the record of trial shall be transmitted to the Judicial Council for confirming

"'(3) In any case in which the Board of Review holds the record of trial legally insufficient to support the findings of guilty and sentence, in whole or in part, and the Judge Advocate General concurs in such holding, the findings and sentence shall thereby be vacated in whole or in part in ac-cord with such holding, and the record shall be transmitted by the Judge Advocate General to the convening authority for rehear-ing or such other action as may be appro-

"'(4) In any case in which the Board of Review holds the record of trial legally in-sufficient to support the findings of guilty and sentence, in whole or in part, and the Judge Advocate General shall not concur in the holding of the Board of Review, the holding and the record of trial shall be transmitted to the Judicial Council for confirming action.

"f. Appellate action in other cases: Every record of trial by general court-martial the appellate review of which is not otherwise provided for by this article shall be examined in the Office of the Judge Advocate General and if found legally insufficient to support the findings of guilty and sentence, in whole or in part, shall be transmitted to the Board of Review for appropriate action in accord with paragraph e of this article.

"'g. Weighing evidence: In the appellate review of records of trials by courts-martial as provided in these articles the Judge Advocate General and all appellate agencies in his office shall have authority to weigh evidence, judge the credibility of witnesses, and determine controverted questions of fact.

"'h. Finality of court-martial judgments: The appellate review of records of trial provided by this article, the confirming action taken pursuant to articles 48 or 49, the proceedings, findings, and sentences of courts-martial as heretofore or hereafter approved, reviewed, or confirmed as required by the Articles of War and all dismissals and discharges heretofore or hereafter carried into execution pursuant to sentences by courts-martial following approval, review, or confirmation as required by the Articles of War, shall be final and conclusive, and orders publishing the proceedings of courts-martial and all action taken pursuant to such pro-ceedings shall be binding upon all departments, courts, agencies, and officers of the United States, subject only to action upon application for a new trial as provided in

"SEC. 227. Article 50½ is rescinded. "SEC. 228. Article 51 is amended to read as

"'ART. 51. Mitigation, Remission, and Sus-pension of Sentences:

'a. At the time ordered executed: The power of the President, the Secretary of the Department of the Army, and any reviewing authority to order the execution of a sentence of a court-martial shall include the power to mitigate, remit, or suspend the whole or any part thereof, except that a death sentence may not be suspended. The Judge Advocate General shall have the power to mitigate, remit, or suspend the whole or any part of a sentence in any case requiring appellate review under article 50 and not requiring approval or confirmation by the President, but the power to mitigate or remit shall be exercised by the Judge Advocate General under the direction of the Secretary of the Department of the Army. The authority which suspends the execution of a sentence may restore the person under sentence to duty during such suspension; and the death or honorable discharge of a person under suspended sentence shall operate as a complete remission of any unexecuted or unremitted part of such sentence.

"'b. Subsequent to the time ordered executed:

'(1) Any unexecuted portion of a sentence other than a sentence of death, including all uncollected forfeitures, adjudged by court-martial may be mitigated, remitted or suspended and any order of suspension may be vacated, in whole or in part, by the military authority competent to appoint, for the command, exclusive of penitentiaries and the United States disciplinary barracks, in which the person under sentence may be, a court of the kind that imposed the sentence, and the same power may be exercised by superior military authority or by the Judge Advocate General under the direc-Judge Advocate General under the direction of the Secretary of the Department of the Army: Provided, That no sentence approved or confirmed by the President shall be mitigated, remitted, or suspended by any authority inferior to the President: And provided further, That no order of suspension of a sentence to dishonorable discharge bad conduct discharge shall be vacated unless and until confirming or appellate action on the sentence has been completed as required by articles 48 and 50.

"'(2) The power to suspend a sentence shall include the power to restore the person affected to duty during such suspension.

"'(3) The power, to mitigate, remit or suspend the sentence or any part thereof in the case of a person confined in the United States disciplinary barracks or in a penitentiary shall be exercised by the Secretary of the Department of the Army or by the Judge Advocate General under the direction of the Secretary of the Department of the Army.

"SEC. 229. Article 52 is amended to read as follows:

"'ART. 52. Rehearings: When any reviewing or confirming authority disapproved a sen-tence or when any sentence is vacated by action of the Board of Review or Judicial Council and the Judge Advocate General, the reviewing or confirming authority or the Judge Advocate General may authorize direct a rehearing. Such rehearing shall take place before a court-martial composed of members not members of the court-martial which first heard the case. Upon such rehearing the accused shall not be tried for any offense of which he was found not guilty by the first court-martial, and no sentence in excess of or more severe than the original sentence shall be enforced unless the sentence be based upon a finding of guilty of an offense not considered upon the merits in the original proceeding.

"SEC. 230. Article 53 is amended to read

"'ART. 53. Petition for New Trial: Under such regulations as the President may pre-scribe, the Judge Advocate General is authorized, upon application of an accused person, and upon good cause shown, in his discretion to grant a new trial, or to vacate a sentence, restore rights, privileges, and property affected by such sentence, and sub-stitute for a dismissal, dishonorable dis-charge, or bad conduct discharge previously executed a form of discharge authorized for administrative issuance, in any court-mar-tial case in which application is made within one year after final disposition of the case upon initial appellate review: Provided, That with regard to cases involving offenses committed during World War II, the application for a new trial may be made within one year after termination of the war, or after its final disposition upon initial appellate review as herein provided, whichever is the later: Provided, That only one such application for a new trial may be entertained with regard to any one case: And provided further, That all action by the Judge Advocate General pursuant to this article, and all proceedings, findings, and sentences on new trials under this article, as approved, reviewed, or confirmed under articles 47, 48, 49, and 50, and all dismissals and discharges carried into execution pursuant to sentences adjudged on new trials and approved, reviewed, or confirmed, shall be final and con-clusive and orders publishing the action of the Judge Advocate General or the proceedings on new trial and all action taken pursuant to such proceedings, shall be binding upon all departments, courts, agencies, and officers of the United States.'

follows:

"'ART. 70. Charges; Action Upon, Unnecessary Delay: When any person subject to military law is placed in arrest or confinement immediate steps will be taken to try the person accused or to dismiss the charge and release him. Any officer who is responsible for unnecessary delay in investigating or carrying the case to a final conclusion shall be punished as a court-martial may direct.'

"SEC. 232. Article 85 is amended to read

as follows:

"'ART. 85. Drunk on Duty: Any person subject to military law, who is found drunk on duty, shall be punished as a court-martial may direct.'

follows:

"'ART. 88. Unlawfully Influencing Action of Court: No authority appointing a general, special, or summary court-martial nor any other commanding officer, shall censure, reprimand, or admonish such court, or any member thereof, with respect to the findings or sentence adjudged by the court, or with respect to any other exercise, by such court or any member thereof, of its or his judicial responsibility. No person subject to military law shall attempt to coerce or unlawfully influence the action of a court-martial or any military court or commission, or any member thereof, in reaching the findings or sentence in any case, or the action of an appointing or reviewing or confirming authority with respect to his judicial acts.'

"SEC. 234. Article 89 is amended to read as follows:

"'ART. 89. Good Order To Be Maintained and Wrongs Redressed: All persons subject to military law are to behave themselves orderly in quarters, garrison, camp, and on the march; and any person subject to military law who commits any waste or spoil, or wrongfully destroys any property whatso-ever or commits any kind of depredation or riot, shall be punished as a court-martial may direct. Any commanding officer who, upon complaint made to him refuses or omits to see reparation made to the party injured, insofar as the offender's pay shall go toward such reparation, as provided for in article 105, shall be dismissed from the service, or otherwise punished, as a court-martial may direct.

"SEC. 235. Article 92 is amended to read as follows:

"'Arr. 92. Murder—Rape: Any person sub-ject to military law found guilty of murder shall suffer death or imprisonment for life, as a court-martial may direct; but if found guilty of murder not premeditated, he shall be punished as a court-martial may direct.

Any person subject to military law who is found guilty of rape shall suffer death or such other punishment as a court-martial may direct: Provided, That no person shall be tried by court-martial for murder or rape committed within the geographical limits of the States of the Union and the District of Columbia in time of peace.'
"Sec. 236. Article 93 is amended to read as

"'ART. 93. Various Crimes: Any person subject to military law who commits manslaughter, mayhem, arson, burglary, housebreaking, robbery, larceny, perjury, forgery, sodomy, assault with intent to commit any felony, assault with intent to do bodily harm with a dangerous weapon, instrument, or other thing, or assault with intent to do bodily harm, shall be punished as a court-martial may direct: Provided, That any person subject to military law who commits larceny or embezzlement shall be guilty of larceny within the meaning of this article. "SEC. 237. Article 94 is amended to read as claim: or

"'Who for the purpose of obtaining, or aiding others to obtain, the approval, allowance, or payment of any claim against the United States or against any officer thereof, makes or uses, or procures, or advises the making or use of, any writing or other paper knowing the same to contain any false of fraudulent statements; or

"Who, for the purpose of obtaining, or aiding others to obtain, the approval, allowance, or payment of any claim against the United States or any officer thereof, makes or procures, or advises the making of, any oath to any fact or to any writing or other paper knowing such oath to be false; or

"'Who, for the purpose of obtaining, or aiding others to obtain, the approval, allowance, or payment of any claim against the United States or any officer thereof, forges or counterfeits, or procures, or advises the forging or counterfeiting of any signature upon any writing or other paper, or uses, or procures, or advises the use of any such signature, knowing the same to be forged or counterfeited; or

"'Who, having charge, possession, custody, or control of any money or other property of the United States, furnished or intended for the military service thereof, knowingly delivers, or causes to be delivered, to any person having authority to receive the same, any amount thereof less than that for which he receives a certificate or receipt; or "'Who, being authorized to make or deliver any paper certifying the receipt of any property of the United States furnished or intended for the military service thereof, makes or delivers to any person such writ-ing, without having full knowledge of the truth of the statements therein contained and with intent to defraud the United States; or

"Who steals, embezzles, knowingly and willfully misappropriates, applies to his own use or benefit, or wrongfully, or knowingly sells or disposes of any ordnance, arms, equipment, ammunition, clothing, sub-sistence stores, money, or other property of the United States furnished or intended for the military service thereof: Provided, That any person, subject to military law, who commits larceny or embezzlement with respect to property of the United States, furnished or intended for the military service thereof, or with respect to other property within the purview of this article, steals said property within the meaning of this article;

"'Who knowingly purchases or receives in pledge for any obligation or indebtedness from any soldier, officer, or other person who is a part of or employed in said forces or service, any ordnance, arms, equipment, ammunition, clothing, subsistence stores, or other property of the United States, such soldier, officer, or other person not having lawful right to sell or pledge the same; or

"'Who enters into any agreement or con-spires to commit any of the offenses afore-

" 'Shall, on conviction thereof, be punished by fine or imprisonment, or by such other punishment as a court martial may adjudge. or by any or all of said penalties. If any person, being guilty of any of the offenses aforesaid or who steals or fails properly to account for any money or other property held in trust by him for enlisted persons or as its official custodian while in the military service of the United States, receives his discharge or is dismissed or otherwise sep-arated from the service, he shall continue to be liable to be arrested and held for trial and sentence by a court martial in the same manner and to the same extent as if he had not been so separated therefrom.

"Sec. 238. Article 104 is amended to read

as follows:

"'ART. 104. Disciplinary Powers of Commanding officers: Under such regulations as the President may prescribe, the commanding officer of any detachment, company, or higher command, may, for minor offenses impose disciplinary punishments upon persons of his command without the intervention of a court-martial, unless the accused demands trial by court-martial.

" 'The disciplinary punishments authorized by this article may include admonition or reprimand, or the withholding of privileges, or extra fatigue, or restriction to certain specified limits, or hard labor without confinement or any combination of such punishments for not exceeding one week from the date imposed; but shall not include forfeiture of pay or confinement under guard; except that any officer exercising general court-martial jurisdiction may, under the provisions of this article, also impose upon a warrant officer or officer of his command below the rank of brigadier general a for-feiture of not more than one-half of his pay per month for three months.

'A person punished under authority of this article, who deems his punishment un-just or disproportionate to the offense, may, through the proper channel, appeal to the next superior authority, but may in the meantime be required to undergo the punishment adjudged. The commanding officer who imposes the punishment, his successor in command, and superior authority shall have power to mitigate or remit any unexecuted portion of the punishment. The imposition and enforcement of disci-plinary punishment under authority of this article for any act or omission shall not be a bar to trial by court-martial for a serious crime or offense growing out of the same act or omission, and not properly punishable under this article; but the fact that a disciplinary punishment has been enforced may be shown by the accused upon trial, and when so shown shall be considered in determining the measure of punishment to be adjudged in the event of a finding of guilty." "Szc. 239. Article 108 is amended to read

as follows:

"'ART. 108. Soldiers—Separation From the Service: No enlisted person, lawfully in-ducted into the military service of the United States, shall be discharged from said service without a certificate of discharge, and no enlisted person shall be discharged from said service before his term of service has expired, except in the manner prescribed by the Secretary of the Department of the Army, or by sentence of a general or special court-martial.'

"SEC. 240. Article 110 is amended to read

as follows :

'ART. 110. Certain Articles of War To Be Read or Explained: Articles 1, 2, 24, 28, 29, 54 to 97, inclusive, 104 to 109, inclusive, and 121 shall be read or carefully explained to every soldier at the time of his enlistment or muster in, or within six days thereafter, and shall be read or explained once every six months to the soldiers of every garrison, regiment, or company in the service of the United States. And a complete text of the Articles of War and of the Man-ual for Courts-Martial shall be made available to any soldier, upon his request, for his personal examination.'

"Sec. 241. Article 116 is amended to read

as follows:

"'ART. 116. Powers of Assistant Trial Judge Advocate and of Assistant Defense Counsel: An assistant trial judge advocate of a general or special court-martial shall be competent to perform any duty devolved by law, regulation, or the custom of the service upon the trial judge advocate of the court. An assistant defense counsel shall be competent likewise to perform any duty devolved by law, regulation, or the custom of the service upon counsel for the accused.

"SEC. 242. Article 117 is amended to read

as follows:

'ART. 117. Removal of Civil Suits: When any civil or criminal prosecution is commenced in any court of a State of the United States against any officer, soldier, or other person in the military service of the United States on account of any act done under color of his office or status, or in respect to which he claims any right, title, or authority un-der any law of the United States respecting the military forces thereof, or under the law of war, such suit or prosecution may at any time before the trial or final hearing thereof be removed for trial into the district court of the United States in the district where the same is pending in the manner prescribed by law, and the cause shall thereupon be entered on the docket of such district court, which shall proceed as if the cause had been originally commenced therein and shall have full power to hear and determine said

"SEC. 243. Section 1 of article 121 is amended to read as follows:

"'ART. 121. Complaints of Wrongs: Any officer or soldier who believes himself wronged by his commanding officer, and, upon due application to such commander, is refused redress, may complain to the officer exercising general court-martial jurisdiction over the officer against whom the complaint is made. That officer shall ex-amine into said complaint and take proper measures for redressing the wrong complained of; and he shall, as soon as possible, transmit to the Department of the Army a true statement of such complaint, with the proceedings had thereon.'

"SEC. 244. This title shall become effective on the first day of the eighth calendar month after approval of this title.

"Sec. 245. All offenses committed and all penalties, forfeitures, fines, or liabilities in-curred prior to the effective date of this title, under any law embraced in or modified, changed or repealed by this title, may be prosecuted, punished, and enforced in the same manner and with the same effect as if this title had not been passed.

"SEC. 246. Section 8 of the National Defense Act, as amended (10 U. S. C. 61), is amended to read as follows:

"'SEC. 8. Judge Advocate General's Corps: The Judge Advocate General's Corps shall consist of one Judge Advocate General with the rank of major general, one assistant with the rank of major general, three officers with the rank of brigadier general, and an active list commissioned officer strength to be determined by the Secretary of the Department of the Army, but such strength shall not be less than 1½ per centum of the authorized active list commissioned officer strength of the Armed Services of the National Military Establishment who are subject to the Articles of War, and in addition warrant officers and enlisted men in such numbers as the Secretary of the Department of the Army shall determine.'

"SEC. 247. Regular Army officers shall be permanently appointed by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, in the Judge Advocate General's Corps in the commissioned officer grades of major general, brigadier general, colonel, lieutenant colonel, major, captain, and first lieutenant. The names of commissioned officers of the Judge Advocate General's Corps below the grade of brigadier general shall be carried on the Judge Advocate's promotion list. The Judge Advocate's promotion list shall be established by entering thereon the names of the officers concerned without change in their order of precedence on the existing promotion list. The authorized numbers in each of the several grades in the Judge Ad-vocate's promotion list shall be prescribed by the Secretary of the Department of the Army, but the numbers thus authorized not exceed the following percentages of the total strength authorized for that list: 8 per centum in the grade of colonel; per centum in the grade of lieutenant colonel; 19 per centum in the grade of major; 23 per centum in the grade of captain; and 36 per centum in the grade of first lieu-tenant: Provided, That numbers may be authorized for any grade in lieu of authorization in higher grades: Provided further, That this provision shall not operate to require a reduction in permanent grade of any officer now holding permanent appointment.

"Officers whose names are carried on the Judge Advocate's promotion list shall be promoted to the several grades as now or here-after prescribed for promotion of promotion-list officers generally and the authorized numbers in grades below colonel on such list shall be temporarily increased from time to time in order to give effect to the promotion system now or hereafter prescribed by law for promotion-list officers.

Within the authorized strength of the Judge Advocate General's Corps additional officers may be appointed by transfer of qualified officers from other branches of the Army, by appointment of Reserve judge advocates or qualified civilian graduates of accredited law schools. Those originally appointed in the Regular Army in the Judge Advocate General's Corps shall be credited with an amount of service for the purpose of determining grade, position on promotion list, permanent-grade seniority, and eligi-bility for promotion as now or hereafter prescribed by law.
"SEC. 248. The Judge Advocate General shall, in addition to such other duties as may be prescribed by law, be the legal adviser of the Secretary of the Department of the Army and of all officers and agencies of the Department of the Army; and all members of the Judge Advocate General's Corps shall perform their duties under the direction of the Judge Advocate General.

"SEC. 249. Notwithstanding any other provisions of law, the Judge Advocate General, the Assistant Judge Advocate General and general officers of the Judge Advocate General's Corps shall be appointed by the President to a superior of the Judge Advocate General's Corps shall be appointed by the President to a superior of the President to a superior of the President of the Preside dent, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, from among officers of the Judge Advocate General's Corps who are recommended for such positions by the Secretary of the Department of the Army. Upon the appointment of an officer to be the Judge Advocate General or Assistant Judge Advocate General with the rank of major gen-eral, he shall at the same time if not then holding permanent appointment in such grade be appointed a permanent major general of the Regular Army."

STATEMENT

The managers on the part of the House at the conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendment of the House to the bill (S. 2655) to provide for the common defense by increasing the strength of the armed forces of the United States, including the reserve components thereof, and for other purposes, submit the following statement in explanation of the effect of the action agreed upon by the conferees and recommended in the accompanying conference report:

AUTHORIZED PERSONNEL STRENGTHS

Senate bill, Army, 790,000 plus 110,000 oneyear trainees.

House amendment, 837,000.

Senate bill, Navy (including Marine Corps), 666,882, plus 36,000 one-year trainees.

House amendment, 666,882.

Senate bill, Air Force, 453,000, plus 15,000 one-year trainees.

House amendment, 502,000.

The conference agreement provides for authorized active duty personnel strengths for the armed forces as follows:

Army: 837,000 plus 110,000 one-year en-listees. Navy (including Marine Corps): 666,882 plus 36,000 one-year enlistees.

Air Force: 502,000 plus 15,000 one-year enlistees.

ENLISTMENT OF ALIENS

The Senate bill authorized the Secretary of the Army until June 30, 1950 to accept enlistments in the Regular Army, for periods of not less than 5 years, of not more than 25,000 qualified aliens between the ages of 18 and 35. The House amendment contains no comparable provision. The conference agreement eliminates the provision for enlistment of aliens.

REGISTRATION

The Senate bill provided for the registration of male persons between the ages of 18 and 26, and contained no specific provision authorizing registration by age groups. The House amendment provided for the registration of male persons between the ages of 18 and 31, and specifically authorized the President to provide for registration by age groups. The conference agreement adopts the provisions of the Senate bill with respect to registration.

LIABILITY OF ALIENS FOR SERVICE

The Senate bill provided that citizens of a foreign country should be relieved from liability for training and service upon appli-cation for such relief, but provided that any person who sought relief should thereafter be debarred from becoming a citizen of the United States. The House amendment ex-United States. The House amendment ex-cluded from liability for service those aliens who have not declared their intentions to become citizens of the United States. The conference agreement adopts the provisions of the Senate bill with respect to liability for training and service of aliens but in-suring that properly deferrable aliens may be relieved from liability for induction without debarment from citizenship.

MORATORIUM ON INDUCTIONS

The House amendment contained provisions prohibiting inductions under the Act until the President proclaims not earlier than 75 days after the date of enactment (1) that a sufficient number of persons is on active service in the armed forces to maintain an adequate national defense, and (2) that a sufficient number of such persons cannot, in his judgment, be attained by voluntary enlistment and by voluntary request for call to active duty. The amendment did not delay the registration, classification, et cetera, of persons. The amendment further provided that upon the issuance of such a proplamation, the provisions authorists. a proclamation the provisions authorizing inductions should come into effect but that no person should be inducted prior to 90 days after the date of enactment of the legislation. The amendment further provided that no induction should be made before January 31, 1949 and that no induction should be made after that date unless the President found that the requisite man-power strengths could not be obtained or maintained by an intensified voluntary enlistment campaign which was directed to be carried out. The amendment further provided for original enlistments in the armed forces for periods of two years and for reen-listments for periods of either one or two

The Senate bill contained no provisions comparable to those described in the preceding paragraph.

The conference agreement requires involuntary inductions under the Act be delayed for 90 days after the date of its enactment unless the President, or the Congress by concurrent resolution, declares a national emergency after the date of enactment of the Act. The conference agreement requires the armed forces to initiate and carry on an intensified voluntary enlistment campaign in an effort to obtain the required personnel strength.

PERIOD OF SERVICE

The Senate bill provided that persons inducted under the legislation should serve for a period of 24 consecutive months. The House amendment provided that persons inducted should serve for a period of 12 months. The conference agreement pro-vides that persons inducted shall serve for a period of twenty-one consecutive months.

SPECIAL CALLS FOR DOCTORS AND DENTISTS

The Senate bill provided for the special registration and calling for service of members of the medical and dental professions and allied specialist categories who have not attained the age of 45. It established an order of priority for the induction of persons in medical and dental categories and contained provisions designed to prevent the induction or call to active duty for more than 1 month in any calendar year of any doctor of medicine or dental surgery, established in his profession in the community in which he resides, if the local board deter-mined that the health of the community in which he resides would be unduly jeopardized as a result of his induction or service on active duty.

The House amendment contained no provisions providing for the special registration of and calling for service of persons in medical and dental categories.

The conference agreement eliminates the provisions of the Senate bill providing for the special registration and calling for service of persons in medical and dental categories.

SHORT-TERM ENLISTMENTS

The House amendment contained a provision requiring the acceptance of enlistments in the Regular Army of persons between the ages of 19 and 26 for enlistment periods equal to the periods of service required of inductees. The Senate bill contained no comparable provision. The conference agreement includes the provision of the House amendment relative to enlistments in the Regular Army.

ARMY GENERAL CLASSIFICATION TEST SCORE

The House amendment contained a provision prohibiting the establishment of a passing score on the Army General Classification Test higher than 70 points. The Senate bill contained no comparable provision. The con-ference agreement provides that the passing score on the Army General Classification Test shall be 70 points.

ONE-YEAR TRAINEES

The Senate bill contained provisions providing for the enlistment in the Army, Navy, and Air Force for 1-year periods of limited numbers of qualified male persons between the ages of 18 and 19. Persons enlisting for the period of one year would, upon completion of their enlistments, be transferred to the reserve components for periods of 6 years and would be under strong compulsion to accept assignment to organized units of the reserve components or to officer training programs of the armed forces.

The House amendment also provided for the enlistment in the Army, Navy, and Air Force for 1-year periods of qualified male persons between the ages of 18 and 19 but placed no limit on the number who could be so enlisted. The House amendment, while providing for the transfer of such persons to reserve components for periods of six years, did not impose any compulsion upon them to join organized units of the reserve components.

The conference agreement adopts the pro-visions of the Senate bill relative to enlistments for 1-year periods of persons between the ages of 18 and 19.

DEFERMENTS AND EXEMPTIONS

The Senate bill exempted from liability for induction those persons who served for more than 18 months, either in the armed forces of the United States or allied countries, between September 16, 1940, and the date of enactment. It also provided for the exemption of those veterans who served for more than 90 days between December 7, 1941, and September 2, 1945. The Senate bill provided that those veterans who served for 90 days or more but less than 18 months in the period September 16, 1940, to the date of enactment should be exempt from liability for induction if they should be determined by the local board to have taken on certain reserve obligations. The House amendment provided for the exemption of those veterans who served for 12 months or more subsequent to September 16, 1940, and also provided for the exemption of those veterans who have been awarded the purple heart or any badge, award, or decoration evidencing exceptional valor, bravery in combat, or continued service in combat. The House amendment also provided for the exemption from liability for induction of those veterans who served for 90 days or more but less than 12 months subsequent to September 16, 1940, if the local boards should determine that they had as-sumed certain reserve obligations which might be assumed without interrupting their normal pursuits and activities.

The conference agreement is that veterans with 12 months or more of service shall be exempt from induction. It was further agreed that veterans who served between Pearl Harbor Day and V-J Day for more than 90 days shall be exempt.

The conference agreement also was that veterans with less than 12 months of service shall be exempt if they assume certain re-serve obligations which might be assumed without interrupting their normal pursuits and activities.

The Senate bill provided for the exemp-tion from liability for service of those persons who joined the national guard before attaining the age of  $18\frac{1}{2}$  only in cases in which the governor of the State determined that the strength of the national guard could not be attained by the registration of persons not liable for training and service under the bill. The House amendment provided for the exemption from liability for training and service of all persons joining organized units of the reserve components, which participate in scheduled drills and training periods throughout the year, if such persons join before attaining the age of 18½. The House amendment also provided for the deferment of persons who, at any time prior to the date they are ordered to report for induction, join reserve components and who serve in such components for a total period of 6 years during which they satisfactorily participate in scheduled drills and training periods.

The conference agreement adopts the provisions of the Senate bill with respect to the matters discussed in this paragraph.

Both the Senate bill and the House amendment contained exemptions for a limited number of persons enrolling in the Reserve Officers Training Programs of the armed forces subsequent to the effective date of the legislation. The Senate bill conditioned such exemption upon those persons agreeing to serve, after being commissioned, for a period of 2 years. The House amendment conditioned the exemption upon an agreement to serve, after being commissioned, for a period of time equal to the period of service of inductees.

The conference agreement requires persons who are deferred from induction while un-dergoing training in the Reserve Officers Training Programs to agree to serve on active duty for a period of 2 years.

The Senate bill provided for the exemption from training and service of regular or duly ordained ministers of religion and of theological and pre-theological students. House amendment broadened this exemption to include Christian Science Readers and practitioners and those persons who have been recognized by the officials of their church, synagogue, or sect as having given definite and acknowledged intention of entering into full-time religious work.

The conference agreement adopts the provisions of the Senate bill with respect to exemption of ministers and theological and pre-theological students, for the reason that it was felt that to include any specific sect or religion by name in this provision would logically compel the inclusion of many others or, by interpretation, indicate that other such sects would be excluded were the original House provisions accepted.

The Senate bill specifically provided the President with authority to defer from induction those persons whose activity in study, research, or medical or scientific endeavors was found to be necessary to the maintenance of the national health, safety, or interest. The House amendment, although giving the President sufficient authority to defer such persons, contains no specific provisions relating to such persons.

The conference agreement adopts the specific provisions of the Senate bill with respect to deferment of those whose activities in study, research, or medical or scientific endeavors are found to be necessary to the maintenance of the national health, safety, or interest.

CONSCIENTIOUS OBJECTORS

The Senate bill provided that those conscientious objectors who were found to be opposed to participation in noncombatant service should be assigned to work of na-tional importance under immediate civilian direction. The bill extended to persons who might be so assigned and who might suffer disability or death while performing such work the benefits of the Employees Compensation Act of September 7, 1916. The House amendment provided that conscientious objectors found to be opposed to participation in noncombatant service should be deferred from induction for service under the legislation.

The conference agreement adopts the provisions of the House amendment providing for the deferment from induction of those conscientious objectors who are found to be opposed to participation in noncombatant

SOLE SURVIVING SON EXEMPTION

The House amendment added a provision to the effect that where one or more members of a family have been killed in action or died in line of duty while serving in the armed forces of the United States, the sole surviving son of such family should not be inducted for service under the legislation. The Senate bill contained no comparable provision. The conference agreement adopts the provision of the House amendment with a clarifying amendment.

PROVISIONS WITH RESPECT TO HEALTH AND MORALS

The House amendment contained a provision requiring that the training under the Act be administered and carried out on the highest possible moral, religious, and spiritual plane. It also prohibited the maintenance, within distances specified by the Secretary of Defense, of any military installation utilized for training purposes of any house of ill fame or place of entertainment constituting a public nuisance. The con-ference agreement eliminates the provisions of the House amendment because of the fact that the conferees determined that the Act of May 15, 1946 (60 Stat. 182) had made permanent the provisions of the Act of July 11, 1941 (55 Stat. 583) which contains substantially the same provisions with respect to prohibition of prostitution within the vicinity of military and naval establishments as does the provision of the House amend-

REEMPLOYMENT RIGHTS

The Senate bill provided that persons completing their periods of service under the Act and securing restoration to their former positions in accordance with the terms of the Act should be restored without loss of seniority. The bill contained a declaration by the Congress to the effect that persons so restored should be restored in such manner as to give them the status in their employment which they would have enjoyed if they had continued in their employment continuously. The Senate bill contained detailed provisions with respect to the enforcement of the reemployment rights Federal Government employees and gave the Civil Service Commission the power to issue necessary rules, regulations, and orders to assure that the restoration rights would be effective. It contained no specific provisions with respect to court proceedings for restoration to positions in the Federal Government. The Senate bill designated the Secretary of Labor, acting through the Bureau of Veterans Reemployment Rights, as the Federal official to render aid to veterans in obtaining restoration to their former employment. The bill also contained a provision authorizing and requesting the President to formulate and recommend to Congress plans for the rehabilitation and retraining of veterans serving after the date of enactment of the legislation.

The House bill provided that those restored to positions pursuant to the terms of the act should be entitled to all promotions, increases in pay, vacation rights, and accumulations of seniority to which they would have been entitled if they had been working in their old positions during their periods of service. The House amendment, unlike the Senate bill, did not specifically prohibit the layoff, within 1 year after his restoration, of a person restored to employment under the provisions of the legislation. The House amendment also contained detailed provisions with respect to the restoration to their positions of those veterans who held positions under the Federal Government prior to the beginning of their periods of service. These detailed provisions included specific authority for such persons to obtain court orders requiring their restoration to positions under the Federal Government. The House amendment designated the Director of Selective Service as the Federal official charged with the duty of rendering aid to veterans in obtaining restoration to their former positions.

The conference agreement adopts the language of the Senate bill with respect to reemployment rights, except that (1) the provision of the Senate bill authorizing and requesting the President to formulate and recommend to Congress plans for the rehabilitation and retraining of veterans was eliminated, and (2) the provision of the House amendment deleting the prohibition against lay-offs of restored veterans was adopted.

CRIMINAL PROVISIONS

The Senate bill provided specific penalties for those forging or altering certificates issued under the Act and for persons possessing or using any such forged or altered certificates. The House amendment contained no comparable provisions. The conference agreement adopts the provision of the Senate bill with respect to this matter.

LUMP-SUM PAYMENTS TO RESERVE FLYING OFFICERS

The Senate bill contained a provision having the effect of preventing Reserve flying officers from obtaining the lump-sum payments of $500 per year for the periods of active duty which they might perform during the time the legislation would be effective. The House amendment contained no comparable provision. The conference agreement adopts the provisions of the Senate bill with respect to lump-sum payments.

UTILIZATION OF INDUSTRY

The Senate provisions with respect to the placement of mandatory orders for articles and materials required that mandatory orders be placed by the President only after receiving advice from the National Security Resources Board. The bill authorized the placement of mandatory orders to obtain articles or materials for the use of the armed forces of the United States or the Atomic Energy Commission.

The provisions of the House amendment relating to the placement of mandatory or-ders differed considerably in wording but not so much in substance from the corresponding provisions of the Senate bill. The House amendment authorized the President, through the Secretary of Defense, to place mandatory orders only for products or ma-terials required by the armed forces. The terials required by the armed forces. The House amendment contained a provision, which had no counterpart in the Senate bill, empowering the President to require pro-ducers of steel to make available to manu-facturers having orders for steel products or steel materials required by the armed forces the necessary steel to enable such manufac-turers to execute their orders. It provided for enforcing compliance with the allocation of steel by authorizing the President to take possession of the plants of steel producers failing to comply with the required alloca-tions. The amendment further required the President to report to the Congress at the end of each 6 months' period the percentage of steel production in the United States required in the execution of orders for steel products and steel materials for the armed forces, if such requirement was in excess of 10 per centum of production.

The conference agreement adopts the provision of the House amendment empowering the President to require producers of steel to make steel available to persons having orders from the armed forces for materials requiring steel products or materials in their manufacture. The conference agreement otherwise adopts the provisions of the Senate bill with respect to mandatory orders.

MILITARY JUSTICE

The Senate bill contained provisions incorporating the substance of the bill H. R. 2575, as previously passed by the House during this Congress, revising the articles of war and making changes in the status of the Judge Advocate General's Department of the Army. The House bill contained no comparable provisions. The conference agreement incorporates the provisions of H. R. 2575 with respect to military justice together with certain clarifying amendments.

W. G. Anderws,

W. G. Andrews, W. Sterling Cole, George J. Bates, Carl Vinson, Paul J. Kilday, Carl T. Durham,

Managers on the Part of the House.

Mr. ANDREWS of New York. Mr. Speaker, I call up the conference report on the bill (S. 2655) to provide for the common defense by increasing the strength of the armed forces of the United States, including the Reserve component thereof, and for other purposes.

Mr. MARCANTONIO. Mr. Speaker, a point of order.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. MARCANTONIO. Mr. Speaker, I make a point of order, and I ask the indulgence of the Speaker so that I may argue the point.

The SPEAKER. The Chair will hear the gentleman.

Mr. MARCANTONIO. Mr. Speaker, I make the point of order that the document which has just been presented is not the report of any conference. It is not the product of a full and free conference as required in Jefferson's Manual. I make my point of order based on the proposition that there has never been a valid conference—specifically, that there has never been a valid meeting on the part of the managers on the part of the House.

I would like at this time, first, to present the facts chronologically.

Yesterday the House voted, under suspension of the rules, to send the bill to conference, and the House conferees were appointed. A motion was made in the other body for the same purpose. tended debate was had on that motion. This morning the motion to send the Senate bill to conference and disagree with the House amendments and authorizing the appointment of conferees was adopted. Immediately, before there was any time for a meeting, a physical meeting to take place between the managers on the part of the House and the managers on the part of the Senate, this document before you, Mr. Speaker, was filed and acted upon in the Senate. Physically there were some meetings. The meetings that took place yesterday, Mr. Speaker, all of the meetings that took place yesterday were prior to the adoption of the motion in the other body to send this bill to conference. How could they have been valid meetings?

They could not have been valid meetings because there were no managers in existence on the part of the Senate. Members of the other body who met with the House conferees were not managers on the part of the other body, therefore those meetings had no validity whatsoever. It is true that at those meetings the provisions of the document which we have before us were agreed upon. It is likewise true that the people who participated in those meetings on behalf of the other body were Members who were subsequently appointed as managers for the other body, but throughout those meetings they were not there as managers who had been appointed; in fact all the while they were participating in those meetings they had not as yet been authorized by the other body to be there. They had no authority to act.

After the motion was adopted to send the bill to conference, and before the Senate adopted this document as a conference report, and before this document had been filed in the other body there was no meeting. A meeting took place after

The question is whether or not that ex post facto meeting constituted a valid meeting, pursuant to the various sections of Jefferson's Manual that define a free and full conference. That meeting that took place after the Senate had adopted this document as a conference report could not have been a valid meeting; it has no validity, because the managers on the part of the other body had no longer anything to discuss. They no longer had any duties to perform. Whatever was said at that meeting or whatever was done at that meeting could not have any validity because action had already been taken by the other body.

I realize, Mr. Speaker, that the argument will be made that the House cannot go across the Capitol and review what has happened in the other body. I know that it will be said that the illegal action on the part of the other body in accepting this document as a report on which the conferees never formally met as conferees is conclusive and binding as far as the House is concerned. However, that action is absolutely illegal and void, and, in my humble judgment, places in jeopardy the legality of this entire legislation.

I know that the argument will be made that we in the House cannot go into the legality of any Senate action. That is a debatable question and I do not press it.

The argument that I do make. Mr. Speaker, is against the action not of the Senate conferees but the actions of the House conferees. My point of order is that they did not attend a valid conference, that the meetings that they attended yesterday were not valid conferences because the persons with whom they were meeting had not been appointed managers for the Senate; that the meeting they had subsequent to the adoption of this document as a conference report or subsequent to the filing of this document as a conference report in the Senate cannot be considered a valid Therefore, Mr. Speaker, the meeting. document that is presented here presumably as a report of a conference is not the report of a valid conference. It is not a report of a full and free conference. Since there has been no valid conference this document has no validity before this House.

I press this point of order in all earnestness, Mr. Speaker, being fully cognizant of the seriousness and far-reaching consequences of our action here tonight on the peace and future of the youth of our Nation. It is because I am aware of the disastrous consequences that will flow from the action you will take tonight that I make this effort to prevent it.

Mr. Speaker, there is one further point I should like to make for the purpose of reemphasis, and that is that the chairman of the committee, Mr. Andrews, and the other House conferees can never establish that there was ever a valid meeting. Since there was never a valid meeting there was never a valid conference as required in Jefferson's Manual. This document not being the product of a valid conference is, therefore, not in order before the House.

The SPEAKER. Does the gentleman from New York desire to be heard on the point of order?

Mr. ANDREWS of New York. Yes,

Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER. The Chair will hear the gentleman.

Mr. ANDREWS of New York. I shall make a short and factual statement.

The conferees duly appointed on the part of the House met informally after their appointment yesterday to consider this subject matter. At a later time the House conferees met with the Senate conferees and agreed upon the terms of the conference report in a full committee meeting. The Senate conferees then presented the conference report to the Senate this morning and the Senate subsequently adopted that conference report as shown by the message from the Senate which the House has received.

There is no dispute whatever among the conferees as to what was agreed to in the conference, and the Chair will note that the conference report is signed by all of the Senate conferees and by six of the seven House conferees.

Out of an abundance of caution, having learned that some question might be raised in the House as I had been informed was raised in the Senate, I called another meeting of the full conference committee including the managers on the part of the Senate today to approve the conference report. The conference report was then agreed to by the committee of conference and it is now properly before the House.

Mr. MARCANTONIO. Mr. Speaker, may I be heard briefly further on the point of order?

The SPEAKER. The Chair will hear the gentleman briefly.

Mr. MARCANTONIO. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from New York, the chairman of the committee, said there was a conference later. I think that word "later" is the key to the question.

What does he mean by "later"? If by "later" he means after this document was filed as a conference report in the Senate then definitely that meeting was not a conference.

The only "later" that could validate this report would be a meeting between the moment the motion to send this bill to conference was adopted in the Senate and the moment this document was filed in the Senate as a conference report. Such a meeting, I repeat, never took That statement is not being place challenged. Such a meeting could not take place, could not physically take place because not enough time elapsed between the motion to send to conference and the filing of this document as a report, for such a meeting to take place. There never was any such meeting and the chairman and every conferee of the House knows that my statement is true.

The SPEAKER. The Chair is ready to rule.

On page 770, volume 5, of Hinds' Precedents, section 6497 states:

A conference report is received if signed by a majority of the managers of each House.

The Chair has examined the report and the papers and finds that it is signed by five of the managers on the part of the Senate and six of the seven managers on the part of the House.

The Chair has no knowledge, of course, how this report was reached, but the Chair cannot impeach the names of the managers on the part of the two Houses. Furthermore, the Senate having already received the report, and according to a message heretofore received by the House has officially adopted it, the Chair feels that under the circumstances the report is properly before the House for such action as the House may see fit to take. The Chair overrules the point of order.

Mr. ANDREWS of New York. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the statement of the managers on the part of the House be read in lieu of the full report.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New York?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the statement of the

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from New York [Mr. Andrews] is recognized for 1 hour.

Mr. ANDREWS of New York. Mr. Speaker, due to the fact that the House has been attentive to the reading of the statement of the managers on the part of the House, I believe they know more about it now than they will after hearing most of the speakers who will address them in the next hour.

I intend to yield one-half of the time insofar as I am able to to the minority side and on the minority side to those in opposition. Throughout the entire consideration of this bill I have tried to be fair. Also, on the majority side I will yield time to those in opposition. As I understand it, the yielding rests solely with me. I shall try to recognize everybody who has requested time and will try to divide the time evenly.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 10 minutes to the gentleman from Texas [Mr. Kilday].

Mr. KILDAY. Mr. Speaker, the statement of the managers on the part of the House is, I am sure most will agree, clear in expressing what has been agreed upon in the conference. I think it is far clearer than the average conference report that comes before us. There were numerous changes made, of course, and I think I shall address myself to what I regard as the two major changes made by the committee of conference in the original House bill.

The first major change has to do with the effective date of the act. The bill as reported by the House committee provided that the act should become effective upon its approval by the President, but that induction should be deferred for a period of 90 days. On the floor the committee offered a committee amendment which provided that not sooner than 75 days after the approval of the act the President could place inductions into effect by issuing a proclamation and thereafter inductions should not take place sooner than 90 days after the approval of the act.

The conference report has practically the same provision that was originally brought in by the House committee. A provision was adopted which would have delayed inductions and registrations until January 31, 1949.

I want to make clear the difference between the provision in the conference report and the provision requiring the President to "pull the trigger," you might say, is one of form and not of substance. Under the bill as it is now reported to you from conference, nothing can be done-you cannot have a registrationuntil the President issues a proclamation for registration. The bill is not selfenacting. The President must take the affirmative action of fixing the date of registration; then the President must issue the call for the quotas of the persons to be inducted. That is the way it was done under the Selective Training and Service Act in the recent war; that was the provision of the law in the First World War. So, as I say, it is mostly a matter of form and not substance.

Mr. O'HARA. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. KILDAY. I yield to the gentleman from Minnesota.

Mr. O'HARA. Is there any limitation as to how soon after the call of the President for registration he may direct that these boys be called into service?

Mr. KILDAY. There is not.

Mr. JUDD. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. KILDAY. I yield to the gentleman from Minnesota.

Mr. JUDD. The gentleman said that the President must issue this proclamation. Is that right? The law requires that?

Mr. KILDAY. No; it does not require him to do so.

Mr. JUDD. He must do it to bring it into effect?

Mr. KILDAY. Yes. If there is to be any induction the President must take affirmative action.

Mr. JUDD. If the situation should improve and there might be an avalanche of enlistments, it would not have to be done?

Mr. KILDAY. Yes. The bill places an absolute ceiling on the number that can be taken in the Army, the Navy, and Air Force. If that is reached then necessarily he cannot direct the induction of anyone and an appropriation bill for anything in excess of those ceilings would be subject to a point of order because there would be no authorization.

Mr. DONDERO. Mr. Speaker, will the

gentleman yield?

Mr. KILDAY. I yield to the gentleman from Michigan.

Mr. DONDERO. Do I understand the conference report provides for men between 21 and 35 for 21 months?

Mr. KILDAY. The 21 months is cor-That is the point I am coming to next. It provides for registrations 18 to 25, inclusive, and inductions 19 to 25, inclusive.

Mr. DONDERO. For 21 months? Mr. KILDAY. Yes.

Mr. RICH. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. KILDAY. I yield to the gentle-man from Pennsylvania.

Mr. RICH. Why was it that the committee did not include in its report the things that were embodied in the vote of the membership of the House in committee? Why did the committee not give consideration to those things and retain them in the bill?

Mr. KILDAY. We were sent to conference for the purpose of reconciling the differences between the two Houses. We did make a sincere effort to sustain the House provisions.

Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent at this time to include in my remarks a summary of the instances in which the House yielded and in which the Senate vielded.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas?

There was no objection.

1. House provisions accepted by Senate.
(a) Elimination of enlistment of 25,000 aliens (Lodge amendment).

- (b) Postponement of inductions for 90 days and requirement for intensified enlistment campaign.
  - (c) Elimination of doctors provision.
- (d) Short-term enlistments for period of induction.

(e) ACCT score of 70 points.

- (f) Exemption of veterans with 12 or more months of service.
- (g) Require that veterans' reserve obligation be undertaken only if it is not unduly inconvenient.
- (h) Exemption of conscientious objectors who are opposed to any service.

- (i) Sole surviving son provision.
  (j) Elimination of "laid off or" in reemployment provisions whereby discharged draftee could displace World War II veteran.
- (k) Elimination of requirement on President in Senate bill to establish large-scale rehabilitation and retraining program for
  - (1) Steel allocations to small business.

(m) Authorized strengths.

- 2. Senate provisions accepted by House. (a) Limitation on numbers of 1 year enlistees from among the 18-year-olds.
- (b) Top registration age limit of 25. (c) Exemption of aliens from induction subsequent debarment from citizenwith ship if induction exemption is requested.

(d) Compulsion on 1-year enlistees (18-year-olds) to enter Reserve units after discharge.

(e) Exemption of 18½-year-olds if they join National Guard (House bill permitted their entrance into other Reserve units).

(f) Two-year active-duty obligation on ROTC graduates (House bill required service so long as induction period only).

(g) Senate provisions on ministers.

(h) Senate provisions on scientists.

(i) Elimination of provision in respect to meintenance of health and more in vicinity.

maintenance of health and morals in vicinity of Army camps (excluded because present law already covers the subject).

(j) Labor Department to administer veteran reemployment provisions instead of Di-rector of Selective Service.

(k) Penalties for those forging or altering certificates issued under the Selective Service Act.

(1) Elimination of $500 per year lump-sum payments to Air Reserve officers called to duty under the act.

(m) Senate provisions on mandatory or-ders to industry.

(n) Senate provisions relating to military justice.

(o) Exemption of all veterans who served between Pearl Harbor day and VJ-day (House amendment deferred only those who served in combat).

3. Compromises between House and Senate. (a) Insuring that aliens requesting exemption from induction be not thereafter debarred from American citizenship unless exemption is based solely on grounds of the person being an alien.

(b) Ninety-day induction postponement was compromise of Shafer amendment postponing inductions until January 31, 1949, and no comparable provision in Senate bill.

(c) Twenty-one months required service in place of 24-months in Senate bill, 12months in House bill.

Mr. HALLECK. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. KILDAY. I yield to the gentleman from Indiana.

Mr. HALLECK. If I understood the gentleman correctly, he said it would require affirmative action on the part of the President before this would be put into effect?

Mr. KILDAY. Yes. Mr. HALLECK. Is it not true this action would be taken immediately on the effective date of the act or shortly thereafter as distinguished from the affirmative action that was contemplated in the bill passed by the House which required that affirmative action be taken at the end of 90 days?

Mr. KILDAY. Yes. Mr. HALLECK. It being the idea that in that time the situation might be so altered in the world or in the country as to eliminate the necessity for this action at all?

Mr. KILDAY. That is correct. The other provision put a time limitation on the President. This provision does not, but he must take some affirmative action before there can be any inductions under the act.

Mr. HALLECK. It takes affirmative action before the registration starts. After that is done then, of course, the provisions of the act apply and it would become effective without any subsequent further action by the President?

Mr. KILDAY. That is true. They apply within the ceilings placed in the bill.

Mr. ANDREWS of New York. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. KILDAY. I yield to the gentle-man from New York.

Mr. ANDREWS of New York. I want to point out the further provision in the bill that if voluntary enlistments are not up to the regular quota, which they should be for the current authorized strength of the Regular Army in any one month, only in that case can selective service become effective.

Mr. CARROLL. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. KILDAY. I yield to the gentleman from Colorado.

Mr. CARROLL. To keep the record clear in this case, as I understand the bill coming from the Senate, this is automatic and does not shift the burden to the President of the United States; is that true?

Mr. KILDAY. The burden has always been there. It has been in each act that we have passed.

Mr. CARROLL. I am asking whether or not this bill is automatic.

Mr. KILDAY. It becomes effective on the date that it is signed, and then the President can direct registration at any time, or he need not direct registration.

Mr. CARROLL. But the Senate and this body assume their responsibilities.

Mr. KILDAY. That is true.

Mr. CARROLL. That is all I wanted to know.

Mr. KEATING. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. KILDAY. I yield to the gentle-man from New York.

Mr. KEATING. Would the gentleman address himself to the proposition as to what provisions there are in the bill to compel voluntary action before the bill goes into effect and the induction starts.

Mr. KILDAY. Before we get to that, may I say that we adopted an amendment in the House that fixed the tour of duty at 12 months. The Senate had an amendment fixing the tour of duty at 24 months. We made a sincere effort to secure a lesser period of time. I never felt that 18 months was the proper time, but I did know that my burden here in attempting to secure agreement of the conference report would be much lighter if we adopted the 18-month period. So, we had reached the compromise stage. We were sent there to compromise, and we did the best we could.

I believe, in answer to the gentleman from New York, that we have in here every possible inducement for voluntary enlistment, in addition to a positive direction to the departments to carry on an active enlistment campaign. We also provide here for the building up of our Reserve components, the National Guard and the organized Reserves. We have maintained the position that the House took that a man who served for 12 months during the recent war would have fully discharged his obligation; if less than 12 months, that he should enter the National Guard or the Organized Reserves. Those matters are all in the bill.

Mr. KEARNEY. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. KILDAY. I yield to the gentle-man from New York,

Mr. KEARNEY. But that is only true on the effective date of this act; is that not correct?

Mr. KILDAY. That is correct.

Mr. KEARNEY. That does not give the Reservists and the Guard members much time to enlist.

Mr. KILDAY. Well, probably not, but they do have the right to enlist, those up to 18½ years of age, after the effective date of the act. In that way we do believe that it will build up the National Guard and the Organized Reserves.

Of course, we have come now to this point: The bill has been argued thoroughly here in the House; it has passed the Senate; we have reached the compromise stage. I assure you that the conferees have done the best they could with the conferees in the other body and I sincerely trust that the report will be accepted.

Mr. ANDREWS of New York. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 1 minute to answer the question of the distinguished gentleman from New York [Mr. Kearney].

If there was ever a bill at any time in the history of this country that really should benefit the National Guard, it is this bill. It benefits it in four directions. All veterans who served 12 months or more are exempted from this bill, if they are not otherwise exempted, provided they enlist in the National Guard. There are 161,000 provided for at 17 and 18 years of age who may enlist in the Regular Army for 1 year and then come into the National Guard at the end of the year. Any young man up to the point he is 18 years and 6 months old may enlist in the National Guard and be exempt from the draft. As far as I can see, I know of no bill that has ever benefited the National Guard to this extent.

Mr. KEARNEY. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. ANDREWS of New York. I yield.
Mr. KEARNEY. I was simply asking as to the effective date of this act. If this act goes into effect tomorrow or next week, the gentleman knows as well as I do that the National Guard or the Organized Reserves are not going to benefit very much by it.

Mr. ANDREWS of New York. They have been benefiting by it for 2 months. If the gentleman will make a study of his own National Guard in New York State, he will understand that.

Mr. KEARNEY. We have today 14,000 and should have 62,000 for the two divisions in the State of New York, namely, the Twenty-seventh Division and the Forty-second Division, besides the Air Corps. I sincerely hope that this act will bring full strength to the guard of the United States. They should be taken into consideration in all plans for the proper defense of our country. They are too valuable and in this thought I include all the civilian components of our armed forces.

Mr. ANDREWS of New York. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Nebraska [Mr. Curtis].

Mr. CURTIS. Mr. Speaker, I voted for this bill when it passed this body and I voted against the motion to recommit. As much as I dislike it, I feel that it is in the best interest of our country. It is my feeling that 1 year's service is long enough. This is not a universal training bill, it is a bill where we reach in and take some boys and pass up others. Those that we take should not be required to serve for more than 1 year. If you take them for longer than that, the danger is much greater that you will disastrously and permanently interfere with their education and life plans. It should be for 1 year only.

It is not my purpose to delay or defeat this measure. But I would suggest that this conference report be voted down, so that a preferential motion may be offered directing the managers on the part of the House to insist on the Coudert amendment, which fixes the period of service at 12 months. If the conference report is voted down, it is my understanding such a motion will be offered, and I shall support it.

If this conference report is voted down the legislation is not killed, it merely means that managers must confer further.

Mr. ANDREWS of New York. Mr. Speaker, I yield 5 minutes to the gentleman from California [Mr. Havenner].

Mr. HAVENNER. Mr. Speaker, the atmosphere of the National Capital today is filled with military propaganda. Earlier in the day I listened to a radio broadcast of a review of General Stillwell's recently published book. The reviewer quoted the retired general as criticizing a former President of the United States for "meddling too much in military affairs." Here is a concise illustration of the arrogance of militarism, which would denounce even the Commander in Chief of the armed forces of this Nation if he presumed to say how he thought the Military Establishment should be conducted.

In a news dispatch from Denver published today the present Chief of Staff of the Army, General Bradley, is reported to have delivered a prepared speech in that city last night in which he criticized this Congress for "vacillation, timidity, and for blundering into a costly retreat."

Regardless of the merits of this criticism, I think that the spectacle of the head of the Army making a political speech directed against this Congress is a proper subject for an investigation by the Subcommittee on Publicity and Propaganda of the House Committee on Expenditures in the Executive Departments. That subcommittee has recently issued a well-deserved rebuke to the officials and employees of the War Department for expending tax funds in publicity and propaganda campaigns designed to influence public sentiment in favor of compulsory military service. I suggest that this committee ascertain whether the cost of General Bradley's trip to Denver to make a political speech was paid for out of tax funds, and if not, whether a general of the Army is authorized by law to devote his official time, which is paid for by the taxpayers, to such a political junket.

My colleagues of the House, you will be called upon in a very short while to cast one of the most fateful votes in the history of the Congress of the United States—a vote on the question whether permanent peacetime compulsory military training service shall become the law of the land.

I want to emphasize now that the bill which is here presented to you does not resemble in many essential provisions the bill which was passed by the House this week after many hours of debate and amendments. I call your attention to the fact that the Shafer amendment, which was adopted by the House by a three to two vote, has been thrown out the window. Indeed almost the whole House bill was thrown out of the window, and our conferees have accepted, instead, as the recent reading of the report of the managers indicated to you—our conferees have accepted in almost every important instance the Senate bill in toto.

Mr. Speaker, the Senafe bill has never been considered in the House until this time, but that is the bill which the military high command prefers, and that is the bill which will be crammed down our throats tonight unless the House of Representatives exercises its constitutional authority and rejects it. By your votes on this measure tonight, my colleagues, you will decide whether the historic policy of Thomas Jefferson, that civil authority shall be superior to military authority in time of peace, shall continue to be the policy of the United States of America, or whether this traditional free government shall adopt for the first time in its glorious career a policy of peacetime compulsory militarism for all of our people.

Mr. Speaker, I repeat what I have said before on two previous occasions: This bill is intended to put into effect a permanent policy of the Government of the United States. I want to illustrate again my statement. The record of the hearings before the Armed Services Committee is filled with statements by the spokesmen for the Military Establishment that, if this bill is enacted, it will remain in effect until you get universal military training.

Mr. ANDREWS of New York. Mr. Speaker, I yield 8 minutes to the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. Shafer].

Mr. SHAFER. Mr. Speaker, I do not intend to become vindictive in the statement I make tonight. My heart goes out to the House conferees on this bill.

I understand the conferees have come back to us and, according to the reading of the report, after one of the most gruelling conferences ever held in the history of our Government.

Mr. Speaker, it was a knock-down, drag-out fight. There is no question about it. Our conferees punched and they punched and they punched and they exerted every effort to keep the House amendments in this draft bill. There is no doubt about that. But, Mr. Speaker, our friends met a superior force, and they have had to return to us with heads bloody but unbowed.

I understand my good friend and colleague, one whom I love, the gentleman from Missouri, Dewey Short, was the only conferee standing at the end of this vicious battle. He was somewhat saddened, but he was not beaten. His signature was not on the conference report.

Of course, Mr. Speaker, I foresaw the result of this bloody conflict even before it was staged. That is the reason I voted "no," even after my amendment to delay inductions until the Army had made an honest effort to obtain recruits was agreed to.

While I am sure the House conferees battled hard to keep my amendment in the bill, I anticipated the victory of the more numerous forces. In throwing out the Shafer amendment the managers on the part of the Senate—the Senate, if you please—flagrantly disregarded the will of the House, especially as to the Shafer and the Coudert amendments. I think we should give our House conferees a good rubdown, a little shot in the arm, and anything else that is necessary, and send them back into the fray. We should insist upon the Shafer and the Coudert amendments.

I am sure, Mr. Speaker, that our conferees do not want the Army and the Navy to have the best football teams again. This draft act goes into effect immediately. The boys are registered right away; inducted in 90 days, and by the time the football season opens all of our good stars will be out of our best teams, with only the IV-F's left. Michigan, Illinois, Southern California, as well as other great teams will be without first-class players while all the good ones will remain at West Point and Annapolis, as happened during the war.

Again, the Army and Navy may proclaim the greatest teams. Mr. Speaker, let us make it possible—and we will do so under this bill—to keep Notre Dame and Michigan in the same standard as the Army and the Navy.

Do not let anybody fool you about the Presidential procamation, for it has been taken out of the bill.

The Shafer amendment that won by a vote of 135 to 90 in the House was given no consideration by this conference.

Mr. Speaker, I would not for a moment oppose this draft if I thought it were necessary. If I thought it were needed I would be the first one to say: "Go ahead, boys, put it into effect." But there is not a Member of this House; there is not a high official of the Army or Navy, or the State Department, who can come here today and make a case for this act. Every Member of this House knows this as well as a great many of our news commentators. Just tonight I asked permission to extend my remarks in the RECORD to include a commentary by David Lawrence which appeared in last night's Washington Star, stating that neither the Army nor the State Department have made a case for enactment of this draft legislation.

The draft is unnecessary. Mr. Speaker, let us return this report to the conference committee.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from New York yield to permit a bill to be sent to conference?

Mr. ANDREWS of New York. I yield.
FEDERAL CHARTER FOR COMMODITY CREDIT CORPORATION

Mr. WOLCOTT. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to take from the Speaker's table the bill (S. 1322) to provide a Federal charter for the Commodity Credit Corporation, insist upon the House amendments, agree to the conference asked by the Senate, and that the Chair appoint conferees.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Michigan? IAfter a pause. The Chair hears none and appoints the following conferees: Messrs. Wollott, Gamble, Smith of Ohio, Kunkel, Spence, Brown of Georgia, and Patman.

SELECTIVE SERVICE ACT OF 1948

Mr. ANDREWS of New York. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from North Carolina [Mr. Barden].

Mr. BARDEN. Mr. Speaker, I thought perhaps I would get a little more time, but I understand the difficulties with which the chairman is confronted. Three minutes is a mighty short time to even touch on this subject.

I enjoyed the remarks of the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. Shafer], and I think they were rather appropriate.

The House does not want this bill to be effective for 24 months. The House does not want this bill to be effective for 21 months. I think the great majority of Members expected the conferees to bring back a report carrying not more than 18 months.

So far as I am concerned I was and am so thoroughly of the conviction that the draft is not needed, not necessary, that I voted against the bill before and I will vote against it tonight.

The War Department has not made out a case, but the membership has been called upon to take this drastic step on rumors, hearsay, and conclusions reached by men definitely and directly interested.

On yesterday, the chairman of the Foreign Affairs Committee would not even tell us what Mr. Marshall testified to before his committee because it was a secret. Why should this secret information be withheld from the membership of this body and yet at the same time those in high position tell us to assume responsibility for this drastic legislation? It is not fair, it is not right, it is not safe, and is not to the best interest of good government.

We want protection, yes; and we can get all the men we want if we are willing to pay them fairly. Just as we can get airplanes by paying a fair wage to the workmen.

The young men may be physically able to render the active service. But that does not relieve the rest of us from the responsibility of paying them. Every American should be willing to do his part toward defending this Nation and in my opinion they are.

Mr. Speaker, there has been no consideration given the school systems of this country. Where are we to get our doctors? Where are we going to get our scientists? What provision, if any, has been made to give any consideration to farming-agricultural colleges, engineering, etc? For 150 years we have been working and striving to try to lift the standard of education in this country, and we have done a pretty job of it, but tonight with a smile on the War Department's face we draft these boys and think nothing of it.

I do not know. I wish that we could feel satisfied about this case. But we know what the War Department wants. I have always had the feeling that all strong men were ambitious and sooner or later must have certain safeguards to keep them from going too far. The man who wants too much power should not have it, and a man who loves to exercise power should not be trusted with it. I feel that way about this, If the War Department had given enlistments a fair chance, you know the War Department would have the men.

Mr. FOLGER. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BARDEN. I yield to the gentleman from North Carolina.

Mr. FOLGER. May I ask the gentleman if the reading of this report and the contemplation of all this legislation does not lead to the inevitable conclusion that this establishes a military hierarchy in the United States?

Mr. BARDEN. The gentleman is undoubtedly correct and I fear this will be a case of the camel's nose under the tent. The SPEAKER. The time of the gentleman from North Carolina has expired.

Mr. ANDREWS of New York. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. MITCHELL].

Mr. MITCHELL. Mr. Speaker, 2 weeks ago I was prepared to vote in favor of selective service. But I have always reserved my right to make a decision on important legislation until such time as I have heard the debate pro and con. I listened with a great deal of interest to the debate in the House for the last 3 days, and I have arrived at the one conclusion, and that is that the State Department and the administration have furnished the Committee on Armed Services with misinformation right down the line.

No one can accuse me of being an isolationist or pacifist. I say there are three to four million veterans, who recently completed a shooting war, here in the United States, all combat veterans, all in good shape. We veterans, I being one of them, will be happy to meet any emergency. We will go forward and do what we can to keep enemies from our shores.

I cannot find where the Army has done anything but discourage enlistments. They have done nothing to encourage them. I have talked to high-ranking generals, admirals, captains in the Navy, in the Army, and Marine Corps, and the Air Force, particularly. They say that there is only one group that wants this draft, and that is the Army. The brass hats, Mr. Speaker, want this draft, and they want it badly.

I want to tell you, and tell you sincerely, that I voted against this bill, and

I will vote against it again. I feel that the greatest fraud is being perpetrated on the American people in this draft legislation that has ever been heaped upon them. It has been repeatedly stated, and correctly so, that our standing Army, Navy, and Air Force is adequate to defend our shores. If an emergency exists, as has been pointed out by the Armed Services Committee, then let us draft everyone: let us put a ceiling on profits: let us take the profits out of war; let us, as the gentleman from Montana [Mr. Mansfield | said the other day, put a ceiling on wages and prices; let us freeze ourselves into a war economy; let us bring ourselves up to strength so that Soviet Russia will know we mean business, and let us not have this token draft. It is similar to bringing a ham sandwich to a banquet.

Members of the House, I implore you, vote this insidious legislation down, and if we need it, for God's sake let us put in a draft that will protect our country and not just deprive our 18- and 19-year-old boys of an education and a chance to be free and honest and not have to worry where they are going from day to day.

Mr. ANDREWS of New York. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from California [Mr. Jackson].

Mr. JACKSON of California. Speaker, it gives me a great deal of grief to follow in opposition, my able and distinguished colleague, the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. MITCHELL]. During the course of this debate we have seen and heard the highest and the lowest expressions of comedy, pathos, and deep sin-cerity. We have heard ridicule heaped upon a committee of the house which committee has put a considerable amount of effort, thought, and work in bringing out this piece of vitally needed legislation. We have seen artists in poesy and prose rise to the heights of histrionics and to the depths of abuse. I. for one. am for this legislation, and I intend to vote for it.

The point that is to be decided here tonight is only this: Do you want an adequate defense for the United States of America or do you not? No matter how flowery or how adequate your remarks in the Congressional Record, the 140,-000,000 people of this country are going to render their decision on your individual vote on this matter. In spite of what the President has said about "Dear Old Joe" Stalin, that same dear old Joe is playing for keeps; he is not playing for marbles, money, or chalk. He has a blueprint for conquest, and oratory may be expected to leave him cold. There is no adequate national defense in high comedy and there is no defense in low comedy. Gay reparteé, while amusing, wins no battles. The only way to impress "Dear Old Joe" is in an adequate force of trained men equipped and ready to maintain the peace.

If this legislation is voted down, Mr. Speaker, tomorrow there will be smiles of derisive satisfaction in the Kremlin, and all that we have attempted to do in the way of building a stronger and a finer world will have come to naught, and, indeed, you can then say that all of the billions that we have spent will have been poured down the rat hole.

There is only one question, and that is, Are you for national defense or are you against it?

Mr. ANDREWS of New York, Mr. Speaker, I yield 5 minutes to the gentleman from Missouri [Mr. Short].

Mr. SHORT. Mr. Speaker, it is just a little encouraging and heartening to hear the young patriotic American, veteran of this last global conflict, who volunteered for extra-hazardous service, and who has received two Presidential citations for the dangerous missions he carried out as one of the demolition divers-I am referring to the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. MITCHELL]-who has spoken here very frankly and very courageously. He is not the only one of his kind who opposes this draft bill. I know, of course, there are Members of this body who can speak with an air of dogmatic finality on all matters pertaining to foreign affairs. They even know more about our national defense and military affairs than the members of our committee. At least they

It is too bad I did not have my good friend, the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. Shafer], on my team yesterday as I went forth to that bloody, prolonged battle. I merely want to say now what I said shortly following the roll-call vote yesterday:

Mr. Short. I merely wish to repeat what I said in general debate yesterday: I know I am going to be a lonely figure; I am going to be here alone. My hands are tied, but I will fight over there. And then they will bring it back and throw the conference report into your laps. I hope that you have enough conscience, and courage, and conviction to rise up and vote on that conference report when it is returned to you.

I knew, I think, pretty well in advance, and I am no seer or prophet or a son of a prophet, but anyone with a thimbleful of brains could have prognosticated rather accurately the kind of conference report you would receive today.

We opened the conference informally and not altogether legally at 11 o'clock yesterday morning, and we sat there from 11 until 6 o'clock, seven long hours. I remarked at the beginning of the conference that if I wanted to be nasty and mean I could delay and prolong the conference. I could object until one or two Senators had finally run down, taking the whole night, of course, to do it. But I did not try to be too stubborn or obstreperous. Of course, I could not in clear conscience and in my best judgment sign the report. We did not have a com-promise, we had a capitulation, and as is always the case, the lonely figure that I was then, I come back to hand this report to you today.

What is the rush in passing it tonight? We are not going to adjourn sine die, we are going to be brought back here. You know why they want to vote on this report at this late hour, when we are all tired and worn, irritable and suffering with the jitters due to hard work, little sleep, and much-debated differences of opinion on many pieces of legislation. They do not want you to go back home and hear from your farmers and organized labor. They do not want you to hear from the churches and schools and the educators. They do not want you to hear from the fathers and mothers or the youths themselves about this bill. They are afraid. When you get back on the stump in September and October this fall, and you are telling your people about the grave emergency that we are in, while Harry has been riding back and forth across the country on his nonpolitical tour-at the taxpayers' expense, when Congress is going to recess or adjourn for several months, some of them to take trips all over the country or to go abroad, I am afraid that these mothers and fathers are not going to be greatly impressed by your argument about the great emergency that we are in. Gentlemen, you who have read the minority views on this legislation know that our reasoning is fundamentally sound and our logic is unanswerable. Some of you have not read that report, but you are going to hear more about it, perhaps from your opponents when you get into the thick of the fight. You have to search your own consciences and vote your own convictions. I cannot add much to what already has been said. This measure is unnecessary, expensive, and dangerous. It will regiment our people and our industry, lower our standard of living and threaten our private enterprise. It strikes a blow at our liberty.

Mr. RAMEY. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. SHORT. I gladly yield to my good friend.

Mr. RAMEY. The gentleman speaks about conscience. I supported this bill. We have always spoken about tolerance in the Congress of the United States. Why did the conferees discriminate against the Christian Scientists in the conference?

Mr. SHORT. I do not believe they did. All of us, I think-at least I hope-are against religious intolerance and bigotry. I know that the gentleman from Ohio, Judge RAMEY believes in and practices religious liberty. He is always fair and just. Being a devout believer in Christian Science, I am glad to see him alert to see that no discrimination is made against them. All denominations will be given equal justice under this bill. The conferees thought it best not to mention specifically any one particular faith, sect, or creed. In justice to the conference, I think this matter was handled satisfactorily.

Mr. ANDREWS of New York. The Christian Scientists fall within the terms of the bill as it now comes to us. There is no discrimination. The gentleman's statement is quite incorrect.

Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. CRAWFORD].

INCORPORATING VIRGIN ISLANDS CORPORATION

Mr. CRAWFORD. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to take from the Speaker's table the bill (H. R. 5904) to incorporate the Virgin Islands Corporation, and for other purposes, with Senate amendments thereto, disagree to the Senate amendments, and agree to the conference asked by the Senate.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Michigan? [After a pause.] The Chair hears none, and appoints the following conferees: Messrs. CRAWFORD, LECOMPTE, LE-FEVRE, FERNANDEZ, and ENGLE of California.

SELECTIVE SERVICE ACT OF 1948

Mr. ANDREWS of New York. Mr. Speaker, I yield 5 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from Georgia, the minority leader on our committee [Mr.

Mr. VINSON. Mr. Speaker, of course the House was very much entertained by the speech of the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. SHAFER] in his vein of ridicule of the conference and the conferees. Of course, that is old tactics for anyone who cannot meet an argument. It is tactics that oftentimes we ourselves engage in with our opponents. When we are unable to answer arguments and facts and a reasonable position, then we seek to

My mind goes back, if I am not in error, to the time that the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. Shafer] some years ago, in 1940, was also one who signed a a minority report against the draft bill at that time. So we find the gentleman from Michigan today occupying in this crisis which now confronts the country, the same position which he occupied when a crisis confronted the country in 1940. Of course, Mr. Speaker, the leopard never changes his spots.

Mr. SHAFER. Mr. Speaker, will the

gentleman yield?

Mr. VINSON. No; I do not yield. Mr. SHAFER. Now you have made a statement.

Mr. VINSON. I do not yield. I do not yield, Mr. Speaker, because the gentleman from Michigan has made his bed. Let him lie in it.

Mr. SHAFER. I made my bed; yes. Mr. VINSON. I do not yield, Mr.

Speaker.

Mr. SHAFER. The situation is not the same today as it was in 1940, and the gentleman knows it.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman declines to yield.

Mr. TWYMAN. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a point of order.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will

Mr. TWYMAN. The point is, Is the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. SHAFER] the point, or is it the matter under dis-

The SPEAKER. The gentleman does not state a point of order.

Mr. RAYBURN. Mr. Speaker, I trust the Speaker does not allow that kind of a statement to be made, using the time of the gentleman from Georgia.

The SPEAKER. The Chair will protect the time of the gentleman from

Mr. VINSON. Now, Mr. Speaker, the logic of this conference report, reducing it down to 21 months, after our inability to get 18 months, was due, and I particularly call this to the attention of the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. Rich], to the fact that it saves $500,000,000. It is far more economical to the taxpayers of America to have a draft of 21 months than a draft of 12 months. It is $500,-000,000 in the taxpayers' pockets in that length of time.

Now, let us see if the gentleman from Michigan, who is so concerned about economy, is willing now to try to save the taxpayers some money.

Mr. RICH. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. VINSON. I yield.

Mr. RICH. You will never save $500,-000,000 when you take the boys away from their homes against their will and put them into the Army. That is not saving money. It is doing the very thing that the Constitution of the United States does not permit.

Mr. VINSON. Now, the gentleman has made a speech.

If this House tonight adopts the 1-year term of enlistment or induction, then you will have to pay $500,000,000 more to support the draftees than you would if you had the 21-month provision.

Mr. COLE of New York. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield? Mr. VINSON. I yield.

Mr. COLE of New York. And further than that, it would be necessary to induct some 400,000 additional American youth.

Mr. VINSON. Exactly.

Now, Mr. Speaker, in the few remaining minutes that I have, I wish to say this is an important bill. The security of the Nation is involved in whether or not you have a sufficient Army. The thing that led to World War I-and I was right here—was the unpreparedness of your country. Some of you served here before World War II.

You saw the unpreparedness that led to World War II. If you continue the policy in 1949 and 1950 that we followed in those years, you will be sowing the seed for the third world war.

If you adopt the stern policy and let the world know that this country is ready to back up her arguments when she is confronted with questions, you can keep the peace. You cannot negotiate when you are weak but you can negotiate when you are strong. Let this world know that we are strong. This will insure and guard a lasting peace.

The SPEAKER. The time of the gentleman from Georgia has expired.

Mr. ANDREWS of New York. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. VAN ZANDT].

Mr. VAN ZANDT. Mr. Speaker, I am for this bill even though I am against a peacetime draft.

I sat in this Congress back in the days of 1939 and 1940 and voted against selective service at that time. Many of you will recall when I left this House and reported to active duty, and it took me to the North Atlantic and then to Pearl Harbor. There I saw the remains of our battleships, the Utah, the Oklahoma, the Arizona, the California, the Pennsylvania, several destroyers, and smaller craft; and then saw them lift the bodies of sailors and officers from the holds of those ships. Then I went on into the Pacific and took part in 26 invasions under General MacArthur, sending one assault wave after another ashore. Boys died at my right and at my left, but the good Lord took care of me and returned me to this Congress

When I landed in San Diego with my ships in January of 1946, the newspapers asked me for a statement, and I stated then and there that I would never again vote against national defense, but would always be for preparedness. It is for that reason that I am for preparedness tonight and intend to support this preparedness bill.

Mr. Speaker, last January, when discussion began on this bill. I was opposed to it. I listened to others who opposed it, and was told by them the veterans, the church people, the college people, and the fathers and mothers were opposed to it. The majority of you know that almost every week end I am somewhere in the United States addressing groups of veterans and others. Therefore, I visited with the church people, the college people, I rubbed elbows with the veterans, and talked to the fathers and mothers; and, frankly, did not find the opposition to preparedness they who oppose this bill have preached about for the past several months.

Mr. JACKSON of California. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. VAN ZANDT. I yield. Mr. JACKSON of California. I wish to say that I have several hospitals in my district where there are hundreds and thousands of veterans of the criminal negligence of this country on their backs

Mr. VAN ZANDT. That is right.
Mr. POTTER. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield for a short observation?

Mr. VAN ZANDT. I am sorry, I cannot yield further.

Mr. Speaker, as you know I served in World War I and when that war was won like others I took a solemn pledge that everything in my power would be done never again to let this country find itself unprepared. Well in 1941 we were again caught unprepared and could have lost the war were it not for our friends who held the lines until we built the world's greatest fighting machine.

Mr. Speaker, this is a national defense measure and I say approve it. Give to our national defense adequate manpower so we, the American people, have a defense capable of giving to all of us the security we are entitled to.

The SPEAKER. The time of the gentleman from Pennsylvania has expired.

Mr. ANDREWS of New York. Mr. Speaker, I yield 4 minutes to the gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. BATES].

Mr. BATES of Massachusetts. Mr. Speaker, the foreword of this bill reads in part as follows:

To provide for the common defense, for increasing the strength of the armed forces of the United States.

Mr. Speaker, in the minds of some of the opponents of this legislation, it seems we are coming down to the real issue as to whether it should be 18 or 21 months. Our good friend, the gentle-man from North Carolina [Mr. BARDEN], said that the overwhelming majority of the Members of the House believe it ought to be 18 months. Mr. Speaker, we did struggle with that issue in the committee, and the plain fact is that if we are going to train these boys, it will ordinarily take about 8 months to do that. If we ship them overseas it takes another month and a half. That makes 9½ months. There is another month and a half to get back, which is 11 months. If we provide 18 months' service, that will allow 7 months' actual service overseas.

do

The question is whether or not in the interest of the boys who are serving over there, both in the European and Asiatic areas, whether they have the right to have some replacements.

Mr. Speaker, some of us are quite personally interested in this legislation. We know from bitter experience what war means and the tragedy of war in some of our homes. I said yesterday and say again today, that I have three of my own in the service today and another one going in. I therefore have some interest, from a personal standpoint, as to just what this legislation means from the standpoint of the father and mother. We are also interested in the broader question as to whether or not this legislation is in the interest of the security of these great United States of America. Some question has been raised by certain of the speakers as to what the emergency is, whether or not any of the witnesses appearing before the committee have stated that an emergency does exist. Well, the President of the United States appointed a Commission to investigate the advisability of the institution of a universal-military-training program. Among those appointed was Professor Compton, chairman of the Commission, also president of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and an outstanding citizen of this country. When he appeared before the Armed Service Committee I asked him the question as to whether or not in his opinion there was a critical situation in the world today. Professor Compton, of the President's Commission, said that in his opinion the situation is more serious today that what it was in 1938 when we instituted the 20-percent expansion in the Navy, in 1940 when we instituted the draft, and in 1941 when we extended the Rev. Father Walsh, another member of that commission, and an outstanding student and authority on world affairs, said in answer to the same question that he believes there is a greater menace today than what there was during the period I mentioned a moment ago.

Secretary Forrestal states that the sit-

Are we to believe those men or are we to believe some of these people who are giving advice but know nothing about the international situation? We should in the interest of world peace and our own future security approve the legislation now before us.

The SPEAKER. The time of the gentleman from Massachusetts has expired,

Mr. ANDREWS of New York. Mr. Speaker, I am following the schedule I have prepared in that I am dividing the time between those who are in favor of the bill and those who I understand are opposed to it.

Mr. Speaker I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. GAVIN].

Mr. GAVIN. Mr. Speaker, like my good friend and colleague the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. VAN ZANDT], I am for this bill. You know it is a strange procedure that we saw in this House the last several days—a strange spectacle that alarms me. After World War I we sank our battleships, we dismantled our fortifications, and we placed our trust in people that we thought were as rightminded as we were. We listened to the pacifists. We thought we had fought a war to end all wars. What happened? Did we bring peace to the world? No. Out of it came the Trotzkys, the Lenins, the Stalins, the Hitlers, the Goerings, the Himmlers, and Mussolinis and if you believe you can curb the ambitions of periodic dictators who arise to disturb the equilibrium of the world unless you stand prepared you are mistaken. So, again, after World War II, what happened; we listened to the pacifists and propaganda-the war is over, so we rushed to demobilize our Army, our Navy, and our Air Corps, and we paved the way again for this world unrest that is giving us grave convern. Today we have the spectacle here in the House of men, who actually have been over there, holding this program rather lightly. They have seen the utter destruction and devastation, they know the critical situation that ex-They have seen what has happened. They know that the world is in a desperate plight and that any slight incident may be upon us at any time that would catapult us into another war, and still we are going down the pathway of pacifist peace that may ultimately lead us into another world catastrophe, wishfully thinking and praying to God that conditions will right themselves. We have had over 1,300,000 casualties in two wars. We have spent $400,000,000,000. Is it not about time that we wake up and build up our national security to protect this great Nation of ours and all that it represents? Let us be practical realists. I am sick and tired of sacrificing each generation of American youth in the futile wars of Europe, and therefore preparedness is one of the paramount issues in world affairs today. We should stand back of our national defense program. As General Smuts, that great South African leader, said, "Peace without the power to back it up becomes but an empty dream."

I would like to ask my good friend the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. Potter], who has a distinguished record as a combat soldier and one who has suffered the cruelties of war, to express his opinion on what he thinks about national preparedness.

Mr. POTTER. The gentleman knows

Mr. GAVIN. You, my very good friend, tell this House what you think.

Mr. POTTER. I thank the distinguished and able gentleman. I cannot be facetious; I cannot joke; I cannot ridicule any Member of the House or committee of this great body or our military leaders who won us a great victory in World War II. This is too serious a proposition to treat lightly. I feel very keenly about this legislation. Well do I remember Pearl Harbor. I was in a little cottage near my home town in Michigan when the news reached us of the bombing of Pearl Harbor. I remember after that bombing news commentators quoting Members of Congress bragging that the war would not last 6 months. In 6 months we would be running the Japs back to their islands and into the ocean. We know what happened. We know that many thousands of men lost their lives in a long war. We found out that we were not prepared to protect ourselves. The disabled veterans in our hospitals favor a strong national defense program. and if they had this opportunity they would certainly vote for this measure to provide a strong national defense.

The SPEAKER. The time of the gentleman from Pennsylvania has expired.

Mr. ANDREWS of New York. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. Philbin] be permitted to extend his remarks at this point in the Record.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New York?

There was no objection.

Mr. PHILBIN. Mr. Speaker, the fateful hour is at hand when this House must determine an issue that will gravely affect the future of our country. We must decide whether America will continue as a great dynamic democracy or whether we will henceforth indenture the youth of the land into military enslavement.

This report should be voted down. It completely emasculates the House bill which contained a 1-year service limitation and which would suspend the operation of the draft until next January. Other vital amendments put into the bill in the committee were also eliminated. The result of the conference—if it was indeed a legal conference—was not to compromise with the Senate but to capitulate completely to the other body on virtually every important point incorporated into the bill by the expressed will of the House.

Let no one vote for this bill on the theory that it is necessary to effect national preparedness. Practically all the opponents of this bill favor strong national defense. I favor—I strongly favor and have worked for-a strong, vigorous national defense, on land, sea, and in the air, a great Navy which can continue to command the high seas, a scientificallytrained Army, comprised of volunteers. trained in modern technical skills. adapted to modern inventions and weapons. I favor an overwhelming Air Corps so thoroughly equipped with manpower and latest types of aircraft and equipped with the atomic bomb and every other new scientific weapon and agent.

I believe this kind of force can be built and based upon the voluntary system. The Navy has no difficulty getting enlisted personnel. The Air Corps is turning away men. Only the land Army massed Army—claims that compulsion is necessary. This is true militarism.

The National Guard and the Organized Reserve have been woefully neglected. They should be brought to full strength, ROTC units should be expanded; disaster components organized and trained; industrial coordination and training perfected; scientific research and development promoted.

There is no true present national There is no imminent danemergency. ger of war. If there is an emergency, this draft is not enough. If there is no emergency it is too much, because it inevitably abandons the traditional American system and adopts the continental Prussian system of regimentation which has in ariably led to bankruptcy and war. Let no one deceive himself that the American people will believe there is a present crisis and emergency when they behold the spectacle of this Congress passing a draft bill and then recessing for the political conventions.

Three million or ten million men in massed armies cannot match Russia with manpower. America will protect the Nation and win future wars, not with massed manpower alone, but by utilizing our superior industrial potential and by the quality of our young men, their training, their courage, and their willingness to sacrifice and die, if necessary, for their country, and their scientific arms and equipment.

The conference report negates the action of the House in Committee. It should be defeated. I will vote against the report and against the bill and against every other measure which would threaten or destroy precious American individual liberty. This bill means ultimate military dictatorship in the United States, possible bankruptcy, and war. It will come back to plague not only the Nation but those who by their votes may make its adoption possible tonight.

Mr. ANDREWS of New York. Mr. Speaker, I yield 5 minutes to the gentleman from New York [Mr. WADSWORTH].

Mr. WADSWORTH. Mr. Speaker, this may well prove to be a historic moment. What the historian of the future will say we cannot predict with absolute certainty, but I think no one within the sound of my voice will deny that we are facing an exceedingly important issue. It is not the first critical issue that we have faced in the Congress of the United States in the last 10 or 12 years. We have faced others in the past. Upon one or two occasions, if my memory is correct, we had some very, very narrow escapes from fatal error.

What is our situation today? I shall not indulge in any personalities or criticize any person here present, any Member of this great body, for the expressions of opinion which he has uttered, but what is our situation today? Actually, the whole world is looking at us. No one will deny that. The Tass news service will carry the story that is written here tonight, and what goes on here tonight will be known tomorrow and the day after in country after country. The decision we make here tonight may bring encouragement to some people who are a potential menace to freedom, and discouragement or encouragement, as the case may be, to millions who are devoted to freedom and look to us as their champion. One result or the other will come out of this debate and from this vote.

What does this legislation propose to do? It proposes the organization of an efficient military force which will command respect. The military force which is inefficient or shallow, undisciplined, untrained, does not command respect despite its numbers. It is for that rea-son that I believed that the 2-year term of enlistment would provide a much more efficient force than the 12-month term of enlistment, which I am positive cannot do such a thing. The turn-over would be too great. You cannot have efficiency in a military force in which you teach men, we will say, to be good soldiers and sailors, and then discharge them and bring in raw recruits all over again. It just cannot be done.

I will not deny for one moment that the perfection of our defense involves

Reading history, I have never yet found an instance in which the defense of liberty and its preservation did not involve some sacrifice-sometimes terrific sacrifice, and of course this bill involves some sacrifice from the American people. I think it is a sacrifice very well worth making. If we hesitate, if we draw back for some of the sentimental reasons expressed in this debate, people in other countries will get the idea that we do not care to sacrifice. I hope that the House of Representatives this night will show the world that America intends to be strong in support of righteousness.

Mr. ANDREWS of New York. Mr. Speaker, I move the previous question. The previous question was ordered.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT

Mr. REES of Kansas. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to take from the Speaker's table the bill (H. R. 6916) to provide for permanent postal rates and additional compensation for postmasters and employees of the field service in the Post Office Department, with Senate amendments thereto, disagree to the Senate amendments, and ask for a conference with the Senate.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Kansas?

Mr. SMITH of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, the House would like to know just what is involved in this bill, or at least some Members of the House would like to know.

Mr. REES. I will say to the gentleman that the House approved the bill, H. R. 6916, which provided for certain increases in postal rates and made a further provision for increases in the salaries of postal employees across the board of $450 per year. Then there is a percentage increase for the fourthclass postmasters and a smaller increase for those who are employed on a per diem basis. The bill went to the other body for consideration, and that body has seen fit to strike out that portion of the bill providing for an increase in postage rates, and has attached among other things a reclassification act.

Mr. SMITH of Ohio. What is the cost involved in each of those two categories?

Mr. REES. The approximate cost on the first category is $206,000,000. The approximate cost on the second category is between $300,000,000 and $350,000,000.

Mr. SMITH of Ohio. The number of Federal employees is presently increasing at the rate of 600 a day so that the cost would be approximately $600,000,000, is that correct?

Mr. REES. The gentleman can figure it out. There are about 850,000 employees in the classified service. If you multiply that by the amount of increase in their salaries, then you can figure it out and can know just what the amount

Mr. SMITH of Ohio. This House has had no opportunity whatever to consider the matter.

Mr. HALLECK. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman withhold his objection?

Mr. SMITH of Ohio. Yes.

Mr. HALLECK. May I remind the gentleman that pursuant to the rule under which we are operating we can get the bill to conference. May I say to the gentleman I am convinced that the bill must go to conference. There are certain other provisions that have been inserted by the other body which I do not think will be found in the bill when it comes back.

I believe a satisfactory arrangement can be worked out. I have asked for this opportunity to make this suggestion only to express the hope that in the interest of expedition of the work we may proceed with this matter of the conference.

Mr. SMITH of Ohio. May I ask this question: The bill goes to conference. When it returns from conference, will the same opportunity be provided for considering the matter?

Mr. HALLECK. Of course not. If the conference report comes back in agreement, then the motion is on agreeing to the conference report, and it would be in order, under the rules under which we are operating, and the vote would be up or down on the conference report.

Mr. SMITH of Ohio. I do not care at this late hour to detain the House, of course, or cause any more inconvenience than is absolutely necessary. I do want to state, however, that the manner in which this legislation is being handled is hardly what the people of this Nation expected from a Republican Congress.

I withdraw my reservation to object. The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Kansas [Mr. REES]? [After a pause.] The Chair hears none, and appoints the following conferees: Mr. REES, Mr. STEvenson, Mr. Murray of Tennessee, and Mr. LYLE.

EMPIRE PARLIAMENTARY ASSOCIATION

The SPEAKER. Pursuant to the provisions of House Concurrent Resolution 201, Eightieth Congress, the Chair appoints the following Members on the part of the House to attend the meeting of the Empire Parliamentary Association to be held in Bermuda beginning November 15, 1948: Mr. Talle, of Iowa, chairman; Mr. Corbett, of Pennsylvania; Mr. KEFAUVER, of Tennessee; Mr. Worley, of Texas.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS THE HOUSE

Mrs. DOUGLAS. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to address the House and to revise and extend my remarks.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentlewoman from California?

There was no objection.

Mrs. DOUGLAS. Mr. Speaker, after the adjournment of this Congress, there is going to be a lot of talk by the Republicans about what this Congress has done for the people. Minor accomplishments are going to be blown up into something of major significance. Major legislation which aids the special interests and which really is detrimental to the interests of the common people is going to be distorted into accomplishments for all the people.

The reasons for magnifying small accomplishments and distorting the benefits of the important legislation which has been passed are obvious. The Republican Party will have to do these things, for it can honestly point to precious few accomplishments which are of benefit to the common man. Rather, its record in this Congress is one of doing things to the common man and precious little for him. The Republican Party has bowed to the will of the powerful special interests and has turned a deaf ear to the voice of the people.

Whenever bills which suit the specialinterest lobbies have come before Congress they have received sympathetic and prompt attention of the Republicandominated committees and have been pushed through the Congress under the whip of Republican leadership. Only the veto of the President has prevented the enactment of some of the most vicious legislation. But legislation which is in the interest of the common people, such as bills providing health and sound education programs and extending social security has received hostile attention and inaction in committees. Their advocates have been bullied and harrassed by the Republicans for even suggesting that the Congress do the things which the people need, while their selfish opponents have been accorded the courtesy characteristic of fellow members of an exclusive club. Even when, under the insistent demands of the people, such legislation as housing has been reported for action in this House, the Republican leadership has cracked the whip and has prevented the members from having the opportunity to vote.

Before examining what this Congress has not done, let us take a look at its accomplishments and see whether they do things for the people or to the people.

I am quite confident that the tax reduction voted in this session is going to be proclaimed throughout the country as a major accomplishment of the Republicans for the people. It is quite true that in making a $7,500 gift to the typical family with a $50,000 income that this Congress threw a $114 sop to the $3,000 family. That small saving may look good on the small taxpayer's income-tax return. But he would have been a lot better off if the Republican Congressmen who wailed so much about the inflationary effects of deficit financing when we were at war had applied these gifts for the rich to deflationary reduction of the public debt in these times of high incomes and high prices. The President's tax program which would have reduced taxes for the typical family, rich and poor, by $160, and which would have raised corporate taxes would have done more for most people in both their tax bills and the cost of living.

The bipartisan foreign-aid program is, in my judgment, the only major constructive legislation which has been enacted by this Congress. Quite aside from the humanitarian aspects, the common people have a real interest in this, because it means the protection of democratic institutions at home and abroad and, with an effective international organization, holds the major hope for peace in our time. Yet when it came to implementing this program in these times of peril, the Republican record is unbelievably bad. Under the lash of the Republican leadership, this House passed a bill which would have chopped off 25 percent of the money which this Congress, after long deliberation, had determined would be the minimum needs of our fellow democracies for postwar recovery. The amounts that have been restored will not undo the harm which this meat-ax philosophy or the intemperate remarks of the Republican diehards have done to the preservation of democratic governments abroad.

And then there is the reciprocal trade program, which for many years has become the symbol of this country's willingness to do business abroad. Despite the dependence of foreign democracies on these reciprocal trade pacts for their survival, despite the interests of the common man in this country in a healthy foreign trade for jobs and reasonable prices, the Republicans in this House yielded to the pressure of the hightariff lobbies which think more of profits than of world security. In extending the authority for reciprocal trade agreements for only 1 year and imposing unworkable restrictions, this House would have all but wrecked this program. Fortunately the Senate eliminated the worst restrictions, but the crisis precipitated by the Republican leadership in this House serves notice to the people of the kind of special-interest legislation which can be expected if the Republicans are returned to power. The actions taken and not taken show the Republicans in the House of Representatives are essentially isolationist.

Another accomplishment of the Republicans is the crippling of the services of the Federal Government to the people. They have done this by meat-axe appropriations methods and by driving out of Government service thousands of conscientious and efficient officials and employees. They are going to distort this accomplishment by bragging about how they have reduced Government expenses. Actually the total reductions they have accomplished over and above the budget estimates submitted by the Democratic Administration are a mirage. compounded of country bookkeeping. The facts are that while the Republicans have been very generous with the taxpayers' money and with the assets of this Government when the special interests have been involved, they have wielded the meat axe on services to the common people.

The exodus of capable people from the Government service and the demoralization of those who remained are due to failure of the Congress to adjust salaries to the costs of living, by irresponsible and trumped-up charges, and by the constant threats of insecurity. By these tactics the Republicans have threatened one of the foundations of democratic government-that of sound and efficient administration.

Any review of the accomplishments of the Republican Congress would be inadequate if it did not include the curtailment of the right of the laboring man to organize and have free political expression which was accomplished under the Taft-Hartley Act. Another accomplishment of the Republican Party is returning the Atomic Energy Commission to partisan politics, despite the earlier determination of Congress that the development of this resource, on which the fate of the world depends, should be free of political maneuvering. This Congress reversed that decision by renewing the appointments of the members of the Commission for only 2 years.

These are the accomplishments of this Republican Congress. Now, let us take a look at the much larger list of things which this Congress has failed to do for the people.

What has the Congress done about the rising cost of living which, day by day, is reducing the pay checks and savings of workers? Early this session the President outlined a 10-point program, aside from the reduction of the Federal debtto control inflation. Congress has done nothing on most of these recommendations and enacted inadequate measures on the others. It has done nothing on credit controls, on regulation of commodity exchanges, on regulating marketing practices for livestock and poultry, on allocation and inventory controls, on selective rationing, and on authorizing price ceilings on products in short supply. It has done something about export controls. It has done something about encouraging conservation practices for foreign agriculture, but nothing for domestic agriculture. It extended rent control, but failed to remove those weakening provisions which this Congress enacted last year. The inaction of this Congress, according to economists, will result in a continuing spiral of inflation.

The President recommended a program of health insurance, in order that workingmen would be able to afford adequate medical and hospital service. The accomplishment of the Congress is exactly nothing.

For a while this year it looked as if at long last this Nation was to have a longterm, comprehensive housing program that would eliminate the accumulated housing deficit by which 3,000,000 families are denied homes and clean out the slums in which over 5,000,000 families The comprehensive housing bill was passed by the Senate under bipartisan sponsorship; after extended hearings a few Republicans joined with the Democrats on the Banking and Currency Committee of this House to recommend passage of similar legislation. But when the real estate lobby put on the pressure, the Republican leadership cracked the whip. Six men sitting on the Rules Committee denied the Members of the House the opportunity to vote on this bill. The results on housingnothing.

The plight of education in this country, which has previously held up its head with pride for its accomplishments in this field, is a disgrace. Average salaries of teachers are less than $2,000, many are under $1,000. Some 350,000 teachers have given up the fight for public service to enter more lucrative avocations. Classes are overcrowded and school facilities are wholly inadequate. Particularly because of higher prices, many States and local communities are unable to do anything and have come to the Federal Government for help. A bill providing $300,000,000 in Federal aid to education was passed by the Senate, but it never came out of committee in this House. The Republican accomplishment in education-exactly nothing.

Several years ago, this Government enacted a minimum wage law, to assure American workers at least enough money to eke out a bare existence. This was established at 40 cents an hour. It is obvious that an income of $16 a week is inadequate today with $3 shirts and $10 shoes. The President recommended that minimum wages be raised from 40 cents to 75 cents. The Republican accomplishment-nothing.

The President, on frequent occasions, has recommended an extension of the Social Security system to include several million workers, such as farm laborers, employees of Federal, State, and local governments, domestic workers and selfemployed people. The legislative program enacted by the Republican Congress was a small increase in benefits to the aged, blind, and dependent children, a reduction in the number of employees eligible for further benefits. The Republican accomplishment is for all practical purposes meaningless.

The overhauling of the Nation's agricultural program has been a necessity in the interest of both the farmers and consumers. The President recommended a program calling for a flexible system of price supports, an expansion of soil conservation, the strengthening of consumption of agricultural productions, assistance to farmers' cooperatives and an extension of crop insurance. Instead of acting on this program, Congress merely extended the present aids to agriculture. The Republican accomplishment-noth-

One of the gravest dangers to democracy in America today is the increasing control over our economy by monopolies. Antitrust legislation needs to be strengthened to give the Government more effective means of breaking up monopolies and control public utilities. But instead of legislating for the people and small business, this Congress enacted legislation which removes the railroads from liability under the antitrust laws. The Republican accomplishment—less than nothing.

Summing up, this Republican Congress has been a Congress of the special interests who make up campaign contributions and not of the common people. It has cut taxes for the rich in an era of record profits, and thrown a few crumbs to wage and salary earners. It has crippled the Federal service by irresponsible and unjustified attacks on honest and capable public servants, by failure to raise Government salaries to meet higher living costs, by creating insecurity and by meat-ax appropriations methods which have not effectively reduced Government costs. It has returned the Nation's most powerful and dangerous resource, atomic energy, to the realm of partisan politics. It has failed to do most of the things necessary to stop inflation. It has done nothing about the health, housing, and education of the people. It has failed to increase minimum wages and has reduced, rather than increased, the number of workers eligible for the benefits of social security. It has failed to bring the farm program up to date. Instead of strengthening the laws to deal with the growing power of monopolies, it has removed one important industry, the railroads, from the reach of existing legislation.

This Congress' only accomplishment for the people was its cooperation in a foreign-aid program. And then it turned right-around to nullify much of the effect by threatening to apply the meat-axe to appropriation and by weakening the reciprocal-trade program which is the symbol of America's willingness to do business with other countries.

And lastly, the leadership has refused to bring to the floor the bill that would permit the United Nations to begin building their permanent home in New York. How will this be interpreted by the rest of the world. I wonder.

FURTHER MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE

A further message from the Senate, by Mr. Carrell, one of its clerks, announced that the Senate had passed without amendment a joint resolution of the House of the following title:

H. J. Res. 433. Joint resolution permitting the free entry of certain articles imported to promote international good will, and for other purposes.

The message also announced that the Senate had passed, with amendments in which the concurrence of the House is requested, a bill of the House of the following title:

H.R. 3416. An act to provide for the establishment of the Pensacola National Monument.

The message also announced that the Senate had passed a joint resolution of the following title, in which the concurrence of the House is requested:

R. 4044) entitled "An act to amend the Trading With the Enemy Act, as amended; to create a Commission to make an inquiry and report with respect to war claims; and to provide for relief for internees in certain cases."

PURCHASE OF LANDS ON THE FORT BERTHOLD RESERVATION

Mr. D'EWART. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to extend my remarks at this point in the Record.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Montana?

There was no objection.

Mr. D'EWART. Mr. Speaker, under leave to extend my remarks, I would like to include a resolution from the affiliated tribes of the Fort Berthold Reservation, N. Dak., with reference to the proposed Garrison Dam:

THE THREE AFFILIATED TRIBES OF THE FORT BERTHOLD
RESERVATION, N. DAK.,
Elbowoods, N. Dak., June 16, 1948.

Elbowoods, N. Dak., June 16, 1948.

A resolution requesting the Congress of the United States to take action on a contract for the purchase of certain Indian lands by the United States from the Three Affiliated Tribes of Ft. Berthold Reservation:

"Whereas the Tribal Business Council of the Three Affiliated Tribes has negotiated a contract with the United States Army Engineers, acting for the United States, covering the proposed taking of approximately 155,000 acres of trust allotted and tribal lands within the Fort Berthold Reservation, N. Dak., for the Garrison Reservoir; and

"Whereas a majority of the adult members of the tribes has approved the contract; and

"Whereas the contract was submitted to the Congress before the first day of June 1948 as required by an item in the War Department's Civil Appropriations Act, 1948 (Public Law 296, 80th Cong., approved July 31, 1947); and 31, 1947); and

"Whereas in a hearing before the Subcommittee on Indian Affairs, Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs, United States Senate on June 5, 1948 to consider S. J. Res. 224 to ratify the contract it was suggested by the chairman, Senator Warkins, that since the tribes state in the language of the contract that they will seek additional relief legislation that there should be added enough provisions to the ratifying resolution to make a complete and full settlement in one piece of legislation; and

"Whereas a resolution was drafted as suggested in the preceding clause; and

"Whereas the construction of the Garrison Dam is going on with the result that with the passage of each day the flooding of our lands and homes is brought nearer and nearer and the members of the Tribes are having less and less time to relocate themselves, to salvage their timber, lignite and buildings, and to take advantage of the provisions of the contract so long as it is not ratified by the Congress; and

"Whereas each day that goes by without ratification of the contract by the Congress means a financial loss to the members of the Tribes; and

"Whereas the majority of th adult members of the tribes approved the contract in good faith and to prevent the taking of their lands by condemnation: Now, therefore, be it

"Resolved by the tribal business council of the Three Affiliated Tribes of the Fort Berthold Reservation, in special session assembled, That the appropriate committees of the Congress be, and are hereby, respectfully requested to give the earliest possible consideration to the ratification of the contract and the passage of additional provisions in the ratifying resolution by the Congress to compensate the members of the Three Affiliated Tribes for the lands to be taken from them within the Fort Berthold Reservation for the Garrison Reservoir; be it further

"Resolved, That copies of this resolution be submitted to the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, who is hereby respectfully requested to attempt to have it introduced in the records by the appropriate committees of the Congress."

The foregoing resolution was adopted by unanimous vote of the tribal business council of the Three Affiliated Tribes in a special session on June 16, 1948.

George Gillette, Chairman. Mark Mahto, Secretary.

CUBA

Mr. MARCANTONIO. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to extend my remarks at this point in the RECORD on two subjects.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New York?

There was no objection.

Mr. MARCANTONIO. Mr. Speaker, this body sitting in joint session with the Senate on April 19 celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of the independence of the Republic of Cuba. Addresses were de-livered by the President of the United States and the Cuban Ambassador to this country, Guillermo Belt.

Over the years the American people have paid little attention to the political and economic developments in our sister countries of Latin America. The recent explosion in Colombia and the complete unpreparedness of our own people to the shocking facts of life in this country is clear evidence of how little we know of what is going on at our very doorstep. The fact is that in practically every country in Latin-America today there exists tremendous ferment and unrest among the common people. Only a thin crust covers this volcano and it can erupt suddenly as we saw in Colombia a few weeks ago. Misery and poverty is the lot of the common man in all of these countries.

Cuba is no exception to this general state of affairs.

The reality of life in Cuba today is that of extremes-of great wealth for the few, of extreme poverty for the many.

And the reality of Cuban independence from the United States is worth examining. I would like to review briefly some of the high points in the political and economic history of our sister republic. I feel that it is evidence of the sort which I intend bringing forth here today which will stand as a warning to all of us of what might happen in this country.

Cuba is sugar.

More than 30 percent of the territory is in sugar production. In a country with a population of less than 5,000,000, more than 500,000 workers are employed in the sugar industry; and sugar accounts for 81 percent of the exports of the country.

As the price of sugar goes, so goes the economic well-being of the economy of Cuba. It is a fact that only when sugar prices are high and profits are large that the workers of Cuba enjoy-if one can use this word—a better standard of living. This means that in 1946, for example, when the price of sugar was the highest then on record and the sugar industry was earning the greatest profits in history that the Cuban sugar workers were averaging about $2.00 a day. And it must be remembered that for the greater number of these workers employment in the industry exists only for 3 or 4 months in each year. When we go back to the early 30's when the bottom had fallen out of the sugar market these workers were receiving a dirty hovel, a pair of overalls and sack of rice for their work in the sugar fields and sugar mills.

The fact is that despite the tremendous profits that have been earned by the sugar industry it has never furnished a livelihood much less a decent standard of living to the Cuban sugar workers. Surveys made in Cuba on housing, nutrition and the prevalence of diseases show how badly off these people are.

But this is only one side of the Cuba that is sugar. This is only the side of the There is another side of the workers. story and that is the side of the owners of these tremendous sugar plantations and sugar factories.

In 1946 there was $1,050,000,000 invested in the entire sugar industry of Cuba. United States interests accounted for more than one-half of this or over $600,000,000.

Or look at it from another point of view. The centrales or mills control the sugar industry. Farmers or colonos, all of whom are Cubans, rent land from the centrales, hire workers, and grow a crop of sugarcane. They receive a return on every 100 pounds of sugar delivered to the mills. This is a practice which in many ways is similar to the tenantfarmer system which exists in some of our southern States.

In 1946 there were 173 centrales in Cuba. Although the United States companies owned but 58 of these-about one-third-these United States mills produce more than one-half of the entire sugar crop.

Although recent figures on the ownership of land by Americans are not available, before World War II the four biggest sugar companies in Cuba had the following properties:

Cuban American Sugar, 6 factories, 770 square miles of land.

Cuban Cane Sugar Co., 12 factories, 562 square miles of land.

General Sugar Co., 9 factories, 465 square miles of land.

United Fruit Co., 2 factories, 444 square miles of land.

These four American corporations alone owned about 25 percent of all the sugar land in Cuba. In fact, it was estimated that before the war-and these holdings certainly must have grown since then-the American centrales or mills owned directly or partially about 75 percent of all the sugar land in Cuba. And with this ownership of land went ownership of villages and roads, of seaports and railways.

The United States domination goes even further however. For most of the companies which are nominally Cuban in ownership are financed by the Cuban branches of Wall Street banking houses. It would be no exaggeration to say that over 80 percent of the entire Cuban sugar industry is under United States controleither directly or indirectly.

The financial domination of Cuba by large Wall Street banking houses-at one time by the Chase National Bank of New York alone-is euphemistically described "cooperation" between American bankers and Cuban industry. It is interesting to note however that when the Cubans try to move out on their own and finance their own industry they are warned that they are harming themselves. A nationally circulated commercial newspaper said on October 20, 1947. in regard to this:

Efforts by the United States to widen the area of cooperation between itself and Cuba are likely to be partly thwarted as Cuba presses forward with plans to make itself more financially and industrially independ-

This is an amazing statement. It reveals for all of us to see that not only is the Cuban economy dominated American financial interests but those controlling groups in our own country intend to continue this domination despite any attempts by the Cubans themselves to break away.

Though the Cuban Republic is but 50 years old, in this brief span of years the country has had many bitter experiences because of its domination by American financial interests.

While Cuba was still a colony in the Spanish Empire the United States already had what was then considered to be a huge financial stake in that country. And because of this our country has always played a dominant role in Cuban politics.

It is no secret that no government has ever come into power in Cuba-or stayed there-without United States approval. And history shows that United States troops have helped remove some governments not to the liking of the United States.

When the battleship Maine was blown up in the harbor of Habana in 1898 it was anchored there to protect the American interests in that country. As early as 1895 United States companies already had over $50,000,000 invested in Cuba.

For about the first 25 years in the life of the Cuban Republic-up to the early years of the twenties-United States marines occupied Cuba almost without a break. In fact, although Cuban independence was finally proclaimed in 1902, during the political disturbances that broke out in that country between 1906 and 1909 the United States Government appointed an American governor for this so-called free country. A United States citizen, William Howard Taft, later succeeded by Charles Magoon, ruled Cuba after the Cuban President was removed, and the United States could find no satisfactory substitute.

Violent fluctuations in the price of sugar have inevitably brought about political as well as economic crises in Cuba. In 1921 when the world sugar price collapsed and Cuba faced bankruptcy, and internal revolt, it was the United States that sent General Crowder down there to keep things under control. Crowder remained in Cuba until 1927, and when he retired practically the entire economy of Cuba was completely in the hands of corporations. American The former holdings of Spanish, French, and British interests had been squeezed out.

What was the technique through which this seizure of power took place? It was obvious and it was simple. Cuba, facing bankruptcy, required foreign credit to keep the Government functioning. General Crowder had the whiphand and after he exacted the concessions he desired the "House of Morgan" lent Cuba $5,000,000 in 1921 and another fifteen million in 1923. And like any other banking house these bankers demanded security on their loans; increased American control of the political and economic life of Cuba would guarantee the "stability" of the country and of course guarantee the interest and principal of the loans. Thus American control was even more firmly established.

By the middle twenties the total United States investments in Cuba for sugar, tobacco, and public utilities amounted to almost a billion dollars. The dictator, Machado, came to power in 1927. And when, in 1933, the people revolted and he was overthrown the United States was hard put to control the situation. Machado was succeeded by Grau San Martin, the present President of Cuba.

The people's revolution that overthrew the dictator Machado swept into power a group of liberals who attempted to do something about the living conditions and the miserable poverty of the Cuban workers.

Wages in the sugar industry were ordered to be increased. The hours of the workers were ordered cut. The public utilities rates were reduced. American investors shouted loudly about communism as some high-placed people shouted a few weeks ago about communism in Colombia.

In 1933 the United States Government reacted promptly to the situation in Cuba by immediately sending 30 warships on a "good-will mission" to Habana. The State Department refused to recognize the new Cuban Government and when Grau asked that Sumner Welles, special American Ambassador to Cuba, be recalled for "holding communications and dealings with the enemies of the Government" his request was refused.

Four months after coming into office Grau was removed and a new President, Mendieta, who met the approval of the State Department was put in his place. Five days later this Government was recognized by the United States. And things were back on a peaceful keel again. The reforms of the liberal government were speedily repealed. Mendieta prohibited all strikes, dissolved the unions, and went about to create "confidence" in the new Cuban regime.

This is an expression we hear much these days. In the course of the debate on ERP we were told repeatedly that the recipient countries must establish conditions of "stability and confidence." It is a sad fact that to our State Department these words invariably mean wiping out the social advances of the workers and their attempts to improve living conditions.

In 1934 and 1935 a special American commission was sent to Cuba to survey the political and economic situation there. They reported back:

The fundamental obstacle to good relations between Cuba and the United States is the widespread belief in Cuba that the American State Department attempts to make and unmake governments, and that the present—1934—disturbed situation is an outgrowth of a plan for provisional government which Washington induced the Cubans to accept.

Since the midthirties, United States control of Cuba has increased and, although the political domination has become less open and more disguised, it still remains the main fact of Cuban economic and political life.

RECENT DEVELOPMENTS

The current situation in Cuba is a continuation of this stormy past and the result of continued interference by the United States in the internal affairs of this Republic.

The sugar industry—or, to be more exact, its American owners—are today facing a period of retrenchment. The industry is overexpanded in terms of profitable sales to this country and the future price outlook is not too certain. As a first step of this retrenchment—as employers seem to do everywhere—Cuban trade-unions are being attacked.

Over the past 6 or 8 months the country has been strife-torn. There have been kidnapings, shootings, assassinations, and bombings. The Government has quite openly taken over the entire trade-union movement. On October 15 last the Cuban Federation of Labor called a strike in Habana to defend the free trade-union movement. The strikers were charged by the Government with a conspiracy to overthrow the present regime and 2,000 workers and 150 tradeunion leaders were jailed as a result of this action. Their releases came only after world-wide protest and a 2-day hunger strike by the prisoners. Protest meetings were held all over Cuba.

Grau San Martin, the present President of Cuba, and the same man who was removed by American interference in 1933, was elected to power in 1942 through a coalition of all of the liberal groups in Cuba. But in the past year he has increasingly repudiated the support of the trade-union movement and the progressive parties and has utilized the most brazen and open techniques of intimidation and force against his former allies. The Cuban constitution forbids the President from running for office after he has served two terms. Grau San Martin's present term is his second and unless the country is in such a state of chaos that an election would be impossible he will be out of office this year. Anyone familiar with politics in Cuba would not be hard put to imagine some groups in that country are quite willing to see riot and confusion develop in Cuba if the result would mean the postponement of the elections.

On January 22 of this year Jesus Menendez, leader of the Cuban Sugar Workers Union, with some 350,000 members, and an elected member of the house of representatives of the Republic of Cuba was assassinated by a captain in the Cuban Army. Menendez who had been on a speaking tour in one of the outlying provinces was shot in the back three times because he insisted that his congressional immunity prevented his arrest.

Five hundred thousand sorrowing people turned out in the streets of Habana at the funeral of Menendez. A beloved leader of the poorest and most poverty stricken workers in that country had been shot down in cold blood.

Since the assassination of Menendez violence and terror in Cuba has increased so that today the country whose independence this House celebrated a few weeks ago is in a barely concealed turmoil which breaks forth openly in some violent action almost every day.

The Cuban people are proud and fine. They bitterly resent being treated as a colony of the United States.

Only last year this Congress sitting in its first session passed the Sugar Act of 1948, Public Law 388. It contained in section 202E an open insult to the Cuban people, in providing that their increased share in United States sugar consumption could be withdrawn if the Secretary of State found that they discriminated against nationals of the United States.

This clause was introduced to aid a few American bankers who were suing the Cuban Government in an aged litigation over a relatively small amount of money. So the United States Congress told Cuba, in effect, unless you pay this claim exactly as demanded by these private United States interests we will choke off your sugar sales in the United States.

I have introduced an amendment to the Sugar Act of 1948 repealing section 202E outright. This Congress is not a collecting agency. And the Cuban people should not be so insulted. American nationals have never yet complained about the Cuban courts. The reason why is clear from what I have already said.

At the same time I would amend title III of the Sugar Act of 1948 to include among the conditions to be met before the Secretary of Agriculture is authorized to make payments under the act the payment of a minimum wage of $5 per day to all persons employed on the farm in the production, cultivation, or harvesting of sugar beets or sugarcane.

Such an amendment—in many producing areas wages are above this minimum—would go a long way toward raising wage standards in Cuba and in Puerto Rico.

In both Cuba and Puerto Rico today the sugar industry has grown fat on the backs of misery and poverty stricken workers. This Congress has reviewed legislation guaranteeing the profits of the industry; a minimum wage provision would help raise the standard of living of the workers who grow and harvest the sugar cane.

Although Cuban growers are not eligible for payments under the act, the floor on wages, once established in Puerto Rico, would result in a similar wage floor in Cuba.

Before concluding I must mention the recent presidential elections in Cuba which resulted in the victory of Carlos Prio Socarras, recent convert to the brand of democracy practiced by Grau. Mr. Prio is a member of Grau's party and was elected on a platform of continuing the present way of doing things.

With the price of sugar continuing to fall, and with an abundant sugar crop, the Cuban people again face the tragedy of wage cutting, unemployment, and sharp reductions in production. At a time when the world demand for sugar has increased sharply over World War II levels, with the world's population greater and people everywhere hungry for the high nutritional sugar food—with world production still one and a half million tons below prewar—at such a time Cuba is embarking on a program of crop reductions, discharges of sugar workers, and wage reductions.

The new regime of President Prio will, I feel sure, use every force in its power to put through such a program in the interests of the sugar monopolists and their henchmen. The people will suffer and go hunery.

These are some of the facts of life in Cuba today. We would do well to see the ills so close to our own shores before waxing so wrought about what some claim to see in other countries of the world.

PUERTO RICO

Mr. MARCANTONIO. Mr. Speaker, the island of Puerto Rico is small, its population is great, and the working people lead a life of poverty and privation which is not duplicated in any other part of the United States. And because this is so, and because the politicians now in power are trying to ape the reactionary leaders on the mainland, this United States possession has recently produced the most outrageous spectacles of violence against workers and students; the most unrestrained of antidemocratic demonstrations have taken place in Puerto Rico.

We in Congress, in looking at Puerto Rico, can see the hysteria, the terror, and intimidation spreading like wildfire. And what is happening there will certainly take place in our own cities and towns if our reactionaries and witch hunters have their way.

In all of this the rough hand of certain misguided Puerto Rican political leaders cloaks the direction that comes from the American financial and sugar interests on the mainland. For it is these groups who are attempting to make Puerto Rico into a "paradise" for American businessmen; and a purgatory for the poor people of that island.

A recent item in the New York Herald Tribune—June 10, 1948—described Puerto Rico as "the last frontier of free enterprise, where business has a better run for its money than on the prosperous mainland."

The story goes on to quote an industrialist as saying:

You can practically write your own ticket. They'll build you a modern factory. Plenty of labor at half the scale back home; hydroelectric power; government cooperation; and no taxes for 12 years.

Behind this pleasant picture—and an essential part of it—has been the manner in which the so-called New Deal Popular Democratic Party has moved steadily away from its original program and swung further and further to the right side of big business. Convinced, according to the New York Herald Tribune story already referred to, that "private enterprise is best" Senator Muñoz-Marín, head of the Popular Democratic Party, has replaced the old theme of "state enterprise for the people" with the slogan of "private enterprise for profit."

The recent political crises reflect the strains of imposing such a callous program on a people crying desperately for social and economic reforms along the lines of our own New Deal; greater security for the poor and aged, wage increases, housing, medical care, and the eventual establishment of a balanced and stable economy.

RECENT CRISIS

The fundamental fact is that Puerto Rico has a one-crop economy. Sugar is the key to Puerto Rico.

During World War II the high demand for sugar and the high prices created some little improvement in the economic condition of the workers. And economic stability—if it could be called so—did develop in Puerto Rico.

But since the war's end and the steady stream of people moving to the mainland has been proof of how rapidly the economic situation has deteriorated.

Since the beginning of 1948 the price of sugar—both in the United States and on the world market—has slumped sharply. To the economy of Puerto Rico this spells disaster. To the workers it spells wage cutting, unemployment, less purchasing power, and a decrease in their already pitifully low standard of living. It will probably mean an islandwide economic collapse.

Politically this economic development will add up to greater poverty for the many of Puerto Rico; and as this develops the false promises and platitudes of the politicians will fall on empty ears. Already unrest and dissatisfaction has been developing among the common people of Puerto Rico. The people want action and results.

Dr. Pedro Albiza Campos, head of the Nationalist Party of Puerto Rico, has recently returned to Puerto Rico. He has spent 11 years in exile and imprisonment. He has been Puerto Rico's No. 1 victim of Wall Street imperialism.

The antidemocratic outbursts have become intensified since Campos returned to Puerto Rico.

UNIVERSITY RIOTS

Early in April of this year Campos was invited to speak at the University of Puerto Rico. The university officials denied him a meeting place—and as students have always in the past—the students of the University of Puerto Rico protested this denial of academic freedom and free speech.

From such a seemingly inocuous incident there developed violence, arrests, and the eventual closing down of the university itself.

The 1-day student strike on April 13 was described as an outbreak of violence by the university rector. He immediately closed the university grounds to the students, and the police, armed with clubs and guns, were called upon to enforce this ruling.

Although some weak-kneed political figures—forgetting their own past and their own promises—backed the rector in this action, the students, prominent faculty members and leaders of Puerto Rico from every walk of life, unanimously condemned the police interference and the decision to close the university.

Many students were jailed. Protest meetings were broken up by police clubs and tear gas. Students were expelled from the university in wholesale lots. Even faculty members who expressed sympathy with the students were dismissed from their positions.

missed from their positions.

On May 7 the shut-down of the university was made permanent and the 1948 commencement exercises were never

What is really behind this action on the part of the university authorities?

In Puerto Rico the students have always participated actively in politics. From their ranks have come many of the island's political leaders. And this crack-down is not merely an isolated student escapade. It is in reality a blow at a substantial part of the progressive movement in Puerto Rico.

It is the result of fear and hysteria on the part of the present political leaders. Little men who are bent on establishing a paradise of free private enterprise are ruthlessly suppressing the student movement and every other progressive force in Puerto Rico.

The national guard has been called out to reinforce the police and judiciously planted rumors about insurrection and revolution have been planted to justify this action by the Governor.

tify this action by the Governor.

And the students? They have refused to be provoked into violence. They have insisted upon their right to assemble peacefully and to protest. Beyond that the trouble has come from the police and the national guard.

Since then the university has continued to be an armed camp. The general tension among the people has increased.

The entire situation demands immediate investigation.

THE NEW GAG LAWS

Part and parcel of the situation in the university, and reflecting the crackdown on all civil rights in Puerto Rico, was the passage on May 22 of three bills designed "to control all activities aiming at destroying the insular government, and so forth."

The Mundt-Nixon technique has its counterpart in the three laws, H. R. 23, 24, and 25. The laws were rushed through Puerto Rican Legislature at 5:30 on the morning of May 22.

It is interesting to notice that these legislative monstrosities—cloaked in the hysteria which we in this House have recently experienced—were introduced shortly after the recent visit of President Truman to Puerto Rico. In the President's party was Admiral Leahy, former Governor of Puerto Rico, and still a shadowy becage und figure in the political life of the idands.

I have learned on unimpeachable authority that these gag laws-in their original version-came to Puerto Rico in English. An import from the mainland. And they were translated into Spanish and then passed through the legislature.

The insular government was ordered to pass these laws to get at any individual or group refusing to fall in line behind the program acceptable to the mainland masters

The gag laws specifically vest the district courts with jurisdiction and explicitly provide for trial by the court without jury.

Like the infamous Mundt-Nixon bill, H. R. 24 in defining a felony under the acts enumerates the illegal actions and concludes that these are proscribed as well as organizations formed to accom-plish these ends or formed "for other purposes."

The unanimity with which the legislature passed these laws is a true reflection of the pressure that has been put on them. Certainly there is no threat to the government of Puerto Rico today; excluding the threat to continued office that comes to any official in a democracy who has forgotten the needs of their constituents. But called to the heel by the political leaders who do not speak in the name of the people of Puerto Rico, the legislators cast their vote against freedom and against their own good conscience.

The bills were passed without hearings and after but one day of debate.

This legislative development in Puerto Rico, like similar actions we have seen in other countries in Latin America during the past year are clearly the result of United States pressure. In Cuba, in Chile, in Peru, in Brazil, and also in Puerto Rico the crack-down against the progressive forces, against the tradeunion leaders, against every possible group which speaks for the downtrodden people has developed even as the people in power in these areas have drawn closer to the United States. It is a sad realization that is forced upon the people of these countries-that today everywhere the United States Government pushes its hand-there the ordinary man feels the increased weight of oppression while the man of privilege and wealth becomes more powerful.

LAND MEASURES

When 2,000,000 people must make a living on a 3,435 square-mile agricultural island-of which only 47 percent was reported as crop land in 1940-widespread land hunger is to be expected. Such is the situation in Puerto Rico. And because of this there is a deep and emotional intensity attached to the land tenure problem by the people of the

Since the American Government took over Puerto Rico in 1898 the concentration of land holdings and the development of absentee ownership has developed at a rapid pace.

Land concentration probably reached its peak around 1930. The large sugar mills and related interests constituted over 50 percent of all land in the farms growing sugarcane. The big four American-owned companies themselves operated or controlled 46 percent of all the land under the control of the sugar companies.

The concentration of land control is not the only grievance of the people of Puerto Rico against the sugar industry. There has always been widespread discontent over the distribution of the proceeds of the sugar industry among the various factors cooperating in its pro-The people have always deduction. manded that the land should be operated in order to produce wider social benefits.

Although land reform was the key plank in the platform of the Popular Democratic Party in the 1940 elections the fact is that to June 30, 1943, land reform in Puerto Rico had affected a perceptible but not considerable area of farm land. For example, less than 9 percent of the total holdings of the sugar companies as of 1934-35 have been affected by the land reform bills. I mention all of this in order to emphasize the importance of land holdings to the Puerto Rican people.

And what are we doing to solve this problem?

In the same manner that it drove the natives off Bikini, the United States Navy is depopulating the Puerto Rican island of Vieques and turning it into a military training base. But where Bikini was only a sparsely inhabited barren Pacific atoll the island of Vieques is a fertile spot and one of the oldest communities in the Western Hemisphere. Despite the frantic opposition of the Puerto Ricans, the Navy has already ordered the complete evacuation of the inhabitants of Vieques by the early part of this year. This order will affect some 5,000 people and will cripple an agricultural economy which supported 4 sugar mills-producing 20,000 tons of sugar annually-and an extensive grazing indus-

To the people of Puerto Rico who do not have nearly enough arable land to support their dense population the removal of Vieques as a source of agricultural products is a national calamity.

Professors and students of the University of Puerto Rico have condemned the removal of these islanders in these words:

The case of Vieques is one of the gravest events that have taken place since the beginning of the United States occupation. It is the first time that action has been taken to eliminate an important nucleus of the social and cultural community of Puerto Rico and part of the geographical patrimony of our fatherland."

The General Confederation of Labor has condemned the Navy Department's action as "an unjustifiable act of aggression."

We can well ask with the Puerto Rican people what has become of article 73 of the United Nations Charter dealing with non-self-governing territories, which stipulates that the "interests of the in-habitants are paramount."

At the same time the small island of Culibre is reported to be purchased by the United States Navy. The island of the United States Navy. The island of Culibre has a natural harbor, and the Navy obviously intends to use it for its own purposes.

It is interesting to notice that the United States only recently filed a report with the UN in regard to Puerto Rico. Our Government pointed out in this report to the Secretary-General of the UN. as follows:

The pressure of population upon land resources in Puerto Rico is very severe. There is only 1 acre of land area per person in Puerto Rico as compared to 7.1 acres per person in the United States. On page 11 it is stated that there are 1,053,000 acres of crop land. Thirty-one percent of this is devoted to sugar. This report says that 0.6 of 1 percent of the farmers own 25 percent of the crop area in holdings above 500 acres, that 5 percent of all farmers own 27 percent of the land in holdings between 100 and 500 acres, and that 73.2 percent of the farmers own 20.1 percent of the crop land.

One can search through the entire report and find no data furnished on the amount of land used by the United States for military bases in Puerto Rico.

CONCLUSION

There is no need to summarize the facts which have already been brought forth in this brief outline of the current situation in Puerto Rico.

There is a pressing need for a complete and thorough investigation of the political and economic situation in Puerto Rico Unless a prompt investigation takes place and unless the drift toward undemocratic and militaristic developments is stopped at once the people of Puerto Rico will be further despoiled and impoverished.

Before the Spaniards came to the New World the Indians called this island Borinquen. This name survives in poetry. This means the garden of flowers. Puerto Rico today is no garden This means the garden of for the greater mass of the people who live there.

Only complete independence of the Puerto Rican people and their freedom to develop their country and their lives as they wish will remove them from the curse of American intervention.

PERMISSION TO EXTEND REMARKS AT THIS POINT

Mr. DINGELL. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to extend my remarks at this point in the RECORD.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Michigan?

There was no objection.

Mr. DINGELL. Mr. Speaker, as we await the hour of adjournment I want to utter a word of caution to the Republican leadership of the House, upon whom rests the responsibility for the completion of a worth-while legislative program.

You may be disposed to abandon the hundreds of thousands of Federal employees, who deserve a pay increase and who were led to believe that they would be treated on par with their fellows of the postal service. Seemingly they were forgotten, or-worse-they were betrayed. The postal workers were only partially compensated for their service, but all others in the great family of Uncle Sam's Federal workers were thus denied even that consideration. It is not too late to bring in a last-minute token award or pay raise and thus redeem ourselves before adjourning.

But why all this rush to get away, all the hubbub about adjournment, when there is so much that is left undone? We are all weary and anxious to go home, to get some rest, to renew our acquaintances, to build or to mend our political fences, but I warn you to beware of what we may leave undone. We are the servants of the people, paid on an annual basis. Maintaining a 24-hour-a-day office, as has always been my custom over the years for the benefit of my constituents, I cannot reconcile myself with the idea of adjourning prematurely because of the party convention, or because I want to go to the seashore. The legiswant to go to the seashore. lative docket has not been cleared.

Unsolved to date is the most important question of prices, ever-increasing and higher and higher prices. Inflation, like an all-consuming and devastating fire, is destroying our savings and endangering our Nation's financial safety. Our lowincome families are the greatest victims of this scourge of inflation, yet this Congress, in the face of this obvious threat, has not made the effort to throttle or even to control the menace.

The civil-rights program has been all but forgotten by the Republicans, who always posed as the champions of the proposal expressed so forcefully President Truman.

Housing seemingly will be abandoned or be so totally inadequate as to be almost worthless. Coastal oil lands, upon which rests the country's security, and many other important matters have not been satisfactorily settled, or repose in pigeon holes.

Let me say as a final, parting shot, do not vote to adjourn until the job is done and done right.

EXTENSION OF REMARKS.

Mr. BUCK asked and was granted permission to extend his remarks in the Appendix of the RECORD.

THE LATE J. FREDERICK RICHARDSON

Mr. REED of New York. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend my remarks.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection? There was no objection.

Mr. REED of New York. Mr. Speaker, a great and good man, an efficient public servant, a friend of every person in this House, a fine Christian gentleman has passed away. I refer affectionately to J. Frederick Richardson, Coordinator of Information of the House.

I ask unanimous consent at this time that each Member of the House, if he or she so desires, may extend their remarks in the Appendix of the RECORD with reference to this fine man.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New York [Mr. REED]?

There was no objection.

THE HONORABLE MILTON WEST

Mr. REED of New York. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that each member of the Ways and Means Committee may have an opportunity to extend his remarks with reference to the retirement of the Honorable MILTON WEST, and that the Ways and Means Committe may have consent to insert resolutions with reference to the retirement of the gentleman from Texas covering his distinguished service.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New

There was no objection.

COMPENSATION FOR DISABILITIES IN-CURRED IN ACTIVE MILITARY OR NAVAL SERVICE OTHER THAN IN A PERIOD OF WAR SERVICE

Mr. HAGEN. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent for the immediate consideration of the bill S. 595, to provide that the rates of compensation for disabilities incurred in active military or naval service other than in a period of war service shall be equal to 80 percent of the rates payable for similar disabilities incurred during active service in time of war.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Minnesota?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That, effective the first day of the first month following the passage of this act, paragraph II of part II of Veterans Regulation No. I (a), as amended, is amended to read as follows:

"II. For the purposes of part II, paragraph (a) hereof, if the disability results from injury or disease, the compensation shall be equal to 80 percent of the compensation now or hereafter payable for the disability, had it been incurred in or aggravated by active military or naval service during a period of war service as provided in part I of this regulation."

The bill was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed, and a motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

COMPLIMENTS TO THE MEMBERSHIP

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Florida [Mr. HEN-DRICKS].

Mr. HENDRICKS. Mr. Speaker, this is probably my last appearance in the House of Representatives. I had always hoped that when I left my last remarks would be something complimentary to the membership of this House. For that reason I now ask unanimous consent that the Clerk read a resolution into the RECORD which I have introduced.

The SPEAKER, Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Florida?

There was no objection. The Clerk read as follows:

Whereas the House of Representatives of the Eightieth Congress has been faced with some of the gravest issues in the history of this Nation, and has worked diligently to resolve these issues; and

Whereas the Members of the House of Representatives appreciate the assistance given by appointees, attachés, and employees; and

Whereas the Members of the House of Representatives recognize the important role played by the press and radio in keeping the public informed: Now, therefore, be it Resolved, That it is the sense of this body that in the House of Representatives of this, the world's greatest legislative assembly, elected directly by a majority of the finest people in the greatest country in the world, are 435 of the most able, sincere, honest, and intelligent men and women of this country;

That it is the sense of the House of Representatives that the appointees, attachés, and employees of this body are most courteous, capable, and efficient;

That it is the sense of the House of Representatives that the press, with rare exception, carries on the great tradition of enlighten-ing the people. The press guards and is worthy of that freedom guaranteed by the Constitution of the United States; and

That it is the sense of the House of Repre sentatives that in the radio galleries are the representatives of the world's greatest and most progressive and enlightening radio

Mr. HENDRICKS. Mr. Speaker, would like to ask for 10 minutes in which to discuss this resolution.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Florida?

There was no objection.

Mr. HENDRICKS. Mr. Speaker, I did not introduce this resolution with any intention of having it passed. I knew that it would be a self-serving declaration upon the part of the House if they did pass it. I introduced it by way of saying that I have enjoyed being associated with you.

Mr. Speaker, I have introduced thisresolution by way of saying how much I feel that our attachés and employees, our pages, everyone with whom we associate have been courteous, kind, efficient, and capable. I feel that the press has always been here ready to praise or criticize according to the dictates of their conscience. I have felt that our radio system was the greatest system of the world that carries the every act of this Congress to the entire world.

When I have finished here tonight I will not say anything more on the floor of the House, because I wanted my last words to be complimentary to the people here with whom I have been associated.

I am going back to the empire of the sun, going back to the great State of Florida. I am going to live with my people there. Many people have asked me: What are you going to do?" I would reply the same as General Eisenhower replied to someone who asked him what he was going to do when he retired from military service. He said: "Well, I am going out in the country and find me a nice house. I am going to find one with a porch on it and get a good rocking chair, put it on the porch, and I am going to stay on the porch in the rocking chair, and after about 2 months I am going to commence to rock slowly."

Mr. Speaker, I am going to go back to Daytona Beach, Fla., where we have that remarkable 25-mile beach, which is from 200 to 300 yards wide at low tide and as smooth as the surface of a road. I am going to get the maid, the yard man or manager or somebody to put a rocking chair out on the terrace overlooking that ocean and the great beach there: I am going to sit down first for about 2 months, then I will commence to rock slowly. After that I shall decide what I am going Mr. Speaker, I cannot be as magnanimous as Will Rogers was when he said he never met a man he could not like. I will say this, however: I have never met a Member of this House, man or woman, that I disliked in any way.

Mr. Speaker, I hope in future years I will have the pleasure of seeing you again. I have future political aspirations and it may be that some day I may or may not have the opportunity of having associations again with you in an official ca-pacity; but whether I do or whether I do not, I hope to see you from time to time here in the Capitol and I hope to see you from time to time in the State of Florida. I hope you will all come down there and visit me in that great State.

Let me say that I have been extremely fond of all of you. These have been trying years. I came here as a young man and I served for 12 years in this House of Representatives. It has taught me that this is a great country, even though times have been trying. I served through an economic depression and a military crisis. I feel this association with you has been one of the richest experiences in my life and to each and every one of you I say, I want to see you again and God bless each and every one of you.

Mr. PHILLIPS of California. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. HENDRICKS. I yield to the gentleman from California.

Mr. PHILLIPS of California. I want to ask the gentleman if he could put two rocking chairs out on that terrace?

Mr. HENDRICKS. I will be delighted

Mr. PHILLIPS of California. I want to say to the Members of the House that I have served with the gentleman from Florida [Mr. HENDRICKS] upon the same subcommittee, that I have a great admiration for him, that I have gone through some very difficult arguments with him, but he stands like the Rock of Gibraltar. He has ability, he has been outstanding and it has always been a pleasure to work with him. He will be missed very much by all of us, particularly myself.

Mr. HENDRICKS. I thank the gentleman from California.

Mr. SIKES. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. HENDRICKS. I yield to the gentleman from Florida.

Mr. SIKES. I know that every Member of this House shares my regret at the fact that our distinguished and able colleague is leaving the Congress. When I came to this House 8 years ago, Joe HENDRICKS was then a veteran in the service and a man who had gained much stature, much recognition, for the outstanding quality of his work. He has added to that record during each succeeding year he has served here. His service to our great State of Florida and to this Nation will go down as one of the outstanding records in the history of this country.

He has been uniformly helpful to each of us in his own delegation and to many Members of Congress who needed his Wherever JOE HENDRICKS finds himself in the future, he will carry the good wishes of the men and women who have served with him, and I am confident that in whatever undertaking he may engage he will gain additional recognition and will carry on in the same splendid manner that we have been accustomed to see him carry on in this House of Representatives.

Mr. ROGERS of Florida. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. HENDRICKS. I yield to the gentleman from Florida.

Mr. ROGERS of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I regret very much that the Florida delegation will lose two good men, the distinguished gentleman from Florida [Mr. HENDRICKS], and the distinguished gentleman from Florida [Mr. PRICE]. Both of these gentlemen have made a contribution to the workings of the Congress while they have been here.

They are real public servants; they are loyal, capable, honest, and sincere, and I am sure that the membership of this House will miss the value of their services.

Mr. RAYBURN. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman vield?

Mr. HENDRICKS. I yield to the gentleman from Texas.

Mr. RAYBURN. Mr. Speaker, I recognize that the hour is late and much is to do. I know many of the gentleman's colleagues would like to say a word of praise about him, and I certainly do want to pay tribute to his fine personality and his splendid statesmanship.

Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members who so desire may be permitted to extend their remarks in the RECORD at this point.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from

There was no objection.

Mr. SMATHERS. Mr. Speaker, it is with sincerest regret that we learn of the retirement from Congress of our distinguished colleague, Joe Hendricks.

I did not personally know Joe Hen-DRICKS before I was elected to Congress in November of 1946, but since that time I have come to know him well and admire him greatly. His long and useful career in Congress and as a member of the Appropriations Committee has made his always generous advice invaluable to me, and I feel a deep sense of loss at his retirement.

Joe has served his district, the State of Florida, and this Nation with sincerity and ability, and I am confident that the people of his district and the State of Florida are well aware of that fact. His record of accomplishment here will serve as an inspiration to those of us who will carry on.

I am sure that I express the sentiments of everyone who knows Joe Hendricks when I say that we wish him Godspeed and outstanding success in all that he undertakes in the future.

Mr. McCORMACK. Mr. Speaker, one of the finest as well as one of the ablest Members of the Congress is my distinguished friend and colleague from Florida [Mr. HENDRICKS]. While we respect the reasons which prompt him to voluntarily retire, we regret his decision. At anytime, but particularly in these trying days, the country can ill afford to lose the services of such an able, experienced, and courageous legislator.

I know that I express the thoughts and sentiments of my colleagues in extending to him my very best wishes for every future happiness and success.

I hope his voluntary retirement from public life will not be permanent, and in the not far future he will again in some capacity, elected or otherwise, give the public the benefit of his outstanding ability and experience. In any event, I know his deep interest in public affairs, and in good government, and from a political angle, in the best interest, progress, and success of our great party, the Democratic Party, founded by the immortal Thomas Jefferson, will never be dimmed, and will always be strong and active.

Mr. GREGORY. Mr. Speaker, I join with the many Members on both sides of the aisle in expressing regret over the voluntary retirement of Representative

JOE HENDRICKS.

Last November a testimonial dinner was given him at Orlando, Fla., by admiring friends and I was honored with an invitation to attend. Circumstances were such that my attendance was impossible, but I addressed a letter to Hon. J. HARDIN PETERSON to be read at the dinner which expressed my affection for JOE. I desire to incorporate in these remarks a copy of this letter which expressed my feeling at that time and at the present time:

Hon. J. HARDIN PETERSON, Member of Congress, Washington, D.C.

MY DEAR COLLEAGUE: I wish I could attend the testimonial dinner for our mutual friend, JOE HENDRICKS. I think it is most appropriate and a further evidence of the deep affection his friends have for him.

Joe and I entered Congress at the same time in January 1937, and it was my good fortune to become intimately acquainted with him in the early days of the Seventyfifth Congress

It was with deep regret that I learned some time ago of his intention to return to private life, but regardless of the direction of our paths in years to come I shall always remember him for his fine character, sincerity of purpose, loyalty, and devotion to duty, as well as the personal friendship I have enjoyed which has ripened with the passing years.

In his departure from public life the Nation, the State, and his own district will lose a valuable public servant whose place will be hard to fill.

He has my best wishes for health, happiness, and prosperity which he so richly de-

Mr. HENDRICKS. Mr. Speaker, I have asked permission to revise and extend my remarks to include a radio address delivered at a testimonial dinner in my honor at Orlando, Fla., on November 12, 1947. While this is not a complete record of my service in Congress, it gives a brief view:

Mr. Chairman, distinguished hosts, and friends of the radio audience, I do not know how you will classify the speech I shall deliver tonight. It is not my swan song, for, in announcing that I would not be a candidate to succeed myself in the 1948 election, so far as I am concerned, I very clearly left the gate open for my return to the political arena at any time. This, then, is not a fare-well address. It might reasonably be considered the closing chapter of book 1, only.

What I have to say may sound more like a speech opening a new campaign—than like one closing a long-standing political career. However, my real reason for talking to you is to express my appreciation, which I shall never quite be able to do adequately, for the great honor you have bestowed on me for 12 years. It is indeed a great honor, an honor which 99 out of every 100 men would envy. It is the greater honor to me because of the miraculous way in which I attained it. My whole career has been the typical American dream, concrete evidence of the opportunity this country offers to those who have the will to do something. Not for one moment could I claim all the credit, for I have been blessed with the finest friends in the world, and the guidance and protection of a divine providence. I think you will agree when you hear my story.

hear my story.

I was born at Lake Butler, in north Florida. The son of Joseph and Mary Andrews Hendricks, good and intelligent parents, parents of noble birth and good blood. My father died and left mother with five little children, and I arrived 23 days later, making the sixth. Mother struggled to take care of us, and later married again and had six more children. I was, therefore, I in a family of 12.

Mother passed away when I was only a boy and left me with very little of this world's goods, but she did leave me her determination and stamina with which to carry on. Until 1 was 14 years old, I was ill 6 months of each year and had not yet completed the fourth grade in a rural school. I soon came to the realization that I needed an education if I were to compete with my chosen associates. I was able to improve my health somewhat by strenuous processes and proceeded to work during summers and in the evenings to further my education.

In the summer of 1921, I happened to be in Umatilla and saw a show put on at a small theater by students of the Montverde School—a very fine school. Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Carpenter were then the heads of the school. To make a long story short, I contacted them through friends and entered the school in 1922. With the aid of Jesse Hunter and others I worked my way through and graduated in 1925. The school has thoroughly justified its existence in what it has done for me and for many, many others.

I worked for the Montverde School in 1926 in order to pay some debts and in the fall of that year entered Stetson University where I again worked to earn all I could and called on my good friends, Mr. H. J. Carpenter, Jesse Hunter, Karl Lehman, and others, and the divine providence, for additional help. I graduated with an AB in 1930, worked for a year, and returned to study law. I received my LL. B. degree in 1934, after which I went to work for the State as an attorney for the tax survey directed by Bill Anderson, the son of lovable Mrs. F. L. Anderson, of Orlando, who is here with us tonight.

I resigned this position and became head of the insurance and tax department of the American Oil Co. in Jacksonville. This posi-tion I held until the 1935 session of the legislature created the new Fifth Congressional District of Florida. I immediately decided that this was my opportunity to fulfill an ambition which I had nurtured for many years-to become a Member of the Congress of the United States. I returned to Deland and the practice of law. Early in 1936, I announced that I would be a candidate for Congress from this district. Never did a political announcement create less enthuslasm and excitement that I can recall. There were, at that time, nine prominent men in the race—judges, representatives, senators, State's attorneys, and others. Nevertheless, in June of 1936, with the aid of you fine friends and the divine providence. 2 years after I had finished school, I was elected a Member of the House of Representatives of the United States Congress, and the first Representative of this district.

Friends, if I could review this picture with you, if you could look back with me as I see myself in 1918 when mother passed away, a frail boy, with neither health, funds, nor education, and during the period of 18 years until I took my seat in Congress, you would understand why I say I appreciate this great honor. But may I say from the depths of my heart, I am grateful to God, to my country, and to you.

Have I shown that appreciation by my acts? I have tried to honestly. It is not for all Members of Congress to author broad and sweeping legislation which will place their names in headlines; some of us are the plodders.

I was on a legislative committee for only a short time. The Appropriations Committee does not sponsor general legislation. General legislative committees sometimes change a bill which you have introduced, even to the point of inserting ahother name, and, therefore the public may not give you the credit which you deserve. Dwight Rogers is a case in point. He introduced the terminal leave pay bill and it came out of committee with another man's name on it. In spite of this, we, in Congress, are able to recognize our bills even though the public does not and therefore we get no credit.

I introduced the bill for a postwar economic planning committee. The bill was passed and the committee has done excellent work in assisting the Administration in its long-range economic planning. Many of the public projects which will benefit you in later years will be the result of this committee's work. I got none of the credit because a member of the Rules Committee had changed the bill slightly and placed his name on my bill. Those things happen.

I sponsored legislation for variable grants

I sponsored legislation for variable grants in old-age assistance. That principle was adopted over a year ago.

I sponsored and passed legislation—when I was a member of the Post Office and Post Roads Committee—for the benefit of postal employees throughout the Nation. They remembered me.

The Congressional Record will show that it was my action on the floor of the House which brought the case of Watson, Dodd, and Lovette—three Government employees—communistic sympathizers—to the Supreme Court.

It was my bill which set up a system of offsets against the credits of foreign countries for debts that they owed to companies in this country for carrying the mail on our flag ships. This amounted to millions of dollars.

I could go on and name many others. But time will not permit.

It is a sad commentary that people judge their Congressman more by what he brings to the district in dollars and cents than by his legislative record—which is much more important.

But this is an understandable, human error.

My vote has never been radical or reactionary—always progressive. I wil stand on my record.

As far as the dollars-and-cents column is concerned, I think I can qualify with the best in the State: In the years that I have represented you in Congress—the 12 counties, comprising the Fifth District, have received more revenue than at any time in the previous history of the State. We have received around $300,000,000 in Federal funds for construction of schools, sewer systems, roads, gymnasiums, armories, rural electrification lines, air fields, waterways projects—and many other projects of permanent benefit to you and your children.

I have secured employment for constituents whose aggregate salaries are about $250,000 per year, or $3,000,000 for the time that I have been in Congress.

I have, by direct appointments, secured educational benefits for young men in the amount of about $400,000.

I have passed claim bills for counties and individuals ranging from $100 to $30,000.

I have aided the citrus men, the cattlemen, the dairymen, the businessmen, the farmer, sent out bulletins, baby books.

I have done yeoman service for my district—and I am happy that I have been able to do it.

It may surprise you to hear that I think one of the most important accomplishments of my years in Congress is my work in getting the approval of the Army engineers and the appropriation of money for the deepening—to 12 feet—and the widening—of the St. John's River channel—from Jacksonville to Sanford. You may wonder why I feel this is so important. It is, my friends, because this is an excellent channel and opens a very desirable artery of commerce—and Sanford thus will become an inland port.

But this is not the only reason. It is the end-result that makes this project important: From my observation of the development of waterways—and I am an ardent exponent of them-I am sure that once the St. John's channel is completed, the natural result will be approval of the Sanford-Titusville Canal to connect with the East Coast Canal-which is also to be deepened and widened to 12 feet-and will be an inland waterway all the way from Miami to Boston, Mass., for commercial and pleasure craft. The final result will be control on the upper St. John's Valley—and the net result of that will be flood control on the Kissimmee River Valley-so sorely needed in the past. And so on and on until central Florida, incorporated—an interlocking system of canals through lakes and streams throughout central Floridawill be approved and completed. This is my dream for the St. John's and central Florida.

I hope I will be permited to see it come

This, briefly, my friends, is my record. I know you approve, because I have never had serious opposition since my first election, in 1936. I am glad I could serve you.

What about my future as a private citizen? Up until the last few months I asked myself that question many times: I have observedduring my period in Congress—so many Members of the House who had either been defeated or had refused to run again, and so many of them came back to Washington asking for employment. Some obtained positions and others did not. I knew, from my personal relations with many of the Members, that they were barely living on a shoestring and when they had left Congress they had no funds to rely on. You may be in-terested to know that when Senator Park Trammel passed away, his estate was valued at $200. I have seen so many sad cases of this sort. I have seen so many Members desperately trying to stay in the House when, because of health, age, or for other reasons, they should have been retired. (Parentheti-cally, I think Congress should be commended for passing a pension system for these Members so that they may retire, when necessary, with dignity and some income. Incidentally, I did not take advantage of the pension system and will receive no benefits.)

After I had been in Congress for a number of years, and because of these observations, I began to ponder my own future. I can personally testify to the striking truthfulness of the statement made by Franklin D. Roosevelt in an inaugural speech, that: "All we have to fear is fear itself!". It upsets a man and decreases his efficiency.

I had wondered if some day I might be turned out after dissociating myself from all possibilities of a profession at home, and without funds become more or less a despondent shadow.

I came to the conclusion before 1942 that I wished to retire, but war was declared in 1941 and I could not retire. And even now, though I thought we would have settled world affairs by the time by present term expired, I have grave apprehension.

In regard to my financial possibilities as a private citizen, I am not at all concerned. After announcing that I would not be a candidate to succeed myself, I had many of-fers: I was first approached to take over a job which I promptly declined because I did not feel I was temperamentally qualified. There are those here who can testify to that. I next had an offer of a position which I declined because I did not think it would work out to my advantage or to the advantage of the person involved. And then I was approached by a man in behalf of certain interests in this State to take a job which, in his words, "is the biggest job in the State." I am sure that would agree (if I were at liberty to disclose what it is) that if that job were well done, it would be the biggest job in the State. I neither accepted nor declined, and the proposition has not been pushed Recently, I was offered a part-time job with a New York corporation which would pay me more than my present salary in Congress. I actually signed the contract and worked for 2 weeks, at which time I took advantage of a revocation clause and terminated my services for two reasons: First, I was not convinced that I approved certain things the corporation was doing; and, second, I found that it would require my presence in New York at the very time of the year when I would much prefer to be in Florida.

I may say, that in addition, I have a small business which I have developed, which will, in the coming year, pay me a great deal more than my present salary in Congress.

I studied for years to prepare myself for a profession—the practice of law. I have good opportunities in that field.

Then, too, I was raised on a farm, and if it becomes necessary I can make a living farming. So the future looks bright to me and I have no fear of fear. I look to the future with great anticipation—and I have you, my good friends, to thank for that.

And now, will you permit a few words of parting advice: I would like to say that it will be the responsibility of you people to elect the right man to represent you in the Eighty-first Congress. I, myself, will have no further interest in the matter other than that of a voter and a citizen. There are a number of potential candidates present here. All of them are close friends of mine, some of them schoolmates and others fraternity brothers. It would be an impossible situation for me to attempt to favor one as against the other. Therefore, if any candidate thinks I am committed to support him, I must here and now revoke such commitment, because you, the voters, must make the decision.

So, to you voters, I say: We are facing grave world problems, no less grave than when Hitler invaded Poland in 1939. Your present representative has, at all times, been keenly aware of international affairs and problems. In most matters affecting you, I have followed the will of the majority. In foreign affairs this was not always possible: There were times when I pos more information than you, and felt it incumbent upon me to exercise my own judg-ment, based on information which I had and therefore did the best thing for my country.

I voted for the first conscription bill. I definitely voted my judgment and not the wishes of the majority of my constituents. When I voted for the extension of the act, the same situation obtained, and though criticized at the time, I was vindicated a few weeks later when the Japanese attacked Pearl Harbor. I have always made a close study of our relations with the rest of the world, and the effects thereof, and in regard to foreign policy, I have, on occasion, had to vote as I believed best.

This requires self-assurance, conviction, and a good deal of personal courage, and it is a large responsibility.

My advice to you is to elect a man who will study, in order to inform himself on foreign affairs; convince himself, and then vote his best judgment. Elect a man who is neither a nationalist or internationalist, but a man who is keenly conscious of the rest of the world and the neighborhood of nations. That kind of man will serve you best in these critical times.

The Hawaiians have a word which, when it comes to the finer attributes of mankind. those which so closely resemble God, is all-inclusive. The word is "aloha." Aloha means:

I welcome you.

am happy because you are here. hope you are happy.

I hope you like me. The sun is bright and all is love.

I am sad because you are leaving. I hope you will return.

I love you.

Farewell until we meet again.

May God bless you.

And all the finer sentiments. So, in the true meaning of the word, I say, thank you, and aloha.

CONFERRING JURISDICTION UPON THE COURT OF CLAIMS

Mr. JENNINGS. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent for the immediate consideration of the bill (S. 2217) conferring jurisdiction upon the Court of Claims of the United States to hear, determine, and render judgment upon the joint claims of Silas Mason Co., Inc.; Walsh Construction Co.; and Atkinson-Kier Co.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Ten-

There being no objection, the Clerk read the bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That jurisdiction is hereby conferred upon the Court of Claims of the United States to hear and determine on the merits and to render, in accordance therewith, judgment upon the joint claims of Silas Mason Co., Inc.; Walsh Construction Co.; and Atkinson-Kier Co. against the United States which are embodied in the petition of the said companies filed in the Court of Claims May 1, 1939, as amended February 14, 1940, and therein docketed as No. 44,659, excepting from such jurisdiction, however, the claims set out as causes of actions Nos. 22, 24, 25, 26, 27, 30, and 31 in the said petition and excepting therefrom that part of the claim set out as cause of action No. 14 in the said petition for which judgment was rendered by the court in No. 44,659 on October 1, 1945, in the amount of $1,099.80. The Court of Claims is directed to hear, determine, and render judgment upon the said claims notwithstanding any prior determination, any statute of limitation, or any abandonment of, nonconformance with, or deviation from the protest and appeal provisions and procedure of the said contract, including but without limitation to article 15 of the contract and paragraph 14 of specifications No. 570 involved in such claims, and without regard to any provisions of the said contract or specifications purporting to confer finality upon the decisions of questions arising under the contract by any officer of the United States.

SEC. 2. Adjudication of the said claims by the Court of Claims is directed to be made without reference to the decision by the court in the case of Silas Mason Co., Inc., Walsh Construction Co., Atkinson-Kier Co. against the United States on October 1, 1945, No. 44659; but the court shall consider as the evidence in such suit any and all evidence heretofore taken by the parties in the said case of Silas Mason Co., Inc., Walsh Construction Co., Atkinson-Kier Co. against the United States; and the court may use as a basis for its findings of fact the report of its commissioner, Ewart W. Hobbs, filed January 11, 1944, upon such evidence sub-ject to the exceptions thereto filed by the petitioners and by the defendant United States both on May 1, 1944.

SEC. 3. Any suit upon such claims brought under the provisions of this act shall be in-stituted within 6 months from the date of enactment of this act. Proceedings for the determination of such claims, and appeals from, and payment of, any judgment thereon shall be in the same manner as in the case of claims over which such court has jurisdiction under section 145 of the Judicial Code, as amended,

The bill was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed, and a motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

VITO ABARNO

Mr. JENNINGS. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to take from the Speaker's desk the bill (H. R. 2009) for the relief of the estate of Vito Abarno, with a Senate amendment thereto, and concur in the Senate amendment.

. The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The Clerk read the Senate amendment, as follows:

Page 1, line 6, strike out "$5,000" and insert "$2,500."

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Tennessee?

There was no objection.

The Senate amendment was concurred.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

EXTENSION OF REMARKS

Mr. GAMBLE asked and was given permission to extend his remarks in the RECORD in three instances and include in each extraneous matter.

Mr. DAWSON of Utah asked and was given permission to extend his remarks in the RECORD and include a committee report.

Mr. SUNDSTROM asked and was given permission to extend his remarks in the RECORD and include an article.

Mr. BYRNES of Wisconsin asked and was given permission to extend his remarks in the RECORD.

CARS FOR AMPUTEES

Mrs. ROGERS of Massachusetts. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to address the House for 2 minutes.

The SPEAKER. Does the gentlewoman wish to make a valedictory speech?

Mrs. ROGERS of Massachusetts. It is a request and plea for the House to take action on the amputee car bill.

The SPEAKER. The Chair sympathizes with the gentlewoman but cannot recognize her for that purpose at this time.

Mrs. ROGERS of Massachusetts. Will the Chair recognize me to submit a unanimous-consent request for the immediate consideration and passage of the bill (S. 1391)?

The SPEAKER. The Chair will state that it has been the practice that all legislation taken up by unanimous consent shall have the approval of the majority and minority leaders. Has the gentlewoman secured that permission?

Mrs. ROGERS of Massachusetts. I have been talking to them, but the hour is getting late. May I ask, is the Congress going to adjourn tonight?

The SPEAKER. The Chair wishes he could answer the gentlewoman to that effect, and would like to be able to say so, but he is inclined to think it will not.

Mrs. ROGERS of Massachusetts. If we have a recess, will there be a chance later to get legislation through?

The SPEAKER. There will be a chance to get legislation through later. Mrs. ROGERS of Massachusetts. We have spent millions of dollars for foreign countries and millions on everything else, and this is such a small bill for the amputees The SPEAKER. The Chair sympa-thizes entirely with the gentlewoman. REPRESENTATIVES ANTON JOHNSON AND JOHN FLANNAGAN

Mr. POAGE, Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to address the House for 1 minute.

The SPEAKER. Does the gentleman wish to make a valedictory address? Mr. POAGE. Yes; Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER. The Chair will recognize the gentleman for that purpose. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas?

There was no objection.

Mr. POAGE. Mr. Speaker, on this evening we all think of some of those who will not be in the next Congress. There are many whose parting we regret. Most of us find that there is some particular individual whose retirement from official life will leave its mark of sadness upon our feelings. I find myself especially distressed to lose the company of one of the majority members who has served with me on the Committee on Agriculture for a number of years, one whom I have come to trust and love and to look upon as a fine personal friend as well as an outstanding public servant. the gentleman from Illinois, the Honorable Anton Johnson.

This House has no finer Member than ANTON JOHNSON. There just are no finer men than Anton Johnson. Of course, he and I disagree on many matters, but I never knew Anton to take a position which he thought was wrong, and I have never had occasion to fall out with that kind of man. If we had more of his kind on both sides of the aisle we would have a finer Congress. The Congress and the country will be the poorer by reason of the fact that he will not be with us this coming year. His history is one of the finest in the American tradition. He is a self-made man who has gone to the top by hard work, honesty, loyalty to his friends, his family, and his country, and fund of common sense. committee is going to miss him. It is also going to miss our former chairman, the distinguished gentleman from Virginia, the Honorable John Flannagan, who is not a candidate for reelection. So I want to say to Anton and to John that we are going to miss you both in the next Congress and that we are sorry you are leaving us, but we hope you will be happy and prosperous wherever you are.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS THE HOUSE

Mr. SCOBLICK. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to adress the House

The SPEAKER pro tempore. (Mr. CANFIELD.) Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Pennsylvania?

There was no objection.

Mr. SCOBLICK. Mr. Speaker, on these the closing hours of the Eightieth Congress, I ask you to bear with me for a few minutes so that I might extend to you one and all a fond farewell.

In leaving these halls I bid adieu to the sanctums that have been made hallowed by men and women who have been fired with a patriotism that this Nation shall live, that this Republic shall never be excelled in the family of nations: that right shall ever be our aim and wrong our challenge adversary.

I came to the Eightieth Congress inspired with the opportunity of service and I leave it with the conviction that so long as the fires of patriotism burn brightly in the men and women in this Nation and continues to be reflected by their Representatives in the Congress, then the Republican form of Government that was founded here shall continue to be the beacon light for the freedom-loving peoples of the world and the United States shall continue to be the greatest Nation ever permitted by divine providence to be born and flourish.

It is to the credit of the House that the Members have ever held sacred the fundamentals of our Republic.

This House has faced with courage and has refused to turn its head from the principle that when an inalienable right has been menaced, then it is the right of the people to alter or abolish it.

I leave this House with the utmost respect for its Members, for many reasons but above all that it has remained true to the principles which caused us to be founded and that its Membership reflects the spirit of neighborliness to other peoples of the world and in this connection I believe our hero dead from their 'Valhalla" will say Amen.

However, there are some who will detract from the best effort we have put forth but they cannot successfully challenge the pureness of our motives, the sincerity of our aims or the patriotism that has moved us.

To them we may with confidence examine their motives and let history translate them with finality.

It has not been my good fortune to win renomination to the Eighty-first Congress, however, may I say without bitterness, no man can ever deserve to win who does not know how to lose, and furthermore please believe me that when the people go to the polls to name a Representative for the Tenth Pennsylvania District for the Eighty-second Congress, I will be there and I shall expect to return here and continue the work I have come to know and the finest service an humble citizen can give to his country.

Mr. COLE of Missouri. Mr. Speaker. will the gentleman yield?

Mr. SCOBLICK. I yield.

Mr. COLE of Missouri. I commend the gentleman on his outstanding service as a member of the Committee on Post Office and Civil Service. I am only going to say "so long" to you because I know you will be back 2 years hence.

Mr. SCOBLICK. I thank the gentleman.

Mr. COOLEY. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to address the House for several minutes.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from North Carolina?

There was no objection.

Mr. COOLEY. Mr. Speaker, and colleagues, I know that those of us who look forward to serving in the Eightyfirst Congress would like to pay tribute to many of our retiring colleagues. feel that I would be untrue to the feelings in my own heart if I did not on this occasion pay at least a brief tribute to two of the finest men it has ever been my pleasure to know, who are voluntarily retiring from Congress at the end of the present session, Hon. J. BAYARD CLARK, of North Carolina, and Hon. John H. Fol-GER, of North Carolina.

Both of these distinguished North Carolinians have served in this House for many years. They have with great ability and becoming dignity served their They are outstanding Memcountry. bers of Congress, gentlemen of sterling character and great patriotism. I know that we shall miss them, and we shall look forward to the time when they shall visit these Halls, in which they have served so well and faithfully.

Mr. Speaker, when I think of the friendships that are made in this House and of the separations that will occur at the end of this session, I can think of nothing more appropriate to say than to quote the last verse of a little poem which I think was written by Thomas Moore, called Farewell:

Let fate do her worst, there are relics of joy, Bright dreams of the past, which she cannot destroy.

Which come, in the nighttime of sorrow and care, And bring back the features that joy used to wear.

Long, long be my heart with such memorles filled!

Like the vase in which roses have once been distilled-

You may break, you may shatter the vase, if you will,

But the scent of the roses will cling round it still.

The SPEAKER. The time of the gentleman from North Carolina [Mr. Cooley] has expired.

Mr. SPENCE. Mr. Speaker, I know I speak for the members of the Banking and Currency Committee of the House when I say we all deeply regret the decision of our fellow-member of that committee and our respected colleague, Hon. JOHN H. FOLGER, to retire as a Representative in Congress from North Carolina. His ability, his industry, and his intense interest in the problems affecting the welfare of our country, I am sure, have deeply impressed all of his colleagues and especially those on the Banking and Currency Committee where for a long time he has served with distinction and been a valuable member. No man has been more assiduous in his attendance at committee meetings and his deep study of the problems presented. His sound judgment and sensible conclusions were always eagerly sought by the members of the committee. His colleagues will miss him and the State of North Carolina and the Nation have sustained a loss in the retirement of this patriotic, public-spirited Representative. We wish him success and happiness in all his undertakings.

Mr. FOOTE. Mr. Speaker, it was with genuine regret that I learned that the Honorable John Hamlin Folger, who has so admirably represented the Fifth District of the great State of North Carolina, had decided to retire to private life. I know that this is not in keeping with the desire of his fellow Members in Congress or of his constituency at home.

I was privileged to serve on the Banking and Currency Committee during the first session of the Eightieth Congress along with Judge Folger. When Judge Folger spoke in the committee or on the floor of the House, he always made a valuable contribution toward the solution of the problem involved. He took his job seriously. He is in the true sense of the word a southern gentleman.

I wish to express to him sincerest good wishes for his health and happiness in the days to come.

TRADING WITH THE ENEMY ACT

Mr. HINSHAW submitted the following conference report and statement on the bill (H. R. 4044) to amend the Trading With the Enemy Act, as amended; to create a commission to make an inquiry and report with respect to war claims; and to provide for relief for internees in certain cases.

CONFERENCE REPORT

The committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendment of the Senate to the bill (H. R. 4044) to amend the Trading With the Enemy Act, as amended; to create a commission to make an inquiry and report with respect to war claims; and to provide for relief for internees in certain cases, having met, after full and free conference, have agreed to recommend and do recommend to their respective Houses as follows:

That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: In lieu of the matter proposed to be inserted by the Senate amendment insert the following:

"SHORT TITLE

"SECTION 1. This Act may be cited as the 'War Claims Act of 1948'.

"WAR CLAIMS COMMISSION

"Sec. 2. (a) There is hereby established a commission to be known as the War Claims Commission (hereinafter referred to as the 'Commission') and to be composed of three persons to be appointed by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate. At least two of the members of the Commission shall be persons who have been admitted to the bar of the highest court of any State, Territory, or the District of Columbia. The members of the Commission shall receive compensation at the rate of $12,000 a year. The terms of office of the members of the Commission shall expire at the time fixed in subsection (d) for the winding up of the affairs of the Commission.

"(b) The Commission may, in accordance with the provisions of the civil-service laws and the Classification Act of 1923, as amended, appoint and fix the compensation of such officers, attorneys, and employees, and may make such expenditures, as may be necessary to carry out its functions. Officers and employees of any other department or agency of the Government may, with the consent of the head of such department or agency, be assigned to assist the Commission in carrying out its functions. The Commission may, with the consent of the head of any other department or agency of the Government, utilize the facilities and services of such department or agency in carrying out the functions of the Commission.

"(c) The Commission may prescribe such rules and regulations as may be necessary to enable it to carry out its functions, and may delegate functions to any member, officer, or employee of the Commission. The Commission shall give public notice of the time when, and the limit of time within which, claims may be filed, which notice shall be published in the Federal Register. The limit of time within which claims may be filed with the Commission shall in no event be later than two years after the date of enactment of this Act.

of this Act.

"(d) The Commission shall wind up its affairs at the earliest practicable time after the expiration of the time for filing claims, but in no event later than three years after the expiration of such time.

"JURISDICTION OF COMMISSION

"Sec. 3. The Commission shall have jurisdiction to receive and adjudicate according to law claims as hereinafter provided.

"EMPLOYEES OF CONTRACTORS

"SEC. 4. (a) The Federal Security Administrator is authorized to receive, adjudicate according to law, and provide for the payment of any claim filed by any person specifled in section 101 (a) of the Act entitled 'An Act to provide benefits for the injury, disability, death, or enemy detention of employees of contractors with the United States, and for other purposes', approved December 2, 1942, as amended, or by the legal repre-sentative of any such person who may have died, for the amount by which (1) the total sum which would have been payable to such person by his employer (not including any payments for overtime), if such person's contract of employment had been in effect and he had been paid under it for the entire period during which he was entitled to receive benefits under section 101 (b) of such Act, exceeds (2) the entire amount creditable to such person's account for such period under the provisions of such section plus any amounts paid to such person by such em ployer for such period or recovered by such person in any legal action against such employer based upon such person's right against such employer for such period under the contract of employment, including payments in settlement of the liability of the employer arising under or out of such contract. No claim shall be allowed to any person under the provisions of this section unless such person executes a full release to the employer and to the United States in respect to the liability of the employer arising under or out of the contract of employment, except liability for workmen's compensation benefits under the Act of August 16, 1941, as amended (42 U.S. C. 1651 and the following), or detention or other benefits paid under the Act of December 2, 1942, as amended (42 U. S. C. 1751 and the following). Any claim allowed under the provisions of this section shall be certified by the Administrator to the Secretary of the Treasury for payment out of the War Claims Fund established by section 13 of this Act.

"(b) (1) The Secretary of State is hereby authorized and directed to cancel any obligation to the United States of any person specified in section 101 (a) of such Act of December 2, 1942, to pay any sum which may have been advanced to or on behalf of any such person by the Department of State for the purpose of paying the costs of food and medical services furnished to such person during his period of internment by the Imperial Japanese Government or for the purpose of paying transportation or other expenses of repatriation.

"(2) The Federal Security Administrator

eness of repatriation.

"(2) The Federal Security Administrator is authorized to receive, adjudicate according to law, and provide for the payment of any claim filed by any person specified in section 101 (a) of such Act of December 2, 1942, for the repayment of any sum which may have been paid by such person to the Department of State in settlement of any obligation of the type referred to in paragraph (1) of this subsection. Any claim allowed under the provisions of this paragraph shall be certified by the Administrator to the Secretary of the Treasury for payment out of the War Claims Fund established by section 13 of this Act.

"(c) Section 102 (a) of the Act entitled 'An Act to provide benefits for the injury, disability, death, or enemy detention of employees of contractors with the United States, and for other purposes', approved December 2, 1942, as amended, is hereby amended by striking out the proviso in such subsection and by substituting the following: 'Provided, That the total compensation payable under this title for injury or death shall in no event exceed the limitations upon compensation as fixed in section 14 (m) of such Act as such section may from time to time be amended except that the total compensation shall not be less than that provided for in the original enactment of this Act: Provided further, That any amendment to such Act, the effect of which is to increase the amount of benefits payable for injury or death, shall be applied in the administration of this section as if the amendment had been in effect at the time of the particular injury or death and the compensation (except funeral and burial expenses) in any case previously determined shall be adjusted accordingly in respect to the beneficiary entitled thereto under the Act.'

"INTERNEES

"SEC. 5. (a) As used in this section, the term 'civilian American citizen' means any person who, being then a citizen of the United States, was captured by the Imperial Japanese Government on or after December 7, 1941, at Midway, Guam, Wake Island, the Philippine Islands, or any Territory or possession of the United States attacked or invaded by such government, or while in transit to or from any such place, or who went into hiding at any such place in order to avoid capture or internment by such government; except (1) a person who at any time voluntarily gave aid to, collaborated with, or in any manner served such government, or (2) a person who at the time of his capture or entrance into hiding was (A) a erson within the purview of the Act entitled 'An Act to provide compensation for employees of the United States suffering injuries while in the performance of their duties, and for other purposes', approved September 7, 1916, as amended, and as extended; or (B) a person within the purview of the Act entitled 'An Act to provide benefits for the injury, disability, death, or enemy detention of employees of contractors with the United States, and for other purposes', approved December 2, 1942, as amended; or (C) a person within the purview of the Missing Persons Act of March 7, 1942 (56 Stat.

143), as amended; or (D) a regularly appointed, enrolled, enlisted, or inducted member of any military or naval force.

"(b) The Commission is authorized to receive, adjudicate according to law, and provide for the payment of any claim filed by, or on behalf of, any civilian American citizen for detention benefits for any period of time subsequent to December 6, 1941, during which he was held by the Imperial Japanese Government as a prisoner, internee, hostage, or in any other capacity, or remained in hiding to avoid being captured or interned by such Imperial Japanese Government.

"(c) The detention benefit allowed to any person under the provisions of subsection (b) shall be at the rate of $60 for each calendar month during which such person was at least eighteen years of age and at the rate of $25 per month for each calendar month during which such person was less than eighteen years of age.

'(d) The detention benefits allowed under subsection (b) shall be allowed to the person entitled thereto, or, in the event of his death, only to the following persons:

"(1) Widow or dependent husband if there is no child or children of the deceased;

"(2) Widow or dependent husband and child or children of the deceased, one-half to the widow or dependent husband and the other half to the child or children in equal shares; and

"(3) Child or children of the deceased (in equal shares) if there is no widow or dependent husband.

"(e) Any claim allowed under the provisions of subsection (b) shall be certified to the Secretary of the Treasury for payment out of the War Claims Fund established by section 13 of this Act, and shall be payable by the Secretary of the Treasury to the person entitled thereto or to his legal or natural guardian if he has one.

- "(f) (1) Except as otherwise provided in this subsection, the provisions of titles I and II of the Act entitled 'An Act to provide benefits for the injury, disability, death, or enemy detention of employees of contractors with the United States, and for other purposes', approved December 2, 1942, as amended, are extended and shall apply with respect to the injury, disability, or death resulting from injury of a civilian American citizen occurring while he was held by or in hiding from the Imperial Japanese Government, to the same extent as if such civilian American citizen were an employee within the purview of such Act of December 2, 1942, as amended
- "(2) For the purpose of determining the benefits extended and made applicable by paragraph (1)-
- "(A) the average weekly wage of any such civilian American citizen, whether employed, self-employed, or not employed, shall be deemed to have been $37.50; "(B) the provisions of such Act shall be applicable whether or not any such civilian

American citizen was employed;

"(C) notice of injury or death shall not be required; and limitation provisions with respect to the filing of claims for injury, disability, or death shall not begin to run until the date of enactment of this section;

"(D) the monthly compensation in cases involving partial disability shall be deter-mined by the percentage the degree of partial disability bears to total disability and shall not be determined with respect to the extent of loss of wage earning capacity.

"(3) the following provisions of such Act of December 2, 1942, as amended, shall not apply in the case of such civilian American citizens: Section 101 (b), section 104, and section 105.

"(4) Rights or benefits which, under this subsection, are to be determined with reference to other provisions of law shall be determined with reference to such provisions of law as in force on January 3, 1948

"(5) The money benefit for disability or death shall be paid only to the person entitled thereto, or to his legal or natural guardian if he has one, and shall not upon death of the person so entitled survive for the benefit of his estate or any other person.

"(6) The benefit of a minor or of an in-competent person who has no natural or legal guardian may, in the discretion of the Federal Security Administrator, be paid, in whole or in such part as he may determine for and on behalf of such minor or incompetent directly to the person or institution caring for, supporting, or having custody of such minor or incompetent.

"(7) No person, except a widow or a child, shall be entitled to benefits for disability with respect to himself, and to death benefits on account of the death of another.

"(8) If a civilian American citizen or his dependent receives or has received from the United States any payments on account of the same injury or death, or from his employer, in the form of wages, or payments in lieu of wages, or in any form of support or compensation (including workmen's compensation) in respect to the same objects, the benefits under this section shall be diminished by the amount of such payments in the following manner: (A) Benefits on account of injury or disability shall be reduced by the amount of payments to the injured person on account of the same injury or ability; and (B) benefits on account of death shall be reduced by the amount of payments to the dependents of the deceased civilian American citizen on account of the same

"(9) This subsection shall take effect as of December 7, 1941, and the right of individuals to benefits shall be held to have begun to accrue as though this subsection had been in effect as of such date.

"PRISONERS OF WAR

"SEC. 6. (a) As used in this section, the term 'prisoner of war' means any regularly appointed, enrolled, enlisted, or inducted member of the military or naval forces of the United States who was held as a prisoner of war for any period of time subsequent to December 7, 1941, by any government of any nation with which the United States has been at war subsequent to such date.

"(b) The Commission is authorized to receive, adjudicate according to law, and provide for the payment of any claim filed by any prisoner of war for compensation for the violation by the enemy government by which he was held as a prisoner of war, or its agents, of its obligation to furnish him the quantity or quality of food to which he was entitled as a prisoner of war under the terms of the Geneva Convention of July 27, 1929. The compensation allowed to any prisoner of war under the provisions of this subsection shall be at the rate of $1 for each day he was held as a prisoner of war on which the enemy government or its agents failed to furnish him such quantity or quality of food. Any claim allowed under the provisions of this subsection shall be certified to the Secretary of the Treasury for payment out of the War Claims Fund established by section 13 of this Act.

"(c) Claims pursuant to subsection (b) shall be paid to the person entitled thereto, or to his legal or natural guardian if he has one, and shall in case of death of the persons who are entitled be payable only to or for the benefit of the following persons:

"(1) widow or dependent husband if there is no child or children of the deceased;

"(2) widow or dependent husband and child or children of the deceased, one-half to the widow or dependent husband and the other half to the child or children of the deceased in equal shares;

"(3) child or children of the deceased (in equal shares) if there is no widow or dependent husband; and

"(4) dependent parents (in equal shares) if there is no widow, dependent husband, or child

"RELIGIOUS ORGANIZATIONS

"SEC. 7. The Commission is authorized to receive, adjudicate according to law, and provide for the payment of any claim filed by any religious organization functioning in the Philippine Islands and affiliated with a religious organization in the United States, or by the personnel of any such Philippine or-ganization, for reimbursement of expendi-tures incurred, or for payment of the fair-value of supplies used, by such organization or such personnel for the purpose of furnishing shelter, food, clothing, hospitalization, medicines and medical services, and other relief in the Philippines to members of the armed forces of the United States or to civilian American citizens (as defined in section 5) at any time subsequent to December 6. 1941, and before August 15, 1945. Any claim allowed under the provisions of this section shall be certified to the Secretary of the Treasury for payment out of the War Claims Fund established by section 13 of this Act.

"REPORT WITH RESPECT TO PERSONAL INJURY AND PROPERTY CLAIMS

"SEC. 8. (a) The Commission shall inquire into and report to the President, for submission of such report to the Congress on or before March 31, 1949, with respect to war claims arising out of World War II, other than claims which may be received and adjudicated under the preceding sections of this Act, and shall present in such report its findings on-

"(1) the estimated number and amount of such claims, classified by types and cate-

"(2) the extent to which such claims have been or may be satisfied under international agreements or domestic or foreign laws.

"(b) The report of the Commission shall contain recommendations with respect to-

"(1) categories and types of claims, if any, which should be received and considered and the legal and equitable bases therefor;

"(2) the administrative method by which such claims should be considered, and any priorities or limitations which should be applicable: and

"(3) any limitations which should be applied to the allowance and payment of fees in connection with such claims.

"(c) The Commission shall include in such report

"(1) such other recommendations as it deems appropriate; and

"(2) such proposals for legislation as it deems appropriate for carrying out the recommendations made in such report.

"(d) Such report, with accompanying evidence, shall be printed as a public document when received by the Congress.

"(e) Nothing in this section shall be deemed to imply that the Congress will enact legislation-

"(1) adopting any recommendations made under this section with respect to the consideration or payment of any type of claim;

"(2) making any moneys, including moneys remaining in the war claims fund after the making of payments from such fund provided for by this Act, available for the payment of such claims.

"REPORT TO CONGRESS

"Sec. 9. Not later than six months after its organization, and every six months thereafter, the Commission shall make a report to the Congress concerning its operations under this Act.

"REMUNERATION FOR SERVICES IN CONNECTION WITH CLAIMS

"SEC. 10. No remuneration on account of services rendered or to be rendered to or on behalf of any claimant in connection with any claim filed with the administering agency under this Act shall exceed 10 per centum (or such lesser per centum as may be fixed by the administering agency with respect to any class of claims) of the amount allowed by the administering agency on account of such claim. Any agreement to the contrary shall be unlawful and void. Whoever, in the United States or elsewhere, pays or offers to pay, or promises to pay, or re-ceives, on account of services rendered or to be rendered in connection with any such claim, any remuneration in excess of the maximum permitted by this section, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and, upon conviction thereof, shall be fined not more than $5,000 or imprisoned not more than twelve months, or both, and, if any such payment shall have been made or granted, the administering agency shall take such action as may be necessary to recover the same, and, in addition thereto any such claimant shall forfeit all rights under this Act.

"HEARINGS WITH RESPECT TO CLAIMS

"SEC. 11. The Commission shall notify all claimants of the approval or denial of their claims, and, if approved, shall notify such claimants of the amount for which such claims are approved. Any claimant whose claim is denied, or is approved for less than the full allowable amount of such claim, shall be entitled, under such regulations as the Commission may prescribe, to a hearing before the Commission or its representatives with respect to such claim. Upon such hearing, the Commission may affirm, modify, or revise its former action with respect to such claim, including a denial or reduction in the amount theretofore allowed with respect to such claim. The action of the Commission in allowing or denying any claim under this Act shall be final and conclusive on all questions of law and fact and not subject to review by any other official of the United States or by any court by mandamus or other-wise, and the Comptroller General is authorized and directed to allow credit in the accounts of any certifying or disbursing officer for payments in accordance with such action.

"AMENDMENT TO TRADING WITH THE ENEMY ACT

"Sec. 12. The Trading With the Enemy Act of October 6, 1917, as amended, is hereby amended by adding at the end thereof the following new section:

"'SEC. 39. No property or interest therein of Germany, Japan, or any national of either such country vested in or transferred to any officer or agency of the Government at any time after December 17, 1941, pursuant to the provisions of this Act, shall be returned to former owners thereof or their successors in interest, and the United States shall not pay compensation for any such property or interest therein. The net proceeds remaining upon the completion of administration, liquidation, and disposition pursuant to the provisions of this Act of any such property or interest therein shall be covered into the Treasury at the earliest practicable date. Nothing in this section shall be construed to repeal or otherwise affect the operation of the Philippine Property Act of 1946.

"WAR CLAIMS FUND

"SEC. 13. (a) There is hereby created on the books of the Treasury of the United States a trust fund to be known as the War Claims Fund. The War Claims Fund shall-consist of all sums covered into the Treasury pursuant to the provisions of section 39 of the Trading With the Enemy Act of October 6, 1917, as amended. The moneys in such fund shall be available for expenditure only as provided in this Act or as may be provided hereafter by the Congress.

"(b) The Federal Security Administrator is authorized and directed to estimate and certify to the Secretary of the Treasury the total amount which will be required to pay all benefits payable as a result of the enactment of section 5 (f) of this Act. The Secretary of the Treasury shall transfer from the War Claims Fund to the general fund of the Treasury a sum equal to the total amount so certified by the Federal Security Administrator.

"(c) The Federal Security Administrator is authorized and directed to estimate and certify to the Secretary of the Treasury the total amount which will be required to pay all additional benefits payable as a result of the enactment of section 4 (c) of this Act. The Secretary of the Treasury shall transfer from the war claims fund to the general fund of the Treasury a sum equal to the total amount so certified by the Federal Security Administrator.

"(d) The Secretary of State is authorized

"(d) The Secretary of State is authorized and directed to certify to the Secretary of the Treasury the total amount of all obligations canceled pursuant to the provisions of section 4 (b) (1) of this Act. The Secretary of the Treasury shall transfer from the war claims fund to the general fund of the Treasury an amount equal to the local amount so certified.

"(e) There are hereby authorized to be appropriated, out of any money in the war claims fund, such sums as may be necessary to enable the Commission to carry out its functions under this Act.

"PAYMENTS TO CERTAIN MEMBERS OF RELIGIOUS

"SEC. 14. In any case in which any money is payable as a result of the enactment of this Act to any person who is prevented from accepting such money by the rules, regulations, or customs of the church or the religious order or organization of which he is a member, such money shall be paid, upon the request of such person, to such church or to such religious order or organization.

And the Senate agree to the same.

STATEMENT

The managers on the part of the House at the conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendment of the Senate to the bill (H. R. 4044) to amend the Trading With the Enemy Act, as amended; to create a commission to make an inquiry and report with respect to war claims; and to provide for relief for internees in certain cases, submit the following statement in explanation of the effect of the action agreed upon by the conferees and recommended in the accompanying conference report:

The Senate amendment struck out all after the enacting clause of the bill and inserted an amendment in the nature of a substitute, which differed from the House bill in a number of respects.

The substitute agreed to in conference differs from both the House bill and the Senate amendment, but follows in general the provisions of the Senate amendment. The principal differences between the House bill and the conference substitute are explained briefly below:

Section 2 of the House bill, suspending payment of debt claims under section 34 of the Trading With the Enemy Act, has been omitted.

The report of the War Claims Commission, created by the bill, is to be made on or before March 31, 1949.

The conference substitute contains pro-visions, taken from the Senate amendment, which are to be administered by the Commission, relating to the adjudication and payment of claims by former members of the armed forces, held as prisoners of war by the enemy during the recent war, based upon failure to furnish the quantity and quality of food required by the Geneva Convention. It also provides for the adjudica-tion and payment of claims filed by any religious organization functioning in the Philippine Islands and affiliated with a religious organization in the United States, or by personnel of any such Philippine organization, on account of expenditures incurred by them in furnishing shelter, food, clothing, and other relief in the Philippines to members of the armed forces of the United States or to civilian internees.

The provisions of the conference substitute relating to payment of benefits for detention are to be administered by the Commission, and the detention benefit is to be at the rate of $60 for each calendar month during which the individual was at least 18 years of age and at the rate of $25 per month for each calendar month during which such person was less than 18 years of age. Under the House bill, detention benefits (as well as disability and death benefits) would have been administered by the Federal Security Administration, and determined in accordance with titles I and II of the Act of December 2, 1942 (56 Stat. 1028), as amended, as though the individual suffering detention were an employee within the purview of that Act; and it was provided that the average weekly wage of such individual, for such purpose, whether employed, self-employed, or not employed, should be deemed to have been $37.50.

The conference substitute contains provisions, taken from the Senate amendment, but changed so that they would be administered by the Federal Security Administrator, authorizing adjudication and payment of claims of individuals who were employed by contractors of the Government on Wake, Guam, and Cavite, for amounts equal to the difference between what they would have received under their contracts and what they actually received.

The conference substitute contains a section, taken from the Senate bill, limiting the amount of remuneration any person may receive on account of services rendered to or on behalf of any claimant in connection with any claim filed with the Commission or the Federal Security Administrator under the Act.

The conference substitute, as did the Senate amendment, provides for the creation of a trust fund in the Treasury to be known as the War Claims Fund. The fund is to consist of all sums covered into the Treasury pursuant to section 39 of the Trading With the Enemy Act. The moneys in the fund are to be available only for carrying out the provisions of this legislation or as may be provided hereafter by the Congress.

CARL HINSHAW,

JOSEPH P. O'HARA,
HUGH D. SOCTT, Jr.,
VIRGIL CHAPMAN,
LINDLEY BECKWORTH,
Managers on the Part of the House.

Mr. HINSHAW. Mr. Speaker, I call up the conference report on the bill (H. R. 4044) to amend the Trading with the Enemy Act, as amended; to create a commission to make an inquiry and report with respect to war claims; and to provide for relief for internees in certain cases, and ask unanimous consent that the statement of the managers on the part of the House be read in lieu of the

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the statement. Mr. HINSHAW. Mr. Speaker, I move the previous question on the conference report.

The previous question was ordered. The conference report was agreed to. A motion to reconsider was laid on the

EXTENSION OF REMARKS

Mr. KENNEDY asked and was granted permission to extend his remarks in the RECORD and include two letters.

CREDIT FOR MILITARY SERVICE AND TRAINING FOR POSTAL EMPLOYEES

Mr. REES. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent for the immediate consideration of the bill (S. 2730) to credit, in certain cases, military service and training preparatory thereto performed by employees of the postal service.

The Clerk read the title of the bill. The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the Senate bill, as fol-

Be it enacted, etc., That section 25 of the act entitled "An act to reclassify the salaries of postmasters, officers and employees of the of postmasters, officers and employees of the postal service; to establish uniform procedures for computing compensation; and for other purposes," approved July 6, 1945 (U. S. C., 1946 ed., title 39, sec. 875), is hereby amended by adding to the last sentence "Provided, That in the case of employees who have been separated from the field service of the Post Office Department to transfer under war service regulations to private industry or another department or independent establishment or agency of the Federal Government, the periods or terms of such service immediately preceding such transfer as well as the time engaged in military service shall be construed as allowable service and pro rata credit shall be given for the time engaged in military service.'

SEC. 2. Any person who prior to the enactment of this act received any amount the payment of which is authorized for the first time by this act is hereby relieved of all liability to refund to the United States any such amount; and in the audit and settlement of the amounts of any postmaster, or of any other designated disbursing officer of the Post Office Department or postal service, such amount shall be considered to have been authorized. Any amount heretofore credited to the employee or refunded by him to the United States on account of any such overpayment shall be repaid out of any money available for the payment of salaries of employees in the service in which he is employed.

SEC. 3. There are hereby authorized to be appropriated such sums as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this act. Sec. 4. This act shall take effect as of July

Mr. REES. Mr. Speaker, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. REES: Strike out all after the enacting clause and insert the provisions of H. R. 6734, as amended.

"That section 25 of the act entitled 'An act to reclassify the salaries of postmasters, officers, and employees of the Postal Service; to establish uniform procedures for com-puting compensation; and for other pur-poses', approved July 6, 1945 (U. S. C., 1946 edition, title 39, sec. 875), is hereby amended to read as follows:

"'SEC. 25. Allowable service under the provisions of this act shall be only such continuous active service as has been rendered and shall not include previous periods or terms of employment, except that in the case of employees who have been separated or shall hereafter be separated from the field service of the Post Office Department for military duty, or to comply with a war transfer as defined by the Civil Service Commission, the periods or terms of such service immediately preceding entry into military service or immediately preceding such transfer, as well as the time engaged in military service and service on war transfer, shall be construed as allowable service, and pro rata credit shall be given for the time engaged in military service and service on war transfer for each year of such service.

SEC. 2. Any person who prior to the en-actment of this act received any amounts the payment of which is authorized for the first time by this act is hereby relieved of all liability to refund such amounts to the United States; and in the audit and settlement of the accounts of any postmaster, or of any other designated disbursing officer of the Post Office Department or postal service, the payment of such amounts shall be considered to have been authorized. The Postmaster General is hereby authorized and directed to repay, out of any funds hereafter appropriated pursuant to the authority of this act, any amounts heretofore credited to the employee or refunded by him to the United States on account of such receipt by him of unauthorized payments

SEC. 3. There are hereby authorized to be appropriated such sums as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this act.

SEC. 4. The amendment made by the first section of this act to section 25 of the act of July 6, 1945, shall take effect as of July

Amend the title so as to read: "A bill to include as allowable service under the act of July 6, 1945, service performed in the military forces and on war transfer by employees in the field service of the Post Office Department."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed, and a motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

RECESS

The SPEAKER. The Chair declares a recess, subject to the call of the Chair. Thereupon, at 10 o'clock and 18 minutes p. m., the House stood in recess, subject to the call of the Speaker.

AFTER RECESS

The recess having expired, the House was called to order at 11 o'clock and 42 minutes p. m.

Amendment numbered 20: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 20, and agree to the same with an amendment, as follows: In lieu of the sum proposed by said amendment insert "$225,000,000"; and the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 23: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 23, and agree to the same with an amendment, as follows: In lieu of the matter stricken out and in-serted by said amendment insert "$400,000,-000, of which not to exceed $1,200,000 shall be available for administrative expenses and of which $125,000,000 shall be available exclusively as provided in subsection 404 (b) of said Act"; and the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 25: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 25, and agree to the same with an amendment, as follows: In lieu of the matter stricken out and inserted by said amendment insert minimum supplies for the civilian populations of such areas as may be essential to prevent starvation, disease, or unrest, prej-udicial to the objectives sought to be accomplished, and such supplies, commodities, and equipment as may be essential to carry out the purposes of this appropriation; $1,300,000,000,"; and the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 31: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 31, and agree to the same with an amendment, as follows: In lieu of the matter inserted by said amend-ment insert "Provided further, That under the rules and regulations to be prescribed, the Secretary of the Army shall fix and pay a uniform rate per pound for the ocean trans-portation of all relief packages of food or other general classification of commodities shipped to Japan, Korea, or the Ryukyus regardless of methods of shipment and higher rates charged by particular agencies of transportation, but this proviso shall not apply to shipments made by individuals to individuals:"; and the Senate agree to the

to the same with an amendment, as follows: Restore the matter stricken out by said amendment, amended to read as follows: : Provided. That not to exceed 60 per centum of the funds appropriated herein shall be available for contribution to the Inter-national Refugee Organization until such time as there are effected agreements providing for a caloric diet for the occupants of refugee camps in Europe that is no higher than that prevailing in the country in which such camps are located"; and the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 36: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 36, and agree to the same with an amendment, as follows: In lieu of the matter stricken out and inserted by said amendment insert

"Sec. 202. No funds made available under the authority of this Act shall be used for the purchase in bulk of any commodities (other than commodities procured by or in the possession of the Commodity Credit Corporation pursuant to Act of July 1, 1941 (55 Stat. 498), as amended), at prices higher than the market price prevailing in the United States at the time of the purchase adjusted for differences in the cost of transportation to destination, quality, and terms of payment: Provided. That no funds available under this Act shall be used for the purchase of wool other than from existing stocks owned by the Commodity Credit Corporation, unless or until such stocks are exhausted."

And the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 37: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 37, and agree to the same with an amendment, as follows: In lieu of the matter stricken out and inserted by said amendment insert:

"Sec. 203. No part of the funds herein appropriated shall be used to purchase farm machinery, including tractors, in the United States in an amount which will bring the total exports of such machinery and tractors during the period for which this appropria-tion is made, from the United States, by or for the benefit of the countries participating in the European recovery program, to more than $75,000,000."

And the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 38: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 38, and agree to the same with an amendment, as follows Restore the matter stricken out by said amendment, amended to read as follows:
"Sec. 204. Whenever an export license for a commodity, the production or shipment of which to a nonparticipating country was contracted for in good faith prior to March 1, 1948, is denied or cannot be obtained under section 6 of the Act of July 2, 1940 (54 Stat. 714), as amended, the Administrator shall provide for the procurement of such commodity to transfer to a participating country in accordance with the requirements of such country, at not less than the contract price of such commodity to the producer or exporter, as the case may be, in-cluding any cost incurred in converting the commodity to meet the requirements of the participating country."

And the Senate agree to the same.
Amendment numbered 39: That the House

recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 39, and agree to the same with an amendment, as follows: In lieu of the matter stricken out and inserted by said amendment insert the following:

"SEC. 205. Not less than 50 per centum of the United States export requirements of nitrogenous fertilizer materials or nitrogenous compounds (including anhydrous ammonia) for nonoccupied areas shall come from production of plants operated by or for the Department of the Army.

"In addition, the Department of the Army shall make available, for the commercial production of nitrogenous fertilizer materials for domestic use, 10 per centum of the total anhydrous ammonia produced in the United States in plants operated by or for the Department of the Army, said anhydrous ammonia to be distributed as directed by the Department of Commerce, which shall give preference, in distributing said anhydrous ammonia, to producers of ammonium sulphate who were producing ammonium sul-phate during the six months preceding the enactment of this Act or who shall have ceased to produce, or shall be faced with an imminent shutdown in the production of, ammonium sulphate for want of anhydrous ammonia, to the extent necessary to permit such producers to operate. The Department of the Army is hereby authorized to produce and sell, in addition to its production for occupied areas, such nitrogenous fertilizer materials or nitrogenous compounds (including anhydrous ammonia) required for United States exports to nonoccupied areas or for the production of nitrog-enous fertilizer materials for domestic use and to credit the proceeds of such sales to the appropriation for Government and Relief in Occupied Areas to the extent of the cost of such production for such sales and any balance to miscellaneous receipts of the Treasury."

And the Senate agree to the same. The House agrees to the title of the bill as amended by the Senate.

Amendment No. 5: Limits the purchase of automobiles to 50, instead of 40, as proposed by the House, and 60, as proposed by the Amendment No. 6: Amends the provision of the Senate to provide for the hire, rather than the purchase and maintenance of aircraft.

Amendment No. 7: Deletes the provision of the Senate providing for deposits in the Treasury for penalty mail, as proposed by Amendment No. 8: Provides language and the amount of not to exceed $20,000,000 for assistance to the Free Territory of Trieste, as proposed by the Senate.

Amendment No. 9: Eliminates the provision of the House limiting to $65,000,000 the amount to be expended for the purchase in the United States of nonfat dried milk solids, as proposed by the Senate.

Amendment No. 10: Eliminates the provision of the House limiting administrative expenditures to $68,000,000, as proposed by the Senate.

Amendment No. 11: Restores the provision of the House providing for the allocation to the use of the United States of a certain portion of funds deposited in the special local currency account of each participating country; reduces the amount of such allocations from 10 to 5 per centum; and limits the ex-penditure of funds so allocated for purchases of strategic materials to countries where such strategic materials are available.

Amendment No. 12: Restores the provision of the House providing that allocations of funds provided pursuant to provision of the Economic Cooperation Act of 1948 for Austria and any other occupied country shall be made to the United States military government of such countries.

Amendment No. 13: Deletes the provision of the House providing for the expenditure of Economic Cooperation Administration funds for economic rehabilitation in Japan, Korea, and the Ryukyus, as proposed by the Senate.

Amendment No. 14: Provides for reimbursement to military authorities by the Economic Cooperation Administrator for administrative expenses incurred in connection with the program, as proposed by the Senate.

Amendment No. 15: Limits the amount that may be expended for administrative and other expenses to $58,000,000 instead of $63,-000,000, as proposed by the Senate, and adds additional limitations of not to exceed $12,-000,000 for direct administration and $6,000,-000 for technical assistance.

Amendment No. 16: Inserts in slightly amended form provision of the Senate providing for uniform payments for ocean transportation of relief packages.

Amendment No. 17: Clarifies language of the Senate which limits the amount to be expended for guarantees of investments in enterprises producing or distributing informational media to $10,000,000.

Amendment No. 18: Inserts a provision of the Senate providing for certain expenditures of members of staff of the Joint Committee on Foreign Economic Cooperation from the local currency funds of each participating country.

Amendment No. 19: Appropriates $35,000,-000 for the International Children's Emergency Fund, instead of $60,000,000, as proposed by the House and $20,000,000 as proposed by the Senate.

Amendment No. 20: Appropriates $225,000,-000 for assistance to Greece and Turkey, instead of $200,000,000, as proposed by the House, and $250,000,000, as proposed by the Amendment No. 21: Provides for assistance to China until April 2, 1949, as proposed by the Senate, instead of June 30, 1949, as proposed by the House.

Amendment No. 22. Deletes language of the Senate providing for deposits in the Treasury for penalty mail, as proposed by the Amendment No. 23: Appropriates $400,-000,000 for assistance to China of which not to exceed $1,200,000 shall be available for administrative expenses, as proposed by the House, instead of $460,000,000, as proposed by the Senate; and makes $125,000,000 of the appropriation available exclusively for carry ing out the provisions of subsection 404 (b) of the China Aid Act of 1948.

Amendment No. 24: Deletes the provision of the House providing for administration of the assistance to China program to conform with the objectives of assistance to Greece and Turkey.

Amendment No. 25: Appropriates $1,300,-000,000 for government and relief in occuunder the Department of the Army, instead of $1,250,000,000, as proposed by the House, and $1,325,000,000, as proposed by the Senate; restores House language, and adds clarifying language covering purchases of supplies, commodities, and equipment, as proposed by the Senate.

Amendment No. 26: Inserts provision of the Senate authorizing the use of funds appropriated for government and relief in oc-cupied areas, Department of the Army, for economic rehabilitation in Japan, Korea, and the Ryukyus.

Amendment No. 27: Inserts provision of the Senate making available funds unex-pended at the time of termination of occupation in any country for further procurement of commodities and services under direction of the President and for the fulfillment of previously negotiated contracts.

Amendment No. 28: Inserts provision of the Senate making certain assistance in formerly occupied areas contingent on agreements between the President and such government that is established upon termination of occupation by the United States.

Amendment No. 29: Inserts provision of the Senate providing that requirements of certain contracts with foreign governments correspond to requirements contained in specific sections of the Foreign Aid Act of Amendment No. 30: Inserts provision of the Senate authorizing the payment of transportation charges incurred by voluntary nonprofit relief agencies in connection with shipment of relief packages from the United States to Japan, Korea, and the Ryukyus. Amendment No. 31: Inserts in slightly amended form provision of the Senate pro-viding for a uniform rate, fixed by the Secretary of the Army, for ocean transportation of relief packages.

Amendment No. 32: Deletes the provision of the Senate providing for certain exemptions from existing law pertaining to the employment of experts, consultants, and technicians, as proposed by the House.

Amendment No. 33: Restores the provision of the House making contingent the use of funds for the International Refugee Organization upon the execution of certain agreements relating to diet, amended to set the limitation at 60 percent of such funds for Amendments Nos. 34 and 35: Strike from the bill language proposed by the House to forbid employment of members of labor organizations which are not in compliance with the Labor-Management Relations Act, Amendment No. 36: Restores provision of the House establishing price limitations on commodities purchased with funds provided for in the act and providing for the purchase of wool from existing stocks owned by the Commodity Credit Corporation, amended to provide for certain price adjustments.

Amendment No. 37: Eliminates provision of the House limiting expenditures for farm machinery and farm tractors to $50,000,000, and amends substitute language of the Senate which provides for a total export limitation of farm machinery of $75,000,000 by in-cluding in the language of the Senate, "tractors", and changing the period of applicability of the limitation to the period for which the appropriation is made rather than to fiscal year 1949.

Amendment No. 38: Restores language of the House providing for purchase by the Economic Cooperation Administration of commodities for which contracts were entered into in good faith prior to March 1, 1948, but for which export licenses are denied and can-not be obtained, and changes the word "and" to "or" for purposes of clarification.

Amendment No. 39: Eliminates language of the House governing the production and sale of nitrogenous fertilizer materials and inserts a substitute provision setting forth conditions for the production and sale of nitrogenous fertilizer materials by the Department of the Army.

Amendments Nos. 40 and 41: Correct section numbers.

JOHN TABER, R. B. WIGGLESWORTH. ALBERT J. ENGEL, KARL STEFAN, FRANCIS CASE, FRANK B. KEEFE. CLARENCE CANNON. JOHN H. KERR, GEORGE MAHON,

Managers on the Part of the House.

Mr. TABER. Mr. Speaker, I call up the conference report on the bill (H. R. 6801), and I ask unanimous consent that the statement be read in lieu of the report.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New York [Mr. TABER]?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the statement.

Mr. TABER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 5 minutes.

Mr. Speaker, we are presenting a complete report on this bill. It carries a provision in title I with reference to ECA: I think I should read it to you in full, because it was not set out completely in the statement that was read in lieu of the conference report. I refer to amend-ment No. 2 where we carried the funds in the House to run to the 30th of June. This is the amendment:

Until June 30, 1949, provided that the entire amount may be apportioned for obligation or may be obligated and expended if the President after recommendation by the Administrator deems such action necessary to carry out the purposes of said act during the period ending April 2, 1949.

Frankly, I believe they have ample money to carry through all that they can honestly and legitimately spend until that date.

The amount of $4,000,000,000 which was carried in the House bill was not changed by the Senate so that remains as it was, $245,000,000 below the budget.

The other major changes were to the House figure of $400,000,000 for China, which was retained, and the date was left as the Senate placed it, April 2, 1949.

The item for IRO was changed so that not more than 60 percent of the funds appropriated might be available unless an agreement is made providing that the caloric ration would be no higher than that prevailing in the country in which the camps were located.

The item for Greece and Turkey was made $225,000,000 as against $250,000,-000 in the Senate and $200,000,000 in the House.

The item for relief in occupied areas was made $1,300,000,000 as against $1,250,000,000 in the House and $1,325,-000,000 in the Senate.

There was carried into that provision an authorization for expenditures along the line of the ECA in occupied territories and that provision which had been incorporated in the ECA was deleted.

I think that concludes the story of about what happened to the bill.

I just want to call attention to one thing as I close. While there has been insufficient time in which to complete a tabulation of total budget estimates and total appropriations for this session of the Eightieth Congress, my preliminary information is that the reduction in the total budget estimates will be nearly $3,000,000,000.

Mr. DEVITT. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. TABER. I yield to the gentleman from Minnesota.

Mr. DEVITT. I call the attention of the gentleman to amendments Nos. 16 and 31 dealing with the payment of ocean freight charges on relief packages by the Administrator, and ask if he will explain the provisions of the conference report and in what respect they differ from the bill as passed by the other body.
Mr. TABER. We have made some changes in the language there, and I believe we have left it where these profiteers cannot declare a dividend out of the operations. We have not provided subsidies for anybody in connection with the operations.

Mr. DEVITT. I will say to the gentleman that section 117 (c) of the European Recovery Act makes provision by the terms of which the Administrator is required to pay the ocean freight charges on these relief packages for persons who ship packages to individuals overseas. I would like to ask the gentleman if under the terms of this bill now it is applicable to commercial organizations that operate for profit.

Mr. TABER. I will yield to the gentleman from Wisconsin to answer that.

Mr. KEEFE. Mr. Speaker, I think this is a very important question and one that should be clarified in the RECORD so that we may have an understanding as to just what the conferees have done. You will recall that the enabling legislation provides for the payment of ocean freight to be paid out of ECA funds. There are a large number of nonprofit organizations engaged in the business of sending relief packages abroad. Among them is CARE, Inc., which you all know about, and which General Clay said was doing one of the greatest works that any organization could possibly do to establish proper relations with the people in Europe. They have a unique method of distribution. They ship their food and other materials in bulk by ocean shipment to warehouses abroad, thus obtaining a very low ocean-freight rate on the bulk shipments. They assemble these packages over in the foreign countries and when an order comes in for a CARE package and payment is made here, that order is sent abroad and is filled in the country abroad. Thus, they are able to get a lower ocean-freight rate than anybody else engaged in the business.

Now, the individual in your town and mine who is sending a package to a foreign country by parcel post has complained to you and to me that when he pays the established parcel-post rate the rate is so high that it sometimes is more than the value of the goods that he sends, The demand has been made upon you and me to try to get relief to the individual shipper of individual packages consigned to individuals in Europe. The only thing that is authorized to be paid to such an individual is the ocean-freight carriage under the basic law. That requires that the Administrator of ECA enter into an agreement with the Post Office Department by which the Post Office Department will accept individual parcel-post packages for shipment to individuals abroad and give to that individual a reduced parcel-post rate equivalent to the ocean-carriage freight on that individual package. That has been accomplished by virtue of the language in this bill-the exception that was written into it.

As to the argument that many concerns have gotten into this relief business for profit and are making money on the deal and want to obtain a subsidy of this ocean freight rate as provided in the ECA law, after some consideration some people felt that if you give a subsidy to these profit takers in that field you will have to raise the subsidy to CARE, because CARE gets, for example, a 2-cent rate, and, for the purposes of illustration. the other rate is 8 cents or 7.5 cents. you gave the other people the benefit of the ocean rate by way of subsidy and CARE is able to ship at a 2-cent rate, the story was that that would hurt this great nonprofit organization. So the conferees agreed that they would leave the situation exactly as it is, leave CARE with its 2-cent rate, and would pay the lowest freight rate, so that all of the nonprofit organizations and profit organizations would be in the same classification, but proposed to give the benefit to the individual shipper.

Mr. DEVITT. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. KEEFE. I yield.

Mr. DEVITT. What I am interested in finding out is if any of these private groups that are in the business of shipping packages overseas for profit are going to be able under the present provision of the conference report to get ECA funds to help defray the expenses of shipping the packages overseas?

Mr. KEEFE. In my opinion they will not be able to get anything, because their freight charges are much higher than those enjoyed by CARE.

Mr. CASE of South Dakota. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. KEEFE. I yield.

Mr. CASE of South Dakota. Is it not a fact that the language of the Senate amendment, which we accept with a proviso, provides for the payment of a uniform rate, so that they will get in cents or dollars the same amount per pound that CARE will get, but we provide that this limitation should not apply to shipments from individuals to individuals?

Mr. KEEFE. That is exactly right. Does that answer the gentleman's question?

Mr. CASE of South Dakota. The limitation does not apply from individuals to individuals, it lets individuals get whatever the cost may be determined by the Administrator to be.

Mr. DEVITT. Can the gentleman answer this question yes or no? May a private organization in business for profit use some of these funds in order to defray freight costs on these packages going overseas?

Mr. KEEFE. They cannot get any more than CARE gets.

Mr. DEVITT. I thank the gentleman. Mr. KEEFE. CARE is on a very low bulk shipment rate that these people are not on, and it seems to me that you have language under which they cannot possibly get a subsidy.

Mr. CURTIS. Mr. Speaker, will the

Mr. CURTIS. gentleman yield?

Mr. TABER. I yield. Mr. CURTIS. What was done in reference to the funds for feeding children in occupied areas?

Mr. TABER. That was raised from $20,000,000, which was the Senate figure, to $35,000,000, and it appeared from the testimony that was available to us that there was a $12,000,000 balance, which made $47,000,000, which is $7,000,000 more than was available this year.

Mr. STEFAN. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. TABER. I yield. Mr. STEFAN. Mr. Speaker, I regret that we were unable to keep the fund for feeding children in Europe to the figure allowed by the House which was the full amount requested. Your House committee kept in the full amount $60 .-000,000 and the House voted to keep in the full amount. The Senate cut this amount to $20,000,000 and your House committee was able to restore only $15,-000,000. In order to get some increase for feeding of children we had to compromise. I fought to the best of my ability to restore the amount requested by the United Nations International Children's Emergency Fund. The Senate, among some other reasons, cut the amount because it was believed some of the children of Communist parents may be getting some food from this relief program.

My stand on this matter is no contradiction.

The provision of $60,000,000 for UNICEF is part of the Economic Co-operation Administration appropriations bill, fiscal year 1949. I have opposedand I will continue to oppose-many of the expenditures called for in this bill. I never have-and I never will opposeexpenditures expressly earmarked to save the lives and guarantee the future of children.

By far the greater majority of the items in the ECA appropriation bill are not there because of any commitment of this Government. UNICEF is the result of an agreement between 21 nations, approved by the Senate, and an integral part of American foreign policy.

My conscience would never permit me to vote for the support of the multimillion-dollar tobacco monopolies of foreign socialist states. My conscience demands that I vote for the full continuance of the most efficient international group concerned with keeping the breath of life in children, regardless of the political affiliations of their parents.

The provisions of ECA which permit strategic war materials to sift through western European countries, united by trade treaties with Moscow, to the Soviet Union by devious and indirect routesthese I abhor and decry. I champion the direct dealings which UNICEF has had with eastern European countries, where their inspectors make sure that food and other necessities go to anti-Communist and Communist alike, where the only criteria of giving aid is that a child is in want.

This Congress has not been given any reason to extend unlimited confidence to ECA personnel. Too many of ECA's keymen can only wear service stripes from defunct WPA and discredited UNRRA. Mr. Pace, Executive Director of UNICEF, is a Nebraskan. His integrity and ability are beyond question, and he is a field general rather than a swivel-chair autocrat. His staff, and the results of the downright hard work of his staff, are a credit to his talents and his efficient management.

It has been a habit of ECA propagandists to shame Members of Congress into voting for their pet projects by screaming that Europeans would feel let down if those projects were defeated. It is my well-defined purpose to work for the defeat of luxury-supplying projects, projects which add nothing to the possibility of eventual reconstruction and flagrantly waste the money of the American taxpayer. It makes no difference to me how much the European luxury-lover screams or how loudly the ECA propagandist howls.

It does make a difference to me that, somewhere in this world, there are children who cannot speak because they are hungry. It does make a difference to me that UNICEF, with necessary appropriation, could see to it that some of those children were fed.

Christ said: "Suffer the little children to come unto Me."

Christ did not say: "Suffer the non-Communist children to come unto Me and suffer the Communist children to stay away."

If one out of a hundred Communist children who might be fed by UNICEF learned that America was playing a big part in keeping them alive, that knowledge would prove an insurmountable barrier to communism. If one out of a hundred Communist children who might be fed UNICEF learned that they would not be fed because of an action of the Senate, this could well create a million future enemies of this Nation.

Mr. FULTON. Mr. Speaker, since title 2 of this bill providing $60,000,000 was my amendment for the children, may I ask whether the fund is to be used for the relief of children wherever they may be?

Mr. STEFAN. Wherever they may be. Yes, sir. And that answers the gentleman's question.

Mr. FULTON. That is whether they are behind the "iron curtain" or in occupied areas or in countries that have been overrun.

Mr. STEFAN. It makes no difference. That is right.

Mr. FULTON. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield to me?

Mr TABER. I yield.

Mr. FULTON. Mr. Speaker, I hope the Congress will bear with me while we discuss for 1 minute the diet of 650,000 people for next year. It is worth 1 minute of our time. I had a minute and a half while this was on the floor before. As chairman of the Displaced Persons and Refugee Special Committee, I would like to hear about this, because I have disagreed with my worthy friend, the gentleman from New York [Mr. TABER]. I would like to hear how the displaced persons should be fed-whether they should simply be fed 1,550 calories, which the people that oppress them are fed, which the victors who had put them in concentration camps are fed, or are they going to be fed just a little more than 450 calories, which is below, much below, the average person's normal consumption. What has been done on that?

Mr. TABER. The way worked out, 60 percent of what is available of the $70,000,000 is without restriction. The rest of it is only available in case that organization agrees that the caloric rations shall be limited to what is available in the country. Unless that is done, it is absolutely impossible ever to get these people out of the camps.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 15 minutes to the gentleman from Missouri.

Mr. CANNON. Mr. Speaker, this conference report represents a complete victory for the Senate program. It provides ample appropriations for the effective administration of the Marshall plan, now so successfully operated with the preliminary funds already provided. The report is highly satisfactory to the minority. We have all signed it and we urgently recommend its adoption.

But the proceedings attending the settlement of the disagreement between the House and Senate serve to lighten, with a happy spirit of levity, the monotonous grind attending the closing days of the

The majority managers on the part of the House, after sabotaging the program for foreign aid, by cutting the appropriation of approximately $2,000,000,000, found themselves in an uncomfortable position as soon as the Senate announced its amendments. From that time down to tonight there has been a wild foot race upon the part of the House conferees, in a scurrying search for a loophole through which to escape from the trap in which they had snared themselves.

There were two primary differences between the two Houses.

One was the amount of the appropriation and the other was the date to which the appropriation would be availabledetermining whether the appropriation would be spread over a period of 12 months, as originally provided, or over a period of 15 months, as the House managers insisted. In short the question was whether the money would suffice for 12 months or 15 months. Of course, the change in date was merely a subterfuge. It was a device to cut the amount available by 20 percent, instead of cutting the appropriation in so many words. All familiar with the program agree that such a drastic cut would make the bill a bare relief measure and abandon the recovery features upon which the principal success of the program depends.

In their efforts to save face, the majority Members clung to that date throughout the conference like shipwrecked sailors to an empty barrel. And they finally saved the date.

But they sacrificed everything else to retain it and then find it meaningless as the Senate amendment as adopted authorizes the President to ignore it. In other words, this report amounts to a complete recapitulation to the Senate program.

In their desperate efforts to find some device which would conceal the fact that they were making every concession, they agreed that the money should be spent in 12 months, instead of 15 months, "if the President deems such action necessary."

That amounts to a complete surrender as the President has already recommended the use of the entire appropriation in 12 months. So the verbiage of the agreement is simply a smoke screen resorted to to conceal the fact that they were yielding abjectly and completely. The language insures the expenditure of the appropriation as originally planned.

But their endeavor to escape the consequences of their rash attempt to hamstring the Marshall plan involves a matter of even deeper significance—the independence of the legislative branch of the Government.

The proposal to thus delegate to the President of the United States legislative functions of the Congress amounts to an abdication of constitutional authority in favor of the Chief Executive. It is a transfer of power and duties from the legislative branch of the Government to the executive branch of the Government. And to that extent it is in effect an abandonment of the rights and prerogatives so jealously maintained by able and eminent Members of both the House and the Senate ever since the adoption of the Constitution. That is an appalling price to pay to extricate the House conferees from the consequences of their folly.

Mr. COOLEY. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. CANNON. I yield to the gentleman from North Carolina.

Mr. COOLEY. Does not the gentleman consider that as a compliment to the President and as an expression of confidence in the President?

Mr. CANNON. They could have paid him no greater compliment. They could have written no more eloquent testimonial of the confidence Congress places in the President than this action by which they propose to delegate to him the discharge of duties vested in the Congress by the Constitution of the United States.

Mr. ISACSON. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. CANNON. I yield to the gentleman from New York.

Mr. ISACSON. I wish to ask the gentleman whether, after the amendments changing some of the appropriations, the specific appropriation to Great Britain of $1,200,000,000 with which to arm the hordes of King Abdullah of Transjordan, Syria, Lebanon, and Egypt remains intact?

Mr. CANNON. I leave that to the chairman of the committee who is explaining the technicalities of the bill.

Mr. Speaker, the situation would be comic if it were not tragic. We have delayed this bill unnecessarily. It should have been enacted long ago. The world has been waiting to learn what America proposes to do. have been waiting to know if we intend to carry out our commitments as embodied in the authorization bill which passed both Houses of Congress by such overwhelming majorities.

While the world has been waitingwhile international relations have been deteriorating-while Russia has been gaining in prestige and military strength—while our friends over there have been losing heart—we have been quibbling. And now we wind up by adopting the bill in practically the form first presented. Why did we not do it before this and help our friends and confound our enemies and merit the respect of the world and future generations?

The future peace of the world, the hope of halting the march of communism around the globe, depend on strengthening our allies in western Europe to a point where they can withstand Russian pres-

Mr. McCORMACK. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. CANNON. I yield to the distinguished gentleman from Massachusetts.

Mr. McCORMACK. This bill merely shows, with the passage of the draft bill earlier this evening, that the power of America is going to be used determinedly for good and to assist freedom-loving nations throughout the world in resisting tyranny and aggression. This is one of the most important bills that is to pass the Congress, and I think there ought to be a roll-call vote on this bill on passage, and at the proper time I am going to ask for a roll-call vote.

Mr. CANNON. I heartily agree with the gentleman. No more important bill has been considered by the House in recent years. At the suggestion of the gentleman I shall ask for a record vote.

The bill carries funds to fully administer the Marshall plan. It is a part of our rearmament program, a measure for national defense. Every minority member of the committee of conference has signed the conference report. For the sake of its influence on our foreign relations, both friend and foe, I trust the conference report, so ably dictated by the Senate, will have the unanimous approval of every Member of the House. Mr. TABER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 10 minutes to the gentleman from Wisconsin [Mr. KEEFE].

Mr. BUSBEY. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. KEEFE. I yield to the gentleman from Illinois

Mr. BUSBEY. Mr. Speaker, I want to concur in the words of the gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. McCormack], with regard to a roll-call vote on this measure. I am sure the proponents of this bill are just as anxious to be recorded as those of us who are in opposition to the bill and in all fairness to everyone I think we should have a roll-call vote on this bill and I hope the committee will insist on it.

Mr. KEEFE. Mr. Speaker, I do not intend to delay the Members on final vote upon this conference report. But I think it is unfortunate that we should leave the statement with respect to this conference report with a sour note. The gentleman from Missouri sat all through this very arduous conference. I did not hear him make any suggestions during the conference. We struggled long and hard to come to an agreement and to try to iron out differences that seemed almost insoluble when we started, and that is the duty of the conference committee. When we had concluded that conference, of which the gentleman from Missouri was a party, he signed the conference report, and it was unanimous. Every Member signed the conference report on both sides of the aisle. It would have been much better for anyone who is interested in this program to have devoted some time in explaining some of the provisions in the conference report more minutely, perhaps, than to attempt to cast aspersions upon the chairman of the Committee on Appropriations, who has made a most gallant fight to bring the facts to the attention of the American people. You people will live to see the day when the people of America will pay tribute to the gentleman from New York, JOHN TABER, for the courageous fight that he has made under the most difficult conditions to get the truth to the American people. How many people in America are there tonight who know that when this Congress passed this bill, this legislative authority, that they wrote into that law, "Nothing in this title is intended, nor shall it be construed, to be an express or implied commitment to provide any specific assistance, whether for funds, commodities, or services, to any country or countries."

And, it was the language written into the bill by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and the House Committee on Foreign Affairs, and yet the people of America have been told, as has been stated by the gentleman from Missouri here tonight, that there was a commitment when that bill was passed to not cross a "t" or dot an "i" or examine a single estimate by the Committee on Appropriations. Shame, tommyrot on such an argument.

Mr. JUDD. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. KEEFE. I yield to the distinguished gentleman from Minnesota who is a member of the Committee on Foreign Affairs and who helped write this

Mr. JUDD. I should like to say that when the ERP authorization bill came to the House Committee on Foreign Affairs, it was an open-end bill with very few limitations and without the language the gentleman from Wisconsin has just read. The committee carefully prepared the language and wrote it in on my motion, for the express purpose of preventing anyone from taking the authorization as a promise. One of the members of the minority moved to strike out the word "funds" from the amendment and the House committee voted to retain it.

In all the news stories and columns that have appeared chastizing the Committee on Appropriations and this House for allegedly breaking a commitment, I have seen no mention of the plain language of the law itself that "nothing in this title is intended nor shall it be construed to be an express or implied commitment to provide any specific assistance whether of funds, commodities, or services, to any country or countries." It is not the figures of the gentleman's committee that are irresponsible: it is those who have taken it upon themselves to write or speak about this matter without even reading the law.

As the gentleman knows, I voted against these so-called cuts on every occasion, because I thought the psychological effect would be bad and I preferred to err on the side of too much rather than too little when the stakes are so great. So nobody can accuse me of trying to deny adequate funds for ECA. But I resent intensely the completely irresponsible and misleading propaganda and misrepresentations of the committee's action over the radio and in the press, and the equally inaccurate charges by the President and various candidates for the Presidency. They are either ignorant of or have chosen to ignore the plain language of the law, of the committee report, and numerous statements made in the debate in both Houses setting forth the clear intention of the Congress.

Furthermore such loose talk has been thoroughly mischievous to the interests of the United States. It was to be expected that the Communist press in Paris or Rome would charge that we were letting down our friends. Most Europeans would not believe them. But what are they to think when promiment American newspapers and officials make charges that the United States is breaking faith? If damage has been done it is due more to misrepresentations by people who ought to know better, than to the actions themselves if examined soberly.

I want to pay tribute to your committee and your chairman the gentleman from New York [Mr. TABER] for sticking to the facts despite all the abuse heaped on you. I opposed some of the so-called reductions you made even though the economic facts you had might justify them, because I feared they might jeopardize the success of the program through weakening the confidence of some European countries.

But I knew that your committee had many more facts available to it than we had in the Committee on Foreign Affairs at the time when we were considering the enabling legislation last winter before anyone could know what kind of a growing season Europe would have this year, and a dozen other important factors.

At that time there was an attempt to cut down the authorization as everyone will recall. Many of us resisted it, urging that a maximum be set high enough to take care of any probable emergency; let it be high enough to provide a cushion. Then if Europe should have good crops and other favorable developments, the gentleman's committee could cut down the next appropriation accordingly. That is exactly what you did on the basis of the evidence you had in June and which we could not have in March.

Your committee would have been derelict in its duty if it had not carefully scrutinized the facts and held the amount down to what you deemed necessary to carry on the program successfully. I am willing to predict that the amount of money you have provided cannot be well used in less than the 15 months, although you have rightly made it available for 12 months if it proves necessary and if they get the program going so that they can use it effectively.

In short, you did not break a commitment, for no commitment had been made. You did not go back on the word of the United States. You did not fall to carry out any agreement or promise made by the Congress. You did not reverse a policy. What you did was to change the figure, which the more recent facts indicated to you was necessary to carry out the policy voted by the Congress. I congratulate the committee.

Mr. KEEFE. I thank the distinguished gentleman from Minnesota for that very lucid and splendid contribution to the thinking on this subject.

Mr. Speaker, we worked hard on this bill. We should not be abused and castigated by anyone who is a member of the conference committee that signed the conference report. That should not be. We came here in full agreement on this conference report. We came here presenting a solid front to say to the world, "We are united on this thing now, and here is the action of the Congress of the United States."

Let me call your attention to this. I think we have taken a great step forward. Everybody who is familiar with the language we have written into this bill to iron out the differences between the House and the Senate knows that we have taken a great step forward, because those who know the facts, instead of those who are just emotionally inspired politically, realize that the ECA will not be able effectively to spend the amount of money we have given it by April 3, 1949. So we have left the door open and we have said to the ECA administration, "Do not throw this money away. You are not forced to get rid of this money by the 3d of April. You can take until the 30th of June. Make a decent, proper screening of the necessities before you spend this money. If you take a little more time, the impact upon the economy of America with its resultant inflation may not be so great as though you were forced under the original action of the other body to spend the entire amount by April 3. 1949."

Everybody agrees that the action that finally resulted as a result of this conference makes available every single dollar, the entire $4,000,000,000, but we say to the Administrator, "Use some judgment in spending this money, and if you have any money that is unexpended by the 3d of April you may continue the availability of those funds until the 30th day of June."

If that is not good, common sense, then I think the gentleman from Missouri is the only man on the floor of this House or in the Senate or among the conferees that has offered even the slightest objection to the action the conference unanimously agreed upon.

Mr. CASE of South Dakota. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. KEEFE. I yield to my distinguished colleague on the committee.

Mr. CASE of South Dakota. At that point, in connection with the rate of commitment, it might be well to point out that at the present rate of commitment the ECA will probably by the end of this month not have committed as much as $450,000,000, which would be the average rate of the original request on a 12-month basis.

Mr. KEEFE. Exactly. They have obligated only $300,000,000. Let me call your attention to this. The gentleman from Missouri said that we have delayed and delayed this thing. He seems to forget that the original law gave to the ECA administration $1,000,000,000, and they have been operating on it. The last word that I have had is that they have only been able to obligate $300,000,000 of the billion dollars. They have plenty of money to lend. They have this money yet without any additional funds. There has been no delay in this program. The Congress saw to it when it passed the basic legislation.

basic legislation.

Mr. VORYS. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. KEEFE. I yield to the gentleman from Ohio.

Mr. VORYS. As I understand it, there is a $503,000,000 reduction in this appropriation below the budget estimates, and the report recommending this reduction in such appropriations was signed by all the conferees, including the minority members.

Mr. CASE of South Dakota. It should be borne in mind that the $503,000,000 applies to all of the various items on foreign aid in the bill and is not limited to ECA.

Mr. KEEFE. That is exactly what I want to say. The total reduction is not specifically limited to the ECA program proper, because this bill contains a large number of other items, as you well know, other than those included in the program.

There is an over-all reduction in the total amount of substantially that amount, and the gentleman from Missouri signed the conference report, and it is a unanimous report. Why should we have any more argument about this situation?

DIFFICULT DECISION

Mr. KLEIN. Mr. Speaker, the vote on this conference report presents to me, at this late hour, a most difficult decision.

I am opposed to the granting of any subsidies or loans or credits to Great Britain as long as that country pursues its present anti-American, antidemocratic course, as long as Great Britain continues to encourage Arab aggression against Israel, as long as Great Britain continues to carry on a two-faced policy of world exploitation.

I am equally opposed to cutting funds for the Economic Administration's work in Europe proper.

If I voted for the European recovery program with a certain skepticism, aside from my opposition to continuing to follow in the perfidious footsteps of Great Britain and sharing her world guilt, at least I believe that ECA should have the funds to work with to try to make the plan a success.

This is a characteristic Republican procedure—to grant funds just far enough below the efficiency level to insure failure of any agency to achieve a true level of efficiency. It is part of the ridiculous paradox of Republican claims to economy; it is a wasteful and extravagant fiscal policy.

Nevertheless, Mr. Speaker, to vote

Nevertheless, Mr. Speaker, to vote against the report is to vote for chaos, and that I cannot do. With reluctance, and impelled only by the exigencies of the international situation and the fact that we cannot hope for anything better, I shall vote to adopt the report.

Mr. BENNETT of Missouri. Mr. Speaker, I shall vote for the pending conference report on foreign aid with greatest of misgivings but it is the only rational course to follow at this point.

I opposed authorization of this program for what I still regard as good reasons, stated to the House at the time. The program was authorized, however, and became at once recognized throughout the world as our foreign policy. I believe in a bipartisan foreign policy although I reserve the right to differ on its details and to oppose any of these phases of its development which I regard as dangerous or unsound. Once agreed upon and authorized by Congress, however, we must close our ranks and present a united front to the world. Much of that world, the free part of it, depends upon us. It has been having a hard time keeping up with the variations in our foreign policy, due to inept administration of it. Congress cannot afford and must not at this hour add to that confusion by rejecting this appropriation to implement a policy it has previously authorized. The course to follow now is to watch to see that the funds we provide are spent with a proper regard for our own welfare as well as of that of those we seek to help abroad. It might well be added that some of the funds in the conference report are to support our occupation of enemy territories until the peace treaties are concluded. There can be no good, patriotic reason for not supporting the job our armed forces are doing in that regard.

I did not speak awhile ago on the selective service bill which will draft young Americans for 21 months of military service in peacetime. I voted against it. How can we in peacetime, in absence of a great military crisis, adopt such a policy conscripting our youth when UMT calls only for 1 year of training and most of the boys in World War II had less training than that?

If I was convinced the national security required it I would support the bill. But we are not undefended. We have the biggest standing Army in our peacetime history, 1,500,000 men. We have authorized a 70-group air force, and I voted for it. We have a Navy bigger than all of the other navies of the world combined. Most of our-expenditures are for de-The armed services, as the debates showed, have deliberately discouraged volunteer enlistments, the National Guard and the Reserves, in order to get a peacetime draft, to militarize America. If we need such legislation to meet an emergency Congress can set it up at any time. I favor a national training program but not one such as this which will discourage education, will not apply equally to all and which makes no effort to take the profits out of war or put the munitions makers under laws which will separate iron, blood, and profits, dealt in by the merchants of death who have propagandized this Congress and country for this legislation in peacetime after we have just gone through a war allegedly to put an end to such things.

SECOND DEFICIENCY APPROPRIATION BILL, 1948

Mr. TABER submitted the following conference report and statement on the bill (H. R. 6935) making appropriations to supply deficiencies in certain appropriations for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1948, and for other purposes:

CONFERENCE REPORT

The committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H. R. 6935) "making appropriations to supply de-ficiencies in certain appropriations for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1948, and for other purposes," having met, after full and free conference, have agreed to recommend and do recommend to their respective Houses as

That the Senate recede from its amendments numbered 2, 17, 29, 40, 50, 51, 58, 74, 75, 85, and 86.

That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendments of the Senate numbered 1, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 15, 19, 20, 21, 22, 24, 27, 30, 32, 33, 35, 36, 37, 38, 39, 43, 44, 45, 48, 52, 53, 55, 57, 59, 61, 63, 64, 65, 67, 68, 70, 71, 72, 73, 76, 77, 78, 79, 80, 82, and 83, and agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 14: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 14, and agree to the same with an amendment, as follows: After the citation "(5 U. S. C. 55a)", appearing in the matter inserted by said amendment, strike out the following: "deposits in the Treasury for penalty mail (39 U.S. C. and in lieu of the sum of "$3,500,000" named in said amendment, insert the following: "$2,000,000"; and the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 16: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 16, and agree to the same with an amendment, as follows: In lieu of the matter inserted by said amendment, insert the following:

"National Institute of Health, operating expenses: For an additional amount, fiscal year 1949, for 'National Institute of Health, operating expenses', $500,000: Provided, That appropriations under said head for the fiscal year 1949 shall be available for carrying out the purposes of the National Heart Act, including erection of temporary structures for storage of equipment and supplies and housing of animals."

And the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 18: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 18, and agree to the same with an amendment, as follows: In lieu of the sum of "$2,000,000" named in said amendment, insert the following: "$1,-000,000"; and the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 23: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 23, and agree to the same with an amendment, as follows: Before the words "passenger motor vehicles" in said amendment, strike out the word "ten" and insert the following: "five" and in lieu of the sum of "$10,000,000" named twice in said amendment insert in each instance the following: "$5,000,000"; and the Senate agree to the same.

Amendment numbered 26: That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate numbered 26, and agree to the same with an amendment, as follows: In lieu of the sum of "$5,000,000" named in said amendment, insert the following: "$3,000,000" and in lieu of the sum of "$200,-000" named in said amendment, insert the following: "$100,000"; and the Senate agree to the same.

Managers on the Part of the House.

Mr. TABER. Mr. Speaker, I call up the conference report on the bill H. R. 6935 and ask unanimous consent that the statement of the managers on the part of the House be read in lieu of the report.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New

Mr. NICHOLSON. Reserving the right to object, Mr. Speaker, does this have anything to do with CAA?

Mr. TABER. It does.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New York?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the statement.

Mr. TABER. Mr. Speaker, I move the previous question on the conference report.

The previous question was ordered.

The conference report was agreed to. The SPEAKER. The clerk will report the first amendment in disagreement.

The Clerk read as follows:

Senate amendment number 25: Page 18, line 23, insert the following:

"Disaster relief, public facilities: For expenses necessary to alleviate damage or hard-ship caused by flood, tornado, fire, or other catastrophe respecting which the President has heretofore made a determination under the act of July 25, 1947 (Public Law 233). by grants, under such rules and regulations as may be prescribed by the Federal Works Administrator, to local public agencies to assist them in defraying the cost of (1) the repair, restoration, replacement, or struction of local public facilities damaged or destroyed by such catastrophe and (2) the construction, maintenance, and operation of schools necessary for children of families from Vanport City, Oreg., including personal services in the District of Columbia, $35,000,000, to remain available until June 80, 1950: Provided, That no grant shall be made to any local public agency unless the Administra-tor determines that other Federal funds are not available for such facilities and that such agency needs the grant and cannot otherwise defray such cost without creating an excessive tax or debt burden: Provided further, That not to exceed 4 percent of this appropriation shall be available for administrative expenses required in connection with such grants."

Mr. TABER. Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion which I send to the Clerk's desk. The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. TABER moves that the House insist on its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate No. 25.

Mr. ANGELL. Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion which I send to the Clerk's desk. The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. ANGELL moves that the House recede and concur in Senate amendment No. 25.

Mr. TABER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Oregon.

Mr. ANGELL. Mr. Speaker, I hope the Members will give attention to this matter. The Chairman has been very generous in allowing 3 minutes to discuss this amendment to take care of the flood victims, not only in Oregon, but all over the United States. I am particularly interested in it, because Vanport, which is in my district, is mentioned in this particular amendment. There were in Vanport before this flood 18,700 people, 60 percent of them are veterans. Every single stick in the town was owned by the Federal Government—every building and school building and everything else. They were completely wiped out. The whole town was blotted out. There is not a single home left. Eighteen thousand seven hundred people now are without homes and without schools.

The Federal Government owns the schools, and the Federal Government owns the whole town of Vanport. I merely mention Vanport as an example because I have 3 minutes only to explain this motion, which covers the whole United States. This committee, in its generosity, has said, We cannot give $35,000,000 to the people of America for taking care of those who are in distress, like the people of Vanport, but we have just passed $6,000,000 000 to go overseas for aid of peoples in foreign lands.

My chairman has said there is no precedent for this. I placed in the RECORD recently three or four pages with the citations where we had passed acts covering the moneys that had been appropriated in the past for conditions like this. One of them provided money which went to Russia when they had a poor crop. One of them went to Japan when they had a tornado. Many of them went to various communities in the United States. Here, now, in our own country, not only these 18,000 people but 100,000 people, all up and down the Columbia River valley are in distress by reason of the greatest flood in our history, and, in addition to that, people all over the United States will share in this fund. This merely gives $35,000,000 to be expended under the control of the President and under the Public Works Administration.

Mr. BOGGS of Louisiana. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. ANGELL. I yield to the gentleman from Louisiana.

Mr. BOGGS of Louisiana. The gentleman is familiar with the fact that this motion which you are making would also make possible the rehabilitation of the Gulf Coast area which was severely damaged in a hurricane last fall.

Mr. ANGELL. That is absolutely true. Mr. HARRIS. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. ANGELL. I yield to the gentleman from Arkansas.

Mr. HARRIS. Would there be sufficient funds to take care of the disaster that has occurred in Oregon, your State, and also on the Gulf coast, if this amendment were adopted?

Mr. ANGELL. That is absolutely true and it would be available for future dis-

Mr. HARRIS. Certainly it behooves the House to take care of our own people first.

Mr. ANGELL. Yes. We have billions of dollars to send overseas, but if the people of America want a little help, they have to move overseas in order to get it.

Mr. BOGGS of Louisiana. If we do not take this action, no relief will be had?

Mr. ANGELL. No relief will be had. They do not have a cent for schools in Vanport which were owned by the United States. All of these school children, over 5,000 of them, have no place to go to school. The Federal Government owned the schools and owned the buildings in which they lived.

Mr. WHEELER. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. ANGELL. I yield.

Mr. WHEELER. I am very much interested in this legislation. Thousands of children have to use school busses to get to school and they do not have any.

Mr. ANGELL. Anyone who votes against this amendment cannot square with their own conscience the vote we have just made for $6,000,000,000 to send overseas.

I hope you will uphold my motion. The SPEAKER. The time of the gentleman from Oregon has expired. There was no objection.

Mr. TABER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Washington [Mr. Mack].

Mr. MACK. Mr. Speaker, a few minutes ago, by a vote of 5 to 1, this Congress appropriated $6,000,000,000 for the damaged communities and suffering people of Europe. We gave money to Ireland, which was not involved in that war. We gave huge sums to Italy, which was our enemy in this last war. Tonight we are asking in this bill for $35,000,000 to restore the facilities in the communities on the Columbia River, where the people suffered $140,000,000 of flood damage.

In the little town of Woodland, in my district, a town of 2,000 people, a typical one of those hit by the floods, the community suffered more than $2,000,000 in damage. These people must rebuild or refurnish their homes; they will have to repaint their homes. In addition to that, they will have to furnish the money to clean out their sewers, clean out their drainage ditches, to rebuild the roads that lead from the farms to the communities, to rebuild their water systems, and rebuild their schools.

It seems to me that the motion of the gentleman from Oregon [Mr. ANGELL], should be supported.

Mr. MANSFIELD. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. MACK. I yield. Mr. MANSFIELD. I want to agree with what the gentleman says about the damage in the Northwest.

I hope, too, that we support the motion of the gentleman from Oregon and vote what the Senate allowed, $35,000,000, to help out in these four Western States Mr. BOGGS of Louisiana.

Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. MACK. I yield.

Mr. BOGGS of Louisiana. Is it not a fact that these funds will be available in any disaster area so that if a disaster occurs down in the Gulf area, funds will be available for relief?

Mr. MACK. Yes, for damage done to publicly owned facilities-done by floods, fires, and tornadoes.

Mr. BOGGS of Louisiana. And the money will be available.

Mr. MACK. Yes, for those purposes. Mr. McGREGOR. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. MACK. I yield.

Mr. McGREGOR. And the entire matter of allocation under the funds here appropriated is under an established Federal agency, the Federal Works

Mr. MACK. That is correct.

The SPEAKER. The time of the gentleman from Washington has expired.

Mr. TABER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Oregon [Mr. ELLSWORTH].

Mr. ELLSWORTH. Mr. Speaker, I take this time to point out two or three facts about this motion and the amendment in the bill to which it refers.

First, let me say that an objection is to be raised that there is no precedent for making this type of appropriation. I submit to the Members of the House that it is high time this type of appropriation should be made in this country in view of the need in so many sections and in view of the fact that these disasters occur from time to time.

Not one cent of this appropriation is to be spent for any individual; not one cent of it is to be spent for any community or public body unless and until the Federal Works Administrator has determined that the community or the local agency is unable to take care of the need because it is virtually bankrupt and cannot raise the necessary funds. It is a justifiable appropriation.

Mr. CHELF. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. ELLSWORTH. I yield.

Mr. CHELF. I might say to the gentleman from Oregon that I am in sympathy with his position and shall support the motion of the gentleman from Oregon, for I have had several towns in my own district which have suffered similar disasters.

Mr. ELLSWORTH. The funds here-in appropriated will be applicable nationally to any disaster area.

Mr. LARCADE. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. ELLSWORTH. I yield.

Mr. LARCADE. Is it not a fact that some years ago we appropriated $100,-000,000 for earthquake relief in Japan?

Mr. ELLSWORTH. I am sure it is. Mr. BROOKS. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. ELLSWORTH. I yield.

Mr. BROOKS. I hope this motion is adopted, but I should like to call the gentleman's attention to the fact that if we had not cut down our flood-control appropriations as we did the other day we would not have these conditions arising, necessitating this appropriation.

Mr. ELLSWORTH. The gentleman has a point there, I believe. We are proceeding with flood control fairly well, but not as speedily as we should.

Mr. Speaker, I hope the Members will vote "aye" on this motion to recede and The money is appropriated for a proper purpose and for a humanitarian need.

The SPEAKER. The time of the gentleman from Oregon has expired.

Mr. TABER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Idaho [Mr. Goff].

Mr. GOFF. Mr. Speaker, I wish to point out that in the floods in the Northwest it is not only the States of Washington and Oregon that have suffered, but also the State of Idaho in the upper reaches of the Columbia River.

I have a telegram from the Governor of Idaho in which he states that in my district alone there has been damage of over $50,000,000. Much as I dislike to oppose anything put forward by the distinguished Chairman of the Committee on Appropriations I hope that the Members of this House will support the motion of the gentleman from Oregon [Mr. ANGELL], and give this help to the people in the Pacific Northwest who need it so urgently now.

Mr. TABER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 5 minutes to the gentleman from Texas

[Mr. MAHON].

Mr. MAHON. Mr. Speaker, I hope I may have the attention of the Members because we are passing on one of the very important things of this session.

If we concur in the motion of the gentleman from Oregon we are going to open the door to tremendous expenditures in the future which previously we have avoided. Not only that, but we must also go back if we are to be honest with ourselves and make appropriations for every community that has suffered disaster.

I have the greatest sympathy for the people in the flooded areas and for the motives of the gentleman from Oregon [Mr. Angell] who has offered the motion. I do not see how we can afford to vote for this motion, and I will tell you why and we will have no difficulty in understanding why.

The Texas City disaster was a disaster running into more than $100,000,600. The gentleman from Texas [Mr. Thomas] and other Members from that State, came before the Appropriations Committee and said: "We have suffered an unprecedented disaster involving more than $100,000,000 and we want some relief."

The committee went through the records of the Congress and we found there was no precedent for any such action. What did the Congress do? It said to Texas City, "Not one dime." The gentleman from Oklahoma [Mr. RIZLEY] came before the committee a few months ago and said:

My city has been swept off the map. Our schools have been destroyed, our public utilities have been put out of order. The situation is desperate.

He asked for funds from the Treasury to rehabilitate his town. Of course, the Federal Government always grants emergency aid, as we did in Oregon and in other areas. The Red Cross, the Army, and the Navy come in and do what they can. In this very bill before us we are providing money for loans to the farmers in stricken areas and we provided all manner of aid that reasonably can be made available. We recently appropriated more than $600,000,000 for river and harbor and flood-control work. All of those things go through the regular procedure.

But if you adopt this amendment, then every Member of Congress who has a disaster, a cyclone, for instance, in his town—and we have them somewhere in the West almost every day—is going to have to be in the House with a bill for relief the next day and he is going to be on the spot to persuade the Congress to make an appropriation to rebuild his town and community as a result of the disaster that has come upon his district.

I tell you emphatically that we cannot afford to vote for this amendment. Certainly you cannot afford to vote for it unless you intend to go back and vote $100,000,000 perhaps for Texas City and millions of dollars for Woodward, Okla., and for all sufferers here and there all over the country.

As much as I sympathize with these people, I urge you not to open the door to this sort of legislation which will make every Member of Congress come in and seek an appropriation for every disaster that may sweep away a part of his city.

We should think a long time before we set the dangerous precedent provided for in this motion before us.

Mr. HÉBERT. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. MAHON. I yield to the gentleman from Louisiana.

Mr. HÉBERT. May I ask the distinguished gentleman from Texas, is it better for the Nation to take care of the entire Nation or else to have those who suffered in the Texas City disaster come over to my city of New Orleans and let us put on a charity bazar to help Texas City?

Mr. MAHON. I think a little giving to the Red Cross is good for America and I hope we do not quit doing that sort of thing.

Mr. BROOKS. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. MAHON. I yield to the gentleman from Louisiana.

Mr. BROOKS. Does not the gentleman feel that when this Nation can afford to give away, like it did tonight, $6,000,000,000 to the other nations of the world, we can take care of our own people?

Mr. MAHON. The gentleman asks me if we can afford to spend this money in Europe can we not take care of the flood sufferers? We have given temporary aid to flood sufferers. I have not voted to spend one dime in Europe that I did not think or hope would help the United States of America promote peace and our national defense. I say we cannot afford to enter this field and we will rue the day that we do. I ask that this amendment which provides for an expenditure of $35,000,000 be voted down.

The SPEAKER. The time of the gentleman from Texas has expired.

Mr. TABER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Louisiana [Mr. Boggs].

Mr. BOGGS of Louisiana. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of the motion offered by the gentleman from Oregon. As I understand his motion, the funds made available would be used for the rehabilitation of public institutions. There was $100,000,000 of damage done in Texas City, but there was not $100,000,000 of damages done to public institutions—to streets, to schools, to the sewer system, to the utility systems.

When communities like these little towns in Oregon, and in other places in this Nation, such as the Mississippi Gulf coast, the Florida Gulf coast, the Louisiana Gulf coast, and the Texas Gulf coast, were stricken by a hurricane last September, these communities did not have the funds to go out and repair the sea walls, the utility plants, the schools, the public installations which have taken years and years to build. I think this is a fair proposition. When disaster strikes today we have no funds to move in and do something about it. Now, I know something about that because we had a hurricane and the only thing that we could get in the way of aid was surplus property and things of that character provided by the Federal Works Agency. But, so far as being of real assistance to many communities which were completely paralyzed, there was nothing provided whatsoever. I think that this is a fair thing. It applies all over the United States. It is a relatively small amount of money, and if a disaster should strike between now and January we would be mighty glad that we had done this.

Mr. HÉBERT. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BOGGS of Louisiana. I yield to the gentleman from Louisana.

Mr. HÉBERT. Does not the gentleman think it better practice to start a good precedent now than to have ourselves placed in a situation where we cannot help our own people in the future?

Mr. BOGGS of Louisiana. I certainly agree with that.

Mr. HÉBERT. Does not the gentleman agree that we have to start something, and that we have seen the precedent started during the last 10 or 12 years in this country?

Mr. BOGGS of Louisiana. I think the best evidence of that is that if we had something similar to this in existence, that these people in Oregon would not be coming in and asking for relief now.

The SPEAKER. The time of the gentleman from Louisiana has expired.
Mr. TABER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2

Mr. TABER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Mississippi [Mr. Rankin].

Mr. RANKIN. Mr. Speaker, I rise to support the motion offered by the gentleman from Oregon [Mr. Angell].

I suggest to the Committee on Appropriations that you are not establishing any precedent. It is already established. In 1936 there was a flood disaster on the Ohio River, and a similar measure was passed to provide a disaster fund of $25,000,000. Before that measure passed the Senate a cyclone swooped down on my home town, destroyed 600 homes, all the school buildings, killed about 200 people, and wounded 1,000. It swept on across and virtually destroyed Gainesville, Ga. I went before the Committee on Appropriations of the Senate and explained the situation, and they raised the amount from $25,000,000 to $50,000,000 and included cyclone disasters.

That was known as the disaster fund. And I can see no difference here.

As the gentleman has said, that money was used to replace the public buildings and to repair the public highways. This money, if used for that purpose, certainly will not be misspent. You just voted more than $6,000,000,000 to be given to the people of Europe, Africa, and Asia. Certainly this small amount can be provided to assist our own people, who have suffered unavoidable disasters, along the Columbia River, or along our Gulf Coast.

Mr. TABER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 5 minutes to the gentleman from Missouri [Mr. CANNON].

Mr. CANNON. Mr. Speaker, I wish that there was more time for these last mellow hours of the session when the camaraderie of long and intimate associations is drawing to a close, but even in the press of business I must take time to observe the amenities which ordinarily mark the concluding session of a Congress. I would particularly like to express the appreciation which every Member feels for the able administration by Speaker MARTIN of his high office, of the courtesy and admirable generalship which the distinguished gentleman from Indiana [Mr. HALLECK] the majority leader, has displayed in a particularly difficult session. But it is late and the House has been patient.

Mr. Speaker, I have seen the gavel fall on 46 consecutive sessions of Congress. This is the forty-seventh session of Congress, the close of which I have attended.

In all of these 47 sessions there has never been such confusion and congestion as we have had in the last week of this session. Since the 1st of June half a dozen of the largest and most difficult appropriation bills have been messaged over to the Senate and the Senate has been compelled to hold hearings comprising a few hours on the bills on which the House expended months. Is it to be wondered that hasty and ill-digested conference reports are being rushed through in order to meet the adjournment dead line?

And never has any Congress fallen so far short in the fulfillment of promises and predictions made at its beginning.

For example, at the opening of the Congress, the chairman of the Committee on Appropriations, the gentleman from New York [Mr. TABER] in a press release said:

We have now nearly 2,300,000 civilian employees, and we do not need over 500,000 at

He assured the Congress and the country that they would reduce the number of employees. How does fulfillment comport with the promise so emphaticaly made? Notwithstanding the fact that the war peak of Government employment is long past, we had on April 30, 2,048,248 civilian employees and the number is climbing. In brief, we have 118.7 percent more Federal employees on the Government pay roll today than we had in 1940.

Mr. GOFF. Mr. Speaker, point of order.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. GOFF. I do not believe the gentleman is speaking on the motion before us. I think he is out of order.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will proceed in order.

Mr. CANNON. The chairman of the committee also told us this last Jan-

Mr. GOFF. Mr. Speaker, a point of order.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. GOFF. The gentleman is not in order. He is not speaking on the motion before us.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Missouri will kindly address himself to the motion, which relates to the Oregon disaster fund.

Mr. CANNON. The gentleman also told us he would reduce appropriations by $6,000,000,000.

Mr. GOFF. Mr. Speaker, a point of order.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Missouri will kindly proceed in order. The gentleman should not impose on the House at this hour of the morning. He should proceed in order.

Mr. CANNON. Mr. Speaker, I am following the precedent which has been followed from time immemorial, of introducing at the close of each session of Congress a summary of the appropriation record for the session.

Mr. HOFFMAN. Mr. Speaker, a parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. HOFFMAN. I did not hear any request by the gentleman to include that. The SPEAKER. The gentleman has not made any request yet.

Mr. HOFFMAN. How could he get them in if he has not made that request?

The SPEAKER. The Chair does not know.

Mr. CANNON. Mr. Speaker, I avail myself of the leave to extend already granted.

Mr. Speaker, free government is founded on the right of the minority to present its side of the case—to have its day in court. We were not granted time on the conference report. We have had no opportunity to present the summary always submitted by the minority at the close of a session of Congress. We have been granted only 5 minutes at this time, and even that is now denied on a technicality.

It is in keeping with the action of the gentleman from Wisconsin [Mr. KEEFE], who a little while ago made ridiculous personal charges against me and then refused to yield to me to answer. It is the first time I can recall in the proceedings of the United States Congress when the minority has been denied the right to discuss the appropriation record of the Congress during the debate on the last appropriation bill. The minority have always been accorded an opportunity to make their closing argument. The people and the country are entitled to hear it. And I have never before known it to be denied-the denial of the right to

Likewise, any Member attacked and named personally on the floor has always been afforded opportunity to reply. In both instances it is not only an infringement of our democratic legislative processes but it is, to say the least, lacking in sportsmanship. So far as the gentleman from Wisconsin is concerned, I have since his last personal reference to me on the floor, addressed him in another place and to his face characterized him accurately and appropriately in unmistakable language. So there is no need for further reference to him at this time.

I now take up the record made by the majority in this Congress. The gentleman from New York, the chairman of the Committee on Appropriations, announced that he would cut the number of civilian employees on the Government rolls to 500,000. Today at the end of the session we have more than 2,000,000. He also announced last January that he would cut the President's estimates by $6,000,000,000. He said they could be cut $7,000,000,000 to $7,500,000,000 but that he proposed to cut them $6,000,000,000. The Senate took a more conservative view of the proposed reduction and the legislative budget finally agreed on a programed cut of $2,800,000,000.

As a matter of fact, the actual cut of either $6,000,000,000 or $2,800,000,000 now shows up at an actual cut of less than a billion dollars.

In this fashion the majority in control of this Congress for the past 2 years have kept their solemn pledges of economy and retrenchment to the American people.

Is it to be wondered that the gentleman from Idaho [Mr. Goff] does not want me to use even the remainder of 5 minutes to discuss the record and the failure of his party to keep faith with the country?

Before quoting the specific figures let me contrast the record of the Eightieth Congress with the accomplishments of the Seventy-ninth Congress following the cessation of hostilities.

In the fiscal year 1946, the fiscal year in which hostilities ceased, our budget totaled $76,200,000,000. In 1947 we dropped from $76,200,000,000 to $42,500,-000,000, a record which has been unequaled in any session of any Congress before or since. We made the greatest reduction in appropriations, the greatest reduction in the budget, the greatest reduction in expenditures. In addition to that, we excised over $64,000,000,000 and were preparing for further rescissions when the stewardship of the Congress changed. At that time there was a potential additional recovery of more than $20,000,000,000, and all the Republicans have done, after 2 years of control, has been to excise about 7 percent of the $20,000,000,000 plus, and the bulk of the 7 percent was money that could not be obligated and would have reverted to the Treasury automatically. Moreover, within 6 months after the close of the fiscal year in which hostilities ceased, the President transmitted to the Congress a balanced budget, the first balanced budget since it went into the red when President Hoover was in the White House, with a majority in both branches of the Congress. When he entered the White House the public debt was $16,604,000,000, resulting from World War I. When he went out of office the debt had soared to $22,539,000,000, and today we are well on the way again to deficit financing, adding to the tremendous existing debt, and at a time when there is no unemployment and business is at a level never before approached.

Here I append the performance record, in summary fashion, of the second session of the Eightieth Congress on the budget estimates of appropriations for the fiscal year commencing next July 1, and for the current and prior fiscal years:

1 Including contractual authority.

NOTE.—The foregoing statement is exclusive of permanent annual appropriations, which occur automatically in consequence of law without further action by Congress.

It shows a net reduction in budget estimates of appropriations of $1,919,-481,292, but that excludes funds to finance the pay increases provided at the last minute for Federal employees, including postal employees—creating an added expense of approximately $600,-000,000; it excludes deferment until the next Congress of $500,000,000 for the European recovery program; it excludes in line with the misleading procedure resorted to at the last session, numerous other deferments or unjustifiable reduc-tions, including large amounts for national defense, which must be restored at the next session; it excludes contractual authority, other than for the air arm, substituted for immediate appropriations, but which must be provided later; and, it excludes reappropriations which take money from the Treasury equivalent to new appropriations. All in all, the saving to the taxpayers will be well under a billion dollars-possibly no more than $500,000,000, as against the economy goal established by the Republicans in the fore part of the session just closed of $2,800,000,000. As in the first session it presents a sorry and defenseless spending record by a party which faithlessly promised economy and retrenchments.

Mr. TABER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 5 minutes.

Mr. Speaker, we have searched the records, beginning in 1803, for a precedent for anything of this kind. We did it a year ago when the question of the Texas City disaster was up.

Mr. ANGELL. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. TABER. No; not at this point.

Mr. ANGELL. I call the gentleman's attention to one that passed 2 years ago, from my committee, for help to the Hawaiian Islands.

Mr. TABER. That was a different proposition. That was temporary relief and not rehabilitation. Those precedents do not apply to this situation. This is a question of repairing damage. The Congress has dealt very generously with the people who have been hurt by this flood. There is in this bill alone $4,000,000 for forest roads, a very large part of $15,000,000 for forest roads and trails, $6,000,000 for dikes, $6,000,000 for loans which may be made, $500,000 for temporary relief, making a total of $16,500,000. In addition, the Committee on Public Works has provided within a few days $10,000,000 for housing in these flooded territories. In addition the power of the Disaster Loan Corporation to lend money was increased from $25,000,000 to $40,000,000 on yesterday. There is such a thing as being reasonable. Here it is proposed that we put up $35,000,000 to be given out as grants at a time when they can go before the Disaster Loan Corporation and get a loan to do all that they need to do. It has never been customary for us to rehabilitate completely these places. We have done a great deal for them.

Mr. H. CARL ANDERSEN. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. TABER. I yield.

Mr. H. CARL ANDERSEN. Will this be a precedent for us in the Midwest to come to the Congress when a tornado sweeps through one of our villages and ask that the Federal Government take care of that damage?

Mr. TABER. It will be a precedent. There is no question about it. It is a precedent to take care of and repair all damage to all public facilities everywhere whenever there is a disaster. I do not know how far the Congress wants to This has never been done before. This has never been asked for. I hope this motion will be rejected, and that the House will follow the practice that we have been following. I do not believe we should establish a precedent by putting up $35,000,000 in a situation of this kind. We have been liberal in connection with taking care of all suffering and to provide the people with loans to help them as this motion seeks to do. I hope the Congress will vote "No" on this motion.

Mr. Speaker, I move the previous question.

The previous question was ordered.

The SPEAKER. The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from Oregon [Mr. ANGELL].

The question was taken; and on a division (demanded by Mr. ANGELL) there were—ayes 58, noes 143.

Mr. ANGELL. Mr. Speaker, I ask for the yeas and nays.

The SPEAKER. Twelve Members have risen, not a sufficient number.

The yeas and nays were refused. Mr. ANGELL. Mr. Speaker, I object to the vote on the ground that a quorum is not present, and I make the point of order that a quorum is not present.

The SPEAKER. The Chair will count. (After counting.) Two hundred and ninety-eight Members are present, a quorum.

So the motion was rejected.

The SPEAKER. The question is on the motion of the gentleman from New York [Mr. Taber].

The motion was agreed to.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

FURTHER MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE

A further message from the Senate, by Mr. Carrell, one of its clerks, announced that the Senate had passed without amendment concurrent resolutions of the House of the following titles:

H. Con. Res. 199. Concurrent resolution authorizing the printing of additional copies of the report (H. Rept. 1920) on the Communist Party of the United States as an advocate of overthrow of Government by force and violence; and
H. Con. Res. 213. Concurrent resolution au-

H. Con. Res. 213. Concurrent resolution authorizing the Committee on Expenditures in the Executive Departments, House of Representatives, to have printed for its use additional copies of the hearings held before a special subcommittee of said committee, current Congress, relative to investigation as to the manner in which the United States Board of Parole is operating and as to whether there is a necessity for a change in either the procedure or basic law.

The message also announced that the Senate had passed, with amendment in which the concurrence of the House is requested, a resolution of the House of the following title:

H. Con. Res. 197. Joint resolution to continue the Joint Committee on Housing until June 15, 1948.

The message also announced that the Senate had passed bills of the following titles, in which the concurrence of the House is requested:

S. 2688. An act to provide for the administration of the Central Intelligence Agency, established pursuant to section 102, National Security Act of 1947, and for other purposes; and

S. 2694. An act to provide for the acquisition of additional land along the Mount Vernon Memorial Highway in exchange for certain dredging privileges, and for other purposes.

The message also announced that the Senate had ordered that the Senator from Nebraska [Mr. Wherry] be excused as conferee on the bill (H. R. 6841) entitled "An act making appropriations for Government corporations and independent executive agencies for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1949, and for other purposes," and the Senator from Massachusetts [Mr. Saltonstall] be appointed in lieu thereof.

The message also announced that the Senate agrees to the amendment of the House to a bill of the Senate of the following title:

S. 2730. An act to credit, in certain cases, military service and training preparatory thereto performed by employees of the postal service.

The message also announced that the Senate agrees to the report of the committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H. R. 6935) entitled "An act making appropriations for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1948, and for other purposes."

The message also announced that the Senate recedes from its amendment numbered 25 to the above-entitled bill.

The message also announced that the Senate agrees to the report of the committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendment of the House to the bill (S. 1322) entitled "An act to provide a Federal charter for the Commodity Credit Corporation."

The message also announced that the Senate agrees to the report of the committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendments of the Senate to bills of the House of the following titles:

H. R. 5904. An act to incorporate the Virgin Islands Corporation, and for other purposes:

H.R. 6916. An act to provide for permanent postal rates and additional compensation for postmasters and employees of the field service in the Post Office Department;

H.R. 6527. An act to provide assistance to certain local school agencies overburdened with war-incurred, or postwar national-defense-incurred, enrollments; and

H.R. 6801. An act making appropriations for foreign aid for the period beginning April 3, 1948, and ending June 30, 1949, and for other purposes.

RECORD OF THE EIGHTIETH CONGRESS ON TAXES, SOCIAL SECURITY, TARIFF, AND RECIPROCAL TRADE

Mr. McCORMACK. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to address the House and to revise and extend my remarks.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Massachusetts?

There was no objection.

Mr. McCORMACK. Mr. Speaker, the end of the first session of the Eightieth Congress brought the criticism of the public and press that this is a "donothing Congress" and the "worst Congress since reconstruction days." The American people wished they had never heard the campaign slogan "Had Enough." The Republican majority pleaded for patience. They asserted that they had worked hard, but that time had been required to organize Congress after their 14 years as the minority party. They assured the people that more action and less talk would be forthcoming during the second session of the Eightieth Congress.

It is only fitting, therefore, as this Congress draws toward adjournment, that the record be reviewed. I have prepared today a summary of the action of the Eightieth Congress in three very important legislative fields—taxes, social security, and reciprocal trade—all of which are within the jurisdiction of the Committee on Ways and Means on which I served for a number of years.

Let us examine promise and performance in each of these areas.

TAXES-PROMISE

The Christian Science Monitor of October 21, 1946, reported:

A statement signed by all Republican members of the House Ways and Means Committee sets the GOP fiscal goal in the next Congress as a budget trimmed to between $32,000,000,000 and $33,000,000,000, a $5,000,000,000 reduction in the national debt, a reduction in personal income taxes of 20 percent, and downward adjustments in Federal excise taxes. The statement is the work of 27 House Republican Members, including all members of the Ways and Means Committee, and known as the House Republican postwar tax-study committee.

Even after the 1946 election was in the bag, Ways and Means Chairman Knurson is reported by the Chicago Tribune of November 7, 1946, as follows:

Knurson told the Tribune in a statement telephoned from his home at Wadens, Minn., that the new Republican-controlled Congress will pass the bill immediately and save tax-payers $3,000,000,000 despite President Truman's insistence that taxes can't be lowered.

Moreover, Knutson said, his committee will open public hearings in February on another bill to save the taxpayers' money. Its purpose will be to cut back luxury excise taxes to 1942 levels. It will reduce, and in some cases eliminate, excises on a long list of items that includes jewelry, furs, cosmetics, and liquors. The reductions are to be effective next July 1.

"It is our plan to balance the budget and "It is our plan to balance the budget and reduce Federal expenditures for the next fiscal year to $32,000,000,000 as against nearly forty billion the Democrats figured would be required," KNUTSON said.

"On that basis I estimated we could make a 20-percent cut in income taxes and begin at once reducing the national debt by paying off four or five billion dollars next year."

Fairly summarized, I think the voters were promised both before and after the 1946 election—

First. A drastically reduced budget. Second. A $5,000,000,000 annual reduction in the public debt.

Third. A 20 percent across-the-board tax cut.

Fourth. Reduction or repeal of wartime excise taxes. Indeed, on January 18, 1946, the present chairman of the Committee on Ways and Means had introduced H. R. 5174, a bill to terminate wartime excise tax rates after June 30, 1946.

PERFORMANCE

First. Wartime excise taxes made permanent: In view of such firm assurances that the Republicans would terminate the temporary war excise tax rates, it was indeed a startling prediction of other events to come when the first important tax bill passed by the Eightieth Congress made these war excise taxes permanent.

President Truman asked that the wartime rates be extended for only 1 year, or until July 1, 1948. He asked that this action be taken to enable Congress to review the entire group of excises in connection with excise tax revision.

The Republican response was to fix the excise tax yoke firmly upon the necks even of those people with incomes so low as to be exempt from income taxes. The campaign promise of prompt reduction or repeal of excise taxes changed to clamor for deriving more Federal revenue from excises, or even a general sales tax. In hearings of the Committee on Ways and Means, on May 28, 1947, Chairman Knutson announced, in direct contradiction of his expressed desire to reduce excise taxes, that—

It is the hope of the committee to be able to shift much of the burden that is now being carried by the income tax group, which includes almost everyone, over to the excises, at least in part.

And he added:

Obviously, if we are going to extend the excise field we will have to include a great many items that are not now included.

Still another high-ranking Republican member of the Committee on Ways and Means introduced a bill for a 10-percent manufacturer's excise tax, and when the committee chairman appointed a special tax-study committee of prominent industrialists, bankers, and tax lawyers, the two major Wall Street financial dailies commented that increasing emphasis upon sales taxes could be expected. The special tax-study group-the socalled Magill committee-fulfilled this prediction far more accurately than did the Republican membership of the Ways and Means Committee their commitment to reduce excise taxes. In its report filed on November 4, 1947, the special taxstudy group recommended:

A case can certainly be made for strengthening the excise-tax structure.

The record of the Eightieth Congress, therefore, is not merely nonperformance of their campaign pledge to reduce excise taxes but of complete and utter repudiation.

Second. Twenty-percent rich-relief income-tax cut: In reducing surtaxes, Republican purposes and performance can perhaps be most convincingly demonstrated by an item taken from a recent edition of the Republican News, sponsored by the Republican national committee: "Don't throw peanuts to the elephant" is the caption, and here are a few quotations:

Don't delay, contribute today.

Don't count on winning by throwing peanuts to the elephant. Many of our friends feel that, entirely apart from other important considerations, the least they can do to express their appreciation is to contribute a substantial part of their tax savings for the year to insure the reelection of the Congress which made this possible.

We are going to win only by hard work and by liberal contributions.

To demonstrate that "peanut" pittances of the great masses of the people were not sought, the article included a table clearly suggesting that a $50,000 a year man, whose tax reduction amounted to $7,500, should contribute the entire amount to the Republican cause. The end of the article "gets down to brass tacks" and says: "Make checks payable to Republican National Committee."

Mr. Speaker, never since I came to Congress have I seen such a brazen admission that legislation was enacted as inducement for campaign contributions. Only the well-to-do taxpayers above $5,000, the 2,000,000 people at the top, who received 37 percent of the total income tax reduction, would be able to make substantial contributions out of their tax savings.

The nearly 50,000,000 taxpayers under $5,000, among whom the other 63 percent of the tax-cut melon was divided, obviously received only peanuts. Their share of the tax cut averaged $1.15 a week—which has already been consumed by the Republican NAM inflationary prices. So these millions of low-income taxpayers could not feed peanuts to the elephant, if they wanted to, because the Republican tax reduction will not supply even their families with peanuts.

To illustrate, the average American family of four with a $2,200 net income before personal exemption received a tax cut of 73 cents a week—with a 1.3 percent increase in "take-home" pay. The $2,400 family's taxes were cut $1.46 a week, providing a 3.3 percent increase in "take-home" pay. The "take-home" pay of a $5,000 family was increased by 3.6 percent, as a result of a weekly tax cut of $3. The $10,000 a year man with a wife and two kids has nearly $10 a week more to spend, from a 6.2 percent increase in "take-home" pay.

From here on Mr. Speaker, we have nothing but the sweetest sugar for the elephant. The $25,000 family received a tax cut of $58.50 a week, for a takehome pay increase of 18.5 percent. The $50,000 family now has $145 a week, or 29.1 percent more to spend. The $250,000 family may meet the high cost of living with $668 more per week, and 58.4 percent increase in take-home pay. While the poor millionaire is now able to buy a much-needed extra yacht or country home with his additional $1,337 a week, or 43.1 percent more, and still have substantially more than peanuts for the Republican elephant.

To reapitulate, Mr. Speaker, how does Republican performance compare with the Republican preelection promise of a 20 percent across-the-board income tax

As a result of successive vetoes by the President, the bill that finally became law is admittedly less lopsided in favor of the rich than H. R. 1—the first Knutson tax bill. Even ill-fated H. R. 1, however, abandoned the strict 20 percent across-the-board reduction, because it was found that this Republican campaign slogan actually would have reduced the taxes of the highest-income tax-payers to below the 1939 prewar level. Lower-income taxpayers would still have paid several times their prewar taxes. The result would have been to forgive top-bracket taxpayers entirely from any additional obligation toward retirement of the $260,000,000,000 war debt above their prewar burden, leaving other tax-payers to bear the brunt of the war.

This was somewhat embarrassing to the gentleman from Minnesota, Chairman Knutson, so his 20 percent plan became the 10.5-20 percent reductionthe 10.5 percent being the highest cut possible without reducing the upperbracket taxpayers to the 1939 prewar level. Democratic protests against the heavy concentration of tax relief for the rich brought still another concession to increase to 30 percent the reduction for taxpayers with net income below $1,000. So the 20 percent plan became the 10.5-20-30 plan-which still provided the gross windfalls for the wealthy from which the Republican National Committee expects to extract more than peanuts.

In contrast with this tax-grab bill for the rich was the recommendation of the President of an honest across-the-board individual income-tax cut of the same dollar amount for all taxpayers, regardless of income, to be financed by a modified excess-profits tax on the exorbitant, inflationary profits of corporations. Of course, the Republican apologists for monopoly big business refused to touch the $17,000,000,000 annual corporate profits after taxes, even though they are 67 percent greater than the profits of the peak war-year 1943.

So, we shall have to give Chairman Knutson and his Republican colleagues E for effort on their campaign pledge of a 20 percent across-the-board taxrelief bill for the rich. This pledge was amended to provide a small increase in individual income-tax exemptions, and place married couples on the same tax basis, wherever they may reside. But to the extent that the Republican Eightieth Congress was thus impelled toward considerations of equity, and the elimination of discriminations in the tax system, the minority accept full responsibility.

Third. Thirty percent reduction in estate and gift taxes. To compensate the wealthy for the adjustments the Democrats forced in their income-tax cut plan, the majority added a provision to give a $250,000,000 annual reduction in estate and gift taxes to about 12,000 of the Nation's wealthiest families. This amounts to roughly a 30 percent decrease in estate and gift taxes on the average.

Fourth, Effect of the tax cut upon debt reduction and the budget: The Republican promise of a $5,000,000,000 debt retirement and a balanced budget now have vanished like the cotton candy at a circus carnival. Instead of reducing the President's budget of $39,700,000,000, it now appears that the Congress has exceeded this amount.

The Congressional Record of May 18, 1948, just a month ago, contains an estimate by the senior Senator from Ohio—a leading Republican Presidential candidate—that expenditures would approximate $40,600,000,000—or a billion more than the President's budget. The tax cut had left only $42,300,000,000 in revenues for fiscal 1949, according to the report of the Committee on Finance. And to the dismay of the Senator, there would be not $5,000,000,000, but a mere $1,700,000,000,000 to apply on the public debt.

So, on the performance of the campaign promise of debt retirement of $5,-000,000,000, and a budget of $32,000,000,000 or $33,000,000,000, we can chalk up for the Republicans a well-earned zero.

Fifth. Scuttling of tax revision: As late as May 26, 1948, the chairman of the Committee on Ways and Means acknowledged that "a general tax revision was promised to the American public in the last congressional election." He added that his bill, H. R. 6712, "is the fulfillment of that promise."

Mr. Speaker, the fulfillment of the promise of the Republican majority to revise and eliminate inequities in the internal-revenue laws is on a par with the performance on most of its other pledges. Although this bill was favorably reported by the Committee on Ways and Means on June 2, 1948, at an early hour on June 19, scheduled to be the last day of the session, it was still on the House Calendar.

The bill was finally passed by the House, but not even the most optimistic Member had any hope that it could possibly become law. So the weeks of committee hearings at taxpayers' expense and the report of a Special Tax Study Committee authorized to spend $25,000 have failed of fruition, regardless of whether the result would have been improvement or detriment to the Federal tax laws.

In the field of tax equity, therefore, we can only conclude that the elephant's omnipotent memory has failed him. All that he has been able to remember during the Eightieth Congress is to reduce most the taxes of those best able to pay. And to this favored group he now cries for campaign contributions—"Don't—please don't—feed peanuts to the elephant."

SOCIAL SECURITY—PROMISE

The 1944 Republican platform pledged support of the following:

First. Extension of the existing oldage insurance and unemployment insurance systems to all employees not already covered:

Second. A careful study of Federal-State programs for maternal and child health, dependent children, and assistance to the blind, with a view to strengthening these programs.

PERFORMANCE

The social security planks of the 1944 Republican platform, therefore, promised unqualified support of extending "the existing old-age insurance and unemployment insurance systems to all employees not already covered." This promise sounded to me, Mr. Speaker, pretty much like other Republican campaign pledges intended to be forgotten after election day, for I could not forget that the entire Republican membership of the Committee on Ways and Means in 1935, when a Democratic Congress responded to the plea of President Roosevelt to enact social security laws, filed a minority report protesting that the oldage and survivors' insurance titles of the act were unconstitutional, and expressing doubt whether the unemployment insurance provisions would result in a general national benefit at that time. The present chairman of the Committee on Ways and Means said flatly that the program would not work, but since it was being enacted he recommended that it be made a responsibility and appendix of the Veterans' Administration.

Still it seemed barely possible that the Republican Party by 1944 had gotten to the point of accepting the most fundamental social legislation enacted in the history of this great Nation. So I reserve judgment.

But what has been the record of the Eightieth Congress on social security? During the first session two bills were passed—one to freeze the rate of social security taxes in order to stifle the clamor of people pressed by inflation for more adequate benefits; the second, the Gearhart bill to overrule a court decision which held that certain news vendors employed by Hearst Publications, Inc., on the west coast were entitled to social security protection. The President, however, refused to sign this bill, so it did not become law.

And what is the record of the Republican majority on social security during the second session of the Eightieth Congress?

First, news vendors were deprived of coverage by enactment of a bill over the veto of the President.

Second, House Joint Resolution 296 was passed, to reverse a unanimous decision of the Supreme Court and to take away social-security coverage granted by Congress in 1935 to 750,000 workers and their families. This bill, too, was vetoed by the President. In addition to the 750,000 employees directly affected, the veto message emphasized that the bill would enable employers desiring to avoid the payment of employment taxes to do so by "the establishment of artificial legal arrangements governing their relationship with their employees. I cannot approve legislation which would permit such employers at their own discretion to avoid the payment of socialsecurity taxes and to deny social-security protection to employees and their families." But the Congress overrode the veto.

Finally, in a desperate effort to expunge their consistent record of contracting coverage and curtailing benefits, the Republican leadership called up for consideration H. R. 6777, a bill reported by the Committee on Ways and Means. Although this bill would extend old-age and survivors' insurance cover-age to employees of State and local governments and nonprofit institutions on a voluntary basis, it admittedly did nothing or almost nothing about the following major recommendations repeatedly urged by the President:

First. More adequate benefits under old-age and survivors' insurance, to compensate for the 65-percent cost-of-living increase since 1939, when the present benefits were fixed.

Second. Extended coverage for oldage and survivors' insurance,

Third. Extended coverage for unemployment insurance.

Fourth. Insurance against loss of earnings due to illness and disability.

Fifth. Improved public assistance for the needy.

When Democratic Members of the House sought to provide an opportunity to the membership to pass an adequate and comprehensive social security bill, the Republican majority foreclosed them by suspending the rules and precluding any and all amendments. This bill has now been tabled by the Senate Committee on Finance. The only contribution toward a more adequate social security structure by the Eightieth Congress has been two inadequate amendments of the provisions for old-age pensions and pensions for the blind and dependent children.

Mr. Speaker, the Republican record on social security must be engraved in bitter hemlock upon the hearts of all the recipients of old-age and survivors' insurance, all the old people receiving public assistance, all the needy children, and all those unfortunates who cannot see. These people know, as you and I can never know, unless we become similarly afflicted, how complete and utter has been the failure of the Eightieth Congress to live up to the solemn pledges on social security adopted by the Republican National Convention in 1944.

TARIFF AND RECIPROCAL TRADE-PROMISE

In its 1944 platform the Republican Party "pledges that it will join with others in leadership in every cooperative effort to remove unnecessary and destructive barriers to international trade. We will always bear in mind that the domestic market is America's greatest market and that tariffs which protect it against foreign competition should be modified only by reciprocal bilateral trade agreements approved by Congress."

Although this plank of the Republican platform was obviously designed as a compromise between Republicans who favored a return to the logrolling, tariffwriting days of the Smoot-Hawley Act, and others who did not desire to return quite so far into the nineteenth century, the promise to cooperate "to remove unnecessary and destructive barriers to international trade" afforded some hope that the Republican Party might come out of the isolationist shell incrusting its views on foreign economic policy.

PERFORMANCE

These hopes were short-lived. During the first session of the Eightieth Congress both the Senate Committee on Finance and the House Committee on Ways and Means conducted extensive hearings on the operation of the Reciprocal Trade Program and the proposed negotiation of a Charter for an International Trade Organization. These hearings were generally recognized by the public and the press as a deliberate effort to sabotage the Geneva Trade Conference in which the United States was assuming leadership in the elimination of restrictive barriers to international trade and commerce.

When this failed, high-tariff protectionists then induced the Republican leadership of the House to kill the reciprocal trade program altogether. Althought the Reciprocal Trade Agreements Act was scheduled to expire on June 12, 1948, the Ways and Means Subcommittee on Tariff and Reciprocal Trade did not begin hearings until May 3. And, Mr. Speaker, it has never been explained why these important hearings had to be behind closed doors with the press and the public barred. The bill reported by the subcommittee and the entire Committee on Ways and Means, in each instance by a strict party vote, would have ended the reciprocal trade agreements program as a major instrument of foreign policy by prescribing preliminary procedures involving interminable delays before the President could negotiate a reciprocal trade agreement. H. R. 6556, as passed by the House, would have made possible the imposition of tariff rates 50 percent higher than the rates of the Hawley-Smoot Tariff Act of 1930, which resulted in the stagnation of our trade and commerce. The bill, in fact, was so bad that Secretary of State Marshall advised that it would be better to enact no législation at all.

Important amendments were made in the other body, but severe limitations have been imposed by the Republican Congress upon the effectiveness of the reciprocal trade program. The unmistakable threat to American leadership in international economic affairs has been recognized both at home and abroad.

In the field of tariff and reciprocal trade, Mr. Speaker, the Eightieth Congress has very convincingly lived up to the ancient and traditional Republican support of tariffs so high as to keep out all competitive imports. In this respect I think we can agree that the Republican Party has kept faith with its implied hostility to the reciprocal trade program contained in its 1944 platform, even though congressional review of each reciprocal trade agreement is not required by the bill now at the White House.

VETERANS' LEGISLATION

Mr. PHILBIN. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to extend my remarks at this point in the RECORD.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Massachusetts.

There was no objection.

Mr. PHILBIN. Mr. Speaker, in these closing moments of the Congress, I desire briefly to express my keen disappointment with the failure of several measures in behalf of our beloved veterans. gether with other Members, I have worked earnestly to secure favorable action on these pending measures. I appreciate that the leadership was and is faced with the necessity of balancing the relative merits of consideration of various vital measures and that is not an easy responsibility. There are serious omissions in the program nevertheless; the high cost of living, housing, and particularly certain veterans' legislation.

Of special and touching omission is that of the bill giving cars to a group of amputees which would cost, it is estimated, about $15,000,000. At a time when we are spending billions for foreign relief and recovery, it is regrettable, if not tragic, that we cannot spend a mere $15,000,000 or $19,000,000 for those who are so seriously afflicted because of their unselfish service to their country.

The failure to pass the secondary loan bill for veterans is also unfortunate, as is the loss of the so-called veterans' homestead bill. Both these measures would facilitate housing for veterans and would improve the housing situation nationally. As a vigorous advocate and worker for these measures, I deplore the fact that they could not have been submitted and passed before we recess or adjourn. But there will be future opportunities to pass these measures. Let us continue our efforts.

I understand now that a secondary loan bill will be reported under the housing bill and the GI bill of rights which is in substance similar to the bill presented by the veterans' committee. This will compensate in part, if it is finally enacted in worth-while form, for other omissions, but I am frank to state that it is very difficult to understand why the bill providing for cars for certain classes of the blind and amputees has been sidetracked. This is perhaps the greatest omission in the veterans program because it affects a group which should receive the most solicitous consideration of this House.

Let me congratulate and commend my friend and beloved colleague, the distinguished gentlelady from Massachusetts for her untiring and effective work for the veterans.

Mr. TEAGUE. Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to the provision of H. R. 6712 which discriminates against our young Regular officers of the armed services who are retired by reason of physical disability and who, under the provisions of this bill, must pay income tax on their retired pay. It is only proper that they should receive the same benefits available to other Government employees and disabled veterans who receive disability compensation which is tax free.

Of course, we know just who the committee had in mind when they place this provision in the tax bill. However, just because a few high ranking officers of our service are now drawing tax-free disability retirement pay is not reason enough to place an additional burden on the young Regular officers who are also retired because of physical disabilities. The solution to this problem is to have the various services review the retirement proceedings of their general officers and determine whether or not they are still entitled to disability retirement. In the event they are not, then they should be restored to duty or placed on retirement by reasons of their length of service.

I do not favor this provision which will hurt our young Regular officers who are deserving of the tax-free retirement benefits the same as our other veterans drawing disability retirement or compensation from the Veterans' Administration.

ASSISTANCE TO CERTAIN LOCAL SCHOOL AGENCIES

Mr. LANDIS submitted the following conference report and statement on the bill H. R. 6527, an act to provide assistance to certain local school agencies overburdened with war-incurred or postwar national defense-incurred, enrollments, for printing in the RECORD:

Mr. LANDIS. Mr. Speaker, I call up the conference report on the bill H. R. 6527.

The Clerk read the title of the bill. The Clerk read the conference report. The SPEAKER. The question is on agreeing to the conference report.

The conference report was agreed to. A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

FEDERAL CHARTER FOR COMMODITY CREDIT CORPORATION

Mr. WOLCOTT submitted the following conference report and statement on the bill (S. 1322), to provide a Federal charter for the Commodity Credit Corporation:

CONFERENCE REPORT

The committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendment of the House to the bill (S. 1322)

to provide a Federal charter for the Commodity Credit Corporation, having met, after full and free conference, have agreed to recommend and do recommend to their respective Houses as follows:

That the Senate recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the House and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: In lieu of the matter proposed to be inserted by the House amendment insert the following:

'That this Act may be cited as the 'Commodity Credit Corporation Charter Act'.

"SEC. 2. Creation and purposes: For the purpose of stabilizing, supporting, and protecting farm income and prices, of assisting in the maintenance of balanced and adequate supplies of agricultural commodities, products thereof, foods, feeds, and fibers (hereinafter collectively referred to as 'agricultural commodities'), and of facilitating the orderly distribution of agricultural commodities, there is hereby created a body corporate to be known as Commodity Credit Corporation (hereinafter referred to as the 'Corporation'), which shall be an agency and instrumentality of the United States, within the Department of Agriculture, subject to the general direction and control of its Board of Directors

"SEC. 3. Offices: The Corporation may establish offices in such place or places as it may deem necessary or desirable in the conduct of its business

'Sec. 4. General powers: The Corpora-

"(a) Shall have succession in its corporate name.

"(b) May adopt, alter, and use a corporate seal, which shall be judicially noticed.

"(c) May sue and be sued, but no attachment, injunction, garnishment, or other similar process, mesne or final, shall be issued against the Corporation or its property. The district courts of the United States, including the district courts of the District of Columbia and of any Territory or possession, shall have exclusive original jurisdiction of all suits brought by or against the Corporation: Provided, That the Corporation may intervene in any court in any suit, action, or proceeding in which it has an interest. Any suit against the Corporation shall be brought in the District of Columbia, or in the district wherein the plaintiff resides or is engaged in business. No suit by or against the Corporation shall be allowed unless it shall have been brought within four years after the right accrued on which suit is brought. All suits against the Corporation shall be tried by the court without a jury. Notwithstanding any other provision of this Act, the Federal Tort Claims Act (Public Law 601, Seventy-ninth Congress) shall be applicable to the Corporation. Any suit by or against the United States as the real party in interest based upon any claim by or against the Corporation shall be subject to the provisions of this subsection (c) to the same extent as though such suit were by or against the Corporation.

"(d) May adopt, amend, and repeal bylaws, rules, and regulations governing the manner in which its business may be conducted and the powers vested in it may be exercised.

"(e) Shall have all the rights, privileges, and immunities of the United States with respect to the right to priority of payment with respect to debts due from insolvent, de-ceased, or bankrupt debtors. The Corporation may assert such rights, privileges, and immunities in any suit, action, or proceeding.

"(f) Shall be entitled to the use of the United States mails in the same manner and upon the same conditions as the executive departments of the Federal Government.

"(g) May enter into and carry out such contracts or agreements as are necessary in the conduct of its business. State and local regulatory laws or rules shall not be applicable with respect to contracts or agreements of the Corporation or the parties thereto to the extent that such contracts or agreements provide that such laws or rules shall not be applicable, or to the extent that such laws or rules are inconsistent with such contracts or agreements.

"(h) May contract for the use, in accordance with the usual customs of trade and commerce, of plants and facilities for the physical handling, storage, processing, servicing, and transportation of the agricultural commodities subject to its control. Except as provided in section 16, the Corporation shall not have power to acquire or lease any such plant or facility or to acquire or lease real property or any interest therein, except that it may rent or lease office space necessary for the conduct of its business and it may continue to lease (by renewing or extending existing leases or entering into new leases) property leased by it on the date of the enactment of this Act.

"(1) May borrow money subject to any provision of law applicable to the Corporation: Provided, That the total of all money borrowed by the Corporation, other than trust deposits and advances received on sales, shall not at any time exceed in the aggregate $4,750,000,000. The Corporation shall at all times reserve a sufficient amount of its authorized borrowing power which, together with other funds available to the Corporation, will enable it to purchase, in accordance with its contracts with lending agencies, notes, or other obligations evidencing loans made by such agencies under the Corporation's programs.

marketing facilities, and uses for such commodities.

"(f) Export or cause to be exported, or aid in the development of foreign markets for, agricultural commodities.

"(g) Carry out such other operations as the Congress may specifically authorize or provide for,

"In the Corporation's purchasing and selling operations with respect to agricultural commodities (except sales to other Government agencies), and in the warehousing, transporting, processing, or handling of agricultural commodities, the Corporation shall, to the maximum extent practicable consistent with the fulfillment of the Corporation's purposes and the effective and efficient conduct of its business, utilize the usual and customary channels, facilities, and arrangements of trade and commerce.

"Sec. 6. Existing statutes applicable to the Corporation: The Federal statutes applicable to Commodity Credit Corporation, a Delaware corporation, shall be applicable to the Corporation. Commodity Credit Corporation, a Delaware corporation, shall cease to be an agency of the United States as provided in section 7 (a) of the Act of January 31, 1935, as amended (15 U. S. C., 1940 edition, Supp. V, 713 (a)).

"Sec. 7. Capital Stock: The Corporation shall have a capital stock of $100,000,000 which shall be subscribed by the United States. Such subscription shall be deemed to be fully paid by the transfer of assets to the Corporation pursuant to section 16 of this Act. The Corporation shall pay interest to the United States Treasury on the amount of its capital stock, and on the amount of the obligations of the Corporation purchased by the Secretary of the Treasury pursuant to the Act of March 8, 1938 (U. S. C., title 15, sec. 713a-4), as amended, at such rates as may be determined by the Secretary of the Treasury to be appropriate in view of the terms for which such amounts are made available to the Corporation.

"Sec. 8. Funds: The Corporation is authorized to use in the conduct of its business all its funds and other assets, including capital and net earnings therefrom, and all funds and other assets which have been or may hereafter be transferred or allocated to, borrowed by, or otherwise acquired by it.

"Sec. 9. Directors: The management of the Corporation shall be vested in a Board of Directors (hereinafter referred to as the Board'). The Board shall consist of five members. The Secretary of Agriculture, or his nominee, shall be a member of the Board and the remaining members shall be ap-pointed by the President by and with the advice and consent of the Senate. The Chairman of the Board shall be selected by the Board. A majority of the directors shall constitute a quorum of the Board and action shall be taken only by a majority vote of those present. The appointed directors shall serve for a period of five years, except that the terms of the first Board shall be shortened to provide for replacement or reappointment of its members in number as nearly equal as practicable in each year. The power of re-moval shall be vested in the President of the United States. The Corporation may provide, by its bylaws, for the compensation to be paid the directors: Provided, That the compensation paid any director shall not exceed in the aggregate $10,000 per annum: And provided further, That employees of the Corporation or any department or agency of the Federal Government, if also directors, shall not receive additional compensation for their services on the Board. Employees of the Corporation or any department or agency of the Federal Government, if also directors, shall not comprise, in the aggregate, more than three of the members of the Board.

"The Secretary of Agriculture is authorized to appoint an interim Board consisting of five members, including the Secretary, who shall serve until October 1, 1948.

"Sec. 10. The Executive Staff: Responsibility for the day-to-day conduct of the business of the Corporation shall be vested in a staff of executive officers, headed by a chief executive appointed by the Board and responsible to the Board. Members of the executive staff shall devote their full time to the affairs of the Corporation. The Board shall define the authority and duties of the members of the executive staff, delegate to them such of the powers vested in the Corporation as it may determine, require that such of them as it may designate be bonded and fix the penalties therefor. The Corporation may pay the premium of any bond or bonds of any officer or employee. With the exception of experts, appointments shall be made pursuant to the civil-service laws and the Classification Act of 1923, as amended (5 U. S. C., 1940 edition, 661).

"SEC. 11. Cooperation With Other Governmental Agencies: The Corporation may, with the consent of the agency concerned, accept and utilize, on a compensated or uncompensated basis, the officers, employees, services, facilities, and information of any agency of the Federal Government, including any bureau, office, administration, or other agency of the Department of Agriculture, and of any State, the District of Columbia, any Territory or possession, or any political subdivision thereof. The Corporation may allot to any bureau, office, administration, or other agency of the Department of Agriculture or transfer to such other agencies as it may request to assist it in the conduct of its business any of the funds available to it for administrative expenses. The personnel and facilities of the Corporation may, with the consent of the Corporation, be utilized on a reimbursable basis by any agency of the Federal Government, including any bureau, office, administration, or other agency of the Department of Agriculture, in the performance of any part or all of the functions of such agency.
"SEC. 12. Utilization of Associations and

Managers on the Part of the House. GEORGE D. AIKEN, MILTON R. YOUNG, EDWARD J. THYE, ELMER THOMAS. ALLEN J. ELLENDER, Managers on the Part of the Senate.

The managers on the part of the House the conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendment of the House to the bill (S. 1322) to provide a Federal charter for the Commodity Credit Corporation, submit the following statement in explanation of the effect of the action agreed upon by the conferees and recommended in the accompanying conference report:

The House amendment to the bill struck out all after the enacting clause and inserted a substitute amendment. The committee of conference recommend that the Senate recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the House with an amendment which is a substitute for both the Senate bill and the House amendment and that the House agree to the same.

In general, the conference substitute follows the language of the House amendment. The major differences between the conference substitute and the House amendment are indicated below.

The Senate bill provided that Commodity Credit Corporation shall have the immunities of the United States from State statutes of limitations. The House amendment did not contain such a provision. Under the conference substitute a four year statute of limitations will apply to suits brought by or against the Corporation.
Under the House amendment not more than two employees of the Corporation or any department or agency of the Federal Government could serve as directors of the Corporation. The conference substitute increases this number to three.

The conference substitute contains a provision not in the House amendment authorizing the Secretary of Agriculture to appoint an interim Board consisting of five members. including the Secretary, who shall serve until October 1, 1948.

JESSE P. WOLCOTT, RALPH A. GAMBLE, JOHN C. KUNKEL, BRENT SPENCE, PAUL BROWN, WRIGHT PATMAN. Managers on the Part of the House.

Mr. WOLCOTT. Mr. Speaker, I call up the conference report on the bill, S. 1322, to provide a Federal charter for the Commodity Credit Corporation, and ask unanimous consent that the statement of the managers be read in lieu of the report.

The Clerk read the title of the bill. The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Michigan?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the statement of the managers on the part of the House.

The conference report was agreed to. A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

EXTENSION OF REMARKS

Mr. O'KONSKI. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that after the adjournment of Congress I may have permission to extend my remarks.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Wisconsin?

There was no objection.

Mr. MUNDT. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to extend my remarks in the Appendix of the Record and include an address by Dr. Wilson analyzing certain prices. I think this will run slightly beyond the limit, but notwithstanding the excess I ask unanimous consent that the extension may be made.

The SPEAKER. Notwithstanding the excess, without objection, the extension may be made.

There was no objection.

Mr. SCHWABE of Oklahoma asked and was given permission to extend his remarks in the Appendix of the RECORD in three instances and to include extraneous matter in each.

TRYING TO GET A CUT OUT OF ERP FUNDS

Mr. REEVES. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to extend my remarks at this point in the RECORD.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Missouri?

There was no objection.

Mr. REEVES. Mr. Speaker, I want to warn the House and the Economic Cooperation Administration against scheme to divert funds appropriated for economic recovery abroad into improper channels for personal profit. As a portion of these remarks I include a copy of a letter and so-called service contract originating with a firm known as Federal Trading Co., having its offices at 1406 G Street, suite 306, Washington, D. C. C. G. Caffrey, who signs the contract as a general partner, is registered as a lobbyist for the American Cotton Manufacturers Association. See Congressional RECORD, May 5, 1948, page 5354.

Now, Mr. Caffrey wants to convince the ECA to export 100,000 draft animals and livestock as a part of the recovery program, although the participating nations have not asked for them and presumably do not need them. But for $1 per head, or a neat $100,000, Mr. Caffrey and his associates are prepared to bring pressure to bear on the ECA to buy 100,000 livestock for export.

This appears to be one of the bolder attempts to pervert the European recovery program for personal profit. It has been carried on on a very hush-hush basis because the name of the Federal Trading Co. does not even appear on the outside door of Mr. Caffrey's office.

The situation demands that the ut-most care be exercised by the ECA and the Appropriations Committee of this Congress to see that the billions of dollars for foreign aid are not expended unnecessarily just because someone is able to do a good job of convincing for a commission. Specifically, all dealings with regard to the purchase and sale of horses and mules and livestock should be scrutinized with particular care. I intend to keep in touch with the matter for the purpose of determining whether any draft animals and livestock are purchased for ECA export as a result of this kind of convincing.

Copies of this extension and of the letter and contract in question are being furnished to the Director of the Economic Administration, Mr. Hoffman, and to the chairman of each of the Com-mittees on Appropriations, with the urgent recommendation that a full investigation be conducted.

The letter and contract of the Federal Trading Co. are as follows:

FEDERAL TRADING CO.,

Washington, D. C., April 16, 1948.
We know that the recent passage of the Marshall plan, now titled Economic Cooperation Administration (ECA) has increased your interest in possible livestock and, specifically, draft animal sales to European countries.

There was no provision for the purchase of livestock in the bill, nor was it mentioned in the plan for allocating and spending ECA appropriations. They might be included if a convincing program, with congressional and Departments of Commerce and Agriculture backing, could be presented to the ECA Director, Mr. Hoffman, and his staff. Quite a lot of ECA money is planned for farm ma-chinery. Machinery is in short supply here in the United States and it is questionable if European farmers, especially those in southern Europe, could use mechanical equipment as advantageously as they could use mules and horses.

Here is our proposition. We want to push the livestock program for you. We will en-deavor to convince the ECA people that live-stock should be included. After this is ac-complished we will maintain close contact with the agencies doing the buying to insure that you have an opportunity to bid on each and every purchase made under ECA. This will include representation with the Departments of Commerce and Agriculture, the purchasing missions of foreign countries, the foreign embassies and the consulates both in Washington and New York. Our goal will be 100,000 animals during the first 15 months of the program. To make our pro-posal doubly fair, we put our service to you on an "if you make money—we make money" One dollar a head for each animal you sell under the ECA program.

We have enclosed a contract which sets forth those items. We will confine our representation only to those dealers who sign contracts. If this proposal meets with your approval, sign the attached contract and mail it to our Washington office. Retain the contract in the blue jacket for your file. We will keep you periodically informed of our progress.

SERVICE CONTRACT Washington, D. C., Date __.

1405 G Street NW.

I. The undersigned, a resident of _ does hereby agree to pay to the Federal Trading Co., a limited partnership doing busi-ness in the District of Columbia, for good and valuable services rendered, a fee or service charge in the amount of $1 per head on all horses, mules, or cattle which the undersigned is able to purchase and sell to, or through the Economic Cooperation Administration as established pursuant to the act, Foreign Assistance Act of 1948. It is further agreed that the same charge or service fee will also be paid on all business and in the same amount which stems from or has its inception in the European recovery program.

II. The fee, service charge, or consideration as stipulated in paragraph I above is to be made to the Federal Trading Co., for services rendered or to be rendered in connection with the securing of, or having earmarked funds, which have been appropriated, but not allocated for specific projects or programs.

III. It is further agreed and stipulated between the parties to this contract that said contract will continue in full force and effect on the same basis as set forth in paragraphs 1 and 2 during the continuation of the European'recovery program, unless it is mutually agreed between the parties to modify the terms as herein above set forth.

WATCH INDUSTRY THREATENED

Mr. DONOHUE. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to extend my remarks at this point in the RECORD.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Massachusetts?

There was no objection.

Mr. DONOHUE. Mr. Speaker, at this time I would like to review, for the information and consideration of my colleagues, the serious situation which confronts the jeweled-watch industry of the United States.

The facts will reveal that this industry is handicapped to the advantage of its foreign competitors.

Here is an American industry, employing American labor, paying American wages, and trying to sell American products to the American people. It wishes no special favors. It asks no stifling of competition; it seeks no monopoly in business; it desires to be accorded only the fair treatment it deserves.

At the outset, I want to make clear to you that the American watch-manufacturing industry has never been accused of being inefficient in its manufacturing operations and techniques. It has repeatedly proved that everything possible has been done to meet the difference in cost of manufacturing watch movements here and abroad, and is not trying to hide behind a tariff wall.

The 1930 Tariff Act provided this in-dustry with a schedule of specific dollarand-cents duties which fairly well reflected, at that time, the difference in the cost of production of watch movements here and abroad. Even if those rates were still in effect, they would not be adequate today because the cost of production has sharply risen in this country. However, the trade agreement of 1936 with Switzerland reduced the rates of the 1930 Tariff Act by about 34 percent on the average. In many classifications, it even carried them below the rates of the 1922 tariff.

The result was that the American industry's share in the American jeweled-watch market dropped from considerably more than half, where it stood during 1930-36, to considerably less than half during the years 1936-41. This loss in position is a very significant thing and reflected itself during the war years in the fact that the American industry was not then large enough to meet, as quickly as was desired, the demands of our armed services. What had happened was that, during 1936-41, as we began to come out of the depression, the reduced rates of the trade agreement with Switzerland prevented the American industry from expanding, by decreasing the percentage of the market it could obtain

During the war years, of course, their facilities were devoted to the war effort. After the fall of France, Switzerland was entirely surrounded by the Axis Powers, and we became the sole remaining source of precision timing instru-ments for the Allies. But the Swiss exports of watches of a nonmilitary character were not cut off, and imports of jeweled watches into the commercial channels of this country soared from slightly over 4,000,000 units in 1941 to a high of over 9,000,000 units in 1946, at a time when we were out of the market.

The industry had already been hurt in the prewar year by the Swiss trade agreement, not only to its own detriment, but also to that of the national defense. A flood of importations poured into this country for American cus-tomers and so thoroughly saturated the demand for watches that no backlog of demand, after the war, to rebuild the industry, could be anticipated.

For these reasons the watch industry has, for several years, without success, been trying to obtain relief from the reduced rates of the trade agreement.

Finally, in 1946, the State Department called the representatives of the industry to Washington and suggested a course of action. The State Department proposed that the Swiss be asked to impose an export quota on the direct shipment of watches to this country from January 1, 1946, to March 31, 1947. This export quota for the year 1946 was to be based on the direct exports to the United States by Switzerland during 1945, the biggest year, up to that time, in the history of Swiss watch exports to the United States. The Swiss were also to do what they could to curtail indirect shipments so as to prevent the quota being exceeded by importers obtaining watches by way of third countries. They were also to expedite the delivery of watchmaking machinery which the American industry, principally Waltham, then had on order with Swiss machine builders to replace that which could not be made during the war. Although the obvious ineffectualness of this proposal was protested, the State Department went ahead with it in an exchange of notes under date of April 22, 1946.

The figure agreed to with the Swiss provided no protection for the American companies. The significant thing about all of this maneuvering, however, is that there was a recognition by the tradeagreements organization that the American industry had a good case. The State Department, after 2 years of delay, felt that something had to be done to dispose of the matter, but were unwilling to take direct, effectual action.

As for Swiss compliance with the agreement of the exchange of notes, suffice it to say that 1946 imports exceeded 1945 by over 300,000 jeweled units, although the Tariff Commission, has, by making certain deductions and the use of Swiss classifications, decided that there was compliance with the spirit, if not the letter of the agreement. No one has been able to even technically justify the refusal by the Swiss to deliver the machinery, which has not been done to this day. Instead of expediting delivery, as agreed, the ink was no sooner dry on the notes which were exchanged than the Swiss created a machinery trust known as Machor, to lease the machinery, on terms wholly unacceptable to the American industry.

In December of 1946, by which time it had become apparent that the export quota established by the Swiss, pursuant to the exchange of notes, had afforded no protection to the American industry, the State Department was asked to consider extending the agreement from March 31, 1947, to the end of the year. but on a more realistic basis as to quota. This they flatly refused to do. The State Department was then asked to consider canceling the trade agreement so as to restore the 1930 tariff rates; this they also refused to do. The State Department, under the reciprocal trade-agreements program, is treating this American industry as a static force in a dynamic economy, and, unless we accomplish a reversal of this kind of treatment, we are going to see this important American industry sustain irreparable

What the American watch-manufacturing industry needs is an equality of opportunity in their own market. They are not seeking an unfair advantage, only a balancing of factors over which they have no control, so that a natural growth can be promoted, which is absolutely essential if this industry is to be adequate to the defense of the Nation in times of war, and a preventive to monopoly control during times of peace.

In considering measures to protect and preserve the American jeweled-watch industry, we are not hurting commodities and industrial products that wartorn countries are using to rebuild their export markets. We are not discriminating against the Marshall plan countries. We are dealing with one nation only—Switzerland.

Our State Department has continually ignored the legitimate complaints of the industry that reduction in tariff duties on watch movements and parts, under the Swiss trade agreements, has resulted in almost complete usurpation of the American market by Swiss competition. The State Department has also proved itself unable or unwilling to get this industry desperately needed machinery replacements from Switzerland and has turned a deaf ear to all pleas for establishment of a quota upon the importation of watch movements from Switzerland.

Congress scientifically established in 1930 Tariff Act rates of duty upon imported watches which enable the American watch industry to expand with the growth in consumer demand for watches. But the State Department has misconstrued congressional purpose until today highly skilled American watch makers are in danger of finding their craftsmanship an unsalable item, and America may well lose a vital factor in national defense.

The American watch industry wants no Government subsidy to compete with Swiss watches in the domestic market. It asks, and rightfully should have, the benefit of adequate tariff protection if it is to continue to maintain its highly skilled ranks of workers.

I submit that the jeweled-watch industry of the United States is of primary national concern because, in this atomic age, its precision-instrument production is a key point in our national security system. I urge you, my colleagues, to exert every individual and collective effort to afford this vital industry the fair treatment it deserves by granting reasonable tariff protection and by calling upon the State Department to cease and desist its discriminatory tactics.

I am again urging the State Department to review and adjust these oppressive discriminatory rates which are threatening to extinguish not only the great watchmaking industry of our Nation—an industry which has loaned invaluable service to our country in wartime. It is of the utmost importance that the faithful workers and the enterprising management of this great industry should receive the consideration of this Government it is entitled to, if it is to survive.

OCEAN TRANSPORTATION SERVICE TO AND WITHIN ALASKA

Mr. WEICHEL. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent for the immediate consideration of Senate Joint Resolution 219, continuing until March 1, 1949, the authority of the United States Maritime Commission to make provision for certain ocean transportation service to, from, and within Alaska.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Ohio?

There being no objection the Clerk read the bill as follows:

Resolved, etc., That the joint resolution of March 7, 1947, entitled "Joint resolution to authorize the United States Maritime Commission to make provision for certain ocean transportation service to and from Alaska until July 1, 1948, and for other purposes," is amended to read as follows: "That it is the intention of the Congress to assist in providing essential water transportation service for the Territory of Alaska pending the determination of a long-range policy with respect to such transportation.

"SEC. 2. (a) The United States Maritime Commission is authorized to enter into contracts, charters, and other arrangements deemed by it to be appropriate, with American citizens, deemed by the Commission to be qualified, to supply ocean transportation service with American-flag vessels to, from, and within Alaska. Such contracts, charters, or arrangements may include provisions for making available to such operators Government-owned vessels made available to the Commission for such purposes and vessels under the control or jurisdiction of the Commission for operation on voyages commencing not later than March 1, 1949. Such provisions may include (1) charter hire at a nominal rate; (2) such marine insurance to be provided by the Commission, as the Commission may determine to be necessary or appropriate as to vessels made available the Commission and other vessels operated in the Alaska service under contracts, charters, or arrangements with the Commis-(3) requirements that the operators shall operate such vessels to secure the most economical transportation adequate for the Alaska service; and (4) such other require-ments, terms, and conditions as the Commission may deem appropriate.

"(b) Each such contract, charter, or arrangement shall provide that, as of the end of each accounting period, the cumulative gross profit, before overhead expenses, from the operation of vessels thereunder, as approved by the Commission, shall be allocated as follows and in the following order:

"(1) To provide for the operator's proportionate share of the expenses of all operators of maintaining a survey of Alaska ocean transportation services and of the costs and methods of operation of operators in said services, in accordance with a program approved by the Commission;
"(2) To allow compensation to the operations of the commission;

"(2) To allow compensation to the operator for working capital, use of facilities other than operator-owned vessels, and overhead expenses, on such bases as the Commission may determine; and such bases may be fixed in terms of a percentage or percentages, deemed by the Commission to be reasonable, of vessel operating revenues;
"(3) To allow the operator a return at the

"(3) To allow the operator a return at the rate of 10 percent per annum, before Federal income taxes, on the fair value of operator-owned vessels used in the Alaska service;

"(4) Any profit remaining thereafter, at the conclusion of each accounting period, shall be held in a special account. At the end of the second and each succeeding accounting period, if any, such account shall be available for paying any then cumulative deficiency (covering the period from the commencement of operations hereunder) with respect to any amounts which, if earned, would have theretofore been allocated pursuant to the previous paragraphs of this subsection;

"(5) At the conclusion of operations under any such contract, charter, or other arrangement, any balance in said special account shall be promptly divided and paid 75 percent to the Commission and 25 percent to the operator.

"(c) The Commission may incorporate in each such contract, charter, or arrangement such definitions and formulas for the determinations of vessel-operating revenue, gross profit before overhead expenses, overhead expenses, accounting periods, fair value, and depreciation, as it may deem necessary or appropriate to carry out the other provisions of this subsection and of this joint resolution. The Commission's determination of the value of operator-owned vessels, for the purposes of such contract, charter, or other arrangement, shall be for the purposes of this joint resolution only and shall not be relevant evidence in any regulatory proceeding before the Commission.

"SEC. 3. (a) Every contract, charter, or arrangement made under this joint resolution shall expressly reserve to the Commission, after reasonable notice to the operator and affording him opportunity for hearing if the Commission determines that it is in the public interest so to do, the right to cancel the same upon reasonable notice of such cancellation but not less than 90 days. Such contract, charter, or arrangement shall also reserve to the operator the right to request the Commission to modify or cancel the same for good cause shown, and if the Commission shall determine that the operator's claim is justified, it may make such modification or shall permit such cancellation at such time thereafter as it may consider reasonable but not more than 90 days after such determination.

(b) Whenever the President shall proclaim that the security of the national defense makes it advisable, or during any national emergency declared by proclamation of the President, the Commission may terminate any contract, charter, or arrangement hereunder, without cost to the United States, upon such notice to the operator as the President shall determine.

"(c) Nothing contained in this joint resolution shall be construed to limit the right of the Commission to enter into other contracts, charters, or arrangements with new or other operators, if after such notice, investigation, or consultation as the Commission may deem necessary or appropriate in the particular case, but without the necessity of hearings, the Commission shall determine such action to be in the interest of the economy of the Territory of Alaska or of the national defense.

"SEC. 4. The word 'vessels' as used in the joint resolution shall include such passenger vessels, freight vessels, combination freight and passenger vessels, tugs, barges, and other watercraft, as shall, in the discretion of the Commission, be deemed suitable for use in ocean transportation to, from, and within Alaska,

"SEC. 5. The provisions of this joint resolution, as amended, shall not, prior to July 1, 1948, affect the operation of contracts, charters, or other arrangements in accordance with their terms in effect on the date of enactment of this amendatory section, un-less superseded before July 1, 1948, by contracts, charters, or arrangements entered into under this joint resolution, as amended.'

The resolution was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed, and a motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

ADDITIONAL COMPENSATION FOR POSTAL EMPLOYEES

Mr. REES, from the Committee on Post Office and Civil Service, submitted the following conference report and statement on the bill (H. R. 6916) to provide for permanent postal rates and additional compensation for postmasters and employees of the field service in the Post Office Department for printing in the RECORD:

CONFERENCE REPORT

The committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendment of the Senate to the bill (H. R. 6916) to provide for permanent postal rates and additional compensation for postmasters and employees of the field service in the Post Office Department having met, after full and free conference, have agreed to recommend and do recommend to their respective Houses as follows:

That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate to the text of the bill and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: In lieu of the matter proposed to be inserted by the Senate amendment insert the following:

"That this act shall be cited as the "Postal Rate Revision and Federal Employees Salary Act of 1948".

"TITLE I-ADDITIONAL COMPENSATION FOR POSTMASTERS AND EMPLOYEES IN THE FIELD SERVICE OF THE POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT

"Sec. 101. All postmasters, officers, and employees in the postal service whose rates of compensation are prescribed by the Act entitled "An Act to reclassify the salaries of postmasters, officers, and employees of the Postal Service; to establish uniform procedures for computing compensation; and for other purposes", approved July 6, 1945, as amended, shall receive additional compensation at the rate of $450 per annum: Provided, That employees paid on an hourly or parttime basis shall receive additional compensation at the rate of 25 cents per hour: Provided further, That postmasters at post offices of the fourth class shall receive additional compensation at the rate of a sum per annum equal to 25 per centum of their basic annual compensation.

"SEC. 102. The provisions of this Act shall not apply to skilled-trades employees of the mail-equipment shops, job cleaners in first-and second-class post offices, and em-ployees who are paid on a fee or contract

"SEC. 103. (a) Sections 17 (e) and 22 (d) of such Act of July 6, 1945, as amended, are each amended by striking out '6 cents per mile' and inserting in lieu thereof '7 cents per mile.'

"(b) Section 22 (d) of such Act of July 6, 1945, as amended, is further amended by striking out '75 cents' and inserting in lieu thereof '90 cents."

"(c) The Act entitled 'An Act to increase the equipment maintenance of rural carriers 1 cent per mile per day traveled by each rural carrier for a period of two years, and for other purposes' (Public Law 467, Eightieth Congress), is hereby repealed.

"SEC. 104, This title shall take effect on the first day of the first pay period which begins after June 30, 1948.

ceeding $700 but not exceeding $800; and $1.55 for indemnity exceeding $800 but not exceeding $1.000.

"SEC. 214. This title shall take effect on January 1, 1949.

"TITLE III—FEDERAL EMPLOYEES PAY INCREASES

"SEC. 301. Except as provided in section 303, each officer and employee of the Federal Government, and each officer and employee of the District of Columbia municipal government, whose rate of compensation is increased by section 2, 3, 4, 5, or 6 of the Federal Employees Pay Act of 1946 shall receive additional compensation at the rate of $330 per annum: Provided, That any employee paid on an hourly or part-time basis shall receive additional compensation at the rate of 20 cents per hour.

"Sec. 302. The additional compensation provided by this Act in the case of officers and employees whose rates of compensation are fixed in accordance with the Classifica-tion Act of 1923, as amended, shall not be construed to be an 'equivalent increase' in compensation within the meaning of section (b) (1) of such Act, as amended.

"SEC. 303. (a) Section 603 (b) of the Federal Employees Pay Act of 1945, as amended, is amended by striking out '$10,000' where it first appears in such section and inserting in lieu thereof '$10,330'.

"(b) Section 7 (b) of the Federal Employ-ees Pay Act of 1946 is amended by striking out '$10,000' and inserting in lieu thereof *$10,330'.

"(c) No officer or employee shall, by rea son of any provision of this title be paid with respect to any pay period, basic compensation, or basic compensation plus any addi-tional compensation provided by the Federal Employees Pay Act of 1945, as amended, at a rate in excess of $10,330 per annum.

"SEC. 304. The provisions of this Act granting an increase in compensation to employees of the United States and of the District of Columbia shall not apply to any employee in or under the municipal government of the District of Columbia prior to the time that legislation providing adequate revenues to meet the obligation in the District of Columbia is enacted by the Congress and becomes effective.

"SEC. 305. This title shall take effect on the first day of the first pay period which begins after June 30, 1948."

And the Senate agree to the same.

That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate to the title of the bill and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: In lieu of the amended title proposed by the Senate amendment, amend the title so as to read: "An Act to provide for permanent postal rates and to provide pay increases for Government employees.

EDWARD H. REES. WM. H. STEVENSON, C. W. VURSELL, TOM MURRAY, JOHN LYLE,

Managers on the Part of the House.

WILLIAM LANGER, RALPH E. FLANDERS, RAYMOND E. BALDWIN. OLIN D. JOHNSTON. HERBERT R. O'CONOR, Managers on the Part of the Senate.

STATEMENT OF THE MANAGERS ON THE PART OF THE HOUSE

The managers on the part of the House at the conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H. R. 6916) to provide for permanent postal rates and additional compensation for postmasters and employees of the field service in the Post Office Department submit the following statement in explanation of the effect of the action agreed upon by the conferees and recommended in the accompanying conference report:

The Senate amendment struck out all after the enacting clause of the House bill and inserted a substitute which provided for increases in pay of postal employees, and for revision of the classification schedules of the Classification Act of 1923, as amended, and for increased pay for Federal employees other than postal employees. The Senate amendment did not provide for postal rate revision. The substitute agreed to in conference follows closely the House bill except as explained below.

With respect to additional compensation for postal employees, title I of the conference substitute is the same as the House bill except that by inclusion of provisions from the Senate amendment the additional 1 cent per mile equipment allowance for rural car-riers provided by Public Law 467, Eightieth Congress has been made permanent, and the equipment allowance for special delivery messengers has been increased from 75 cents per hour to 90 cents per hour. The increases provided in the Senate amendment were eight cents and one dollar, respectively. The increases provided by this title are made ef-fective beginning with the first pay period following June 30, 1948.

The provisions of the Senate amendment relating to the revision of the compensation schedules of the Classification Act of 1923 have not been included in the conference substitute but there are included provisions substantially similar to H. R. 6917 as reported to the House. There are, however, the following differences from H. R. 6917: It is provided that each officer and employee whose rate of compensation is increased by section 2, 3, 4, 5, or 6 of the Federal Employees Pay Act of 1946 shall receive additional compensation at the rate of $330 per annum. This title of the conference substitute also raises the present ceiling on salaries from $10,000 per annum to $10,330 per annum. It is provided that the increases in compensation shall take effect beginning with the first pay period following June 30, The provision of H. R. 6917 which provided that these increases should continue only until July 1, 1949, is not included in the conference substitute.

The conference substitute contains the provisions of title II of the House bill, relating to postal rate revision, without change except that the changes in postal rates pro-vided for are to be effective beginning January 1, 1949.

The conference substitute includes a provision, taken from the Senate amendment, providing that the pay increase provided for shall not apply to any employee in or under the municipal government of the District of Columbia prior to the time that legislation providing adequate revenues to meet the obligation in the District of Columbia is enacted by the Congress and becomes effective.

The committee of conference recommends a modification of the title of the bill to conform to the provisions of the bill as agreed to in conference.

EDWARD H. REES, WM. H. STEVENSON, C. W. VURSELL, TOM MURRAY, JOHN LYLE, Managers on the Part of the House.

Mr. REES. Mr. Speaker, I call up the conference report on the bill, H. R. 6916, and ask unanimous consent that the statement on the part of the managers be read in lieu of the report.

The Clerk read the title of the bill. The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Kan-

There was no objection. The Clerk read the statement.

The SPEAKER. The question is on agreeing to the conference report.

The conference report was agreed to. A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

THE FEDERAL PAY RAISE

Mr. KEFAUVER. Mr. Speaker, those of us who have recognized the need for a wage increase for Federal employees and who have fought for such legislation were greatly heartened by the action taken by the Congress today.

It is unthinkable that we should forget our Federal employees at a time when there have been so many increases in the cost of living. Many of this group, often referred to as the white collar workers, entered the Federal service when the Government appealed for workers in connection with various Government bureaus and departments having to do with our war effort. These people responded to the call and many of them sacrificed their jobs in private industry, which are lost to them now, in order to aid their country in time of war. Now it is our duty to aid them in time of peace.

Every problem which faces the postal worker, for whom both the House and Senate have passed salary increases, also faces all other Federal employees. It would have been a gross discrimination to provide a pay raise for one group and to completely ignore the needs of the other.

We have generally recognized the great importance of maintaining not only high employment but also high consumption in order to stimulate the recovery of production and distribution of consumer goods of all kinds. For this reason too we must take care to see that the substantial number of workers who are employed by the Federal Government are able to maintain their share of the high consumption necessary if we are to enjoy business prosperity and a high standard of living.

I know that the postal employees are entitled to the $450 raise they have re-I am glad other Federal employees have at least gotten the $330 annual raise provided for in the conference report. Both amounts should have been larger to bring their income up to 1948 living costs. However, the increases provided will help greatly.

RESIGNATION FROM CONFERENCE COM-MITTEE ON AGRICULTURE BILL

Mr. MURRAY of Wisconsin. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to resign as a conferee on the bill, H. R. 2648, an act to authorize the Secretary of Agriculture to stabilize prices of agricultural commodities, to amend section 22 of the Agricultural Adjustment Act re-enacted by the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937; and for other purposes.

The SPEAKER. Without objection, the gentleman's resignation will be accepted.

There was no objection.

APPOINTMENT OF CONFEREE ON AGRICULTURE BILL

The SPEAKER. The Chair appoints the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. Gil-LIE] to serve in place of the gentleman from Wisconsin [Mr. Murray] on the bill, H. R. 2648, an act to authorize the Secretary of Agriculture to stabilize prices of agricultural commodities, to amend section 22 of the Agricultural Adjustment Act reenacted by the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, and for other purposes.

The Clerk will notify the Senate of the change.

EXTENSION OF REMARKS

Mr. KEEFE asked and was given permission to extend his remarks in the Appendix of the RECORD and include a letter.

RESIGNATION FROM COMMITTEE

The SPEAKER laid before the House the following communication which was read by the Clerk:

JUNE 19, 1948.
The Honorable the Speaker of the House of Representatives,

Washington, D. C.

DEAR MR. SPEAKER: I hereby submit my resignation as a member of the Committee on Public Works of the House of Representatives.

Respectfully,

EARL WILSON.

The SPEAKER. Without objection, the resignation will be accepted.

There was no objection.

APPOINTMENT TO COMMITTEE

Mr. HALLECK. Mr. Speaker, I offer a privileged resolution (H. Res. 699): The Clerk read as follows:

Resolved, That EARL WILSON, of Indiana, be and he is hereby elected a member of the Standing Committee of the House of Representatives on Appropriations.

The resolution was agreed to.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the

THE HONORABLE JOHN W. FLANNAGAN, JR.

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Virginia [Mr. SMITH].

Mr. SMITH of Virginia. Mr. Speaker, it is with deep regret that I have to announce that my colleague and friend John Flannagan, of the Ninth District of Virginia, has announced that he will retire from the Congress at the close of this session.

As this is the last occasion upon which the House will meet this session I think it only proper that I should announce this fact to the House. The gentleman from Virginia [Mr. FLANNAGAN] has served here for 18 years with distinction and honor and has endeared himself not only to the Virginia delegation but to the Members generally of this Congress and previous Congresses. For many years he has served upon the Committee on Agriculture, and during the Seventy-ninth Congress he was the chairman of that committee. He has rendered great service to the farming industry of this country.

The gentleman from Virginia IMr. Flannagan is the author of much legislation. He has a record here of liberal, forward-looking progressiveness; and I know this House and the Nation will regret his leaving this body when this session ends.

Mr. McCORMACK. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. SMITH of Virginia. I yield.

Mr. McCORMACK. The gentleman from Virginia, John Flannagan, enjoys the respect, the confidence, and the friendship of everyone who has served with him; a man whose nobility of character is an inspiration to all of us. I consider him without exception the most courageous man that I have ever served with in any legislative body. Coming from the district he does, with that forward outlook of his, it took indomitable courage for him to vote the way he did on many occasions; and I consider him as I have termed him in the past to many friends of mine, and I am proud to publicly state it now, as the most courageous man I have ever served with in public life.

Mr. RAYBURN. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. SMITH of Virginia. I yield to the gentleman from Texas.

Mr. RAYBURN. Mr. Speaker, no one in the House of Representatives could regret the retirement of the gentleman from Virginia, John Flannagan, more than I do. He has been my intimate personal friend and supporter for many years. He is a man of courage, he is a man of vision. He may be classed as a real, sensible liberal.

I trust that for him and his their path in the years that are allotted to them, may lie through green fields and by still waters.

Mr. SMITH of Virginia. I thank the gentleman.

Mr. MURRAY of Wisconsin. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. SMITH of Virginia. I yield to the gentleman from Wisconsin.

Mr. MURRAY of Wisconsin. May I say to the gentleman that I have had the pleasure and the honor of serving with the gentleman from Virginia [Mr. Flannagan] ever since I have been a Member of Congress. As chairman of the Committee on Agriculture, no man could be any more fair. His word is just as good as his bond. The gentleman from Virginia, John Flannagan, is one of the great friends any man ever had.

Mr. GARY. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. SMITH of Virginia. I yield to the gentleman from Virginia.

Mr. GARY. I desire to take this opportunity to express my deep regret that this House is to lose the very valuable services of John Flannagan. We have lost too many good men from the Virginia delegation within the last 2 or 3 years. In fact, we have suffered the largest number of changes in a like period of time within my memory. None of those who have departed will be missed more than Mr. Flannagan,

As former chairman of the important Committee on Agriculture, he has rendered an outstanding service to the farmers of the Nation. Agriculture was a potent factor in winning the recent world war and John Flannagan, by the part he played in helping to frame the agricultural war program, made a substantial contribution to the cause of victory. In war and in peace his services have been outstanding and he leaves behind him an enviable record.

During my association with him in the House I have come to admire John Flannagan greatly. I have recognized his many high qualities and have enjoyed his keen sense of humor and his genial personality. Mr. Speaker, I entertain for John Flannagan a genuine affection, and it is with deep personal regret that I bid him farewell and wish him Godspeed in his future undertakings.

Mr. HARDY. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. SMITH of Virginia. I yield to the gentleman from Virginia.

Mr. HARDY. Although the gentleman from Virginia, John Flannagan was elected by the people of the Ninth District of Virginia he has represented not only the people of his district, not only the citizens of the great Commonwealth of Virginia but he has been truly a representative of the people of the United States. The farm people in particular throughout this Nation are going to miss him from the Congress. I have enjoyed my service with him not only as a colleague in the House of Representatives but as a friend. I really feel that my life has been greatly enriched by this brief association with him.

Mr. PACE. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. SMITH of Virginia. I yield to the gentleman from Georgia.

Mr. PACE. It has been my high privilege to serve with the gentleman from Virginia, John Flannagan, for 10 years as a Member of the House Committee on Agriculture. Certainly there is no man who has a better understanding of our agricultural problems and is more devoted to the welfare of those who till the soil than John Flannagan. We all regret seeing him go and wish him many happy years of comfort and contentment at home.

Mr. LYNCH. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. SMITH of Virginia. I yield to the gentleman from New York.

Mr. LYNCH. I think that the gentleman from Virginia [Mr. FLANNAGAN] is one of the outstanding Members of this House. I have consulted him on many occasions in regard to legislation and with reference to other matters. though I am not a member of the Committee on Agriculture, I found him one of the most liberal members of the Democratic Party. Now, that to my mind means something when you consider the fact that the gentleman from Virginia [Mr. Flannagan] is not, like myself, one of those Democrats from north of the Mason-Dixon line. But he has a broad concept. He has demonstrated time after time his courage insofar as legislation is concerned. I sincerely say that I regret he has made the decision that he will not again become a Member of the House.

Mr. STANLEY. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. SMITH of Virginia. I yield to the gentleman from Virginia.

Mr. STANLEY. Mr. Speaker, I join my colleagues from Virginia and the other Members who have paid tribute and spoken with reference to the outstanding service John Flannagan has rendered his district, State, and Nation and in expressing deep regret on account of his leaving the Congress. He could continue to come to Congress from his district as long as he would choose to, and his decision to not seek reelection is a distinct loss to this body

Mr. ABBITT. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. SMITH of Virginia. I yield to the gentleman from Virginia.

Mr. ABBITT. Mr. Speaker, I desire to join in the sentiments expressed by the gentleman from Virginia. It is true that I have only been here a short while, but the gentleman from Virginia [Mr. FLANNAGAN] has been ever helpful to me and he has been a true friend of mine. It is with deep sorrow that I see him leave this House. The farmers of Virginia and all over the country will suffer a great loss. It is with heartfelt sorrow that we realize he is leaving.

Mr. HOPE. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. SMITH of Virginia. I yield to the gentleman from Kansas.

Mr. HOPE. Mr. Speaker, I am happy to have this opportunity to pay my tribute to John Flannagan. John Flan-NAGAN and I have served on the Committee on Agriculture for 18 years. During a part of that time he was chairman; during part of the time I have been chairman. During all of that time our relationships have been the most pleasant that could possibly exist between two members of a committee. John FLANNAGAN is broadminded; he is cooperative. He is unselfish, His character is unassailable. He is a man of great ability. During all of the period that he has served on the committee either as a member or as chairman I have never known him to let the slightest tinge of partisanship govern his action on the committee. He is a sincere friend of American agriculture and of the men and women who live and toil on the farms of this country. His loss to agriculture will be a severe one. He will leave behind him as a memorial to his work on the committee many outstanding pieces of legislation which will be of benefit to the agricultural interests of this country for many years to come. I can only say that I wish for JOHN FLANNAGAN the very best that a man can possibly have in the years to come.

Mr. GROSS. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. SMITH of Virginia. I yield to the gentleman from Pennsylvania.

Mr. GROSS. Mr. Speaker, I want to say, as a member of the Committee on Agriculture, that I am not too sorry to see a Democrat leave the committee or the House. Nevertheless, if we have to have them there, I would like to see more of John Flannagan's kind. John Flan-NAGAN is one of those fellows that has been loyal to his party and loyal to the South. To say that there is no partisanship in the Committee on Agriculture is not altogether the case. But, whenever that bobs up, he is loyal to where he belongs, and I want to say that the closer you get to John Flannagan, the better you like him. He is just a grand man, and I hope that in the years to come he will live to enjoy the friends that he has so well served and the fruits of his labor.

Mr. GILLIE. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. SMITH of Virginia. I yield to the gentleman from Indiana.

Mr. GILLIE. Mr. Speaker, I am glad to join my colleagues on the Committee on Agriculture in paying our respects to two fine gentlemen, the gentleman from Virginia [Mr. FLANNAGAN] and the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. Johnson]. I have learned to love them. They have done very fine work on the Committee on Agriculture. In saying farewell to two fine gentlemen I recall Robert Burns' farewell to Bonnie Prince Charles, who was leaving for the Indias, when he said:

Bonnie Charlie noo awa' Sailing o'er the bounding main. Many a stormy wind shall blow Should he ne'er come back again

Will ye no come back again Will ye no come back again Better loved ye canna be Will ye no come back again.

Mr. KEFAUVER. Mr. Speaker, the Congress loses one of its ablest and most lovable Members in the retirement of JOHN FLANNAGAN. A real liberal, JOHN FLANNAGAN has always worked for the little man. His contribution to the farm program of the Nation will give him a place in history as the foremost farm leader. The gentleman from Virginia leaves a place that will be difficult to fill. He is a real friend and a real man.

Mr. GREGORY. Mr. Speaker, in the retirement of John W. Flannagan, Jr., of Virginia, I feel the Nation is losing an outstanding public servant. As a longtime member of the Committee on Agriculture his wisdom, his diligent and untiring efforts for the cause of agriculture has redounded to the benefit of every agricultural home in America. We who represent agricultural districts feel that there has been no member of this body throughout many years who has contributed more to the cause of agriculture than John Flannagan. Although his efforts have been most helpful to us of the tobacco sections, his work has by no means been confined to one particular group of agriculture.

JOHN FLANNAGAN is a true and typical Virginia gentleman and in his retirement we wish him peace, contentment, and prosperity as a just reward for a long life of outstanding public service.

EVERETT DIRKSEN

Mr. TABER. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to address the House for 3 minutes.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New York?

There was no objection.

Mr. TABER. Mr. Speaker, for the past 15 years Everett Dirksen has been a member of the Committee on Appropriations. He is one of the ablest speakers I have ever known. He has been diligent in his work. He has carried more than his share of the load. I think that in debate here on the floor he has been as forceful and as effective as any man who has ever stood in the well of this House. He is retiring because of his health. The thing that pleases me most about that situation is that since he announced his retirement his health has begun to mend, and it now looks as though he is on the road to a permarent recovery.

EVERETT DIRKSEN, I have no hesitation in saying, is the peer of any man who has stood in this well. He will be remembered long after he retires, not only as a great orator but a fine, honest, sincere fellow. If he had a fault, it was that he worked so many hours of the day that it seems to have impaired his health. I wish him the best of luck in the days that are to come. I regret that he is leaving us, but I am glad that his health is such that at the present time he can look forward to years and years of great usefulness to the public of this great country.

Mr. ARENDS. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. TABER. I yield to the gentleman from Illinois.

Mr. ARENDS. I, too, would like to add my word with respect to the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. DIRKSEN], who is going to leave this House of Representatives after 15 years of service. I know of no other man who has been such an able, conscientious legislator, a man who seemed to be filled with energy from early morning until late at night. He finally worked himself into a situation where his health began to fail. Like my friend, the gentleman from New York [Mr. TABER], I rejoice that his health is now improving. We hope that in the near future he will again be his old self and will some day be back among us, where he has in public life served so faithfully and well.

At the same time, if the gentleman will permit, I want to pay tribute to three other Members from the State of Illinois who are voluntarily leaving this body. This is their last Congress. I refer to WILLIAM STRATTON, ROY CLIP-PINGER, and ANTON JOHNSON. Each and every one in his own right is an able and conscientious legislator. I know the State of Illinois is losing valued and true servants when these men leave. To each and every one, we wish the best of health and prosperity. I am happy that I have had the privilege to associate with each and every one of these outstanding gentlemen.

Mr. PLUMLEY. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. TABER. I yield to the gentleman from Vermont.

Mr. PLUMLEY. I do not wish to minimize the great tributes, and deserved, which have been paid to the distinguished gentleman from Illinois, with whom I have served and been closely associated since the Seventy-third Congress. Yet, Mr. Speaker, there are other Members of the Congress who deserve the same consideration at the hands of the Congress. There is one, Joe Hendricks, of Florida, who comes from the other side of the aisle, a man of very considerable ability, who has faithfully and well served his constituency and the country, who is leaving us. He served on my committee. I want to pay him my respects and compliment him on the outstanding service he has rendered. I am sorry JoE is not going to be on my committee next

CASE of South Dakota. Mr. Mr

Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. TABER. I yield.

Mr. CASE of South Dakota. I, too, would like to join in the commendation that has been spoken for the services of EVERETT DIRKSEN. Every Member of the House of Representatives has had an opportunity to see Everett work on the floor. Members of the Committee on Appropriations have had an opportunity to see him work in committee. For a number of years I was on the same Subcommittee on Independent Offices where I saw how he worked in the daily grind of appropriation hearings. There, as well as on the floor, the evidence of real ability was apparent every day. He was a hard worker. He was a brilliant worker. He had an unusual ability to marshal facts and then combine them with a logic that was irresistible on the floor of the House. We will miss him here. We wish him well wherever he goes.

Mr. JAVITS. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. TABER. I yield. Mr. JAVITS. Mr. Speaker, as a new Member I have found in EVERETT DIRKSEN a friend, a man of calm and lofty mind, with a silver tongue, a man with a large, generous heart. I gladly pay this tribute to him, and I hope that he will be back with us, or perhaps his people will see fit to send him to the other body.

Mr. HENDRICKS. Mr. Speaker, will

the gentleman yield?

Mr. TABER. I yield. Mr. HENDRICKS. I had the pleasure of serving with EVERETT DIRKSEN on the Subcommittee on Independent Offices. found him a man of diligence and intelligence. Although the time is short, I want to take this moment to pay my respects to EVERETT DIRKSEN. It was a pleasure to have served with him. I wish him well in the future.

Mr. TABER. I wish that he were going to serve longer.

Mr. LODGE. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. TABER. I yield. Mr. LODGE. Mr. Speaker, I want to associate myself with my colleague, the gentleman from New York [Mr. TABER], in commendation of EVERETT DIRKSEN. As a new Member of this body, I feel that my life has been very much enriched by my association with him. He is a man of high character, great charm, excep-tional ability, and outstanding eloquence. We have lost a brilliant and high-minded colleague who has made significant and vital contributions to the work of this body. We shall miss his wise counsels.

EVERETT DIRKSEN has left a great record in the Congress. It is a monument to distinguished service. It is a noble example of high statesmanship. It must be an inspiration to American youth.

In a prostrate and floundering world we can ill afford to lose the help, the leadership, which EVERETT DIRKSEN gave so modestly, so generously, and so effectively.

Mr. Speaker, I wish him well. I know that he will find useful service for his talents in the years to come. I trust that our Government will not long be deprived of his participation. I count it a privilege to claim him as my friend.

Mr. HORAN. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. TABER. I yield. Mr. HORAN. As one who had the pleasure of serving on the subcommittee with EVERETT DIRKSEN, I think it is significant that we are paying this tribute to one who served as chairman of the Subcommittee on Department of Agriculture Appropriations at 3 o'clock in the morning while we are waiting for a farm policy bill to return from the Senate. He loved American farming and agriculture. He wants it to be sound and progressive. His loss to this Congress is something of tremendous moment.

Mr. H. CARL ANDERSEN, Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. TABER. I yield.

Mr. H. CARL ANDERSEN. Mr. Speaker, I simply want to join in all the good things that have been said about EVERETT DIRKSEN. EVERETT has the respect of the entire House membership and in my opinion is probably the most outstanding man in ability who has served here during the 10 years I personally have been a Member. He will go far and our good wishes go with him.

Mr. PHILLIPS of California. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. TABER. I yield. Mr. PHILLIPS of California. Mr. Speaker, you will observe that the members of the subcommittee are unanimous in their respect and admiration for the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. DIRKSEN]. I have already expressed to him my personal regret. I repeat it now. He is a good chairman, a good friend. To know him is to admire and respect him.

The SPEAKER. The time of the gentleman from New York [Mr. TABER] has expired.

Mr. KEFAUVER. Mr. Speaker, I cannot let this occasion pass without paying tribute to EVERETT DIRKSEN, whom I consider a truly great American and one of our most capable legislators. EVERETT DIRKSEN has made a great contribution to the Congress and he has always been an inspiration to us other Members. Hard-working, thorough, intelligent, and courteous at all times. EVERETT will always be remembered and admired as a topnotch statesman. I am sorry he is retiring. I hope his health will be restored soon and that he may resume public service.

Mr. KLEIN. Mr. Speaker, it has been my very special privilege to have served with the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. DIRKSEN1 as a member of the Committee on the District of Columbia.

Measured by any standards, Everett DIRKSEN stands out among men and among Members of this House. His quiet courtesy, his amazing knowledge of the intricate details of a thousand and one things, his sure judgment in management and executive functions, by them-selves, would have marked him for distinction.

However, he combines with these qualities a swift, creative imagination, a magnetic personality which impressed itself on his colleagues without apparent effort, and a genuine liking for his fellow which is unmistakable in its men sincerity.

EVERETT DIRKSEN is a natural leader, free of bravado or bluster, but compelling by his obvious competence. It has been a privilege and a pleasure to have served with him and to have known him. His decision to retire from public life, while necessary, is a serious loss to this House and to the Nation.

A TRIBUTE TO EVERETT M. DIRKSEN

Mr. POULSON. Mr. Speaker, in my estimation, EVERETT DIRKSEN has no superior in all-around ability in the House of Representatives. Like all men, I have selected a few persons whom I consider tops in their respective spheres. Ev DIRKSEN is on my list. The story of his life reads like one of the books I read as a boy when I was at the hero-worshipping stage. If ever there was a self-made man, he is one. Completing his education while a Member of Congress, he has developed into one of its best-informed Members, and his vocabulary should make many of us timid in attempting to elaborate upon the nice things which have been said about him. With that in mind, I can only say that the people of the United States are losing a great Congressman

Mr. PHILBIN. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from Illinois, Everett Dirksen, is one of the outstanding American statesmen of our day and I deeply regret his decision to leave the House. His loss to this body where he has served with such conspicuous distinction for many years, and to the Nation to which he gave so unselfishly and selflessly of himself, is indeed incalculable.

Of great gifts of personality, mentality, and eloquence, this fine noble son of Illinois, is a dear and loyal friend, a devoted and effective legislator and a diligent and tireless worker for all causes which command his attention. Always warm and humane, moved by evangelical zeal for the truth and principle as he sees them, the gentleman from Illinois. EVERETT DIRKSEN, is a giant figure in our House.

It has always been surprising to me that his party never recognized his marked availability for national office. As a member of the minority party in this House, I would view with genuine apprehension, for example, a national Republican ticket comprised of our beloved distinguished Speaker, the warm friend of every member of this party, the gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. MALTIN] and the esteemed, scholarly and talented statesman, the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. DIRKSEN]. It has for some time seemed to me that a national ticket led by the "blacksmith's son" Massachusetts and the "baker boy" from Illinois might well give us Democrats something to think about.

In any event, I am happy to pay my sincere tribute of respect, admiration, and affection to the gentleman from Illinois, EVERETT DIRKSEN, and to extend to him my very best wishes for future health, success, and happiness. It is my earnest hope that he may continue his activities in some sphere of the public service because it would be nothing short of tragic for his great and striking talents and his noble heart to be denied to the American Nation and people which he so profoundly loves and has served so faithfully and well.

Mr. TABER. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have the right to extend their remarks at this point.

The SPEAKER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

There was no objection.

Mr. AUCHINCLOSS. Mr. Speaker, it is a great loss to the House to have the distinguished gentleman from Illinois, Everett M. Dirksen, retire at the end of this session. He has served his country and his constituents faithfully and well for a goodly number of years, and he has made among the Members of both Houses of Congress a vast number of friends on account of his pleasing personality and charm.

He is an efficient legislator and has contributed immeasurably to the best interests of our country. Perhaps he will be remembered most for the excellent work which he has done for the District of Columbia. With unselfish zeal and singleness of heart he devoted a great part of his time to the problems of the Capital City and under his leadership as chairman of the District Committee much sound legislation has been enacted into law. He was a firm believer in home rule for the people of the District of Columbia and for many years advocated their enfranchisement.

No one can speak of EVERETT DIRKSEN without remarking on his eloquence in debate, and I venture to say that there are few people who have even been Members of the House of Representatives with a greater gift of oratory. When he spoke he commanded the attention and respect of all who listened, and it was notable that Members gathered when they knew that he was to address the House.

I personally will miss him more than I can say, because it has been my privilege to work closely with him in the past few years, so I have had an opportunity to measure the full stature of the man. I wish him every success in the days to come, and I hope that his path in the future will lead him back to the Halls of Congress. He is a fine citizen and a great American.

TO AMEND SERVICEMEN'S READJUST-MENT ACT OF 1944

Mr. WOLCOTT. Mr. Speaker, I move to suspend the rules and pass the bill (S. 2790) to amend the Servicemen's Readjustment Act of 1944, as amended, and for other purposes, with an amendment.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER. Is a second demanded.

Mr. SPENCE. Mr. Speaker, I demand

Mr. WOLCOTT. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that a second be considered as ordered.

The SPEAKER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Michigan [Mr. Wolcott] is entitled to 20 minutes, and the gentleman from Kentucky [Mr. Spence] is recognized for 20 minutes.

Mr. McCORMACK. Mr. Speaker, a parliamentary inquiry.
The SPEAKER. The gentleman will

The SPEAKER. The gentleman wil state it.

Mr. McCORMACK. My inquiry is whether or not S. 2790, under suspension of the rules, is the same as S. 2790 reported out of committee.

The SPEAKER. The motion is to suspend the rules and pass the bill with an amendment.

Mr. McCORMACK. I understand that. None of us knows what the amendment contains.

The SPEAKER. The bill has not been read yet.

The Clerk will report the bill and the amendment.

Mr. McCORMACK. I was going to suggest that, or that the gentleman from Michigan state what it contains.

The SPEAKER. The Chair appreciates that. The gentleman is well within his rights.

The Clerk read the bill as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That title III of the National Housing Act, as amended, is hereby amended to read as follows:

"TITLE III—FEDERAL NATIONAL MORTGAGE ASSOCIATION

"CREATION AND POWERS OF THE FEDERAL NATIONAL MORTGAGE ASSOCIATION

"SEC. 301. (a) The Administrator is further authorized and empowered to provide for the establishment of a Federal National Mortgage Association (hereinafter referred to as the 'Association') which shall be authorized, subject to such rules and regulations as may be prescribed by the Association.

SEC. 4. Section 4 of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation Act, as amended, is hereby amended by adding at the end thereof a new subsection reading as follows:

"(h) The Corporation may subscribe for the nonassessable stock of the Federal National Mortgage Association: Provided, That the total face amount of stock so subscribed for and held by the Corporation shall not exceed at any one time $20,000,000."

SEC. 5. The Servicemen's Readjustment Act of 1944, as amended, is hereby amended by inserting immediately after section 510 thereof the following new section:

"INCONTESTABILITY

"SEC. 511. Any evidence of guaranty or insurance issued by the Administrator shall be conclusive evidence of the eligibility of the loan for guaranty or insurance under the provisions of this title and of the amount of such guaranty or insurance, except that nothing in this section shall preclude the Administrator from establishing, as against the original lender, defenses based on fraud or material misrepresentation, and except that the Administrator shall not, by reason of anything contained in this section, be barred from establishing, by regulations in force at the date of such issuance or disbursement, whichever is the earlier, partial defenses to the amount payable on the guaranty or insurance."

SEC. 6. Section 207 (c) (2) of the National Housing Act, as amended, is hereby amended as follows:

(1) By striking out the semicolon and the word "and" at the end of paragraph numbered (2), inserting in lieu thereof a colon, and adding the following new proviso: "And provided further, That, notwithstanding any of the provisions of this paragraph (2), a mortgage with respect to a project of a nonprofit cooperative ownership housing corporation (whose membership consists primarily of veterans of World War II) the permanent occupancy of the dwellings of which is restricted to members of such corporation, or project constructed by a nonprofit corporation (whose membership consists primarily of veterans of World War II) organized for the purpose of construction of homes for members of the corporation, at prices, costs, or charges comparable to the prices, costs, or charges proposed to be charged such mem-bers, may involve a principal obligation in an amount not exceeding 95 per centum of the amount which the Administrator esti-mates will be the value of the project when the proposed improvements are completed; and".

Mr. WOLCOTT. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 10 minutes.

Mr. Speaker, this bill should be helpful in at least two respects. A great many Members have been interested in a secondary market for GI mortgages. We have provided in this bill a secondary market for GI mortgages.

We have provided that the Federal National Mortgage Association, by an expansion of its capital and the number of times that that capital and its surplus may be multiplied, will be available as a secondary market for the sale and purchase of GI mortgages. In order to create this market, we have increased the lending and borrowing authority of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation by an additional $500,000,000, bringing the total of loaning authority of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation up to $2,000,000,000, $840,000,000 of which will be available to the Federal National Mortgage Association as a secondary

At the present time there is something less than $250,000,000 which has been used in this secondary market. In round figures, we have increased the amount of available secondary-market money by $510,000,000.

We provide that this secondary market is available for new paper, for paper issued after April 30, 1948. We provide that the paper may be discounted at par, not 98 percent, as was contained in the original bill that was before the House yesterday. We provide also that not more than 25 percent of a borrower's portfolio of GI paper may be discounted at any one time. So we have created a secondary market which should be of material benefit to the veterans in financing their homes.

Mr. BOGGS of Louisiana. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. WOLCOTT. I yield to the gentleman from Louisiana.

Mr. BOGGS of Louisiana. This market, as I understand, differs fundamentally only in one respect from the so-called Brown amendment in the TEW bill, and that is the effective date; is that correct?

Mr. WOLCOTT. The effective date, yes, I think that is substantially true.

Frankly, I have not the wording and the details of the Brown amendment in mind at present.

Mr. BOGGS of Louisiana. Under the terms of the proposed arrangement no papers could be purchased which were unsecured prior to the enactment of this legislation.

Mr. WOLCOTT. That is right. Thereby we prevent the dumping into this market any part of the $7,000,000,000 GI loans which are now outstanding which would result in the drying up of the secondary market. We also provide that veterans' cooperatives may be or-ganized, and when veterans' cooperatives are organized for the purpose of building properties for veterans, that paper is also eligible for FHA financing and discounting or sale in the secondary market. We have provided for the incontestability of this paper, so that when once it has been sold in the secondary market the validity of the paper cannot be contested. I am firmly of the belief, although we do not go as far as we did in the bill which passed the House, that this bill be of great benefit not only to the veterans, but all others who may build. We have set up in this bill adequate funds for all legitimate transactions. It will be an aid, a very important aid, in the construction this year of over 1,000,000 units.

Mr. MITCHELL. Mr. Speaker, will the

gentleman yield?

Mr. WOLCOTT. I yield to the gentleman from Indiana.

Mr. MITCHELL. The gentleman has stated that 25 percent of the paper in the portfolio in the loaning institutions will be absorbed.

Mr. WOLCOTT. That is a limit that any one financial institution may sell to FNMA.

Mr. MITCHELL. Can the gentleman tell me how many days must elapse before the loaning institution may be able to present more paper in that portfolio?

Mr. WOLCOTT. As soon as any part of their 25 percent is sold by the Federal National Mortgage Association then, of course, they may sell up to 25 percent of their portfolio to replace that which the Federal National Mortgage Association cold of that paper.

Mr. MITCHELL. I wish to state at this point that I feel that this is a great step in the advancement or the potentialities of GI home building. I think that the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. Wolcott] is to be commended upon his great step. I think that the GI's will benefit tremendously by what he contemplates doing here.

Mr. WOLCOTT. I am sure they will, and that is the primary purpose of the legislation.

Mr. JAVITS. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. WOLCOTT. I yield to the gentleman from New York.

Mr. JAVITS. Will the gentleman tell the House whether this is the totality of the housing legislation that we will have before we adjourn?

Mr. WOLCOTT. I could not say.
Mr. BROWN of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. WOLCOTT. I yield to the gentleman from Georgia.

Mr. BROWN of Georgia. What is the rate of service charge; one-half of 1 percent?

Mr. WOLCOTT. I believe so. Mr. BROWN of Georgia. I want to congratulate the gentleman on his endeavors. At one time we did have authority in the RFC to purchase these loans, and that was withdrawn last July, and mighty few veterans in some sections of the country have been able to make loans.

Mr. WOLCOTT. I will say that we appreciate the gentleman's efforts in connection with the secondary market. It seemed an almost insurmountable hurdle. The gentleman has been most cooperative in helping us work out this secondary market for GI loans, and we should give the gentleman from Georgia very much credit for the work which he has done on this, making it possible for us finally to set up this worth-while institution and this worth-while practice which will make it possible for so many veterans to get loans that would not get them otherwise.

Mr. BOGGS of Louisiana, Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. WOLCOTT. I yield to the gentleman from Louisiana.

Mr. BOGGS of Louisiana. Does the proposed bill make any provision for the extension of title VI of FHA?

Mr. WOLCOTT. No. Mr. BOGGS of Louisiana. How does the proposed bill differ from the bill we passed here yesterday?

Mr. WOLCOTT. In respect to the secondary market?

Mr. BOGGS of Louisiana. No, in respect to the titles.

Mr. WOLCOTT. It has to do only with the secondary market, with veterans cooperatives, and incontestability clauses. There is nothing else contained in this bill which was contained in the bill we passed yesterday.

Mr. BOGGS of Louisiana. How are the veterans' cooperatives financed without title VI?

Mr. WOLCOTT. We have made them eligible under title II by this bill.

Mr. BOGGS of Louisiana. In the pending legislation?

Mr. WOLCOTT. In the pending legislation. We have made it clear that the veterans' cooperatives are eligible under title II. Title VI is not continued in this bill. I am hopeful that title VI will be continued, but if title VI is not continued, then veterans' cooperatives may finance their undertakings through title II, which is permanent legislation;

Mr. BOGGS of Louisiana. Are there additional authorizations for title II?

Mr. WOLCOTT. There does not need to be. They have plenty in title II, enough to service all transactions.

Mr. GARY. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. WOLCOTT. I yield to the gentleman from Virginia.

Mr. GARY. Does this contain the provision which was in the bill passed yesterday with reference to the tax bonus or the fast acceleration?

Mr. WOLCOTT. In respect to accelerating the depreciation?

Mr. GARY. Yes.

Mr. WOLCOTT. No, it does not.

Mr. CRAWFORD. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. WOLCOTT. I yield to the gentleman from Michigan.

Mr. CRAWFORD. I wish to inquire with respect to the 25 percent of the portfolio of the lending institutions. Suppose building and loan association A has $100,000 worth of these loans, and it discounts $25,000 worth to the mortgage association, it would then have $75,000. Then suppose it makes another $100,000 of new loans to veterans, would it not be entitled to step in immediately and discount an additional $25,000?

Mr. WOLCOTT. That is my understanding of it; yes.

The SPEAKER. The time of the gentleman from Michigan has expired.

Mr. WOLCOTT. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself two additional minutes.

Mrs. ROGERS of Massachusetts. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. WOLCOTT. I yield to the gentlewoman from Massachusetts.

Mrs. ROGERS of Massachusetts. What is the rate of interest on title II loans?

Mr. WOLCOTT. I am not positive about this but I think the limit on the interest rate on title II financing is 5 Under title VI, if title VI is percent. Under title VI, if title VI is restored, under existing law it is 4 percent. It has been recommended that that be increased to 41/2 or 5.

Mr. SIKES. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. WOLCOTT. I yield to the gentleman from Florida.

Mr. SIKES. As I understand, title VI is definitely eliminated from the bill now before us.

Mr. WOLCOTT. It is not included in this bill.

Mr. SIKES. We all realize that title VI has been of inestimable value in securing housing construction. Is there any way the gentleman foresees that title VI might be added to this bill before its final approval?

Mr. WOLCOTT. I think I know the way title VI financing could be enacted, but unfortunately the legislation must be brought up in the other body by unanimous consent, and there have been objections to the consideration of the legislation in the other body. If the gentleman in the other body who has made the objection would withdraw his objection, then I am reasonably certain that we would have all the very good provisions in the bill the House passed yesterday enacted before we adjourn. Unless he does withdraw his objection, then I am afraid we are not going to get title VI.

Mr. SIKES. It would be extremely unfortunate if we should allow title VI

Mr. WOLCOTT. I quite agree with the gentleman.

Mr. MONRONEY. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. WOLCOTT. I yield.

Mr. MONRONEY. Is there any way, I would like to ask the gentleman, that title 6 can be included, from a parliamentary standpoint, if it leaves the House without being written into the bill (S. 2790) as an amendment. It is not in either the bill from the Senate or the bill of the House, and therefore would not be subject to conference action.

Mr. WOLCOTT. I am not familiar enough with the rules of the Senate to give the gentleman a correct answer.

Mr. MULTER. Mr. Speaker, will the

gentleman yield?
Mr. WOLCOTT. I yield.
Mr. MULTER. Will the gentleman tell us whether or not there are any provisions in this bill for either slum clearance or public housing?

Mr. WOLCOTT. Decidedly not.

Mr. MACK. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. WOLCOTT. I yield.

Mr. MACK. Are any plywood materials involved in this?

Mr. WOLCOTT. No.

Mr. MARCANTONIO. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. WOLCOTT. I yield.

Mr. MARCANTONIO. It is no secret that the gentleman has been conferring with representatives of the other body. Is the gentleman in a position to tell us whether or not this bill, which is similar to the bill that passed yesterday, will receive the same treatment as the other bill, which the gentleman brought to the Senate?

Mr. WOLCOTT. I may say to the gentleman that this bill is similar in only two respects to the bill passed yesterday. I cannot predict what the other body will do with this bill, any more than I can predict what the other body will do with any legislation. We have a job to do here. If we do our job, then we have met our responsibility. I think we have worries enough of our own without worrying about what the other body

Mr. MARCANTONIO. It is the same in respect to the lack of public housing? Mr. WOLCOTT. Decidedly the same in that respect.

Mr. MARCANTONIO. And from the conference the gentleman has had with the Senator, we are receiving no assurance that we are going to get any different treatment on this bill than on the

Mr. WOLCOTT. I think the only way, as I understand it, that public housing can be considered in the Senate is for a Member of the other body to withdraw his objection to the consideration of the House bill. I understand under their rules a motion could then be made to substitute the so-called Taft-Ellender-Wagner bill for the House bill. If the gentleman in the other body persists in his objection, then the other body of course is denied the privilege of voting on whether they shall substitute the Taft-Ellender-Wagner bill for the House bill. We cannot control the action of any individual Member or group of individuals in the other body.

Mr. MARCANTONIO. Does not the gentleman think that if he had yielded in favor of public housing, we would not be here all night? Mr. WOLCOTT. No, I do not think anything of the kind.

Mr. H. CARL ANDERSEN.

Speaker, will the gentleman yield? Mr. WOLCOTT. I yield.

Mr. H. CARL ANDERSEN. Would the gentleman inform me as to this particular case? Several of my little country banks have about $200,000 of this paper today, and have had it for approximately a year. Will this be of any help toward finding a secondary market for that paper?

Mr. WOLCOTT. If they continue to make GI loans under FHA, standards, I understand it will be a decided help to them, but it will be of no help to them in the discounting or sale of any of their existing outstanding GI mortgages.

Mr. H. CARL ANDERSEN. In other words, it is of no help to them in regard to the present paper which they hold.

Mr. WOLCOTT. I could not say that it would be-no.

Mr. SPENCE. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 3 minutes.

Mr. Speaker, the majority party has found itself in a predicament, and this bill is the weak and ineffective substitute for a housing bill that might have met the needs of our veterans and others.

Mr. BOGGS of Louisiana. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. SPENCE. I yield.

Mr. BOGGS of Louisiana. Would the gentleman inform the House as to whether or not he was consulted about this bill which we now have?

Mr. SPENCE. I was not consulted about the bill nor have I any knowledge that any minority member of the committee was consulted. It was not referred to the committee. It was not reported by the committee, and there is no report as to this bill. It is obvious that the Members cannot consider this bill deliberately and with information which it is necessary to have to come to some conclusion.

We have heard a great deal about socialism. The majority has used the cry of socialism as a red herring to cross every trail that leads to progress or to the welfare of the plain people.

When we passed the Federal Reserve Act, it was said that it would socialize our banking system. When we passed the act creating the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, which has protected the depositors and stabilized our banking system, the same cry was raised. The same argument was made against the Railroad Retirement Act and the Social Security Act. But you cannot say that this bill has any element of socialism in it, according to their theory, because it does nothing for the common man. There was a provision in the bill as reported by the Banking and Currency Committee providing for the stimulation of the construction of rental property. By reason of the inadequate supply of housing facilities and the overwhelming demand, there exists today a seller's market. As the supply of housing increases there will necessarily be a depreciation in the prices of houses, and when the demand is finally met there will be a stabilized price level far below that existing at the present time. Consequently, veterans and others who are compelled to buy now, unless they obtain bargain prices, will necessarily run the danger of sustaining a serious loss on their investment. Hence, the necessity of stimulating the construction of rental housing so that many of those who wish to obtain homes may be enabled to wait until the existing high level of prices is reduced as the result of increased production. No provision for rental housing is contained in the bill now presented for your consideration. There is no rural housing in the bill. There is no provision for slum clearance or the clearance of blighted areas in the bill. There is nothing in the bill which the great majority of the American people need. There is nothing to meet the housing situation as it exists today. It is but a pretense of enacting housing legislation as a result of the arbitrary action of the Rules Committee in refusing to grant a rule for the consideration of the bill reported by the Banking and Currency Committee.

I hope you will not be beguiled by this late introduction of this bill which will not accomplish any purpose in the interest of the people of the United States.

The SPEAKER. The time of the gentleman from Kentucky has expired.

Mr. SPENCE. Mr. Speaker, I yield 5 minutes to the gentleman from Oklahoma [Mr. MONRONEY].

Mr. SASSCER. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. MONRONEY. I yield.

Mr. SASSCER. I understood from the explanation made a moment ago that 25 percent rediscount of secondary mortgages of GI loans was allowed. Will the gentleman explain just how that works?

Mr. MONRONEY. That means, if you have $100,000 of GI loans, you can sell $25,000 worth of them to the RFC. That is all you can sell.

Mr. GORE. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. MONRONEY. I yield.

Mr. GORE. Will the gentleman read that section?

Mr. MONRONEY. This is not the identical language, but it is very close

Mr. BOGGS of Louisiana. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. MONRONEY. I yield.
Mr. BOGGS of Louisiana. Do you now the identical section? Do you have the language before you?

Mr. MONRONEY. No. I believe there is only one copy of this bill available, and I do not have that.

Mr. BOGGS of Louisiana. How do you explain the bill? Have you ever

Mr. MONRONEY. I will say to the gentleman that I tried to follow it and correct it in lead pencil as the Clerk read it from the original Wolcott bill that was before us yesterday. One section of that bill is very similar.

Mr. BOGGS of Louisiana. Does the gentleman have the bill before him?

Mr. MONRONEY. No.

Mr. BOGGS of Louisiana. How can the gentleman explain what is in the

Mr. MONRONEY. I am trying to. There is so little in it that it should not be difficult.

Mr. BOGGS of Louisiana. Can the gentleman answer the question that was asked by the gentleman from Maryland [Mr. SASSCER]?

Mr. MONRONEY. After hearing the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. Wol-COTTl explain this, and after having read what he had in the former bill, and after having listened to the clerk carefully as he read the bill, I think I understand that you are going to allow the RFC to buy 25 percent of the portfolio of mortgages that any single investor holds. That is as clear as I can make it, and I believe the chairman will agree with me that that is correct

Mr. WOLCOTT. That is, which they acquired after April 30.

Mr. MONRONEY. Which they acquired after April 30.

the Mr. GORE. Does gentleman mean to say to the House that we are about to enact an important housing bill when not even members of the committee have seen nor now have copies of the bill? I am very interested in and concerned about housing, particularly veterans housing, but this is a most remarkable procedure.

Mr. MONRONEY. That is true. We are however faced with a desperate situation. It is certain that unless the House takes some action now there will be absolutely no money to support any Government-insured mortgage. I do not like this bill. It is 10 times weaker than I want. I would like to see an all-embracing and general housing bill and I have fought for one for several months. The Republican leadership in the House has turned thumbs down. It is now 3:20 a. m. The RFC is almost out of money for supporting the mortgage market. The question now comes: Are you going to enact this little-bitty teeny-weeney piece of housing legislation that might help build housing just a little bit, a very little bit? Or are you going to say, "Well, we are tired, we want to go home, and we are not going to pass even this makeshift microscopic bit of housing aid."

I hope you will pass it, for only by doing so can funds be furnished to the FNMA of the RFC to support Government-insured mortgages that are being issued. I am afraid, however, that the bill is in very bad shape from this standpoint in not bringing in an extension of title 6, and I would like to ask the distinguished chairman how he is going to get to conference with title 6 when it is not under the Senate version of the bill or in his amendment.

Mr. WOLCOTT. This is not a conference report.

Mr. MONRONEY. I realize that, but if I understand the rules of the House a conference is limited to the material that has been passed by the two Houses and you cannot go outside the bounds of what the two Houses have passed and include that in any conference report; it is not possible to do it under our rules.

Mr. WOLCOTT. I doubt very much under the present situation if we could put title 6 on here now. The only way we could get any title 6 financing in this bill would be to have the other body when this bill is sent over there accept the House amendment with an amendment continuing title 6 financing. I do not know whether they will do it or not. If they do it then we can go to conference immediately and then we determine whether we accept the title 6 provision.

Mr. MONRONEY. I understand this is going over under a Senate number. The principal need, as I see it, to make this bill more useful, is to add now the necessary extension of title VI, FHA. This addition, if made, coupled with this support market for GI and FHA loans, would give this bill some degree of substance.

Mr. WOLCOTT. It does.
The SPEAKER. The time of the gentleman from Oklahoma has expired.

Mr. SPENCE. Mr. Speaker, I yield 5 minutes to the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. Buchanan].

Speaker, I Mr. BUCHANAN. Mr. want to say here in the closing hours of this session that I have seen about everything happen in this committee in the past few weeks that I could ever conceive could not happen in an illustrious committee of this House. I have had a lot of esteem and respect for our chairman, but at this late hour to come in here and present a proposition for this House to accept when not until a few moments ago when the Clerk took back on the desk a revised copy of what was read erroneously here at this hour, I cannot conceive anything other than that this is a very shallow and shabby trick. Somebody is on a hook. There is a lot of pressure being applied somewhere. Somebody has been left out in the rain and somebody is putting on the heat.

Mr. BOGGS of Louisiana. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BUCHANAN. I yield to the gentleman from Louisiana.

Mr. BOGGS of Louisiana. Is it not a fact that from the standpoint of the private builders themselves that all of them have considered title 6 to be essen-

Mr.-BUCHANAN. That has been the keynote of all private builders.

And that is exactly what they are trying to get into this bill by subterfuge and trickery. There is a demand for an extension of title VI and until this very night I have coincided with the chairman in his opposition to including sections 501 and 502 of the Veterans Readjustment Act. In June of 1947 the secondary market provision was stricken out of the RFC bill in its extension. Then in the hearings on the original Wolcott bill reported out by our committee, H. R. 6841, it included only section 505 loans under the Veterans Readjustment Act. includes sections 501 and 502 and until this very point the chairman has always been a consistent opponent of including these two titles, until the gentleman from Georgia [Mr. Brown] of the committee included those in his amendment and it was reported out by the committee as H. R. 6888. That is the bill on which we tacked four amendments in the committee and it has been bottled up in the Rules Committee.

Mr. BOGGS of Louisiana. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BUCHANAN. I yield to the gentleman from Louisiana.

Mr. BOGGS of Louisiana. To the gentleman's knowledge, has there been any opposition in the committee to the extension of title VI?

Mr. BUCHANAN. There never has been any opposition; in fact, we have passed two pieces of legislation covering title VI. There was H. R. 5854 for $2,-000,000,000, which is on the other side at the present time. The chairman has said this could be tacked on if the other side sees fit. But the point I want to make is that at this late hour somebody is trying to get out of being left out in the rain. They are going to come out and go down to Philadelphia next week to their convention and say: "The House passed a housing bill. The House passed two housing bills. The House passed three housing bills." And they are going to blame it on somebody somewhere for not going along with what has been passed on this side.

Mr. McCORMACK. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BUCHANAN. I yield to the gentleman from Massachusetts.

Mr. McCORMACK. There is a very strong rumor floating around here that the committee on platform of the Republican convention sent word up here that the Republicans should not adjourn until some bill with the word "housing" in it is passed.

Mr. BUCHANAN. There is that rumor, which I have heard. I also am reminded to check a housing plank in the 1944 Republican platform. It contained this statement:

We pledge our support of a stimulation of State and local plans to provide decent lowcost housing, properly financed by the Federal Housing Administration or otherwise when such housing cannot be supplied or financed by private sources.

The SPEAKER. The time of the gentleman from Pennsylvania has expired.

Mr. SPENCE. Mr. Speaker, I yield the gentleman two additional minutes.

Mr. BUCHANAN. Mr. Speaker, that is what we are going to expect, a breach of promise, a breach of faith, a breach of a statement, I think this gesture we are going into at this very late hour is a futile, shallow gesture.

Mr. BOGGS of Louisiana, Mr. Speak-er, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BUCHANAN. I yield to the gentleman from Louisiana.

Mr. BOGGS of Louisiana. Does the gentleman have the bill we are considering before him?

Mr. BUCHANAN. I do not, and just a few moments ago I walked to the Clerk's desk and asked to see a copy of it. I wanted to read again what is in section 2. I am familiar with what is in section 1.

Mr. BOGGS of Louisiana. I wonder if the gentleman would mind if I called his attention to one very significant thing. This bill is S. 2790. It was reported by the Committee on Labor and Education of the Senate. Has the Committee on Labor and Education of the Senate ever considered housing legislation?

Mr. BUCHANAN. Not to my knowl-

Mr. BOGGS of Louisiana. If we pass this legislation and have to go to conference, would we have a conference between the House Banking and Currency Committee and the Committee on Labor and Education on this bill?

Mr. BUCHANAN. That is a puzzle I cannot answer. I do not think anybody else can unravel that riddle at this late hour either.

Mrs. DOUGLAS. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BUCHANAN. I yield to the gentlewoman from California.

Mrs. DOUGLAS. The section the gen-tleman just read from the Republican platform is so interesting. I would like to ask a question. Would the gentleman call it, in the terms of the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. Wolcott], socialistic?

Mr. BUCHANAN. Very much so, if the testimony that he offered before the Committee on Rules is taken as a basis for comparison. The platform plank in the Republican platform of 1944 is clearly the very feature that our chairman has objected to so strenuously.

The SPEAKER. The time of the gentleman from Pennsylvania has expired.

Mr. SPENCE, Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Texas [Mr. Combs].

Mr. COMBS. Mr. Speaker, let me say just this: We are presented here at 3:30 in the morning with what is proposed to be an important housing bill that no committee worked out and nobody can now read because there is no such printed bill in existence. We have found out enough about it to know that it provides no slum clearance or housing of that nature. There is no title VI insurance which has produced most of the housing that we have, and there is no GI loan discount provision that is worth anything. In short, this bill is nothing; it is a phony.

Farm people and ex-soldiers living in rural areas have never received the benefit of loans to build homes and improve their farms. The difficulty in the small communities and the rural areas, in particular, is this: the financial institutions that make GI loans, the little country banks and small financial institutions. cannot carry this long-time paper in any quantity. They need a secondary market through RFC. The bill reported by the Committee on Banking and Currency would have taken care of that. Now then, under this phony bill the little bank will have to carry 75 percent of every loan it makes permanently. It cannot do that. It cannot put its depositors' money into that kind of long-time paper. Hence, this bill offers no relief at all to the rural GI's and people in the communities where they can only finance through these institutions. We have repeatedly offered an amendment authorizing-not compelling-the RFC to make these rediscounts. The bank then could make arrangements with the RFC to carry the loans and thus get some housing built for people in the rural areas. Under this bill they cannot do it because, as I have said, the small institutions cannot handle the paper. You might as well refuse all aid to farm-home buildings as to make the banks carry 75 percent of it. This bill ought to be defeated.

Mr. WOLCOTT, Mr. Speaker, I yield

1 minute to the gentleman from California [Mr. FLETCHER].

Mr. FLETCHER. Mr. Speaker, ant to divide this housing question into three phases which I think are most important from a legislative point of view.

Private housing, which has been going at a record pace; public housing, which is in reality political housing; and, veterans' housing, which we are considering at this moment in the amended Senate bill S. 2790. If the public housing advocates had not tried to shove down our throats political housing in order to get private housing, we would have had both phases of housing stand on their own merits and we could have passed one or the other or both. If we pass this veterans' housing bill, it will be a great help to the veterans, and we have a moral obligation to take care of veterans' housing promised under the GI bill of rights. I strongly urge the House to pass this bill.

Mr. SPENCE. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. McCormack].

Mr. McCORMACK. Mr. Speaker. this is the most unusual procedure that I have ever witnessed in my 20 years as a Member of the House to have a bill submitted under these conditions at this time in a mad effort to deceive the people in the coming campaign that they put through some kind of legislation relating to housing. This bill illustrates what should have been done the other day. If the gentleman from Michigan was sincere in trying to bring about legislation of some kind, he would have called the Senate bill from the Speaker's table and moved to strike out all after the enacting clause and sent it to conference. Then the conferees could have worked and agreed on a bill, or agreed to strike out certain parts of either bill, if there was a majority of the conferees of both branches that agreed to striking them 'out. This is nothing but an effort to try to bail out this Republican Party in its convention and to support the Committee on Resolutions and Platform in its effort to put something in with regard to housing. They are not going to deceive the public.

There are jeers from the Republican side. They have been trying to deceive the public the same as they did in 1946, but this time they cannot do it. That is the spirit; that is the spirit of defiance of the will of the people, the spirit of arrogance in relation to representing the people. That is all they have been having for 2 years in this body, complete defiance of the will of the people. The Republicans applaud that statement that they have been defying the will of the people. Not one piece of legislation has passed this body that has been in the best interest of the people. The real estate lobby has not only controlled the preparation of legislation but has prevented the Taft-Ellender-Wagner bill from coming up in this body. This is one of the big issues of the coming cam-

The more noise you make, the more music it is to my ears.

Mr. WOLCOTT. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. SMITH].

Mr. SMITH of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, I just want to make clear to the Members one point, namely, title VI of the FHA act has been passed twice by this House and sent to the Senate. If you want to scold somebody for not passing title VI, do not scold Members of the lower House, scold those of the Senate.

Mr. WOLCOTT. Mr. Speaker, I yield the balance of the time to the gentleman from California [Mr. NIXON]. Mr. NIXON. Mr. Speaker, I think it is understandable that in the closing minutes of this Congress, with the time now reading 20 minutes to 4, there is a tendency on the part of the Members who are addressing the House to confuse the issue which is before us. The statement has been made concerning this bill that it represents an attempt to convince the people that it is an effective housing bill when actually it is not.

Mr. RAYBURN. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield? Mr. NIXON. I yield.

Mr. RAYBURN. I trust that my side of the House does not make a spectacle of themselves while the gentleman from California [Mr. NIXON] is speaking, like the other side did when the distinguished gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. Mc-CORMACK] was speaking.

Mr. NIXON. I thank the gentleman from Texas.

Mr. Speaker, the statement has also been made that the purpose of this bill is to save face for the Republican Party in developing its platform in Philadelphia.

Mr. BOGGS of Louisiana. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. NIXON. I yield.

Mr. BOGGS of Louisiana. Is the gentleman a member of the Committee on Banking and Currency?

Mr. NIXON. No; but the gentleman will see in a moment why I am speaking on this bill.

Mr. BOGGS of Louisiana. Has the gentleman read this bill?

Mr. NIXON. Yes; I might explain to the gentleman that I have a particular interest in this bill because I introduced a similar bill in the House providing a secondary market for GI loans.

Mr. Speaker, the statement has even been made that this bill is unimportant and that it would be useless in meeting the housing problem.

Let us analyze this problem to see whether these changes have any merit. The real reason Members have made these derogatory statements in regard to this bill is that they would rather have had the Taft-Ellender-Wagner bill, with its slum-clearance and other public-housing provisions. That is understandable. I realize the resentment Members feel when the particular type of bill they want does not pass and another which they consider inadequate is substituted for it.

In that connection I think it should be pointed out, however, that one-of the most publicized features of the Taft-Ellender-Wagner bill is that it is primarily in the interest of veterans. As a result a number of veterans' organizations have endorsed the Taft-Ellender-Wagner bill. I should like to read to the membership of the House at this time a statement made by Senator TAFT, one of the authors of the Taft-Ellender-Wagner bill, on the floor of the other body yesterday in relation to the bill before us. You will see from hearing this statement why this bill is vitally important to the veterans' housing program.

I quote:

Mr. TAFT. It seemed wise to have this bill passed. The most serious check on housing today apparently is the piling up of GI loans in the banks. This bill provides a secondary market for GI housing loans. There is such a provision, on a rather more elaborate scale, in the Taft-Ellender-Wagner bill; but we are not certain whether that bill will be enacted.

Now get this:

I think this particular feature is the most important feature, certainly to veterans, of that bill-

That is the Taft-Ellender-Wagner bill. In other words, Mr. Speaker, Senator TAFT, a coauthor of the Taft-Ellender-Wagner bill, has categorically stated that the bill we are considering tonight is, as far as veterans are concerned, the most important feature of the Taft-Ellender-Wagner bill. I think this statement by the distinguished Senator from Ohio clearly shows the importance of this bill. particularly as it applies to veterans.

Mr. KLEIN. Mr. Speaker, there is this much to be said about this-shall I call this a housing bill? The term is a misnomer.

But I started to say that there is this to be said about it: Since the Republican Party has refused to raise a roof for America, I certainly hope and expect that America will raise the roof with the Republicans.

I cannot say what I think of the compromise brought back from conference, or of the procedures by which this pathetic decision was arrived at, and stay within the bounds prescribed by comity.

I can, however, repeat what I said yesterday: That this action proves the complete demoralization of majority leadership as between the two Houses.

It proves that the Republican Party is without a head, and without a heartand the American people without a home.

The SPEAKER. The question is on suspending the rules and passing the bill.

The question was taken; and (twothirds having voted in favor thereof) the rules were suspended, and the bill was passed.

EXTENSION OF REMARKS

Mr. KEFAUVER asked and was given permission to extend his remarks in three instances in the RECORD.

HON. ELLSWORTH BUCK

Mr. REED of New York. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to address the House for 5 minutes.

The SPEAKER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

There was no objection.

Mr. REED of New York. Mr. Speaker. it requires a great deal of courage to address the House at 5 a. m. I never expected in all my life to stand on the floor of the greatest legislative body in the world to perform a very pleasant task, which I shall discharge in a few moments, at this hour in the day.

There have been some very kind things said here tonight about retiring Members, and I endorse everything that has been said about each of those who have announced that they are retiring from

I, for one, and I know others feel the same way, am sorry to see them go.

There is one man retiring from the Congress, however, who has not been mentioned. I want to make this statement, that no man is worth more than he contributes to the social and civic life of the Nation to which he owes allegiance. Measured by that yardstick, the gentleman to whom I shall refer is a very wealthy man. He is one of the New York State Members. I refer to Hon. Ells-worth Buck. He has served in this House two terms, and he has established a name for himself as a fine constructive legislator. The New York delegation, and I believe it is true of the House, are proud of the record of this distinguished gentleman and able statesman.

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. Speaker, will the

gentleman yield?

Mr. REED of New York. I yield. Mr. KENNEDY. We on the Democratic side have had an opportunity to serve on the Labor Committee with the gentleman from New York [Mr. Buck], and we all regret that he is going into retirement, because he was a credit to that great committee.

Mr. REED of New York. There never was a time in the history of this Nation when we needed men in this House of the fine nobility, experience, and character as that of the gentleman from New York, ELLSWORTH BUCK.

Now that he is leaving us, I hope that he and his lovely family will have many happy, pleasant, and prosperous years. I hope, too, that he will return from time to time and give us the inspiration of his presence and his fine character. I speak of him with great personal affection. I shall always cherish the memory of having served with him here in this House.

Mr. LYNCH. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. REED of New York. I yield.

Mr. LYNCH. Mr. Speaker, as one of the members of the Democratic delegation from the city of New York, I wish to say that ELLSWORTH BUCK is one of the finest gentlemen that I have ever met. I have known him for several years, since he came here to Congress. I knew him before by reputation. He has been one of the outstanding men in our community. When I, as a Democrat, praise a Republican, I want you to know that the praise is deep-seated and most sincere.

ELLSWORTH BUCK turned a district that was Democratic for years into, unfortunately, a Republican district. did that because of his own personality. He did that because of his devotion to public service. That public service began before he became a Member of this

He was appointed as a member of the board of education in the city of New York and served on that board which has to do with the education of millions of children in our city. After a distinguished service as a member of that board he was finally appointed president of the board of education. I, as a Democrat, want to say that Mr. Buck discharged the duties of that office faith-fully and well and I am sincerely sorry that he has decided to leave us, because. although we have differed on almost every vote in this Congress he has represented as he saw fit the people of his district. He has been returned time after time since his first election by reason of his stanch integrity, by reason of the fact that he believed that Staten Island and lower New York had confidence in him. I am sorry to see him retire.

Mr. REED of New York. I want to thank the gentleman. I endorse his remarks. I especially want to thank him for letting us know that Ellsworth Buck had the ability to turn a Democratic district into a Republican district. Now we know what to do with Mr. ELLS-WORTH BUCK, we will send him out doing missionary service for the Republican cause in the Democratic districts of the country.

Mr. JACKSON of Washington. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. REED of New York. I yield. Mr. JACKSON of Washington. It was my privilege to have served with the distinguished gentleman from New York during the Seventy-ninth Congress as a member of the Merchant Marine Committee. I have never known a more sincere or capable man than Ellsworth Buck. We all wish him well.

Mr. JAVITS. Mr. Speaker, will the

gentleman yield?

Mr. REED of New York. I yield.

Mr. JAVITS. I want to add my tribute to the others which have been paid so graciously to my fellow townsman, ELLSWORTH BUCK. I have learned one thing about Ellsworth, that he makes very short speeches, and I would like to make a short one about him and I would like it to ring as true as I can make it ring: ELLSWORTH BUCK is an honest man.

Mr. BONNER. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. REED of New York. I yield.

Mr. BONNER. Mr. Speaker, it was my pleasure to serve with Mr. Buck on the Merchant Marine Committee. As chairman of the Subcommittee on the Panama Canal he accompanied me on an investigation to the Canal. I do not know of anyone who attended to his duties more diligently and more thoroughly than the gentleman from New York. It is a great regret to me personally to hear that he is leaving Congress. He is a fine gentleman, he is an honest statesman, and he is a true friend to any man who may have the privilege of his friendship. I regret his leaving this body.

Mr. KERSTEN of Wisconsin. ily endorse the statements of the other gentleman with regard to Ellsworth Buck. It happens that for most of the period of this Congress his office was immediately next to mine and many a time I went into his office for counsel and received good counsel. Many a time I walked over to the Labor Committee where I sat next to him and noticed his wisdom in so many things, and in the most difficult ones, labor relations, he brought a great deal of wisdom. He was able to see both sides of a question.

As I understand it, Mr. Buck is now going to spend a considerable amount of time in my own State, the State of Wisconsin, where he has a home also. I certainly hope that he will stay there a great deal of the year.

Mr. MARCANTONIO. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. REED of New York. I yield. Mr. MARCANTONIO. I join with my other colleagues in paying a personal tribute to Ellsworth Buck. I know I am expressing the sentiment of every Member of this House in wishing to him long life and happiness.

Mr. POTTS. Mr. Speaker, will the

gentleman yield?

Mr. REED of New York. I yield.

Mr. POTTS. Mr. Speaker, I wish to endorse the grand tributes which have been paid to ELLSWORTH BUCK here tonight. I recall when Mr. Buck won the special election in Staten Island and the lower part of New York. He has rendered most valuable service in his work in the House of Representatives and we are sorry to see him leave. Since coming to the Eightieth Congress I got to know him quite well. I know that in the early days of the first session he was a tremendous help to me, as he was to all the new Members who came down here from New York. I want to thank him and to pay this tribute to a very fine man.

Mr. REED of New York. I thank the gentleman.

Mr. COLE of Missouri. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. REED of New York. I yield to the gentleman from Missouri.

Mr. COLE of Missouri. I would like to add a word of commendation for my good friend, Ellsworth Buck. I have not served on any committees with him, but since he first came to the House most every day I have sat next to him in the second row of the middle tier of seats of the House. The Doorkeeper of the House once said to me, "We are always able to find the gentleman from New York [Mr. Buck] in the center seat on the second row of the middle tier when the House is in session."

The State of New York is losing an excellent Representative. The House is losing an able legislator. We shall miss you, Ellsworth, so I hope you will visit us often.

Mr. HALE. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. REED of New York. I yield to the gentleman from Maine.

Mr. HALE. Mr. Speaker, I want to point out that it is entirely unjust for the State of New York to take all of the credit for the gentleman from New York [Mr. Buck]. The fact is that the gentleman, or at least his family, originated in the town of Buckfield, in my district, and it is only by the merest chance that he is not representing my district instead of his own. My association with the gentleman has been so extremely pleasant and my admiration for him has been so hearty that I testify to it on this occasion.

Mr. Speaker, I Mr. AUCHINCLOSS. wish to join with my colleagues in paying my respects and appreciation of the fine character of the Honorable Ellsworth

B. Buck, who is retiring from Congress at the end of this session.

It is hard for the Congress to lose a man of his abilities and background because our great Republic needs him. All his life he has been devoted to the service of his fellow citizens and he has brought to his work an attitude and a brilliance of mind which has made a lasting impression on our system of government. His humility and his charm and gentleness are only exceeded by his loyalty and deep-seated affection for the principles of democracy and he has been a constant inspiration to those of us who have had the privilege of serving with him.

He has been brave and courageous in times of deep sorrow and he has shown his courage by always standing for what he thinks is right and just. I trust that the days ahead will be filled with the good things of life for him and his family, but I am selfish enough to hope that he may return from time to time to visit us who may still be in Congress so we may renew our faith in the high principles he stands

The SPEAKER. The time of the gen-tleman from New York has expired.

HON. GEORGIA L. LUSK

Mrs. DOUGLAS. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to address the House for 1 minute.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentlewoman from California?

There was no objection.

Mrs. DOUGLAS. Mr. Speaker, I do not think any of us would want to leave here tonight without expressing our very real and very deep regret at not having the gentlewoman from New Mexico [Mrs. Lusk] as a Member of the next

I have enjoyed working with the gentlewoman of New Mexico [Mrs. Lusk] very much and I appreciate the real intelligence, sincerity, and dignity she has brought to the Congress of the United States. She has demonstrated her capacity for service in the public interest. This Gold-Star Mother and outstanding Congresswoman from the great State of New Mexico will be missed by the many of her sincere friends and this body.

Mrs. LUSK. Mr. Speaker, I am not sure this is in order, but since the gentlewoman from California has been so gracious to me, I would like for all of you to know that I certainly have enjoyed my very brief experience here with you. I do not intend for it to be my last visit. I hope to return. And I wish for all of you the compensation you deserve for your untiring perseverance in your work.

Mr. HUBER. Mr. Speaker, will the gentlewoman yield?

Mrs. DOUGLAS. I yield to the gentleman from Ohio.

Mr. HUBER. I have had the extreme pleasure of serving on the great Veterans' Affairs Committee of this House with the gentlewoman from New Mexico [Mrs. LUSK]. I treasure the many contributions that she has made to the committee and I hope sincerely she will come back and give the House the benefit of her knowledge and experience.

Mr. RANKIN. Mr. Speaker, will the gentlewoman yield?

Mrs. DOUGLAS. I vield to the gentleman from Mississippi.

Mr. RANKIN. I want to endorse what has been said about the distinguished lady from New Mexico [Mrs. Lusk]. She is one of the few, probably the only, Gold-Star Mother in the Congress. She gave a son to this war.

I have served on the committee with her even since she has been in Congress. I want to say that her departure is a great loss to the Congress of the United

Mr. LUCAS. Mr. Speaker, will the gentlewoman yield?

Mrs. DOUGLAS. I yield to the gentleman from Texas.

Mr. LUCAS. We from the neighboring State of Texas are pleased with the kind of representation that the gentlewoman from New Mexico [Mrs. Lusk] has given her State in this body, and we regret exceeding that she is leaving. She has a charming personality, and we will miss her keenly in the next Congress.

Mr. BECKWORTH. Mr. Speaker, will

the gentlewoman yield?

Mrs. DOUGLAS. I yield to the gentleman from Texas.

Mr. BECKWORTH. I simply want to say of the gentlewoman we all regret to see Mrs. Lusk leave the Congress; she is a very able and distinguished lady and has contributed much to her own State and to this great Nation.

No one in the Congress has done more for veterans then she. She has taken the lead in regard to the passage of a number of veterans' measures. the House approved finally legislation to aid a group of veterans, former prisoners of war who suffered inhumane treatment as prisoners of the Japanese and Germans. A number of the POW's are from New Mexico. As one who has worked for almost 3 years in behalf of legislation to aid this group, I can say Mrs. Lusk has worked diligently and constantly and effectively in their behalf. In Mrs. Lusk, the former prisoners of war have had a great champion and leader in behalf of legislation to help them.

Mr. RAYBURN. Mr. Speaker, will the gentlewoman yield?

Mrs. DOUGLAS. I yield to the gentleman from Texas.

Mr RAYBURN. Mr. Speaker, I have served in the House with a lot of gentle people; a lot of fine people; a lot of people of high fundamental character. But, I have never served with one who lived up to all of those high standards more and better than this very gentlewoman from New Mexico [Mrs. Lusk].

Mrs. DOUGLAS. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may be permitted to extend their remarks at this point in the RECORD.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentlewoman from California?

There was no objection.

Mr. DINGELL. Mr. Speaker, in all the years of my service in the House of Representatives I have never come in contact with a finer, more personable character than Georgia Lusk. has proved her ability from the outset and has devoted her talents to the benefit of her constituency.

Her service was not limited to her own State, because her vision extended far and beyond the ordinary horizon. She mastered her work and performed more than was expected of her at all times. The House of Representatives will have become impoverished because of her departure. New Mexico will long seek to fill the void caused by her retirement. We wish her Godspeed.

Mr. FERNANDEZ. Mr. Speaker, the many fine things which have been said on the floor about my colleague from New Mexico [Mrs. Lusk] are well deserved. She is held in just as high esteem throughout our fair State. It has been my privilege to campaign with her and for her on many occasions, and it has been a pleasure to serve with her in this Congress, always in the closest cooperation. My friendship and esteem for her has been increased by the memory of our happy association here in the service of our State, and I look forward to her return again to this House where she has served so well and so faithfully.

Mr. McCORMACK. Mr. Speaker, I join with former Speaker RAYBURN in his fitting and touching tribute to Mrs. Lusk. She leaves here with the regret of her colleagues and with the respect of all of us. In leaving, Mrs. Lusk carries with her the kindest regards of all of her colleagues and I hope that her departure from public service will be short.

Mrs. BOLTON. Mr. Speaker, it is with great regret that I speak of the departure from our midst of the Honorable Georgia L. Lusk of Santa Fe, N. Mex. Mrs. Lusk came to the Eightieth Congress with a very fine background of public service. She has made a very real contribution quietly and with great dignity. A Gold Star Mother, her service on the Committee on Veterans' Affairs has been constructive and from her heart. Being of different political faith we have our differences, of course, she and I, but on the fundamental things of life we are in deep agreement.

This is true of women, Mr. Speaker, which makes it possible for us to bring to public service a capacity for understanding that should be of real value not only to our Government but to the perplexing problems of the world of today.

So I would say to my colleague on the Democratic side of the aisle that I shall miss her and that I hope for her all the good things of life. She has brought something fine into this Chamber. I trust that she takes back with her a sense of comradeship of all the House, not just of those of her own political faith.

Good luck to you, Georgia!

HON. OVERTON BROOKS

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Florida [Mr. SIKES].

Mr. SIKES. Mr. Speaker, for 12 years the House has been privileged to enjoy the fine friendship, the splendid ability and the great services of the gentleman from Louisiana, the Honorable OVERTON Brooks. On the Committee on Military Affairs, subsequently the Committee on the Armed Services, and in the House of Representatives, he has been a faithful servant of the people; one of the hardest workers in Congress; and a Member who in his quiet, sincere, and able way has contributed much to the Congress and to the Nation. He is leaving us after this term. I know that all of you join me in wishing him Godspeed in whatever he may undertake in the years ahead. We shall miss him and his good work, but he can take pride in the fact that the fruits of that work will live on long after he has left this great legislative body.

Mr. BECKWORTH. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. SIKES. I yield to the gentleman from Texas.

Mr. BECKWORTH. Mr. Speaker, it so happens that I have been privileged to represent a district which is adjacent to the district represented by the gentleman from Louisiana [Mr. Brooks]. In the decade that he and I have served here together I have had occasion to counsel with him and to discuss problems that have related to our specific area. I certainly concur in what the gentleman from Florida has stated, that there has never been a more diligent worker or a more sincere legislator than the gentleman from Louisiana [Mr. Brooks]. As one of the high-ranking members of the Committee on Military Affairs and of the Committee on Armed Services, he as every Member of this House knows, had a commanding part in helping to pass all the legislation that has been designed to strengthen and keep strong this Nation.

Further, he has done a great deal with reference to aiding servicemen and their dependents. Beyond that, also, he has worked diligently for all the projects that have related to the rivers and streams in his area.

Mr. SASSCER. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

I yield to the gentleman Mr. SIKES.

from Maryland.

Mr. SASSCER. Briefly I have served on the House Committee on Armed Services with the distinguished gentleman from Louisiana and have observed him to be a conscientious legislator and a man of such great capacity that I am sure will be utilized by his State in the more embracive field which he has entered.

Mr. LYNCH. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. SIKES. I yield to the gentleman from New York.

When I first came here Mr. LYNCH. in 1940, one of the first Members of the House whom I met was the Honorable OVERTON BROOKS. Since that time I have had occasion to confer with him on various matters of legislation. I have been benefited by his sound advice. I am sorry to see him leave the House of Representatives, and I wish him all success in his future life.

Mr. O'TOOLE. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. SIKES. I yield to the gentleman from New York.

Mr. O'TOOLE. I do agree with him that the men about whom he has been speaking have given great service to this House and great service to the Nation.

We are all sorry to see them leave. Mr. SIKES. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may be permitted to extend their remarks in the RECORD on the services of the gentleman from Louisiana [Mr. Brooks].

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Florida?

There was no objection. Mr. GATHINGS. Mr. Speaker, Over-TON BROOKS and I served together on the Military Affairs Committee. It was a distinct privilege working with him on that committee. He was attentive, energetic, and most capable. He was instrumental in the passage of many bills which have assisted in the defense of the Nation.

He worked tirelessly for flood control and river and harbor projects. He will be greatly missed.

Mr. BECKWORTH. Mr. Speaker, the congressional district I have the honor to represent joins the district of Hon. Over-TON BROOKS who represents the Shreveport, La., district. Because of the similarity of our districts and their problems, Representative Brooks and L have had a very close relationship as fellow Members of Congress and friends in the last decade.

I personally know that Representative Brooks had diligently, faithfully, and energetically represented the people of his district and area. No Member of the House works harder than he in behalf of his people. Moreover, as one of the high-ranking members of the Military Affairs Committee and now of the Armed Services Committee, he has had a major part in formulating much of the important legislation which has passed the Congress in the last decade, legislation designed to strengthen and keep strong this country and legislation designed to help soldiers and their dependents. Furthermore, he has ever led the fight in behalf of the flood-control projects in his area.

The contributions made by Representative Brooks to the welfare of his country as an able, conscientious, competent, and constructive legislator will always be recognized.

We his colleagues shall always miss him and we wish for him, his wife and daughter every happiness and success in the future.

HON. JAMES GALLAGHER, HON. E. WAL-LACE CHADWICK, HON. JAMES P. SCO-BLICK, AND HON, MITCHELL JENKINS

Mr. GRAHAM. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to address the House for 1 minute

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Pennsylvania?

There was no objection.

Mr. GRAHAM. Mr. Speaker, the Pennsylvania delegation will miss four of our Members who will not be with us after tonight, the Honorable JAMES GAL-LAGHER, of Philadelphia; the Honorable E. WALLACE CHADWICK, of Chester; the Honorable James P. Scoblick, of Scranton; and the Honorable MITCHELL JEN-KINS, of Wilkes-Barre.

We in Pennsylvania have been remarkably favored in the fact that we have had 28 Members in the Republican delegation from our State. We have a very friendly contact due to the fact that we hold weekly meetings when we meet to discuss the problems that confront us. In this close association we have come to know, to respect, and to admire these men who are about to leave us. It is true that the tenure of office of some has been very short and rather I refer particularly to the Honorable E. WALLACE CHADWICK, who served with me on the Committee on the Judiciary. I know all of you who were present the few times Mr. CHADWICK has entered the well of this House were impressed with his remarkable ability, his courage, his deep conviction, and his high sense of responsibility to the office which he fills.

The other gentlemen have served on other committees. Therefore, speaking in behalf of the remaining Members of the Pennsylvania delegation, we wish them every success. We trust as they go to their respective vocations, back to their homes, their lives will be filled with every success and that they will treasure and remember their present associations here

Mr. Speaker, as the Republican Convention opens in Philadelphia Monday morning, we will welcome you there, too, along with these other good people.

EXTENSION OF REMARKS

Mr. REED of New York. Mr. Speaker, so many Members have requested an opportunity to pay tribute to the gentleman from New York [Mr. Buck] I ask unanimous consent that they may have that privilege of extending their remarks in the RECORD during the next 5 days.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New York?

There was no objection.

HON. VIRGIL CHAPMAN

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Kentucky SPENCE 1.

Mr. SPENCE. Mr. Speaker, I know the Kentucky delegation and his many other friends in the House will learn with profound regret that Hon. VIRGIL CHAPMAN, who is the dean of the Kentucky delegation and who has served in the House of Representatives longer than any Democrat in the history of Kentucky, will voluntarily retire at the end of this session of the Congress. Mr. CHAPMAN is held in the deepest affection by the Members and by the citizens of his district. He could remain here as a Representative in Congress as long as he desires. He represents the old Ashland district of Kentucky which was represented by Henry Clay. It is an historic district. It has produced in a small area in the center of Kentucky, carpeted with bluegrass over a limestone strata for its soil. more fast horses than any other section of the world.

VIRGIL CHAPMAN is a man of fine ability. He is an able legislator, and for many years served on the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce where he rendered valuable service to State and Nation. I am sure all of the Members who know him and who have a profound respect for him will wish him Godspeed and success and happiness in his retirement from the House.

Mr. PRIEST. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. SPENCE. I yield.

Mr. PRIEST. Mr. Speaker, I wish to join with the distinguished gentleman from Kentucky and other Members who have expressed a very sincere appreciation of the services of VIRGIL CHAPMAN in the House of Representatives, and in expressing extreme regret that he is leaving this body. It was my pleasure to serve on the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce with him for some years. I know the very valuable work he has done on that committee, particularly in the field of public health and with reference to the Pure Food and Drug Act. He has rendered very valuable legislative service to the entire Nation in those fields. I am sure we all join with you in wishing him well.

Mr. O'TOOLE. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. SPENCE. I yield.

Mr. O'TOOLE. Mr. Speaker, I had the privilege of serving with the gentleman from Kentucky [Mr. CHAPMAN] on the same committee. I also had the further privilege of having him as my next door neighbor. I have never found anyone in the Congress so helpful. He would come in and consult with me on my problems when I was a young man here, and he showed me the way many and many a time. I hope that whatever course he follows will be a course which brings him much happiness. He deserves it. He is a good neighbor, a good Congressman, and a fine friend.

Mr. CHELF. Mr. Speaker, within the next 24 hours the Eightieth Congress plans to adjourn. When the Speaker's gavel falls upon the conclusion of the second session of this Congress, we shall lose by voluntary retirement our able and distinguished friend and colleague, the Honorable VIRGIL CHAPMAN, of the Sixth Congressional District of Kentucky, who for more than the past two decades has represented the great blue-grass section of our beloved Commonwealth. VIRGIL CHAPMAN has been the champion of the tobacco farmer, not only in Kentucky but throughout the Nation. His name is synonymous with all tobacco legislation which has been enacted into law; not only has he fought for the passage of tobacco bills which were helpful to our tobacco farmers but he has vigorously and courageously championed all farm legislation. He has worked hard in the interest of REA, soil conservation, the school-lunch program, flood control, FHA, and many, many other types of laws which sought to make farm life more profitable, more enjoyable, a little brighter, and easier.

For me just to say that our colleague has supported legislation in the interest of the farmer and the people of Kentucky would be a misnomer because, by support, I mean that the able Representative from the Sixth Congressional District not only drafted and introduced bills but he appeared before subcommittees of the House and testified in their behalf. He spearheaded the fight before the full committee in order to secure favorable consideration and when the bill was called up before the House on the calendar he would address the House on the floor in its interest and would later talk to individual Members, soliciting their vote and active support. He has worked long hours day after day in meetings made up of farmers, tobacco growers, warehousemen, tobacco Congressmen from various States, and other interested parties, in order that all groups might be unanimous and solidly behind a given tobacco bill. In my opinion, there is no man in the entire House of Representatives who has done more for the farmers of Kentucky and the Nation during his tenure of office.

The voluntary retirement of VIRGIL CHAPMAN from his seat in the House means that we shall lose the most aggressive, the most outstanding, the most capable, and the most learned tobacco Representative in the lower Chamber.

Mr. BATES of Kentucky. Mr. Speaker, a little more than 10 years ago I arrived in Washington to begin my duties as a Member of Congress. My friend and colleague Virgil Chapman escorted me down this aisle to be sworn in. He has been my friend continuously throughout the years, and it is with affectionate appreciation of his friendly helpfulness that I speak today. He has been a most valuable Member of Congress serving his constituency well and faithfully. His service to the farmers in Kentucky, especially the tobacco farmers, has been of untold value to the farmers and the State in general. Much of the prosperity existing in the agricultural sections of Kentucky today is due to his farseeing wisdom and untiring efforts. He is leaving the House of Representatives to embark in a larger field of service, and he carries with him the best wishes of his many friends on this side of the Capitol.

Mr. GREGORY. Mr. Speaker, during the time I have had the honor to serve in this House, many Members have come and gone. We have lost many valuable Members through death, the spin of the political wheel of fortune, by promotions to higher office, and by retirement. It has been my pleasure to know many outstanding Members of this body through my tenure of service, but I have never known a Member for whom I have a higher regard than my fellow Kentuckian and warm personal friend, VIRGIL CHAPMAN.

I have known him and watched his record throughout the years, and long before I became a Member of this body. When I became a Member of the Seventy-fifth Congress, he with his long years of valuable experience and his position of influence and leadership in the House took me immediately under his wing, advising and counseling me in the intricate and complex problems of congressional life. Our friendship has ripened throughout these years and my constant association and personal friendship has enabled me to evaluate his true worth, not only to the people of Kentucky but to the Nation. He commands the respect of all who have served with him. He is a man of strong personal convictions and has the courage of his convictions. Never at any time have I known him to waver in a decision which reflected his personal convictions because of pressure from any group. The entire membership of the House has come to know and appreciate his fairness, his honesty, his kindness, and his desire at all times to serve his country

As a member of the important Committee on Interstate and Foreign Com-merce, his service to his Nation has been outstanding. The Pure Food and Drug Acts on the statute books of the United States today stand as a monument to his untiring efforts and study concerning the problems of the health of the people of this Nation. No man con-tributed more toward the enactment of this legislation than did my colleague, VIRGII. CHAPMAN.

In addition to his valuable service on the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, he has taken an active interest in all legislation and particularly in the field of agriculture. Throughout Kentucky the name of VIRGIL CHAPMAN is a household word in agricultural sections. He became interested in the problems of the farmer and the tobacco grower long before he came to Congress, and his valuable experience and his study of their problems since becoming a Member of Congress has contributed most materially toward the well-being of the farmers of Kentucky and of the Nation. There is no Member of Congress in either body more conversant with the problems of tobacco growers than VIRGIL CHAPMAN, and no Member who has more diligently worked for their economic well-being, and I am sure that the farmers of Kentucky will never cease to be grateful to him for his long years of service in their behalf.

HON. ROY CLIPPINGER, HON. EVERETT DIRKSEN, HON. ANTON JOHNSON, HON. WILLIAM G. STRATTON, AND HON. EVAN HOWELL.

Mr. TWYMAN. Mr. Speaker, this House loses five Members from the great State of Illinois, that State which has contributed in the past illustrious Members to this body.

It was our State that was responsible for the recognition of Abraham Lincoln in his service to the State. General Grant reached his success as a result of his residence in the great State of Illinois.

Illinois has contributed in no small measure to the importance of this great body.

Last week we bade farewell to Representatives CLIPPINGER, DIRKSEN, JOHNSON of Illinois, STRATTON, and HOWELL, who will not return to the Eighty-first Congress.

Of course, we know well that Representative Howell was elevated to a position on the Federal bench. We all respect and revere Mr. CLIPPINGER. We all know Mr. DIRKSEN for his familiarity with international affairs. We all know the effectiveness of Mr. Johnson as a member of that great Committee on Agriculture. We all respect Mr. STRATTON. It is the regret of the Illinois delegation that five great Members will not return to the Eighty-first Congress of their own free will and volition.

Mr. RANKIN. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. TWYMAN. I yield. Mr. RANKIN. I agree with the gentlemen from Illinois that Illinois has been a great State for great men from other States. Abraham Lincoln was from Kentucky. General Grant, I believe, was from Ohio.

Mr. TWYMAN. He came from Ohio. May I say that all seem to be great when they get to the State of Illinois.

Mr. RANKIN. I wish to join the distinguished gentleman in paying tribute to these distinguished men in this Congress from his State who are now leaving, and to say to him that I agree with everything he has said concerning them. We bid them farewell with sad hearts and with fond affection.

Mr. TWYMAN. I thank the gentleman. Mr. MEADE of Kentucky. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. TWYMAN. I yield.

Mr. MEADE of Kentucky. For the sake of the RECORD, may I point out that the illustrious gentleman you mentioned, Abraham Lincoln, was born in the great State of Kentucky, but he reached his eminence in the great State of Illinois.

Mr. Grant was born some 75 yards from the Kentucky line. He did reach his eminence as a colonel in the Army in an Illinois regiment.

I. too, regret to see these five eminent men of the Illinois delegation retire from the House.

I wish them all the best of everything. Mr. H. CARL ANDERSEN, Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. TWYMAN. I yield.

Mr. H. CARL ANDERSEN. Ten years ago, when I first came to this House, I became acquainted with another gentleman who entered that year, from the State of Illinois, Mr. ANTON JOHNSON. There has never been a finer gentleman and a truer friend than the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. JOHNSON] in this House of Representatives.

Mr. TWYMAN. I appreciate those remarks.

Mr. HILL. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. TWYMAN. I yield. Mr. HILL. I have known Anton JOHNSON as a member of the Committee on Agriculture. I would like to make this my word of testimony: I have never met a finer man, I have never served with a finer man in a group than ANTON JOHNSON. May the Lord bless him in his chosen services, as he leaves the Membership of this House.

Mr. AUGUST H. ANDRESEN. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. TWYMAN. I yield.

Mr AUGUST H. ANDRESEN. I want to subscribe to everything that has been said about Anton Johnson. He is one of the finest characters I have ever met.

I wish also to pay my tribute to the other Members from the gentleman's State who are leaving Congress, for what they have contributed to the welfare and the benefit of the country. When they leave these Halls may they take with them the kindly feelings of their fellow Members and may good health and happiness for many years be their portion in life.

Mr. HOPE. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. TWYMAN. I am happy to yield to the gentleman from Kansas, chairman of the Committee on Agriculture [Mr. HOPE].

Mr. HOPE. Mr. Speaker, I am happy to have this opportunity to pay my respects to my dear friend, Anton Johnson, who has rendered such distinguished service as a member of the House Committee on Agriculture.

To know Anton Johnson is to love him. He is inherently cooperative, and friendly, his character is above reproach, above all he is a great American. I cannot think of anything more inspiring than to hear Anton Johnson tell some of the history of himself and his family and pay the tribute to America that he is capable of paying.

I know it is the hope of all of the members of the Committee on Agriculture that whatever future endeavors he may undertake will be filled with the happiness and joy he so richly deserves.

Mr. TWYMAN. I appreciate those words and I thank the Members for all that has been said about the retiring members of our delegation who will not be back in the Eighty-first Congress. Once again I express my pride and esteem of our delegation for our retiring colleagues.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The time of the gentleman from Illinois has expired.

THE HONORABLE ESTES KEFAUVER

Mr. CELLER. Mr. Speaker, under leave to extend remarks procured by our distinguished minority whip, the gentleman from Massachusetts, John W. Mc-CORMACK, I am more than pleased to express my appreciation of the services rendered to his country and his district by the eminent gentleman from Tennessee, Estes Kefauver.

I deem him one of the best qualified of our public servants. He has acted always for "the greatest good for the greatest number." I talk with authority because I closely watched his work as a comember with me in the Committee on the Judiciary of the House.

He is a liberal in the truest and finest sense of the word. Never once did his interest in the welfare of the individual give way before those who advocated swollen privileges. He was most forthright and courageous in his battle to strengthen the antitrust laws which powerful interests sought to weaken. His will to work for the common welfare was matched by his knowledge of government. his clarity of vision, and his indefatigable energy in amassing and digesting the wealth of information to support his statesmanship.

As one who is interested in the aims and aspirations of the Jewish people in Palestine, I made note with a great deal of comfort of his espousal of the cause of Israel. He was among the first to recognize justice and logic of the Zionist position and by word and deed strengthened public opinion in favor of the partition resolution of the General As-sembly of the United Nations and in favor of the recognition by our Government of the new state of Israel. The Jewish people have a friend in him.

ESTES KEFAUVER takes his place with ease among the able men of good will in our country.

THE HONORABLE FADJO CRAVENS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Arkansas [Mr. HARRIS] is recognized.

Mr. HARRIS. Mr. Speaker, I would not impose upon my colleagues at this time of the morning, but as we are pronouncing encomiums and paying tribute to so many of our fine colleagues with whom we have had the pleasure of serving I want to call to your attention the fact that one of the finest, most splendid gentlemen I have ever known, a man whom I have learned to know very intimately and admire and respect is voluntarily retiring from this Congress, our colleague, FADJO CRAVENS.

FADJO CRAVENS came here as the successor to his father, Ben Cravens. I am sure many of you who served in years gone by knew Mr. Ben Cravens and the fine man that he was and the splendid service he performed for the Nation. Also you have observed the fine work of our colleague, Fadjo, with whom I have had the pleasure of serving the 8 years of my membership in this body. came to Congress in 1939. I am glad to pay tribute to the splendid service he has performed and say to you that there is no finer American in this country or one who has rendered greater service than FADJO CRAVENS.

Mr. HOBBS of Alabama. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. HARRIS. I yield to the distinguished gentleman from Alabama who served on the Judiciary Committee with the distinguished gentleman [Mr. CRAV-ENS] for so long.

Mr. HOBBS of Alabama. This Congress and the Nation are grateful and will ever be to the gentleman's great State of Arkansas for sending us the Cravens boys. I had the pleasure of knowing and loving his father before him. Both of them merit all of the eulogies that can be paid them. Faithful, skillful, adroit, competent legislative and personal services have characterized them every day. We are grateful to you and your State for the work that these men have done and it will live throughout all time to come.

Mr. HARRIS. I thank the gentleman.

Mr. DEVITT. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. HARRIS. I yield to the gentleman from Minnesota.

Mr. DEVITT. May I join the gentleman in the sentiments he expresses about our friend and colleague on the Judiciary Committee, Fadjo Cravens. It has been my privilege to serve with him for 2 years and I may say without fear of successful contradiction that I know of no man of finer character or better legal ability than FADJO CRAVENS.

Mr. HARRIS. I thank the gentleman. Mr. GATHINGS. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. HARRIS. I yield to the gentleman from Arkansas.

Mr. GATHINGS. Mr. Speaker, I would like to take this opportunity in praising the services rendered Arkansas and the Nation by Hon. FADJO CRAVENS. His work on the Judiciary Committee of the House has been marked with honor and distinction. He is a most learned lawyer. It is regretted that he has seen fit to voluntarily retire from this body. I wish for him every happiness, contentment, and success as the years come and go.

Mr. RANKIN. Mr. Speaker, will the

gentleman yield?

Mr. HARRIS. I yield to the gentleman from Mississippi.

Mr. RANKIN. The retirement of Fadjo Cravens from Congress is a great loss to the United States. I have never met a finer American or a more worthy Representative of a great people than FADJO CRAVENS.

Mr. MANASCO. Mr. Speaker, will the

gentleman yield?

Mr. HARRIS. I vield to the gentleman from Alabama.

Mr. MANASCO. I was personally acquainted with the illustrious father of FADJO CRAVENS. I think Fadjo is one of the most profound men who has ever been a Member of the House of Representatives. I know that the Nation is losing a great man.

Mr. DAVIS of Tennessee. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. HARRIS. I yield to the gentleman from Tennessee.

Mr. DAVIS of Tennessee. FADJO CRAV-ENS is a scholarly man, a fine gentleman, and one we shall certainly miss in this

Mr. HARRIS. Mr. Speaker, I know all of you join me in expressing gratitude for having had the intimate association with Fadjo and wish for him much joy and happiness as he continues his life's journey. I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have the privilege of extending their remarks in the RECORD at this point on the gentleman from Arkansas [Mr. CRAVENS].

Mr. TRIMBLE. Mr. Speaker, I have known Fadjo Cravens for many years. His keen wit, clear head, and loyalty to his friends has endeared him to all who know him. We know he will enjoy getting back to "God's country" for a rest and a well-earned vacation. We wish for him the best that life affords.

Mr. GREGORY. Mr. Speaker, during the time I have had the honor to serve in this House, many Members have come and gone. We have lost many valuable Members through death, the spin of the political wheel of fortune, by promotions to higher office, and by retirement. It has been my pleasure to know many outstanding Members of this body through my tenure of service, but I have never known a Member for whom I have higher regard than my good friend, FADJO CRAVENS, of Arkansas.

It was with deep regret that I learned some time ago of his intention to return to private life, but regardless of the direction of our paths in years to come, I shall always remember him for his fine character, sincerity of purpose, loyalty and devotion to duty, as well as the personal friendship I have enjoyed which has ripened with the passing years. Industry, integrity, and ability have marked his record of service.

In his departure from public life, the Nation, the State, and his own district will lose a valuable public servant whose place will be hard to fill. May good fortune and happiness attend him all the days of his life.

HON. JOE HENDRICKS AND HON. EMORY H PRICE

Mr. PETERSON. Mr. Speaker, we in Florida are losing two of our distinguished Members, Messrs, Joe Hendricks and Emory Price, who served with great distinction in the House.

Mr. PRICE served on the Naval Affairs Committee and on the Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries. He has served his State and his district exceptionally well. We feel keenly his leaving. It has been very pleasant working with him. The effectiveness of the Florida delegation has been in teamwork and he has been an important part of that team.

Mr. SIKES. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. PETERSON. I yield to the gentleman from Florida.

Mr. SIKES. I am glad to join in all that my distinguished leader of the Florida delegation has said about Emory PRICE. We shall miss him very keenly. It is great to know a man with such a lovable, sincere character. He is one of the hardest-working Members of Congress I have ever known. He has accomplished a great deal for his district, his State, and the Nation. We genuinely regret his leaving us and wish him well in anything he might undertake.

Mr. ROGERS of Florida. Mr. Speak-er, will the gentleman yield? Mr. PETERSON. I yield to the gentleman from Florida.

Mr. ROGERS of Florida. I want to add a word on the retirement of EMORY PRICE. I think it can be said of him that he is a man who recognizes that public office is a public trust. He possesses the qualifications that are necessary to make a good public servant. I join my colleagues in wishing for him a future successful life. He has done a great work during this Congress and he has been a doer, not a speaker.

Mr. SMATHERS. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. PETERSON of Florida. I yield to the gentleman from Florida.

Mr. SMATHERS. Mr. Speaker, want to add my words of tribute to EMORY PRICE. When I came to Congress I did not know the gentleman, but the 2 years that I have been here his warm and charming personality have certainly endeared him to me and to everyone whom he has worked with. As a freshman Congressman I was able to go to him and he gave to me his counsel and his advice generously on all occa-sions. He has been an excellent Congressman, and I join with my fellow Congressmen from Florida in regretting his

Mr. FOGARTY. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. PETERSON of Florida. to the gentleman from Rhode Island.

Mr. FOGARTY. Mr. Speaker, I have come to know EMORY PRICE in the past 6 years that I have been associated with him. I have found him to be one of the most conscientious and one of the hardest-working Members of Congress that I have come in contact with. I know that he will be sorely missed because of his ability and because of the good work that he has done for his native city of Jacksonville, for the State of Florida, and for the country as a whole.

Mr. RAINS. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. PETERSON of Florida. I yield to the gentleman from Alabama.

Mr. RAINS. Mr. Speaker, I would like to express my deep regret at the going away from this great body of my good friend, EMORY PRICE. He has been my next-door neighbor during the 14 years that I have been here. I regard him not only as a fine, genuine Christian gentleman, but I regard him as an able states-We are going to miss him very man much.

Mr. PETERSON. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may extend their remarks at this point in the RECORD

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Florida?

There was no objection.

HON, PETE JARMAN AND HON. CARTER MANASCO

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. ARENDS). The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Alabama [Mr. Hobbs].

Mr. HOBBS. Mr. Speaker and friends of the House, 43 faces will be absent from these seats come January, according to the present tabulation; each will sorely missed. It seems to me that death, defeat, and voluntary withdrawal each "loves a shining mark." These enemies of Congress seem to take toll of our very best.

Alabama will suffer the loss of two of our greatest Representatives, PETE JAR-MAN and CARTER MANASCO. You all know them and therefore love them, not for the office they have each graced but for what

So often during our primary campaign and since, I have said and said sincerely that I would much rather have been defeated myself than that either of these two outstanding servants of the people should be lost to the service of their districts, their State, and the Nation.

Of course you know the story of their records here and the Congressional Directory gives a brief of some of the high points of their services before coming to Congress. Each of you can testify how well each of them has served in this body. You know how diligent they have been and how, in spite of our crowded days during their service, they have managed somehow to make friends of all their contacts and keep them. I doubt if there are two more popular Members of this body. So it seems to me that the least we Alabamians can do is to invite all those who care to and who can find the time at this late hour of the morning in the dying hours of the Eightieth Congress to extend our remarks at this point in the RECORD.

Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous con-sent that all Members may have five legislative days in which to extend their remarks at his point in the RECORD with reference to the services of Messrs. Jar-MAN and MANASCO.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Alabama?

There was no objection.

Mr. RANKIN. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. HOBBS. I am so glad to yield to the gentleman from Mississippi.

Mr. RANKIN. I want to endorse everything the distinguished gentleman from Alabama has said about our two colleagues [Mr. Manasco] and [Mr. Jarman]. Both of their districts join mine. I am frank to say that Alabama never had two more worthy Representatives than these two distinguished sons of that great State.

Mr. RAINS. Mr. Speaker, will the

gentleman yield?

Mr. HOBBS. I am always delighted to yield to the gentleman from Alabama.

Mr. RAINS. Mr. Speaker, I had no idea I would attempt to make a speech at this extremely early hour, 5 o'clock in the morning, here in the closing hours of this session of Congress. However, I could not pass by this opportunity to pay tribute to two of my very best and warmest friends; two eminent and outstanding members of this Congress.

PETE JARMAN has represented the Sixth District of Alabama since 1936. Prior to his election to Congress, Pete JARMAN had an outstanding record of public service as an official of the State of Alabama. He also had a distinguished war record during the First World War. During his service here in the Congress, he has been for many years one of the leaders on the great Foreign Affairs Committee, and has been instrumental in the writing of much of the momentous legislation which has been presented by that great committee and adopted as the foreign policy of our country. I am sure that the Members of the House of Representatives will concur with me in the statement, no Member of Congress has worked harder, labored more diligently, and with a greater sincerity of purpose, than has Pete Jarman of Alabama. He has many friends here, and in his native State of Alabama, who are grateful to him for the fine and splendid service he has rendered to his country over a long period of time.

Mr. Speaker, I sincerely believe there is, among the 435 Members of Congress, no Member who has more devoted personal friends here in the Congress than does Carter Manasco. Carter came here, as you know, as Secretary to the beloved Speaker Will Bankhead. Carter was elected to Congress from the Seventh District of Alabama, at a special election to fill the vacancy created by the death of Speaker Bankhead. During his service in the House of Representatives, he served with distinction during the Seventy-ninth Congress, as Chairman of Expenditures in Executive Departments, and has served on many notable special investigating Commit-Prior to coming to Congress, CAR-TER MANASCO was a member of the Alabama legislature and an outstanding lawyer in his home in Pasper, Ala. Among his colleagues here, he is regarded as one who always has the courage of his convictions. His work in the Congress has given ample evidence of his devotion to duty. During his service in Congress, no Member of the Alabama Delegation has contributed more to the welfare of his State and Nation. Carter is my warm personal friend, and I regret exceedingly that he is leaving us,

I wish for both of my colleagues, Pete and Carter, the very best of everything that life can bring.

Mr. BONNER. Mr. Speaker, will the

gentleman yield?

Mr. HOBBS. I yield to the gentleman from North Carolina with much pleasure. Mr. BONNER. I am happy to have this opportunity to pay my respects to the splendid character and the fine manhood that Carter Manasco has exhibited here in the Congress and before becoming a Member of Congress here in the Capitol. It was my particular pleasure to meet him when he was a secretary in Congress and I was a secretary. He then was congressional timber, and he showed his ability and has demonstrated his ability since he has become a Member of the House. No finer gentleman, no more courageous man, has ever served. Here recently he demonstrated in the cloakroom the most courteous sportsmanship I have ever seen, when he brought his successor in and said to his friends, "This is a fine man. This man will make a fine Congressman, though he defeated me in the primaries in Alabama." My hat is off to Carter.

Mr. JONES of Alabama. Mr. Speaker,

will the gentleman yield?

Mr. HOBBS. It is a pleasure, sir.

Mr. JONES of Alabama. Mr. Speaker, I welcome this opportunity to pay my highest respects to two of Alabama's greatest Congressmen, Pete Jarman and Carter Manasco, whose services in this body will be terminated at the expiration of the present session. I know you all join me in extending felicitations of good will to them and in expressing appreciation for their fellowship and for the contributions they have made during their service in the Congress.

Both have distinguished themselves, not only as Representatives of their districts, but as loyal public servants, contributing immeasurably to the well-being of the whole Nation by their constant devotion to service which they have manifested during their tenures. Their stewardship has been remarkable in that they have at all times in their attention to duty, been reliable and trustworthy in all their dealings.

I wish to express to them my personal gratitude for their kindness and helpfulness to me as a new Member, and I shall always covet their friendship.

Mr. BOYKIN. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. HOBBS. I am so happy to yield.
Mr. BOYKIN. Mr. Speaker, I want to say something about Pete Jarman and Carter Manasco. They are two of the greatest human beings I have ever known. They are just about everything.
If I talked all night I could not tell you how much I love them and respect them.
They are really and truly great men.
We are going to miss them. I also want to say something about my great friend from Missouri [JASPER BELL]. I do not see him here, at present, but I do see him every day and every night and all the time. JASPER BELL is retiring of his own accord. He is one of the greatest men I have ever known anywhere. I visit at his home out on his ranch, which is right next to that great Jesse James country. JASPER BELL is a great statesman and a great man. With his great energy and brain he has done a great job here. History will record the great work that JASPER BELL and PETE Jarman and Carter Manasco and Joe HENDRICKS and all of these great men who are leaving us have done. We are going to miss them. We love you all. We just wish you could stay right here with us forever and ever. God bless you and good luck.

Mr. O'TOOLE. Mr. Speaker, will the

gentleman yield?

Mr. HOBBS. I am glad to yield to the gentleman from New York.

Mr. O'TOOLE. I have had the pleasure of knowing the gentleman from Alabama, Pete Jarman, and as the gentleman from Alabama [Mr. Boykin] has said, he is one of the best Members of the House. I hope his life is a long one and a happy and contented one.

Mr. GRANT of Alabama. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. HOBBS. Delighted, sir.

Mr. GRANT of Alabama. Mr. Speaker, it is not easy to speak here about our two beloved colleagues from Alabama who are leaving us. Everybody knows them as Pete and Carter. Both of them came to the Congress with a background of public service. Pete Jarman was secretary of state of the State of Alabama before he came to Congress. He has a fine récord here. His service in the House and on the Committee on Foreign Affairs has been outstanding. CARTER Manasco was a member of the legislature of the State of Alabama and for many years was secretary to our late beloved Speaker, William Bankhead. We will miss them both, and we wish them Godspeed and good luck in their future

Mr. McCORMACK. Mr. Speaker, in the leaving of my distinguished friends from Alabama, Pete Jarman and Carter Manasco, the House loses two of its most valuable Members. They have both served with ability and fidelity. I have served on the Committee on Expenditures with Carter Manasco during the past 2 years and it has been a great pleasure to me. I regret very much their leaving. I shall always treasure my association with them and I shall always equally treasure their friendship.

Mr. ANDREWS of Alabama. Mr. Speaker, as the curtain is rung down on the second session of the Eightieth Congress, the hearts of members of the Alabama delegation in our national legislature are sad. Two of our popular and beloved Members from Alabama will not be with us in the Eighty-first Congress

PETE JARMAN leaves an important position as a member of the Foreign Affairs Committee. Especially in the past few years has Pete's work and endeavors on this committee been vital. A veteran with distinguished service in World War I, Pete has devoted his time and effort to an extraordinary degree to make a permanent peace. Pete Jarman's labors in shaping a firm international policy of the United States Government will stand always as a memorial to an able Congressman and statesman.

As Carter Manasco makes his exit from this Hall, Alabama members are aware that our State is losing a most able parliamentarian. A practicing disciple of the Bankhead political school, Carter has given to the seventh district a forceful and aggressive representation. As ranking Democrat on the Committee to Investigate Executive Expenditures he made wholesome contributions to the shaping of important legislation affecting full employment and surplus property. As counselor, adviser, and friend, Carter Manasco will remain high in the rank of legislators who have molded governmental policies for the welfare of our people.

Residents of Alabama and citizens of the United States are the real losers in the departure of these two Congressmen.

Mr. EBERHARTER. Mr. Speaker, those Members who have been here for a number of terms have noted with sorrow the departure of others from among us who have become personal friends and we are somewhat prone to become hardened to the experience. But I am quite sure that practically all Members will feel a special sense of regret at the departure from our midst at the end of this session of one of our most beloved and distinguished Members. I need not point out to you that I refer to PETE JARMAN, of Alabama.

During his 12 years of service among us he has endeared himself to all by his unfailing congeniality, sincerity of motives, and strict devotion to the many tasks confronting a Member; and, above all, he has earned the highest respect for his always competent judgment on matters of critical interest to the Nation.

It is my earnest hope, as I am sure it is of all of us, that this Government may be able to utilize his talents and services in some manner other than purely legislative, because such unselfish devotion as Pete Jarman has rendered is not easily obtainable. The knowledge and experience he has gained in this Hall will be of inestimable value in almost any capacity in which he is called upon to

And, Mr. Speaker, may I add that all of us know of the fine, arduous, and helpful assistance given to Pete by his charming and devoted wife, Beryl, in the many accomplishments which are now a part of the history of the past six Congresses.

In whatever endeavors the Jarmans undertake we wish them the utmost success and happiness.

Mr. KEFAUVER. Mr. Speaker, it gives me much pleasure to pay tribute to my good friend and colleague, Joe Hen-DRICKS, who is retiring from Congress. JOE HENDRICKS has been an outstanding member of the House Appropriations Committee where he was respected for his keen discerning mind and his ability to consider all things in a fair and equitable fashion. The House is losing a valuable Member who will always be kindly remembered by all of us who knew him.

EXTENSION OF REMARKS

Mrs. BOLTON asked and was given permission to extend her remarks in the RECORD and to include the speech she intends to make at the Republican Convention on Tuesday morning.

HON, JASPER C. BELL

Mr. PLOESER. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to proceed for a few minutes

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. ARENDS). Is there objection?

There was no objection.

Mr. PLOESER. Mr. Speaker, I have listened to the very fine compliments and encomiums paid to various Members who are retiring. With all I have heard, I have a strong feeling of concurrence. thought that one of the most distinguished Members of this House, one of the finest gentlemen in this House had been overlooked. I was ready to make a little speech about him until my friend from Alabama [Mr. Boykin] had to steal my thunder and mention my very warm and distinguished friend, JASPER BELL, of Missouri.

Mr. SCRIVNER. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. PLOESER. I yield. Mr. SCRIVNER. Is that the same Honorable Jasper Bell who lives in Kansas City, Mo., which is a suburb of Kansas City, Kans.?

Mr. PLOESER. Mr. Speaker, when I came to this Congress, I came here with that natural feeling that every newcomer has, wondering, in a sense, just how a State delegation gets along that is divided by parties. I found that in the Missouri delegation, regardless of your party, you always had a friend, you always had fine counsel and a very able counselor and a sincere helper in Judge Bell. The State of Missouri loses a great public servant here when they lose his representation, and this Congress loses a great advocate.

Mr. McCORMACK. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. PLOESER. I yield.

Mr. McCORMACK. I concur in what the gentleman has said. I may say that it is most gracious of the gentleman to make the remarks he has made. The gentleman from Missouri [Mr. Cannon] was going to be recognized to make some Judge Bell has the strength and dignity to which the gentleman from Missouri has referred, which has impressed him upon all of his colleagues. A man of great ability, a man of unusual character. a man of great talent, a man who has depth at all times, the highest type of a gentleman. He and his loved ones can well be proud of the great character of service he has rendered to his State and to his country while a Member of this

Mr. COLE of Missouri. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. PLOESER. I yield.

Mr. COLE of Missouri. I would like to endorse all that has been said about our good friend and colleague from Missouri, Jasper Bell. So many nice things have been said tonight about him that about all that remains to be said is that he is the cream of the crop. He is one of nature's noblemen. We are going to miss him

Mr CANNON. Mr. Speaker, it has been jocularly said that office holders rarely die, seldom resign, and never retire. Judge BELL is a notable exception to that rule. He served on the circuit bench with distinction and could have occupied that position indefinitely but preferred to enter active practice and resigned before the end of his term. And again, at the close of this session, after a notable service of 14 years, he is once more retiring to engage in active practice, over the protest of his constituency and to the regret of his colleagues here on the floor. JASPER BELL brought to the House an invaluable knowledge of the law, acquired both as a judge and as a practitioner, on the bench and before the bar, and for more than a decade has been exceptionally useful in the formulation of a large part of the statutory law of the land. At the same time he has exercised a commanding influence in both the domestic and foreign relations of the Federal Government. His service in the negotiations which led up to the establishment of Philippine independence were so outstanding that he was sent as a member of the Commission representing the United States at the final ceremonies and was awarded the especial honor of the Distinguished Service Star by the Philippine Government.

Judge Bell's retirement comes at an inopportune time. Never was the Nation in greater need of unselfish and impartial men of wise experience and seasoned judgment, and his retirement will leave a vacancy that cannot be easily filled. But he is entitled to a wellearned vacation-while the sun is yet high and the best of life is still before him. So, regretfully and affectionately we wish him good luck and good fortune and Godspeed.

THE HONORABLE W. J. ERYAN DORN

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Mississippi [Mr. RAN-KIN] is recognized.

Mr. RANKIN. Mr. Speaker, it is most fitting that we all join in paying tribute to those Members who are knowingly going out of Congress. I wonder if it would not be worth a little something to throw out a ray of comfort to those Members who are going out unwittingly?

But I rose to pay my tribute to one of the younger Members of this House-a serviceman of the last war, a man who represents the district from which my people originally came. I am speaking of WILLIAM J. BRYAN DORN, of South Carolina-one of the most energetic, one of the most worthy, and one of the most reliable Members of this House.

Mr. DORN is going out of this House, and he will take with him the love and respect of every Member who really knows him.

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. RANKIN. I yield.

Mr. KENNEDY. I would like to share the sentiment of the gentleman from Mississippi in what he has to say of Mr.

DORN. Certainly all the younger Members are extremely sorry that he is going to leave this House. His enthusiasm and devotion to the welfare of this country have made him extremely beloved by all of us on this side and I think also on the Republican side. I wish him success in the years to come.

Mr. RANKIN. I thank the distinguished gentleman from Massachusetts. Mr. WILLIAMS. Mr. Speaker, will the

gentleman yield?

Mr. RANKIN. I yield to the gentleman from Mississippi.

Mr. WILLIAMS. I, of course, endorse everything my distinguished colleague has said about BRYAN DORN. I have never know a man of more courage than BRYAN DORN. With his ability, character, and courage, I predict for him a long career of public service.

Mr. RANKIN. I thank the distinguished gentleman from Mississippi.

Mr. O'HARA. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. RANKIN. I yield to the gentleman from Minnesota.

Mr. O'HARA. Mr. Speaker, I want to join in the tributes to the gentleman from South Carolina [Mr. DORN]. I think he has been of great value to this House. He did not serve with stars or bars, as I understand, but was a corporal in the Army. He came back here and gave something to this House which it needs, that was the viewpoint of the enlisted man and also a young man.

I hope he will succeed in his political efforts because America needs that kind of young man today very badly.

Mr. RANKIN. I thank the distinguished gentleman from Minnesota, and I agree with what he says about the gentleman from South Carolina [Mr. DORN1, who when he came here brought with him the viewpoint of the rank-andfile in the Army in the recent war.

Mr. SMATHERS. Mr. Speaker, will

the gentleman yield?

Mr. RANKIN. I yield. Mr. SMATHERS. I would like to join in what my colleagues have said in paying tribute to the gentleman from South Carolina [Mr. Dorn]. As has been said. he brought to this Congress the viewpoint of the soldier. He represented the enlisted man well. He is vigorous, he is able, as a Member of Congress and I wish him all that he wants in the future.

Mr. RANKIN. I thank the gentleman from Florida.

The SPEAKER. The time of the gentleman from Mississippi has expired.

HON. JOHN W. GWYNNE

Mr. HOEVEN. Mr. Speaker, I join in the fine tributes that have been paid to our colleagues who are leaving the House of Representatives this year. those who will leave is the Honorable JOHN W. GWYNNE, dean of the Iowa delegation.

Judge GWYNNE is completing his seventh term of service, a most valuable man on the Committee on the Judiciary, a great constitutional lawyer, a man whose advice was eagerly sought by all those who are interested in legislation that came from that great committee.

Judge GWYNNE is a man of great courage, a man who never had any hesitancy in speaking his honest convictions regardless of the political consequences.

That type of an individual, that kind of a rugged American is the type of man most needed in America today.

I personally regret that my very good friend, Judge GWYNNE, is leaving the House at this time. He has my best wishes for success and happiness in all his endeavors.

Mr. GRAHAM. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. HOEVEN. I yield to the gentleman from Pennsylvania.

Mr. GRAHAM. For 10 years it was my privilege to sit beside the Honorable John W. GWYNNE in the Committee on the Judiciary. On the other side of me sat Raymond Springer, who has passed to the Great Beyond. In sitting between these two outstanding men, it was an inspiration to work with them.

In John Gwynne we are losing one of the most able men of this House, one of the hardest workers, one of the bravest and most courageous men who dared stand up for what he thought was right. He never sought public favor. All through his career he has been guided by one thing and that is devotion to duty to his country and to his God.

We shall miss him and this country and this Congress will suffer by his departure.

Mr. LeCOMPTE. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. HOEVEN. I yield to the gentleman from Iowa.

Mr. LECOMPTE. It has been said this evening, "I heartily approve." I could not let this occasion pass without expressing my admiration for one of the great, and I think one of the truly distinguished and capable statesmen of Mr. GWYNNE is an outstanding lawyer, a very careful student of government, a man of demonstrated courage, and a man of the highest ideals. It seems to me that John Gwynne, at all times, has demonstrated that he is the soul of honor. He never had any thought of anything except the correct vote as he could analyze the problem confronting the House. It never seemed to me it ever occurred to John Gwynne to make what might be called a demagogic speech or to ever act as an opportunist. He always believed in his quiet way in making what he thought was a sound vote and a vote in the interest of his country.

Mr. TALLE. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield? Mr. HOEVEN. I yield to the gentleman from Iowa.

Mr. TALLE. Mr. Speaker, I realize the hour is so late that dawn is breaking, but I must nevertheless ask the indulgence of the House for a brief moment to pay tribute to my colleague the Honorable JOHN W. GWYNNE, who will not return to this chamber when the next Congress convenes.

Congressman Gwynne has been tower of strength as a member of the Committee on the Judiciary. He is equipped with a brilliant legal and judicial mind. Thorough scholarship in the law, facility for precise expression, fairness in dealing with his fellow men, energy in discharging the duties of his office, unfailing gentlemanly conduct. these are the attributes he has so clearly revealed during his service in the House of Representatives.

There is always great demand for the vigor and talents with which he is endowed. He will soon be free to engage in other enterprises, and in these he will continue to serve with credit to himself. his family, and our common country.

JOHN W. GWYNNE will take with him the good will and the wholesome respect of his associates on Capitol Hill. It is my wish for him and his fine family that they may enjoy continued good health and much happiness in all the years that lie ahead

Mr. GOODWIN. Mr. Speaker, it was my pleasure to serve on the subcommittee of the Committee on the Judiciary of which John Gwynne was chairman. have never served with an abler lawyer or a finer gentleman. I shall never forget that close association which will remain as one of the most pleasant and most inspiring of my congressional experiences. His retirement is much more than a loss to his district and the State of Iowa, it is a loss to the country, because JOHN GWYNNE embodies those characteristics which go to make up a statesman.

Mr. MARTIN of Iowa. Mr. Speaker, it has been an honor indeed to serve in Congress the past 10 years with my distinguished colleague and friend, Hon. JOHN W. GWYNNE, of Iowa, a great American and a real leader. Mr. Gwynne is closing his service in Congress with adjournment and it is with real regret that I must bid him farewell as a colleague and as dean of the Iowa congressional delegation.

It has indeed been a privilege and an inspiration to serve with him and I will always look to him as a great statesman and leader I wish him the continued success I know will be his and I know all of the Members of Congress who have served with him join me in this tribute in recognition of his outstanding service.

Mr. HOEVEN. Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Alabama [Mr.

HOBES].

Mr. HOBBS. Mr. Speaker, "You can fool some of the people all the time, and all the people some of the time, but you cannot fool all of the people all of the time" are words of wisdom that have come from one of our greatest states-I have had the great joy of serving with JOHN GWYNNE on the Committee on the Judiciary for 14 years, and on the other side of the political fence, if there was one, which there never has been in that great committee. We on our side all loved him just as intensely and fervently as did his colleagues on the other side. So, I want to pay my tribute by saying a fervent "Amen" every word that has been said about him. and then I could add a good deal more if I had the time.

Mr. HOEVEN. Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Minnesota [Mr. DEVITT].

Mr. DEVITT. Mr. Speaker, I just want to add my words to the sentiments expressed by the gentlemen with reference to our good friend the gentleman from Iowa [Mr. GWYNNE]. It has been my privilege to serve with him on the Committee on the Judiciary for the last 2 years. I have looked up to him for guidance and he has furnished it to me. We think a lot of him. He is a great lawyer, a great jurist, and above all else he has great character, emblematic of a bit of philosophy that is very rare nowadays: a philosophy of good, sound, midwestern Republicanism. I am sure that all of us are going to miss John GWYNNE.

Mr. HOEVEN. Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Minnesota [Mr.

Mr. O'HARA. Mr. Speaker, I wish to say that I join in every word that has been said about John Gwynne. Not only did I have the opportunity to serve with him the first 2 years I served in the Seventy-seventh Congress, but I have watched and have grown to love and admire him as a great American, a great patriot, and a very, very able lawyer. I think the greatest loss that this House has suffered as a result of some of the primaries has been that of our distinguished colleague the gentleman from Iowa [Mr. GWYNNE] and I regret exceedingly that he was defeated.

Mr. HOEVEN. Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Missouri [Mr.

PLOESER].

Mr. PLOESER. Mr. Speaker, permit me to say that I feel greatly the loss of JOHN GWYNNE of Iowa. I think it is a great loss to the State of Iowa; it is a great loss to this Congress, and it is a great loss to this Nation. Few men have made the impression of character and ability on me as has the gentleman from Iowa [Mr. GWYNNE].

Mr. HOEVEN. Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Iowa [Mr. DoL-

Mr. DOLLIVER. Mr. Speaker, I join in the encomiums that have been paid to our distinguished colleague the gentleman from Iowa, John Gwynne, the dean of our delegation. When I came to Congress I found that he was the unifying force in the Iowa Republican delegation. He gave us leadership, guidance, and inspiration. His record in this House will long remain a challenge to the rest of us to emulate his fine accomplishments. It is with deep regret that we know that he must leave us, and we wish for him the greatest success that can come to anyone. Indeed, he has always accomplished that because of his fine record of public service which we know will continue down through the years.

Mr. HOEVEN. Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from New York [Mr.

Mr. COLE of New York. Mr. Speaker, the Congress and the country can ill afford to lose men of the stamp and character of the gentleman from Iowa [Mr. GWYNNEl. Having served with him for well over a decade, I shall always consider it a rare privilege and a source of everlasting inspiration to have had the opportunity of working with a man such as he, and of having known him,

Mr. HOEVEN. Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. GRANT].

Mr. GRANT of Indiana. Mr. Speaker, I also want to join in the words of tribute paid to our colleague the gentleman from Iowa [Mr. GWYNNE]. I have had the privilege of serving with the gentleman from Iowa [Mr. GWYNNE] for 10 years, the last several years of which his office has adjoined mine, and from that close experience I have learned to know John GWYNNE as one of the ablest lawyers and one of the finest men that it has been my privilege to know as a Member of this body. The Nation can ill afford to lose the services of a man of the character and the ability and the integrity of John GWYNNE. We wish for him the vesy best that life can hold.

Mr. RANKIN. Mr. Speaker, will the

gentleman yield?

Mr. HOEVEN. I vield to the gentleman from Mississippi.

Mr. RANKIN. I wish to join in paying my tribute to John Gwynne of Iowa, one of the greatest Representatives the people of that State have had in Congress for the last 25 years.

Thomas Jefferson once said there were three questions to ask of a man who is applying for public office: Is he honest? Is he qualified? Is he faithful? John GWYNNE met all those requirements, and in addition to that he had that rare quality that makes a real statesman, that is, the courage of his convictions. His departure from this House will be a great loss to the Congress of the United States.

Mr. GORSKI. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. HOEVEN. I yield to the gentleman from Illinois.

Mr. GORSKI. I want to pay my tribute to JOHN GWYNNE. I have served on the Committee on the Judiciary with JOHN GWYNNE and found him to be a very, very fine lawyer, and an able man. I am sorry to see him leave us and wish him the best of luck. We will miss him on the Judiciary Committee: he was one of the very hard-working members. We have found him very helpful on many of our difficult problems and his judgment and advice was eagerly sought. hope that he will have many years of happiness in his future life and I wish him good luck and Godspeed.

Mr. MEADE of Kentucky. Mr. Speak-er, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. HOEVEN. I yield to the gentleman from Kentucky.

Mr. MEADE of Kentucky. It is a privilege to join the other Members of the House in paying tribute to a great legislator, John Gwynne, a man whom I have known and learned to respect as a friend and as an able legislator. hope and know that the people of his State when he returns to private life will receive him with the same high regard we in this Congress have for him. for he has proved himself in this legislative body to be a remarkable man.

Mr. LEFEVRE. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. HOEVEN. I yield to the gentleman from New York.

Mr. LEFEVRE. I, too, want to pay tribute to my colleague, John Gwynne. He was a neighbor of mine in the House. Ever since I have been here I have enjoyed knowing him. He has been one of my best advisers. We are all going to miss John.

Mr. FOOTE. Mr. Speaker, it was a source of great regret to me to find that the Honorable John W. GWYNNE, who was Representative of the Third District of Iowa continuously since his election to the Seventy-fourth Congress, would not return as a Member of the Eightyfirst Congress.

It has been my privilege to serve with him as a member of the Judiciary Committee, and also as a member of Subcommittee No. 2. of which he was the chairman

Judge GWYNNE is possessed with rare legal ability which he has demonstrated throughout the years as a member of the Judiciary Committee. He was fearless in his advocacy of measures which he believed to be for the welfare of the country, although they may have been temporarily unpopular politically. He has a judicial temperament, and if he so desires, I hope he will adorn the bench of a Federal court. On the other hand, if he resumes the practice of law I know that the people will make a beaten path to his door to obtain his wise counsel. Should he desire to return to political life, I am fully satisfied that the voters of his congressional district will in the not too distant future recognize the error of their way and return him to the Congress where he may again take up the work which he so admirably performed, not only for their benefit, but for the welfare of the entire country.

Mr. MICHENER. Mr. Speaker, will

the gentleman yield?

Mr. HOEVEN. I yield to the gentleman from Michigan.

Mr. MICHENER. Mr. Speaker, four members of the Committee on the Judiciary will not return to the Eighty-first Congress.

JOHN GWYNNE, of Iowa, has served 14 years in the House and 12 years on the committee. He has demonstrated that he is a man of unusual attainments. An outstanding lawyer, a fearless and courageous legislator, he thinks for himself at all times. He not only thinks for himself, he acts for himself; that is, he is entirely independent. I have not always agreed with him, but on such occasions I wondered if possibly I was not wrong. There is no harder worker in the Congress. The little things and the big things all receive JOHN GWYNNE'S meticulous attention. Always judicial, he was especially qualified for the important chairmanship of Subcommittee No. 2. He has always shown a keen interest in agriculture. Indeed, because of these activities, many of us have affectionately referred to him as "the farmers' friend."

In short, he has done a grand job and it is regrettable that he is not returning. We will not say farewell to him because I feel sure that he will be called upon in the future to render public service either in the legislative or judicial field.

Estes Kefauver has served 10 years in the House and 9 years on the committee. He is also a splendid lawyer and a man of ability, who takes his work seriously and therefore gets results. He has been a pioneer in a number of legislative fields. and believes that today is better than yesterday and that tomorrow will be better than today. He is retiring of his own volition and, at the moment, is engaged in a primary contest for a seat in the United States Senate. I do not know who his opponents are but, if we must have a Democrat in the Senate from Tennessee, I feel sure that ESTES KE-FAUVER will uphold the tradition of his FADJO CRAVENS has served 10 years in the House and 8 years on the committee. and is retiring to return to the practice of law in his native Arkansas. A perfect gentleman, a lovable friend, a great lawyer, an indefatigable worker, he has given his district and his State the best possible representation in the Congress. Another will come to represent his district, but that individual is going to find that FADJO CRAVENS has left a large pair of shoes to fill in the Halls of Congress.

WALLACE CHADWICK, of Pennsylvania, has served but one term, and it seems too bad that one so well qualified and one who has blazed the way for what promised to be a distinguished career should leave us so soon. Few Members have made the progress in a first term that Judge CHADWICK has made.

Mr. Speaker, it is regrettable that these four Members are leaving us. Each one has the respect, the confidence, and the affection of every member of the committee and, I believe, of every Member of the House. If there was ever a time when experience and sound thinking on the part of the Congress are essential, it, is now. These Members will undoubtedly be succeeded by capable successors, but their respective districts will be deprived of the experience, knowledge, and knowhow which only service makes possible. I join with the others in wishing each of these colleagues pleasure, enjoyment, and success in all the days that are to

Mr. KEFAUVER. Mr. Speaker, may I join with the many other friends of John GWYNNE in expressing my regrets that the distinguished gentleman from Iowa is leaving Congress. It was my great pleasure to work with John Gwynne on the House Judiciary Committee where he was one of the most highly respected members. The departure of this great lawyer and statesman is a loss that Congress can ill afford. John leaves behind him many kind and pleasant memories that will linger long in the thoughts of those of us who knew him.

Mr. HOEVEN. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have the privilege of extending their remarks at this point in the RECORD on the services of John GWYNNE.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Iowa?

There was no objection.

A PRESIDENT FROM THE HOUSE

Mr. CASE of South Dakota. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to address the House for 1 minute.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from South Dakota?

There was no objection.

Mr. CASE of South Dakota. Speaker, it has been said tonight that there are three things which might make a man retire from membership here: one, death; another, defeat; and another, a decision to withdraw from the political arena. None of those three will apply to the departure of my able, affable, and eloquent colleague from South Dakota. KARL MUNDT. When he leaves the House at the close of this Congress, he will leave for another reason, but I think he will still be around the Capitol and I predict we will see and hear much of him as a Member of the other body.

So I shall not use this time for further eulogies to Karl since he will be with us. but will say something about another Member of the House of Representatives who may not be with us here next year.

In his case, if he is not here, it will also not be for one of the three reasons enumerated, not death nor defeat nor a decision to withdraw. It will be because of a decision that will be made by others.

This Member of the House of Representatives is a man who today more than any other person, in my opinion, typifies representative government.

Last fall I had the privilege of having this fine Representative stop off a few days in my district. I received a telegram of greetings from a former Member of the House, Frank Horton, in Wyoming. At a public meeting which we had, I read this telegram which said of this man:

In these days when freedom is on trial, and when people are trying to learn how to govern themselves, he more than any other man in all the world has demonstrated that he knows how to make representative government

That is the man I have in mind tonight. He is a man who, if the public appreciates that quality and wants a man of that character to be associated with the Government next year-not in the House of Representatives, not in the Senate of the United States—but in the White House, they will turn to the House of Representatives and pick that Member from this body, the distinguished gentleman from Massachusetts, Speaker of the House of Representatives Joseph W. MARTIN, JR.

HON. MARGARET CHASE SMITH

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Maine [Mr. HALE]. Mr. HALE. Mr. Speaker, the delegation to which I have the honor to belong is a small one. Therefore, any gap in it is the more deeply felt. The senior member of our Maine delegation in point of service has elected to seek election to another body. This means that she will leave this body where she will be very much missed. It is my belief that none of our Members is more respected and admired than my colleague, MARGARET CHASE SMITH, a woman of great charm, of great dignity, and of almost incredible efficiency in the performance of her duties. She has been a notably good sportswoman on all the missions, some of them very arduous and dangerous. that it has been her duty as a Member to perform. I repeat that we shall all miss her very much, and I personally shall miss her as a colleague. I take this occasion to pay her this small tribute. I only wish I could do it more worthily.

HON. JOSEPH W. MARTIN

The SPEAKER. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Kentucky.

Mr. MEADE of Kentucky. Mr. Speaker, I have for months been committed to a candidate for nomination for the Presidency of the United States. For months I have been campaigning for that candi-

I wish to state that last week, upon my return to my district. I found that my people are highly in favor of, and will wholeheartedly support, the candidacy of our distinguished Speaker, Hon. JOSEPH W. MARTIN, of Massachusetts.

I assure you that his nomination will insure my return to Congress.

HON. WALTER G. ANDREWS

Mr. TABER. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to proceed for 3

The SPEAKER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

There was no objection.

Mr. TABER. Mr. Speaker, WALTER G. ANDREWS, chairman of the Military Affairs Committee, is retiring from Congress this year. He has been with us for 18 years. As chairman of the Military Affairs Committee, he has made a fine record in getting legislation passed, but, more than anything else, in the harmony he has secured in that committee.

Today he has just completed one of the major bills of the session, and he has demonstrated in connection with that operation an ability which we all admire. HAM, as he is very affectionately known to his friends, is a very pleasant fellow socially, and he has been very kind to many of us all through the period here.

I am very sorry that he has felt that his health will not permit him to continue with us. I hope as he goes along in the days to come that he will enjoy the rest that will come to him in his retirement.

I wish him everything good in the days to come.

Mr. COLE of New York. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. TABER. I yield. Mr. COLE of New York. Mr. Speaker, I am reluctant to even raise my voice in joining the expressions uttered by the gentleman from New York [Mr. TABER] with respect to our colleague who has announced his decision to leave us, not because he is not deserving of it, not because his sincerity of purpose has not been recognized and appreciated by those of us who have served with him, not because his devotion to the security of his country has not always been paramount in his thought and effort, but because, if he were here, he would not want me or any of us to make expres-

HON. PETE JARMAN AND HON. CARTER MANASCO

Mr. BATTLE. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to proceed for 3

The SPEAKER. Is there objection?

There was no objection. Mr. BATTLE. Mr. Speaker, I would like to join my fellow Alabamians in expressing my high esteem for our two coworkers who will not be with us next year, the Honorable Pete Jarman and the Honorable Carter Manasco. They have served their districts capably, honestly, and courageously. The State of Alabama suffered a great loss when those two gentlemen were defeated, a greater loss than they realize at the present time. Our country also has suffered a great loss.

I want especially to thank them for the services which they have rendered me in suggestions, advice, and kindness during this, my freshman term in Congress.

Mr. Speaker, while I am on my feet I also want to express my appreciation of and to commend the great service which has been rendered by our good friend from Missouri, the Honorable C. JASPER Bell, who I understand will not be with us in the next Congress. Although these three distinguished gentlemen are leaving us, their influence will be felt in Congress for years to come.

A WORD OF APPRECIATION

Mr. HALLECK. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to address the House for 3 minutes.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Indi-

There was no objection.

Mr. HALLECK. Mr. Speaker, we are coming to what I hope will shortly be the end of this second session of the Eightieth Congress, but before that adjournment resolution is adopted I just want to say to all of you that I am deeply grateful for the many courtesies that you have shown me in this job of mine and to thank you for your cooperation, your helpfulness, and your friendliness.

THE HONORABLE NOBLE J. JOHNSON

Mr. HALLECK. Mr. Speaker, I want to speak for just a moment on one of my colleagues who is leaving the Congress after this session. He is going to the Court of Customs and Patent Appeals. He was here in Congress for a while before he came back on this period of service. He came here the second time in 1938 after I had been here a couple of terms. Then for the first time I got to know him. Since that time he and I have developed a great friendship. I am referring to Noble Johnson, of the Sixth District of Indiana.

He has labored diligently on the Appropriations Committee, heading up that subcommittee that is near and dear to the heart of everyone of us, the Legislative Appropriations Subcommittee. He is the gentleman who looked after our wants, who has listened to our pleas, who has sought to provide for us the things that we need in the way of assistance in carrying on our efforts as Members of Congress. He has always been a friendly, kindly, conscientious Member of the House of Representatives. I am sure we are all going to miss him, but, missing him, we shall above everything else wish for him the greatest success and the greatest happiness in his new assignment. In that assignment I am sure he will bring to the service of his Government and our country and its people that same fine character, extreme diligence, and great ability that has marked his service here in the House of Representagentleman yield?

Mr. HALLECK. I yield to the gentleman from New York.

Mr. TABER. Noble Johnson has been a member of the Committee on Appropriations since 1938. His work upon the Naval Appropriations Subcommittee has been outstanding. More than all, his courage to meet every situation as it came up, his industry, and his loyalty have been outstanding. We are going to miss him here, but we believe that he will have a fine opportunity for great public service in the days to come in the station to which he has been elevated.

Mr. GRANT of Indiana. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. HALLECK. I yield to my colleague from Indiana.

Mr. GRANT of Indiana. Mr. Speaker. I consider it a privilege to join in the tributes that have been expressed here to our colleague, the gentleman from Indiana, Noble Johnson. It was my privilege to have served with our fellow Hoosier for some 10 years in this body. He is a great legislator, an outstanding lawyer, a distinguished American. In his elevation to this high Court of Customs and Patent Appeals the House of Representatives is losing one of its most able Members and the Federal judiciary is gaining a distinguished jurist.

Mr. O'TOOLE. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. HALLECK. I yield to the gentle-man from New York [Mr. O'Toole].

Mr. O'TOOLE. I join with the gentleman from Indiana in his tribute to his colleague.

May I say to the gentleman from Indiana on behalf of myself and on behalf of the Democrats that we have a great appreciation of you, Charlie. It is a very difficult thing for two men to stand eye to eye and for one to express appreciation, friendship, and feeling for the other; but in the 2 years you have been here as majority leader you have behaved yourself in a manly way, you have commanded the respect of the minority and we have a genuine affection for you. We have a conviction that Philadelphia will do great things for you and that will not be unpopular with us.

Mr. PLUMLEY. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. HALLECK. I yield to the gentleman from Vermont.

Mr. PLUMLEY. I want to say to you, Charlie, that if you contributed in any way to taking Noble Johnson off my Subcommittee on Appropriations and making him a judge, you did me no favor. Every member of the committee, as well as myself, has relied upon his judgment. It will be a great loss to the country to have a man who is so well posted, so well informed, with such keen judgment, taken out of the Congress and put in that court where he is going.

Mr. PLOESER. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. HALLECK. I yield to the gentleman from Missouri.

Mr. PLOESER. I would like to add my word of friendship and tribute to NOBLE JOHNSON. It has been my pleasure since being on the Appropriations Committee to be associated with him, originally on two subcommittees and up until these final days on one.

He is most able and one of the friendships I value most in this Congress.

Before I conclude, may I say that the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. HALLECK] has just thanked this House for the way it has treated him. I think at least the majority, if not the entire House, should thank you for the fine floor leadership you have given us.

HON. RICHARD'F. HARLESS

Mr. MURDOCK. Mr. Speaker, if I read the clock right, it is almost daybreak. I feel that despite the unusual hour many of my colleagues have risen in their places and praised those who have been with us, who have done effective work here with us, and have planned deliberately to leave us for other walks of life, that I should be unappreciative to fail to say something about the loss which the State of Arizona will suffer in the departure from this House of my colleague from Arizona.

My young colleague, RICHARD HARLESS. has decided that he will not be a candidate for reelection to Congress. For several years, when I was the sole Member from Arizona, I was very anxious to get the assistance of a young man who would aid me in representing that great State. My wishes were well fulfilled in the election of RICHARD HARLESS in 1942. He has been a very able man, young, energetic, competent.

I greatly regret that Dick has decided not to be a candidate for reelection, but I know whatever he may do he will serve his State and community in some other equally effective way.

Mr. BECKWORTH. Mr. Speaker, will

the gentleman yield?

Mr. MURDOCK. I yield to the gentleman from Texas.

Mr. BECKWORTH. I desire to join Representative MURDOCK in paying tribute to our colleague, RICHARD F. HARLESS. of Arizona. Dick was born some 8 miles from where I live in my home county of Upshur. His people were and are highly

For 6 years I have worked side by side with Dick as a member of the Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee. I have never known, in my 10 years in Congress, a truer and finer man; he is clean, honest, trustworthy, and wholesome; as a legislator, he is competent, constructive, energetic, and effective. Dick, as many know, is a person of great vision and sound judgment; he is a leader of men. His success and attainments in the past have been and are outstanding. I know he will be successful in his future undertakings. We all wish him the greatest of success and happiness in the

The SPEAKER. The time of the gentleman from Arizona has expired.

AGRICULTURAL PRICE STABILIZATION BILL.

Mr. HOPE submitted the following conference report and statement on the bill (H. R. 6248) to authorize the Secretary of Agriculture to stabilize prices of agricultural commodities; to amend section 22 of the Agricultural Adjustment Act, reenacted by the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937; and for other purposes:

CONFERENCE REPORT

The committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H. R.

6248) to authorize the Secretary of Agriculture to stabilize prices of agricultural commodities; to amend section 22 of the Agricultural Adjustment Act, reenacted by the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937; and for other purposes, having met, after full and free conference, have agreed to recommend and do recommend to their respective Houses as follows:

That the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate to the text of the bill and agree to the same with an amendment as follows: In lieu of the matter proposed to be inserted by the Senate amendment insert the following: "That this Act may be cited as the 'Agricultural Act of 1948'."

"TITLE I-1949 PRICE STABILIZATION .

"Section 1. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the Secretary of Agriculture is authorized and directed through any instrumentality or agency within or under the direction of the Department of Agriculture, by loans, purchases, or other operations—

"(a) To support prices received by producers of cotton, wheat, corn, tobacco, rice, and peanuts marketed before June 30, 1950, if producers have not disapproved marketquotas for such commodity for the marketing year beginning in the calendar year in which the crop is harvested. The price support authorized by this subsection shall be made available as follows:

"(1) To cooperators at the rate of 90 per centum of the parity price for the commodity as of the beginning of the marketing year;

"(2) To noncooperators at the rate of 60 per centum of the rate specified in (1) above and only on so much of the commodity as would be subject to penalty if marketed.

"All provisions of law applicable with respect to loans under the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938, as amended, shall, insofar as they are consistent with the provisions of this subsection, be applicable with respect to loans or other price-support operations authorized under this subsection, except that for the purpose of computing the parity price for Maryland tobacco the base period shall be the period August 1936 to July 1941 in lieu of the period August 1919 to July 1929

"(b) To support until January 1, 1950, a price to producers of commodities with respect to which the Secretary of Agriculture by public announcement pursuant to the provisions of the Act of July 1, 1941, as amended, requested an expansion of production of not less than 60 per centum of the parity or comparable price therefor nor more than the level at which such commodity was supported in 1948, except that Irish potatoes harvested before January 1, 1949, milk and its products, hogs, chickens, and eggs shall be supported at 90 per centum of the parity or comparable price. The comparable price for any such commodity shall be determined and used by the Secre tary for the purposes of this subsection if the production or consumption of such commodity has so changed in extent or character since the base period as to result in a price out of line with parity prices for the commodities referred to in (a) hereof. In carrying out the provisions of this subsection the Secretary of Agriculture shall have the authority to require compliance with production goals and marketing regulations as a condition to eligibility of producers for price support.

"(c) Sections 1 and 3 of the Act approved August 5, 1947 (Public Law 360, Eightieth Congress), are amended by striking out in each section the date of 'December 31, 1948' wherever it appears and inserting in lieu thereof the date 'June 30, 1950.'

"(d) It is hereby declared to be the policy of the Congress that the lending and purchase operations of the Department of Agriculture (other than those referred to in subsections (a), (b), and (c) hereof) shall be carried out until January 1, 1950 so as to bring the price and income of the producers of other agricultural commodities not covered by subsections (a), (b), and (c) to a fair parity relationship with the commodities included under subsections (a), (b), and (c), to the extent that funds for such operations are available after taking into account the operations with respect to the commodities covered by subsections (a), (b), and (c). In carrying out the provisions of this subsection the Secretary of Agriculture shall have the authority to require compliance with production goals and marketing regulations as a condition to eligi-bility of producers for price support.

"SEC. 2. From any funds available to the Department of Agriculture or any agency operating under its direction for price support operations or for the disposal of agricultural commodities, the Secretary of Agriculture is authorized and directed to use such sums as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of section 1 of this Act.

"SEC. 3. Section 22 of the Agricultural Adjustment Act, as added by section 31 of the Act of August 24, 1935 (49 Stat. 773), reenacted by section 1 of the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937 (50 Stat. 246), as amended, is hereby amended to read

as follows:
"'SEC. 22. (a) Whenever the President has reason to believe that any article or articles are being or are practically certain to be imported into the United States under such conditions and in such quantities as to render or tend to render ineffective, or materially interfere with, any program or operation undertaken under this title or the Soil Conservation and Domestic Allotment Act, as amended, or section 32, Public Law Numbered 320, Seventy-fourth Congress, approved August 24, 1935, as amended, or any loan, pur-chase, or other program or operation undertaken by the Department of Agriculture, or any agency operating under its direction, with respect to any agricultural commodity or product thereof, or to reduce substantially the amount of any product processed in the United States from any agricultural commodity or product thereof with respect to which any such program or operation is being undertaken, he shall cause an immediate in-vestigation to be made by the United States Tariff Commission, which shall give precedence to investigations under this section to determine such facts. Such investigation shall be made after due notice and opportunity for hearing to interested parties, and shall be conducted subject to such regulations as the President shall specify.

"'(b) If, on the basis of such investigation and report to him of findings and recommendations made in connection therewith, the President finds the existence of such facts, he shall by proclamation impose such fees not in excess of 50 per centum ad valorem or such quantitative limitations on any article or articles which may be entered, or withdrawn from warehouse, for consumption as he finds and declares shown by such investigation to be necessary in order that the entry of such article or articles will not render or tend to render ineffective, or materially interfere with, any program or operation referred to in subsection (a), of this section, or reduce substantially the amount of any product processed in the United States from any such agricultural commodity or product thereof with respect to which any such program or operation is being under-taken: Provided, That no proclamation under this section shall impose any limitation on the total quantity of any article or articles which may be entered, or withdrawn from warehouse, for consumption which reduces such permissible total quantity to pro-portionately less than 50 per centum of the total quantity of such article or articles which was entered, or withdrawn from warehouse, for consumption during a representative period as determined by the President: And provided further, That in designating any article or articles, the President may de-scribe them by physical qualities, value, use, or upon such other bases as he shall deter-

'(c) The fees and limitations imposed by the President by proclamation under this section and any revocation, suspension, or modification thereof, shall become effective on such date as shall be therein specified, and such fees shall be treated for administrative purposes and for the purposes of section 32 of Public Law Numbered 320, Seventy-fourth Congress, approved August 24, 1935, as amended, as duties imposed by the Tariff Act of 1930, but such fees shall not be considered as duties for the purpose of granting any preferential concession under any international obligation of the United States.

"'(d) After investigation, report, finding, and declaration in the manner provided in the case of a proclamation issued pursuant to subsection (b) of this section, any proclamation or provision of such proclamation may be suspended or terminated by the President whenever he finds and proclaims that the circumstances requiring the proclamation or provision thereof no longer exist or may be modified by the President whenever he finds and proclaims that changed circumstances require such modification to carry out the purposes of this section.

"'(e) Any decision of the President as to facts under this section shall be final.

"'(f) No proclamation under this section shall be enforced in contravention of any treaty or other international agreement to which the United States is or hereafter becomes a party.'

"SEC. 4. Section 8 (a), as amended, of the Soil Conservation and Domestic Allotment Act is amended (a) by striking out 'January 1, 1949' wherever appearing therein and inserting in lieu thereof 'January 1, 1951', and (b) by striking out 'December 31, 1948' and inserting in lieu thereof 'December 31, "Sec. 5. Notwithstanding any of the provisions of this Act, the Act of July 28, 1945 (59 Stat. 506), shall continue in effect.

"Sec. 6. This title shall take effect on January 1, 1949, except that sections 3 and 4 shall take effect on the date of enactment of this Act.

"TITLE II-AMENDMENTS TO THE AGRICULTURAL ADJUSTMENT ACT OF 1938

"Definitions of 'parity price', 'carry-over',
 'normal supply', and 'total supply'
"Sec. 201. Section 301 of the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938 is amended-

"(a) By striking out paragraphs (1) and of subsection (a) and inserting in lieu thereof the following:

"'(1) (A) The "parity price" for any agricultural commodity, as of any date, shall be determined by multiplying the adjusted base price of such commodity as of such date by the parity index as of such date.

"'(B) The "adjusted base price" of any agricultural commodity, as of any date, shall be (i) the average of the prices received by farmers for such commodity, at such times as the Secretary may select during each year of the ten-year period ending on the 31st of December last before such date, or during each marketing season beginning in such period if the Secretary determines use of a calendar year basis to be impracticable, divided by (ii) the ratio of the general level of prices received by farmers for agricultural of prices received by larmers for agricultural commodities during such period to the general level of prices received by farmers for agricultural commodities during the period January 1910 to December 1914, inclusive.

"'(C) The "parity index", as of any date, shall be the ratio of (i) the general level of prices for articles and services that farmers buy, interest on farm indebtedness secured by farm real estate, and taxes on farm real estate, for the calendar month ending last before such date to (ii) the general level of such prices, rates, and taxes during the period January 1910 to December 1914, inclusive.

"'(D) The prices and indices provided for herein, and the data used in computing them, shall be determined by the Secretary, whose determination shall be final.

"'(E) Notwithstanding the provisions of subparagraph (A), the transitional parity price for any agricultural commodity, computed as provided in this subparagraph, shall be used as the parity price for such com-modity until such date after January 1, 1950, as such transitional parity price may be lower than the parity price, computed as provided in subparagraph (A), for such commodity. The transitional parity price for any agicultural commodity as of any date shall be—

"'(i) its parity price determined in the manner used prior to the effective date of the Agricultural Act of 1948, less

"'(ii) five percent of the parity price so determined multiplied by the number of full calendar years which, as of such date, have elapsed after January 1, 1949.

"'(F) Notwithstanding the provisions of subparagraphs (A) and (E), if the parity price for any agricultural commodity, computed as provided in subparagraphs (A) and (E) appears to be seriously out of line with the parity prices of other agricultural com-modities, the Secretary may, and upon the request of a substantial number of interested producers shall, hold public hearings to determine the proper relationship between the parity price of such commodity and the parity prices of other agricultural commodities. Within sixty days after commencing such hearing the Secretary shall complete such hearing, proclaim his findings as to whether the facts require a revision of the method of computing the parity price of such commodity, and put into effect any revision so found to be required.

"'(2) "Parity", as applied to income, shall be that gross income from agriculture which will provide the farm operator and his family with a standard of living equivalent to those afforded persons dependent upon other gainful occupation. "Parity" as applied to income from any agricultural commodity for any year, shall be that gross income which bears the same relationship to parity income from agriculture for such year as the average gross income from such commodity for the preceding ten calendar years bears to the average gross income from agriculture for such ten calendar years.'

"(b) By amending paragraph (3) (A) of subsection (b) to read as follows:

"'(A) "Carry-over", in the case of corn, and peanuts for any marketing year shall be the quantity of the commodity on hand in the United States at the beginning of such marketing year, not including any quantity which was produced in the United States during the calendar year then current.

"(c) By amending paragraph (3) (B) of subsection (b) to read as follows:

"'(B) "Carry-over" of cotton for any mar-keting year shall be the quantity of cotton on hand within the United States at the beginning of such marketing year, which was produced in the United States prior to the beginning of the calendar year then current, plus the quantity on hand within the United States at the beginning of such marketing year which was produced outside the United States.'

"(d) By striking out paragraph (10) of subsection (b) and inserting in lieu thereof

the following:
"'(10) (A) "Normal supply" in the case of corn, cotton, rice, wheat, and peanuts for any marketing year shall be (i) the estimated domestic consumption of the commodity for the marketing year ending immediately prior to the marketing year for which normal supply is being determined, plus (ii) the estimated exports of the commodity for the marketing year for which normal supply is being determined, plus (iii) an allowance for carry-over. The allowance for carry-over shall be the following percentage of the sum of the consumption and exports used in computing normal supply: 7 per centum in the case of corn; 30 per centum in the case of cotton; 10 per centum in the case of rice; 15 per centum in the case of wheat; and 15 per centum in the case of peanuts. In determining normal supply the Secretary shall make such adjustments for current trends in consumption and for unusual conditions as he may deem necessary.

"'(B) "Normal supply" in the case of tobacco shall be a normal year's domestic consumption and exports, plus 175 per centum of a normal year's domestic consumption and 65 per centum of a normal year's exports as an allowance for a normal carry-over.

"(e) By amending paragraph (16) of sub-

(e) by amending paragraph (16) of sub-section (b) to read as follows:

"'(A) "Total supply" of cotton, wheat, corn, rice, and peanuts for any marketing year shall be the carry-over of the commodity for such marketing year, plus the estimated production of the commodity in the United States during the calendar year in which such marketing year begins and the estimated imports of the commodity into the United States during such marketing year.

"'(B) "Total supply" of tobacco for any marketing year shall be the carry-over at the beginning of such marketing year plus the estimated production thereof in the United States during the calendar year in which such marketing year begins, except that the estimated production of type-46 tobacco during the marketing year with respect to which the determination is being made shall be used in lieu of the estimated production of such type during the calendar year in which such marketing year begins in determining the total supply of cigar filler and cigar binder tobacco.'

"Price support

"SEC. 202. (a) Section 302 of the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938, as amended, is amended to read as follows:

"'Sec. 302. (a) The Secretary, through the Commodity Credit Corporation (except as provided in subsection (c)) and other means available to him, is authorized to support prices of agricultural commodities to producers through loans, purchases, payments, and other operations. Except as otherwise provided in this section, the amounts, terms, and conditions of such price support operations, and the extent to which such opera-tions are carried out, shall, in the case of operations carried out by Commodity Credit Corporation, be determined by the Corporation with the approval and subject to the direction of the Secretary, and, in the case of operations carried out by other means, be determined by the Secretary. In making such determinations, consideration shall be given to (1) the supply of the commodity in rela-tion to the demand therefor, (2) the price levels at which other commodities are being supported, (3) the availability of funds, (4) the perishability of the commodity, (5) its importance to agriculture and the national economy, (6) the ability to dispose of stocks acquired through a price support operation, (7) the need for offsetting temporary losses of export markets, and (8) the ability and willingness of producers to keep supplies in line with demand. Compliance by the producer with acreage allotments, production goals, and marketing practices prescribed by the Secretary may be required as a condition of eligibility for price support. The Secretary shall in all cases give consideration to the practicability of supporting prices indirectly, as by the development of improved merchandising methods, rather than directly by purchase or loan.

"'(b) (1) Price support shall be made available to producers of any basic agricultural commodity at levels determined as hereinafter provided in this subsection. On the basis of the latest available statistics of the Department of Agriculture as of the beginning of each marketing year for each such basic agricultural commodity, the Secretary shall, with respect to such marketing year and such basic agricultural commodity

"'(i) estimate the total supply;

"'(ii) determine the normal supply; and "'(iii) determine the percentage which the estimated total supply is of the normal supply (such percentage being referred to herein as the "supply percentage"). "'(2) The level at which the price of such basic agricultural commodity for such marketing year shall be supported for cooperators (other than cooperators outside commercial corn-producing area, in the case of corn) shall not exceed 90 per centum of the parity price of such commodity as of the beginning of the marketing year or be less than the percentage of its parity price as of the beginning of such marketing year determined from the following table:

(A) the minimum level of price support to cooperators for any basic agricultural commodity shall be 120 per centum of the level determined from the foregoing table, if acreage allotments are in effect at the beginning of the planting season for such commodity, or if marketing quotas are in effect at the beginning of the marketing year for such commodity; but in no case shall the level of price support for any commodity be increased thereby above 90 per centum of its parity price as of the beginning of the marketing year; and

"'(B) the level of price support for any basic agricultural commodity normally marketed in any marketing year with respect to which marketing quotas have been disapproved by producers shall be 50 per centum of the parity price of such commodity as of the beginning of such marketing year.

"'(4) The level at which the price of corn shall be supported for cooperators outside the commercial corn-producing area shall be 75 per centum of the level at which the price is supported for cooperators in the commercial corn-producing area with respect to corn.

"'(5) Notwithstanding the foregoing provisions of this section, the level of price support to cooperators for any crop of tobacco for which marketing quotas are in effect shall be 90 per centum of its parity price as of the beginning of the marketing year.

'(c) The support price for any nonbasic agricultural commodity shall not exceed 90 per centum of the parity price for the commodity as of the beginning of the marketing year or season in the case of a commodity marketed on a marketing year or seasonal basis, and as of January 1 in the case of any other commodity. Any price support opera tion undertaken with respect to either tur-keys or chickens shall be applicable to all chickens, including brollers, appropriate adjustments being made as provided in subsection (e) of this section: Provided, That if any price support operation is undertaken with respect to either chickens or turkeys, the same parity price support operation shall be undertaken with respect to ducks and ducklings and other poultry. The price of wool shall be supported at such level, not in excess of 90 per centum nor less than 60 per centum of its parity price as of January 1, as the Secretary may consider necessary in order to encourage an annual production of approximately 360,000,000 pounds of shorn The price of any kind of Irish potatoes harvested after December 31, 1949, shall be supported at not less than 60 per centum nor more than 90 per centum of the parity price for Irish potatoes as of the beginning of its marketing season. The Commodity Credit Corporation shall not carry out any operation to support the price of any nonbasic agricultural commodity (other than Irish potatoes) which is so perishable in nature as not to be reasonably storable without excessive loss or excessive cost; but any such operation may be carried out by the Secretary through other means available to him such as those provided by section 32. Public Law Numbered 320, Seventy-fourth Congress, approved August 24, 1935, as amended: Provided, That the foregoing provisions shall not be construed to prohibit the Commodity Credit Corporation from supporting the price of any perishable nonbasic agricultural commodity by a loan, purchase, payment, or other operation undertaken with respect to a storable commodity processed from such perishable nonbasic agricultural commodity: Provided further, That the Secretary, in carrying out programs with respect to perishable and nonperishable commodi-ties under section 32 of Public Law Num-bered 320, Seventy-fourth Congress, approved August 24, 1935, as amended, and section 6 of the National School Lunch Act, may utilize the services and facilities of the Commodity Credit Corporation (including but not limited to procurement by contract) and make advance payments to it: And provided further, That in any fiscal year, if at the end of the preceding fiscal year the sums appro-priated under said section 32 and remaining unexpended do not exceed $300,000,000, Commodity Credit Corporation may, as provided in section 302 (a) of this Act, carry out any operation to support the price of any such perishable, nonbasic agricultural commodity to the extent that the reserve for the postwar price support of agriculture established pursuant to the First Supplemental Appropria-tion Rescission Act of 1946 (60 Stat. 8) and other funds appropriated for agricultural price support are sufficient to cover any losses which may be incurred in connection with such operation.

"'(d) Notwithstanding the foregoing provisions of this section, price support opera-tions at levels in excess of the maximum level of price support otherwise prescribed in this section may be undertaken whenever it is determined by the Secretary after reasonable public notice and public hearing with records of said hearing and a finding thereon by said Secretary available to the public that price support at such increased levels is necessary in order to increase or maintain the production of any agricultural commodity in the interest of national security.

"'(e) Appropriate adjustments may be made in the support price for any com-modity for differences in grade, type, staple, quality, location, and other factors. Such adjustments shall be made in such manner that the average support price for such commodity in each marketing year will, on the basis of the anticipated incidence of such factors, be equal to the level determined as provided in this section for such marketing year.

"'(f) For the purposes of this section—

"'(1) A "cooperator" with respect to any basic agricultural commodity shall be a prothe commodity does not exceed the farm acreage allotment for the commodity under this title, or, in the case of price support for corn to a producer outside the commercial corn-producing area, a producer who com-plies with conditions of eligibility prescribed by the Secretary. For the purposes of this subsection a producer shall not be deemed to have exceeded his farm acreage allotment unless such producer knowingly exceeded such allotment.

"'(2) A "basic agriculture commodity" shall mean any of the commodities cotton, wheat, corn, tobacco, rice, and peanuts of a crop harvested after December 31, 1949.

(3) A "nonbasic agricultural commodity" shall mean any agricultural commodity other than a basic agricultural commodity.

STATEMENT

The managers on the part of the House at the conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H. R. 6248) to authorize the Secretary of Agriculture to stabilize prices of agricultural commodities; to amend section 22 of the Agricultural Adjustment Act, reenacted by the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937; and for other pur-poses, submit the following statement in explanation of the effect of the action agreed upon by the conferees and recommended in the accompanying conference report:

The Senate amendment to the text of the bill struck out all of the House bill after the enacting clause and inserted a substitute amendment. The conferees have agreed to a substitute which incorporates the substance of the House bill and titles III and IV of the Senate amendment, with modifications. Except for clarifying, clerical, and minor changes the differences between the House amendment and substitute agreed to in conference are explained below.

The House bill is retained with virtually no change except clarifying and clerical amendments to make it conform to the substitute agreed upon by the conferees, and two minor amendments in substance, one changing the base period for the computa-tion of parity on Maryland tobacco and the other making it clear that the act of July 28, 1945 (59 Stat. 506) relative to dark tobacco remains unchanged. There was added a provision extending until December 31, 1950, authority to make soil conservation payments.

In the substitute amendment agreed to by the conferees that portion which was the House bill now provides for interim price supports on agricultural commodities to continue through the calendar year 1949. Titles III and IV of the Senate bill appear vitually without changes as titles II and III of the substitute amendment. In general, these titles provide for a modernization of parity and for a permanent price support program. The effective date of titles II and III of the substitute amendment is January 1, 1950.

Following is a detailed explanation of the provisions of titles II and III:

TITLE II-AMENDMENTS TO AGRICULTURAL ADJUSTMENT ACT OF 1938

Section 201 amends section 301 of the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938 in the following respects:

(1) The method of computing parity prices would be changed to the extent necessary to give appropriate recognition to changes in relationships among the prices of the agri-cultural commodities themselves occurring since the base period, 1910-1914, such as those resulting from the discovery of new uses or new methods of production. This section would provide a formula which, while prethe 1910-14 relationship farm and nonfarm prices, will reflect the developments of recent years. The general level would be based on the differences between the 1910-14 and the present prices of things that farmers buy, the parity prices of some commodities would be reduced while others would be increased. This section also provides for a transition from the present method of computing parity prices and for any corrective action which may become necessary in the future. The section would accomplish these objectives in the following manner:

At present the parity price of any agri-cultural commodity as of any date is com-

(i) Preparing a parity index showing the changes in prices of things that farmers buy since the base period 1910-1914; and

(ii) Multiplying the price of the com-modity during the base period by the parity

The section would change this formula only by substituting an adjusted or moving base price for the 1910-14 price of the commodity. This adjusted base price for the commodity would be a price bearing the same relation-

(i) The price of such commodity during the preceding 10 years-as the general level of prices received by farmers for agricultural commodities during the period 1910-14 bears to— (ii) The general level of prices received by farmers for agricultural commodities during the same 10 years.

In order to prevent the parity price for any particular commodity from being reduced substantially in any year by reason of this change use of a transitional parity price would limit such reduction to 5 percent per year. The transitional parity price would be the parity price as now computed less 5 per-cent for each full year elapsed after January The transitional parity price would be used for a commodity until the first time that the parity price is equal to or above the transitional parity price.

In addition, the Secretary may revise the method of computing any parity price which becomes seriously out of line with the parity prices of other agricultural commodities.

(2) "Parity" as applied to income is re-defined for the purpose of establishing a more accurate standard. This change has no substantive effect. (3) The term "carry over" as applied to cotton, corn, rice, and peanuts is redefined to include imports. Foreign-stored cotton is excluded. This term was not previously applied to peanuts.

(4) The term "normal supply" as applied to corn, cotton, rice, wheat, and peanuts is redefined to represent current requirements. more accurately than has heretofore been the case. Instead of using 10-year averages of exports and domestic consumption in the computation of normal supply, estimated exports for the marketing year for which normal supply is being determined and estimated domestic consumption for the pre-ceding marketing year would be used. The allowance for carry-over provided for in the existing definition of "normal supply" remains the same except in the case of cotton which would be 30 percent in lieu of 40 percent in existing law. The definition in existing law for "normal supply" is not applicable to peanuts but the new definition would be made so. The allowance for carryover in the case of peanuts would be 15 percent. Provision is made for adjustments for current trends in consumption and for unusual conditions. The term "normal sup-ply" as applied to tobacco would not be

(5) The term "total supply" has been redefined to cover peanuts and in the case of cotton, wheat, corn, rice, and peanuts to include imports. The term as applied to tobacco has not been changed.

Section 202 would amend section 302 of the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938 (which contains the principal permanent price support provisions) to provide as fol-

(1) Price support of any agricultural commodity through loans, purchases, payments, or other operations would be authorized. This authorization provides the necessary flexibility in the choice of methods to be used in supporting prices. Thus it authorizes not only loans and purchases but also direct payments to farmers. The use of indirect methods such as the development of improved merchandising methods is en-couraged. In determining the methods to be used, as well as the other terms and conditions of price support operations, the Secretary and the Commodity Credit Corporation are required to give consideration to (1) the supply of the commodity in relation to the demand therefor, (2) the price levels at which other commodities are being supported, (3) the availability of funds, (4) the perishability of the commodity, (5) its importance to agriculture and the national economy, (6) the ability to dispose of stocks acquired through a price-support operation, (7) the ability and willingness of producers to keep supplies in line with demand, and (8) the necessity of offsetting temporary losses of export markets. Compliance with acreage allothents and production goals may be required as a condition of price support.

(2) In the case of the basic commodities price support at from 60 to 90 percent of parity, the minimum level depending upon the relationship of the total supply of each commodity to its normal supply would be required to be made available to cooperators (those who do not exceed farm-acreage allotments); except that if marketing quotas have been disapproved by producers the level of price support would be reduced to 50 percent of parity. If marketing quotas are approved by producers the level of price support which would otherwise be given to the commodity would be increased by 20 percent, but shall not exceed 90 percent. Tobacco would be supported at 90 percent of parity.

(3) Price support for nonbasic commodities is discretionary with the Secretary up to a maximum level of 90 percent of parity. The price of wool, however, is required to be supported at such level between 60 and 90 percent of parity as the Secretary considers necessary in order to encourage an annual production of approximately 360,000,000 pounds of shorn wool. Potatoes are also supported at 60 to 90 percent of parity.

(4) In case the national interest requires, price support operations at levels in excess of 90 percent of parity are permitted with respect to either basic or nonbasic commodities.

(5) Subject to certain exceptions the Commodity Credit Corporation is prohibited from using its funds to carry out any operation to support the price of any nonbasic agricultural commodity which is so perishable in nature as not to be reasonably storable without excessive loss or excessive cost.

(6) Limitations are imposed upon the of himitations are imposed upon the price at which Commodity Credit Corporation can sell farm commodities subject to a number of exceptions. These limitations and exceptions are generally comparable to those now in effect and are intended to prevent sales of farm commodities by Com-modity Credit Corporation in a manner which would impair price support opera-tions with respect to such commodities.

Marketing quotas

Sections 203, 204, 205, and 206 change the conditions which must be determined by the Secretary to exist before marketing quotas can be imposed upon corn, wheat, cotton, and rice. As reported, the sections would provide that whenever the Secretary determines

(1) That the total supply of the commodity for the marketing year beginning in the then current calendar year will exceed the normal supply for such marketing year by more than 20 percent (8 percent in the case of cotton), or

(2) That the total supply of the commodity for the marketing year ending in such calendar year is not less than the normal supply for the marketing year so ending and that the average price for the commodity for three successive months does not exceed 66 percent of parity-the Secretary shall proclaim marketing quotas for the marketing year beginning in the next succeeding calendar year.

Acreage allotments-imports

Section 207 requires the Secretary to take imports into consideration in determining acreage allotments for corn, wheat, and rice for the purposes of marketing quotas.

Amendments

Section 208 would amend section 312 (a) of the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938 to require the Secretary, first, to proclaim a national marketing quota for each marketing year for each kind of tobacco for which a national marketing quota was proclaimed for the immediately preceding marketing year, and, second, to proclaim a national marketing quota for Virginia sun-cured to-bacco for each marketing year for which a quota is proclaimed for fire-cured tobacco. This would mean that, once the Secretary proclaims a marketing quota for any kind of tobacco, he is required to proclaim a mar-keting quota for that kind of tobacco for each succeeding year without regard to the supply conditions presently required by the statute.

TITLE III-MISCELLANGOUS Section 32 funds

Section 301 provides for accumulation, up to $300,000,000, of section 32 funds not currently required for program purposes. Section 32 of the act of August 24, 1935 (7 U. S. C. 612c), appropriates for each fiscal year an amount equal to 30 percent of the customs duties for the preceding calendar year, to be used by the Secretary of Agriculture to encourage exportation and to increase (by means of diversion programs) domestic con-sumption of agricultural commodities and products and to reestablish farmers' purchasing power. To the extent that funds annually appropriated by section 32 are not fully utilized during any fiscal year, this provision would permit the balance of the funds not utilized to be carried over to subsequent fiscal years and used for the purpose for which such funds were appropriated. This provision would make it possible to formulate long-range surplus disposal programs.

Parity-Other statutes

Section 302 conforms the definitions of "parity" contained in other statutes to the definition of "parity" contained in section 301 of the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938, as amended by the bill.

> CLIFFORD R. HOPE, AUG. H. ANDRESEN, ANTON J. JOHNSON, GEO. W. GILLIE, Managers on the Part of the House.

Mr. HOPE. Mr. Speaker, I call up the conference report on the bill (H. R. 6248) to authorize the Secretary of Agriculture to stabilize prices of agricultural commodities; to amend section 22 of the Agricultural Adjustment Act, reenacted by the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, and for other purposes, and ask unanimous consent that the statement of the managers on the part of the House be read in lieu of the report.

The Clerk read the title of the bill. The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Kansas?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the statement.

Mr. HOPE. Mr. Speaker, this is the conference report on the bill H. R. 6248. This bill, in part, passed the House on last Saturday in the form of a measure to extend the present price-support program for 1 year. In the Senate the measure was amended by striking out all after the enacting clause, and there was substituted the provisions of a Senate bill dealing with a long-range farm program. The conferees have agreed upon a measure which contains substantially all of the provisions in the House bill, to be applicable only for the year 1949; in other words, we are bringing back to you the same bill which we passed in the House to extend price supports for 1

In addition, the bill as agreed upon by the conferees contains substantially all of titles 3 and 4 of the Senate long range bill, which provisions deal with a long range price support program. The Senate bill consisted of four titles originally. Two of those titles dealt with the reorganization of the Department of Agriculture, and particularly with a reorganization of the Soil Conservation Service, a reorganization which in effect would have eliminated the Soil Conservation Service and turned its functions over to the Extension Service, the land grant colleges, and the Production and Marketing Administration, under a new name, however,

Your conferees did not agree to those two titles in the bill. They have been eliminated and, as already stated, the bill now contains substantially all of the provisions of titles 3 and 4 relating to a price support program.

Mr. H. CARL ANDERSEN. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. HOPE. I yield to the gentleman from Minnesota.

Mr. H. CARL ANDERSEN. Do the provisions of titles 3 and 4 of the Aiken bill have any application in this coming

Mr. HOPE. No. I am glad the gentleman asked that question. As far as the provisions of titles III and IV are concerned, they will go into effect on January 1, 1950, at which time the provisions of that part of the bill which the House passed will go out of effect.

Mr. H. CARL ANDERSEN. One more question: If we agree to this tonight, will we have the opportunity, if the House so decides next spring, to change some of the provisions of titles III and IV as contained in this bill? I am referring especially to the lack of 90 percent parity guaranties.

Mr. HOPE. The bill will not go into effect until a year from next January 1. It offers approximately 18 months within which the bill may be studied and amendments made if they are necessary. I say that the Committee on Agriculture intends to study the bill carefully in that intervening time.

Mr. H. CARL ANDERSEN. There is no commitment on the part of this Congress now that we must continue in effect past next year these two titles to which we have reference? Personally, I do not care to agree to any program which would guarantee less than 90 percent of parity in our basic commodities.

Mr. HOPE. The bill if it becomes a law will be subject to amendment, of course, just as any law, and we will have the advantage of having this 18 months' period in which to study it before it actually goes into effect.

Mr. AUGUST H. ANDRESEN. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. HOPE. I yield to the gentleman from Minnesota.

Mr. AUGUST H. ANDRESEN. I think I can safely say as a conferee that the Senate conferees have agreed to a sympathetic consideration of any proposals we in the House may make with reference to changes in this bill.

Mr. HOPE. Yes; that is a correct statement. I may say that the bill is one which contains a great many intricate and technical provisions.

Mr. BONNER. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. HOPE. I yield to the gentleman from North Carolina.

Mr. BONNER. May I inquire as to what the necessity is for passing at this time legislation that will not become effective until 1950? What is the reason? What is the cause of it?

Mr. HOPE. The bill, as I know the gentleman understands, passed the Senate in such a form that it became effective next January 1. It was the purpose of the Senate in passing it to put a longrange program in effect on next January 1 at the expiration of the present temporary program which is embodied in the Steagall amendment and other similar legislation. I will say to the gentleman it was the position of the House conferees when we first went to conference that there was no necessity for passing a long-range program at this time. We thought that the conferees from the Senate should accept the provisions of the House bill, which would carry us forward for a year, and we thought that at the end of that time we would be in a better position to work out a long-range program. The Senate conferees took a different view and, as in the case of all conferences of this kind, in the end we worked out a compromise, and this is the

Mr. BONNER. That part of the proposal now offered to the House is superfluous and unnecessary. All that is needed is Senate approval of the continuation of the existing law that has been passed in the House. I think there must be some reason why this legislation is so urgently brought here at this late

Mr. HOPE. There are many in this country, including the leaders of all of the great farm organizations, that is, the Farm Bureau, the Grange, the Farmers Union, and the Cooperative Council, who have urged that a long-range program be enacted at this time. All four of those organizations have endorsed that part of the Senate bill which we have adopted as a part of this conference report. There is greater unanimity on the part of the farm organizations of this country on this bill than on any important agricultural bill with which I have been familiar.

Mr. BONNER. Yes; but with all the time available in the first session of the next Congress, certainly the proper and intelligent thing to do would be to bring the bill into this House so the House could debate it and study it and know more about it.

Mr. HOPE. The gentleman is repeatconference.

Mr. WHITTINGTON. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. HOPE. I yield to the gentleman from Mississippi.

Mr. WHITTINGTON. The fact of the matter is that the House is now in the position of voting on a long-range program when the House Committee on Agriculture did not make any report on this bill or any other bill on the longrange program. Therefore, the Members of the House have not had the benefit of the views of the House committee with respect to this long-range program. That is true, is it not?

Mr. HOPE. That is true in a technical sense, at least. Of course, the Committee on Agriculture of the House has conducted extensive hearings, both in Washington and over the country, on the question of a long-range program.

Mr. WHITTINGTON. In all fairness, in addition to it being true in a technical sense, is it not a fact that the Committee on Agriculture of the House announced that they would not report a long-range program bill in this session.

Mr. HOPE. That is true. Mr. WHITTINGTON. Therefore, we do not have the benefit of the study and the reports of the House committee in the consideration of this bill. That is true, is it not?

Mr. HOPE. That is true. May I say to my friend that the conferees refused to agree under any circumstances to any long-range program which would become effective at once or as soon as January 1. But we felt under the circumstances that when we would have this time in which to study the measure and make amendments which might be necessary, we were justified in agreeing in the conference to this report.

Mr. WHITTINGTON. If the gentleman will permit me to say so, I think it is unwise and unsound to pass a bill that will not be put into effect for a year in order to have the privilege of studying it and amending it. With all due deference, I favor the provisions of the House bill. I think the Senate bill discriminates against the major agricultural commodities, including cotton, wheat, and corn

Mr. HOPE. If the gentleman will present his views to the Committee on Agriculture in the next session of the Congress, I am sure the committee will give careful attention to those views.

Mr. FLANNAGAN. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield me half the time, as I have other gentlemen on my side who would like to be heard?

The SPEAKER. The chairman of the committee generally has control of the time. If the gentleman from Virginia [Mr. Flannagan] has Members on his side who desire to address the House, he can give the names of the gentlemen to the chairman of the committee.

Mr. FLANNAGAN. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield me 10 minutes?

Mr. HOPE. Mr. Speaker, I yield 10 minutes to the gentleman from Virginia [Mr. Flannagan].

Mr. FLANNAGAN. Mr. Speaker, I have served in this body for 18 years, but I have gone through my strangest and most unusual experience since yesterday at 2 o'clock. I do not believe any Member present ever went through a similar experience in legislative matters. Thursday night about 11 o'clock, the experience other body passed what is known as the Aiken farm bill. At 2 o'clock on yesterday we were called into conference, and the House conferees to a man turned down the Aiken bill. They turned it down for the reason that they did not know what was in it. I doubt that some of the conferees from the other body knew a bit more about what was in the bill than the conferees from the House, who had not had an opportunity to examine the legislation.

At 5 p. m. on Friday we were called into conference. The House conferees, because they did not know what was in the Aiken bill, turned it down. So the conference adjourned. .

At 2 o'clock yesterday, Saturday, we were called back into conference, and the House conferees again stood pat and we adjourned. Then, at 4 o'clock yesterday, we were called back into conference for the third time and the roll was called, and the House committee still stood pat. We were not willing to place our O. K. upon a piece of legislation that no Member of the House conferees knew anything about, and we broke up in a rather heated discussion.

Then a strange thing happened. In order to bring this conference report back, they had to rape the House conferees. When they came back Mr. Murray resigned as a conferee and Dr. Gillie was appointed in his stead; and then we met again. The Democratic members still stood pat, but the Republican members went over to the Aiken bill. Now, that is the way you get this piece of legislation.

Now, why did these things happen? I do not want to inject politics into this discussion, but evidently the Philadelphia Republican Convention had to have a farm program, and in order to give that convention a farm bill, they had to rape the conferees in order to give the convention a program.

Now, I am telling you frankly, no member of the House conferees can tell you what is in the Aiken bill, and yet they bring the bill here and ask you to O. K. it. It is true that the Aiken bill does not go into effect for 18 months. They adopted the House bill, but provided that the House bill should expire December 30, 1949, and thereupon the Aiken bill becomes the farm program.

Mr. Speaker, I think the House bill is a well-considered bill. The House bill continues in effect the program we have developed over the last 15 years.

Mr. WHITTINGTON. Mr. Speaker,

will the gentleman yield?

Mr. FLANNAGAN. I yield.

Mr. WHITTINGTON. The fact of the matter is, the House committee has reported no long-range program; they have submitted no long-range bill; and the further fact is that we have a bill of 60 or 65 pages in length, and thus far, with four titles. The only explanation that this House has of the bill is that titles I and II have been stricken from the bill?

Mr. FLANNAGAN. That is right. As I said, the House bill will be the agricultural program during next year. It has proven to be successful. The only redeeming feature about this piece of legislation is this:

That part of the legislation known as the Aiken bill does not go into effect until 18 months from the present time, and during next year I hope—I know—and I confidently believe that the House Committee on Agriculture will work out a long-range farm program to take the place of the Aiken bill. When that is done I will not be here, but I make the prediction that the long-range program that the House committee will present to you next year will not be the Aiken bill.

Mr. BUSBEY. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. FLANNAGAN. I yield.

Mr. BUSBEY. Is it not a fact that this Congress cannot bind the next Congress? In other words, cannot the Eighty-first Congress pass legislation that will correct any inequality in the so-called Aiken bill?

Mr. FLANNAGAN. I am glad the gentleman called attention to that fact because I would hate to think that this Congress would bind the next Congress to anything like the Alken bill. I believe the House Committee on Agriculture should hold hearings and bring in a farm program that they understand and that they can explain to this House before they ask the House approval.

The SPEAKER. The time of the gen-

The SPEAKER. The time of the gentleman from Virgina has expired.

Mr. HOPE. Mr. Speaker, I yield 5 minutes to the gentleman from North Carolina [Mr. Cooley].

Mr. COOLEY. Mr. Speaker, while I realize that the Members of this House are tired and weary and are anxious to go home and get some rest, I do not feel that I should permit this conference report to be adopted without making at least a few comments and observations.

Every Member of this House has a share of responsibility and will be held to account for the actions here taken. I doubt if any man in this House—even the oldest man in point of service in this body—has ever witnessed such a spectacle as this. For long hours the conferces labored and they brought forth a monstrosity. It is neither bird nor beast nor fish nor fowl. It has the head of an elephant, but the heart of the Republican long-range farm program has been torn from the monster's body. In one part you will find provisions which authorize a continuation of the present price-support program-a program which has meant much to the welfare and prosperity of American agriculture. These provisions will continue a vital part of the Democratic farm program only until after the grand November election will be safely behind us and a matter of history. Then another program will go into effect and the agricultural economy of this Nation will be shaken to its foundation

This is a spectacle of the rarest variety of political pressure. When the conferees were unable to agree on either the House bill or the Senate bill, and after the discussions clearly indicated that the Senate would not accept the House bill or surrender any part of the Senate bill, and after the representatives on the part of the House had indicated that they would not surrender the House bill or accept any part of the Senate bill, we adjourned, and I am sure that everyone considered the adjournment final. The House conferees did not have an oppor- . tunity to familiarize themselves with the many far-reaching and complicated provisions of the Senate bill. This House was in almost constant session from the very moment the Senate took final action on the much-talked-of Republican long-range farm program. While the bill was introduced by Senator AIKEN many long weeks ago, it was never called up for consideration in the House Committee on Agriculture.

Usually when the Senate passes a bill of importance it comes to the House and is referred to the House committee, but. obviously, this could not be done and when the representatives on the part of the House objected to having the measure rammed down our throats, whether we liked it or not, political pressure went up. As pointed out by my colleague the gentleman from Virginia [Mr. FLANNA-GAN], when the House conferees, Republicans and Democrats alike, found the Senate bill to be obnoxious and highly objectionable in the form in which it was submitted, politicians were apparently horrified. But something took place during the long and dreary hours, either here in Washington, or perhaps in Philadelphia, or maybe in both of these very important places. After secret meetings, and no doubt because of one Member's unwillingness to surrender his convictions or to compromise his conscientious views, he resigned and another was appointed in his place. Again the conferees conferred and as a result you are now faced with a unique situation. As intelligent Representatives of the people of this country, as weary and as fatigued as you are, you are urged to embrace this monstrosity which has a dual parentage and a dual purpose. There is not one of you who knows what it is or what is in it. You are not even told what is in it and you have no way of knowing about its

I love and admire the great and noble chairman of my great committee, the very able and alert and distinguished gentleman from Kansas, and certainly no finer man ever lived than the gentleman from Kansas, Clifford Hope. I regret that the temper of this House is such, and even that is perhaps easily understood, in view of the lateness of the hour, that when he was undertaking to tell you something about the provisions, yes, the important provisions of this conference report, and while he was talking, we heard cries go out over this House, "Vote! Vote! Vote!" Yes, vote, but vote for what. Certainly you do not even know what you are voting for, yet you must vote because Republican politicians must have something that they can at least call a long-range farm program.

I served in this Congress through the New Deal and many, many times Democrats were called rubber stamps. This is a super duper case of rubber stamp. Take it for Taft so that he can talk about it. Do it for Dewey so that he can dangle it before the people. Write it into law for Warren, and mark it up for Martin. Stay here late for Stassen, and win a victory for Vandenberg. Whoop it up for the Old Guard, so that you may have a hot time in the old town on Tuesday. Yes, you will have H. R. 6248 with provisions you have never seen and charts and tables you do not understand. Here in this great farm program is written this strange and uncertain language:

To assist low-income families and school children in maintaining an adequate diet, particularly in periods of underconsumption and unemployment.

Certainly when you think of the Republican Party you must be impressed with the significance of the last two important words in this great provision, "underconsumption" and "unemploy-Some parts of this bill read like a Republican platform and oh how they will read it and wave it at the convention. This is not only a package of promises to the people and a platform on which to run, but it is actually handed to you with a promise that it will be changed before it goes into effect. It embraces the producers of not only basic commodities and the Steagall commodities, but many other commodities have been added, including even the ducks and little ducklings. The Democratic administration was criticized on account of potatoes and putrified eggs, but everything is here included within the four corners of this bill. It must be rubber stamped and approved. But at least there is one Republican here who was unwilling to embrace this monstrous thing. I congratulate and compliment the very distinguished, able, fearless, and courageous Representative, the gentleman from Wisconsin, Mr. REID F. MUR-RAY, who refused to yield to pressure or to be lashed by the party whip or to be black-jacked into surrendering his honest convictions on this thing the Republicans will call a farm program. have a right to change their minds, to alter their positions, and to modify their views. Upon mature consideration no doubt many Members of this House would have modified their views, but at least it is a rather strange thing that the views of so many could be modified so soon.

Certainly we know why this bill is here in its present form. It is here because Congress is about to adjourn and the Republicans are about to convene in convention to be assembled in Philadelphia only a few hours from now. You Republicans came into power on a promise that you would write a long-range farm program, and throughout all of the sessions of the Eightieth Congress you have talked of a long-range farm program for the American farmer, but you have done nothing about writing such a program and now you awaken to the fact that you have been sleeping on the job. asleep at the switch. Perhaps you were lulled to sleep by the fact that the farmers of America already had written on the statute books a long-range farm program with which they are well satisfied. All you need to do is to continue the price-support program, the soil-conservation payments, and the Commodity Credit Corporation, and you knew this when you came into power, and yet you have put the poor farmer off until the very last thing, and while in a state of utter confusion you insist upon having some sort of a paper writing to call a farm program. Do you not know that the American farmer is well informed and intelligent enough to know, to understand, and to appreciate fully the circumstances under which your political promise was so pitifully performed. Yes, you promised the American farmer you would write a farm program and he knows now that you have not done it.

We sat up with the corpse of the Republican farm program all through the night: Republican leaders were weeping and wailing; finally, about daybreak, the corpse came back to life again. A transfusion was administered and when some signs of life appeared there was great rejoicing. Although the breath of life was breathed again into the dead monster he will not be permitted to move from the place of his curious construction until he is 18 months of age. that is the ridiculous proposition that is now placed before you. You are asked to enact this thing into law, to write it into the law books and into the United States Code, and to read it and to study it for 12 or 18 months and if you find that it will work you can put it into harness and hitch it to the plow, but if its head is too heavy or its legs are too short, or if its body is too weak, we will subject it to surgery or feed it some strange vitamin that will give it strength enough to support the floor under American agriculture.

Frankly, I have tried to understand the provisions of this bill, but, frankly, I must tell you that I even now do not fully understand it. I do not believe that there is a man on the floor of this House on either side of this aisle who can tell you the far-reaching ramifications of this bill. Shall we place our stamp of approval upon Federal legislation which we do not understand and cannot explain? Shall we have such little regard for the sanctity of Federal law as is now involved in the action this House is about to take? We are told that some of the farm organizations were in favor of the Senate bill, but that was carved to pieces in conference. Go ahead and rubber stamp it and then go back to your constituents and try to explain your conduct. That is what you will do. That is what you will do. That is what you must do. The monster is now asleep but when he is awakened and aroused you shall hear from him.

Mr. HOPE. Mr. Speaker, I yield 5 minutes to the gentleman from Georgia [Mr. Pace].

Mr. PACE. Mr. Speaker, there were three measures which had to be considered and acted upon this week. One was to extend the life of the Commodity Credit Corporation which would expire on June 30. The Congress has taken appropriate action during the night granting a permanent charter to the Commodity Credit Corporation.

The second was extending the Soil Conservation and Domestic Allotment Act. That extension is contained in the pending conference report.

The third was extending the pricesupport program, which, under the present law at its level, would expire on December 31. That is the matter now before the House.

This is a rather singular conference report. The House passed a bill, the Senate passed a bill, and the compromise is to enact both of them.

You are about to go home. I am sure those of you who represent agricultural sections will want to report the situation to your constituents. We now have a 90-percent support for this year. Under the conference report we will have a continuation of 90-percent support next year for the basic commodities and a few others and other commodities supported at from 60 to 90 percent of parity. Therefore, generally speaking, you will have 90 percent for 1948 and 1949.

On January 1, 1950, titles III and IV of the so-called Aiken bill will go into effect. That will give us two changes I have not been able to give my approval to. It will entirely change the parity formula. It sets up one of those fantastic schemes known as the 10-year moving average. It has two unfavorable features. One entirely abandons the parity principle of comparable purchasing power as to a particular commodity. The second is it reduces the parity prices of practically all of the commodities, except cattle, hogs, milk, rice, and tobacco. Within a short time it will bring about many inequities and discrimination among commodities. As between com-modities it does not take into account the respective cost of production, the labor required, or the advancement in mechanization in planting, cultivating, and harvesting.

Then under this report you will reduce the support prices which are on a flexible basis ranging from 60 to 90 percent. The Senate author of the bill admitted that no commodity would ever have 90 percent support under the bill unless it was under a control program, except wool and tobacco. This is all I can say now. When the Alken bill becomes effective a year and a half hence, the farmer will suffer a reduction in his parity price, and at the same time a reduction in his support price. Therefore he will be hit twice. I think it is unfortunate and not in keeping with our obligation to him. Personally I cannot give my approval to a bill now which I know will take me months to completely analyze, and completely understand, and which is a step backward in providing the farmers with the security and protection they are entitled to. I think it would have been more sensible if we had waited until the next session to enact a long-range program and in the meantime have drafted a simple and understandable bill. But, it is here. It is a so-called long-range program effective a year and a half hence. The Republican leadership says it must pass now. As my distinguished chairman has said, it is hoped that he and the others of us on the committee who will return to Congress will endeavor to correct the serious mistakes we make tonight. It is with regret that I cannot give the conference report my support at this time.

Mr. HOPE. Mr. Speaker, I move the previous question.

The previous question was ordered. The SPEAKER. The question is on the conference report.

The question was taken; and on a division (demanded by Mr. Whittington) there were—ayes 147, noes 70.

So the conference report was agreed to.
A motion to reconsider was laid on the

RECRUITMENT AND DISTRIBUTION OF FARM LABOR

Mr. HOPE. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent for the immediate consideration of the bill (S. 2767) to provide assistance in the recruitment and distribution of farm labor for the increased production, harvesting, and preparation for market of agricultural commodities to meet domestic needs and foreign commitment.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Kansas?

Mr. McCORMACK. Reserving the right to object, Mr. Speaker, I should like to have an explanation of this bill.

Mr. HOPE. I shall be glad to explain the bill, Mr. Speaker. This is a bill which has been requested by the United States Employment Service and also by the farmers who are the users of agricultural labor, in order to make the recruitment and distribution of farm labor more effective during this season. This is a measure that is not only in the interest of agricultural producers but certainly in the interest of consumers, because with the current labor shortage, unless we can bring in some farm lebor, it is my opinion we are likely to have a loss of food in this country during the current year.

The bill provides that the Secretary of Labor in carrying out his responsibilities to maintain a farm placement service is authorized to recruit foreign workers within the Western Hemisphere and Puerto Rico for temporary work, and to provide for their transportation to and from the United States and to and from different parts of the United States. There is authorized to be appropriated such sums as may be necessary for the administration of the program.

Then there is a further authorization of appropriations for the establishment of a working capital fund, this fund to be used for the payment of expenses for transportation, lodging, and subsistence of the workers. This fund is to be reimbursed by growers who use workers, so that the United States Government will not be out any money on account of the transportation and the lodging and the subsistence of these workers. In other words it is a revolving fund, and with the exception of administrative expenses all expenses will be paid by the growers who use these farm workers.

Mr. GAVIN. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. McCORMACK. I yield to the gentleman from Pennsylvania.

Mr. GAVIN. This is merely a perpetuation of the same New Deal measure we have had for the last several years. I am surprised the gentleman would present this to our side of the House. I thought we got rid of this last year and were going to get rid of it forever. Now the gentleman brings it out here and asks us to accept it. I certainly hope my side of the House will have the courage of its convictions and get rid of this New Deal measure.

Mr. McCORMACK. May I say to the gentleman from Pennsylvania that this is not the only New Deal legislation that he has voted for and that his side has voted for. We have converted you right along the line.

Mr. CARROLL. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. McCORMACK. I yield.

Mr. CARROLL. Does this bill in any way change the law that was passed with reference to sugar controls and workers and their salaries and so forth?

Mr. HOPE. No; this bill in no way changes or affects the Sugar Act of 1947.

Mr. CARROLL. That is with reference to the protection of agricultural workers in sugar and the workers' salaries and the controls?

Mr. HOPE. These workers are not only under the protection of that act, but they are under the protection of State laws. They are under the protection, in the case of Mexican workers, and most of them are Mexican workers, of the very strict and rigid agreement between the United States and Mexico calling for the protection of the workers. If the gentleman is familiar with that agreement, he knows they are very well taken care of under the agreement.

Mr. CARROLL. I thank the gentleman.

Mr. KEEFE. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. McCORMACK. I yield.

Mr. KEEFE. I just want to say that you have already passed an appropriation bill providing the money for this act. You have appropriated $1,000,000 to carry it out.

Mr. PHILLIPS of California. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. McCORMACK. I yield.

Mr. PHILLIPS of California. I ask the gentleman from Kansas if I am correct in believing that the amendment concerning which I previously spoke to him, has been withdrawn?

Mr. HOPE. May I say to the gentleman from California that it is my purpose to withdraw the amendments. The committee amendments in effect would put administrative expenses under the revolving fund, and would require that the administrative expenses be paid by the employer. I am going to ask unanimous consent to withdraw those amendments. I have spoken to a number of members of the committee who are present at this time, and there is no objection so far as I know to the withdrawal of the amendments. Then I also propose to offer two amendments which are necessary because of the fact that the United States Employment Service is now a part of the Federal Security Agency instead of the Department of Labor. That makes it necessary to offer an amendment on page 1, line 3, and on page 2. line 21.

Mr. MARCANTONIO, Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. McCORMACK. I yield.

Mr. MARCANTONIO. My sole concern with this legislation is not to injure the farmers who need this type of labor, but to express a word of caution. These people have been exploited and paid cheap wages. In many instances they have been used as strikebreakers. It is one thing to help agriculture and help the farmers when they are short of labor, but it is another matter to have these people used as scabs and as cheap labor. I do hope that the department which will supervise this program will see to it that these people will neither be exploited nor used as strikebreakers and scabs.

Mr. McCORMACK. I think every one of us agrees with the observation made by the gentleman from New York.

Mr. Speaker, I withdraw my reservation of objection.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Kansas?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1949, the Secretary of Labor, in carrying out his responsibilities to maintain a farm placement service under the act of June 6, 1933 (48 Stat. 113), as amended, is authorized to recruit foreign workers within the Western Hemisphere and workers in Puerto Rico for temporary agricultural employment in the continental United States and to direct, supervise, coordinate, and provide for the transportation of such workers from such places of recruitment to and between places of employment within the continental United States and return to the places of recruitment not later than June 30, 1949. There is hereby authorized to be appropriated such sums for the administration of the program authorized by this section as the Congress may deem necessary.

SEC. 2. There is hereby authorized to be appropriated for the establishment of a working capital fund for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1949, $2,500,000, such fund to be used only for the payment of expenses for transportation, lodging, and subsistence in connection with the temporary migration of foreign agricultural workers from foreign countries within the Western Hemisphere, and workers from Puerto Rico, to and between places of employment within the continental United States and return to the place of origin. Notwithstanding any other provisions of law, the employers utilizing such workers shall be required to reimburse such fund to such extent and in such manner and under such terms and conditions as the Secretary of Labor may by regulation or otherwise prescribe.

Mr. HOPE. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to withdraw the committee amendments.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Kansas?

There was no objection.

Mr. HOPE. Mr. Speaker, I offer two amendments, which I send to the Clerk's desk.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendments offered by Mr. Hope: On page 1, line 3, strike out "the Secretary of Labor" and insert "the Administrator of the Federal Security Agency."

On page 2, line 21, strike out "the Secretary of Labor" and insert "the Administrator of the Federal Security Agency."

Mr. FOGARTY. The first amendment was to strike out "the Secretary of Labor" and insert "the Federal Security Administrator"; is that correct?

Mr. HOPE. Yes. That is made necessary by reason of the act that was passed, the appropriation bill, which transferred the Federal Employment Service to the Federal Security Agency.

The SPEAKER. The question is on agreeing to the amendments.

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed, and a motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

ISSUING PATENTS IN ALASKA

Mr. D'EWART. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent for the immediate consideration of House Joint Resolution 162, a joint resolution to repeal section 2 of the act of May 1, 1936, and for other purposes.

The Clerk read the title of the resolution.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Montana [Mr. D'EWART]?

Mr. RICH. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, what does this bill do?

Mr. D'EWART. The bill repeals section 2 of the act of May 1, 1936, having to do with the issuing of certain patents in Alaska. Second, it permits the Secretary of the Interior to issue patents in Alaska to individual tribes, villages, or individuals, with the approval of the Secretary of the Interior.

Mr. RICH. Mr. Speaker, it is now 15 minutes after 6 in the morning. It is almost time to go to church. It seems to me this legislation should be deferred until some other time. I object.

ADJOURNMENT RESOLUTION

Mr. HALLECK. Mr Speaker, I offer a concurrent resolution (H. Con. Res. 218) and ask for its immediate consideration

The Clerk read as follows:

Resolved, That when the two Houses adjourn on Sunday, June 20, 1948, they stand adjourned until 12 o'clock meridian on Friday, December 31, 1948, or until 12 o'clock meridian on the third day after the respective Members are notified to reassemble in accordance with section 2 of this resolution, whichever event first occurs.

SEC. 2. The President pro tempore of the Senate, the Speaker of the House of Representatives, the acting majority leader of the Senate, and the majority leader of the House of Representatives, all acting jointly, shall notify the Members of the Senate and the House, respectively, to reassemble whenever, in their opinion, the public interest shall warrant it.

The SPEAKER. The question is on agreeing to the resolution.

The resolution was agreed to.

AUTHORIZING THE SPEAKER AND THE PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE TO SIGN ENROLLED BILLS AND JOINT RESOLU-TIONS

Mr. HALLECK. Mr. Speaker, I offer a concurrent resolution (H. Con. Res. 219) and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the resolution, as follows:

Resolved, That notwithstanding the adjournment of the two Houses until December 31, 1948, the Speaker of the House of Representatives and the President pro tempore of the Senate be, and they are hereby, authorized to sign enrolled bills and joint resolutions duly passed by the two Houses and found truly enrolled.

The SPEAKER. The question is on agreeing to the resolution.

The resolution was agreed to.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

AUTHORIZING THE CLERK TO RECEIVE MESSAGES

Mr. HALLECK. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that notwithstanding the adjournment of the House until December 31, 1948, the Clerk be authorized to receive messages from the Senate.

ized to receive messages from the Senate.

The SPEAKER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

There was no objection.

AUTHORIZING THE SPEAKER TO AP-POINT COMMISSIONS, BOARDS, AND COMMITTEES

Mr. HALLECK. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that notwithstanding the adjournment of the House until December 31, 1948, the Speaker be authorized to appoint commissions, boards, and committees authorized by law or by the House.

The SPEAKER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

There was no objection.

GENERAL LEAVE TO EXTEND REMARKS

Mr. HALLECK. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members of the House shall have the privilege until the last edition authorized by the Joint Committee on Printing is published to extend and revise their own remarks in the Congressional Record on more than one subject, if they so desire, and also to include therein such short quotations as may be necessary to explain or complete such extension of remarks, but this order shall not apply to any subject matter which may have occurred or to any speech delivered subsequent to the adjournment of Congress until Friday, December 31, 1948.

REPORTS OF INVESTIGATING COMMISSIONS TO BE DOCUMENTS OF EIGHTI-ETH CONGRESS

Mr. HALLECK. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that reports filed with the Clerk following the adjournment of the House until Friday, December 31, 1948, by committees authorized by the House to conduct investigations may be printed by the Clerk as reports of the Eightieth Congress.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Indiana?

There was no objection.

CERTAIN REPORTS OF COMPTROLLER GENERAL'S OFFICE TO BE PRINTED AS HOUSE DOCUMENTS

Mr. HALLECK. Mr. Speaker, I offer a resolution (H. Res. 700) and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read as follows:

Resolved, That the reports of the Comptroller General of the United States made to Congress, pursuant to section 5 of the act of February 24, 1945 (56 Stat. 6), and the Government Corporation Control Act (59 Stat. 597), after the adjournment of the House until December 31, 1948, shall be printed as House documents of the second session of the Eightleth Congress.

DESIGNATION OF ASSISTANT CLERK OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Mr. HALLECK. Mr. Speaker, I offer a resolution (H. Res. 701) and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read as follows:

Resolved, That in order that the duties of his office may be discharged in case of his absence or disability or in case his office should become vacant, the Clerk of the House of Representatives on or before June 19, 1948, shall designate a subordinate in his office to perform the duties thereof in any such contingencies until the commencement of the first session of the Eighty-first Congress. Such designee when acting under this authorization, shall subscribe himself as Acting Clerk of the House of Representatives.

The Clerk of the House shall promptly communicate to the Speaker the name of the employee designated hereunder for the information of the House.

The resolution was agreed to.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

The SPEAKER laid before the House the following communication, which was read by the Clerk:

OFFICE OF THE CLERK,
HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,
Washington, D. C., June 20, 1948.
The Honorable the Speaker,

House of Representatives.

Sir: Pursuant to the provisions of House Resolution 701 adopted by the House today. I have designated Mr. Harry Newlin Megill, an official in my office, to discharge the duties contemplated by said resolution.

Respectfully yours.

JOHN ANDREWS, Clerk of the House of Representatives.

EXTENSION OF REMARKS

Mr. WIGGLESWORTH asked and was given permission to extend his remarks in two instances and in each to include tabular material.

Mr. KERSTEN of Wisconsin asked and was given permission to extend his remarks in the Appendix of the RECORD in two instances.
